The Provisional Secretary explains the object of the meeting to be to receive the reports of the assistants now employed upon the damage done during the gale on the 1st instant, caused principally by the unusual rise of the spring tide, lifted by the force of the wind. This piece of water worked holes in several parts in consequence of the bunds being new, and thus breaking them in three places, flooded the outfields and reduced the strength of the water which had been raised in 1868-89 to nearly a parity with the nulla itself or 1023-89.

The injury itself is trifling and will be repaired at an expense under Co's Rs. 600, but it renders the chance of making salt this season, hopeless. This, however, the Provisional Secretary explains was scarcely to be expected, notwithstanding the greatest possible exertion in completing the bunds and gates, and shutting in as much water as possible during the months of March and April, but had not this early gale been followed by such repeated heavy showers, the large reservoir would have been filled by the end of May, with brine water at a high measure, and the following making season would have begun much sooner. He reports the large reservoir of 600 feet circumference nearly finished in the entire circle of the wall, and about 6 feet high from the foundation; the chimneys nearly finished and the flues and choola being covered in by the flat cast iron boilers received from England.

The cutting and levelling of the terraces has been a work of great labor and expense, and although begun a soon as coolness could be collected will not be finished this season. The tiles however, have nearly all been burnt, so that the work can be finished in good time for the reception of the strong water from the fields next February. The present heavy showers have much interrupted every part of the work, the cholera has likewise committed sad ravages during the past month.

The Provisional Secretary produces a statement of the expenditure to the 30th April, showing its appropriation to each branch of the works as follows:

almost all the materials have now been provided, and the value of labor therefore for the remaining work is all that has to be computed.

The Provisional Secretary states, that he feels very confident that the total outlay will not exceed the original estimate. He further explains that pursuant to the last resolution of the Committee, there has been erected at Bahighat one closed cylindrical boiler and other apparatus according to Mr. Calders' new plan, for the purpose of experiment, and that it is in a state of great forwardness. The expenditure upon this trial amounts to about Co's rupees 4500.

The provisional Secretary reports that the amount of contributions realized by the Union Bank, amounts to Co's rupees 130,000, and that daily collections are made from the numerous shareholders. The whole number of 2900 had been subscribed for, but several parties have forfeited their first contributions and left their shares to be reappropriated by the Directors. The number thus open to the public, is about 180.

1. Resolved that Mr. W. Prinsep's report upon the progress of the works is satisfactory, and that it be published for the information of the proprietors.

2. That his arrangements for the carrying on of the works are approved of and confirmed, but that he be recommended to secure one or two steady assistants, who will undertake an apprenticeship at the other Salt Works, so as to be ready for employment when required at the Company's Works.

3. That the unappropriated shares be advertised as open for subscription, and the defaulters be called upon to complete their instalments without delay.

MEETING OF THE ROMAN CATHOLICS OF MADRAS TO DETERMINE UPON AN ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN ON HER MARRIAGE.

We submit the following report of the proceedings of a Meeting of the Roman Catholics of Madras, held on Monday evening last, in the Free School Rooms of the Cathedral. We understand there were from 2 to 300 persons present. The Right Rev. Dr. Carew, being requested to take the chair, he addressed those present on the purpose for which they had been called together and, remarking upon the facilities now afforded to Roman Catholics to approach their Sovereign compared with former times—emphatically observed, the lot of Roman Catholics in the present day was cast in pleasant places. We beg to refer our readers to an outline of what fell from the Right Reverend Prelate on the occasion, which will be found in our report of the proceedings of the evening—Brief and unimportant as our report of the observations under notice may be found to be, we feel assured it will be read with interest, as will our account of what fell from the Rev. Mr. Kennedy on the same occasion, and which forms part of our report.

We need hardly remark, that the proceedings of the evening throughout, were to every respect—satisfactory.

Meeting of the Roman Catholics of Madras, held on Monday, the 4th instant, at the Roman Catholic Cathedral Free School Rooms.

Right Rev. Dr. Carew in the Chair.

The following Address and Resolutions were unanimously adopted—

Before the proposed Address was submitted, the Right Rev. Dr. Carew addressed the meeting nearly as follows.

Gentlemen—I have called you together this evening, in order that, independently of any address that you might concur in offering to our Gracious Sovereign the Queen, in common with other inhabitants of this city you might also present her with an especial one, emanating from you as Her Majesty's Catholic subjects in this Presidency.

It is not very long since we could exercise this privilege with impunity.—In the reign of Elizabeth, a Catholic of rank and distinction, who approached the Queen with an address, without the sanction of the Privy Council, was consigned to perpetual imprisonment, although the address contained nothing but expressions of loyalty and faithfulness to his Sovereign; such was the intolerance prevalent in those days; such was the hatred predominant in the breasts of those who were not of the Catholic Faith against their brethren.

But, thanks to God, he has cast our lot at a period when we can approach our Sovereign, as Catholics, without being molested and profess our Holy Religion publicly, without the hazard of being persecuted for the same. In former evil times, Catholics were under a continual fear of the sword; yet, notwithstanding, they were determined to exhibit the loyalty which glowed within their bosoms, although they purchased that privilege with their blood. I think it your duty to emulate those illustrious personages of past ages who belonged to the Catholic Religion, and who even in persecution were the loyal subjects of the governing power.

We are fond of looking back on those Ancestors, by whose principles and virtues we feel ourselves exalted. We praise the ancient Romans who filled their galleries, with the pictures and busts of their illustrious ancestors, and shall we not look up with similar feelings to those members of the great family who have gone before us, and with whom we are connected by the sacred bonds of Religion? Shall we not look back with pride and veneration upon those who, in the very midst of persecution, firmly cherished their Religion and loyalty to their Sovereign? History abounds with such examples. I hold in my hand the address of the Catholics to Charles the Second. Behold the reasons on which they claim his Protection. "One motive,—is from our religion, which strictly teacheth and commendeth us, under pain of eternal damnation, to render to God the things that are God's, and to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to obey our temporal princes and magistrates, not for fear only, but for conscience sake, seeing to resist their authorities is to resist the ordinance of God, which we believe with a most steadfast faith, nor are we longer Roman-catholics, than we so believe."

"Another motive,—is, from the fidelity of Roman-catholics in queen Elizabeth's time, testified by the lord of the Privy Council, who told them, that the cause of their imprisonment was not for any doubt made of their loyalty, but only to prevent the Spaniards hope of their assistance in his intended invasion; nay, in that of 1588 they (the Catholics) brought the lord North then lieutenant of those parts, in the presence of the Dean of Ely, that they might be employed in hastening forces to Tilbury camps, offering to serve in person, with their sons, tenants, and servants, and at their own charge and to be placed in the front of the battle to testify the loyalty of their hearts, and to stop the mouths of the envious maligners."

"A third motive,—is, from our constant fidelity obedience and affection towards your father of blessed memory, in all his late troubles, sufferings, and afflictions, as also in your own royal person, by zealously contributing to your miraculous preservations and deliveries out of the hands of bloody and cruel enemies."

"These things being so,—most royal Sovereign we cannot doubt but your Majesty will, in your perfect wisdom, clemency, and justice, allow us to be now restored to that condition, for which we are intended as and is confirmed on us, as free born Englishmen, by the great charters of your royal ancestors, of which the violent passion of one prince, the apprehended rule of another to the crown, and the wicked attempt of a few seduced persons, have so unluckily and so long deprived us. Permit us, therefore, most gracious sovereign, to exercise securely that religion, in which your pious and most famous successors have so long flourished."

There were the words in which Catholics addressed their monarch. They were obliged to seal the testimony of their loyalty with their blood; but yet they preserved a their good purpose, and shall we, who live under a free government, without the slightest restraint, shall we, I say, not follow in their footsteps; and strive to emulate their noble example? One hundred and ninety two noblemen and Gentlemen lost their lives in saving Charles the Second; one half of the whole wealth then confiscated by the Rebels of England belonged to Catholics. These examples show what our Religion can produce even when under the frown of power and oppression.

Our present Gracious Sovereign has many claims upon our respect, attachment, and fidelity. Her ministers are the advocates of Civil and Religious Liberty and of Education; and if they have not been successful in spreading the blessings of education every where, it is because of the opposition of their adversaries. Look also at the mildness with which even the laws are executed under our Gracious Queen. Riots and disturbances have broken out in England, and yet the rioters still enjoy the blessings of life, and suffer only what justice administered in mercy demands.

We had been emancipated it is true, before her Majesty began to reign; but Catholic emancipation was but a dead letter, till Our Gracious Sovereign was raised on the throne of her Royal Ancestors. It was left to Her Majesty's time, to put the privilege conceded to Her Catholic subjects into exercise. It was left to her benignity to restore to them practically those rights of which they were so long unjustly deprived. She has chosen for Her ministers, some professors of the Catholic Faith. Men who, like their predecessors in Religion, would lose their lives and fortunes in defence of their Queen. Men whose virtues, learning, and high principles do honor to the situations to which they have been appointed,—other Catholics of a like exalted character have been either raised to the Judicial Bench or appointed to places of honor and confidence at home or in the several Colonies of Great Britain; and there is no doubt, that were we circumstanced as the British Colonies are, her gracious Majesty would deem it due to the three hundred thousand Catholics of this Vicinity, to appoint to some of the important offices of Government some two or three gentlemen at least of their own persuasion, and that the education of their children and the maintenance of destitute Catholic orphans, would not be, as they now are, wholly disregarded.

You know that for the liberality our gracious sovereign has shown towards Roman Catholics, she has been openly rebuked and almost insulted; but in her exalted mildness and dignity, she has passed over the insult in silence, and has treated it with that contempt which it so well deserved.

The men whom she has admitted into the Councils of the country, are men who would do honor to any administration; and yet for this the Sovereign has been treated with indignity. People now a days boast of the progress of science and liberality and are still not ashamed to reproach their Queen for the exercise of a liberality actually more limited, than that which was practised in the reigns of the most bigoted Protestant Sovereigns of England.

Amongst a great number of other Catholics employed in the reigns of Elizabeth, James the First, Charles the First, and Charles the Second, were the following gentlemen.—Under Elizabeth, the Earls of Worcester and Northumberland, the former ambassador in France, the latter an admiral against the Spanish Armada, &c. Under James 1st, the Earl of Northampton, lord privy seal, lord Digby, ambassador to Spain, &c. Under Charles 1st, the Earl of Bristol, lord Baltimore, lord Ballamont, lord Aston, lord Cuttington, as well as his fellow Secretary of State, Sir F. Windebank; &c. Under Charles 2nd, the Earl of St. Alban's and Norwich, the lord Treasurer Clifford, Lord Arlington, &c.

In order to testify our gratitude for all the benefits conferred upon us, I have prepared an address to be presented to our beloved Queen, in which I trust you will cordially coincide.

To her Most Gracious Majesty Victoria, Queen Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY,

We the Roman Catholic Inhabitants of Madras, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, with profound respect beg leave to tender, on the happy event of your Majesty's marriage, the tribute of heart-felt congratulation, and the homage of inviolable attachment.

Instructed from youth in the Sacred maxim, that there is "no power but from God," we would have deemed right in any circumstances, to evince on an occasion like the present, our duty towards the Sovereign to whom we owe allegiance.

But, thanks to the Divine Providence by whom Monarchs reign, the congratulation we now offer is no merely the dictate of duty, but the warm effusion of grateful and devoted hearts.

In addressing your Majesty, we feel, that besides the allegiance we owe to your August Person, in common with all our other fellow subjects, we have great additional obligations of gratitude.

We feel that under your Majesty's benign and impartial Government, we are sheltered from the effects of calumny and persecution, and that the road to honorable distinction is now practically opened in Great Britain and the British Colonies, as well to Roman Catholics as to the Members of other religious denominations.

These blessings were indeed long anticipated by us. They are the fruits of the exalted virtues which your Majesty inherits from your illustrious parents, and the auspicious choice of your Royal Consort makes us confidently hope that they will be perpetual.

That, together with your August Consort, your Majesty may reign long in happiness over an united and prosperous empire, is the fervent prayer of your Majesty's dutiful and attached subjects—the Roman Catholics of Madras.

If we feel proud, in following in the honorable footsteps of our forefathers in religion,—if we respect a Queen who has received the dead letter of Emancipation, who has freed practically her subjects in her own territories from the manacles that had hitherto bound them,—if we feel grateful to a Sovereign who has granted freedom of religion to all under her sway, and who wishes to diffuse the blessings of education among all her subjects without distinction of country or religion, then we shall join, with acclamation, in offering the tribute of congratulation which I propose now to our most gracious Sovereign.

Moved by Mr. DeFries, and seconded by Mr. W. I. Johnson.

1. "That the Address now read be adopted by the Meeting."

Moved by Mr. F. DeMonte, and Seconded by Mr. G. H. Mayers.

2. "That the address now adopted be transmitted by our respected Prelate to the Most Noble the Marquis of Normandy, with a request to present the same to our Most Gracious Sovereign."

Moved by the Rev. Mr. Kennedy, and seconded by S. P. Arathoon, Esq.

3. "That our venerable prelate be requested to convey to the Marquis of Normandy, that while we gratefully acknowledge him, as the deliverer of the slaves in the West Indies, as the first Minister who, by the distribution of Public Offices and honours, rendered emancipation practically beneficial to the Catholics of Great Britain and the British Colonies, we also cordially cherish the hope that he will crown his glorious career, by accomplishing similar benefits for the unnumbered Millions of his fellow subjects in British India, and raise his immense Empire from its present prostrate and degraded condition.

MY LORD AND GENTLEMEN.—The resolution which I hold in my hands is in perfect accordance with my feelings, but I regret it has not fallen to the lot of someone else to propose it. It is indeed a resolution which every friend of political and religious freedom will second, with feelings more easily felt than described, and such are the feelings with which I propose it. Were I to offer an apology for claiming a moment's indulgence, I would only remind you that the land of my fathers is feelingly alive to the influence which the wisdom and virtues of Normandy have shed over her dearest and most vital interests, and that the land in which I live as feelingly imprints the interference of his enlightened policy, and the advocacy of his incomparable talents. Next to the gratification of congratulating her most Gracious Majesty on her happy and auspicious marriage, is the pleasure of conveying our feelings of loyalty and gratitude through the illustrious vindicator of Ireland's rights, the liberator of the slaves in the West Indies, and the father of the oppressed in every nation; through the proudest pillar of royalty, and the staunchest friend of universal liberty. A rare example of felicitous virtue—does it not touch the heart with the purest joy to behold him, after combating oppression in its most formidable bearings, after crushing bigotry upheld for centuries by the monopoly of power, and deeply rooted in all the heresies and extravagance of its nature, to behold him, after preading the blessings of freedom and equal rights over a great empire, still high in the confidence of his most August Sovereign, high and influential in the councils of glorious nation. Yes, it is a gratifying reflection—it does honour to the Sovereign, it adds to the glory of the nation, and it is to us an earnest, that the bright hopes which we cherish shall be one day realised, and that even we, in this injured, benighted land, shall not be ultimately forgotten. Suptor to envy, I believe he is envied by none, but his character would be incomplete, did he not merit the hatred of the bigoted and dishonest, the enmity of the oppressors of humanity, the hostility of the enemies of justice and of the sacred privileges of conscience. These are the clearest testimonies of the wisdom of his policy, the highest evidence of the purity of his motives, the strongest proof that he not only intended but effected much good. A stranger to the paltry narrow feelings that would distinguish between hues of complexion, localities of birth, or differences of opinion in religion or politics, during his political career he has ever contemplated man as God has made him—the image of himself, endowed with liberty and gifted with thousand privileges dear and sacred to the possessor—adjuncts to no one, and of which no one has a right to deprive him. He beheld with tender sympathy the enervating influences which the strong man had made on the glis of his weaker brother, and his friendly and benevolent soul glowed with ardour to restore the work of God to its just proportions. Therefore it is that this day enjoys the privilege of his species, and talks about in the full dimensions of humanity; therefore it is that Ireland, my Native land, name of endearment, is indeed interwoven with my fondest and dearest recollections, Ireland, on whom no gift has been ever lost at a moment, therefore it is that Ireland, lifted from her degradation by the statesman arm of a single representative of Majesty, and loused from the tannets with which monopoly and bigotry and oppression had fettered her energies, chose to the extremities of the earth her ardent feelings of loyalty, to her impartial Sovereign, confidence in her ministers of love and gratitude to humanity. And because our Sovereign is gracious and impartial, because she is tenderly alive to the interests of her subjects, and because she is so appreciative of the merits of her minister, because only is and what he always was and what every statesman ought to be, therefore do we, Her Majesty's loyal subjects in British India, indulge in the pleasing hope that this extensive empire shall soon be, what it ought to be, as flourishing and as free as it is populous and fertile. Then indeed will the political career of the illustrious benefactor of nations be crowned, happily then may he ask with the bard of Mantua, when descending in triumph below the horizon which he now enlightens and cherishes—Quæ regio in terra, nostri non plana laboris;

From East to West, From Sea to Sea,
What nation hails not Normanby's
Freedom his gift, mankind his care,
His land, his home is every where.

Moved by the Rev. Mr. Doyle, and seconded by Mr. P. Gannon.

4. That our Chairman do leave the Chair, and that the Chair be taken by the Rev. Mr. Kennedy.

Moved by Mr. P. DeColes, and seconded by Mr. A. Gillies.

5. That the thanks of this Meeting be respectfully tendered to our Venerable Prelate for presiding on the present occasion.

That the foregoing resolutions be published in the Madras Examiner, in the Bengal Hurkarn and Englishman, in the Morning Chronicle of London and the Dublin Pilot.

N. B. A copy of the address will lie at the vestries of the several R. C. Churches for Signature until this day week.—Examiner, May 7.

Resolved.—That as the amount of loss likely to be entailed on the Institution by the operation of Section

XXXIV (inserted in the margin) of the Fund Regulations will, in all probability, prove very great, and interfere most essentially with the possibility of arriving at perfectly accurate conclusions in the calculation of chances, it be abrogated from the 1st January 1840, save respects incumbents, who having entered the Fund upon the faith of that rule's continued operation, the present motion is not to be considered as having retrospective effect.”

Copy of Article XXXIV of the Fund Deed.

“That all subscribers who may be intimated or put upon the home half pay list on account of ill health, all who may be intimated in India on account of ill health, and all subscribers who may be put upon the half pay list in consequence of ill health not permitting their longer residence in India, before they shall have respectively served 17 years in India, shall receive back their subscriptions and all sums of money which they may have paid into the said Fund, together with interest on the same, after the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.”

The difference amounting to Co's Rs. 11,653 2 3 over remitted as above will be removed by the Sub-Treasurer in a Treasury Note, together with the accumulated interest up to the 31st December 1839, amounting to Co's Rs. 2,596 1 10 more.

Mr. Superintendent Surgeon Thomas Tweedie, on whose behalf an annuity was accepted, as announced in the Report read at the Fourth Quarterly General Meeting of 1837, held on the 30th October of that year, having returned to India in January last without availing himself of the Annuity thus reserved for him, has been called upon to pay up the fine imposed by Section XXVII. of the Fund Rules, and he has accordingly paid into the General Treasury the sum of Rs. 3,000 or Co's Rs. 3,200.

Fund, 12th Sept, 1838.*

"The Sub-Treasurer having declined to receive private drafts for realization on account of this Fund, it is requested that no other than drafts on the General Treasury be hereafter submitted in payment of subscriptions, as all other description of drafts will be returned.

(Signed) Geo. Hurt,
Secy. Med Regt, Fand.

As the said Treasurer is precluded under order of Government from realizing private drafts, and as no money transactions by way of other receipt in payment are entered on in the Office of the Secretary to the Federal Retiring Fund, the Committee of Management begs to repeat the notice inserted in the margin, they published as an advertisement in the newspapers of the day, of date the 12th Sept. 1838, that no other than drafts on the General Treasury are receivable in the Office of the Secretary to this Fund; and therefore, the inconvenience and loss which subscribers will experience by having their drafts returned to them, the Committee of Management begs again to notify, that the Secretary is not authorized to receive any but Government Bills, and that no private Bills whatever, or Bank Notes, or payments in cash will be received at the Secretary's office; parties having to pay money on account of this Fund, will accordingly be so good as to do so through a public Treasury if in the Provinces; and at the Presidency, payment must be made either at the General Treasury, or at the Presidency Pay Office, on receipt of the Sub-Treasurer, or Presidency Pay Master respectively: or if it be preferred to make payments through Agents in Calcutta, the amount must in such cases be paid at the General Treasury. This rule has been in the instances noted in the margin,* departed from for the convenience of parties tendering payment, the Secretary, however, will send the subscribers concerned, in all cases where it has not been already done, the Sub-Treasurer's original receipt in acknowledgment of the remittance, and on all future occasions, he will follow up one general rule, viz not to receive any moneys in his office, or to grant receipts for the same but to refer parties to the Sub-Treasurer, and to insert all other description of drafts that are not drawn on Government

Treasurer, as the Sub-Treasurer declines according to the rule of his office, to receive for realization any but Government drafts; to this practice, therefore, every subscriber's attention is requested.

The duplicate receipt of the Government Officer receiving the money from a subscriber, should in every instance where payment of arrears is made, be forwarded to the Secretary to enable him to credit in due course the party who has paid, as well as to debit Government with the amount so paid, as well as for the amount of interest accruing thereon. For ordinary payments of current subscriptions, the Secretary receives a statement direct from the receiving Officer, a receipt, therefore, in such cases from subscribers is not required.

The Committee of Management begs to observe that although Section XI. of the Fund Deed, which is trans-

Extract from the Deed of the B M R Fund being the Regulations of the Society.

"Section XI. That at no time shall the Secretary to the said Society be appointed as he-agent in any manner, inasmuch as he shall, in his possession, a large sum of the said Funds of the said Society, than Rs. 1,000, but when and as soon as any of the Funds of the said Society shall accumulate in his hands to that sum, he shall immediately pay over the same to the Sub-Treasurer of the said Honourable East India Company, or to such other person or persons, as may be legally authorized to receive the same as aforesaid to be placed to the credit of the said Society.

seem to contemplate that the Secretary should have to conduct the pecuniary transactions of the Fund, the practice has been otherwise, the duties of Treasurer and Secretary being separated, as the union of the functions of both in one individual would necessarily constitute him as Secretary and Accountant, the check and controller of his own acts as Treasurer, which system is manifestly objectionable. In the management, therefore, of the financial affairs of the B. M. B. Fund, the duties of the two offices are kept distinctively separate. The Sub-Treasurer is ex officio Treasurer of this Fund, and he receives all Government Drafts sent to him through the Secretary, and receives moneys tendered to him on account of this, and pays all demands on the Fund under proper vouchers.

and audit of the Secretary and three Members of the Committee of Management, which number comprises the Committee of Finance. By Subscribers, therefore, making their payments in the manner pointed out in the preceding paragraph, this separation of the duties of the Secretary and Treasurer, will be preserved.

The Committee of Management has very great satisfaction in laying before this Meeting, the following letter, received only half an hour ago, from which it will be understood that the Sub-Treasurer fully accedes to the propositions submitted to him in the Secretary to this Fund.

To GEO. HILL, F. C.

Secretary Medical Retiring Fund.

Sir — I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, communicating the sentiments of your Committee of Management on the future custody of the Treasury Notes of the Fund and the property appertaining the function of Secretary and Treasurer to your Fund, by assigning the latter to the General Treasury.

2. In reply, I beg to state that I shall be happy to meet the wishes of your committee in undertaking the custody of their Treasury Notes as well as the entire receipts and payments of your Fund. With reference to the latter, I beg to mention that as I am not authorized to realize private drafts, it would be advisable for you to issue a circular to all your "subscribers" to remit their subscriptions either by Government Drafts, or direct their Agents in Calcutta to pay them into the General Treasury.

3. The Orders of Government of the 14th February 1837 having directed the investment of each month's subscription in the aggregate, it becomes necessary to defer the investment until all the realization of each month have been remitted by the different Collectors, which in many cases is not done till the lapse of several months. This unavoidable delay in the investment, I have no doubt, must impede materially the checking of your accounts, as it renders the process of investment in this office also very intricate.

4 To obviate this inconvenience, I propose making the investments quarterly, forwarding at the time a Statement to your office of the items comprised in each investment, leaving any subsequent remittance for a supplementary Treasury Note.

5. In making the above modification of the present plan, I beg to point out the necessity of your requesting the different Collectors to make their remittances punctually on the last day of each month, as the issue of more than one Supplementary Treasury Note for each month would make the accounts unnecessarily intricate.

I have, &c.
(Signed.) W. H. Oakes, Sub-Treasurer.
General Treasury.
Civil Pay Dept. the 13th April, 1840 }

By order of the Committee of Management,

Gao. Hill, Secretary, M. R. F.

Resolved,—That the report just read be received and adopted.

Resolved —That the thanks of this Meeting be given to the Chairman. HENRY H. SPAY, M. D. Chairman.

1. Thirty-eight plants of the new species of Mulberry (Morus Multicaulis), lately brought to the notice of the Society by the Hon'ble the Court of Directors of the India Company. Presented by Mr. Balestier, American Consul at Singapore.

Mr. Balestier, in his note announcing the despatch of this most valuable ~~consignment~~ of plants, intimates, that having observed from the proceedings of the Society a desire to procure plants of the Morinda Mulberry (Morus Mulncaulis or Morus Cucullata) he does himself the pleasure of sending a box containing 60 plants, taken from a tree in his possession, to mark his high respect for the laudable endeavours of the Society. The facts concerning the genuineness of the plants sent are stated by Mr. Balestier as follows:—Some four or five years since Monsr. de Senefelt, President of the French Courts at Pondicherry, while on his way to Java, gave the tree to Mr. Balestier, under the assurance that it was taken from a tree at Pondicherry, which had been sent out from France, where it had been received from Manila. In every particular Mr. Balestier says the tree in this possession coincides with the botanical description given by the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India in its proceedings, and he sincerely hopes the plants sent may prove acceptable.

Thirty eight of the plants are alive and in good order, and they were for the present made over to the Nursery.

2 Specimen of Flax grown at Monghyr. Presented by Mr. Fergusson.

3. Specimen of Flax from Jessore. - Presented by Mr. Tusedie.

4. Specimen of Manila Hemp. Presented through Dr. Wallich by the Right Hon'ble the Governor of Ceylon.

5. Specimens of Irish, Belgian and Russian Flax.
Presented by Mr. Hodgkinson.

6 Specimens of Indian Flax. Presented by Mr. Hodgkinson.

7. Several samples of Indian acclimated Flax from Belgium and Russia, and English seed. Also flax from the indigenous seed, some prepared under the supervision of Belgian Farmers. Presented by the Trustees of the London Flax Company.

8. Specimen of fibre from the Yucca superba. Presented by Major Davidson.

9. Specimen of common Ceylon Flax, a ball of string made from the fibre of the Alcea leaf, and a sample of the fibre itself grown in the Kumbagalle district of Ceylon. Presented through Dr. Wullich by the Right Honorable the Governor of the island.

These specimens were directed to be made over for the report of the Flax Committee.

On the presentation of this Tea a discussion arose as to the propriety of retaining the special thanks of the Society to the Supreme Government for the contribution, but as the transfer was considered to be made to the Society on public grounds, such a procedure was not deemed necessary. The proposition therefore fell to the ground.

It was remarked by Dr. Wallich that as yet no report had been made in this country on the qualities of the various samples of Assam Tea which had been received, and that the community of India were indebted to London brokers for what was known concerning the matter. On the motion of Dr. Wallich, seconded by Mr. C. K. Robinson, a Select Committee, consisting of Messrs. Johnson, Robt. Campbell, Deane and Cragg, was formed for the purpose of drawing up a report on the various samples received from Assam, Dr. Wallich undertaking to obtain such further supply as might be required.

11. An apple and a large basket of peaches grown at Howrah, Presented by Mr C. Hampton.

The apple is obtained from a layer about two years old, cut from an old tree in Mr. Hoinray's garden at Harrogate. It is a dwarf kind, an espalier, and this is the first time of bearing. The beauty and size of the peaches attracted general admiration. The trees which bore them produce equally fine fruit every year, and in great abundance. They are from peach-trees planted in Mr. Hampton's garden, and not grafted. The roots of the trees are laid bare annually in the first week in November, and allowed to remain open five or six weeks. The trees are then brought inside, and in the roots of each two buckets of well pulverised old manure, which has been well exposed to the sun and air are applied, after which the roots are covered up.

After the fruit has set Mr. Hampton commences watering the trees, taking care to increase the quantity of water as the weather becomes hotter and the fruit larger, till the amount furnished to each full grown tree, on every fourth day, reaches to four kulases. The soil in which they thrive is of a light sandy nature rather sloping and higher than the neighbouring grounds. From it, therefore, the rains pass readily away, to which circumstance Mr. Hampton attributes the excellence of his fruit.

The seedlings of one year are, at the commencement of the ensuing rain, transplanted to the place appointed for their growth, bear fruit in small quantities the third year, and are fully in perfection during the fourth. At the present time Mr. Hampton has two trees in full bearing which are only three years old.

12. A fruit obtained from the seeds lately received from Caudul, marked "Musk Melon."—Presented by Mr. R. W. Chew.

The fruit appeared to partake more of the gourd variety, and two gentlemen, who were present, and who had been in Afghanistan, said the fruit was nothing like the Musk Melon of Caudul.

13. A smaller one of the foregoing.—Presented likewise by Mr. R. W. Chew.

14. The fruit of the Granadilla. The tree whence they were obtained produced 200.—Presented by Major Wood.

15. A sample of Basmati Rice from the Hills beyond Almorah,—Rice of Dhaun from Cashmere—Chabarra Dhaun from the Mountains within the Chookul Hills, a Pulse from Cashmere—and a variety of large bean.—Presented by Conductor Daws of the Delhi Canal Department.

The above samples are described by Mr. Daws to be all of the third year's produce at his place of residence, (Dadoopore.) The facts which he communicates regarding the beans are very interesting. He says, that he found the plant running over the top of an immense tree in the Dhoon forest, and having planted some of the seeds as a curiosity in his garden at Dadoopore, he found them produce a vast quantity of large pods which he has used at his table for the last three years, prepared in the following manner. The pods are opened and the beans taken out, thus being done, a thin skin which lines the inside of the pod is removed and it (the pod) is then cut up into small slips in the manner of small beans, and cooked as they are. Mr. Daws states, that he has always found them of a colour and tenderness superior to any other sort whatever of the Upper Provinces, and a great acquisition to the table.

16. Plantains dried by solar heat.—Presented through Dr. Wallich on behalf of the Right Hon'ble Governor of Ceylon.

COMPETITION FOR THE SOCIETY'S PRIZES.

The 1st of May being the time fixed for closing the receipt of contributions for the various Prizes held out by the Society, the announcement was read of two competitors for the prize on the best work on the Horticulture of Bengal, and one for the prize on the Agriculture of Hindoostan—two for Silk, one for the Tobacco, and one for Sugar.

The Hon'ble the President took occasion to remark, that with regard to the best means of arriving at a decision as to the merits of the literary productions, which were now submitted, he thought that the object could best be attained by appointing a Special Committee of Members whose knowledge of Agriculture and gardening may be considered somewhat of a practical kind, and who would so far dispose on themselves the task of looking minutely into the MSS. to admit of the Society arriving at a correct knowledge of the intrinsic worth of the respective volumes. The meeting approved of this recommendation, and a committee composed of Col. Dunlop, Dr. Wallich, Messrs. N. Alexander, Robinson, Winton, Hodgkinson, and Piddington, was accordingly appointed.

The specimens of staple commodities were referred to the respective Committees.

PROMOTION OF THE FLAX CULTURE IN HINDOOSTAN.

The subject which next came before the Meeting were documents of a highly important character, bearing on the Flax culture of Hindoostan. The first series consisted of communications from Messrs. Dwarkanath Tagore and Rinfrey, the Trustees of the London Flax Company in this country. These gentlemen state that they have much pleasure in putting themselves in correspondence with the Society on the subject of the cultivation and manufacture of Flax in British India, it being a subject which appears to have excited very general interest. By the enclosures which they transmit, they remark, it will be perceived, that a Society had been formed in England and that Messrs. James McKillop, Henry Gouger, and Alexander Rogers have been appointed as the Trustees of the Society.

The papers enclosed with their letter, consist of 1st, the list of persons who have received Flax seed from the "Flax Experimental Society," and their current reports thereon. The names on the list amount to thirty three in number, and the reports go to state whether the crop has been good or bad. 2dly, a statement of the probable outlays of Flax Experiments, provided that they are not carried forward to next year for cultivation then, and that no additional supplies of seed come from England.

3dly. Statement regarding operations for cultivating Flax in India.—These consisted in engaging, in December 1839 and January 1840, the services of individuals who were thoroughly acquainted with the process of the culture and preparation of the linum usitatissimum of India, where it was known to grow and produce seed superior to that of Russia. As a preliminary measure, there was also sent, in considerable quantities, of Dutch and Riga kinds dispatched from Logland to India, viz., 31 casks per "Diamond," 34 per "Falcon," and 20 per "Jessie Logan," the whole was received as distributed to Gentlemen, with most of whom the Trustees were otherwise unconnected, and who kindly offered to co-operate in their different districts on merely being promised to have all expenses defrayed by the Society. The Belgians arrived in Calcutta in January last per "Vernon." One of them is a cultivator and the others prepare. They brought with them the various tools required for the proposed experiments, and on arrival were employed in superintending the making of duplicates of the tools, for distribution to parties who had sown seed, and on completing which (the time having arrived for narrowly watching the ripening of crops) they were both dispatched to where the largest quantity of plants was likely to be available for preparation. Fifty-one casks of the entire quantity of seed received, viz. that per "Diamond" and "Jessie Logan," were found (when sown) to have been spoiled on boardship, and have not vegetated. The parties have thus been deprived of the results of experimenting in every district, the value also of nearly 2-31 of the seed, and cost of culture has thereby been lost; yet foregoing in the present season something in the quality of expected fibre to obtain seed also, the Trustees hope to have seed for probably an extended cultivation next year, in addition to returns from seeds which were not sown, and are still on hand. To facilitate and instruct in the cultivation, the Agents, Messrs. Hamilton and Co., reprint a compilation prepared by the Flax Society on the culture of Flax, and a translation out in Bengali, simplified to the comprehension of Natives, was kindly made by Baboo Prosonoroomar Tagore. These pamphlets have been circulated to the "Landholder's Society," Agricultural and Horticultural Society, and to individuals, and are still available to any party willing to cultivate, or wishing for them.

Experimenters were also directed to sow, in juxtaposition with the Europe seed, some dasse or country seed, which in a few instances was done.

Reports from the various districts have come to hand, showing the various success of individual, and which also shew that where properly cultivated, and a proper selection of lands are made, both European and country seeds come forward with all the luxuriance that characterizes the crops in Europe, and in length and fineness that belonging to the Flax Company, is pronounced by the Belgian workmen as equal to European. The prejudices of the natives to sowing the large and indispensable quantity of seed to obtain length and fineness, is a temporary difficulty that has to be overcome.

The Belgian workmen are now at the Factories of Dr. Rogers, on the Bagrette River, in the Burdwan District, preparing the crops and teaching native workmen, and the Trustees are daily expecting reports from them accompanied with samples of Flax. They are to return to Calcutta shortly, for the purpose of preparing Flax from specimens of the average of plants grown in the districts, which will be sent to Calcutta for that purpose, the parties who cultivated, waiting until instructed whether to attempt it themselves or to forward the remainder here for preparation.

Should the experiments at present going on, in the preparation of the fibre from the plants, equal the expectations reasonably formed of it, as to strength, the Trustees could, by having all the plants brought to Calcutta for preparation, establish a school for teaching the method of preparation to natives, and thus supply the country with means of successfully making Flax a staple production in a short time.

An offer has been made by Bahon Dwarkanath Tagore, of a house and premises at Marikullah, free of rent for this purpose, but it is suggested that it premises could be obtained near Calcutta, situated near the river, it might facilitate operations.

A separate statement shows a portion of the outlays incurred in this experiment; but to this must be added cost of preparation of crops, bringing them to Calcutta, &c.

Further supplies of seed have been ordered from England so as to keep up the stock.

The tendency of these experiments, it is presumed, is to benefit the Country more particularly than individuals, because, immediately the crops are known to succeed, and are profitable, the cultivation will become general; and it being a crop that does not interfere with Indigo, Sugar, Rice or Cotton, the consequence will be additional industry, and wealth to all. From the evidence in the possession of the Trustees of specimens of Flax attempted to be prepared by individuals without aid from professional workmen, it seems impossible that Flax can be made like that article of commerce in Europe, without instructions in the art of preparing it; this shows that the arrangements that have been adopted were prudent and proper.

Facilities might be offered to make the cultivation of Flax an immediate object of enterprise all over India, and by allowing Flax to be exported on equal terms with Cotton, i. e. free of duty, our distance from England and the consequent enhanced cost of freight, compared with what is supplied from Russia or other European ports, would be in a measure compensated for.

The series concludes with a correspondence which has passed between the representative of the Flax Company in London, the Hon'ble the Court of Directors and the Government of India. The letter to the Hon'ble Court is to the effect that a certain number of Gentlemen in London interested in the trade of our Eastern Possessions, after bestowing much attention on the subject, had good reason to believe that a supply of Flax in every respect suited for importation into England, might be obtained in India. That this being their firm conviction they formed themselves into a Society with a view to test by experiment the correctness of their belief, and proposed to raise a capital of £10,000 for the purpose of carrying out their object. That they procured two Belgian farmers with an engagement to entertain them 2 years. The subscriptions received by the Society has amounted to somewhat above £2,000. The letter then goes on to state, that these gentlemen desire to call the attention of the Court to the importance of the objects of the Flax Society to the Revenue, Commerce, and Prosperity of our Indian possessions. The Trustees venture to hope, therefore, that the Hon'ble Court will take all the circumstances into consideration, and, looking to the great importance of raising new and valuable products to a country which more than any other is wanting in agricultural prosperity and the profitable means of employment of its dense population; regarding also the difficulty of obtaining in this country any large amount of subscription for the conduct of a mere experiment, they trust the Hon'ble Court will render assistance in carrying out the important and interesting object which they have in view.

The Hon'ble Court reply that the letter of the Trustees "shall be forwarded to the Government of India, who will be directed to adopt such measures as they may deem most expedient, should any application further be made."

On receiving this reply the Trustees addressed an application to the Government of India wherein the Trustees ask that a liberal premium (say 10,000 Rs.) in some degree proportionate to the risk which they have incurred, and intend to incur, in furtherance of the interesting object in which they have engaged, be offered to them for the first supply of Merchantable Flax to be obtained from, and the produce of five English acres of land, prepared by the Belgians, or others under their instruction, and suited for consumption in Europe. The Trustees engaging in the event of receiving the premium for the produce of the crops now in course of cultivation, to send out a further supply of European seed, and to provide other requisite means for prosecuting the experiments and further testing its success, in the course of the next year, and also undertaking to furnish the Government, the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Calcutta, or such other parties as may be nominated, with a history and full detail of the progress of the experiment and of its actual result. In case however, the Supreme Government should rather feel disposed to assist by paying some part of the expenses which have been incurred, then, the Trustees desire to inform the Government, that they have actually paid, or are under engagement to pay, about the sum of £450, on account of the two Belgian farmers whom they have sent to Calcutta, and ask for that amount to be granted by Government—the Trustees undertaking all the matters mentioned above, and also to perform their contracts with the Belgians.

These several documents having been gone through the next communication submitted on the same subject was a letter from Mr. Tucker at Azimghur, enclosing a paper on flax from J. Sutherland, Esq., of Azimghur, in the hope that it may be useful to the Flax Committee of the Society, in compiling a Manual for the growth and preparation of flax. Mr. Sutherland states that the writer of the "Notes" is one of the most extensive flax growers and Linen manufacturers in the north of Ireland. Mr. Tucker also wishes that a manual regarding hemp should also be published by the Society. He says that several individuals are anxious to try the manufacture—one gentleman alone has given instructions for 3,000 beghs being laid out in flax and hemp. The great want, Mr. Tucker writes, is one or two practical flax dressers who understand the business. Several gentlemen and weavers have tried to prepare flax theoretically, but all their efforts have failed.

A note from Mr. Ferguson was next read, in which that gentleman states, that he begs to present to the Society a specimen of flax, which has been prepared by an experienced man from plants which grew in the household of Monghyr, and were pronounced to be any seen in Great Britain. From the result of the experiment Mr. Ferguson considers himself justified in stating that he feels quite certain that no preparation will ever make flax as now grown in India what actually Mr. Ferguson thinks that the climate in India is well adapted to the plant ever yielding a fibre fit for any useful purpose, and that no cultivation will ever make it so.

A letter was next read from Mr. Hodgkinson, who forwards two specimens of flax, one of Irish with worth from £25 to £28 a ton of 20 cwt. and the other of Indian produce worth from £30 to £35 a ton, grown in the neighbourhood of Calcutta from imported seed. On comparing the two samples Mr. Hodgkinson states, that for length, strength, and softness the Indian flax is superior to the Irish in all these qualities, as well as to that of color, cleanness, and general appearance.

Mr. Hodgkinson is desirous that the samples should be laid before the Society in order to prove that not only good but really fine flax can be produced in India to check the dissemination of information based in Mr. Hodgkinson's opinion, on wrong data, and which if circulated, might materially check the efforts of many now engaged in the cultivation of this valuable staple of commerce.

Mr. Hodgkinson having visited, during the last three years, Holland, Zealand, Belgium, France, and Ireland, expressly for the purpose of acquiring information on this subject thinks he may be allowed to declare his opinion to be, that there exists no impediment to the production of flax in India of a quality to compete with that of any country in the world. In India not one planter in a hundred will put the requisite quantity of seed into the ground, and to this circumstance Mr. Hodgkinson attributes the disappointment that has hitherto attended the experiments.

A letter was next read from Captain Dixon, Superintendent of the Mairwarrah states, stating that Government having called on officers in charge of districts to report on the practicability and advantages of cultivation of Hemp on a large scale, for manufacturing into cordage, he would beg leave to suggest to the Society, that all information respecting the culture of the plant, the period of sowing the quantity of seed per begh, and all the other processes generally so as to make it a good and remunerative marketable article, be published for general benefit.

As bhag is a plant indigenous to Hindoostan, there does not seem to exist a doubt, (Captain Dixon observes, as to its extended culture. It may be grown to any extent, regulated along by the demand and return. Captain Dixon then goes into particulars as to when and how the crop can best be raised. His statement goes to show that it can be best grown as a kurreef, but with irrigation can be made of rubber crop.

Samples of well dressed, marketable hemp would greatly assist in showing the standard to which the article is to be brought to ensure a ready reception in European markets.

The importance of this subject, which involves, in a large degree, the prospective increase of the Agricultural and commercial prosperity of India, will, Captain Dixon says, plead his apology for bringing the subject to the notice of the Society.

At the conclusion of the perusal of these various documents the importance of the question was duly adverted to by the Meeting; and for the more effective mode of arriving at a decision as to what had best be done, the subject was referred to the Flax Committee.

CAUTIONARY OF AMHERST FOR THE PRODUCTION OF SUGAR—ITS NON ADMISSIBILITY INTO THE PORT OF CALCUTTA.

Dr. Spence next brought forward a letter from a Member at Amherst, who writes that he is strongly of opinion that the Sugar which he sends is eminently suited to the wants of the home sugar refiners, from its firm and large grain, and also its excellent quality and to put this beyond a doubt, he is about commencing an extensive cultivation on it was his intention to send a shipment of 50 barrels home this season. A difficulty exists however in long distance. As steamships are very rare of vessels going direct, he is under the necessity, therefore, of sending it via Calcutta, and here another obstacle presents itself in the "Act prohibiting the Imports into Calcutta of Sugar from any Port into which foreign sugars may be imported. He is not aware if there is any clause admitting its importation for transitment and would feel obliged by being informed if such can be effected.

Dr. Spence said, that not feeling himself competent to give a satisfactory opinion on the point on which he corresponded consulted him, he applied to the Member of Commerce and subsequently to the Collector of Customs at the Port of Calcutta and he had now the pleasure to submit the replies which he had received.

II II SPENCE ENCLINES M. D.

Secretary Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

Sir,—I have your letter of 2d instant before the Chamber of Commerce requesting its opinion on the point submitted by your correspondent at Amherst, and I am instructed to inform you, that the Chamber would advise him to send the experimental shipment of sugar to H. M. Government—or, to apply to the Lord of the Treasury for a special order for its admission, accompanied with a certificate of its being the produce of a British settlement, or, if thought preferable, the Government here might be asked to take charge of the sugar and send it home.

I remain, Sir, your most obdt. servt.

W. LIMOND, Secy.

Calcutta, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, May 9th, 1840.

To H. H. SPRY, Esq.

Secretary to the Horticultural and Agricultural Society

Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of this date, regarding the importation of Sugar from Amherst at this port, for re-exportation to Great Britain.

2. Act No. 32 of 1836, Section I., enacts, that if any person after 1st December 1836, lands or attempts to land in any part of the Territories subject to the Government of Port William in Bengal, any sugar the growth of a place into which foreign sugar can be imported (and I look upon Amherst to be such a place) such sugar shall be seized and confiscated.

3. I fear under this restriction Sugar from Amherst, though intended for re-shipment to Great Britain, would be liable to seizure if brought to this Port my construction of the Law may however be erroneous, and I recommend that the Society apply direct to Government for information.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your most obdt. servt.

R. WALKER, Collector of Customs.

Calcutta Custom House, the 14th May, 1840.

DRIED PLANTAINS, AS A USEFUL CONFECTION.

With the specimen of plantains which had been submitted was a note from Dr. Wallich, mentioning that the fruit had been prepared at Kornegalle in Ceylon by Mr. Morris, Assistant Government Agent, simply by solar heat and without any admixture of sugar. They had been sent up by the Right Honorable the Governor of the Island.

Dr. Wallich mentions that the dried plantains, which are of a kind called "Suandille" in Ceylon, appear to him to be very excellent and deserving the Society's best consideration. He is not aware that this product has ever before been attempted in this country, but he has a faint recollection that the subject was brought before the Society some years ago, with reference to a similar article prepared on the west coast of Mexico, and presented to the Society of Arts in London by Captain Colquhoun, R. N., who received a medal for the same (vide the Transactions 1834, part I., vol. I.) Among the list of premiums offered by the Society of Arts is one for a certain quantity and quality of dried plantains.

Mr. Morris's plantains appear to Dr. Wallich little inferior to preserved figs, and he thinks them as wholesome and nutritious. Dr. Wallich suggests that extracts from the paper of Captain Colquhoun, respecting the American or Mexican method of preparation, packing, &c. should be printed in the proceedings of the Agricultural Society,* as a guide to those who may be willing to engage in the preparation. Mr. Robinson mentioned that he had some long time since brought the subject to the notice of a confectioner in Calcutta, but he had heard more of the matter since.

Dr. Wallich considered that the importance of the subject demanded special mark of the Society's consideration and, after a few observations in opposition by one or two Members, he moved, and Dewsa Ram Comul Sen seconded a notice for discussion at the next Meeting, that the gold medal of the Society should be awarded to Mr. Morris.

THE TURNIP FLY.

Dr. Spry next submitted a paper from the Pen of Dr. Pearson at Darjeeling on the Haltica-nigra-fly, or Turnip Fly, which he has been so good as to describe and forward to the Society. The paper was ordered to be forwarded to the Printers for insertion in the forthcoming volume of the transactions which are now all but ready.

DEATH OF DR. HELFER.

Dr. Spry submitted a letter which he had received from Monsieur des Ganges at Mergui, conveying the formal announcement of the murder of Dr. Helfer, one of the Members of the Society.

For the foregoing letters and presents the thanks of the Society were accorded.

HENRY R. SPRY, M. D. Secretary.

THE BALL AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

THE BALL AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.—The assemblage last night at Government House, was, as it deserved to be, the most numerous and most brilliant of the year. About seven hundred guests—including all the principal members of European and native society, came to the carnival. The whole of the arrangements were judicious from the very entrance gate to the conclusion of supper. We should especially commend the flambeaux attached to each post, and the keeping the drive before the palace entirely free from carriages, for those arrangements prevented that excessive noise, and dangerous confusion which on some occasions we have noticed.

We can say nothing about the gathered groups in the Ball room, that might not have been written in anticipation.—the noble host and hostesses were affable, the company gay, sparkling, and happy-countenanced; and every attention was paid to securing the comfort of the guests. The dancers, who seemed unwearied in their endeavours to ascertain how much exertion the human frame can endure to a vapour-bath at 90° quadrilled and waltzed sans intermission, until half-past twelve, and we can assure our readers that exhilaration, and the music, produced the accustomed amount of fibrations, for

Who is not mov'd by sounds so sweet,
Who throbs not to the magic measure?
And sighs a kindred heart to meet,
And press in sympathetic pleasure.

Most sincerely do we hope that some of those tender whisperings may lead to more permanent partnerships, and to the celebration of other birth-days.

Supper was announced about half past twelve, and here the accommodation was also abundant for all the guests. However, such meetings are not characterized by the consumption of much besides champagne, soda water, and ices; therefore the beauty of the arranged tables was not extremely disordered.

The Governor General appropriately proposed "the health of her Majesty,—may God bless her!" and that of "him on whom her happiness now so much depends"—Prince Albert. The first was followed by the national anthem; and the second by a appropriate song. We believe, Madame Ventura sang the solo parts, and Mr. Linton directed the chorus. Dancing was renewed for a short time after supper, then the ball broke up. My every other British Sovereign has enabled to say, at night her Majesty whilst holding her Court at Old St. James's yesterday—"I have a worthy representative and a group of loyal subjects on the banks of the Hooghly,—who are this joyously celebrating my birth day."—Harbors, May, 27.

SUPREME COURT.

Commission of Lunacy—held on Thursday, 21st May, 1840 in the Udditwain Sein, a supposed lunatic.

Commissioners.

C. A. Nott, Esq., and F. C. Morton, Esq.

Jury called and sworn.

Daniel Ansline, Esq., Foreman

Thomas Cullen, Esq.	William Greenaway, Esq.
Joseph Agabeg, Esq.	Jilin Wato, Roberts, Esq.
Thomas H. Gardiner, Esq.	Wm. Clole Braddon, Esq.
Joseph Samuel Smith, Esq.	Lawrence DeSouza, Esq.
Robert Prugrave, Esq.	Rajah Kalikrishna Bar
Isaiah Birch, Esq.	Baboo Colyinkur Paulit.

Mr. Nott, opens the commission and charges the jury

Witnesses sworn and examined

John Maxton.—I am a Surgeon and the Police Surgeon of Calcutta. I saw the lunatic some months. I attended him professionally about 3 years ago. He first had the paralysis and is gradually getting worse. I am not aware he has any lucid intervals. From his state I should think he has not. He is not capable of governing his affairs and has not done so for 3 years last. A person may have the paralysis but his mind may be sound.

Radanauth Sircar.—I am a clerk in the employ of Ganganarain Sein who is the elder brother of the lunatic Udditwain Sein. I have known the latter for a long time. I saved his father. The lunatic has the paralysis. Half body has been paralysed for 3 years. His first attack was in Aug 1833. He is now in an unlit. He does all his business wherever he is taken to. He has been of unaccountable for about 4 years. Although his sickness commenced 4 years ago. For the first six months he retained his senses partially. I cannot say the precise day of commencement of his disease, but his unsoundness of mind commenced at the same time. At times he is violent. He has had no lucid intervals during the whole of the 3 years. He has some trifling property, amounting to 3,600 rupees in Company's Papers, a house value 800 rupees, and another house to share with his brother. He has relations, viz his brother Gunganarain Sein, his mother (Rammoney). He has no quarrel with his brother. He has one nephew, a son of his brother's, and 2 other sons of his sister. He never had any children. He has a wife called Treepora. All live in one house in Jherrytollah in Calcutta, and the lunatic is under the care of his brother mother and wife. All live in the same house. No powerful drug has ever been administered to the lunatic by any of his family. His usual diet is rice and fish at one meal, and bread at another and milk. He is fed by his mother or wife, but does not feed himself. He smokes the hookah and asks for it, and it is prepared and brought by a servant. I very seldom in the house see it, and smoke the same tobacco. He spends his time chiefly sitting at the gate door. His property is his own except the family house in which his brother holds a share.

The lunatic is asked, why he brought here. He says "I want Dr. Russell to see my sick hand and leg. I am come to see Dr. Russell. I was told I would see Dr. Russell if I came here. My nephew Mohan said so and nothing more. No one told me why I was brought here."

The 21 witness recalled says—Mohan is a nephew of the Lunatic, and I points to Mohan. Lunatic has no disagreement with his family.

Mohan chunder.—"The Lunatic is my paternal uncle. He has been of unsound mind for about 3 years. I do not recollect the month or year when he became insane. He has never been of sound mind since I have been living in the same house, for 12 years past, since my father died. For the 3 years last I have been in the house. He was married before my birth. He has no children. He and his brothers are separate. I don't know to whom his property will devolve on his death. He never had any disagreement with his family. He was a cashier in the Bank of Bengal before his illness, and before the illness he never displayed any symptoms of his insanity. Proper care is taken of him by his brother, mother and wife. He has about 3,500 Rs in Company's Paper. His application was in order to prove his lunacy, as we have to receive something from him which my late mother had deposited with him, and debts are payable. This money he had 12 years ago, upon my father's death. He was then at the Bank at 40 or 50 Rs a month. I cannot say as to his expenditure then. The money was deposited with him for safety. This was the proceeds of my mother's jewels sold after he became a widow. He is 45 years old. After payment of all debts I cannot say what will be his clear surplus. The total value of his property may be about 5,000 Rs without payment of his debts. My mother claims a thousand in living interest, what other claims may be against him, I cannot say. My mother is dead. I now claim in right of her. I don't know of other debts. The most may know. His brother has been paying for him for the last three years.

Radanauth Sircar recalled, said—"The Lunatic's whole debts amount to about 3,600 Rs with interest. He left his situation about 6 or 7 months prior to his illness. I don't remember the month and year. He left it after the death of Udditwain Sein when Rammoney Sein succeeded him. He has not sold any part of his property since his illness up to this moment. No interest has been drawn on his Company's Paper since his illness. His brother finds the necessary expence for diet, his other charges are defrayed by the proceeds of his rents (realized by his brother) about 10 or 12 Rs. monthly. His brother has no claim against him. His property is as follows. He has one in the family dwelling house and 15 cottages of ground, and half share in a lower roomed house and 10 cottages of ground. He has of his own an upper roomed house and 2 cottages of ground, and in Company's Papers 3,500 Rs.—no thing more. He has been mad since his illness, and does not behave like a sane person. He is like a great deal of Dr. Russell, but never says anything as to his property. He has had no money in his hands since his madness.

Verdict.—Uddinraja Sain, at the time of this insanity, is a lunatic, without lucid intervals, and not capable of governing himself or his affairs; and that he hath been so for about three years past.

Sanctity. Attorney.—Hukuru May, 23 1840.

INSOLVENT COURT.

MAY 2, 1840.

THE MATTER OF ROBERT WILLIAM GEORGE FRITH.

This insolvent was brought up and discharged without opposition.

THE MATTER OF JUCUTH DOBLUS TAGORE.

This insolvent was declared entitled to the benefit of the Act.

THE MATTER OF CHARLES TROWER.

Mr. Clarke, on behalf of the insolvent, appealed to the Court, against a certain application by the Assignee. It appeared, that in January the Insolvent received the adjudication of insolvency. In April, the Court issued an order, that Insolvent should pay a certain moiety of his salary towards the benefit of his creditors, and that this reduction from his monthly income should commence not before the July following. The Assignee on the contrary had applied for the insolvent's salary for the months of February and March, and had, in consequence, stopped the payment of it at the General Treasury. The object of the present appeal, therefore, was, that the assignee should not interfere with the income of the insolvent for the months of February and March, as the order of the Court for the deduction of his salary for the benefit of the creditors, though given subsequent to these months, was prospective and not retrospective.

The Court agreed with Mr. Clarke, that the order was not retrospective, but prospective, and remarked, that if the Court were right in giving that order, it should be adhered to.

THE MATTER OF JOHN ARMSTRONG CURRIE.

The Advocate-General opposed this Insolvent; but before stating his grounds, enquired if the Court would recognise a debt incurred two or three years prior to a person becoming insolvent. Captain Currie carried on business formerly in the shipping line, which he gave up some years since. Two or three years ago he incurred certain debts, and he wished to know if this circumstance merely was of any importance, and if it was not quite sufficient, that Captain Currie became insolvent, subsequent to the debt being incurred.

The Court agreeing that the last circumstance was sufficient, the Advocate-General proceeded to examine the insolvent.

Captain Currie, sworn.—In September, 1839, I was living in Hastings' Street, and about this time the action was commenced by Mothelal Seal. On the 24th October, I sold my household property, and realized by this sale 3,000 rupees, which has not been entered in the schedule, that amount having been appropriated to domestic purposes, having a large family, some of whom (in England) are entirely dependant on me, and have been so for the last thirty years.

In November, 1838, I got money on account of the assignation of the Duke of York, to Denonauth Dutt, and this money was applied to the poorer class of my creditors. The assignation was made before the recovery of judgment by Mothelal Seal. It was not done to avoid the judgment but to protect certain parties, who lent me money under peculiar circumstances.

The Duke of York, under proper arrangements, would, certainly, realize from thirty to forty thousand rupees.

The assignation was not an absolute transfer, but a security for the money lent to me by Denonauth Dutt; so that the overplus of the sale after paying the debt I intended, should go for the benefit of my creditors.

After some conversation the insolvent was declared entitled to the benefit of the Act. The question then arose what moiety of his monthly income should be deducted for the benefit of his creditors, or if any should be deducted at all. It appeared, that the only income of the Insolvent was 500 rupees a month, as assistant in the Sudder Board Office, without any other advantages connected with that, or any other appointment.

The Advocate-General applied for a deduction of 100 rupees from this income, unless the usual rule was followed up, namely, the deduction of one-third of the salary.

Mr. Leith, on behalf of the Insolvent, represented, that from the hard circumstances in which the Insolvent was placed, having so many dependant on him, it would be impossible for him to keep up his situation were so large a deduction to be made from his contracted income. The insolvent, however, had prospects of a better situation under the Government and he hoped, then to be able to pay something for the benefit of his creditors.

After some further conversation it was agreed upon, that a hundred rupees from the Insolvent's salary should be paid.

Dividends were declared in the matter of the following Insolvents.—

William McDonald Husband, the first dividend of 15 per cent,

James Alexander Aytou, the second dividend of 11 Co.'s Rs. in a hundred sicca rupees.

Orders were issued to certify to the Court the apportionment of the property of the following insolvents, namely, Charles Darby, John Brightman Vandenburg, and Joseph Musleah.

Before the Court retired, the Advocate-General took the opportunity of making a motion as to the disposal of the unclaimed dividends in the matter of Palmer and Co., which amount to about eighty thousand rupees. The learned Advocate cited numerous authorities, and adduced various arguments to show, that dividends remaining unclaimed for a certain period, should be appropriated to the advantage of the other creditors.

The question stands over for consideration.—Hukuru May 4.

(Before Sir H. W. Estlin)

In the matter of William Clarke, David Clarke, James Clarke, and William Johnstone Thorpe, carrying on business under the style of Woolaston and Co.

Upon the presentation of a petition by the above named insolvents, to the effect that they were carrying on business as Printers and Publishers, and were involved in debt to the amount of 7,717 rupees, but were ready to give up property to the value of 4,850 rupees to their creditors, the court fixed this as a special day for the hearing of their case. Mr. Alexander had been appointed as assignee to take possession of the estate and effects, set forth in the schedule, he testified that he did so, the value of the said estate and effects was more than one half of the amount of the debt. The property consisted of types, &c., a carriage and horse, and a square piano forte. Mr. William Russell testified, that he was of opinion, that if a sale by auction was not resorted to, and if the types, &c., be offered for sale and not forced off, they would realize upwards of 3,000 rupees.

Mr. Collings valued the carriage and horse at 450 rupees, and Messrs. Hurling and Co. fixed a valuation of 200 or 300 rupees for the square piano forte. Outstanding bills to the amount of 1,000 rupees were given up. The petition was received, and the court, directed the insolvents to file their schedule. — Commercial Advertiser, May 27.

MISCELLANEA

CALCUTTA.

EFFECTS OF THE GALE.—The consequences of the late gale seem to have been felt very severely by the vessels at Kedgee and downwards. Several vessels got on shore at Kedgee and in its neighbourhood, the Clown at Kedgee, the Brilliant at Hidgee, the Allerton at Haldia River, and the William Gale at Kedgee; but they have got off again. The Bark Christopher Rawson experienced the gale commencing at 8 P.M. at mid night of the 28th, with the outer floating light W and N. 12 miles distant. The gale increased as the wind veered to S. S. W., and ended at noon of the 1st in the S. S. W., the vessel being then in 20 fathoms, Point Palmyras bearing N. W. The Christopher Rawson saw no vessels during the gale, but parted company with the schooner Margate, from Rangoon, bound to Calcutta, four days previous to the gale. The Christopher Rawson sprung her mainmast in the partners, her foremast fore and topmast, and had her large cutter washed away from the quarter davits, she also split a new reefed main stay sail and fore-topmast stay sail for eight hours during the gale no canvas could be shown by the vessel, and the sea made a perfect breach over her.

The Nusruth Shaw, which left this port about three weeks ago, with the first portion of the Valcutters for Singapore and China, has put back. She experienced the hurricane on the 28th ultimo, off the Andamans, where, it appears, the worst of the gale was blowing, and in it the Nusruth Shaw was seriously damaged, lost all her sails, masts, bows, &c. and was obliged immediately to put back under jury masts.

The Vesta was also totally dismantled, and otherwise seriously damaged in the same gale, which was felt at Saugor Roads on the 29th and 30th ultimo.

The Break experienced the same very heavy gale during four days, from 29th April to 2d May, in which she was also dismantled and obliged to return to port.

The Brig George and Mary, which has been obliged to return from sea, lost her masts in Lat. 16-30 N. Long. 74-30 E. on the 20th April last—the bowsprit and mainmast are the only spars standing. The sea, during the gale, made a clean breach over her, sweeping the decks and carrying away her sails, &c. &c.

The Steamer Andrew Henderson fell in with her on the 9th instant, off the Southern Floating Light. The Commander of the Henderson reports having seen a dismantled vessel on Thursday last in Balasore roads, the name of which he could not make out.

The following is an account of the trip of the steamer Ganges, which was sent down to look after the vessel which was seen dismantled by the Captain of the Cashmere Merchant.

The Ganges proceeded first to the buoy station at the Sandheads, but the Pilots there having no information further than the report of the Cashmere Merchant, the steamer proceeded to the Pilot station off Point Palmyras, where they had no information about any dismantled vessel, excepting the brig George and Mary that had been dismantled, and was supplied with a Pilot the day before, having then rigged jury masts. The Ganges then stood in close to the southward of Point Palmyras, in sight of the remains of the Light House, and from there stood down along the coast to about seven miles below Faleo Point, where there was a vessel on shore with her head to the N. W. bowsprit, jibboom, foremast, foreyard and fore-topmast standing and the copper stripped off her bottom on the starboard side, and deserted. There was heavy surf on the beach, in which the boats could not land. This is supposed to be the wreck of the Grillardon. Finding the service of the steamer of no use there, the captain under stood up to Point Palmyras, went close in with the Point Kanaka Bay, where there was a native vessel under jury masts—she had been dismantled, but was then safe. The steamer then kept up the coast towards the Nilgurry Hills, and crossed over the tails of the reefs back to the Sandheads, without seeing any vessels in distress, and it is supposed by the Captain of the Ganges, that the report of a vessel having been seen dismantled, originated in a mistake, as, had any vessel been there, the Ganges must have seen her.

A letter from Bilsore, dated 4th May, says —

"We have just escaped a severe hurricane; it blew very hard on the night of the 30th, and the tide rose very high, but luckily the wind did not last long enough to drive the sea over the country. At Pooné they have felt the hurricane most severely. I hear that all the houses and the Government bicheries have been blown to the ground, and much damage has been sustained, great part of the native town has been destroyed and several lives lost. When the current house fell two men were buried and escaped with broken legs. Pooné is full now, the boats from Cuttack having gone there to enjoy the cool breeze, they and the residents took refuge in the only house which stood the storm. The description of the scene is fearful. Mr. Lwart lost his Arab horse, buried in the ruins of the stable. The natives declare that Juggernath's august presence also prevented the sea from washing away the town. The storm was felt at Cuttack also severely, and I much fear it has been destructive on the whole line of coast."

A letter from Diamond Harbour, dated the 3d May, mentions that the water had not then run off the land, and that the flood was very high that morning. It has been found on subsequent enquiry, that no lives had been lost by the late inundation there, but the villagers are represented in a most distressed and forlorn condition, without shelter of any description and their whole property lost.

Several villages, within the Pergunnah of Moora, gacha, have also been flooded, but no lives are lost, but the people are suffering very much at present.

On the 13th, 14th and 15th May, two large briggs of between one hundred and fifty and two hundred tons burthen, and a sloop, came in through the Sunderbans, successively, laden with rice and paddy from Madras. From the account given of themselves by those on board, it appears, that the above vessels, in company with another which was unfortunately wrecked, were off the mouth of the river when they met with a severe gale from the south—their three vessels ran for the Sunderbans and safely rode out the gale, while the other not being able to gain the river was lost. The vessels when communicated with were passing up the river to Tarda, and no further particulars could be gained from them.

A letter dated 11th April, mentions, that the Gullardon had gone into six or seven pieces, which have been washed on shore; and that a few stanchions, pieces of timber, planks, a little oil and seven pieces of kentledge, are the only things recovered from her. It is, therefore, certain, that the wreck seen by the Ganges steamer, was not that of the Gullardon, but, very likely, of the vessel seen by the Andrew Henderson in a dismasted state.

FORGERY.—A whole gang of forgers, who have for some time past been manufacturing spurious bank-notes, of small value, have been detected. They were betrayed by one of their gang, who represents the forging business to be one of small emolument.

LAUNCH.—A fine vessel of three hundred and fifty tons, was launched from Capt. Syme's dock-yard on the 4th instant, and named the Dido.

PREVALENCE OF CHOLERA IN THE TOWN-GAURD.—The cholera prevails to a fearful extent in the Town-guard prison. It appears by the report of the jemadar in charge of the place, that on less than seven of the prisoners were attacked with the malady in three months, which is a large number, considering the limited number of people now confined there.

FIRE.—A fire broke out at Mirzapore on the 14th instant, but before it could do much mischief, it was got under by the prompt aid of the neighbours and the native police on the spot. Several other petty fires have occurred during the month.

THE BORE.—On the 2nd May, the bore set in with extraordinary violence, causing serious injury to the boats and blurs at the ghauts. A Sadgerow, moored off Custom House, was upset, and three men bathing about the same place, were washed away by the impetuosity of the current, and are said to have been drowned. A Portuguese Christian, who was also bathing near the same spot, met with a serious accident. Before he could get up the banks, the bore overtook him, and losing his footing, he fell within the violence of the current. There were some boats fastened to the shore, and his foot got entangled in one of the ropes. The entanglement was so awkward, that he was unable to extricate himself, and the stream dragging his body, put the ankle bone completely out of joint, before any one could assist the poor fellow. The heel and the toes were turned away at right angles to their natural position, and the pain the unfortunate man seemed to be enduring from it, was dreadful.

THE CROSS.—The accounts received of the crops, from the several districts of Bengal, are very favorable. Both rice and indigo are getting on very well, though a portion of the rice on the Orissa coast and down the river, has been destroyed by inundation. From Tirhoot, also, the accounts are very favorable.

CAPTAINS MACGREGOR AND BOSCAWEN.—The situation of Assistant Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Department, has been given to Brevet Captain H. A. Boscawen, of the 54th Regiment of Native Infantry. Captain McGregor, who was lately appointed to the Secretaryship, of the Kurruck Bank, has, at his own request, been transferred to the Invalid Establishment.

AFRAY.—A serious affray took place between two parties of Kotaks at Birra Bazar, the weapons used, were knives and clubs, and the consequences would have proved fatal to several, had not the Police intervened. Three men, however, were rather severely wounded in several parts of their bodies, and removed to the hospital.

ABEARY.—There is no knowing for the present, what arrangement will be made in the Abeary department; but, report says, that Government intends to augment the number of darogahs from thirty to forty under each collector.

CHOLERA.—Cholera has broken out at Hummeerpore, and is committing great havoc among the inhabitants.

THE MEDICAL COLLEGE.—There was a crowded assembly on the 7th May, at the Medical College, to witness the distribution of prizes and letters of qualifications to the successful candidates. According to advertisement, the Right Honourable the Governor-General was present, as also Sir Edward Ryan, the Hon'ble W. W. Birl, and D. Elliott, Esqrs., F. Halliday, Esq., Major Birch, Dr. Grant and several others. There were about a dozen or more students—East Indian and Native, who were one by one called up, and who received first the award, either in the shape of a gold medal, or something under an envelope, or both together, and then a hearty shake of the hands by the Governor-General, after which they severally and gracefully bowed and retired. His Lordship seemed to be highly gratified by the exhibition, and we believe passed some encomiums on the Professors of the Institution.

On the 23rd instant, the Medical College was visited by the young Rajah of Bardwan, who was attended by Professors Goodere and O'Shaughnessy. The Rajah expressed great satisfaction at the cleanliness of the building and the care taken of both the European and Native patients under the skilful treatment of the medical gentlemen. There was not a single case of Cholera in the European Ward, and only one on the Native side. The Rajah, before leaving, signified his intention of bestowing a donation of ten thousand rupees for the use of the Hospital, and that he would also send twenty native youths as students, for each of whom he would pay thirty rupees monthly.

THE NATIVE HOSPITAL.—The Native Hospital job—for a job it certainly has been, in so far as the governors, at least, have been concerned—has caused a great deal of carping discussion during the month. Dr. Raleigh indulged in expressions, in one of his letters, which were deemed by Drs. D. Stewart, H. H. Goodere, W. B. O'Shaughnessy and R. O'Shaughnessy, to be meant to offer insult to them, and they, consequently, deputed their friends to call upon Dr. Raleigh for explanations. Explanations were accordingly given, and deemed satisfactory.

A BRAGGALTY WORK.—A little of "Ascharja Oopakhya" (Ascharya Oopakhya) has been published.

the commission on several whose name was in orders a day or two ago, as permanently appointed to that office.

ASSISTANT MAGISTRATES.—It is said, that the plan of appointing Assistant Magistrates is to be postponed for six months. The public will be not a little disappointed at the delay. We have heard that it arises from the opposition of some members of Government, high in station, who think that none but Civilian should be employed in such duties.

A NEW PLAY.—A report has been circulated, and confirmed during the month, that Capt. D. L. Richardson is engaged in writing a play, to be performed at the New Theatre, the scene of which play is to be laid in Cyprus.

CHOLERA AND FEVER AT COCHATEH.—A letter from Assam states, that cholera and fever are raging to a fearful extent in and about Cochatte; but that the natives of the place are not suffering so much as the Bengalees, Oriahs, and Hindustanees sojourning there, numbers of these being carried off by both the maladies.

BABOO JAUDUB CHUNDER SEET.—Baboo Jaudub Chunder Seet, one of the pished students of the Medical College, has been appointed an assistant to the Surgeon at Barpilly, whether the Baboo will shortly proceed.

TRANSLATION OF ENGLISH WORKS.—Certain of the educated natives have resolved to translate into the Bengali language, all the interesting English works on India, for the benefit of the native community. They intend publishing the translations in parts.

THE LING FONG.—The object of this vessel coming to Calcutta was to negotiate the purchase of a steamer for the Cochin Chinese sovereign. The mission have succeeded in this object and have closed a bargain for the steamer Diana for 70,000 Rs., after she shall have been repaired and put in order by the present owner. The mission have likewise engaged an European Engineer on a salary of 300 rupees, and the Ling Fong has departed for Cochin China again.

THE ENTERPRIZE.—The Enterprise started for Singapore on the 20th May, with dispatches for the China Expedition.

THE BENGALESE BONDED WARE-HOUSE MEETING.—The half yearly general meeting of the Bonded Ware-house, was held on the premises on the 18th May. There were about a dozen shareholders present, and T. Dickens, Esq., was in the Chair. The object of the meeting being to inspect the accounts, and elect Directors in lieu of Messrs. Martin and Willis, accounts, statements and lists, or rather papers resembling such documents, were laid on the table, and taken up by the subscribers. The Secretary read a report, accompanied with copious explanatory remarks.

The vacant Directorships were filled up by the election of A. de H. Larpent and W. Earl, Esqrs.

In addition to the above, a proposition was made by Mr. B. H. B. to reduce to certain surplus funds, the profits, which concern some of the directors, but was finally referred to the consideration of the Directors.

MOORISH OF INDIGENOUS.—Chen, a charge of bribery, preferred against some of the Kist Chowdry, of Panthees, in the Moondal, before the Judge, by certain informers, before the Judge, at Hooghly, and the case is under investigation.

PRECOCEITY.—One of the daughters of a son of Chaudry, Dew, in, to Baboo Shreemath Math, aged only eight years old was lately accouched of a male child, which, however, did not survive long.

CUSTOM HOUSE.—The heavy showers in the last week, have been productive of serious injury to some goods, which were placed in that range of building near the export and import gate of the Custom House.

CIVIL ANNUITIES.—The expected orders from the Honourable Court of Directors, relating to Civil Annuities, have been received among the Government Dispatches brought here last Sunday. They authorize the grant for two years of a reduced number of annuities, namely, two-thirds, or six, purchasable at a reduced premium of a quarter of their values.

MR. WILLIAM BRACKEN.—Mr. William Bracken is to act for Mr. Henry Torrens as Secretary to the Board of Customs, Salt and Opium, during the time that Mr. Torrens may fill the office of Secretary to Government in the Secret and Judicial departments.

STEAMER BETWEEN MADRAS AND CALCUTTA.—It is said, that the Court of Directors meditate having a steamer to run regularly between Madras and Calcutta. The object of this is to obviate the expense of employing transports for the conveyance of troops, &c., from port to port, and to save the Commission paid to Commanders of H. M.'s ships, for the transport of treasure!

THE MADAGASCAR.—It is said that there is an intention of rendering the Madagascar a packet from the China seas to Calcutta, with the view of affording the speediest intelligence to Government of the proceedings in those quarters, and of conveying dispatches, &c.

ATROCIOUS MURDER BY A FEMALE.—The following is an extract of a letter from Hooghly, translated from the Bhaskur.

Perhaps you have heard of Dewan Kefaitoolah Moonshee. His wife, Hosanee Khanum, has been found guilty of the following atrocities. It appears that in consequence of some disagreements between her and one of her maid servants, she ordered the servant to be thrown into a cauldron of boiling water, but the vessel tilting over by the weight of the woman, defeated the cruel purpose of her mistress. But though she escaped from this infliction she was soon seized and brought back at the request of her mistress, by one Jungoo Khanum and four female domestics. The mistress then taking a knife, cut the maid's throat, so as to cause her immediate death. The body of the victim was then secretly removed and buried in course of the night, and this atrocious affair might have been buried in oblivion, but for a servant in the house, who, having been a paramour of the deceased, was induced to report the matter to the magistrate of the District. That functionary, acting upon this information, ordered an immediate enquiry by the darogah on the body, which they succeeded in bringing out. On the examination of it, a severe gash appeared, in the throat and, by proper investigation, Hosanee Khanum appearing to be the murderer, she, her husband, Dewan Kefaitoolah, and their family, were thrown into close imprisonment.

After the trial Kefaitoolah was fined 200 Rs. for his indifference in not causing immediate enquiry into the matter, and Mahomed Hosein, his son, Jungoo Khanum, and those who were accessories to the act, were sentenced to severe imprisonment. As for Hosanee Khanum, the fatiwah of the Moulee entitled her to be capitally punished; but the Sessions Judge, taking a different view of the case, it has been referred to the Sudder Nizamut Adawlut. The Sheristadar continues in office, but the Judge is highly dissatisfied with him for his late conduct.

EARTHQUAKE.—A slight earthquake was perceived to take place at Ram Kissenpore and Howra on the evening of the 17th May.

CAPTAIN KERR.—Captain Kerr of H. M.'s 5th Regiment, has been appointed Brigade Major to Queen's troops at Madras.

MAGISTRATES' LAW.—Some of the Magistrates of the Calcutta Police, have been committing a little bit of a blunder during the week, and in excess of the powers vested in them, have committed a boy to prison, not for abduction of females, under the age of thirteen years, which they had the power to do, but for seduction, for which they cannot, according to law, inflict any punishment.

OPINION.—The following is the result of the Opium Sale, held at the Exchange Rooms, on the 25th May 1849.

	Chests	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.	Price.
Behar..	1300	600	655	343 15 4	8.37.120
Benares..	700	635	625	325 10 10	4.30.22

THUGS AND SPOYS.—We are happy to learn, from the best authority, that the reported murder of several spoyes by Thugs, at Hauper, which reached us some time ago, is not authentic. There was a rumour of such an occurrence having taken place; but upon examination it proved to be entirely without foundation.

INUNDATION.—During the first springs of May, the banks of the creek running by Saukral, near Andool, being overflowed, that village was inundated, and property consisting of grain, &c, to the extent from 2 to 3,000 rupees, was destroyed.

CHANDERNAGORE POLICE.—The Chandernagore Police, pretty near as efficient as the Calcutta one. A respectable lady was robbed of some of her property from her house, during the night. The affair was reported to the proper authority, but ere any discovery could be made, the robbery was repeated. Suspecting some of the domestics, the parties was haunted to the Police, but for want of evidence they were dismissed. Upon this these servants brought an action against the lady for something in the form of false imprisonment, which being proved, the lady was fined. Of course she paid it, and was thus doubly robbed, first by the thieves, and then by justice.

DORJELING.—The accounts received from Dorjeling, describes that station to be rapidly improving in beauty and comfort. There are twenty-eight persons now at Dorjeling, and before the season is out, the two hotels and the twelve bungalows will be full.

DISORDERLY BEHAVIOUR ON BOARD THE VICTORIA.—An unpleasant occurrence took place on board the Victoria steamer, on her passage from Bombay to Suez. Two or three of the passengers considered there was not a sufficient quantity of wine placed on the table, and one day after dinner, Lieut. Stock, of the 2nd Royals, addressed Capt. Ormsby on the quarter deck, desiring that there might be champagne and more claret supplied. Capt. O. remonstrated with Lieut. S. on the impropriety of his tone, and after some little altercation was obliged to leave the deck. Capt. Ormsby then requested Mr. Stock's attendancer in his cabin, and on Mr. S. repeatedly refusing to obey the summons, the Captain ordered him to be placed under arrest, but immediately afterwards directed his release, under an assurance of orderly behaviour whilst on board. notwithstanding which Lieut. S. directly on reaching the quarter deck, advanced to the Captain and with a violent blow on the back of the head, struck him to the deck. Lieut. S. was placed in irons for the rest of the voyage.

PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.—Should the Government grant the solicited additional annual lac of rupees to the Committee of Public Instruction, it is said, that very great and important changes will be effected in the numerous Government Colleges and Schools throughout the country. They will all be rendered a great deal more efficient than they are at present. It is rumoured that the present Head Master of the Hindu College is to go to Agra, and that it is probable a Mr. Bantros will be appointed to the College at Benares. These arrangements, however, are not yet positively settled, but when they are they will be required at the Hindu College, Agra, and will probably be selected from one of the two gentlemen now on their way to India on the invitation of the Education Committee.

THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE, CALCUTTA.—About five hundred ladies and gentlemen attended the ball given at the Government House on the 25th May, in honor of the Queen, and the whole of the arrangements went off very well.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Peter Amair, sailmaker of the ship Tory, died suddenly, from apoplexy, on the 25th May.

A BOY KILLED BY A STAG.—A stag belonging to Colonel Powney, went a lad to death on the ramparts of the fort, on the 21st May. The stag was immediately speared by the orders of its owner.

ANOTHER GRAND DISCOVERY BY MR. MCCANN.—This active officer has again been instrumental in the discovery of a system of theft long practised, and never detected; till now. It will be remembered that from the last four years and more, frequent cases have occurred of concealed carrying, with bags of money on their way from the Treasury. In this way money has been carried off to the extent of more or less nineteen thousand rupees; and though these cases occurred very frequently, yet never were the coolies heard of, or any trace of them found. From the discovery made by Mr. McCann, as also by the confession of some of those taken, it would appear, that this system of robbing has been organised and kept up by a regular club, who managed the thing as well as to have escaped hitherto with impunity. In spite of every vigilant enquiry to the contrary.

THE NEPAULESE.—It is reported, that the Nepalese have been making some very serious encroachments on the British boundary in Chumpran; Fongdur and a hundred sipahs are absolutely leaving taxes in the British dominions!

THE VOLUNTEER REGIMENT.—The portion of the Volunteer regiment, which returned from sea in the Nasserutth Shun, some days ago, embarked again on board the same vessel on the afternoon of the 28th of May, and the vessel was taken in tow of the Dwar-kamath on the 29th, at about ten o'clock, and proceeded down.

REPUBLICATION OF THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.—The Sunday-School and other poems, by James Hutchinson, have reached a second edition.

KAN MOHUN ROY'S ADOPTED SON.—Not Radaperaud Roy the son, but the adopted son, of the late Rajah Kan Mohun Roy, whose name we cannot at present call to memory, but whom Sir John Cam Hobhouse nearly succeeded in getting appointed to the Civil Service, has been appointed, by Mr Henry Fortens, to fill the office of an examiner in the Secret and Political Department, on a salary of two hundred rupees a month.

CHITTORE UNION SCHOOL.—This institution, although its operations are greatly cramped for want of funds, still continues to impart instruction to a large number of pupils.

PRINCE BUSHEROODEEN.—Prince Busheroodeen, one of the Mysore Princes, returned to Calcutta on Friday the 30th May, from Benares, where he had been for the benefit of his health. This Prince is considered to be the most talented and capable of all the descendants of Tippoo Sahib, and is very much respected among the native community.

Mossul.

AGRA.—The Lieutenant-Governor held a Durbar on the 5th, at which the Vakeel of the Bhopoor Bahadur, and some other Native gentlemen were received.

The Lieutenant-Governor has determined on having the Office of the Sudder Board of Revenue removed from Allahabad to Agra, on Mr. J. M. Bir's retirement. The Civil Lines, in this locality destined for the concentration of all the Offices connected with the Government of the N. W. Provinces.

GREENWAY'S AGRA JOURNAL.—On the 5th of May Greenway's Agra Journal expired.

MOORSHEDABAD.—A Koormy Kait, who had long been a spy in the service of His Highness, the Nawab of Moorshedabad, having been convicted of the wilful murder of a woman who had been under his protection, and sentenced to be capitally punished, was on the morning of the 30th of April last, executed near the Jil at Madapore, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators.

Native States.

"A new site or rather one revived, has been laid out for the barracks and lines."

SCINDIA.—The following melancholy intelligence, of the hardship sustained in the Belloochi territory, has been supplied by a private letter from Sukkur, of date 20th April.

"Yesterday an official arrived, stating that Lieuts. Clark and Vernon, with a party of horse, went in pursuit of some Bellooches but arrived too late. In returning they lost their way in the desert, and, after wandering about all day in the intense heat at last found the road. Lieut. Vernon was brought in delirious, 28 men dropped in the desert, and those that came in with great difficulty saved their lives. As soon as the horses smelt the water, which was only a small muddy pool they became quite mad and rushed into it, and both men and beasts eagerly drank mud:—this was near Pullajee, where the heat is truly awful. It is almost death to be out."

KURACHEE.—A letter from Kurachee, of the 18th April, states—"A remnant of the corps d'Armee, a troop of Horse Artillery and the 22d Regiment N. I., still linger here, looking out for the long-expected craft to take them back to India." If the Bombay officials had been a little more "comprehensive" during the return of the Army, and sent a few steamers to them, and the troops would have escaped the pleasure of marching in the hot weather.

I understand a Medico-Military Committee has visited Point Munro, close to Cochin, and reported most favorably of it as a fit place for a convalescent depot for all the European sick of the Presidency to be sent to, and certainly a better spot could not be found on this side of the Cape. No hot weather at Kurachee, a fresh sea breeze and a cloudy sky.

AFGHANISTAN—JELLALABAD.—Letters from Jellalabad to the 12th May, confirm the intended movements of H. M. Shah Soofah, the Envoy, and the troops towards Cabul; which was to take place on the 30th instant. The European Regiment and the 48th Fire Brigade in Kayur, represented to be a most lovely spot at the foot of the "Suffad Koh," 4,400 feet above the level of the Sea, and only 25 miles from Jellalabad.

"The King of Bokhara has liberated all the Russian slaves and formed an alliance with the Russians, and it is asserted that he intends advancing with them to Balkh. The changes are therefore, that we may come in contact with them sooner than we expected, especially as the Envoy talks of sending two or three of the Shah's regiments across the Hindoo Kosh. Barnes writes that he had received numerous letters from Bokhara, Khiva and other places, and that his correspondents all agree on the subject of the strength of the Russians. The gallant Knight places the utmost confidence on these statements and concludes a letter, I have been, with these words: 'Is it to be believed that so large a force has merely come to Khiva to liberate some slaves and defend themselves against the attacks of a few bands of undisciplined Toorkmans? The indefatigable Dr. Lord made another successful campaign on a fort within seven miles of Bamecan.' He battered down the galls with the six pounders. Our loss was trifling, one sergeant killed and a few sepoy. Few of the enemy escaped. Our ambassador at St. Petersburg writes, that the Russian force merely consists of 3,000 men. He appears to have been completely gulled by that old fox Nesselrode. In the event of an unsuccessful attempt by Gen. Petrovski to restore Dost Mahomed, the whole transaction will, of course, be denied and the denial received by my Lord Palmerston as an ample and satisfactory explanation."

FEROZPORE.—A letter from Ferozepore mentions, that the cantonment at that station had been destroyed by fire. Whether this was the result of accident or design is not mentioned.

CABUL.—The following is an extract of a letter from Cabul dated 14th April.

"I have no items of interesting news to offer you; the King and Minister will return here at the end of the present month, and a Cantonment is being laid out for 3 regiments of Infantry, 1 of Cavalry and a battery. Whether the regulars will occupy them or not is matter of conjecture. Dost Mahomed, I am no doubt, been handsomely treated at Bokhara, and the Russian Envoy has arrived there, and will as certainly effect a treaty with the King in their favor. Their army is powerful, and as they advance every good position is untouched. What they acquire they secure; unlike ourselves who have done nothing to enable us to resist contingencies, which may, but I do not say will, happen. The best thing that could happen to our cause would be the death of the present King, and the elevation of his son Timour. The former is thoroughly hated and despised; the latter is, I have reason to think, liked, and is certainly a gentleman in address and behaviour."

"The position of affairs at Herat is decidedly bad, and they have been mismanaged. Thousands have been thrown away and no equivalent received. Indeed we pay flat and ask afterwards, if this system were revised, it might be conducive of good. Yur Mahomed, the minister, indeed King there, the man whose vigor defied the place against Persia, has no idea of tactics of 'British moderation and forbearance.' We have had a noble season, and a full harvest must ensue, but at present grain is dear, and much misery has been induced, which of course the people have contracted in his favor with the King of Dost Mahomed. That man was certainly a just, good ruler, and highly popular. A disgraceful exploit has taken place at Bamcean, in my opinion. A village refused to sell grain, and after some altercation fired upon a political party.

The Englishman gives the following, which is extracted from a letter to his address:—“We have lately had some interesting news from Khiva which, perhaps, may not be new to you; however, I will give you in case it should not have reached Calcutta. Abbott reached Khiva in safety, and was at first well received by the Khan, but at the first interview made a sad mistake of the Russians, and has since been thrown into prison. At the audience the Khan asked him what terms he had to propose. Abbott stated the liberation of the Russian prisoners, the paying for them; then a treaty offensive and defensive; and not to allow a single Russian to remain in his country. The Khan, fancying we were afraid of the Russian league, immediately told the high lords, asked what he was to do for doing this, and told Abbott to show his authority. He, unfortunately, had none, and what was worse, no money, so the Khan kicked him out, and threw him into prison, where he now lies. The Russians are within seven miles of Khiva; on their approach the Khan sent out his army to meet their op. arding one, (which amounts to 24,000 men and 72 pieces of cannon) but at the first fire they all took to their heels. The Khan then sent out word that he would deliver up the captives, amounting to 80, and requested the Russian general to retire, who replied that he was very comfortable where he was, and far from retiring, that he should do the reverse, as he had something to do with the Bokhara Chief, and ended by asking how he would like the air of Siberia? The Russian General demanded the person of Col. Stoddart, and the Bokhara man was willing enough to free him, but Stoddart refused, saying, that if his own countrymen would not liberate him—he would not be indebted to strangers:—he is now at large, and save doing injustice as a Mussulman—is comfortable enough. This has come from an authentic source, and will, I should think, strike the C. G. and Council. It appears that the Russians will not retire—and if they do not, of course will be up to their eyes in intrigue ere long—and will cause us a world of trouble, although they will not come in direct collision with us for the present. Had the Afghan expedition occurred five years ago, instead of when it did, it would have been better; however, even as it is, with a good force in this country, and the people friendly towards us—of which there is every probability of a continuance.—we may defy Russian intrigue and invasion to hurt. Should there be any more news worth communicating, I will write.”

A letter of a subsequent date states, that the Russians were, by the latest accounts from Lieutenant Abbott, in force about 8,000 men, with 700 guns, entrenched within five hundred miles of Khiva, being unable to proceed further on account of the passes being blocked up by the snow. They give out, that they don't mean to go beyond Khiva, but the general opinion is, that they only wait a good opportunity to make further advances. Report states, that an army of observation will shortly proceed through Lahore, to keep the Russians in check.

A letter dated 13th April, from an officer in Shah Soojah's service, says—

“A letter just came in from Jullhar Khan, Dost Mahomed's brother, stating, that Stoddart and some of Bamcean's influential correspondents, have been murdered at Bokhara, by the King's order.”

The following contains the latest intelligence from Cabul, and may be relied on as the most authentic information there current.

The latest intelligence from Abbott reaches up to the 5th March, being less than two months, which may be considered quick, as owing to the hostility of the King of Bokhara, his letters come round by Herat. The Russians by consequence of the great depth of snow upon the ground, were still in their entrenched camp, and were not expected to resume their march before April, so that we shall not hear of their arrival at Khiva till June. Some 20,000 Uzbeks who attempted to carry off Camels and even attack the camp, were so severely handled, that Abbott thinks they will not attempt to offer further opposition to the Russian advance. The Russian force to be able to last so long, must have a very large Commissariat with them as from Orenburgh to Khiva is a good two months' march, the distance being about 700 miles, and from Orenburgh to Bokhara is nearly the same distance, as it is from Londonderry to Candahar. The British made a much longer march than that—cannot the Russians do the same. And a Russian army of 12,000 men does not march with six times that number of camp followers. Sir A. Burnes positively asserts, that the Russian army amounts to nearly 30,000 fighting men, and 72 guns, and that they will be at Bokara before summer is over. Shortly after our arrival at Cabul, this talented Officer declared, that a Russian army would be somewhere in Central Asia, either at Herat or Bokhara, before a year was over. Lord A's account also tallys with Burnes, that besides Cossacks there are 12,000 of the elite of their Infantry.

The following is an extract from a private letter.

“Certain intelligence has been received to-day from the North West, stating that Captain Abbott, our envoy to the Khan of Khiva, had been well received, and that Kuteerat, the Chief, like others, wanted to be assisted with men and money. The Russians are only advancing with a small force, from Orenburgh, when had been obliged to intrench itself, owing to the snow preventing its moving on. The most important part of the account however is, that Captain Abbott has been deputed by the Khan on a mission to St. Petersburg, with a declaration that he is willing to give up slavery, and it is presumed, the Russian slaves in his possession; but that he had not the means of paying the demands of that Government.”

A letter from Capt. E. Conolly, dated Jullahabad, 15th April, has been received at Agra, in which it is confidently stated, that tidings had been received from Abbott at Khiva, where he had arrived safe, but was well treated, though sharply watched. Abbott says; that ten Battalions of Russians were there, and would advance to Bokhara. The Khirians had no idea of what sort of people the English were, and thought them the children of Shah Soojah!

BAHARAN.—Letters from Bamcean, of the 1st and 2d May mention, that all is quiet in those parts. Plenty of horse forthcoming ever since the battle all over with the Hazarehs. The weather in the north was becoming much milder but the people had not commenced ploughing. It is reported that no troops are to return to the Provinces at present, on account of an intimation received from Sir A. Burnes of the Bokhara Army having joined the Russians.

HERAT.—A letter has been received from Herat, dated 7th April, mentioning that every thing was quiet there, that Lieutenant Abbott had started from Khiva to St. Petersburg; and that an envoy from Kuteerat had reached Herat on his way to Candahar.

MADRAS.

BOMBAY.

ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.—On the 10th of April, a wealthy Hindu, of the weaver caste, was dragged from his domicile by a Parang, under the plea that a horse of his was on fire; and being led to a place, where several parties were in waiting for him, they assaulted him severely and robbed him of the costly jewellery he wore on his person.

THE ATALANTA.—The Atalanta, steamer, has started for China, under the command of Capt. Rogers, loaded with stores and provisions.

THE SUCCESSION AT KOLABA.—There was some inaccuracy in what was stated respecting the succession to the Gulab of Kolaba, for it appears, that the Government has already annulled the claim of Sambhaji Angria to the territory, and the decision seems to have been intimated to him on more than one occasion. As to the probability of his being adopted by the widow of the late Raja, he is too old for that purpose, being about seventy years of age; and as, according to report, he has no children; and from the imbecility of his constitution, brought on by a luxurious and debauched course of life, too common among the Marathas, cannot expect to have any issue hereafter, his branch of the family can have no hope of succession. There are, however, some young relations of His late Highness at Allibuz, who might be adopted, in case permission is obtained from the British Government.

THE HON'BLE MR. FARISH.—The Hon'ble Mr. Farish, has resigned the Bombay Service.

BARON DE CANDAL.—His Excellency the Baron de Candal, Governor of Goa, died at that settlement on the 17th of April. The disease which terminated his existence, was a cancer in the back.

CUSTOMS DUTIES.—The Tariff Committee have come to the decision of suggesting the expediency of having the customs duties levied on invoice cost with 10 per cent. advance.

LIEUTENANT GIBBARD.—On the 28th ultimo, Mr. Cochrane (the Barrister) and Mr. Armitage, attended at the Police Office before the Chief Magistrate, in support of a charge against Lieutenant Gibbard, for the alleged murder of four natives. Mr. Cochrane shortly detailed the late painful circumstances which gave rise to the application before the Magistrate. Evidence was called to support the charge, and, ultimately, a warrant was issued against Lieut. Gibbard, —this officer, however, was not found at the time, though he subsequently surrendered himself. The charges brought forward against him, are very serious, and no exertions will be spared in endeavouring to bring him to answer for the late unfortunate act before a tribunal of his country.

On the 6th instant, Mr. Gibbard was brought up under a writ of Habeas Corpus, in the Custody of the Marshal of the jail, before his Lordship the Chief Justice in Chambers, to be admitted to bail. Mr. Cochrane, who appeared for the Prosecution, stated, that he did not oppose the application, but left it entirely to the discretion of his Lordship. Mr. Gibbard was accordingly admitted to bail, himself in 4,000 rupees, and four sureties in 1,000 rupees each, to answer the charges at the next Jury Sessions.

SEPOY REBELLIONS—ROBBERIES.—It is said, that several bands of sepoys, amounting in all to about three hundred, from the Portuguese state of Damann, have entered the British territories. It appears that they have not received any pay for several months, and were about to be sent against their will to Goa, so they knew not whither to go or Obey. They are armed with swords and staves, and the country people, among whom they have gone, are in a state of great apprehension.

A number of small robberies have also occurred in open day as well as at night, when several persons have been severely wounded. Through the great reason to believe that the persons have come from the Damann territory, it is supposed that the deficiency of the police establishment they have uniformly escaped, leaving scarcely a trace.

ARRANGING PUNDS FOR THE NATIVE'S SAVINGS.—The retiring fund for the local officers in the army of his Highness the Nizam, has at length been arranged into shape; the original scheme having been changed to the better plan of allowing officers to retire whenever they please, by paying up a certain sum, and by which Captains will become entitled to £200 per annum. There are now to be monthly subscriptions in future.

POST OFFICE STEPS.—The Captains of several merchant and other ships have been lately fined various sums, for having detained the letters, which they were bound to send immediately on their arrival in Bombay to the Post Office. The Commander of the Atalanta, on board of which a bag of letters was delayed, on her late return from Suva, was fined Rs. 500.

THE CLIVE.—The Hon'ble Company's sloop Clive, has arrived from the Persian Gulf. The latest news from Bussora, was that the iron steamers were ready to proceed up to Bagdad. Intelligence from Bagdad states, that rumours were current of a collision being expected between the Turks and Egyptians. The French Embassy had arrived at Tehran.

THE HUGH LINDSAY.—The Hugh Lindsay proceeded on the 15th of April, to take up her station in the Persian Gulf for the conveyance of the Mail during the monsoon.

THE NEW STEAMER CLEOPATRA.—The new Steamer Cleopatra, recently arrived, is said to be a very magnificent vessel. She is flush-decked, having no poop or forecastle, and is well adapted for war. We are informed that her first trip will be towards China.

ANOTHER SAILOR GIRL.—A case of romantic singularity has been made public. The ship Bucphalus, had only been three days' sail from the British coast, when it was discovered that an extra hand was on board, whom no one could account for. The stranger eventually turned out to be a female, who had made her way from an English nunnery, and had assumed the virago of a sailor. She is the daughter of an officer in the army, and was induced to assume a masculine attire, and brave the dangers of the deep, for the sake of one, to whom, in her soul, she must have been attached.

MRS. NIXON.—Mr. Nixon has come out to Bombay in order to edit the Times.

THE COMPENT.—A new ship, the Compent, above 600 tons, struck upon the rocks off the Lighthouse on the morning of the 7th May, about seven o'clock. Ample assistance was immediately dispatched, and, in about half an hour after the sad occurrence, the foremost boat, with Mr. Atkinson, second assistant to the Master Attendant, reached the vessel. All exertions, however, were of no avail. The rocks had crushed in, and penetrated her bottom, and as the tide made, she filled with water, and was finally abandoned by the crew as a complete wreck, at about 2 o'clock P. M. A portion of the cargo was, however, saved uninjured, by dint of much labor, but the greater part is entirely lost.

THE SATELLITE.—Another new iron vessel, named the Satellite, intended for the Indus Flotilla, was launched from the dockyard on the 5th of May. Her length over all is 118 feet by 34 feet beam, engines 30-horse power each, and present draught of water, without her boilers and stores, about 20 inches.

NEW COMMISSIONERS OF THE PORT.—A Commission (Committee) for promoting and enforcing the purification and cleanliness of the Native Town has been appointed, and the effect of the same is anticipated. ADVENTURERS.—The ship Loose Family, which arrived from Aden on the 10th of May, brought the Head Quarters of the 24th Regiment N. I.—35 men transferred from 1st to 2nd European Regiment, and details of Artillery, Gendarmes, 3 Gun Lascars and 19th Regiment N. I. The recruits for the 1st and 2nd Grenadier, 5th and 23rd Regiments N. I. upwards of 700 men, embarked for Kurrachee on the 8th, instant to join their respective Regiments in Sind.

REV. JOSEPH LAURIE.—The Senatus Academicus of the University of Edinburgh, has conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity on the Rev. Joseph Laurie, Senior Minister of St. Andrew's Church of Bombay.

PREPARED FOR GOA.—Private letters from Lisbon received by the overland mail mention, that the Portuguese frigates Princesa Real, and Tagarima, had been fitted up as transports, and were getting ready in order to sail about the 1st of April for Goa. They were to convey a battalion of 600 men, which was being organized in Lisbon, when the letter was despatched, out of the many volunteers that offered themselves.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.—As the lady of Captain G. Simpson was on the evening of the 7th of May returning from a drive in the neighbourhood of Breach Candy, the horses took fright;—the coachman got off the seat to stop them;—on which Mrs. Simpson jumped out and fell; the wheels passed over her head inflicting thereby the most serious injury. She lingered until the night of the 8th, when death put an end to her sufferings.

THE RAJA OF SATTARA.—The Chotepnday of Bhaskerjee and Gopall Rao, Jankhondikar, are now at the Hills on a visit to the Governor. Bijaya Parakkur, the de facto Dewan of His Highness the Raja of Sattara, has been expelled from his country at the recommendation of the Resident.

AFFAIRS AT BARODA.—Affairs at Baroda are getting on well, and the Guicowar is doing every thing to promote his friendship with the Resident and the British Government. Proclamations have been issued announcing the abolition of the Sutte and the dismission of Veneram. It has been resolved to expel some of the adherents of that individual from the Guicowar's dominions, and to prohibit others from attending the Court; while His Highness is endeavouring to shew every favour to the worthy portion of his subjects and to restore them to their former position.

NATIVE EDUCATION.—Government has resolved to appoint a Board of Public Instruction for the superintendence of native education throughout the whole of the Bombay Presidency. It is to consist of a President and a number of European members nominated by Government, associated with certain native gentlemen annually elected from the subscribers of the Native Education Society. This body, in which the Council of the Elphinstone College is to merge, will exercise a general superintendence over the College and the schools of the Native Education Society, the proposed Medical School, the Poona College and the English school, the native schools in the districts, and all institutions wholly or partially supported by Government.

UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT.—A very unfortunate accident, attended with loss of life, happened in the Dockyard. The great sheers, erected for hoisting in the machinery of the steam frigate, suddenly gave way, with four men on the top of it, who were thus precipitated from a great height, and thrown among the rough materials beneath them. One man died about two hours after the occurrence; and the three others were in a very precarious state, but yet expected to recover. The cylinder of the new vessel was also greatly injured by the fall. There are now many improvements making in the dock yard; a good extent of shore is being now reclaimed from the sea, for ship-building purposes; a foundry is erecting for the getting up of machinery.

MR. MURRY.—Mr. Murry, the silk manufacturer, has returned to Bombay, and has been warmly welcomed back.

Ceylon.

THREE PERSONS DROWNED.—On the 25th of April a strong breeze of wind commenced amounting at length to a gale, when a wharf jolly-boat, returning from the Persia, when crossing the Bar, was swamped, and Mr. Brier, Mr. John Janak, and Master William Loos, were drowned. The accident was seen by those on board the Persia, who immediately lowered a boat and proceeded to the spot, where they picked up the five native boatmen and found the body of Master Loos floating on the surface of the water, but only the hats of the other two. The body was promptly conveyed to the Hospital, where the usual means of restoring suspended animation, were assiduously but in vain resorted to. One of the boatmen says that he saw Mr. Janak seize Mr. Brier, who was an excellent swimmer, which accounts for the immediate disappearance of them both. The boat was washed ashore on the 27th April, but the other two bodies have not been found.

CALLAGHAN.—This unfortunate man was hanged on the 27th of April, for shooting Sergeant Soley.

The detachment of the 18th Regiment, stationed at Galle, embarked on board the Allatou on the 20th of April, and the same night put to sea with a fair breeze. On the evening of the 25th they sighted Trincomalee, but the wind being right a head they could not make the harbour, and were therefore obliged to "lie to" during the night. At 4 o'clock the next morning they commenced beating, and the wind increasing, about 10 the fore top-mast was carried away close to the cap, and the main topgallant mast. The fore top-sail yard, in coming down, also split both the main sail and jib. There were four men on the topmast when it gave way, and went overboard with it, but they clung to the rigging and were picked up unharmed. The only person hurt by the accident was the Medical Sub-Assistant, who was standing on the fore-castle at the time of the accident and had his left leg thrust out, but he is recovering. There was much confusion for about an hour, but matters were soon put to rights and on the 27th the vessel was two days at anchor in the roads, waiting for the wind to change to get into the harbour. All on board were well with the exception of our equivalent soldier. The Germans embarked on the 29th. Between Sunday the 28th and the 29th six cases of cholera had occurred, four of which terminated fatally a few days ago, and one child belonging to the 18th. Our correspondent adds that three men of the Royal Artillery had also fallen victims to the pestilence, and that before the detachment of this corps embarked for Colombo.

Singapore.

CAPT. DUNBAR.—The following is an extract of a letter dated Singapore, 14th April, 1840:—

"You may probably be anxious to receive some news regarding the state of affairs in China, but the non-arrival of any vessel from thence to Singapore since the 10th of last month, prevents my giving you any. I shall, however, keep you acquainted with such news as I may be able to obtain from Captains of vessels, and should any turn out of importance, you can profit by having it inserted in the public papers. There is, however, one item of news, which I considered it necessary to inform you of, and which I hope, will be the means of removing any unfavorable impression that may exist on the public mind, as to the character of the person concerned. By this reaches you, you will doubtless have heard of the incarceration of Captain Dunbar, of the Cowesley Family, for shooting his Chinese Officer, and as the circulation of any imperfect news on this point is likely to be prejudicial to the prisoner, I may as well give you a true and correct version of the affair, obtained not only from Captain Dunbar himself, but from several respectable gentlemen, who attended to the prisoner's rights in having acted as he had done. It appears, that both the Captain and the Officer were not in a state fit to restrain their passion; but the temper of Captain Dunbar was exceedingly provoked from the insubordinate conduct of the officer, and his refusal to obey orders in performing the duties of the ship. In such a state of affairs, it was thought proper to put the officer under arrest; but he insisted on acting as he had commenced, and afterwards very deliberately went to his cabin, got out a loaded musket, and levelled it direct at the Captain, who, fortunately, escaped, probably from the unsteadiness of the aim, and the almost total insanity of the officer. After this, he fired off one of the guns of the ship, and was very nearly blowing up the cuddy of the Royal Saxon, which vessel was lying just next to the Cowesley Family, and which circumstance would have occurred had the gun been properly directed. On this, the Captain was determined that affairs should be brought to a more decent hearing, and accordingly levelled one of his pistols at the officer, with words to this effect, that 'if you don't go to your cabin, I shall shoot you,' and not a moment had elapsed, when the officer fell, crying out, 'now, I suppose, I must go.' This is the whole story, and you may guess what could have been the fault of Captain Dunbar, when the officer himself acknowledged on oath, that 'he was in fault, and that his conduct was sufficient to provoke the temper of any man, and that he hoped nothing would be done to the Captain.'

China.

China papers to the 23d of March, has been received. The only items of importance, are an offer by Lin, for the re-opening of the Portuguese trade, and the retreat from Canton to Macao, of many of the American merchants. The opium market was very uncertain, and prices ranged from 500 to 700 dollars for Pians. A fall in the price of tea, was likewise expected. A report of the Water Witch having been cut off on the coast of China, by Mandarin boats, has been circulated, but it is said, to be quite untrue. The Emperor had died, and a few reports had been collected by Lin.

The announcement of the arrival of the Ariel, on the 28th May, put all the town on the qui vive for information, as important intelligence was expected by her, but the following is all the news that has been publicly received by her.

The Ariel left China on the 11th April, and Singapore on the 28th of that month. She was engaged by Captain Elliott as a Government packet, and sent with despatches to the Government here. She brings intelligence of the safety of the Water Witch, which vessel, though she did not touch with the Mandarins, was never in a safe quarter from them, and was to sail in five or six days after her for Calcutta. The nominal prices of opium at Taungkoo, ranged from drs. 410 to 450.

Persia.

ISPAHAN.—The following is an extract of a letter, dated Isfahan, 2d April 1840.

"The commencement of the spring in this place is extremely exhilarating and delightful. We expect to have a rich and abundant harvest this year. Almost all the necessities of life are plentiful and cheap. We are not, however, free from the lamentable consequences of misrule and anarchy. The Shah is said to have been mightily angry with his Christian subjects at Teheran. At the suggestion of the chief Lehnamuz, he poured the phials of his wrath on their devoted heads, by ordering all their wine jars to be broken, and the use of the sale of that forbidden beverage to be prohibited. The sufferings of Christians in this part of the globe will never cease, but with the extinction of the despotic government by which they are unceasingly molested. But, when that long looked for and happy time will arrive, God only knows!"

Private letters recently received from the Gulph states, that Muhomed Shah had visited Isfahan, and put the government of that populous city in proper order. A plot was discovered against the Court of Teheran, and the conspirators were chiefly Mollahs and Syeds. The ringleaders were beheaded by order of the Shah, and some of their followers were shot, and others banished to Ardabil and Mazanderan. A great number of the refractory were also deprived of their eyes, ears, and noses! The presence of his Majesty at Isfahan has spread universal terror throughout the country, and has operated as an efficient check upon the cupidity of the mercenary hirelings, "dressed with a little brief authority!" One of the letters, says, that Muhomed Shah also intended to visit Shiraz, with the intention of punishing those that were instrumental in creating the late disturbances at that place. Another letter says, that he had already arrived there, and adapted the strict measures for restoring the tranquillity of the city, and promoting the welfare of the people.

PROPOSED BANK OF MADRAS.

The meeting to take this important measure into consideration was, held at the College Hall on Monday the 18th instant. The attendance was not so numerous as was expected, but it was evident that the parties who came there did so, not from any idle curiosity, but to do business.

On the meeting being opened by the Sheriff, I. L. Johnson, Esq., reading the requisition addressed to him on the 1st May, it was proposed by J. Pugh, Esq., and seconded by J. Ouchterlony, Esq., and unanimously agreed to—that the Sheriff do take the chair.

Mr. Ouchterlony then introduced to the meeting the subject for which it had been assembled as follows:—

I have, Mr. Chairman been deputed to the task of introducing to this meeting the Prospectus which is to be suggested as the foundation of our proceedings to day. I wish the task had fallen into better hands, and I must crave your indulgence while I attempt its discharge. The subject is one which already to you all must be so familiar, that it might fairly be left to speak its own force in language of recommendation, without exhibiting a need of any lengthened commentary or explanation.

With most of the gentlemen here present, the advantages resulting to a community from the existence within it of a well organized and liberally conducted Banking institution, must be within the experience of their own personal observation. In our native land no town or district, which numbers its population by a few thousand, fails to find its local bank arise to afford its facility and security to the trade and pecuniary transactions of the place. In what this facility consists it is quite unnecessary that I should detain you with explanation of the advantages of the paper circulation of a substantial establishment, and of the assistance given in loans, whether in the shape of discount of Bills or advances on security, are all too familiarly known and universally appreciated not to let a well-lauded bank and the public benefit be intimately associated in every mind. But there is one subject, not entirely ajacible to the question now before us, but still in a reference to which I cannot but feel perhaps usefully make a remark. —I allude to the gradual, but I believe almost complete decay which late years have presented of those private and limited establishments, which not a very long time past almost monopolized the branch of Banking operations in the country towns of England. It was with the spread of intelligence and the promptness of some severe lessons in the failure of those establishments, that people came to bend a close and scrutinizing attention upon the system of Banking institutions, and the result was a pretty general conviction that no private Bank could adequately present those essentials for the public weal, which are to be found in perfect security in itself—an enlarged, liberal and at the same time impartial system of accommodation towards the public—and also in that publicity to its affairs which is at once the guarantee of its security and inspires a full confidence in the public mind. This impression once sown, a reform was not long delayed, for it was felt that a remedy was closer at hand. This was in Joint Stock Banks, which soon reared their heads in every direction, and rapidly drove the private establishments from the field, and though with some of these abuse has occurred, they generally, from their resources, their proprietary, and their system of operation being known, have had the effect of averting those risks to trade of which the occurrence of sudden panics was before so often productive, and then sound and settled system of business has fostered and encouraged the more healthy features of commerce.

But to turn, gentlemen, from any reflections upon the Home Banks, to what is more immediately the object of this meeting—we have to consider the present state of Banking at Madras and the opportunity that may exist of introducing an improvement into it, and this both in what is due to the community and as regards the benefit of the public.

After all that has been said and written on the subject of the defects found in the present Government Bank of Madras, I feel it is scarcely necessary to dilate upon them to you. But to prevent misapprehension I may at the outset mark, that, in the fault found with this Bank, we do not so much condemn it for what it is, as for what it is not. It would be idle, nor can there exist the least desire, to under estimate the advantages of which, to its extent, it has been productive to the community. nor do we forget that when no Bank has existed at Bombay, we have enjoyed our Government institution here. The circulation of its notes, fortified by the security of the Government's responsibility, has afforded facility to the monetary transactions of the place, and the accommodation of its discounts and advances has been, in their degree, of advantage and benefit to the public. The real question, however, is—has this been sufficient?—has all been done that might have been or ought to have been accomplished?—and, does the Bank present within itself the means of substantial improvement? or, can we devise a plan to amend and enlarge its system with security and benefit.

To the latter of these queries alone does it appear to me, gentlemen, that a reply can be given in the affirmative. The operations of the existing Bank, involving the sole and entire responsibility of the Government, are cramped, perhaps unavoidably, by the most restrictive rules and the officers selected to administer these we have no reason to expect, almost no right to expect, that they will depart from the strict letter of their interpretation,—and this, both because they are liable to, and generally must have had, no previous acquaintance with the practical details of Banking or other commercial transactions, and also must be ignorant of the resources and reputation of the individual members of our community, and that the offices held by them in the Bank, form no permanent employ, but in the promotion going on in the particular service to which they belong, they are under the liability of being at any time transferred from the computer of the Bank to the judicial bench or the Revenue charge of a collectorate. It is under this that the Bank has suffered, that is as it affects the public interests—under this it continues to be exposed to suffer—and thus it must remain until some external remedy can be introduced to give to it a new life and vigour.

It has been, I know, the opinion of many here, that a joint Stock Bank, quite independent of that of the Government, would succeed in this place. But others and the majority entertain doubts on the subject, and it appears to me with some that it would be taking a bolder flight than the existing operations of our trade are able to sustain. Whereas, in amalgamation of the two, in the introduction of an independent proprietary form amongst the public into the Bank of the Government—after the fashion of the Banks of Bengal and Bombay—every advantage we seek appears to be attainable. This is in fact, gentlemen, the plan which I now propose to the public of Madras, and I hope there is no doubt, if parties will come forward with resolution and spirit, that we may speedily gain so important and beneficial a point. By the adoption of this measure we should possess a Bank commanding that entire confidence which the connexion of the Government, independent of its proprietary, would not fail to impart to it, an Institution which would extend to the community the full accommodation which a Bank can properly afford,—and this because in its numerous Directory there would be parties having a practical and personal acquaintance with the safe and advantageous directions in which this could be poured forth, and one too in which I feel convinced that the shareholders would find a profitable, while a perfectly secure, investment of their capital. Upon this latter point, however, I will not anticipate the information that may be gathered from the Prospectus I hold in my hand: indeed I have already trespassed so long upon your attention, that I will only venture to detain you with a few remarks more before I proceed to read it to you.

Those remarks chiefly are—that, in the proposed extension of the Government Bank, we seek only an advantage which is already enjoyed by both the sister Presidencies. In Bengal the long years of the establishment of its Bank have proved its benefit to the community and profit to its proprietary, though with the large trade of that place, room has been left for an equally profitable competitor to erect its head beside it. At Bombay it is with in the recollection of all that the mere advent of their Bank was hailed even as a panacea for the losses and sufferings entailed upon them by the Opium crisis in China, and already in the infancy of its working are we informed that it has driven stagnation from the commerce of the Island and replaced it by features of health and animation. The same result, gentlemen, may we not confidently look for here?—and, for the means to accomplish it, we certainly may put forward the powerful claim of equal right and privilege. It is not, however on this latter point by any means anticipated that other than a friendly feeling will be found to exist with our local Government in assisting our efforts for the realization of this consequential measure, and, while we must diligently seek and duly appreciate such powerful support, our own efforts ought to receive an additional stimulus to exertion in the reflection that, if we do not quicken our pace—if we do not enter the vacant field briskly—there are rival competitors at hand, who have not failed to notice its theatre for operations, and amongst these not the least powerful may prove that Bank of Asia, which the late overland mail tells us is fast straggling into a substantial existence.

I thank you, gentlemen, for the indulgence with which you have listened to me, and I will not now detain you longer than by reading the Prospectus which has been drawn up for submission to this meeting.

Mr. Ouchterlony then read the following prospectus, during which slight alterations were introduced at the suggestion of the meeting. This makes it slightly differ from the paper we published on Saturday.

(This prospectus will be found below.)

The first Resolution was proposed by A. D. Campbell, Esq.—who observed that he concurred generally in what had fallen from Mr. Ouchterlony relative to the want there was for improvement in the Bank at Madras, but that he particularly deemed such required on account of the Native landed proprietors here, who were left to be exposed to much difficulty and often serious inconvenience from the absolute refusal the Bank now gave, and was forced to give, to any accommodation whatever upon the security of houses and lands.

(For the remainder of the proceedings, it may be as well to substitute the official report of the whole by the Sheriff as Chairman, and then we accordingly sub-

At a General Meeting of the inhabitants of Madras, held at the College Hall on Monday the 18th May, 1840, to consider of the extension of the present Government Bank upon the principles of the Bank of Bengal and the Bank of Bombay.

The Sheriff of Madras, J. L. Johnson, Esq., proceeded to open the Meeting by reading the requisition addressed to him, and numerous signed, under date the 1st May.

On the motion of J. Pugh, Esq., seconded by J. Ouchterlony, Esq., it was resolved—that the Sheriff do take the chair.

Mr. Ouchterlony then addressed the meeting in explanation of and introductory to the following Prospectus which was read by him.

PROSPECTUS.

“The recent grant of a Charter to the Bank of Bombay and the proceedings antecedent thereto, have directed attention to a particular degree to the limited facilities which have afforded to the public of Madras by the existing Government Bank at this place.

“This Bank from being the exclusive property of the Government, is left to have its managerial affairs customarily drawn from the Civil Branch of the Government public service, and has its operations controlled by the most arbitrary and confined rules, originating as it is understood with the home authorities.

Such managerial Officers are constantly liable to removal as the fluctuations of the Service entitle them to promotion, their own desire may point to change, and there is consequently a continued exposure to the risk of finding the Bank controlled by an Executive Manager to its peculiar duties, and whose previous person could have imparted no practical knowledge of the principles of banking, or—what is of paramount importance—no acquaintance with the nature and extent of the commercial interests of the community, and of the character and resources of the individuals composing it.

Under the influence of the above circumstances, it is not to be wondered at that the commerce of Madras fails to present those features of vigour and activity, which the working of a liberal and well conducted banking Establishment should have afforded, and which it is confidently anticipated, will in process of time be amply realized, should the present bank be extended according to that form of constitution of which the model is presented in the chartered banks of the sister presidencies.

The extent of the population of this city, the considerable external trade of the port, the large amount of its monetary transactions in constant operation, all promise a sure field for the working of an enlarged and popular bank; but this active and useful life is further guaranteed by the fact that, during the last five years the average circulation of its notes by the Government Bank has been Rs. 13,21,957—and that, with all its homed advances to the public, the amount of its annual discounts and advances, upon the same average of years has been rupees 57,51,008.

It appearing therefore that the public interests are susceptible of much advantage from the project of extending the Government bank upon the principles stated, and that no parties who may enter as shareholders, there is a very reasonable prospect of such proving a secure and profitable investment of capital—it is now proposed—“1st. That measures to be taken with a view to procure the extension of the present government bank of Madras upon the principles of the chartered banks of Bengal and Bombay.

“2d. That the lately granted charters to the above two banks be adopted as the general model, upon which to seek the drafting of the constitution of the proposed bank of Madras, they appearing to present the essentials of perfect security with comprehensive operations, but it is left to introduce such alterations, as may at a future time be found necessary and advisable.

"3d. That the business of the proposed bank be equally restricted within what have been prescribed as the limits for banks of Bengal and Bombay.

"4th. That a sum of thirty lakhs of rupees be fixed for the present capital of the institution, to be divided into a 3,000 shares of 1,000 rupees each.

"5th. That out of the above capital it be proposed to the government to take 300 shares as its proportion.

"6th. That, to afford a fair opportunity to the public to come in as shareholders, no individual shall in the first instance be allowed to subscribe for a larger number than 80 shares; but should, after a lapse of two months, shares remain untaken, then subscribers may increase their contributions—provided always that they must be prepared to surrender any proportion which shall ultimately prove in excess of the limit that be fixed by the charter for individual subscription.

"7th. That subscribers for shares are to understand that the full amount of their subscriptions will be liable to be called for prior to the actual commencement of the operation of the bank.

"8th. That an instalment of one per cent on subscriptions be paid within one month of the time they are made, in order to form a Fund for meeting any necessary expenses that may be incurred in realizing the object in view, and that when such instalment is not paid within the time specified, then the share or shares shall be held forfeited.

"9th. That parties subscribing shall hold themselves answerable for such expenses rateably according to their subscriptions.

"10th. That it is to be an established principle of the bank to give the fullest publicity regarding its affairs, without in any way trenching upon the same secrecy which is due to individual transactions.

"11th. That a provisional committee be appointed to carry into execution the objects embraced in the foregoing resolutions, viz. to receive and register applications for shares, to receive the amount of the instalment on the same, and generally to adopt such proceedings as may be necessary to effect the establishment of the bank as early as possible.

"12th. That it be understood that the subscriptions of members of the services are to be taken subject to the sanction of the Government."

Proposed by A. D. Campbell, Esq., seconded by Dr. Murray, and carried unanimously.

Resolution I.—That the prospectus now read be adopted.

Proposed by Lt.-Col. Sim, seconded by Lt. Col. Doveton, and carried unanimously.

Resolution II.—That the following gentlemen be appointed a provisional committee for the purpose of carrying the same into effect, and that they be empowered to fill up occasional vacancies in their number when such may occur—

A. F. Bruce, Esq.	J. Minchin, Esq.
Lt. Col. Tulloch, C. B.	J. Pugh, Esq.
John Wyhe, Esq., M. D.	J. Thomson, Esq.
A. Maclean, Esq.	J. Ouchterlony, Esq.
A. F. Arbuthnot, Esq.	Chota Ram Chetty,
J. Scott, Esq.	Venkatachellum Chetty,
N. B. Acworth Esq.

and that Mr. Ouchterlony be requested to act as honorary secretary to the committee.

Proposed by Lieut. Col. Tulloch, C. B. seconded by D. Mackenzie, Esq., and carried unanimously.

Resolution III.—That all applications for shares, and remittances of the instalment of 1 per cent, be addressed to the secretary to the provisional committee.

Proposed by N. B. Acworth, Esq., seconded by G. Harding, Esq., and carried unanimously.

Resolution IV.—That all instalments be paid in or received, to the government bank, in the names of three members of the committee.

Proposed by J. Ouchterlony, Esq., seconded by J. Pugh, Esq., and carried unanimously.

Resolution V.—That when the share list may be filed in the extent of twenty-seven lakhs of rupees, a notice be issued to that effect by the committee; but that applications for shares shall continue to be received, with the proviso that they are to be entered separately, and then, where any shares in the original list may be forfeited or in the case of a less amount than 3 lakhs being taken by the government, that the parties on the second list shall be entitled to such shares or capital according to their priority of application.

Proposed by the Rev. J. Mahon, seconded by J. Ouchterlony, Esq. and carried unanimously.

Resolution VI.—That the thanks of this meeting be given to the Sheriff for his conduct in the chair.

(Signed) J. L. Jounson.

Sheriff of Madras, in the Chair.

Resolution VII.—That the thanks of this meeting be given to the Sheriff for his conduct in the chair.

STEAM COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the Bengal Hurkaru

SIR,—I have the honor to request, that you will have the goodness to publish, for general information, the accompanying copy of a letter, to my address, dated the 27th inst., from the Secretary to the Government of India, together with the extract of a letter, dated the 1st ult., from the Honorable the Court of Directors, to which it refers.

I am, Sir, your obdt. servt.,

F. BRACKEN, Sheriff

Calcutta, 30th of May, 1840.

No 393.

To F. BRACKEN, Esq., Sheriff of Calcutta.

SIR,—I am directed to transmit for your Gent. Dept. information, and for communication to the inhabitants of Calcutta, the accompanying extract from a despatch, No. 4 of 1840, dated the 1st of April, from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, in reply to a representation to the Hon'ble Court, from the Government of India, with which was forwarded the memorial of the inhabitants of Calcutta, presented by the late Sheriff of Calcutta, to the Hon'ble T. C. Robertson, Esq., late president of the Council of India and Deputy-Governor of Bengal, in the month of October last.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your most obdt. servt.,

G. A. BUSHBY, Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Council Chamber, the 27th May, 1840.

Extract of a Marine Letter, No. 4, of 1840, dated the 1st April, from the Honorable the Court of Directors.

We have to acknowledge the receipt of your public letter, dated 12th October last, (No. 34) forwarding a memorial, addressed to you, by the inhabitants of Calcutta, in which, after enumerating the delays and obstructions, which have occurred in the transmission of the mails between that city and Europe, in consequence of the present system of Steam Communication with Europe being limited to Bombay, the request that you will urge us to close with a proposition, which has been submitted to us by Mr. T. A. Currie of London on behalf of a Joint Stock Company, for the conveyance of the mail in all seasons of the year, between Great Britain and Bombay, Ceylon, Madras and Calcutta.

We have carefully considered the arguments urged in support of the Comprehensive Scheme, and we may state, that we are not insensible to the advantages of maintaining an efficient Steam Communication with India, and our anxious endeavours have been, and are still directed to the accomplishment of this object. In a very well devised measure, by which the established means of communication might be extended, we shall be ready to afford due encouragement, but in the present state of circumstances, we are unwilling to enter into an arrangement affecting the measures in progress, regarding the communication between Surz and Bombay.

With regard to the conveyance of the mails by land from Bengal to Bombay, we regret that there should have been just cause for complaint. The Madras Press seems to travel with regularity, and the correspondence from Agra would not, of course, be accelerated by being sent by the circuitous route of Calcutta, instead of through Bombay, but the delays, which take place on the road between Calcutta and Bombay, must certainly be acknowledged to be a serious evil, and the removal of which is an object of the first importance. One great cause of delay is evidently a deficiency of Messengers, which renders it necessary to divide the mails and to forward the several portions at intervals, and, another is, the want of bridges over the torrents which cross the road.

The improvement of the means of intercourse, between these two Capitals, is well worthy of consideration, even without reference to the relations arising from the present mode of communication with Europe, and we shall be glad to be furnished with a detailed report, stating your opinion as to the measures and amount of expenditure required for the remedy of the defects alluded to. Your suggestions will receive our earnest attention, and, in the mean time, you have our authority at once to take any steps, the necessity of which may be obvious, or may appear too pressing to admit of delay.

INDIGO PLANTERS' MEETING.

JUNE 1, 1840.

Present.—J. P. McKiligin, in the chair, R. I. Bagshaw, J. W. Cragg, C. Deane, A. Inlach, J. S. B. Scott, G. Vint, and H. Woollaston.

Read a letter dated 24th ultimo, from Mr. Bingham, transmitting a copy of the proceedings of a Meeting of the Jessore Committee, held at Babuacally on the 20th, which have already been published in the newspapers.

Resolved, that the General Committee express its satisfaction at the course pursued by the Jessore Planters, and mark with its approbation the temperate, useful, and industrious spirit, which pervades the labors of the District Committee, and that it recommend the encouraging example to be followed by all other Indian Districts, that the Association may be brought into a state of beneficial activity, for until the local committees have been organized, the institution cannot be properly developed, and the usefulness of this General Committee must be circumscribed within a very narrow sphere.

Elected Mr. Woollaston a member of the General Committee, instead of Mr. Reutly, who has proceeded to England.

Mr. Bagshaw informed the Meeting, that, as he was to leave India, it became his duty to resign being a member of the Committee, and one of the provisional Trustees of the Charny Fund.

Elected Mr. Braddon a member of the Committee, and appointed him to be one of the said provisional Trustees in view of Mr. Bagshaw.

Passed a bill for May's wages to the Establishment Co's Rs 365-0.

Captain Vint observed that, on this occasion of Mr. Bagshaw's resigning in consequence of his approaching departure from India, he could not but revert to the prominent part Mr. Bagshaw took in originating the Institution, and the labors he cheerfully devoted to frame its rules and regulations, and to guide its early operations. He therefore felt much about him to propose, and, seconded by Mr. Scott, it was carried unanimously, that the Committee offer Mr. Bagshaw its thanks, and record the grateful sense it entertains of his services, and that Mr. Bagshaw be invited to dine with the Committee at the Town Hall on any early day he may appoint.

J. P. McKILIGIN, Chairman

MEETING OF THE UNIVERSAL MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

A Meeting of the Shareholders of the Universal Marine Insurance Company, was held at the office of the Secretaries, Messrs. Bagshaw and Company, yesterday afternoon. There were about eight or nine gentlemen present on the occasion.

The accounts and other financial statements were laid on the table for inspection, from which the amount of assets appeared to be rupees 274,531, from which the premium on outstanding risks, namely, Rs. 80,913, and the amount of claims for losses, namely, Rs. 90,281 being deducted, showed the total amount of funds on hand to be Rs. 103,337.

There were but two general resolutions passed on the occasion, one for passing the accounts, and the other requesting the Directors to continue their services till the next meeting.—Hark Co., June 3.

MEETING OF THE BENGAL SALT COMPANY.

A General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Bengal Salt Company, convened by a special requisition, was held at the Town Hall yesterday, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. J. W. Cragg, Esq., being called to the chair, read the requisition, from which it appeared, that the object of the present Meeting was to receive a report of the proceedings since the 30th September, to inspect all accounts, statements in detail, connected with the operations of the Company, and to consider the draft of the proposed deed of co-partnership. Having read the requisition, the Chairman called on the Provisional Secretary, W. Pinsep, Esq., to read the report of the proceedings since the 30th September.

The report of the Secretary stated, that there was nothing further of interest that could be brought to the notice of the Shareholders at the present Meeting, besides what had already been made public on the 30th September. The report, however, acquainted the Meeting, that the works were nearly completed, and that though the expectations of bringing the Gurdah works into active operations this season were not realized, owing to the wetness of the season and other impediments, yet there was every hope of commencing the manufacture early next season. The report also went on to state, that the large reservoirs had been completed to the height of nine feet out of sixteen. And they would be in a fit condition for the deposit of large quantities of strong salt-water during the following rainy season. All the sluice-gates and brims were completed, with the exception only of the outer guard bunds in order to provide against the recurrence of such injury as was suffered by the late May gale.

In addition to the above points, the report intimated to the Meeting, that in reference to the proposition of the Salt Company to the Government, there was no information received, except that it had reached the India House, and was under the consideration of the Court. In regard to the draft deeds of co-partnership, which the report stated had been drawn up by L. Clarke, Esq., it was suggested to keep the report in abeyance till the reply of the Home Government was known.

MEETING OF THE CALCUTTA SCHOOL BOOK SOCIETY.

A General Meeting of the Calcutta School Book Society, was held at the Town Hall, on last Saturday morning. There was a large and respectable attendance on the occasion, and among others were present Sir Edward Ryan, the Hon'ble W. W. Bird, D. Elliott, C. H. Cameron, and J. G. Gordon, Esqrs. Sir Edward Ryan presided and opened the business of the morning by reading the report of the Secretary detailing the operations of the Society since the last meeting. We were not present in time to hear the report.

After the reading of the report D. Elliott, Esq., moved for the adoption and publication of it for the information of the subscribers and the public.

The resolution was seconded by the Rev. Mr. S. Wenger, and carried unanimously.

Sir Edward Ryan then rose to propose,

That this Meeting desire to express their unfeigned sorrow for the loss they have sustained in the death of their financial Secretary, the Rev. W. H. Pearce, to whose varied talents and unwearied efforts the Society was indebted for much of its success.

In bringing the resolution before the meeting, the Honorable President took the opportunity of delivering himself of a few very apt and affecting observations, to the memory of the late valuable Secretary of the Society. Sir Edward remarked, that he thought there were perhaps only one or two present besides himself, on whom the duty of paying a tribute to the memory of one whose labours have been so valuable and effectual in regard to this Society, could properly devolve. During the best portion of his sojourn in this place, Sir Edward has been connected with the School Book Society, and through the entire period has he had opportunities of marking the extent and intrinsic utility of the exertions of Mr. Pearce on behalf of the Society. The honorable speaker then went on to mention the different capacities in which the late Rev. Pearce was connected with the Society. The Society dates its existence in 1817, and it was about this time that Mr. Pearce arrived in India, and immediately after connected himself with the interests of the Society. The year following Mr. Pearce was employed in Superintending the printing of its works, and in 1819, he engaged himself in preparing for the Press, the first publication by the Society—it was a work in geography—all the time from the very beginning of his connection discharging every work of the Society, with the utmost disinterestedness and fidelity. In consequence of the illness of the Secretary, Mr. Pearce afterwards carried on the general management of the Institution as its sole Secretary, and notwithstanding the multifarious and onerous duties that then devolved on him, he discharged them all alike, to the satisfaction of the members of the Society and the success of the Society itself. In 1832, Mr. Pearce undertook the office of Cash Secretary of the Institution, in which capacity he continued to labour for the Society with his wonted ardour, up to the period of his death. During the whole of this long period, continued the President, Mr. Pearce never ceased to bring into action his varied talents for the benefit and advancement of the interests of the Institution, nor could there be found a more zealous, active and firm friend to this Society, and to education, on enlarged and liberal principles. In regard to the School Book Society, Mr. Pearce, during a period of twenty three years, never failed to oppose the slightest infringement of its rules, while he strictly adhered to them himself, and had thus been the means by his uncompromising firmness and judgment, to secure to the society the valuable co-operation of so many native friends, who otherwise might have scorned to do this. And this he achieved in various ways, by soothing irritation and animosity, maintaining his own principles without raising angry feelings by the opposition. He was one of the most extraordinary men ever to be met with. He, the honorable speaker, never met one like him, and though he was not so competent as others to speak of Mr. Pearce's missionary and religious qualities, his disinterestedness, his zeal, and his meekness, he had felt it incumbent on him to make the few preceding remarks in regard to Mr. Pearce's connection with the society, as an humble tribute to his exalted character and valuable worth.

The Hon'ble W. W. Bird seconded the resolution and also made a few remarks. He begged to express the deep and sincere sense of sorrow he felt at the loss of such a person as the late Revd. Pearce, the extent and value of whose services rendered to this society deserve the warmest gratitude of all its friends. Mr. Pearce's death will not only be felt as a loss to this society, but a loss to the world at large. The purity of his temper, the benevolence of his disposition, the liberality of his character, the variety of his talents, and the fidelity with which he discharged his several duties, as author and translator of books, director of the press, secretary of this society, and adviser of every other society, rendered him esteemed and beloved, as the friend and benefactor of his fellow creatures. Nor was Mr. Pearce less universally respected and regarded as a missionary, as was pathetically evidenced by the scene which took place around his grave. There were collected men of all sects and creeds, the Hindoo, the Mussulman, the European—all to pay the last tribute of respect and affection to departed worth. It was a subject of regret that there was not time for this society to have gone in a body to the funeral of so great, so good a man.

C. H. Cameron Esq. here rose to propose the third resolution which was—

"That the thanks of this meeting be presented to the friends of the Institution, both European and native, that the following gentlemen be added to the Committee—D. Elliot, Esq. Rev. J. Wenger, Rajah Narendra Krishna Bahadur and Baboo Avinashchander Gangoolie, and that Mr. Sykes be cash Secretary and the Union Bank Treasurers."

Mr. Cameron took an opportunity of adverting to the opinion prevailing in some quarters, that the Committee of Public Instruction feel a distaste for the labours of this Society in the vernacular, in regard to which he begged to observe that it was not the fact. The Committee of Public Instruction design that all holding employment under the Government should be conversant with the English language, though by this the Committee do not intend to convey the knowledge of Europe to the people en masse through the medium of any language but the vernacular.

Raja Kair Krishna Bahadur seconded the resolution which was then carried.

G. J. Gordon, Esq. then moved, and Baboo Dwarkanath Tagore seconded.

"That the thanks of the Society are due to the Rev. W. Yates, for the able report now adopted, and for his attention to the concerns of the Society."

Rev. W. Yates, here rose to say, that he felt thankful to the meeting for the resolution they had just passed, and regretted that he was not more deserving of a vote of thanks, which in the present instance he ascribed more to their candour and liberality than any merit of his own.

Mr. Rajah Radhakanth Deb then moved.

"That the best thanks of this meeting be presented to the Honorable the President for his constant and zealous efforts to promote the welfare of the Society, and for his kindness in presiding on this occasion."

This resolution was seconded by the Rev. Yates, who said, that there are some present, who had assisted the Society from the commencement. Mr. Gordon, for example, was one of them, and had assisted to the first work in English printed at the Society's Press—which was an edition of Joyce's Scientific Dialogue. From that to the present period the interests of this Society have been much improved, and its objects very far advanced, a result ascribable to those who have thus exerted themselves in its favor.

But whatever praise may be due to others, more is due to the President. Considering the extent, variety and importance of the objects which demand his attention, it is astonishing not that the number of these objects is so great, but that he devotes so much of his attention to all of them. He is President, among others, of the Asiatic Society, Agricultural and Horticultural Society as well as the School Book Society, besides the public functions and private business which require his time and attention and yet it would appear, from the great interest he evinces and attention he devotes to this society, that this was the only object of his care. The Reverend Speaker then, detailing the manner in which Sir Edward has rendered the business of the Society with efficiency, concluded by remarking, that three great advantages had resulted from it to the society, viz: dissensions had been prevented—harmony and unanimity secured—and the business generally expedited—and that, therefore, to the President was due the best thanks of the Society.

Sir Edward Ryan then got up, and after returning his best and most sincere thanks to the meeting, for the resolution they had passed, observed, that the Secretary had given him credit for more than he had actually done and over rated and exaggerated the society of service he might have rendered to the Society. In Societies like the School Book Society, but little is expected from the President, and consequently to him but little praise is due. If by efficient management success and prosperity be attained, the credit is entirely due to the Secretary. His efforts and exertions, above that of the President, are calculated to conduce to the welfare of the Society and to render it prosperous and flourishing. The Honorable President then went on to observe, generally, on gratuitous and honorary labours in connection with charitable and educational institutions. He said that apart from his official duties and private occupations, he had spent thirteen years in being thus publicly engaged. And though he has not been able to do justice to any one of these engagements, yet rather than do nothing he has done a little. In a city like Calcutta no one is excepted from official duties, so one can be idle, but if the busy altogether withheld their assistance, charity would cease to exercise its beneficial influence and all benevolent institutions, of which there are so many in this city, would have no existence. The speaker then went on to say that a great portion of the good he has been able to perform, must be attributed to the peculiar position in society which he holds. He has been able to allay animosities—often down party feelings and repugnance, and soothe anger—objects which he could hardly have been able to achieve in another situation. He also remarked that his stay in this country will not be long, yet so long as he does remain, he will not cease to labour in the way he has hitherto done. He, here, especially alluded to the Committee of Public Instruction, in reference to which he said that he had devoted much of his time to it, but the more he sees of its usefulness the less does he regret the labour he has devoted to it.

The Honorable President concluded by observing, that the main object before the Meeting was to consider the future operations of the Society, which he hoped would be in a short time settled by salutary arrangements.

The Honorable President's short address was received with loud cheers by the Meeting, who then separated. —Huck June 16.

STEEPLE CHASE.

The "Steeple Chasers" met yesterday evening, according to appointment, at Goripore, and notwithstanding the extremely unfavourable state of the ground, seven horses came up to the scratch. The Cape horse RASPIN, rode by Mr. FRITH, led the way at starting at a killing pace, but the heavy ground knocked him up, and (when 100 yards ahead) he fell in a ditch, never to rise again! He was said to have been left for dead, — a unanimous fate! The Steeple chase was won by Mr. LITTLE's country-bred Tip top, rode in gallant style by his owner. The second horse was Lollypop, rode by Mr. WINGFIELD, but he came in longo post intervallo. The order of march at the Winning post stood thus:—

1. Tip top, Mr. Little.
2. Lollypop, Mr. Wingfield.
3. Bucky, Mr. Ferguson.
4. Timkins, Mr. Frith.
5. Belshazzar, Mr. Newcomen.
6. Marksman, Mr. Ryan.

There were one or two tazers in the shape of rasping ditches, yet notwithstanding the awful state of the ground there were no serious falls. We believe indeed no one escaped without a tumble or two, as their mud-stained coats, faces, and pantaloons bore witness, but as there was nothing harder than mud to fall against, fortunately there were no necks broken. The concourse of spectators was not very large, and but few of the fair sex enlightened the scene with their presence. We hear the ladies present were much disappointed that no bones were broken, and a bright-eyed Miss was heard to declare that she certainly would not have driven out nine miles if she had not been informed that three people would be infallibly killed and three more missing.—Herk. June 10.

(From a Correspondent.)

The long looked for and anxiously expected Steeple Chase came off on Tuesday evening at Goripore, in the presence of a pretty large concourse of spectators, over ground that one would have supposed was in some places heavy enough to have pumped the wind out of the best horse in the field in a gallop of half a mile, and was won by that gallant little horse "Tip Top," ridden by his sporting owner Mr. Little, who, in our humble opinion, evinced great coolness and judgment in his riding throughout the race. "Lollypop," ridden by Mr. Wingfield, took the second place, but a long way behind the little country bred, and was followed up by Mr. Ferguson on "Bucky," Mr. Frith on "Timkins," and Mr. Newcomen on "Belshazzar." "Marksman," we presume, was found to be not in sufficient condition to go the pace with the above chipping nags, as it was said, that his rider soon joined the throng of spectators when he found the chances of his winning the race were so small, and poor "Rasping" fell into an infernal rasping blind ditch in the middle of some plantation gardens, in which, it is said, he was killed. At starting Belshazzar led over the first jump, but balked his rider at the second, a large ditch with a bank on the opposite side, and all the other nags followed his example with the exception of Tip top, who managed some how or other to slip into the ditch. His rider, however, soon got him out of it, and came second over the next jump, a drop leap out of a garden, which was beautifully taken just before him by Rasping, who now thought proper to put his best leg foremost, and led at racing pace over the next few jumps, although the ground there was fearfully heavy, and was getting farther and farther from the rest of the field at every stride. At this time, the only horses near him were Tip top and Lollypop, and he got into the plantation garden some 200 yards ahead of them; here, however, his career was destined to be very summarily put a stop to, as it was in these gardens he got the fall into the blind ditch which killed him. Tip top next charged this nasty jump and came against the opposite bank with his chest, but managed to scramble out on the right side without touching the bottom of the ditch. Timkins was the next at it, but he also missed his mark and fell back into it. All the other nags, we believe, also, got into it somehow or other, and judging from the state in which his leathers and boots were, it was supposed that the rider of Belshazzar must have found the bottom of the ditch rather slushy. Tip top's having got out on the right side of this sneezer, gave him a long start, and he was about 300 yards across the plain before a single other horse got out of the gardens. His rider was taking it very easy, towards the bed of the nullah, when on turning round, he saw old Timkins overhauling him at a tremendous pace, and then he thought, it would be as well to put on the steam again.

Out of the nullah there was a tremendous perpendicular bank of about 6 or 7 feet, a regular scramble up into another line of garden, which the little nag got over beautifully, after this came the slippery carriages of the whole line, and which it was not until the whole field, and certainly it was a splendid jump and wide ditch, or rather fence, with a bank on each side, and about three feet high, and a name of 14 or 15 feet to clear it, as the horse was blown horse. Mr. Little seemed determined to go to it with a will, as he was seen to give his legs two or three dips with the spurs while charging it, and right well did this game little horse answer to the saddle as he cleared the jump most beautifully, and came in as a winner, the rest of the distance being comparatively fair sailing after such a bolshero at the ditch. Amika, who was the nearest to him at the nullah, baulked his rider, at the scramble up, going to some awkward gait crossing his path as he was charging it. This gave time for Bright, Balkasser and Lollypop, to come up with him, and after a little covering they all managed to get up it, and then charged the ditch, but Lollypop was the only nag besides Tip-Top, that succeeded in clearing it, the other three all coming thump against the opposite bank and giving their riders heavy falls, Lollypop, however, without causing any damage, we believe, further than giving them a few bruises. — Hurkara, June 11.

MUSEUM.

1. A bag of Carolina Paddy, recently imported—Presented by Mr. Hodgkinson.

Mr. Hodgkinson is desirous of introducing this superior kind of paddy Bengal, as it realizes from 15 to 20 shillings the cwt. more than the finest Bengal sort, the difference in the price alone being triple the prime cost of the latter.

Of Carolina rice the consumption at home is limited in consequence of the duty of 15 shillings being nearly tantamount to a prohibition, whereas if a similar description could be exported from this country it would be admissible at a duty of one shilling per cwt.

The introduction moreover, of a superior quality of grain into India, and its extended cultivation is of vital importance to the landed interests, who if success attend the experiment would reap an immediate and permanent benefit. The subject, Mr. Hodgkinson considers, is neither unworthy of the notice of government nor of the enlightened portion of the mercantile community. Mr. Hodgkinson suggests that the society should commission a supply from Europe.

Mr. Spry mentioned that as this was the season of the year for the sowing of rice in Bengal and Orissa he had lost no time in distributing portions of the paddy in various directions.

2. A specimen of the celebrated Chauderie cotton in the pod, as well as a specimen of the manufactured cloth, known as Mahmoodi Muslin.—Presented by Dr. Irvine, Residency Surgeon at Gwalior.

Dr. Irvine in his interesting communication states that the Chauderie cotton is sown broad cast in June after the field is well prepared by ploughing and harrowing. When at a moderate height the young plants are carefully hoed, and during the period of growth hoeing is repeated seven times. Should the periodical rains be scanty in September and October artificial irrigation is employed. Four seedlings are sown in each bush. The result in the end is that the plants cover some fields six times the area of the seed sown. The collection of the cotton is commenced when it is about three times the length of the seedling, and is made for common use. The Government in 1855, ordered the bazar, the Chauderie, to be gathered and sent to the Government storehouse, and weave the cloth. The cloth made is an 84 muslin per bag, long with the seed. The cotton is never separated by the chauri, but is sent to the bazar by the hands of women and men. The cloth is, however, the cotton is separated by a small sort of carding. The clean cotton is carefully pressed in small conical cavities of paper and carefully packed by the women on rude, but very fine spinning wheels. The fine muslin is then woven by Mahomedan weavers called Julahas, from Mahmood Julaha, who introduced the manufacture into India. One skilled weaver will make a piece of 11 or 12 yards in 14 months. The finest pieces weigh only 27 or 28 Chauderie rupees and each piece averages in value 47 Chauderie rupees in the weaver's hands. The cloth is monopolized by the Mahomedan Government. The finest pieces cost to buy 80, 90 or 100 Chauderie rupees. The piece whence the sample sent to the society was taken is valued at 90 rupees. The finest cotton is said to be brought from the Saugor District. In Geological features, Dr. Irvine describes the district as partaking of secondary and variegated sandstone—fossil remains are found and between many slabs perfectly carbonized water plants are constantly met with.

3. Sampler of cotton from a plant much prized by the ryots and of a perennial growth—Presented by Mr. Sconce, Collector at Chitragong.

Mr. Sconce mentions that he learnt some time back that it was not uncommon for ryots, in different parts of the district to have a few cotton bushes growing about their houses for home consumption, and that these bushes lasted for years and became almost trees. The plant whence the cotton now sent was procured is more than eight or nine inches in diameter and high in proportion. As regards this cotton Mr. Sconce states that the natives have an idea the seed came originally from the West.

This is a good cotton—well picked and clean, but the staple is short.

4. Pieces of bamboo which had been submitted to the process recommended by Mr. Kyan, for preserving wood from dry rot, white ants, &c.—Presented by Dr. Drummond, Surgeon of the Governor-General.

These pieces of bamboos are as compact and sound as when first cut. In his note to the secretary Dr. Drummond mentions that some three years ago or upwards the pieces of bamboo now presented were treated after Kyan's plan, and have ever since been exposed to the influence of the sun as a garden fence. That another part of the fence which was made of bamboo and not so prepared, has had to be renewed over and over again, owing to its rapid decay and destruction by white ants. The proportion of oxymercurate of mercury used by Dr. Drummond, as well as he recollects, was a pound to fifteen gallons of water, and the wood steeped in the solution for 10 or 12 days. As a caution Dr. Drummond begs to mention that what is sold in the bazars as corrosive sublimate and known by the name of rusea-poor is not the oxymercurate of mercury, but a preparation more nearly allied to calomel than to corrosive sublimate, and from using which much disappointment has in consequence been occasioned. Another great advantage attending the use of the solution of corrosive sublimate, is that by sponging the matings of rooms in situations likely to be infested by white ants, it will be found to be a complete preservative against their ravages.

Dr. Spry in bearing testimony to the great importance of the circumstance here brought to the notice of the Society by Dr. Drummond, described the simple plan adopted by Mr. Kyan in preparing the timbers for the navy and house building. Common tanks about the length of the timbers to be used are made, and into them a given number of gallons of the solution of corrosive sublimate are thrown. The timber is then thrown in and kept under water, for twelve days by means of weights. During this time a decomposition, as explained by Dr. Burkbeck in a recent lecture in London, takes place, whereby a violent ebullition occurs in consequence of the bichloride of mercury acting on the albumen of the wood and forming a protochloride, disengaging one proportion of chlorine gas. The saving which it is calculated the British Government would have effected during the last war, had Kyan's method been known, amounts to £8,00,000 per annum.

6. A small bag of cotton and a box of seeds, the produce of the plants from seed brought from Egypt.—Presented by Lieut.-col. Frith, of the Artillery.

Some of the plants have reached a height of 8 or 9 feet, and are producing abundantly. The cotton is of a very superior quality.

6. A small sample of cotton grown at Parmendeah, also two small bottles of oil drawn from the sun flower seed, grown in a garden there, and a pumpkin measuring 42 inches in length.—Presented by Mr. Quantin.
The cotton and oil are both good.

7. A sample of refined sugar made into balls.—Presented by Edward Sterling, Esq., Collector of Burdwan.

The sugar forwarded by Mr. Sterling was prepared at a large commercial depot adjoining the town of Burdwan. In quality and appearance it is equal, in Mr. Sterling's opinion, to English loaf sugar. It costs from ten to twelve rupees a maund, and might be produced in large quantities were due encouragement held out and the cost of carriage to the bank of the Hongly lessened by means of a canal. Several valuable sugar factories might be erected in the district of Burdwan with immediate prospect of a profitable result, and the Mauritius sugar cane and other varieties of fine canes might be cultivated to any extent. Mr. Sterling further, adds that the soil is favorable in most parts, and the people have long been used to the sugar-cane cultivation. The introduction of sugar mills on improved principles, at convenient spots, would greatly tend to give a stimulus to the cultivation.

8. Several samples of sun-dried plantains, melons from Afghanistan seed grown in Mr. Smith's garden at Seebpore, a new variety of plum, two seedling pomegranates from Col. Stacy's seed, and two China peaches.—Presented by Mr. R. W. Chew, of Calcutta.

The plantains have been prepared by Mr. Chew since the notice taken of this fruit at the last meeting of the society, and in nearly all respects they appear to equal those forwarded from Ceylon. The melons, one particularly, were exceedingly good and pronounced by a gentleman who has been at Cabul, to be quite equal to the fruit of Afghanistan.

9. Two bunches of grapes, obtained from vines at Kishnagar.—Presented by Dr. Fuller, Civil Surgeon at Kishnagar.

Dr. Fuller sends these specimens in order to direct attention to the fact that grapes may be successfully cultivated at Kishnagar.

10. A small basket of 25 superior potatoes just received from Hobari Town.—Presented by D. W. Speedy, Esq.

11. A superb orchideous plant from the country south of Midnapore.—Presented by Captain Kintoe.

TRANSFER OF THE SUM OF 10,000 RUPEES FROM THE SOCIETY'S FUNDS FOR THE PURPOSES OF A NEW BUILDING.

The Hon'ble the President begged to claim precedence of the notice of motion which stood for discussion in order to call the attention of the meeting to the nature of the arrangement which had been made relative to the contemplated new building. The reply of the Right Hon'ble the Governor of Bengal had been received, and although the site in the S. E. corner of Tank Square, asked for had not been granted, for reasons which were assigned by his Lordship, yet the piece of ground on which the decayed building now used as a Sailor's home stands, was placed at the disposal of the Joint Institutions, on whose behalf the application had been made. The latter from the Right Hon'ble the Governor conceding the grant was in the following terms:

TO LONGUEVILLE CHAMBI, Esq.

Secretary to the Joint Committee of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, the Calcutta Public Library, the Subscribers to the Metcalfe Testimonial, and the Subscribers to the Metcalfe Library Building Fund, General Dept.

Sir,—I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 14th February, soliciting on the part of the above mentioned societies the grant of a piece of ground for the erection thereon of a suitable building for the use of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, and for the Calcutta Public Library, a Bust of Sir Charles Metcalfe to be placed in a conspicuous part of the edifice, towards the expenses of which the subscribers to the Metcalfe Testimonial and Metcalfe Library Building Fund are to contribute largely.

The Right Hon'ble the Governor is unable to comply with the application in your letter for a portion of the ground at the South East corner of the enclosure of Tank Square, as he is of opinion that those spaces of the town which are appropriated to light and to ventilation, ought not to be given up for purposes of building, but his Lordship is willing to make over to the Official Trustees and their successors, of the societies represented by your committee, the piece of ground at the South West corner of Hare-street, upon which there is at present standing a building rapidly falling into decay, which has been temporarily appropriated to the "Sailor's Home."

The only conditions which the Government desire to make in regard to this ground are as follow:

That the Edifice to be erected shall be ornamental and substantial, and that on failure, of its being maintained in repair, the ground shall revert to the Government or at least that the building shall not without the consent of the Government be alienable to other purpose than those set forth in the present correspondence. The society of the "Sailors' Home" has been requested to vacate the building so occupied so as to allow of your committee commencing your operations early in July.

I have, &c.

(Signed) G. A. BERNARD.

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Fort William, May 27th 1840,

At a former Meeting the sum of 10,000 rupees had been voted out of the funds of the society, and what now remained to be done was to transfer the money to the Union Bank for the purposes for which it was designed. The Hon. Mr. the President said that he should therefore propose "that the sum set apart for the purposes of the contemplated building be transferred to the Union Bank, to be lodged in the name of Messrs. Parker, W. P. Grant, Longueville Clarke and Dr. Spry, who are a Finance Committee appointed" by the Social Flaxing Committee for the distribution of the Joint Funds, and to be by them applied for the purposes of the "Society's Hall," which was the designation; that the Special Flaxing Committee had resolved should be given to the structure.

This proposition was duly seconded by Dr. Wallich, put, and carried unanimously.

In connection with this subject, the President said there was another circumstance which he wished to mention. The plan as originally designed was drafted under the supposition that the site in the Tank square might have been granted. The altered locality intimated the necessity of modifying the plan and forming fresh estimates. The estimate as now given amounted to 48,000, to meet which the joint subscriptions did not exceed 43,000; and he should, therefore, recommend that assistance should be asked by way of subscription from the Members, all of whom, whether residing in the interior or in town, he felt assured would feel equally interested in seeing a building erected for the purposes of the Society. The proposition met with approbation, and on passing a paper round the table the sum of 3,714 rupees was subscribed for at once.

DISPOSAL OF MOTION.

The motion of which notice was given at last Meeting by Dr. Wallich, viz. "that the society's gold medal be presented to—Mortis, Esq., for his success in preparing in Ceylon the very interesting sample of sun-dried plaintains now before the society, an article which may become of great benefit to this country, generally," next underwent discussion, and on being put to the vote was negatived.

REPORT OF THE FLAX COMMITTEE ON THE CULTURE OF FLAX IN INDIA.

The Secretary next submitted the Report which the Flax Committee had made on the papers and documents referred to it, by the Society of the last Meeting.

The Committee states, that on the termination of the period of the several documents laid before it, the members proceeded to record the evidence of Mr. Guillaume Duneef, Belgian Farmer, who has been sent to India by the Indian Flax Company. Mr. Duneef states that he arrived in Calcutta about 24 months since on board the ship Véron. That he has been engaged the greater part of his life as a cultivator of Flax in Belgium. That since his residence in India he has been examining into the condition of the flax culture and the nature of the soils in Bengal, and that from the result of his investigations, as far as they have gone, he is convinced that the Province of Bengal can furnish an article that will in every respect compete with the Belgian Flax;—that he has arrived at this conclusion from his own personal experiments, and in testimony exhibits to the Committee various specimens to prove the correctness of his assertion. He states that from his observation he assumes that the bogs of Bengal, which is about a third of an acre, can be made to furnish 100 lbs. of seed from European or foreign seed; that he thinks it not unlikely that from classes of country soil, an additional quantity, (about 12 per cent.) may be cultivated on. That he has observed that in this part of India (Bengal Province) the cultivation by natives is much deteriorated, by growing along with the flax seed the mustard seed plant; that this is very detrimental to the successful culture of the flax seed plant for fibre, and that every Bengal acre of ground should have from 32 to 35 lbs. of imported seed or 4 to 4 1/2 lbs. of country seed sown. Mr. Duneef dwells much on the importance of the ground for the reception of seed being very carefully prepared and made as smooth as possible, and that the seed should be sown so as to be covered by about half an inch of soil. By so doing the plant grows of an equal height and the roots are not too long.

Mr. Duneef then proceeded to illustrate his observations by exhibiting the various specimens of Flax which were before him. He pointed out the peculiarities of each and entered into an explanation of the weakness of some and the strength of others. These specimens, he remarked, clearly showed, in his opinion, in the most striking manner, the difference to be expected from a careful manipulation of the stalk.

The specimens of Country Flax submitted were valued by Mr. Duneef as follows:

Sample No. 1.—Prepared from imported seed by Mr. Hodgkinson, value £47 per ton, and if only a little better dressed would be worth £53.

Ditto No. 2.—Ditto from ditto by Mr. Hodgkinson, value £44, and if better dressed and coloured £60.

Ditto No. 3.—Ditto by Mr. Hodgkinson from country seed (heckled), value £66.

The tow from the same is worth £18, and another sample from the same is worth £14. The proportion of tow to the flax is upwards of half or about 3-5ths.

Ditto No. 4.—From Monghyr, country cultivation and seed, prepared by an European, value doubtful.

Ditto No. 5.—Prepared by Belgians from fairly cultivated plant of native seed mixed with mustard seed value £56.

Ditto No. 5 1/2.—A smaller specimen of the above, prepared in fresh water.

Ditto No. 6.—Prepared by Belgians from fair cultivated plant of native seed mixed much with mustard seed, second quality, £44.

Ditto No. 7.—These samples of heckled flax from country seed grown at Bowring, and prepared by the Belgians, value £60, yielded very little tow.

REPORT.

The committee having duly considered the testimony of Mr. Duneef, together with the individual experience of its own Members, are of an unanimous opinion,—

1st.—That the interchange of seed, from one distant province of India to another, should be carefully attended to, and also its importation from Europe and the

* No 5 and 6 were prepared in stagnant water, after other flax (No. 5 1/2) had been steeped.

United States constantly encouraged, as it appears clear to the Committee that the seed, if not changed, fails to produce a good fibre.

2nd.—That the culture and preparation of Flax in India, so as to be able to compete with the Flax of Belgium or Russia, can only be effected by practical European growers instructing other cultivators in the art, and further, that an entire change in the mode of cultivation as well as in the preparation of the Plant is necessary to produce the article in a proper state.

3rd.—That the Committee having at present no data on which they can form an estimate as to the quantity of flax which a berrah will produce, and therefore can form no opinion as to the profit which would result from the cultivation,

Four hundred pounds of good clean flax and 800 bushels of seed from an acre, is assumed a medium crop on favorable soils in the United States. In Great Britain sometimes eight hundred pounds per acre is obtained. If, therefore, a Bengal berrah will yield from 1½ to 2 maunds of flax, the produce will be equal to that of other countries, and this from a new cranium introduced by Mr. Laxburn of his own experience, in Shahabad, appears to be fully probable.

Read again the following paragraph of the Flax Company's Statement—

Should the experiments at present going on, in the preparation of the fibre from the plants, equal expectations reasonably formed of it as to strength, we could by having all the plants brought to Calcutta for preparation, establish a school for teaching the method of preparation to natives, and thus supply the country with means of successfully making flax, a staple production in a short time; an offer has been made by Bahadur Dwarikanauth Tagore of a House and Premises at Manicktollah with tanks and lands appertaining thereto, amounting to about 60 berrahs, free of rent for the purpose.

The Committee feels the liberal and very handsome proposition made by their Member, Dwarikanauth Tagore, Esq., to be deserving of the most favorable consideration, for it is impossible, in the estimation of the Committee, to calculate the extent of benefit which may accrue to the commerce of the country by a successful result accruing to an improved flax culture. The Committee, therefore, desires to call the attention of the Society to this offer, with an unanimous recommendation that it be accepted, and that the Society shall co-operate in the direction of the establishment, so that the amplest opportunity for instruction and experiment be afforded.

Re read extracts of the letter addressed by the Trustees of the Flax Company to the Secretary of the Government of India, regarding the nature of the assistance and encouragement for which application is made, viz. "That a liberal premium (say 10,000 rupees) in some degree proportioned to the risk which they have incurred and intend to incur, in the furtherance of the interesting object in which they have engaged, be offered to them for the first supply of merchantable flax to be obtained from, and the produce of five English acres of land, prepared by the Belgians, or others under their instructions, and suited for consumption in Europe. The Trustees engaging, in the event of receiving the premium for the produce of the crop now in course of cultivation, to send out a further supply of European Seed, and to provide other requisite means for prosecuting the experiment and further raising its success, in the course of the next year, and also undertaking to furnish the Government, the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Calcutta, or such other parties as you may nominate, with a history and full detail of the progress of the experiment and of its actual cost."

The Committee considers, with reference to the assistance here called for by the Flax Company, that under certain modifications the aid asked should be granted. Its alterations which the Committee suggests are, that a premium should be given on ten tons of good merchantable flax bage prepared that shall yield a fair profit in the English market, after deducting all expenses, so as to compete successfully with the produce of other countries, and that the Committee recommends the Society to back the request of the Flax Company for a grant or premium of 10,000 rupees on these terms.

With reference to the requests in the letter of Mr. Furker and other Members, calling for information on the subject of the Flax Culture in India, the Committee considers that no sufficient practical knowledge of the culture of the flax plant for its fibre is possessed by it, and therefore would prefer waiting the result of experiments before recommending this issue of any brochure on the subject,—referring in the meantime to the excellent pamphlet, which is already before the public from the Flax Company, in their present Proceedings as well as what is contained in the volumes of the Society's Transactions and other works.

(Signed) W. F. FERGUSON, Chairman

The Report having been read, and discussed, the following resolution was moved by Mr. Ferguson, seconded by Mr. Holikar, and carried unanimously.

The Flax Company having submitted to the Society statements and particulars of their proceedings and copies of their correspondence with the Court of Directors and the Supreme Government, on the subject of a premium for the special production of flax in this country. Resolved that the Society support the request that Government should give a premium on the terms proposed by the Committee to whom the subject was referred.

REPORT ON SAMPLES OF ASSAM TEA PRESENTED TO THE SOCIETY

The Committee having met agreeable to requisition proceeded to examine the qualities of six lots of tea presented to the Society by the Government of India, and also the qualities of four parcels forwarded to the Committee by the Assam Tea Company, on the whole of these the Committee beg to report as follows.

Blacks.—No. 1. Souchong, Dinjai Tract, 4th Crop 1839. Black Leaf much darker than the Chinese Tea, good smell but burnt; Liquor good colour, taste strong and little burnt, rather oily on the surface; according to the selling price in London in April last, we consider this quality worth about 2-5 or 2-6 per lb. in bond in April last.

Ditto.—No. 2. Tonchi Pekoe, Chabwa Tract, Crop 1839. The appearance similar to the Orange Pekoe, blackish leaf—possessing very little of the flavor of Pekoe, in smell and rather burnt. Liquor good colour; taste strong and little burnt; rather oily as in the preceding quality; we should rate the value about 2d per lb. lower than the No. 1.

Ditto.—No. 3. Chatin, Tingrai Tract, Crop 1839. Large leaf—smell coarse and little burnt. Liquor good colour, taste very strong, rather burnt, and oily, we should rate the value similar to good Bohea say 2-1 per lb.

* See 'The complete Farmer, and Rural Economist'

Ditto — No 4 Assam Company Bengal Branch Pouchong. The best specimen of Black Tea; darkish leaf, good smell rather burnt. Liquor good colour, taste good, strong and little burnt. The leaf is darker than this quality made in China, value say about 2-6 to 2-7

These Teas appear from their leaf, taste and strength, to be all good and useful Teas. The fault exists in the preparation, the taste and flavour of all being rather burnt, and the qualities No. 1, 2 and 4 not possessing the fine Aroma which attaches to the Chinese qualities, and the oily substance not being taken from the leaf. We think they would be considered in England as very good useful Teas by reason of their possessing much strength and roughness of flavour. No 3 possesses very good qualities in these respects. On the whole we consider them as successful samples, and the improvement of the manufacturing well worth attention.

Greens. — No. 5. Having Yunn, Gholgan Tract 1839. In appearance similar to the inferior qualities procured in China, the smell not so fresh and the leaf not possessing that bloomy look. Liquor darkish coloured, taste bitterish but strong. This quality we think may be rated about 2-6 per lb. by last April prices.

No. 6 — Young Hyson, Tingral Tract. Rather inferior in all respects to the preceding lot—rated about 2-4 per lb.

No. 7 — Hyson Skin, Kulong Tract 1-30. A good specimen of the quality, and would be considered a very useful Tea in England, may be rated at 2-4-5 per lb.

No. 8 — Ditto Assam Company Bengal Branch Green powder. Appearance similar to the Chinese qualities but not so bright or fresh in smell, it is tolerably well made. Liquor darkish, not the fine lemon colour which it ought to be, taste tolerably clean and less bitter than 5 and 6; may be rated at about 3-3 per lb.

No. 9 — Ditto Ditto Imperial Gunpowder. The Remarks above apply to this quality rated about 3-6 per lb.

No 10 — Hyson, inferior in appearance, colour and make, may be rated about 2-6 per lb.

The whole of these Green Teas produce a liquor of a brownish red tinge which may arise from some fault in the preparation. They are sound strong Teas, particularly Nos. 8, 9 and 10, and capable of improvement. We think they would be readily marketable in London at about the prices named, which are taken, as in the case of the Black Teas, from those prevailing on the 4th April last.

FLOURISHING STATE OF ARRACAN.

The next communication submitted to the Society was a statement transferred by the Government of India to the Society on the present condition of the Agricultural Export of the Province. Captain Bogle, the Commissioner of Arracan, writes that the return includes only square rigged vessels trading from beyond seas, and not the numerous Burmese and Native Boats, &c. which yearly export a large quantity of grain from Akyab. The Statement Captain Bogle considers must be received as a most satisfactory indication of the increased prosperity of Arracan, and the importance of its grain trade, which, if he be rightly informed, Captain Bogle states must be found to exceed that of the port of Calcutta as far as Paddy and Rice are concerned. To this happy result Captain Bogle states the Government is indebted to the excellent management of the local assistants.

ON HEMP CULTURE ON THE HIMALAYS.

The Secretary next brought forward a letter which he had received from the Secretary to Government in the General Department in continuation of the communication made to the Society on the 29th January last. The present letter gives cover to a dispatch from the Officiating Secretary to the Government of the North Western Provinces on the subject of the cultivation and manufacture of Hemp, &c. as practised in the Hills. The account is from the pen of Major Swetenham of the Engineers.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT

SIR, — With reference to your Circular No. 819, dated 29th February 1840, I have the pleasure to send you a memorandum, I have drawn up on the cultivation of Hemp, should you think that it contains any useful hints, you can if you please show it to the Lieutenant-Governor. I was upwards of 7 years in Kumana, and went abroad a good deal into the interior of the Hills, and I turned my attention to the use made by the Hill people, of vegetable substances. The Rhong or Hemp Plant, the lofty Nettle and the Creeper (Maloo) I particularly noticed. I used to make all my ropes from the Maloo for the Rope Suspension Bridges, before the lion ones were substituted, and found it exceedingly strong and lasting, far better than Europe Ropes set out of the Magazines.

I have the honor to be, &c.

(Sd) E. SWETENHAM, Major Engineers

Meerut, the 30th April, 1840.

Memorandum on the cultivation and manufacture of Hemp,
&c. &c. as practised in the Hills.

Care is taken to procure the proper species of hemp. There are two kinds—one that throws out a number of branches called by the Natives jungle Rhong—the only use to which this is turned is in making the drug called churus. It is unfit for the manufacture of hemp plant for cultivation, grows to the height of about 8 feet, and throws out no branches except near the head—the seed of this is eaten by the Hill people, and when compressed an oil is obtained which they say is slightly intoxicating.

The seed is sown in the Hills about the middle of May, and when the Plants spring up they are thinned, leaving spaces of 4 or 5 inches apart. The ground is previously prepared and kept clear of long grass when the Plant is growing up. I have observed that on the northern sides of the hills it flourishes best, and in a soil rich from the decomposition of vegetable matter. The plant ripens about the month of September or beginning of October. It is then cut down and dried in the sun, and afterwards steeped in a pond or stream for 8 days; the fibre is now stripped off from the thick end of the stock, and when put together in small parcels, is beaten a little with a piece of wood or tappee, and then made up into twine like yarns of Cotton. There is another Plant that grows in the interior of the hills from which stronger ropes even than the Hemp are said to be made. I allude to the large Nettle Plant. I have seen this growing to the height of 14 and 15 feet. the Hill people in preparing ropes from this Plant steep it for three days only and then strip off the fibre, this is done in a contrary method to the Hemp stripping, i.e. the top of the Nettle is broken off, and the fibre pulled down from the thin end. It may not be out of place to mention here, that strong ropes are made from a creeper called in the Hills Maloo. It grows in the valleys, when rope Suspension Bridges in Kumana were in use, I introduced the Maloo rope and found it much stronger than the Hemp ropes supplied from the Magazines.

MANILLA HEMP.

In connection with the foregoing subject a highly valuable series of notes, was presented by Dr. Wallich on behalf of the Right Hon'ble the Governor of Ceylon and himself. The notes contained many facts were drawn up by Jos. Higgs, Esq., Master Attendant at Trincomalee, and were on the subject of Manilla Hemp or Flax. In his letter to Dr. Wallich the Right Hon'ble the Governor writes — "I think the communication now sent you from the Master Attendant at Trincomalee, will prove very interesting to you and to all who take any pleasure in these subjects, which must ultimately tend to the improvement of India if prosecuted wisely and patiently. A specimen of the cordage from the (Manilla) Flax accompanies my letter."

Dr. Wallich states, that he is very happy to add some extracts relating to the above mentioned most important article, and to the plant yielding it at Manilla, taken from the 1st volume of Annals of Botany of König and Sims. They contain, Dr. Wallich mentions, matter of very great interest, and Dr. Wallich wishes it had been in his power to have given a translation from Father Manuel Blanco's "Flora de Filipinas." Of the article relating to the fibre which is headed "Musa de los Fiolodites entelars."

PROGRESS OF HORTICULTURE AT SECUNDRÁ.

Mr. Hamilton, the Commissioner of the Agrá Division, communicates to the Society an interesting account in original from Mr. Kaine, the Superintendent, of the progress making in Horticultural matters at the Public Garden at Secundra. While at Secundra, Mr. Hamilton mentions that the Governor General expressed himself much gratified and ordered the works to be extended, which has been done.

* This through the kindness of Mr. Piddington has been obtained. The report and extracts which are too long for insertion in his Report, will be given at length in the Monthly Pamphlet of the Society, — Secretary.

Mr. Kaine enters into a detail of the result attending the sowing of various kinds of seeds forwarded by the Society to the Secundra Garden. Mr. Kaine wishes that the Society should know that the Establishment at Secundra, is working out the objects first contemplated by its founders as an Indian Penitentiary in a most satisfactory manner. The Agricultural products last year embraced all the kinds of grain usually grown in Upper India, and at the desire of the Governor-General the Horticultural Department has been extended to the whole remaining portion of the garden.

OTAHUTE CANE CULTURE IN THE DISTRICT OF TIPPERAH

Dr. Foaker communicates the gratifying intelligence that the Otahute Cane culture is rapidly gaining favor with the natives. The supply originally sent by the Society to the Comillah Botanical Garden was sufficient to supply 1210 holes which yielded from 10 to 12 canes of from 6 to 9 inches in circumference from each hole, the average weight of a single cane being 7 lbs. In order to shew the public what kind of cane and how profitable it was, and at the same time to remove the prejudice which existed in the mind of the natives against the introduction of a new article, some of the canes were sold at 1½ anna each. Some were manufactured by Dr. Foaker into brown Muscavado, after the native fashion, with the rudest utensils. Of the best canes, the tops having previously been removed, seven gave three gallons of juice, — of the worst of them it required from ten to fourteen to yield the same quantity. Twenty-four gallons of juice gave 21 lbs. of sugar and 12 lbs. of molasses. When the planting season came round Dr. Foaker states that all those who had purchased the cane for the purpose of eating now carefully saved the tops for planting in their own ground and the demand for the garden plants has greatly exceeded the means of supply. Altogether Dr. Foaker has distributed, 25,000 plants to about 100 individuals, and he has doubled the cultivation under his own care. In two or three years more Dr. Foaker thinks the spread of the Otahute cane in the Tipperah District will be such as to go far to supercede the other kinds.

DACCA AND ASSAM: THE WOOD STRAWBERRY, SCOTCH VINE, RATTON CANE.

A letter from Mr. Dearman, Deputy Collector at Dacca, was next read. During his tour in the month of March last, through the Bckrampore pargunnah, Mr. Dearman mentions that he found the common wood Strawberry growing abundantly. The fruit was about the size of a hazel nut. The natives of the place called it chilgotah, and say it is not often to be found. Mr. Dearman says that he never met with it in the plain before, nor was it known to the Dacca residents. Last October twelve months Mr. Dearman walked from Panduah, at the foot of the Comillah Hills, to Gowhaty, and from Nuncow, one of the intermediate stations, he brought away four seedling Fir, (Scotch) two of them were planted in the Dacca public garden. One was destroyed but the other is now a very handsome plant more than three feet high, full of branches, and a stem 1½ inches in circumference. The growth of the fir has been most extraordinary—the plant being only 4 inches high when removed from its native bud. As ornamental trees Mr. Dearman states they are far more graceful to the sight than the Camassias or South American kinds so common in Bengal. Mr. Dearman has lately seen in the Rajangore Pargunnah, several fields of last season's sugar cane preserved for a ratoon crop. He was not aware that such a practice was ever adopted in India, but the people informed him that they do occasionally cut a second crop from the same roots. 1,400 canes of the Otahute sort have been distributed from the branch Society's Garden at Dacca, and 2,000 plants were ready for field planting besides two begums in the garden.

PRIZE FOR FLAX.

Mr. Preston desired to call the attention of the Meeting to the circumstance that no prize was at present offered by the Society for the best sample of Flax, and he therefore desired to give notice of the following motion for discussion at the next meeting.

“ Proposed by Mr. Preston and seconded by Mr. Piddington, that the Gold Medal of the Society be offered for the best sample of ten tons of Flax, produce of any District under the Presidency of Bengal and the North Western Provinces.

The terms and conditions to be left to the Flax Committee.”

For all the foregoing presents and communications the thanks of the Society were accorded.

THE PYROTECHNICAL EXHIBITION.

There was a great deal of loyalty and gunpowder let off on the evening of the third of June, — but whether the coronash was in honour of past events (nunc pro tunc, as the lawyers say) or in celebration of anticipated events, we know not. Expectation was on tip-toe ever since the announcement in the morning that if it rained after twelve o'clock there would be no fire-works. At day-break the odds were three to one on the rain, and no takers. At noon, the sky being cloudless and the thermometer 96°, the odds fell rapidly, and by two o'clock it was an even bet, but in about an hour the odds rose again fifty per cent. in consequence of the rise in the south-west of a smallish brown cloud, which looked with a decidedly malignant and sneering expression of countenance upon Colonel Powmy's preparations. Seven o'clock however came and brought no rain, although a few suspicious looking nebulae were seen hovering about the horizon; the gallant Colonel, however, swore by the beard of George the Fourth, that if it rained then he would let off the whole fire-works in a single explosion, and so give the Calcutta people a view of Paudemonium — before their time! At eight o'clock a few sanguine people came to the conclusion that there really would be No RAIN, but the majority were still incredulous, remembering, no doubt, the countless puces which they had seen deluged even at the eleventh hour. Who ever was present at a pic-nic party in England, where the rain did not come down in torrents? We have heard, indeed, ladies their pipes and mamas, and many were found the next morning in tanks and ditches, and some have not been heard of to this day. There was indeed one puff of bimboona and salt petre which blew for a short space right into the Verandah of Government House, and sent the gaping-spectators coughing and sneezing and tittering into the supper rooms. Perhaps the best part of the display was the external appearance of Government House itself, which was illuminated all round and on the North (and perhaps South face) from top to bottom. The dome looked grand, but the figure of Britannia carried only one solitary light. Spence was resolved not to be behind-hand in loyalty, so he illuminated the whole front of his hotel with a Lion and an Unicorn, having Victoria above, and the motto below,—

The finale of the tomasha was better than the commencement. We heard there was an artificial eclipse of the moon, but we did not see it, though the real moon we beheld shining unimpeded, and she seemed to smile upon the sparks and splutter below her. The pyrotechnic display closed with the illumination of the Monument, the ascent of a bouquet of rockets 10 000 in number, the lighting up of the mall lamp before Government House, and the apotheosis of Colonel Powney. The band then struck up the national anthem, and the multitude dispersed to their various homes, to drink iced energy-shrub ouzo and to wash their faces.—Marks, June 5.

JUNE 6, 1840.

(Before Sir H. W. Selous.)

THE MATTER OF CHARLES HARRY.

There was no opposition to the discharge of this Insolvent, but there was a debt of 1 400 rupees in his schedule, which was contracted about four years ago, and the interest of which had not been accounted with the principal. Some conversation, therefore, arose on the subject, when it was settled, that the amount of interest, namely, 3,010 rupees, should be added to the sum stated in the schedule, and the schedule amended accordingly in open Court. This having been done, the Insolvent received his discharge.

THE MATTER OF JOHN BRIGHTMAN V. A. DENBURGH.

This Insolvent was unopposed by the detaining creditors; but his discharge was objected to in consequence of a flaw in the service of notices. It appeared, that no less than six creditors had not received the notice for the stated period, namely, one month. The objection gave rise to some conversation, after which it was arranged, that fresh notices should be served.

THE MATTER OF MANUK MATCOLM MANUK.

This was the day appointed for the Insolvent to attend Court to be examined, he was not present, however, and his counsel, Mr. Leish, brought it to the notice of the Court, that in reference to the decision of the Court given on a former occasion, an appeal against it had been made to the Supreme Court. He, therefore, suggested the postponement of the matter until the decision of that Court is known in regard to the appeal alluded to.—Stands over.

THE MATTER OF HANBOVIN DAI.

Witnesses were to have been examined in the matter of this Insolvent, but they were in attendance.

THE MATTER OF R. PARNER.

Mr. Leish applied, for the final discharge of this Insolvent, to which an objection was raised, that though the consent of the creditors was obtained, yet affidavits had not been made by the creditors themselves as to the fact of their being real creditors. In answer to this objection Mr. Leish stated, that the Insolvent's swearing to his schedule before getting his discharge, was itself sufficient to establish the parties as creditors, whose consent having been obtained, the Insolvent was entitled to his final discharge.

Mr. Sandes here represented, that the moiety of the income of the Insolvent, as directed by the Court, to be paid for the benefit of his creditors, had for some months been in arrears, and that, in consequence, an attachment had been necessary to enforce this payment.

This gave rise to a little conversation, when it was agreed on all hands, to let the matter stand over till Monday.

During the morning Mr. Prinsep made a motion for an increase of commission from four to five per cent. for the Assignee, in regard to the estate of Fergusson and Co., Insolvents. This occasioned a great deal of desultory talk, after which, the papers were put in for the consideration of the Court. — Hurkaru, June 8.

JUNE 8, 1840.

IN THE MATTER OF ISAAC JACOB, ABRAHAM M'CHELLEAU, ALFRED ABBADIN, BENJAMIN ALEASH, JACOB AND BENJAMIN, CARRYING ON BUSINESS AS MERCHANTS IN CALCUTTA.

This was a special day fixed by the Court for the hearing of this case.

Mr. Prinsep was opposed to the insolvents on behalf of the Bank of Bengal and Mr. Morton was for them.

Bycanto Chatterjee, the petitioning creditor, examined by Mr. Prinsep I carry on business as a broker in indigo, rice, saltpetre, &c, in which business I have been engaged for the last eight or nine years. The extent of my transactions vary generally from thirty or fifty thousand rupees. I have done business on account of Isaac Jacob, since the year 1836, having been recommended to the insolvents by Hosent Raddoo and Oosunglar, both inhabitants of Calcutta. I am not aware that the Insolvents had any store godowns. I saw none, but they had an office establishment which stood in the room of a house which they occupied. The establishment consisted of a native writer named Madub Banerjee, and a Mohuror named Rantooch Mookerjee, neither of whom do I see in Court nor am I aware if they are in Calcutta, not having seen them for a considerable time. They remained with the Insolvents for four years and left them a month prior to the last Dargahji holidays. The principal parties with whom the Insolvents dealt, were Cornadhar Raddoo in the Brehanthur Bul Roupchand and Surroop Chaud, with whom a regular account was kept by the writers of the Insolvents, who let at the period already mentioned, but I cannot positively state if these accounts were regularly kept up to this time. The names of those who were in partnership with Isaac Jacob, are Abraham M'chelleau, Alexander Abraham, Benjamin Chinn, Jacob and Ezekiel. The last named individuals in jail and knows them all, they being indebted to him in the sum of six thousand rupees. His purchase of a quantity of twine from one Kisto Dhoo Chuckerbuty, to the value of fifteen hundred rupees, for which amount he secured their security. This twine was subsequently exported to the Mauritius and Singapore. I cannot, however, speak as to the exact quantity sent to each of these places though the whole of the purchase made on this occasion amounted to about three thousand three hundred rupees, which was paid excepting a balance of five hundred rupees. This transaction took place in the last Bengallee year 1240. The Insolvents also bought canvas from Bygonath Chuckerbuty, amounting to seven hundred rupees, of which twelve hundred was paid, leaving a balance due of five hundred for which he secured their security, and which a short time after he paid on the amount becoming due. The Insolvents were in the habit of exporting canvas to Singapore, Madras, and Bombay, but he could not state to what particular place the purchase upon this occasion was sent — it may be ascertained from their books. This took place last year, but he did not recollect the month, the Insolvents had also purchased from Kisto Dhanoo and Frigumachurn Paul rice, wheat and grain last Assur to the value of 30,000 rupees. They paid 28,000 and deponent became responsible for this balance of 2,000 rupees, which he paid them, 1,200 rupees in silver and 800 by transfer of accounts which has been entered in his books and will also appear by their accounts. On the 5th of July last he lent Isaac Jacob 2,000 rupees, all in silver, there were no bank notes. At this time they were doing well in business; before this loan was made, deponent had paid the monies for which he was security on account of the insolvents. Isaac Jacob then gave him a promissory note for the whole sum, amounting to 6,000 rupees. Madanob Binnerjee drew out the note. About this period Isaac Jacob used to draw large sums of money from the Bank of Bengal, and he was aware of the circumstance, and therefore took the note to get it discounted there, but failed to do so; he then took the note to the bank, but did not succeed there also. He then made a demand upon Isaac Jacob, but he did not pay him, and requested him to continue to transact their business. A short time previous to the last Dargahji holidays, they purchased rice to the value of 15,000 rupees. About this time deponent went home, that is after the shipment of the rice on board of a vessel bound for the Mauritius. Deponent is not aware of the name of the vessel. Last Aughran the insolvents exported saltpetre and wheat to Singapore, likewise about 2000 pieces of piece goods. They also sent about 1,500 or 1,600 mounds of wheat to Madras. The articles generally exported by them consisted of piece goods, silk, rice, muslin, sugar and mock coral. In Byrack or Joyssee last they purchased some silk goods; he could not state the quantity, and to the best of his recollection no more piece goods were bought after the last batch sent to Singapore. Deponent was not aware to what place the silk goods were exported to. A quantity of sugar, amounting to 15 or 20 mounds, was sent to Singapore, and to the best of his knowledge no more purchases of that commodity had been made. Deponent has in his entries in his books, of all sums paid and advanced to the Insolvents, in short he has accounts of all transactions with the firm. In Choote last, and before his return to Calcutta, the Insolvents absconded from Calcutta. This he alleged as the reason of his not being able to arrest them; his books are in his country. Mr. Prinsep observed that he must send for them.

Cross examined by Mr. Morton — It is customary with the Bank of Bengal to have the names of two respectable persons before it could discount any note.

Isaac Jacob being examined by Mr. Prinsep said, that he was the head partner of the firm, and has been in Calcutta about four years, or a little more. A short time after his stay in Calcutta he commenced business, and took the five persons already named into partnership, and launched into trade upon a capital of 3,000 rupees, that is, each paid 600 rupees, as will appear by the agreement. The agreement was produced. The Insolvent engaged a broker named Bykantonath Chatterjee, a short time after he commenced business, and this person is acquainted with all the affairs of the firm. The agreement was drawn out by a native herauee, not by any person in his employ. The man was a perfect stranger to him, and he paid him eight annas for his trouble. He had no writer at that time named Madanob, he had an old man whom he turned away, and then employed Madanob. This was about 14 or 20 months ago. The agreement was not drawn out by the old man. The Insolvent does not know English, and therefore cannot make out Madanob's writing. These bills produced need to be written by Madanob and sometimes by a friend, and the Bengallee was invariably written by the Mohuror Rantooch Mookerjee. This person went on after the failure, but has since returned. Bykantonath Chatterjee, he thinks, is aware where Madanob is. As for his partner, he has not seen him for the last two or three months. The Insolvent had dealings with Bykantonath, and was in the habit of buying canvas, wheat, twine, &c, though he agrees, and there is money due in him to the value of 500 rupees. About a year ago Bykantonath paid 500 Rs or more to a person named Kisto Dhoo. He also paid Madanob Coor, a rice merchant, 2000 or 2,400 rupees, to Brijmohun 500 rupees which was a balance of debit of 1,552 rupees. Insolvent does not recollect the date of the transaction, but it was in 1839 and our account of some canvas purchased. Bykantonath also lent him 2000 rupees, and in July last he gave him a promissory note for 6,900 rupees, the whole amount of the debt. Insolvent has for the last 6 or 7 months been residing at Sulkea. Insolvent furnished this statement produced to the Bank of Bengal last Dec., and the signature is his. It is an abstract from a Bengallee book, and was executed in a hurried manner, and he signed it; but the contents were not explained to him, and he desired Rustomjee Cowasjee to ask the Bank to allow him 6 years time to pay the debt. Insolvent has account in his possession at Sulkea. They were kept in Hebrew. He did not think it necessary to produce them a memoranda were only kept. The insolvent was here told that he must give the books up, and a messenger would go and take possession of them.

There is one book of the firm, and three books in Hebrew, at his house in Sulkea, and his partners have more.

Cross examined by Mr. Morion — Insolvent had no Hebrew writer. The accounts were written by his partners, and sometimes their friends assisted in making the entries. The accounts were kept in Hebrew, but the fullest account is in Bengallee. He does not know Bengallee, and the accounts in Hebrew were kept for his own satisfaction. These were accounts of the concern and not private memoranda. The books also contain entries of accounts before the partnership.

The case was adjourned. — Hurkaru, June 10.

SUPREME COURT.

MONDAY, JUNE 15.

THIRD TERM OF 1840.

(Before Sir E. Ryan, Sir J. P. Grant and Sir H. W. Seton.)

This was the first day of Term. The Court met at eleven o'clock.

William Fergusson Gillanders, Esq., was admitted upon the roll of the Attorneys of the Supreme Court.

GOFERMOHUN DEB V. THE EAST INDIA COMPANY AND OTHERS.

Judgment was pronounced by the Court this morning. Their Lordships, although unanimous in their opinion delivered their judgments seriatim, and at great length. At present we have only time to give a very brief outline of the judgments, which occupied more than two hours and a half in delivery.

Sir E. Ryan, C. J., after referring to the various proceedings in the cause from its first commencement, said that there were five grounds of equity mainly relied upon by the Counsel for the complainants. First, that an Injunction was sought by the prayer of the bill. The injunction might have been applied for and granted against the making and opening the road, but there was no equity to restrain the using of the road when made. The right to an injunction might be lost by delay, and the remedy could not be asked for after the injury had been completed.

Secondly, it had been urged that a specific fund was sought to be charged. But this fund (if it existed) arose from an arrangement made between the Company and the Lottery Committee for their own convenience. The complainant was no party to it, and not entitled to the benefit of it. If a trust it was voluntary as to him, and could not be enforced by him Wells v. Wells, 3 Merivale. Thirdly, that the bill was in the name of a bill for a specific performance, because the object sought was to carry into effect the provisions of the Regulation of 1814. The proper mode, however, of enforcing that Regulation was by writ of mandamus. Rex v. Stamford, 1 and 8, 32, Rex v. Nottingham Waterworks, 6 Ad. and Ell 355, and any other cases. Fourthly, that the legal remedies of trespass and ejectment only afforded a partial relief; and that the Lottery Committee might have placed the regulation by way of justification in bar of any action at law. It was clear, however, that it would be upon the defendants to justify their entry, and this could only be done by shewing a strict compliance with the terms of the Regulation. If the provisions of the Regulation were not complied with, it would furnish no justification. Lastly, it had been contended that his was a bill of peace. There could not, however, have been any necessity for separate action against the Lottery Committee and the Company, for they were one and the same for the purposes of this claim; nor were separate actions at all shewn to be necessary against the Partahdars. But this was not in its nature a bill of peace. The main object of the bill was compensation for the damage done, and the rest of the prayer was ancillary to this. Upon the whole bill, therefore, it was clear the remedy was not in equity, but (if time was no bar) at law. Besides the writ of Mandamus, there were other proceedings open to the complainant. He might have proceeded by action of trespass or ejectment as to land in his own possession, and case for consequential damages as to land in which he had only a reversionary interest. The only question remaining was the question of costs. (His Lordship stated several reasons for dismissing the bill without costs.)

Sir J. P. Grant, delivered his opinion at much length. With reference to the claim upon the merits, his Lordship said: "I am not ashamed to say that in these circumstances I have anxiously searched for a ground on which I could rest, to sustain this bill, and to administer justice to the plaintiff under it. But having carefully considered and reconsidered the bill, I lament to say that I have failed in doing so." — The defendants, instead of following the simple and regular course which the Regulation pointed out, have preferred to contest with an individual living under their government, points, which, at the close of this protracted and most expensive litigation, their own counsel have admitted at this bar they never had a colour of title to maintain; and they are obliged at the eleventh hour to rest their defence upon the ground that the plaintiff has mistaken the form of remedy. (His Lordship coincided with the Chief Justice in dismissing the bill on the ground of want of equity.)

Sir H. W. Seton said: "As this question will probably be carried before another tribunal the Judges, although entirely concurring in their views of it, consider it due to the magnitude and importance of the case, to state their opinions separately." (His Lordship stated his opinion at length, concurring in dismissing the bill without costs.) The learned Judge concluded thus: "It is not without reluctance that the Court has come to its final conclusion, as the effect of it is that after a protracted litigation and expence, the plaintiff is remitted to his original rights (which are still undecided, and incapable of being decided now from the mode adopted of enforcing them) with all the disadvantages which may have been incurred by the delay which has taken place in effectually prosecuting them. With this view the Court was desirous of effecting a compromise between the parties and offered its assistance in doing so. In this the Court was unsuccessful, and it then only remained for us to take the course adopted, however, we may regret the result."

Bill dismissed without costs.

BISHMIBER SEAL V. RANDBHON BANNFJEE.

Ryan, C. J. said, that this case which stands for Judgment last sittings, had better stand over until the Court had re-considered the decision in Colly Down Gangoolie v. Seebhunder Mullick. The Court had referred the question of Hindoo law arising upon Begallee mortgages to the Sudder Judges, and had received a reply.

The Advocate-General for the defendants said, with reference to Seebhunder Mullick's case, that the property was not large, and that his client had only taken defence to the suit upon the authority of the decision in the Ghose's case in 1837. He wished, therefore, to save his clients, if possible, the expence of a re-argument.

Mr. Clarke observed, that if the Court were likely to come to a different conclusion upon the question, he should apply for a rehearing, or file a bill of review in the Ghose's case, though it was some time ago, and the other cases might stand over to await the result of the petition of rehearing or bill of review.

Mr. Prinsep, said that the property was still smaller in that case & besides the delay was an objection.

Ryan, C. J. thought that the best course would be for the Court to reconsider their decision in Seebhunder Mullick's case, without directing a formal re-argument.

IN THE MATTER OF MUNDORAM RING.

The Advocate-General moved that the return to the writ of habeas corpus directed to Mr. Steel, a Mofussil Magistrate, be read and filed.

Mr. Morton, the counsel who had moved for the writ, took no objection to the return. — Hark June, 16

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 17.

DON ON THE DEFENSE OF CULLEN AND OTHERS, V. CLARK AND OTHERS.

Mr. Leith opened the pleadings.

The Advocate-General for the plaintiff stated, that this was an action brought by the directors of the Bengal Provident Society to recover a house and premises in Park Street in Calcutta. An agreement had been brought for the premises in question in the term before last, and a verdict had been given upon argument for the defendants; the title not having been carried far enough back. This had arisen from certain deeds being omitted to be produced, which would now be put in and proved. The land, upon which the house in question and three others now stood, had been purchased by Mr. W. Clark, several years ago, when only two houses were upon it, and two others (one of which was the premises in question) were afterwards built by Mr. Clark in 1825. The consequence was that the house now sought to be recovered was not specially referred to in the old instruments; but it would be shown that it was built upon the parcel of land conveyed in those instruments.

Several instruments of conveyance were put in, the execution of which had been admitted upon a notice to admit. These carried back the title to 1802. In 1827 Mr. Clark died; and Probate of his will was put in. After his death his executors mortgaged the house in question to the Provident Society, the lessors of the plaintiff.

A minute was called to prove the building of the house by Mr. Clark. In the old deeds the houses and land were described as in Wellesley Street; but it appears that the new house, though on the same land, faces Park Street. The latter street is of comparatively recent formation.

Mr. Morton, for the defendants, admitted that the title of the lessors of the plaintiff was clear, without further proof. An offer had been made on behalf of the defendants before the trial, to quit possession upon production of the deeds for the inspection of their counsel. This was refused, and he had had no opportunity of seeing them until now. Under these circumstances, and as the defendants, though successful in the former action, had not been allowed costs, he hoped the present verdict would be without costs.

Sir E. Ryan, C. J., however, said, that the verdict must be for the plaintiffs in the usual way.

Verdict for the lessors of the plaintiff.

ROBERT WALKER V. MUTTY LOLL SEAL.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings.

Mr. Phipps for the plaintiff, stated, that this was an action to recover the sum of Co.'s Rs. 5,822 for docking and repairs to the ship Christopher Rawson. It seemed the defendant denied his liability on the ground that he had given no authority, but it would be clearly shown that he was beneficially interested, if not the actual registered owner, that he had given express directions for all of the repairs, and had impliedly assented to the whole.

Captain E. R. Smellie, examined by Mr. Morton, deposed, that he was and is the Captain of the Christopher Rawson. Was appointed Captain about a year ago by Mutty Loll Seal. The repairs in question were done by his (witness's) directions in Mr. Walker's Dock Yard in June and July last. The defendant, Mutty L. H., had given authority to witness to send the ship to that dock. (Four bills for repairs put in.) As to the other repairs in these bills some were recommended by the surveyor of the underwriters and some suggested by witness. Told Mutty Loll of the extra repairs as they were going on. The bills contain reasonable charges for the work done. Mutty Loll pays witness's salary, and the wages of the officers and crew. He furnished most of the materials for the repairs. Considers that Mutty Loll had the entire control of the vessel and that he has now.

Cross-examined by the Advocate-General. Witness's impression at the time that he was appointed Captain, was, that Mutty Loll was the Owner. Mr. W. F. Dowson was formerly Owner, but considers that he had nothing to do with the ship then. Has not got the Registry-certificate. Believes it is in Mutty Loll's possession. It was formerly in possession of witness. Does not recollect whether Mr. Dowson was the registered owner according to the certificate. Believes the fact to be that Mutty Loll is the mortgagee and owner. Before the ship went to Dock, did communicate with Dowson upon subject. He was at the office of Mutty Loll. Walker was not satisfied with the guarantee of Dowson, and required the guarantee of Muttu Lall. Muttu Lall guaranteed the docking estimate, verbally only. There was no guarantee by him as to the extra repairs. He believes that Muttu Lall has offered and is willing to pay the docking expenses, as to the extra repairs. Witness: Captain (name) that only. It is not usual to have a written agreement. The Captain usually gives a bond, and the appointment is entered in the Registry before sailing.

Charles Hudson, of the Registry Office, examined by Mr. Prinsep, proved that the "Christopher Rawson" was registered in the name of W. F. Dowson as owner, and that the mortgage, by him to Muttu Lall, was registered of the 1st September 1838. There was a former cancelled mortgage.

The mortgage, which bore date August, 1838 was produced by the Defendant upon a notice to produce.

This closed the case for the plaintiff.

The Advocate-General (with whom was Mr. Leith,) for the defence, contended that there must be a verdict for the defendant. In the first place, the plaintiff if he had proved only a guarantee, and the evidence therefore did not support the claim, which was merely assumed upon the common count. Besides even if it did, the plaintiff could not recover under the Statute of Frauds, there being no agreement in writing.

Sir E. Ryan. That is not the plaintiff's case at all. He declares upon an original promise, express or implied of the defendant himself, and no question upon the Statute of Frauds can arise.

The Advocate-General. But the question is whether he has proved more than a guarantee.

Sir E. Ryan. If defendant authorized the repairs, his promise is an original promise, whether he calls it a guarantee or any other term. The question is to whom credit is given.

The Advocate-General. The plaintiff's own evidence shews that credit was given, in the first instance at all events, to Dowson. But again by the recent Registry Acts (which extend to British owned ships in this country) the mortgage is not to be deemed the owner's general liability in repairs. By 3 W. 4. c. 45 upon transfer of ships or of any share thereof, made only as a security for payment of debts, the mortgagee or transferee is not by reason thereof to be deemed to have ceased to be the owner, except so far as may be necessary for the purpose of rendering the ship or share transferred, available by sale or otherwise for the payment of the debt secured. It is clear, therefore, that it was Mr. Dowson, not Muttu Lall Seal, who was prima facie liable.

Ryan, C. J. We think there must be a verdict for the plaintiff for the whole amount claimed. The defendant is clearly beneficially interested in the repairs as mortgagee of the ship, and he was a mortgagee in possession and apparent owner. It may be that originally his promise was only a collateral undertaking, but the subsequent circumstances tend to establish fully that the contract became immediate between the plaintiff and him. The defendant is fully cognizant of the repairs being done, supplies the greater part of the materials, and continues afterwards to exercise entire control over the vessel as an owner.

THURSDAY, JUNE 18.

MURROOSODDERA DOWSE AND ANOTHER v. COOR KISSA-NAUTH ROY AND ANOTHER.

This was a motion to amend an order of reference in certain particulars. It may be noticed that the case has been frequently before the Court in different shapes.

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Clarke contended, that the amendment applied for, was in accordance with the spirit of the order pronounced by the Court at the time of the argument. The object was to authorize a reference to the Master, &c., as to all arrears due and owing on the 24th September, the day the property was carried off; secondly, as to what would be a fit and proper sum to be allowed monthly for the maintenance of the Rannees, and for the expenses of the household establishment and religious ceremonies. Under the order as it stood the Master could only take the reference to a very partial extent.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton contra, contended that the Court had no power to alter a decree or order without consent, except in respect of mere clerical errors. The defendants objected to the application because they conceived that expenses of the religious ceremonies ought not to be allowed unless actually incurred.

Sir E. Ryan said, that that was a question of account to fore the Master. It might be raised upon exceptions to his report.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton.—But the doubt is whether the question can be raised at all by exceptions to the Master's Report, unless the order of reference specifically direct the Master to inquire and report what sums had been necessarily expended for the religious ceremonies up to the time the Coor Kissenauth Roy attained full age.

After some discussion the Court directed the order to be amended as prayed, with the qualification that the Master do report and inquire what sums had been actually expended, and might have been legally and properly expended for religious ceremonies by the Rannees.

Order accordingly.

MURROOSODDERA DOWSE v. JOYMONTY DURREE.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton moved upon notice that the Receiver in the above cause, Ramnarain Mookerjee, do pass his accounts as Receiver, and verify the same by affidavit. The bill was filed on behalf of an infant complainant in 1831, and by an order of Sir John Plunket it was directed that Ramnarain Mookerjee, a mortgagee in the pleadings named, should be at liberty to submit some person to the Master as Receiver, and that upon the approval of the Master and the execution of due recognizances such person should be the Receiver without further report. Under this order Ramnarain Mookerjee was appointed Receiver by the Master, and as Receiver he filed his accounts in 1833, but had died since. No further order was passed by the Court confirming the appointment, but the party had acted as Receiver from the first, and it was apprehended that he could not take advantage of any irregularity in the proceedings, and impeach the authority under which he had himself acted.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Leith opposed the application, and urged that the proceedings had been wholly irregular upon the face of them from the very commencement, and that the party could not be considered a Receiver at all. It appeared from their ground that this party, Ramnarain Mookerjee, had applied in 1834 to pass his accounts, and that the then Master, Mr. Money, refused to receive them, or to recognize him as Receiver, alleging that the appointment had never been confirmed by the Court. After this Ramnarain Mookerjee was appointed Probakar by the Court of Wards, and it was sworn in his affidavit that he had fully accounted to the Court of Wards. It would be a great hardship upon the party if he was now called upon to account by this Court also, after he had been induced to believe that his appointment was a nullity.

The Advocate General in reply said, that the dictum of the Master that appointment was invalid was not a decision of the Court. It was the duty of the party to have applied to the Court at once, and to have got his appointment either set aside or confirmed. The question was whether a party could impugn the validity of an order, however irregular, under which he himself had acted. As to the alleged hardship, in what did it consist? If corrected accounts were really filed in the Court of Wards, the party could very easily file copies of them in this Court.

Sir E. Ryan, C. J.—This is an application that the Receiver in the cause do pass his accounts, and verify them on oath; and the application is rested on the ground that the proceedings are null and void, and that the party is not in fact Receiver at all. That there have been irregularities from the commencement of the proceedings is incontestable, but we are clearly of opinion that the fiat of a Judge of the Court, however irregular, is not absolutely null. The party now seeking to avail himself of the informality has acted as Receiver under the order, and we do not think it is competent for him to repudiate the authority under which he was constituted. We shall, therefore, make the order that Ramnarain Mookerjee do bring in and file his accounts as Receiver from December 1832, and that the Master do inquire and report, with reference to the accounts filed and proceedings had in the Court of Wards, what balance (if any) appears to be in the hands of the said Ramnarain Mookerjee, as such Receiver. As to the payment into the Court of the balance, and as to the costs of the application, these are questions for consideration when the parties come again before the Court.

Order accordingly.—HURK. June 19.

MONDAY, 22nd JUNE.

HANSABUCK MULLICK v. DEBOUZA AND OTHERS.

This was "the Opium case," tried last Sunday, in which a verdict was found with damages £6 s. 8d. A rule nisi, in the alternative, either for a new trial, or to reduce the damages, was now moved for by.

Mr. Leith contended first, that the verdict at the trial ought to have been for the defendant. No sufficient consideration, moving to the defendant himself, appeared upon the face of the guarantee, within the Statute of Frauds. Besides, all that the defendant undertook to do, was to guarantee the safe return of the proceeds of the consignment, the only "returns" were the seignior or curtinue, and the guarantee, therefore, appeared to have been satisfied.

The Court said, that they had entertained no doubt at the trial upon the question whether the plaintiff was entitled to recover some damages. The only difficulty was, as to the amount. They should not therefore grant any rule upon this point.

Mr. Leith.—Then as to the amount of damages, I submit that we are entitled to have the verdict reduced, if not to a nominal sum, to an amount much less than the verdict as it now stands. The measure of damages at the trial was calculated according to the price paid for the Opium in Calcutta. This estimate is obviously inapplicable. The question is what sum would have been received by the plaintiff had the contract been duly performed. The cases of Startup v. Carrison, 2 Crompt. Mees; and Rocor's Reports, Brandt v. Boulby, 2 Barn. and Adolphus, Boorman v. Nash, 9 Barn. and Cress, and other authorities shew that the measure of damages must be regulated by the price obtainable for the goods at the place and time where and when the contract was to have been performed. The sum paid for the Opium by the plaintiffs in Calcutta has nothing whatever to do with the question.

The Court granted a rule to reduce the damages.

Rule nisi granted.

HONOR. V. VOSE.

This case came on upon demurrer to two special replications to pleas firstly of set-off, and secondly, that the breach was caused by plaintiff's own act.

Mr. Morton for the defendant was heard in support of one of the demurrers.

The Advocate General (with whom was Mr. Clarke) argued in support of the replication.

The Court stopped the argument, and said that in their opinion the case was a fit case to be referred to the arbitration of some gentleman at the bar.

The Advocate General readily assented.

Mr. Morton believed his client would not object, and he should certainly recommend it himself. The case had been referred once to two non professional arbitrators, but they disagreed in opinion, and one of them thereupon drew up an award single-handed!

Stands over.

BINDARUN SIKHAR v. MUTTONI SPAL.

This was a demurrer to a plea of set off.

The plaintiff was in special assumpsit upon a contract by which the defendant agreed to pay a certain sum to the plaintiff for taking down an old godown and building a new one. By the contract it was further agreed, that the work should be completed within a certain time, and if not completed within that time, the plaintiff was to pay a "suitable rent" for the godown during the time it remained unfinished.

Plea (among others) that the godown remained unfinished for eight months, after the limited time, and that respect 400 monthly was a "suitable rent" for the godown which sum the plaintiff became liable for and still was liable to pay under the agreement, and the defendant was ready to set off the same.

Mr. Sanda for the demurrer. The plea is bad, because the sum due for rent under the agreement is not a sum certain, but sounds in damages. It has been held in many cases that unliquidated damages cannot be made the subject-matter of a plea of set off. Freeman v. Hewitt, 1 Wm. Blackstone. In the recent case of Morton v. Inglis, 4 Bingle. New cases. Chief Justice Tindal lays down the criterion to be whether the demand sought to be set off can or cannot be ascertained without the intervention of a jury.

The Advocate General and Mr. Leith contra. The rule is too broadly laid down in the case last cited. If the rule were so, the common pleas of set-off for work and labour, goods sold and the like, would be an inadmissible plea. The question is whether the demand might have been made the subject matter of a counter-action in debt or indebitatus assumpsit. If it can, the plea is good. It has been held that liquidated damages may be set off, Fletcher v. Dyche, 21 Term Reports.

The Court held that the demand here was not the subject matter of a set off, and that the plea was bad.

Demurrer allowed.—HURK. June 23.

BEEBEE AMEERUN DAMEE MONEHUR.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings.

The Advocate General stated the case for the plaintiff. The action was brought to recover the sum of Rs. 500 upon each of two several instruments granted by the defendant to the plaintiff. The parties were Mahomedians, and man and wife. The defendant had appeared to the action, but had not pleaded, and judgment, therefore, had been signed by default.

Shaik Monehur, the defendant, appeared in Court in person, and presented a petition to their Lordships, praying (among other matters) that he might be admitted to the benefit of the pauper Establishment, and that a Counsel might be assigned to him to conduct his defence.

The Court sent for Mr. Strettell, the Attorney for Paupers, who stated, that he had already reported upon the case of the defendant in this action, and that he had been satisfied he was not entitled to the benefit of the Pauper Establishment.

The two instruments were then put in and proved by examining the subscribing witnesses.

By the first agreement, reciting that a marriage with-out nikaḥ or the tying of the knot had taken place between the parties, the defendant agreed to give the plaintiff five rupees per month for diet, apparel &c., and to pay her the sum of Rs. 500 if he should at any time repudiate her.

The second agreement contained the following curious recital: "Whereas I, the obligor, executed a certain agreement in writing to Musumman Beebee Ameerrun, and whereas owing to the suggestions of the devil delay was made in making payment thereunder, and the said agreement was torn up through irritation by me the obligor, and whereas the said Beebee joined together the fragments of the said written agreement, getting the same ornamented with the signature of the Commissioner of the Court of Requests" &c.

The agreement went on to state, that the defendant had brought the plaintiff within the pale of matrimony before the assembly met together, and had assigned to her 500 rupees for a marriage portion. It concluded thus: "Should I peradventure divorce the said Musumman I will fully pay to her the balance of her marriage portion, and likewise pay pursuant to the former separate agreement."

The defendant in person conducted his defence, putting questions to the witnesses, and addressing the Court in a rather rambling speech, of which the main argument was, that he had not divorced his wife, but that she has left him of her own accord.

The Court said that the question before them was only one of the amount of damages.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton contended, that the plaintiff was entitled to two sums of 500 rupees, one upon each agreement.

The Court thought otherwise. The plaintiff was entitled to the arrears of maintenance, &c., under the first instrument, but not to the Rs. 500 therein mentioned. The subsequent circumstances and the execution of the second agreement, were a sort of accord and satisfaction. The plaintiff was entitled to Rs. 500 under the second instrument.

JUNE 25.

WOODMACHURN DORE V. ROSEMONY DORE AND OTHERS.

The Advocate-General moved to take the petition of rehearing of the file. The Court pronounced their decree in this cause last Sittings, dismissing the bill; and the complainant obtained leave to file a petition of rehearing. The time for filing the petition was twice extended, and some weeks had now elapsed since the petition had been filed, but the cause had not been set down for rehearing, and no further steps had been taken. It was apprehended that there was to be some limit, and that the complainant was not to exercise his own discretion as to speeding the cause.

Mr. Princep said that this motion at all events could not be supported. There was no specially limited time for setting the cause down for rehearing; and certainly no precedent for applying to take the petition off the file, because the cause had not been proceeded with.

Sir E. Ryan said that the motion was certainly irregular, as the petition could only be taken off the file upon some ground of irregularity. The Court, however, were disposed to make an order that the cause should be set down for rehearing next Equity day, (Monday) or else the petition of rehearing to stand dismissed. Some provision must be made for speeding the cause.

Mr. Princep hoped that a little further time would be given, as the complainant was doing his best to have the case ready, and had no wish whatever to delay the rehearing unnecessarily. It was intended to apply to the Court to let in additional documentary evidence, some important documents having been only lately procured from the Jessore Court.

The Court granted one week from this day for setting down the cause.

Order accordingly.

ALEXANDER, ASSIGNEE OF BRAMMONT, V. HOIME.

The Advocate-General moved for a new trial in this case tried last Sittings in which a verdict was found for the plaintiff. It may be recollected that the main question related to the validity in law of an assignment executed by the insolvent.

The Court granted a rule.

JUNE 26.

JAMES HILLS V. C. BURY.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings. The plaintiff was in assumpsit for not accepting a horse agreed to be purchased by the defendant. Pleas, first the general issue;—secondly, that there was no written agreement within the statute of frauds;—and thirdly, that there was a warranty, which had been broken.

The Advocate-General stated the plaintiff's case. The plaintiff and defendant were gentlemen well known upon the turf. So long ago as August 1833, the defendant commissioned Mr. John Whyte to purchase from the defendant a grey Arab horse Amrōd, for seven rupees 1,750 from the plaintiff, Mr. Hills. The purchase was effected, and the horse was sent up in a boat from Mr. Hills's factory at Kailashnagar, by the direction of Mr. Bury, who was then residing near Patna. The horse reached Mr. Bury's in October, and remained in his stables until the month of December following, when

Mr. Bury, finding that the horse had become weak in the loins, returned him to Mr. Hills, alleging that he must have been unsound at the time of the sale, and that the contract was void. The horse reached Mr. Hills' stables in the month of March 1834, and shortly afterwards he was sent by that gentleman to Hunter and Co.'s Livery stables, where he remained for a long period. Last year, the animal, which had become quite lame and useless, was sold for a trifling sum, between 40 and 50 rupees. Under these circumstances it was apprehended, that the defendant was liable to pay, not only the price of the horse, but the costs of keep at least for a portion of the time; for it would appear clearly (if indeed there was any warranty at all) that the horse was perfectly sound when he left Mr. Hills' stables, and that the weakness in the loins, and consequent lameness must have occurred probably from some accident, or from a sudden chill, during the voyage up the river from Kishnagur to Patna.

John Whyte examined by Mr. Morton, deposed to the circumstance of the purchase of the grey Arab Horse, Amroo, the property of Mr. Hills. [Letter from Mr. Bury to Mr. Hills of December 1833, containing extract of a letter from witness, put in.] Recollecting writing the letter of which this is an extract. Did receive a letter in reply, which is lost. Has made search for this letter, and for other letters connected with the case, but is unable to find them, and believes they must have been destroyed. The answer to the letter of witness authorized the giving 100 or 150 rupees beyond Rs. 1,600. The horse was sent by water to Mr. Bury, according to his directions. Had seen the horse shortly before. Considered him perfectly sound then, and believes that he corresponded with the recommendation contained in witness's letter to Mr. Bury.

Cross-Examined by Mr. Leith. I do not recollect whether two or three months elapsed, between my seeing the horse, and his being sent off in the boat. I did not see him put on board. My place, Locheenpore, is about four miles distant from Mr. Hills, Neeshunderpore. Mr. Bury was 500 miles distant at Patna. The communications with him must all have been in writing, but I do not recollect whether I communicated with Mr. Hills verbally or in writing. Another horse Sam was sent up the river at the same time as Amroo. Sam came from my stables. It was my duty to put the horse on board. I considered that Mr. Hills had given up all charge of him a fortnight before, when I had bought him for Mr. Bury. I heard that Gosh the jockey once punished the horse severely, and that the next day the horse ran away with a native jockey, and killed him. I do not recollect precisely whether Mr. Whyte authorized me to give rupees 1,700 or 1,750. One Colin Macdonald took the horse up in the boat to Patna. I think he came from Calcutta for the purpose. I sent for him and engaged him on behalf of Mr. Bury. Certainly, a horse weak in the loins is not fit for racing!

Buzoo Jemadar, deposed, that he had been formerly in the employ of Mr. Whyte, and that he had superintended the sending of the grey Arab Amroo by boat to Patna. The horse was sound then.

Lewis Cooper was formerly in the employ of Hunter and Co. The horse Amroo was sent to their stables in March 1834. He was ultimately sold by auction for about 50 rupees! The net livery charges amounted to upwards of 1,200 rupees.

Some letters were put in on behalf of the plaintiff.

In a letter, written by Mr. Bury to Mr. Hills in December 1833, he admitted a contract fully by implication, resting his non-liability entirely upon the alleged breach of warranty. This letter contained an extract from a letter written to Mr. Bury himself, by

Mr. Whyte, upon the occasion of the purchase, containing the following passages:—

"I must now speak of the Maiden, which if he turn out what I expect, you will stand a fair chance of clearing out a few of your opponents. The horse I allude to is a grey, 14½; he was sent from Bombay very young, about two years and a half ago, with a certificate that he had performed his mile in good time, 1 min 56 sec. and priced at 3,000. Hills purchased him for rupees 2,250; he partly trained him the year before last, but knocked him up as he did every horse in his stables the first month." "Hills, in answer to my query as to price, said he would take 2,000, but I know he is anxious to sell and will take less. Shall I offer 1,800 with the power of going 100 more if I do not succeed? He is worth that sum as a saddle horse, and as to size I have always found that a large, if good, can give a good small one weight for inches. Witness Hurry Scurry; and it is not every day that you meet with a Pyramus,

Mr. Leith (with whom was Mr. Sandes) addressed the Court for the defence. In the first place there was a variance in the statement of the contract. The price was alleged to be six hundred rupees 1,750, whereas it appeared from Mr. Whyte's letter that it must have been 4,700 only. Secondly, this was a contract for not accepting; and the plaintiff's own evidence disproved the breach, for it showed a delivery and acceptance. Thirdly, there must be a verdict for the defendant on the plea of the Statute of Frauds, because there did not appear any sufficient memorandum within the statute. It had been held that the price, and the names of both parties, must appear on the face of the writing. Lastly, the defendant was entitled to a verdict on the issue upon the warranty. As the evidence stood, it was clear, that Mr. Hills knew the horse was required for racing purposes, and the circumstances tended to shew that he was unsound and unfit at the time of the purchase. As to damages, if the plaintiff recovered anything, he certainly was not entitled to a rupee for the keep. Instead of re-selling the horse immediately, he kept him for nearly six years! and the action was commenced only last year.

Colin Macdonald examined on the part of the defendant, deposed, that he had taken the horse Amroo to Patna. Upon leaving Mr. Hills, he had no opportunity of seeing the horse in the stable; he got a glimpse of him springing from the bank into the boat. He first perceived lameness when the horse was landed at Monghyr. There was plenty of accommodation in the boat, and the horse was taken great care of. The horse Sam arrived quite sound and well. Amroo afterwards became quite weak in the loins and lame.

The Advocate-General in reply. As to the question of warranty broken, the issue is upon the other side, and there is not a particle of evidence. The last witness has only proved the activity of the horse in springing into the boat!

Ryan, C. J.—Upon this question we will relieve you We think there is no proof whatever of breach of warranty.

The Advocate-General.—Then the first of the remaining objections, is the alleged variance, in stating the price. But it is at least a question for the jury whether it was 1,700 or 1,760, and even if it be a variance, it is clearly amendable by the 6th new Plea Rule. As to our evidence disproving the breach, it must be remembered the breach is two fold non-acceptance, and non-payment. If there was an acceptance, it was a dishonoured acceptance, by the subsequent repudiation; and we have at all events proved the material point, that there was no payment:

Ryan, C. J. We will relive you upon this point also. The difficulty appears to arise upon the second plea of the statute of Frauds. Is there any sufficient written agreement?

The Advocate-General. The contract is clearly sufficient, although not in a single document, if the terms can be collected from several distinct writings between which a connection is established. Jackson, v. Lows, 1 Bingh. Rep. Upon this principle, looking at all these letters together, the price and the names of the parties appear fully. It is not necessary that both parties should sign any agreement: Bertan v. Mathews & Eust. The first letter may indeed amount only to an offer; but the subsequent letters distinctly recognise an actual agreement.

The Court stopped the learned counsel, and said that they should give a verdict for the plaintiff, with liberty to the defendant's counsel to move for a nonsuit, if they should upon consideration determine to do so. The plaintiff was not entitled to the expenses of keep of the horse for more than a reasonable time,—say one month. This would about balance the small sum obtained by the resale. The verdict would therefore be entered for Sa. Rs. 1,700.

Verdict for the plaintiff for Sa. Rs. 1,700.

IN EQUITY.

RADHAMADHUS BONNERJEE V. OMACHIEB VENEJEE

The bill in this case was filed for an account. The case came on ex parte, and the complainant had a decree Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Barwell for complainant.

Decree accordingly.—Hurkaru June 27.

MONDAY, JUNE 29.

MUDDENMOHUN MITTAR V. JUGGUERNATH PERSAUD MULLICK.

Mr. Leith moved upon notice to set aside the attachment for want of an appearance to the bill of complaint in the above cause. The motion was under Equity Process Rule 5, the original subpoena not having been served, but only a copy. According to the words of the rule, the original must be served where there is only a single defendant.

The Advocate-General admitted that the words of the rule were so, but he said that the practice was otherwise. It was more convenient to file the original with the officer, and serve a copy, whether there was one defendant or several; and the reason was the same in both cases.

The Registrar said that the practice was so.

Ryan C. J. When this rule was drawn up the matter was considered, and it was the deliberate intention of the Court, that the rule should be as it now stands. It is clear that the words of the rule are one way, and the practice another. This order, therefore, will be made absolute, but without costs. And it is to be understood that the practice in future is to be according to the course pointed out by the words of the rule.

Order absolute.

RAMMOHUN BISWAS V. SIBCHUNDER SIRCAR.

This was a special demurrer to a plaint in trespass, in which the averments were all by the way of recital, and the whole pleading very inartificial.

Mr. Morton for the demurrer, said he believed no attempt could possibly be made to support this plaint,—which appeared to have been drawn by the plaintiff himself, or by some of the "outdoor practitioners" of whom the Court had heard!

The Advocate-General admitted the plaint could not be supported. The brief had only just been put into his hands, and he believed no Attorney had been employed by the plaintiff until after the demurrer was filed. It was to be hoped that this would check the irregular "outdoor practice" spoken of.*

Demurrer allowed with leave to attend.

IN THE GOODS OF BENEFICIAL DOWSE.

This was a caveat against granting probate of the Will of the alleged testatrix.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Morton for the caveat said that the alleged testatrix was a markswoman, and that the practice of the Court was in such cases before granting probate to examine one or more of the attesting witnesses à voce. In the present case there were many suspicious circumstances; and certainly nothing to warrant the Court in departing from the ordinary rule.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Leith contra, said that the Will was sufficiently proved, three attesting witnesses at Benares having been examined by commission. The expense of proving the Will in solemn form, and bringing the witnesses down to Calcutta, was quite uncalled for. It was not necessary in fact, at all, to prove the Wills of Hindoos, or Mahomedans.

The Court considered that they had no discretion. It was certainly not necessary to prove the Wills of Hindoos and Mahomedans.—still, if probate was applied for, the case must be judged by the same rules as those applied to the Wills of British subjects. It was the invariable practice in the case of a testator or testatrix unable to write his or her name, to require a visa voce examination, at all events if the Will was impeached. Any of the next of kin were entitled as of right to call for the proof of the Will in solemn form. The order, therefore, would be that the caveat should stand, the executor to propound and prove the Will in solemn form.

Order accordingly.

STEPHEN V. HUME, AND THE OTHER CAUSES.

This was a petition of relieving as to certain parts of the interlocutory order made in these causes last Sittings.

The Advocate-General, Mr. Clarke, and Mr. Hume appeared on behalf of Mr. E. K. Hume. The object of the petition of relieving was to alter the terms of the order so far as it related to the accruing rents and profits of Mr. Hume's share of the real estate, and that these rents and profits might be paid over to him from time to time. It seemed that this was objected to because so soon it might ultimately appear that Mr. E. K. Hume was indebted to the estate of the testatrix, Mrs. Mariam Hume; and it was argued that the court could not order funds to be paid over to a party who might be ultimately accountable to a larger amount. But the question was whether a reasonable security would not still remain under control of the court, to meet such ultimate probable balance. Now the whole value of the real estate in the hands of the court's receiver was estimated at the very least at 1,60,000, and Mr. Hume's accountability could not under any circumstances extend to his share of that sum. A good deal had been said about a claim in the Mofussil by collateral parties, and the possibility of their obtaining a decree against the whole of this property, to the exclusion of all of the parties now before the court here;—but this was not upon record before the court in any shape, and they could look only to the proceedings before them. If Mr. Hume was not to receive his share of the rents and profits, why were the infant parties to receive theirs?

* Of course none but Attornies, on the roll, can openly practise in the Court; but as suits may appear in person, proceedings are sometimes carried on in their name, but in reality by unqualified persons hanging about the Court.

Mr. Pridgen appeared for Stephen, the elder, and assented to the alteration proposed.

Mr. Leish and Mr. Morton for the infant parties, said they did not absolutely oppose the motion, but they could not take upon themselves the responsibility of consenting on behalf of the infants; and they therefore left the matter in the hands of the court. Independently of the claim pending in the Mofussil, set up by collateral parties, there was quite enough before the court to justify them in declining the responsibility of giving a consent. They had given their consent to the payment over to Mr. Hume of the arrears, amounting to about Rs. 16,000. The case of the maintenance of the infants stood upon totally different grounds. They were not accounting parties like the executors, and their very subsistence depended upon the sum allowed for maintenance out of the funds in court. This proposal, however, would be made on their behalf:—If Mr. Hume would consent to bring into court the disputed Company's paper, about Rs. 66,000, they (the learned counsel) would consent that the future rents and profits should be paid over to him.

The Advocate-General said he could not consent to any such proposal.

The Court said that they were not disposed to alter the order as it stood. The counsel for the infants had stated that they did not oppose the order, but that they withheld their consent,—then they must be taken as objecting parties, and the court would, not pending the account, make any order (except a consent) as to future rents and profits claimed by an accounting party. Skinner v. Sweet, 1 Cowper Rep. 53. The petition therefore would be dismissed, and the order stand as before.

Order accordingly.—Hukaru, June 30.

MEDICAL AND PHYSICAL SOCIETY

Proceedings of a meeting held on the 6th of June 1840.

G. J. Gordon, Esq., formerly of the Hon'ble Company's Medical Service, proposed at the last Meeting by Dr. D. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Richard O'Shaughnessy, was elected a Member of the Society.

MEMBERS PROPOSED.

1. D. Menzies, Esq., Assistant Surgeon, H. M.'s 16th Foot, by the Secretary and Mr. Eginton.

2. W. Faithful, Esq., Assistant Surgeon, Bengal Service, by the Secretary and Dr. O'Shaughnessy.

3. J. McPherson, Esq., Assistant Surgeon, Bengal Service, by the Secretary and Dr. Spry.

4. G. Turner Esq., Assistant Surgeon, Bengal Service, by the Secretary and Dr. Goodvee.

5. Dr. Cardew, Assistant Surgeon, Bengal Service, by the Secretary and Dr. Stewart.

6. Dr. Thompson, Assistant Surgeon, Bengal Service, by the Secretary and Mr. Birt.

The following letters and communications received since last meeting were presented.

1. From Dr. Ostou, late Member of the Medical Board, Bombay, withdrawing from the Society in consequence of his return to Europe.

2. Two large specimens of urinary calculi, weighing the one 1½ ounce, avoirdupois, measuring 2 inches in its long, and 19-12th in its short diameter. The other weighing nearly 3 ounces, avoirdupois measuring in its long diameter 3½ inches. Short diameter 1½ successfully extracted by Dr. McGregor, stationed at Muttra.

3. A communication accompanied with a drawing from Dr. Wise, of disease of the nails, was then read and discussed. The author following the account of Mr. Wardrop, has described the disease under two forms. The accidental and malignant. It is chiefly to the description of the malignant and to its treatment that Dr. Wise's paper refers.

Having found, that the usual application of Lunar Caustic, to the inflamed part, together with constitutional treatment, had been ineffectual in curing the disease, though continued for some months, and consider in that the soft pulpy vascular matrix of the nail, resembled so much the mucous membrane of the mouth, which, when diseased, as in aphthous affections, is treated so satisfactorily with a mixture of borax and honey. Dr. Wise was induced to try this remedy, and with the most marked success. A case illustrative of the treatment is detailed.

3. Mr. Pearson's paper on the local application of Iodine as recommended by Mr. Davis of Hartford, was then read and discussed. A solution of iodine in rectified spirit in the proportion of 40 grains of the former, and one ounce of the latter had been used by him with much benefit as a local application of four cases.

1. In incipient sloughing of the eye-lid consequent upon an operation.

2. In erysipelatous inflammation of the leg in a case of compound fracture when the limb was swollen, glazed and very painful. The part was painted over repeatedly with a solution of iodine with extreme relief to the patient, and to the prevention of all the bad symptoms, such as sloughing which had been feared would take place.

3. A case of ulcer in an old man of 60.

4. In case of inflamed shoulder, the consequence of a fall. In this instance the usual remedies had been tried without effect, when the part was painted over with the solution of iodine, and repeated whenever there was an accession of pain, and with instant relief. In the course of the discussion some of the members adduced cases where the iodine solution had been used with much benefit in gouty inflammations of the foot and rheumatic pain of the joints accompanied with swelling.

4. Dr. Stewart brought to the notice of the Society some cases of icterus, and one of tetanus, which had been treated successfully with ten grain doses of tartaric acid every four hours for six doses.

Dr. Stewart considers its employment in these large doses as very safe, and that in this form it presented a remedy of great power, and very manageable in the treatment of Fever, Spasmodic occlusion so common in Bengal.

5. From J. Barker, Esq. Noacally.

A short notice on the period that men exist between the first impression of cholera, and its full developments, with a sketch of three cases where the disease appears to have been latent three days; the parties fled from Hattah where the cholera was raging to the station of Noarally 12 miles distant; the symptoms of cholera showed themselves after 3 days, and the patients all died whilst not a single case of the disease was known to have occurred at the station of Noarally, except in the person of those who had arrived from Hattah.

6. Dr. Jackson's paper on cachexia, after syphilis or the irregular or maladministration of mercury, in which the hydrochlorate of potash is recommended as an adjunct to diet, cleanliness and rest was then read, in the cases noted the hydrochlorate of potash had been given in doses of 9 grains daily well diluted and persisted in for a fortnight or three weeks with the best effects, and in one instance where the patient had been under previous treatment for nearly 3 weeks without deriving benefit—the use of this remedy, after a continuance of ten days, removed the eruption from several parts of the body and completely healed the many foul ulcers which had existed some weeks.

7. Dr. Steel's communication on a case of scorbatic presented by the Medical Board was read.

8. Dr. Malcolmson's chemical remarks on liver abscess presented by the author.

Medico-Chirurgical Review, Edinburgh Journal, Foreign Medical Review for the past quarter, 4 numbers of the Lancet, and Medical Gazette, two numbers of the Encyclographides Sciences Medicales were laid before the meeting.

Hulk, June 10.]

GENERAL SUMMARY OF NEWS.

The month of June has not been laden with events of very great interest; and our position is almost precisely the same, as when our last Summary was compiled. Our friends in England are, doubtless, more anxious, at this juncture, for news from China than from any other part of the globe; but we are sorry to say that the intelligence, which we have to offer, is of a meagre and unsatisfactory character; as we have little to report of what has been done and know still less of what is to be done. The Expedition under Commodore Bremner sailed from Singapore, in fine order, on the 30th of May. The Admirals sailed from the Cape in the Melville on the 30th of April, but no direct intelligence of his proceedings has yet reached us. The Moderate, which sailed in company with the Melville from the Cape, was spoken on the 12th of June, in Lat. 5-30 N.—Long. 91-7 East. As she had put into the Mauritius, the Admiral must have been considerably a-head. We have intelligence from China to the 12th of May, and it appears, that in spite of the boasts of the Central flowery nation, and their vaunted contempt for us out-side, red-bristled barbarians, they do not anticipate, with very great pleasure, or even with an entire sense of security, our projected Martial visit to Canton. Edicts have been issued, offering a high rate of pay to every one willing to join the celestial army; but this had not been the means of increasing, to any extent, the Chinese force. The women of the coast had been sent into the interior; and other preparations made against our arrival, although the paucity of our numbers was a standing joke in Siam, as well as in China. A deputation from the latter place had proceeded to Ava, but we know not with what intent. Thundering edicts have been issued against Opium, and the drug, according to the latest advices, was selling at 700 dollars a chest.

Next to our relations with China, the state of affairs in Afghanistan is most interesting to our home readers. We announced in our last, that the Ghilzees were in a state of rebellion, and that a division was about to take the field to reduce them to subjection. A detachment under Captain William Anderson, of the Horse Artillery, fell in with a large body of these refractorics, on the 16th of May, not far from Tazee, and dispersed them in gallant style. Since this, Brigadier Wallace has taken the field, accompanied by a son of Shah-Soojah, but we have as yet heard little of their movements. Dost Mahommed is at Bokhara, and has been most kindly treated by the King of that place, who, it is reported, intends to confer on the Dost the Governorship of Balkh. Colonel Stoddart, on the other hand, has been most cruelly ill-used—imprisoned, insulted and compelled to pronounce the Mahommedan creed. Favorable accounts, extending to the 18th of May, have been received from Herat; and every thing was quiet in the neighbourhood of Bameean, where a detachment still continues, in very uncomfortable quarters. Reports of the discomfiture of the Russian Force, some forty or fifty marches from Khiva, has reached us, via Herat, confirming those received from home.

In Bengal, few events of any importance have occurred since our last dispatch. We have had most extraordinary weather, and the Indigo Planters have been in despair. For a week, between the 15th and 22nd ultimo, the fall of rain was almost unprecedented. There has been little or none during the last week, and we hope that the Indigo crops may not be quite so bad, as was anticipated. A little excitement was created, about the second week of May, by a strange freak which the Governor of Chandernagore played off on the person of the Revd. Mr. O'Sullivan—the Roman Catholic Chaplain to her Majesty's troops at Chinsurah, who was commissioned to disburse certain monies belonging to the Marine Charity Fund. The Revd. gentleman was ordered by the Chandernagore Governor, to deliver over this money to the authorities, and upon his refusing to do so, was cast into prison—where he remained for some days and was only released upon a strong remonstrance being made, through Mr. Barlow, by the Governor-General. The Metcalf Building is to be erected on the site of the present Sailors' Home, and Mr. C. K. Robinson, one of our Police Magistrates, is to be the architect thereof. There has been much discussion regarding this in the papers; and loud cries of "Job—Job." Everything is jobbed in Calcutta; and there is little prospect of a change for the better. Steam affairs are at as low an ebb as possible; considerable disinclination to play second fiddle having been evinced by certain influential parties, a very fine discord has been produced. The old proverb of "Union is strength," which is generally considered to have some truth in it, has been voted mostly and out-of-date; and "every man for himself" is the motto substituted in its place. The consequence is, that we are further off than ever from the accomplishment of the grand desideratum. Our last Mails, which left London on the 4th of May, reached Calcutta on the 1st of July, having been brought from Aden in a Collier.

Amongst the deaths, we are sorry to have to record those of Major John Cartwright, Assistant Adjutant-General of Artillery, and of Captain R. Pemberton, Officiating Government Agent at Moorsheadabad—two highly valuable officers and esteemed good men. The former died at Dum-Dum early in May, and the latter at Moorsheadabad towards the end of the same month—both of them widely regretted.

Some lamentable cases of shipwreck have occurred at Bombay, and Aden has been again attacked by the Arabs.

MISCELLANEA.

Calcutta.

THE CROPS—The accounts of the crops, generally, during the month, have been favorable, but in consequence of the great quantity of rain, that has lately fallen, great loss of the indigo plant is apprehended.

THE CHANGES IN THE SECRET AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.—All the Armenian clerks in the Secret and Political Department have been discharged, because they have been in the habit of furnishing copies of the resolutions and the correspondence of Government for the use of King Tharawadee, of Ava, for which they have been liberally rewarded by the agent of that monarch in Calcutta.

In consequence of this shameful betrayal of state secrets, the following form of affidavit has been drawn up, which all the uncovenanted assistants employed in the office in question, will have to enter into. The affidavit runs thus:—

I swear, that I will be true and faithful to the trust reposed in me as an assistant in the office to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Secret Department, at Fort William in Bengal. That I will not disclose any resolutions, letters, or proceedings of the Governor-General of India in Council, or of the Court of Directors, of the East India Company for the time being. That I will be careful of all its records entrusted to my care to the utmost of my power and abilities, preserve them in the Secretary's office with secrecy, suffering no one to peruse them, but with the approbation of the said Governor-General of India in Council, or the said Court of Directors. That I will not transmit in any letter or letters I may at any time write, to any person or persons whatever, any information of any occurrence or occurrences that shall or may come to my knowledge by virtue of the office, which I now hold or may hereafter hold in this department. And that I will preserve the same secrecy at all times and in all places, after I may have left this department, except when I shall be legally required and bound to reveal the same.

In reference to the above affidavit it is the opinion of the Chief Magistrate, Mr. McFarlan, that it is not at all binding on the clerks, and that in order to render it effectual and obligatory, a bye-law or regulation is necessary.

ROAD ROBBERIES—Twenty five cooly robbers have been apprehended by Mr. McCann. The following is the manner in which the robberies used to be committed. Before setting out for adventure, the gang made it a practice to arrange matters in a general meeting. The coolies among them then, on the day appointed, assembled near the Treasury as beca coolies waiting for hire, some of them being provided with cloth umbrellahs. In case of a job offering, they ran for it, and if one of the party proved successful, no never failed to enquire the destination of the money bag, so as to be heard by his comrades. He then followed the sircar in charge of the bag, and always kept as close as possible to avoid the shadow of a suspicion. His comrades, however, with their umbrellahs also, accompanied, passing themselves off as common way-farers. In this way they would go on till a carriage, or a buggy, happened to come in the way, when in affecting to get out of the passage, the man with the bag would contrive to get on the opposite side of the road from the sircar, for whom to loose sight of him being their principal object, which being once done, an open umbrella would immediately be handed to the man with the bag, who shouldering it closely, would effectually elude the recognition of the sircar, for he little thinking that any body with an umbrella could be the coolie, would be anxiously looking round and enquiring about if any body had seen a man with a bag, while at the same time the man and the bag were every moment gaining ground. In cases also when possible, the gang themselves would endeavour to put the sircar on a wrong scent, by pretending to have seen a man with the bag. Of course, before the squire could even inform his employers, the money bag would be far away with the cooler—and perhaps safely deposited in the robber's exchequer. It was customary, however, for them to carry the money to Jorantuko generally, where an individual of respectable appearance and attired like a baboon, would be waiting, who hiring a palkee and taking the bag with him, would proceed to the house of Muddoosdan Aduck, the head quarters of this gang.

BENGAL MILITARY FUND—The pensions of the widows dependent on the Bengal Military Fund, is to be paid quarterly instead of half yearly for the future.

INUNDATION—The country about Culmcepole is completely under water, and all communication between it and the out divisions, is stopped. From Midnapore to Tamlook the country is entirely laid waste, and develops marks of violence in all quarters.

FOOD FOR THE QUIN NONGS—It is stated on respectable authority, that despatches have been received from Kliwa and Catmando of great importance, and it is said, that they relate to the state of affairs in those quarters, which are assuming a very critical aspect.

Of late also, the Government here, in order to keep the Court of Directors and the Board of Control in possession of the earliest and most important news, write what are called "News Letters" once a week, of each of which twenty copies are prepared and sent home.

MILITARY ITEMS—Capt. the Hon'ble W. G. Osborne of H. M. 26th Regt of Cameronians, has been appointed Deputy Assistant Adjutant General to the Force.

Colonel Oglander has taken command of the Cameronians, to the great joy of the Regiment. Captain Cairne had consequently joined his company.

BENGAL MILITARY ORPHAN FUND—A notice published on the 27th of June, announces that the vote of the subscribers to the Bengal Military Orphan Fund is in favor of abolishing the Boys' School at Kidderpore, and that in future the male wards shall be educated in Europe.

NATIVE MILITARY APOTHECARIES—In addition to the sixty or seventy young Mahomedans, who have already entered the Medical College to prepare themselves for holding regimental appointments of native apothecaries, there were nine young men more sworn in yesterday as having joined the College.

NEW HOSPITALS—A new hospital, designed chiefly to benefit indigent Christians, will shortly be established by Mr. Chas. Dundas Mitchell, if he should be sufficiently aided by subscriptions from the public.

It is in the contemplation of Government to establish a hospital at Moorshedabad for the accommodation of the native public, the poorer portion of whom in Moorshedabad, being in total want of medical treatment in cases of sickness, will experience much benefit from an institution of this nature.

CAPT. R. B. PEMBERTON—We regret much that it is our duty to announce the death of Captain R. B. Pemberton, of the 4th N. I., Officiating Agent to the Governor-General at Moorshedabad. This melancholy event occurred, we believe, on Friday last, at the above place. Captain Pemberton was a talented and most valuable officer, whose loss will be felt by the Government, as well as by a large circle of relatives and friends. He was for some years in the Survey Department, and distinguished himself by a Report on the South Eastern Frontier, (forwarded to Government in 1830) giving a complete description of the provinces of Assam, Manipoor, Cachar, Arracan and other parts further eastward. This report was not published; but in 1838, Captain Pemberton was sent on a mission to Hootan, for the purpose of effecting arrangements, calculated to control the predatory extravagancies of the border chiefs; he was received most courteously and respectfully by the Deb; but was necessitated to return, without accomplishing the object of his mission, so weak and timorous was the party, with whom he was sent to negotiate. Captain Pemberton, however, returned laden with information, concerning the countries which he had traversed, and in the course of the following year (1839) the results of his journey were laid before the public, in the form of a most interesting and valuable report, with which the reading community is familiar. About this time, Captain Pemberton was appointed to officiate, during the absence of Colonel Caulfield, as the Governor-General's Agent at Moorshedabad, in which capacity he died, on Friday, the 26th, much and deservedly regretted.

CASE OF THE REV. MR. O'SULLIVAN—The following is an account of a most arbitrary proceeding on the part of the Chandernagore authorities.

"We have to record the fact of a most arbitrary proceeding on the part of the acting administrator of the affairs of Chandernagore, or as he is officially styled, Officier de service, who has unjustifiably incarcerated in jail the Reverend Mr. O'Sullivan, a British subject and a Roman Catholic Chaplain in her Majesty's troops at Chinsurah, in the service of the East India Company. This reverend gentleman has for some months past afforded spiritual aid to the Catholics of Chandernagore under the direction of the Right Reverend Dr. Thibaut, Vicar Apostolic of Bengal, who had been selected both by the Prefect Apostolic of Pondicherry and the administrator pro tem, to provide a priest for that settlement. The Bishop not having a clergyman to spare for that special purpose, the Lordship desired Mr. O'Sullivan to attend to the wants of the Catholics of that place, when his other avocations at Chinsurah would permit; and it was agreed that the priest was to receive a certain allowance from the French Government for any service he may render to that church &c. By this arrangement he virtually became the Curate of Chandernagore, enjoying the same rights and privileges as his predecessors.

Last Sunday, after the discharge of his duties at Chinsurah, Mr. O'Sullivan went to Chandernagore, to distribute the monthly charity bequeathed by the late General Claude Martine to the widows and orphans resident in that settlement. Immediately on his arrival he wrote to one of the Magistrates requesting his attendance at the church to witness (as he had before done on several similar occasions) the proper distribution of the charity. The Magistrate came forthwith, and, to the surprise of the priest, demanded on the part of Monsieur Officier de service all the money in his possession belonging to the charity. Mr. O'Sullivan peremptorily declined, declaring that as he alone, and not the Administrator or any officer of the Government, was responsible to Mr. Grant of the Supreme Court at Calcutta, who entrusted the money to his charge for distribution to the poor of Chandernagore, according to the tenor of the last Will and Testament of the deceased, he could not suffer the money to go out of his custody without being guilty of a breach of trust. On the Mr. O'Sullivan was conducted to the house of the great Monsieur, before whom he reiterated his reasons for not complying with the mandate of the Magistrate.

In consequence of this refusal; he was immediately committed, by order of the said Officer, to the common jail; his horses and buggy were destroyed, and the almshouse in the church, in which Mr. O'Sullivan had deposited the money, sealed with the seal of the court. The room where the Reverend gentleman is imprisoned is damp and dirty, and since Monday, all intercourse with him is prohibited, not even permitting the venerable Dr. Pezzoni, the late Bishop of Agra, who is at present staying at Chandernagore, to see him. Thus no person, whether lay or clerical, is admitted to give him any advice or assistance in this dilemma, thus debaring him from making known his distresses and wants, and we are not certain whether he is permitted to write to his friends without having the letters intercepted. On the first day of Mr. O'Sullivan's confinement, a gentleman of that place, well known as much for his hospitality as for his charity, supplied him with victuals, a bed and other necessities which the jail, or rather an apology for one, did not afford, but the comfort of a good meal was denied to him on the next day, and a humbler fare has since been served from a tavern by order of the Governor.

Can it be supposed for a moment a Frenchman who glories in the cry of vive la liberté could be capable of imprisoning a British subject a priest, on a Sunday, without trial or warrant, or even without a shadow at a crime, unless it be a crime to refuse servile obedience to an unreasonable demand of a man in temporary authority? The charges, advanced as a pretext for his being placed in durance vile, are that Mr. O'S. acted against the laws of the colony in having received a sum of money from the Supreme Court of Calcutta without the permission of the Officer de service, and that all charity monies distributed in the settlement must be subject to the inspection and become amenable to any rule the Governor may prescribe. No other Carates obtained such permission nor submitted to such surveillance; therefore why should Mr. O'Sullivan do more than his duty required, although he always took the precaution of requesting the attendance of a Magistrate to witness the distribution?

We are assured that the inhabitants of Chandernagore, both Catholics and Protestants, are highly indignant at the conduct of the Officer, and we are told that even the officers of the Government are almost unanimous in condemning the illegal proceeding of their Chief.

This affair has come officially before Lord Auckland who called on the authorities of Chandernagore for an explanation of this extraordinary and despotical conduct towards Mr. O'Sullivan, and demanded his immediate liberation from jail; and they were at length been led to see the expediency of delivering up the corpus of the Rev. O'Sullivan, together with the money the Reverend gentleman had with him.

THE NEW THEATRE.—The new theatre is progressing rapidly, and the workmanlike manner in which it is being built does great credit to Mr. Collins. Already the walls are about thirteen feet high, all the windows are prepared, and those on the Southern side already put in. The entire arrangements of the building appear to promise every accommodation both to audience and actors. The green room and dressing rooms will be particularly commodious. The boxes will contain about three hundred persons, and the pit one hundred and fifty. The back of the house is to the southward, but this was a matter of necessity as it would have been impossible to make an entrance at that end of the compound, and its breadth would not admit a drive round. The roof of the body of the house, however, will be considerably more lofty than the stage roof, and will have windows on every side. There will be punkabs also in the hot weather, and the theatre will, perhaps, on the whole, be the best ventilated building in Calcutta. It is known, that a commission has been sent home for actresses, and an aspirante is qualifying herself here. Performances will commence from the first to the fifteen of December next, and it is understood that though there may be some secessions, there are to be powerful accessions to the corps dramatique. At present every thing promises well.

THE WEATHER.—The weather during the greater part of the past month, has been most disagreeable. It has rained almost incessantly and strong gusts of wind have prevailed almost the whole time.

MR. J. C. MARSHMAN.—An official letter has been sent to Mr. Marshman, requesting him to commence the publication of the Government Gazette in the vernacular, from July next.

MAJOR CARTWRIGHT.—Only a few days have elapsed since we announced, and with much pleasure, the appointment of Major John Cartwright of the Artillery to the Superintendence of the Cossipore Gun Foundry,—it is now our painful duty to announce the death of that valuable officer. He was seized with cholera on Sunday evening, and having neglected to call in timely medical advice, the symptoms of his malady were alarmingly increased on the following morning, and on Tuesday, a little after noon, he expired, most sincerely and deservedly regretted, by all who had the happiness of his acquaintance. But not by his private friends alone will Major Cartwright's loss be felt, for the Government have lost one of their most valuable servants—one, whom they could ill afford to spare, at the present juncture. He was—take him for all in all—the most valuable Artillery Officer in the service, and we little doubt that all his brother officers will willingly echo the words: Equally distinguished in the regimental, as in the official department, his career has been one of the greatest utility to the state and of the highest honour to himself. When a subaltern, in Osterlony's division he distinguished himself by his intrepid gallantry, on the heights of Maloun, in April 1815. When the British position at Deothal was furiously attacked by a large body of Ghoorkhas, who directed their most energetic endeavours against our guns, and succeeded so far as to incapacitate every gunner, but one, Lieutenant Cartwright, with the sole surviving mattress, worked one of the field-pieces, whilst Lieuts. Huthinson and Armstrong worked the other. This gallant conduct was justly styled "heroic" by the Commander-in-Chief in General Orders, and from that time Lieut. Cartwright's professional reputation was made. He was subsequently appointed Adjutant of the Colindauze Battalion, and in 1817 was with the Rocket Troop, at Hattessa. He held the Adjutancy of the 4th or Colindauze Battalion, up to the year 1824, when he was appointed to the Ordnance Commissariat Department, in which he remained until 1835 when he was transferred to the Assistant-Adjutant-Generalship of Artillery, which appointment he continued to hold, until death deprived the state of his further services. He had just been requested by the Governor-General to officiate during the absence of Colonel Progreve, at the Cossipore Foundry, to which he would have removed in a few days, but for the melancholy circumstance we are recording.

No officer in the army was more esteemed as a man, or more highly regarded as a soldier, than was the subject of this brief eulogium. Mild, affable and unassuming, he was beloved by men of every rank; and there are few, in the Regiment of Artillery who have not, at some time or other, experienced his courtesy and kindness. He was an excellent official servant, and the precision, with which he conducted the extensive business of his office, was equal to the readiness and willingness, which he showed to meet

The wishes of all parties applying to him. As a practical scientific officer he had few superiors in the service, and his long experience in the Ordnance Commissariat Department, had rendered him an authority on all matters connected with gunnery, which was rarely not to be implicitly relied upon. Of his worth as a man, little need he say more, than that his death is most sincerely regretted, and that there are many who will long hold in remembrance his numerous excellent characteristics, and look in vain, amongst his survivors, for his equal.

ACCIDENT.—The river has been much agitated during all the present rains, and great injury has been sustained among the native boats. A wreck was seen, floating up the Auckland Channel, and proved to be a Choolea brig. It appears that the sloop had met with bad weather in the Bay of Bengal and was dismasted and sprung a leak; the crew, which were nine in number, would no doubt have met a watery grave, had it not been for Captain Henrieks, of the brig Madras, who opportunely picked them up just as the vessel was about to sink. Upon the arrival of the Captain, he informed the Police of the circumstance, and as they were destitute and perfect strangers, the Chief Magistrate deputed a constable to bring them, and gave orders that they should be provided with victuals. As until a vessel could be obtained for them, the men stated that when they were picked up, they had not tasted a morsel of food for four days.

RAJAH RAJNARAIN.—Rajah Rajnarain Roy, has been excluded from the list of visitors at the Government-house, in consequence of his conduct in re Sree Nauth Roy, the editor of the Bhaskar.

RAJAH KISSEY NAUTH ROY.—Rajah Kissen Nauth Roy intends to establish a Sanscrit College in zillah Moorshedabad. He is looking out for a suitable place between Syddabad and Berhampore, for the accommodation of the institution.

INDIAN MUTUAL AND LAUDABLE LIFE INSURANCE SOCIETY.—The Indian Mutual and Laudable Life Insurance Society is already in a position to return to the subscribers for the whole of the current half year ending on the 30th instant, no less than 15 per cent. of the premiums paid on each life, after making ample provision for all contingences.

SUICIDE.—On the morning of the 21st of June, about ten o'clock, Mr Wm Barrett, jun, committed suicide at his house in Puddoosookur. He took his seat at the breakfast table in his usual manner, after which he proceeded into the compound, where he placed the butt end of a loaded fowling-piece on the ground, and braving his body over the muzzle, pulled the trigger with his foot—the ball struck his heart, it is supposed, for he did not live many minutes after. The cause of the painful occurrence was a love affair with a Miss Rose D'Silva.

ADMIRAL ELLIOTT.—The Eudora, which has arrived during the week, reports as follows:

June 12th, Lat. 5-30 N. Long. 91-7 East. I was boarded by H. M. S. Modeste, who reported that she left the Cape of Good Hope on the 30th April, in company with Admiral the Hon'ble George Elliott, C. B., in the Melville, 74, and the Blonde, 48, bound for Singapore and China, the Plyader, 18, had sailed for the same place on the 25th of April. The Modeste had been to the Mauritius and Mayhe, and reported that Sir Lionel Smith was daily expected at the Mauritius in the Andromache.

The Blenheim, 74, Orestes, 18; Columbine, 16, an Nimrod were under orders for China.

THE MEDICAL BOON MEMORIAL.—The Medical Boon Memorial is now before Government, and will shortly be despatched to the Court of Directors.

BUGLARIES, &c.—Very many cases of burglary and theft have been reported this week also.

CAPTAIN DYCEY.—It is said that Captain Dycey, who commands the Madagascar steamer, has been appointed an Acting Master by the Commodore, in order to enable the Madagascar to share in the operations on the Chinese coast.

MR HABERLET.—Mr Haberlet, one of the oldest clerks in the Police Office, has been charged, by an ex-Nath of that establishment, with having received a bribe of fifty rupees from him, in order to entertain the bar' he had tendered. Mr. Haberlet has been called upon for an explanation, but whether he has rendered a satisfactory one, or not, has not transpired.

BUGLARIES, &c.—Burglaries seem to be on the increase. Several have been reported during the month, and we are happy to say, that, through the exertions of that active and indefatigable individual, Mr. Metcalf, several burglars have been apprehended, and it is thought that, through their instrumentality, many more will be brought to justice.

THE HINDU PIONEER.—The report that Capt. D. L. Richardson and Mr Middleton, were about to edit conjointly a periodical entitled the Hindu Pioneer, for the reception of contributions by the students of the Hindu College, is not quite correct. A work of the same kind was once before established by the alumni of the College, but it was not countenanced by the authorities of that institution, and it had but a brief existence. Some of the youths of the 1st and 2nd classes, were lately very much disposed to revive the work, but there were some difficulties in the way; and, though they had got Captain Richardson to write an introduction, all idea of the publication was abandoned.

CRUEL MURDER.—The mistress of a man named Kistopersaul, because she would not consent to receive the embraces of a man named Chakda, was murdered by Kistopersaul, his uncle, and Chakda. The three villains, after murdering the woman, threw her body into a tank, but the corpse floated and led to the detection of the murderers.

FEARS OF POWER.—One of the Magistrates of the Calcutta Police, has been playing a few of these characteristic fantastic tricks, which Shakespeare says, do make the angels weep, and has been punishing a man because he wished to keep his own wife unto himself, and his domicile free from the intrusion of a bullying brother-in-law.

THE ARIEL AFFAIR.—Captain William Warden, of the Ariel, appeared at the Police Office on the 19th instant, in consequence as it is already known, of a charge being preferred against him by the Post Office authorities, for delaying to deliver up certain packet brought up by him from Singapore, contrary to Regulation 17 of 1837.

The Deputy Post Master, however, intimated that the Post Master General was not quite prepared to prosecute the charge immediately, and as the Ariel is immediately to start for China, the case has been postponed till Capt. Warden's return, he having entered into his own recognizance in the sum of a thousand rupees to make his appearance at the Police on his return. Capt. Warden denies the charge.

ASSAULT ON A SHERIFF'S OFFICER.—Richard Plummer and James Charles Kiernan, were brought up to the Police office, on the 19th instant to enter into recognizances for their appearance at the ensuing Sessions, in consequence of a charge preferred against the former, for assaulting Thomas Brown, a Sheriff's Officer, in the execution of a writ and rescuing his prisoner from him, and the latter for also assaulting Thomas Brown and preventing the execution of a writ.

The warrant against Plummer only was executed, and not on Kiernan, who came to the office voluntarily.

After some conversation it was determined to allow the matter to pend in the magistrate's court till such time as the Deputy Sheriff has determined what course to take.

This case occupied nearly the whole day, up to a late hour in the evening. A great deal of bandying of legalities, and interesting discussions of nice technical distinctions, took place between the Deputy Sheriff, the Magistrate, and Mr. Shaw, much to the edification of all parties present; but the fruits of the day's proceedings exceeded every thing else in interest and importance.

There were two writs out against Kiernan, one from the Sheriff's office, the other from the Police office. He had been rescued from an arrest by the former, while had the latter been executed, it would entitle him to protection from being captured. But the Police warrant had not been executed, nor did it appear that Kiernan attended the office from any intimidation from the Magistrate to do so; and since Kiernan's examination was concluded, and he had already been told by the Magistrate to enter into his recognizance in the sum of five hundred rupees, to make his appearance from day to-day at the police office, Brown thought himself entitled to recapture his rescued prisoner. Hereupon Kiernan eluded himself behind Mr. Shaw. Mr. Shaw looked very ruffled, and Mr. Robinson severely taxed the Constable for not executing the warrant all this time. Mr. Henderson looked stern and in fact a universal change came over the spirit of all parties present. At length Mr. Robinson ordered the Constable to execute the warrant immediately, which being done, Mr. Robinson informed the Sheriff's officer that he could not now capture or in any way molest Kiernan. Brown at this looked crestfallen, Kiernan got out from behind his attorney's clan, and various, were the injurious given on this uncommon subject, by those who were in the room. After Kiernan had left the Police, however, the mounted Brown, deterred by the Magistrate's protective procedure, went up to him, to arrest him. Kiernan offered legal aid to the officer, who, not being satisfied at such security, pursued him with the warrant. Kiernan had the advantage at first, and outstripped Brown, but happening to slip in a puddle, he fell, and, being captured, was marched off to prison.

LIVES OF THE GOVERNORS-GENERAL OF INDIA.

—Baboo Pearinmohun Mitter contemplates compiling and translating into the Bengalee language sketches of the lives of all the Governors General that have severally presided over the destiny of British India.

ROBBERY AT THE MINE.—It appears that about eighty-two talaks of granulated gold, valued more than hundred and fifty rupees, have been stolen from the Mint and Mr. Carnin, the Assay Master, yesterday took to the Police a military attached to the mine, and charged him with having had in his possession a quantity of granulated gold. Mr. Carnin, upon suspicion, also accused five other mistries as accessories. Depositions were taken, and the case is yet pending.

FAIR AT MAHESHW.—On the 18th instant, the annual fair of Chan-jutta was held at Mahesh, near Serampore. The number of people present, with the ceremony of chana or bathing took place, was between 80 or 40,000; and the greater portion of them were women. The people, especially the women, suffered very much in consequence of the weather, which was rainy, and there not being enough space to accommodate so vast a multitude.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—A little after 8 o'clock on the morning of the 18th instant, about thirty feet of roofing, which the last heavy rain on the 18th instant had increased in weight considerably, from the circumstance of the water having soaked into it, fell with a tremendous crash; but in consequence of the accident having occurred so early, the personal injury was comparatively but trifling, ten persons only being found in the ruins. None of these were severely hurt, and they have been sent to the hospital.

LEGACY OF A DYING THIEF.—A Mahomedan was taken to the Native Hospital on the 13th instant, attacked with the cholera. The means used for his recovery failed of effect, and the man continued to grow worse, till the symptoms became alarming and he became satisfied that his days were soon to be numbered. It appeared that he had about his person a silver watch, with a silver guard chain, and the sum of six hundred rupees in Bank notes, which property in the prospect of death, the dying man in a sudden fit of generosity, made over to one of his apprentices of the Institution in the regular form of last will and testament. The circumstance, however, appearing suspicious, the Hospital Surgeon informed the Police of it. The Deputy Superintendent repaired to the Hospital, and took down the dying declaration of the man, which was to the purport, that about eleven days ago he retained to Chhutta from Malacca, an servant to a ship officer. That the watch belonged to him, and the notes he had purchased in the Bura Bazar. It has, however, transpired, that the watch and the notes all belong to Mr. Kelly, of the Hawrah Hospital, being part of the property of which he was robbed on the night of the late government works. The legacy, therefore, is in custody of the Police instead of the Registrar's office, and the Hospital apprentice must wait till he gets it.

THE LORD VENERA.—The ship Lord Amhurst, while proceeding down the river, on her way to China, got a ground, but she floated again, and has proceeded on her voyage.

PAPER FOR PRINTING THE SCRIPTURES.—The Court of Directors have granted all duty on paper imported here, for the purpose of printing the Scriptures.

SHIPMENT OF ASSAM TEA.—The number of chests of Assam tea about to be shipped for England this season, is one hundred and twenty.

THE SAILORS' HOME.—Government have finally consented to give the site of the Sailors' Home for the erection of the building which is to afford accommodation for the Public Library, the Agricultural Society, and to act at the same time as the Metcalfe Testimonial.

Lord Auckland has subscribed one thousand rupees to the funds of the Home.

ON FIRE.—It is generally bruted, that the alumnus of the Hindoo College are about to get up a paper to be styled the Hindoo Pioneer, the literary department of which is to be under the superintendence of Capt. D. L. Richardson, the Principal, and the scientific department under the supervision of Mr. Middleton, the head Master of the College.

FORGERY.—Thomas Manson, against whom a case of forgery on the house of McKean, Lyall and Co. was not long ago discovered, which case is yet to be sent up to the Supreme Court, has, it appears, been committing forgery in more than one-quarter. It has just been brought to the notice of the police, that he has played the same trick on the house of Messrs. Cockerell and Co. He succeeded in passing off a forged document, purporting to be a draft, drawn by Mr. Clark, the well known Hindoo Plaintiff of Bhugwan-golah, for the sum of two hundred rupees, on the house of Cockerell and Co., and in favor of himself.

The forgery has recently been discovered by Mr. Clark.

himself, to whom the draft had been sent in the course of accounts.

THE CHINESE CULTIVATORS OF THE ASSAM TEA COMPANY.—No less than two hundred and fifty Chinamen were brought to the Police on the 1st instant, under the following circumstances.—These men are cultivators and were regularly engaged by the Tea Company to cultivate their lands at Assam.—Under this engagement they were proceeding to their destination in charge of two European Superintendents, Messrs. Milne and Hart. On their way they had to touch at Pabna, when the European Superintendents went on shore with dogs and by some means created a disturbance with the local people. The Superintendents got worried. They then came on board and took a gang of the Chinese with them to revenge the insult, when the affair assumed a serious aspect and ended in the loss of life, as has already been published in this paper. The Chinese were placed under custody by the authorities at Pabna, and after due investigation released, when, instead of prosecuting their journey to Assam, the Superintendents informed them that their services were not required and told them to go about their business. Not knowing what to do with themselves, this large body of helpless men have come to Calcutta. Their arrival, however, under these circumstances in Calcutta, and the fact that they are utterly destitute of every means of subsistence, led the Superintendent of police to bring them before the Chief Magistrate, as so large a body of men, so destitute, and without any provision, would only become a vagrant and thieves in the city. The Chief Magistrate has taken down the statement of one of two of the men, and is written to Mr. Hargreaves of the Tea Company to be informed of the real facts of the case.

In the mean time it is intended to board and lodge these Chinese at the public expence, for which purpose a house at a rent of 30 rupees a month has already been engaged. These Chinese were originally brought from Singapore, and it is expected, that, as their services are not required, they should be sent home at the expence of the parties who brought them round.

MESSES RYKEMAN AND HARDMAN.—Messrs Rykeman and Hardman, who recently advertised a concert to take place at the Town Hall, have left Calcutta suddenly, on account of having incurred a great many debts. Mr. Burkhynag, of the musical establishment, appeared before the magistrate, and entered an affidavit to the effect that Mr. Hardman had lately borrowed a sum of three hundred rupees from him on a promise to repay the loan by allowing a deduction to his salary. Mr. Hardman also took the loan of some music from the establishment. He then took leave for a few days, stating that he was going on a trip to Chundernagore. The leave was granted, and he kept away from his duties, but it has been ascertained that he has taken a passage on the Columbiere, which left town on Monday last. On Mr. Burkhynag's affidavit, the usual process was issued against Mr. Hardman.

SALE OF LANDED PROPERTY.—The sale on the 25th instant, at Messrs. Toller and Co's. of landed property in and about Calcutta, did not go off very briskly. Four houses were sold at good prices—two in Park Street for Rs. 18,500, and 20,000 respectively, and two in Theatre Street for 25,299 and 26,500. None of the rest of the property advertised, except a few plots of garden ground found purchasers, the upset prices being too high.

THE CLIPPER LANE.—The clipper brig Lane, carrying 207½ tons, was put up at auction on the 25th instant, and disposed of for a sum of 2,400 rupees.

CURATOR PRO TEM.—For the benefit of those who are in the habit of transacting business in the Court of Requests, we publish a copy of the following notice which have lately been hung up in the Court.

Notice.

1. As it is desirable to facilitate the adjustment of all suits, it is ordered that from and after the 1st of July next ensuing, plaintiff shall state in his chirochoot the value of the claim he may have against his defendant as carefully as possible, which said claim shall be copied into the summons, and shall be inserted at the foot thereof in legible character, both in English and Benguee, as the case may be.

2. Inconvenience having arisen under the present system of allowing suiters to delay adjustments of the costs of postponement until the termination of the suit, it is ordered that from and after the 1st July next ensuing, upon the plaintiff or defendant requiring postponement, the costs of such postponement shall be deposited in Court before the next day of hearing of the case, and a receipt from the chief clerk produced to the sitting Commissioner on the day of such hearing. In failure of which the Commissioners, at their discretion, will proceed to judgment with or without reference to the ground of such postponement.

THE CHRISTOPHER RAWSON AND CASHMERE MERCHANT.—Two vessels, the Christopher Rawson and Cashmere Merchant, were put up at auction. The former a fine teak built vessel of 900 tons burthen, was disposed of to Mr. Joseph Dawson, for the sum of 67,000 rupees. The Cashmere Merchant, of 364 tons, was bought in at 11,500 rupees.

THE TEN THOUSAND.—The ten thousand was drawn to No 2594, on Saturday last. Mr. John Colclough is the fortunate owner of the ticket.

MR R LOCKEN.—Mr. Master Pilot R Locken, Pilot of the ship Kelbain, Captain J. Shaw, from Greenock, fell overboard on the night of the 23d instant, near Sangoi, during the severe gale, and has not since been heard of. This accident, we understand, occurred a short time after he had boarded the vessel. We have not heard of any further particulars.

BURDWAN.—The following is an extract from a letter just received from Burdwan—

"Owing to the incessant heavy falls of rain, Burdwan was yesterday threatened by an inundation, the damooder having risen to an awful height, but providentially the winds gave way about 5 miles below, and thus saved Burdwan. It carried away part of Hooghly road near Mysoree. Had the winds near Kanchanagur broke the station would have suffered, in fact the water made a breach in the embankment, but the Rajah of Burdwan sent 300 coolies to fill up the gap, and by this timely precaution a great calamity was prevented. The natives were greatly alarmed, and some were securing their property."

MYMUNSIING.—A letter from the Mymunsiing district, dated 25th May, says, "We have been deluged with rain for the last five days, and you might sail a Cingee round my dwelling. This will do much injury to the manufacturing operations of this and the Dacca quarter, and greatly reduce the produce, which, up to the present period, has never been good. A number of the factories commenced work on the 10th instant, and now almost all are making preparations for carrying on full work. There is no want of plant, but we have been so often served out by the river, that there is no forming an opinion as to the probable result."

MYNAPORE.—The following is an extract of a letter just received from Dinapore.

"A most horrible occurrence has just taken place here in the family of Mrs. J. B. Garland. It appears that one of the servants, who had been treated with confidence by his mistress, for some cause that is at present unknown, attacked and wounded with a sword all the members of the family, excepting only the youngest child, who was saved on account of his being asleep.

"I regret to add, that Mrs. J. B. Garland has since died of lock-jaw, occasioned by the wounds she received. One of the sons, named Henry, received a cut in the left arm above the wrist, while another, William, had his left hand entirely severed at the wrist, and has received dreadful cuts about the head. An unfortunate young lady, Miss Moohuee, was also most severely and dangerously wounded about the neck, arms and back, the little finger of the right hand being cut clean off. I cannot, in fact, properly describe the state of the poor boys and girl

"The scoundrel who committed this deed has been fortunately captured, and is now in confinement at Patna. He appears to have totally given himself up to despair, and the rascally coward now evinces that want of spirit which induced him to attack a defenceless female, her young children and an unprotected girl. Had not precautionary measures been adopted by the Police authorities, he would certainly have been torn to pieces by the European soldiery, who are highly exasperated. The perpetrator of these horrid crimes, will take his trial so soon as the parties wounded have sufficiently recovered to attend the Court, when I hope I shall have the satisfaction of seeing the villain swing for his barbarity."

BEHAR.—The following is an extract from a letter from Benares.

"We have had a flood here, unprecedented, I believe, in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The Birn overflowed its banks, and inundated a great number of encampments. Many stables and other out-works have been washed down. On the 25th the water rose to within a very few feet of the entrance to the bridge, leading from the encampments to the town. The bridge has stood the pressure, which must have been tremendous, most gallantly.

PURBA.—The following is an extract of a letter from Purba, dated 8th June.

"I am happy to inform you, that the whole of the Chasse, who were accused of allying with robbers and murder here, have been released; no evidence being forthcoming to establish any thing against them, one of the poor savages, however, who, it appears, struck a woman in the court, is sentenced to 6 months imprisonment. This is a very hard case. I shall send you an account to-morrow.

ASSAM.—The following is an extract of a letter from Assam.—The rains have set in, and the weather has been very disagreeable for some time past, hot and cold succeeding each other so rapidly, as to cause a good deal of sickness; cholera has also made its appearance, but has not extended far as yet, confining itself chiefly to the neighbourhood of that sink of iniquity and pestilence, Gowhaty. Up East all is quiet, though report says that the Burmese are making a road through the Shan States near the Keng River over to Jorhat. A vagabond also of a Rajah has come over on a visit, without so much as "be your leave," and is now at our metropolis enjoying his state and diet, to his heart's content. Since the evacuation of Suddyah, the graves of the Rev Mr. Thomas and Miss Brown, buried there, have been dug up by some of the natives, and the bodies exhumed that of the lamented Col. White was not, fortunately, touched, and his remains have been brought to Chalkwah for re-interment. The encroachments of the river rendering it doubtful if the spot would remain this year. A subscription was raised in Assam amongst the private friends of that officer, for the purpose of erecting a monument to his memory, and upwards of 1,600 Rs. having been subscribed, it is resolved, I believe, to appropriate a portion to a monument in his Parish Church in Leith, and the remainder, to a tomb in Assam. This plan is, I hear, now in a fair train of completion. Government were applied to, I believe, to know if they were inclined to erect a monument to so justly respected and talented an officer, but refused. As in the case of poor William Fraser, so it was with Col. White. No order marked the loss the Government had sustained, in the violent and atrocious manner in which these officers met their deaths. Of the Kenghis lately taken, some who had been of the party who killed Col. White, were sent to Gowhatti for execution, but died of jail fever, and so escaped their just deserts."

AGRA.—It is said, that there is some chance of a Medical Class being organized at the College, under the care of the Civil Surgeon of the station, who has, with a spirit of enterprise not frequently met with, undertaken to instruct several of the pupils who will attend a place in the city, in the rudiments of the healing art.

The Head-Quarters of the 4th Battalion of Artillery at present at Agra, will, we learn, positively move from this on the ensuing relief, and will be replaced by a Battalion from Kurnal.

Nothing of the said Lame Relief has, it is said, as yet determined on, as it must be modified by the reports from Afghanistan and the movements of the Nepul.

Major General East is, we are sorry to learn, dangerously ill from inflammation of the lungs. He is now at Meerut, whether he hastened on the commencement of his illness.

There has been an extraordinary affair at Humeerpoor. Sixty 1,200 rupees—horse and foot—seized off, in under-av, a sum of Rs. 5,000 from our Taba khans. The case is under investigation.

Government have refused to erect lines for a second Regiment of Cavalry at Muttra.

HEROWA.—A considerable number of he about 5,000, were brought to here this year, and contrary to all expectation, met with a ready sale.

The Superintendent of the Company's Stud made a show of purchasing, but afterwards withdrew from the market. About 400 animals found their way to the Court at Lucknow, 100 were purchased for the Delhi Bakhsh. The highest realized were from 1,000 to 1,100 rupees.

Tempests rather scarce, and no wonder when such extravagant prices are given for them in Afghanistan.

MEERUT.—A serious affray took place on the night of the 26th May, at the Saddar Bazaar the origin of which has not been properly ascertained, but the consequences are sufficiently evident. The injuries sustained by several men of the 16th Lancers, two of whom are in a dangerous state in the hospital of their Regiment.

The donation of 6 m. this mulla presented to the Begum of the Army. The Indus is said to be M. 1000 on the 20th ultimo and was very acceptable to all classes.

Nocturnal winds, Cholera raging to a considerable extent in the City.

Orders daily expected for all the Regiments in quarters to hold themselves in readiness for active service during the ensuing cold season.

MORADABAD—The Wing of the 81st has been under orders some time to be in readiness to move to Rampore, as the life of the Nawab is very precarious. His Highness got up a large quantity of approved liquor from Calcutta, and has indulged so much as to loose the use of the lower extremities. The Pathans at Rampore are reported to be ready for a scrimmage the moment the breath is out of the Nawab's body.

MUSSONER—The value of estates at this place is increasing amazingly, some which sold for a mere trifle two years ago are in the market at nearly double their cost and finding ready purchasers. An officer about to retire from the service is thinking of establishing a House of Agency. All the Residents are looking out most anxiously for some intelligence about the Road from Rajpore, and are ready to advance their quota towards the completion of so desirable an object. A good road, constructed on scientific principles will enhance the value of estates at Landour and Mussoner at least 10 per cent, and afterwards we may look for the lowering and improving of the Mohan pass Road.

SIMLA—The establishment of a fire insurance office, at Simla, is contemplated.

ELOPMENT—A case of elopement, of a very novel description, occurred recently. Singare Valoo Moolchilly, son of the late Mooroopah Moolchilly of Chintalapettah, a well known arrack and betel contractor, ran away with the widow of the late Rottilla Kistnasawmy Chetty, who, since the death of her husband, has resided with her mother. The frail sister of the deceased Kistnasawmy thinking it well to provide against all contingencies, took with her, on her departure from home, jewels to the value of 20,000 rupees, the greater part of which were not her own property. Justice speedily overtook the guilty pair. Two days after the elopement, the mother of the female delinquent lodged a complaint at the Town Police Office, in consequence of which a warrant for the apprehension of the parties was issued, but before it could be served, Valoo and his companion surrendered themselves. After due examination by the Police authorities, the gallant lover was admitted to bail, and the heroine, divested of all her trinkets, secured in the Justices' jail. Subsequently, through the entreaty of her friends, and on her promising to return with them to her own proper home, she was released from custody.

WANTON VANDALISM—On the evening of the 24th of May, a temporary amateur theatre having been erected on the esplanade, supplied chiefly by juvenile performers, was burst into, while the performance was being proceeded with, by a set of disorderly persons, one of whom pumped on the stage and seized an actor by the shoulders, while others put out the lights, tore the scenery, flung the furniture into the pot, and committed other acts of outrage. A tremendous uproar arose, and a scuffle ensued, when the aggressors were rather roughly handled, and the police interfered, and took them into custody.

THE MAGAZINE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING—At eleven o'clock on the morning of the 7th of June, one of the draining houses of the sewer-work at Mazagon, was struck by lightning; but, fortunately, without any damage, farther than the total demolition of the same, the uprooting of two adjacent trees, knocking down a goodly portion of the compound wall, forcing open the windows and doors of some of the store houses contiguous, and shaking the plaster off the walls of many neighbouring buildings.

Native States.

OWALIOR—A correspondent in the Nizam's territories writes, "There has been something very like mutiny in the 2d Regt. Nizam's Infantry, at Anumangabad. The six ring-leaders have been dismissed by the Resident's orders. I fancy you will shortly be avowed with a second edition of Hyderabad papers. There is a flare-up between W. Palmer and a Sahooni, named Kishan Dass, on one side and F. Dighton on the other. There is no doubt but that the latter will prove himself the high-minded little sent he has ever been considered."

JEYPORE—Jeyapore and its dependencies appear to be in as disorganized and insubordinate a condition as ever. Day after day some fresh outbreak or manifestation of discontent calls forth the best energies of our politicals in these quarters, but, as fast as one petty rebellion is quelled, another springs up. It was but the other day that a battalion of Nijaoobis, who had been on command for the last five years at Hindwan, suddenly got inspired with the prevailing spirit of contumacy, and marched themselves towards Jeyapore, declaring it to be their intention to take up a position in the centre of the city, and to give up their giz guns, endoms, &c. and discharge themselves from service. No plausible reason whatever could be elicited from the troops for this strange procedure, and it is feared that the men have allowed themselves to be seduced by treasonable emissaries, who are busy at work all over the district. There is, however, some clue to the instigators of this absurd plot. On receiving the intelligence of the advance of the battalion, 8 companies of Pelmugas, some Nijaoobis, Cavalry and guns were sent out to meet it, and the rebels were intercepted and surrounded within 20 or 30 miles of Jeyapore; there was some blustering, a little delay, and a good deal of grumbling before discretion got the better of valour, when they yielded to a force prepared to attack them in case of acedid obstinacy.

The Killadir of the Fort of Kharuckjohhere, has recently revolted, and by gaining over a portion of the garrison has secured out the whole of the followers of Rawul Shajee Singh and Luchman Singh, the two worthies who are at the head of the Jeyapore Panch. It is much suspected that the latter gentleman had some hand in the late bullying attempt at Hindwan, and he is trying every means in his power to annoy Major Thoresby, whose judicious and vigorous measures have, at any rate, clipped his power of openly robbing the State; while the consequent increase of revenue gives every prospect of arrears being paid up.

JOODPORE—Joodpore is, if possible, even in a worse condition than its neighbour Jeyapore, and the unbending Thakooris give as much trouble as ever and laugh at Mau Singh's threats. One of these gentlemen, he of Bymote, lately kept the Raj troops at bay for three days with great loss on both sides; when he fled and the whole village was burnt to the ground. Another village Knuroge, in which a formidable band of Kuzzeiks has taken up its position, is in open arms against Mau Singh, and scarcely a Thakoor will yield to the rule of their professed Sovereign. The allegiance of these really independent chieftains is but a word; and is put on or thrown off as policy or necessity may dictate; while the industrious and more honest classes are represented almost entirely without protection, and travellers whether from Joudpore, Jeypore, or Peking, set out on their journeys in fear and trembling.

NEPAUL.—Intelligence has reached Agra of a number of Ghoskhus having seized twenty-nine villages in Chumpan, and turned out our Police. They also collected the talls levied at a Peir, holding at the time of their attack, and ordered, by proclamation, that the people were to pay no more rent to the Company.

It is not known whether these outrages are by authority from Katmandoo, or the outbreak of some disaffected Chief. The question has, however, been referred to, Mr Hudson whose reply will determine what our relations with the Nepalese are to be.

There has for some time been a number of reports current, representing a breach with the Nepalese to be inevitable, and that the Brigadier commanding at Bunnah, had received orders to prepare for a move upon the Nepalese frontier. The present outrage strengthens these reports, and scarcely leaves a doubt, that the Nepalese must be taught another and severe lesson.

NABAH.—On the 21st of May, died Juswant Singh, Rajah of Nabah, one of the protected Sikh Chiefs. No Sauttee took place although several of the Ranees expressed a desire to burn. Every thing is stated to have been conducted with the utmost regularity, and the whole country remains perfectly quiet.

The late Chief is succeeded by his youngest and only son, Gajinder Singh, about 17 years old, who is well spoken of and likely to prove a far better man than his father.

JOMBAB.—The death of Mhere Sing, the Bhao of Jombab, a small Sikh principality adjoining the Blantty Territory has been reported. It has been discovered that he was cruelly murdered by a near relation, who, after the deed concealed the body in a room; putrefaction having ensued suspicions were excited and two men were ordered by the family to ascertain the cause of the offensive smell arising from the decaying body. The spies were however seized by the relative of the murdered man, and immediately put to death by the assassin.

The Jombab territory lapses to Government, the Bhao having died without issue.

AFGHANISTAN.—CANDAHAR.—A letter from Candahar, dated the 23rd of May, says:—"I have no news to offer, as Sultan Khan and Gooroo, two of the petty chiefs of the Ghilziees, have returned to the road, and the Isardawk but two by the Cabul road, and the detached fragments, the chief part of it last night. However, no time was lost by the Government, in sending forty of the Local Horse and 160 of the Shah's 2d Cavalry off after the rascals, under Captain Taylor and Lieutenant Walker, 4th Local Horse, two of the smartest officers they could possibly have had. On the other side of the way by the Quetta road, we have better hopes. LeGoyt, of the 5th Cavalry, is bringing up a large convoy, consisting of Ordnance stores, and men for the European Artillery here."

It has already been stated that Captain Abbott had left Khiva for Constantinople, but the following extract of a letter from Candahar, dated the 23d April, will, nevertheless, be acceptable, as its authority is good and it states expressly the object of Captain Abbott's journey:—

"Captain Abbott, who started on a mission to Khiva, is to proceed from thence to St. Petersburg, with the view of obtaining terms for the Khan of Khiva from the Russians. He goes with propositions from the Khan to the Court of St. Petersburg.

CABUL.—A letter from Cabul says:—"The Russian Army reached Khiva about the 20th March; they halted on the borders of the Steppes for some weeks in consequence of the great quantity of snow that had fallen, they then came down the sea of Aral and with little difficulty arrived at Khiva. Their arrangements were well made and their march admirably conducted, so much so, that it is said, they have neither lost a man nor a beast. Their force is considered to amount to near 30,000 men and twelve battalions of artillery. Abbott is going to St. Petersburg. Some Usbeeks who have just arrived from Balkh, say that the King of Bokhara has beleaguered Dost Muhomed and his two sons. Dr. Lord has been ordered to raise a corps of pioneers at Haman, and some officers are shortly to leave this to survey, and, if necessary, to fortify the passes of the Hindoo Koosh. It is supposed a force will shortly leave this to act against the Gilzies; as the Brigade at Candahar, when ordered out, wrote back they had no carriage and could not move; consequently the Doomed Brigade as they facetiously call themselves, have had nothing whatever to do, while our troops at Candahar have been knocked about all over the country, and have to make near twenty marches to get near the refractory Gilzies, while the troops at Candahar are within six marches of them. Notwithstanding, that we have 7,000 soldiers in Afghanistan, besides the contingent, the Politicals find they have not sufficient troops to keep down insurrection. So much for tranquillity being restored in Afghanistan. Shah Soojah declares, he will go back to Loodmash if a large subsidiary force is not kept in this country. His Majesty is very partial to the British and as long as he sees a large force encamped by him, feels his royal person quite safe, sleeps, eats and holds his Darbar without fear, and now and then rides through the large bazar to show himself to his loving subjects, when his Hindustani servants call out, God save the King.

The following is an interesting account of a journey from Jellalabad to Cabul, from the pen of a highly talented officer:—

Camp at the Tomb near Burrekhab, 6th May, 1840.—I wrote you from Jugdulluck, and will now continue my journal, which shall be despatched when we are up the Haik Kothul, as all difficulties will then have been overcome, and there will remain only an easy descent to Cabul. My howitzer having been repaired during the 4th, we marched next morning for Kuttagnug, the country taking the road across the hills, and sending two cales with my guns down the nullah. I have before described the narrow defile and will now merely remark, the route being down the stream, I made the passage easily enough. It was impossible to reduce my pace to that of the sepoys, who are always much delayed by crossing streams, and when I emerged from the Pass, the companies were about a mile in my rear. The battery was well clear of the Pass, and the spare horses with the remnants for Garbett were coming out, when a smart fire was opened from a hill about 700 feet high, exactly at the east from the defile. The remnants were in a moment all running wild. The eyes frightened out of their wits, some fell off, some were thrown, some fell with their horses, and the confusion was ridiculous. I halted the column and looked for the Infantry, but could not see them, and as the assailants, about 100 in number, began some of them to descend the hill, while the remainder continued firing, I deemed it advisable to give them a hint to quit a position whence they might have played all mischief with the baggage. By moving off to about 750 yards, I was able to make the howitzer bear on the hill. The first fuse was the least thing too long, and the contents of the shell went past the fellows, who remained firm. The second did its duty properly, and although the robbers were screened by large rocks, so that only portions of their bodies were visible, we saw five carried off by their comrades, who scuttled away as fast as they could. They then fell in with the sepoy—a few shots were exchanged, and one sepoy was shot through the legs. We had so little idea of being attacked, that G—, with his wife and daughter, had ridden on without any sort of escort, and were half a mile at least ahead of me. He came back and sent for the column, which crossed over to the Pass, and after a long halt to make arrangements for the security of our troops, and to catch the horses, we came quietly on to Camp at Kut Jugung. I regret to say that our very good dog could not be found. The other 12 were caught all together, but I fear the 13th is not likely to recover the rewards, have been offered for him. This was our only loss, and the assailants gained nothing beyond little practical experience as to the effect of a shrapnell.

This morning we came only 4½ miles, but the march was a most distressing one. A steep ascent, about 700 yards in length, with several turns, bothered me sadly—10 horses required 30 men to land them at these turns. Then came steep descent, locked wheels, another short but brooked ascent, which called for the drag-rope at the angle, and a very steep descent, in which one locking chain snapped, but luckily so near the bottom of the hill that the horse galloped down safely. The howitzer, I have said, was fitted with a new bed of (green) mulberry-wood at Judduluck. The 3 shells I fired next day at its maximum elevation cracked the new bed very decidedly.

7th May, near Tezeen—Last night some rascals fired at our picket, on the hill commanding the Sectahund Pass. Their balls came amongst my horses, but luckily did no mischief. The picket soon drove off the assailants. This morning we marched our mules, ascending the whole way. Our course lay up a stony river, but the Pioneers had picked out the large stones, and with ten horses the work was very easy. We met 250 camels going down for the rear column with an escort of six Afghans. It they reach their destination, I shall be very much surprised. We have here capital ground in our camp. The valley opens considerable and the village of Tezeen, with its high wall and bastions, rising amongst a few trees, and having around it more green fields, is the most civilized place we have seen for some days.

8th May, Koord Cabul.—All difficulties are now over. I came up in the long steep ascent this morning, without other than a drag-rope on each side to three of my carriages at once awkward turn. The howitzer, the heaviest of all, was not aided over—my cattle are still in most excellent condition, and excepting ing a few little bruises received from the stones, no injury has been sustained. There ought, however, to be two spare horses allowed per carriage; for it is clear, that eight horses, the at-present-allowed team, could not have pulled up these hills. I have only five carriages, and teams for six, with me, which circumstance has enabled me to put on 19 horses. At Tezeen we learnt, that our assailants of the 5th instant, were not mere robbers as we had supposed.

A chief, named Azeez Khan, who is in rebellion against the Shah, has a hopeful son, who, desirous of signalling himself in some way, collected 150 men; and took post at this end of the pass, to attack any small party that might come through. His father is very furious at the result of the affair as he well may be, for if more mischief was attended, there are many parts of the pass where my battery might have been smashed by stones dropped from above. I strongly suspect, that plunder was not altogether lost sight of by the hero. Robbers never attack in a pass, unless there is some outlet by which they may load off the captured cattle. The Puridurra pass has none; and it is either at the entrance to, or as he leaves the pass, that the traveller expects to be assailed by robbers. We are now in a very cold climate, and although the hills do appear very barren, you find them an examination to be covered, in most places, with flowers of great beauty. At Tezeen I saw a branch of yellow sweet-honey, but shrubs are not common. The honeysuckle (exactly like that of England) grows abundant at Judduluck, and at the hill of the Puridurra pass, we collected quantities of excellent licorice. This is the season for the Bolnisi.

The small flowers that have succeeded the snow on these hills, will soon be burnt up by the sun, which is very powerful, though the breeze is always cold, but the little streams that thread many of the rivers, give life to a great variety of vegetation on a small scale.

9th May, Rookk—I will close this for despatch, as to-morrow will be a busy day. We have only 9 miles of bad road between us and Cabool, so may report that my horses have performed the march from Judduluck to Cabool without any material loss of condition. Some of them shew rather more ill than when they started, but all are full and firm in muscle, and in excellent spirits and wind. My traces have stretched most inconveniently, and I shall have to cut them all about 10 or 12 inches, for the small horses frequently step over them on a decent.

Cabul, 10th May—Arrived all right this morning, and met Sir W. Cotton.

Accounts were received on the 11th instant, from Cabul, of a detachment under the Command of Captain William Anderson, of the Artillery, having gained a complete victory over the assembled tribe of Ghilzees, between Ghuznee and Kandahar. The force consisted of Captain Anderson's Troop of Horse Artillery, the 5th Battalion of the Shah's Infantry under Captain Woodburn, Detachments of Cavalry under Captain Arthur Taylor and Lieutenant Walker, all of the Shah's Service.

The Ghilzees are represented to have fought with courage, and repeatedly charged down upon the 5th Infantry under Captain Woodburn, who repulsed them with great slaughter. Captain Taylor and Lieutenant Walker were still in pursuit of the enemy, who left 150 killed on the ground.

A force for the destruction of all the forts belonging to the rebellious Ghilzees, was preparing to leave Cabool at the date of our last accounts, consisting of the 2d Regt. N. I., under Lieutenant-Colonel Wallace, a Squadron of Light Cavalry, three 9 pounders of Captain Abbot's Battery, two 8½-mortars, and to be joined at Ghuznee by Christie's Horse. They expected to move on the 22nd.

The following is a fuller account of the affair.

Captain Anderson, H. A., after several forced marches, joined Captain Tayler, at Nooruck—about nine miles from Tazee; and on the 14th they mustered 1 guns—800 Infantry and 300 Cavalry—Captain Anderson taking command of the whole. On the 15th they were compelled to halt for the purpose of obtaining rest and, if possible, some certain intelligence of the enemy, but none to be relied upon was forthcoming, reports varying considerably, some stating the Ghilzie force at 500 and others at 3,000—so after much deliberate consultation it was determined that the Infantry and Guns, with Lieut. Codrington's party, should march direct upon Tazee—that Captain Tayler with one-half of the Cavalry should march in circuit to Olan Rohat and Lieut. Walker with the other half towards Ghondce. With this intention the detachment started on the 16th, but the main body under Capt. Anderson had scarcely proceeded five miles, when he found that the hills, over which he had to pass, were crowded with not less than 2,500 men—the ravines quite deserted. Captain Anderson formed on a neighbouring eminence, with Lieutenant Spence supporting him on the left, but before Capt. Woodburn, who had orders to form on the right, could get into position, the ravines in that direction were filled with men, from whom he suffered much, and who were only to be dislodged by a shower of grape and a smart attack from the rear. The guns opened in fine style upon the horse-men, who twice crossed to attack Spence's flank and suffered severely from the guns in passing. The enemy then charged, and were met gallantly at the point of the bayonet by Spence's men, which fully discomfited them, and they presently fled. In the mean time, Captain Tayler, hearing the report of the guns, changed the direction of his march and took the enemy in flank. Lieut. Walker, who had made a greater détour, did not come up until the afternoon. He had, however, fallen in with some of the fugitives, very little to their advantage, and reported that there was not a man of them left in the neighbourhood of Ghondce. The loss of the enemy was about 200 killed, and several prisoners were taken. Our loss is not stated positively, but it is said that Captain Woodburn's men on the left suffered severely. Captain Anderson is, we hear, going out again, and Lieut. Codrington proceeds on to Cabul. There was a rumour that General Nott had taken the fielding person; but we have as yet received no positive information upon this head.

Letters from Cabool to the 2d instant, state that a force consisting of the 2d Regiment N. I., two troops 2d Regiment Light Cavalry, 3 nine pounders and 2 mortars marched from that city on the 22d May, under the command of Colonel Wallace, towards Ghuznee for the purpose of co-operating with the force assembling under Major-General Nott to root out the Ghilzie rebels.

The above force arrived safely at Ghuznee and left it on the 31st ultimo reinforced by two Companies from the recruit Depot attached to the force in the service of H. M. Shah Shoojah, the 1st Regiment of Cavalry; two 6 pounders, Horse Artillery, and Lieutenant Pigou commanding the detachment of Sappers.

The route is direct to Khelat e Ghilee and the force will, as it proceeds, capture and destroy all Forts or fortified places supposed capable of defence.

ATTACK ON LIEUT. CLARKE BY BELOOCHES.—The following is an extract of a letter respecting the attack on Lieut. Clarke:

Lieutenant Clarke, accompanied by a force of 70 sepays, and 50 horsemen, in charge of 500 camels, left the Murree Fort of Kuhun in the Boogtee hills on the 17th of May, and was escorted by Captain Brown and 100 men of the 5th Regiment through a dangerous defile of the hills in question.

After the return of his escort, Lieut. Clarke travelled onwards, and arrived at a tank 10 hours from Kahun, and about half way to the post of Phoolajee, situated in the level country. At this spot, Lieut. Clarke's guide and his native officers implored him not to halt, alleging that the position was one of peril, and the character of the country such as would afford great advantages to the enemy should they meditate an attack. They added, that at a distance of 2 kos, was a second tank, where, if Lieut. Clarke insisted upon it, a halt might be made with comparative security.

To this anxious and reiterated advice, Lieutenant Clarke unfortunately refused to attend, and the party, in conformance with his orders, engaged themselves in their culinary and other preparations, for about two hours, when a group of four Murree Belooches, appeared on a hill in the direction of Kuhun. Lieut. Clarke inquired who these persons were, and was told "they probably the advance party of a large body of Belooches, who were coming for the purpose of looting the camels." The guide again intreated him to make the best of his way to the open country, but all remonstrance failed, and Lieutenant Clarke proceeded to arrange his men for an attack. His first care was, to provide, as he believed, for the safety of the camels by placing them under charge of the sawars; he then stationed small parties of about 12 sepays each on neighbouring hillocks and marched the rest of his men towards the Belooches, now collected to the number of about 2000 on a height a mile probably from the party.

After the firing had lasted about two hours, a bugler returned for the ammunition camel, from which it may be inferred, that the stock in the men's pouches was by that time totally expended and before he could return, the sepays were seen flying before the Belooches.

The small parties on the hills witnessing the disorder of their companions left their posts, and endeavoured to join the camels and sawars, in some cases throwing away their accoutrements, to accelerate their speed, all were overtaken either on the spot, or before the unhappy fugitives could reach a village at a short distance on the road, and cut to pieces by the enemy. The sawars witnessing the complete rout of the sepays, immediately fled, and made the best of their way to the post of Phoolajee, and related the particulars of this cruel catastrophe. The camels were taken, and many of the camel-men killed.

The Belooches, who fought like maddened devils, had about 300 killed and wounded.

The guide Gunnah Khan, "who witnessed the attack on the sepays, gave the following account of the death of Lieut. Clarke. The sepays, it appears, under his command, advanced some distance up the hill on which the Belooches had made their stand, opened fire, but the Murrees who had ensconced themselves behind the rocks, were comparatively safe from its effects. Lieut. Clarke, after killing three of the enemy with his own hand, and two having fallen by the sword of his orderly (a young sawar) was seen to stagger from a wound; at this moment a Belooch seized him by the waist, and bore him to the ground, where his throat was immediately cut. The young and gallant soldier. Admired and beloved by all who knew him, he has been the victim of that common error among daring but inexperienced young Officers, who with ill judging temerity, and inadequate means, venture in despite the power and number of the enemy. The fate of Lieut. Clarke will prove a warning to those placed in positions of similar difficulty with himself, while his name will be remembered as one who struggled nobly though unwisely for his country's honor, and his memory will long be cherished, by all who knew and could appreciate his gallant self-devotion.

There is a report prevalent that the 150 men of the 5th Regiment N. I. which escorted the late Lieutenant Clarke and his convoy through the Hills from Helree towards Kohan, were on their return cut up by the same party of Beloochees, who afterwards attacked Clarke. The party had no European officer with them, and it is said none could be spared.—Only a few men are reported to have straggled back to the Head Quarters of their detachment. If this should prove true, we should hope that Government will soon reinforce the Scindean brigade both in officers and men, or if not, such success will embolden the Beloochees until some very strong measures are obliged to be taken with them.

HERAT.—A letter from Herat, of April 25th, gives very favorable accounts of the state of affairs, in that place. Many thousands of the refugees had returned, a fair crop had been sown, and the season had been most propitious. Major Todd was about to get off on an excursion to the Hill country, accompanied by Lieutenant R. Shakespeare and the Wuzer. Dr. Logan was still at Herat and likely to remain there. The climate is described as the finest in the world.

"Another letter, extending to the 11th of May, says:—Every thing was quiet in those parts. Of our diplomatists, Abbott had gone to St. Petersburg—Shakespeare was on the start to Khiva and the Russian Camp, and Conolly was expected to proceed to Kokan. Rumours had reached Herat of the return of our Mission to Teheran; but no certain intelligence of the movements of the Russian Camp has been received. The season was remarkably propitious, and there was every prospect of a plentiful harvest."

Mention is made of Colonel Stoddart, but no report had reached Herat of his death. He has, however, been grossly insulted and ill-treated by the Bokhara monarch; and has been for some months a prisoner. Every kind of indignity has been heaped upon him,—the American flag, when his mood and body were weakened by long suffering, to repeat the Mussulman creed. In spite of subterfuge, Shah Kamrun and the Khan of Khiva, he is still detained in duress at Bokhara, and not allowed to hold communication with any one.

More recently letters from Herat, up to the 15th May have been received in town. By accounts received on the previous day from Khiva (bearing date 24 days previous to their arrival) it appears that the Russian Force had not advanced many miles, if they had made an advance at all, which was doubtful, from their winter quarters, 40 or 50 marches on the other side of Khiva. They are reported to number about ten or twelve thousand men. Herat was rapidly recovering from the effects of the late siege: the season was unusually propitious, and everything was quiet in the neighbourhood.

Letters from Herat to the 19th May mention, that Lieutenant Richmond Shakespeare, of the Artillery, had left on the 13th to replace Abbott at Khiva, from whence the Russians were still stated to be 40 or 50 marches distant and advancing but slowly!

We can well afford a couple of notes of admiration to this piece of intelligence, which contrasts so extraordinarily with the many authentic accounts given out of the actual arrival of the Russians before Khiva, we have however been quite as bad as our neighbours; and when speaking for ourselves, have always lamented our impetuous intelligence on this point. If the last position given to the Russians be true, and our letters assure us the fact may be relied upon, what becomes of the absurd reports to use a mild expression—stated to have been so industriously spread abroad by a celebrated traveller, and for what purpose has this been done? Whether or not the information is and to have bruted about respecting the amount of the Russian forces, be correct or not, we trust our rulers will not in the least relax their energies to defeat a polly, which though it may not be brought to bear upon India in the present day, is fraught with annoyance and anxiety. The improvement of our relations with the sovereigns of Khiva and Shokana should be our first care.

A later letter containing intelligence from Herat, gives out that Kohan Dil Khan, the chief of the Sirsars, died at Teheran a short time ago, and Abbott, who was reported to have reached the Caspian Sea, was returned to Khiva. The Russians are not advancing.

Dost Mahomed's daughter has joined her father, at Bokhara, where the Ex-Khan is in great favour, and is to have some dignities conferred upon him, the Governorship of a province—perhaps of Balk!

Lieutenant Turner's Troop of Horse Artillery will, in a short time, be ordered to Kandahar by Lieutenant Turner's Troop now at Quetta. A very desirable change.

The Chopan who was to have been made on the Ziwah people by the force at Kadjah did not make place, as they came to their senses and agreed to all the terms proposed three hours before the time of marching. Four hundred Afghans were engaged to cut down the grain and the troops were to have kept off the proprietors until it was carried off, the force at Kadjah is described as scarcely fit to take the field against any of the mercenaries, and it was difficult to make up the required number of troops for the intended Chopan, in some instances men were obliged to be taken from Regimental guards, and drummers and bandmen acted as substitutes. In our Regiment a Sergeant volunteered to go in the rank to make up the number. The Treasurer, &c. was to be left in charge of Drummers and Band for protection, and we can not but consider it very lucky that matters were brought to an amicable conclusion, as the least misfortune that could have ensued, would have been a serious loss of irreplaceable to the Hospital.

Letters have been received at Kadjah confirming the last reports of the position of the Russians, who are said to have suffered and to be suffering dreadfully from famine.

The Ghilgies, from our last accounts from Candahar, which reach to the 20th May, are not to be found any where, they are supposed to have dispersed themselves in all directions and the country is now perfectly quiet. It is still to be hoped that their haunts may be discovered, for we can see but little prospect of a continuance of peace while they have it in their power to gather such formidable force.

Sir Wm. Macnaghten, it appears, is still most anxious to push on from Candahar, and it is said, insists upon a force taking the field.

BALUCHAN.—Letters from Damanak of the 20th of May mention, that a portion of Dost Mahomed's family had reached that place. The Ghos's son is spoken of as a very fine young man, about 23 years of age—of a commanding person and athletic form, with a handsome and intelligent face and much refinement of manners—the first specimen of an Afghan gentleman that had yet been seen during the whole campaign. Gholam Beg, the Turkar chief, on the other hand, is said to be fat and foolish. The Horse Artillery Officers entertained these gentlemen, at breakfast, on the day of their arrival, and the Infantry followed the example and feasted their captive-guests on the 19th ultimo. The Nawab Bahadur Khan had not reached Syghon, being, like Wolsey, given to travel “by easy roads,” and not at all inclined to hurry himself. The weather at Banneen was still cool—much cooler than at Cashul, the thermometer, on the morning of the 17th of May having stood at 80° in a tent.

Madras.

EXPEDITION TO CHINA.—The sepoy of the Madras Army are to have a share in the expedition to China. On the 8th of May a circular from the Marine Board, warlike agents and commanders of vessels that transports would be required to convey a regiment of Native Infantry to Singapore, and the invitation for tenders appeared in the Gazette of the 19th. The 37th Regiment N. I. is the battalion regiment upon which the appointment for the service has fallen, and they have already received their orders for on remittances.

MADRAS BANK.—At a meeting held at the College Hall of Madras on the 18th of May, it was resolved to establish a Bank, with a capital of fifty lakhs, divided into three thousand shares, at one thousand rupees each, and the business in the Bank conducted under the same restrictions as that of a Bank in Bengal and the Union Bank of Calcutta.

PROPOSED BANK OF MADRAS.—The number of shares subscribed for up to the 2d instant, amounted to two hundred three hundred and thirty-two, and a few hundred short of the total number expected by the community, and what remains undisposed of, was expected to be taken up before the 9th instant.

The supplemental share list of the Proposed Bank now contains an amount exceeding thirteen lakhs, a gratifying sign of the estimation in which the project is held, but which of course must leave the bulk of those subscribers exposed to their point of view.

ACCIDENT IN CROSSING THE SUSPENSION BRIDGE AT CHINTAMPET.—On the 1st instant, some of the 33d Regt of Native Infantry, were crossing the suspension bridge at Chintampet on their way to escort his highness the Nabob, and the part in the customary procession to his father's tomb, when one of the great suspension chains of the end of the bridge gave way, precipitating the roadway and the concourse of persons then upon it—about a company and half of sepoy—into the stream below. The crash must have been tremendous and great personal injury sustained by many. One subadar, four havildars and twenty-six men were severely hurt and bruised, and several more slightly injured. Indeed, had not the elevation of the bridge above the water been so small, and the water itself so shallow, the accident would have been attended with great loss of life.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The Late Talukdars about Poonah, have formed an Agricultural Society, and are about to negotiate with Government for some land.

ROBBERY.—A most daring and violent robbery, attended with severe loss of life, was committed recently, on the property of a Sinner of the name of Nannan, who had transmitted treasure to the amount of 8,000 rupees from Ahmednuggur to Poonah, under charge of an armed escort of five robust men. The treasure party arrived in safety at the village of Shikrapoor, twenty-two miles distant from Poonah, and lying on the Serour road, being the village next to Korigann, where they took up their quarters for the night, within a Hindoo temple situated in the village. Suddenly, about midnight, a gang of thirty or forty robbers attacked the temple where they knew the treasure to be deposited. The two sepoy, who were on the watch, were instantly cut down dead, the temple car bed with the most disastrous uproar, the remaining three of the party were divided by severe wounds, and all the treasure completely and triumphantly carried off. The Sinner's party made a very brave and resolute resistance, and wounded some of the robbers, but they were speedily overpowered by the great numerical strength of the latter. The village Police, it seems, endeavored to assist those who were attacked. The inhabitants looked on, but refrained from contributing any succor. The three surviving men of the party, are now lodged in the Poonah civil hospital, where they are undergoing surgical treatment.

ADDITIONAL ARTICLES TO THE MOSCOW TREATY.—TRAFFIC IN SLAVES.—The following official notification is important, as confirming the three additional articles to the Treaty agreed to by His Highness Saad Bin Sultan, Imam of Muscat.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.—NOTIFICATION.—His Highness bin Sultan, the Imam of Muscat, having, on the 17th December 1839, consented to the three following Articles, they have been added to the Treaty concluded with His Highness by Captain Morsby, on the 24th August 1832, prohibiting any traffic in Slaves being carried on by Sea within certain limits in his Highness's territories, and they are now published for general information.

I agree that the following Articles be added to the above Treaty, concluded with Captain Morsby on the abovesaid date:

1st. “That the Government cruisers, whenever they may meet any vessel belonging to my subjects, beyond a direct line drawn from Cape Delgado, passing two degrees seaward of the Island of Socotra, and ending at Pussow, and shall suspect that such vessel is engaged in the Slave Trade, the said cruisers are permitted to detain and search it.”

2nd. “Should it on examination be found that a vessel, belonging to my subjects is carrying slaves, other men, women, or children for sale, beyond the aforesaid line, then the Government cruisers shall seize and confiscate such vessel and its cargo. —But if the said vessel shall pass beyond the aforesaid line owing to stress of weather, or other cause of necessity, not under control, then she shall not be seized.”

3rd. “As the selling of males and females, whether grown up or young, who in ‘Dion,’ or in any country to the Mahomedan religion, and who are the slaves are included in the above Treaty, I do hereby agree, that the sale of males and females, whether young or old, of the Socotran race, shall be considered as piracy, and that a month's notice date, all those of my people convicted of being concerned in such an act, shall be punished as pirates. Dated 10th Shawal 1255. A. D. 1839.

PASSENGERS BY THE BERNICE.—List of Passengers, who proceeded on the 23rd of May to Stet by the Steamer Bernice.

William Dallas, Esq. Mr and Mrs. Stamford, Mr. Billamore, Mrs. Thos. Phillie Hamilton, Lieut. Stretchev, 29th M. N. I., C. Downey, Esq. G. S. Higginson, Esq. R. Smith, Esq. David Miller, Esq. Mr. Andrew Ward, Youssef Yahoody.

THE LOSS OF THE COMPETENT.—The Boatsman of the ship Competent having preferred a charge against the Commander of running the ship on shore on purpose, the following is a sketch of what is stated to have been the case before the Police Magistrate. The Boatsman deposed that on the morning of the occurrence of the wreck, the Captain was on deck and that he pointed out to him that he was running the ship into danger, and that a buoy was on the star-board bow, which ought to be on the larboard. That it was his opinion that the ship might have been saved if the Commander had attended to his suggestion. It came out however that quarrels had taken place between him and the Captain on the passage, and his goods had been stopped. Several of the seamen were also examined who deposed to a similar story, and also mentioned the fact of a quarrel having taken place between the puffers on the passage, but they also had on one occasion been implicated in a strike and refusal to work in the Bay at Bombay on some complaint of short allowance of flour. The examination of the chief officer and Captain Hayman the officer in charge of the Light House was gone into at great length. The former related the evidence of the Seamen and expressed his entire disbel of the Commanding Officers being capable of the conduct to his charge, and deposed to his very severe disposition at the time of the ship's loss. Captain Hayman merely stated that very proper measures had been taken by him to prevent the unfortunate occurrence. The Chief Magistrate who was assisted by a very experienced officer of the Indian Navy, and the Honorable Company's Solicitor, acquitted the Captain of all felonious intent and his recognizances having been discharged, the case was dismissed.

FAILURE OF MOOLNA ISMAILBE ADAMBE.—Moolna Ismailbe Adambe, an extensive dealer in metals, &c. of Bombay, has failed, and the liabilities against his estate are, to the extent of about Rs. 600,000. Most of the principal bankers are insolvent in amounts varying from rupees 20,000 to rupees 1,40,000 each.

COMMERCE OF BOMBAY.—The Commerce of Bombay, during the past season, has been marked by a greater degree of depression than has occurred for many years past, the total value of its export and import trade amounting to rupees 74,743,441, which is 24 per cent. below the average of the preceding three years, and 15 per cent. and 7 that of the bumper year of commercial panic and revulsion, 1837. The greatest falling off is in the trade with China, which exhibits a decrease of seventy-five per cent. upon the average of the preceding three years.

THE RAINS.—The heavy rains that lately fell in Poona and at Mulsheshwar, seem to have extended considerably to the South, even as far as Kolapoor.

THE BOMBAY GAZETTE NEWSPAPER.—The Bombay Gazette Newspaper with Types, Presses and other printing materials, was sold by public auction on the 27th of May last. It was put down in the name of Captain Crockett at 15,150 rupees. The Gazette has existed upwards of 50 years and is the oldest paper in Bombay.

THE RAJAH OF SATTARA.—The Rajah of Sattara is among the chiefs that are congregated at the hills on a visit to the Governor. The Samachar states that the late Raja has refused his acceptance of the proffered Pension of ten thousand rupees per month, till justice is done to him by the restoration of his private treasure, which amounts to 40 lacs of rupees, saying that in case of refusal, he would support himself by begging.

NOVEL SPECIES OF SPORT.—A novel species of sport occurred a few days ago in the neighbourhood of Amnerbail, and is thus described in an extract of a letter from that place.—

"We slipped the greyhounds at a fawn three parts grown. She was lurking the dog's hollow, when a wolf took up the running, and actually in our presence pierced the fawn. When we came up, the wolf and greyhounds were nothing at all, and bent on its destruction without evincing the slightest hostility to each other. We caught the fawn into confinement alive. Another wolf followed after it was taken, and it was with great difficulty they could be kept off from seizing it. I had no spear, and they came up within three yards of me, snarling and howling."

THE GARRISON SURGERY OF BOMBAY.—The Garrison Surgery of Bombay has been offered to and accepted by, Surgeon James Burnes, R. H.

CHOLERA.—The cholera has been causing sad havoc among the inhabitants of Panwell, and on the roads from Bombay to the hills. At Panwell no less than six hundred men died of the pestilence in a few weeks, and on the way to the hills, no fewer than three hundred fell as victims to its ravages.

MOZAMBIQUE.—Letters from Mozambique, dated the 10th of April last, contain great complaints of the conduct of the British cruisers on that station. Two cruisers capture almost every ship that appears there; among other instances the capture is quoted of the schooner Palinka, of Daman, which put she left at the end of January last, with a cargo of pepper, goods, timber and rice according to the annual custom of persons from that place. The ground of her being taken on her entrance into the river of Mozambique, was that in a search, some wooden stacks were found on board, which the officers of the cruisers contended could be for no other purpose than to keep slaves down. Another vessel from Diu was also taken, belonging to a merchant there named Dewchand Bori.

CAPTAIN WHIFFEN.—It will be satisfactory to the public to learn, that three of the murderers of Captain Whiffen were brought into Bombay on the 2d instant. There are some others of them still at large, but their capture may be soon expected.

DESTRUCTION OF DAK ROUTE BRIDGES.—Amongst the difficulties which the Government of Bombay have to encounter in their preparations for forwarding the Cutchak Dak during the monsoon, is the desire of the natives to appropriate the iron work of the bridges (Government have already received intimation of the destruction of one of their new dak route bridges, the villagers near Nagpore having set fire to the wooden work and ropes, and burnt them to ashes for the sake of the iron, of which they were thus enabled summarily to possess themselves; and there seem to be doubts whether it run, in time for the ensuing rains, be adequately required.

POUSONBY v. CLARKSON.—On the 12th of March 1840, a writ was filed by the next friend of Lieut. Pousonby, he being an infant against Captain Clarkson.

The stated plaintiff that on the 23th day of December 1839, the defendant, Captain Clarkson, assaulted Lieutenant Pousonby. The plaintiff charged, that he was a passenger in the vessel, of which Clarkson was the Captain, and that he violently assaulted the plaintiff, then being such passenger in such vessel, and dragged the plaintiff from and off a certain part of the said ship or vessel called the poop, down the ladder leading from the said poop into a certain other part of the said ship or vessel, and also by such violence and outrage thereon, and hurt and injured the right arm of the said plaintiff, by which the plaintiff was prevented from performing his necessary business, and has his damages at ten thousand and upwards.

To this the defendant put in his plea, denying that any assault had been committed, and the plaintiff offered trial on that fact.

After witnesses had been heard, Sir John Amdry, in delivering his judgment at great length, stated as nearly as we could collect that, "He then let the mere fact of the Captain's laying hands upon the plaintiff was sufficient to prove the assault, and to obtain damages without taking into consideration the force which was used, and it would have been much better if Mr. Pousonby had submitted to have his hands laid on him and torn, he equetly walked for the poop. In awarding damages, therefore, he should not take into consideration the force which was used. The subsequent conduct of the plaintiff, could not, in his opinion, affect the case at all, but with the different as his subsequent behavior was necessary to show the amount with which the assault had been committed.

The evidence also was to be received with some slight degree of caution, for although, he did not imagine that the witnesses properly altered the account, yet their friendship for the plaintiff might have slightly biased their opinion; for it was very unlikely that a man of such experience as Captain Clarkson, would have done such a thing unless he imagined that there was some necessity for it. At the same time, with regard to Captain Clarkson's evidence, he, Sir John Amdry, personally knew it. He never had heard testimony given on which he should be inclined to place greater value.

It showed a "modus vivendi" on the part of the plaintiff in taking up a supposed insult offered to a lady, with whom he was at an early period in the voyage, who, to say the least, was highly unbecoming in a young man of his age.

He concluded that the plaintiff did not come forward for vindictive damages, and that he felt very reluctant to stigmatize a good man of the defendant's advantage and respectability; and then gave a judgment for plaintiff of 2000 rupees and costs. Sir H. Roper gave his view of the subject, and concurred in the above sentence.

THE HONORABLE JAMES SUTHERLAND.—On the 10th of June the Honorable James Sutherland, Pohl-tical Commissioner of Guzerat and resident at Baroda died suddenly of apoplexy.

SURVIVORS.—Yesterday afternoon, during a smart easterly wind from the S. W. the Ship Lord William Bentinck was seen making for the harbour from the north about 3 o'clock. Her course appearing to be alarmingly near to the rocky ledge called the Sprang, stretching right out from the lighthouse of Colabah, she was apprised of her danger by an alarm gun. Of this, however, she seemed perfectly aware, and she pressed on under a crowd of sail, in hope of weathering the point, and all but succeeded. Compelled at length to attempt to put about, she unfortunately missed stays, and then tried to wear the Ship. For this evolution, however, neither time nor space were now left her. A heavy sea broke over her, and fairly "pounded her," and for a short time she seemed to drift without control. It was conjectured on shore that her helmsmen had been swept away, or her helm for a moment disabled—that moment sent her with a crash upon the rocks. The signals from the lighthouse were given in rapid succession—a ship "on shore"—"on the rocks"—"a total wreck"—"send boats"—the last request, alas, could not be complied with till it was too late. The moment the Lord William Bentinck struck, every thing was let fly, sheets, tacks, and sails—then tumbled the topmasts—then the undermasts, and within a few minutes she lay a sheer hulk on the shore. This was her only chance. The people were now seen crowding her poop. The storm boats were ordered to get ready, and in a wonderfully short period the Victoria was fit for sea. The tide was still ebbing, and hundreds of people crowded the shore to witness the miserable calamity, to whose victims they could offer no assistance. Various of the pilot boats endeavoured to get off but found it impossible to encounter the surge which every where boiled and burst over and around her. Lesser boats were carried down from the Fort on men's shoulders over the Velod, and plenty of volunteers were ready to man them, had there been a shadow of hope that any one would thereby be saved. About 7, and just as the tide was at its lowest, two boats pushed off and with the utmost difficulty made their way through the rocks and tearing surf which broke around them. One of these, of length, when about $\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the shore, and $\frac{1}{2}$ from the ship, picked up 8 or 10 soldiers who clung to a spar and thus were saved. The boats were themselves repeatedly in extreme danger of being upset. Night at length compelled those well meant but useless efforts to be abandoned, and the vessel with her unfortunate crew and passengers to be left with hopes that should they survive (to-morrow moderate weather might enable effective assistance to be sent them in the morning. Meanwhile the Victoria had stood out to sea. Those on board that ship perceiving that they could no longer hope for aid from the shore, quickly rigged rats, and we are happy to say that before midnight 130 persons were brought to land. More than this might have been saved, but the madness of intoxication had infected them, the spent stores had been used, and many were swept for a the ship and others from the rats to a state of helpless drunkenness, while several others were so violently convulsed of their situation and ordered to leave the rats when they had touched the shore. A fearful balance remains to be accounted for of those who have met a watery grave. Upwards of fifty persons, amongst whom the lady passengers were included passed within sight of the formation of their vessel, and within hearing of the shore.

PASSENGERS SAVED.—Captain Bantow, Lieut. Combe, Dr. Fraser, Mr. Marston, Col.

MISSING.—Miss Leland, Mrs. Fraser, Misses Roberts and Jones, several Messrs. Whitehead, Day, McPherson, &c.

" SHIP'S OFFICERS AND CREW SAVED.—Mr. Pimington, 2nd officer, Mr. Kingcome, 3rd ditto; Mr. Bash, 4th ditto, Mr. Campbell, Midshipman, Carpenter John Lathlan, Sail Maker James Crossky, Seaman Samuel Coombs, William Anderson, David Law, James King, John O'Connor, John Humbersten, Hugh McMillan, George Brown, Steward John Pritchard, James Adam, Boy, Kelly, Sweetnam.

" MRSING—Captains Ord and his Son—Mr. Kerafthorne, 1st officer—Mr. Villers, Midshipman. Dr. Stockley, Surgeon.

" There were 150 recruits on board, many of whom are saved, but an account has not yet been obtained. The crew and officers consisted of 80 persons.

" Thus 21 of the latter have perished, and of the Passengers 7 out of 11 making a total of 28 persons out of the ship exclusive of the recruits. It has been reported, that so many as 85 of the latter have escaped.

" Mrs. Eckford's body was found in Upper Colabah and the corpse buried."

" As morning dawned, and the remains of the Lord William Beaufort were looked for, to the astonishment of all another ship was visible hard ahead with all her rigging standing and sails set, within 600 yards of where the misfortune of the previous night had occurred. This proved to be the Lord Castle Regent, from Karachi, with troops.

" She had missed her way in a squall and struck about midnight near high water, she had 200 soldiers of the Marine Battalion on board. Luckily she had been obstructed by a ledge higher out of the water, though more to leeward, and did not drift after becoming list on her port side. As soon as daylight was sufficient the troops and crew began to land on reefs and spurs. Their boats were sent off and these phied continually between the ship and the shore, neither of which, however, they could very closely approach, in consequence of the tremendous swell then breaking on both—especially the latter. It was found that with the sea and gales prevailing at this season, there was little reason to hope but that the Castle Regent would speedily become a total wreck.

" The Sham Allan has just made a narrow escape from a fat similar to that of the two unfortunate vessels now on the rocks off Colabah. She sailed from Bombay harbour for Calcutta about noon on Sunday with a heavy cargo of salt, as also with a number of passengers on board. She had particular reason to dread the harbour when at anchor by a heavy sea and tremendous squalls, and about a clock came over more to anchor, with the loss of a pig blown to pieces. About noon on Monday, she again got under way and stood out to sea, but in the course of the night encountered tremendous weather, by which every sail she had was blown to ribbons. The night was pitchy dark, and she had now got considerably out of her course, and had to find her way with the lead line. At one time she was in 39 fath water, her own draught being 22. Part of her bulwark railings, with much other deck and poop furniture were swept away, while the sea broke heavily over her, pouring down into her between decks. The crew were now totally exhausted—having been 24 hours without food, and were unable to bend or sheet home new sails under the gale then blowing, so after mature deliberation, it was resolved on Tuesday evening to put back again to Bombay, where she came to anchor in the middle grounds about 10 o'clock the same day. The Sham Allan is proposed to sail again on Sunday, but will hardly be so lucky. It is able to do so before next spring tide. Every one was delighted with the skill and coolness of the Captain and his officers under a press of adversity, and of circumstances extremely trying.

" MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—One of these lamentable occurrences that so frequently throw a gloom over the rejoicings at such seasons, occurred on the 25th of May, during the firing at the salute in honor of her Majesty's Birth day,—when a gun went off unexpectedly in the act of being charged, and injured three artillerymen—so seriously that one has since died another is not expected to survive, and the third, has lost half of his thumb.

Aden.

" An attack on the Turkish wall at Aden was made by about 4,000 Arabs on the 21st of May, at about one o'clock in the morning. The Turkish wall is nearly 3 miles from the town, and crosses a neck of land from low-water mark to low water mark, at each end of the wall is a battery mounted with guns with three series of small bastions. Colonel Cipon and the Political Agent were in expectation of an attack, and had ordered a packet of 100 men to the back of the Hill of Imbuldic, to remain until the moon went down, when they were to retire within the batteries. All was still until half-past one. The moon had gone down at 12, and the tide had ebbed, when the sentry on the left battery saw them sliding round it and fired off his musket and gave the alarm. The Arabs divided, part seized upon an old bungalow (which is used as a battery and fitted with guns and wall pieces, and which is high and dry at high water mark, and from which the troops had been withdrawn), and began to fire from there on the gun boats and fort. Another body rushed up the hill of Imbuldic and opened fire from thence, while a third rushed to plunder the tents which had been left standing, and took about 70 soldiers' jackets and three horses. A fourth party of about 400 seized a small hill and annoyed the gun boats from the rear. The fire was returned with great effect from the 5 gun-boats under Commodore Haines, and the batteries and the howitzers did famous execution. About 100 were killed and wounded and they were burning then did not the next day as was reported to the Political Agent by spies. The men in the fort on the left were anxious to rush out and charge the enemy, but were very wisely restrained by their officers, as the probability is, that several of the party would have been overpowered in a hard to hand fight with sweetmeats. The action continued until 20 minutes past 4 A.M. and we had only 7 wounded, 2 Lancers and a sapper—none dangerously. As soon as the sun daylight appeared, they made off, carrying their dead and wounded with them. One fellow who had stolen a double faced musket and a band and was struck by a shot on the hip close to the fort. He survived half an hour. The gun was recovered, one of the Snicks also was found dead between the fort and low water mark. The Arabs who got into the bungalow stole the wall pieces and fired them off. The troops, seamen, &c. behaved with great gallantry and an eye-witness states it to have been a most animating scene.

Burma.

" INSTRUCTION.—Private letters from Rangoon up to the 1st instant, confirm the truth of the reports of an insurrection near Ava. The King seems to have had a narrow escape. He went out a few miles from the Capital to spend ten or twelve days, but on the night of the second day, in consequence of some information which he had gained, returned with all his guard and was set by attendants. The next morning, the place which he had left was surrounded by a large body of Shans, who made prisoners of all that remained, plundered the adjacent villages, carrying away ten of the royal elephants, and retired to the jungles. A son of the Mven-my-a-Bo, and a brother of the Tshansha-Bo, are said to be at the head of the insurrection. Troops had been sent from Amarapura in pursuit of the insurgents, but as nothing had been heard from the former, other troops continued to be sent forward, and requisitions for large forces between Prome and the Capital had been made.

The Authorities at Rangoon were not quite easy on the subject and had strengthened the guards at their houses. The last boat that had arrived from the Capital brought five royal orders, the contents of which have not fully been made public.

Another arrival from Rangoon, has brought but little news. The "rebellion" or rather the rebels have vanished. Nobody can find them. They have vanished as quickly as they came. The royal troops who had been sent in pursuit of them had not returned at the latest date from the Capital. Report says that Tharawaddie is to take possession of the palace "in royal state" about the first of July. He had been playing off some fantastic tricks at the capital—having "executed the ex-Queen, her brother, four women of the household, twelve officers of the old and new government, and about twenty others. The Governor of Rangoon has given a dinner to the British residents there at which he made known this important event, and intimated that it was customary to send presents to the king on such occasions. The expedition to China is regarded among the Burmese authorities with some degree of anxiety. A native from Madras has told them that eighty vessels, conveying troops, have passed there, but the Chinese will destroy them all with "barrel glasses."

CHINA. UNLAWFUL DEATH OF TWO CHRISTIAN WOMEN. A letter from Rangoon runs as follows:—"A most brutal and barbarous proceeding has taken place against two respectable Christian females, by order of the Myo-woon of Rangoon. I am aware that both parties are well known to you, as also their mother, and therefore trust you will give the affair all the publicity in your power and show the monstrous act in its true light."

"The parties alluded to are Mrs. R—and a younger sister. Mrs. R's mother is a Burman, but her father was a Christian and she was brought up in the faith, some time after his decease the mother married a Burman, by whom she had the young sister, the Burman father also lived many years ago, and when the girl came to marriage age (about 2 years ago) she was baptised as a Christian, now some say for this, and the following brutal punishment was inflicted, and others (which I also believe) add that the Myo-woon having seen the girl during one of their feasting processions, was smitten with her beauty and demanded her as his concubine. Be that as it may, they were both seized up by the Myo-woon and placed in the common jail in the following shocking manner, both feet in the stocks, extended a part as far as could be done, their arms stretched out and lashed down, their clothes stripped off, and then whole persons exposed; lighted lamps placed There they were lying without any hope of relief. The unfortunate females, probably overcome by their intense sufferings, were, after a few days, released, on giving security that they would go to the Pagoda and no longer worship the "strangers' God."

CHINA. DELEGATION.—A deputation of some kind is said to have arrived at the Court of Ava from China the object of which is reported to be, to obtain compensation for the plunder of a caravan of Chinese traders by some of the partisans of the present king, at the period of his bold stroke for the throne. It is at the same time reported that the king admits the notice of the claim and is required to make it good.

Penang.

Penang papers to the 25th of April, state, that the Larne and the transports of the China expedition, all arrived at that island, where the mystic gentlemen attached to the Camerons, had been aiding the brethren of Neptune Lodge, in their secret work, and they were feted, with the officers of the Larne, by the gentleman residents of the island. The troops were very healthy, and had suffered no accidents. The Madagascar steamer, having run short of fuel on her passage from Ceylon to Penang, was obliged to burn her spars to keep up the steam. On the 7th of May, the expedition started again for Singapore, from whence, it was expected, they would have to proceed, without any delay, towards China.

Singapore.

The following is a communication from Singapore, dated May 18, 1840—I have just heard of an opportunity of sending letters to Canton by the Justina, (which sails to-morrow) and take advantage of it to tell you of our arrival at this place. The Camerons have been here since the 13th instant, the Defiance and India Oak having arrived on the 10th, and the other three transports on the 13th. An accident occurred to the Ramchurn, which might have terminated awkwardly. On the night of the 8th, at 12 o'clock, she ran on a sand-bank. She draws nearly 19 feet, and ran aground in only 2½ fathoms. She ran round aground during the night, and at day-break it blew very hard for an hour which prevented the boats being hoisted out for some time. She was hove off, with the help of her boats, by 9 o'clock A. M., happily without having sustained any damage. She has been examined by divers since her arrival here, and is pointed out injured, only a small piece of copper having been torn off. The accident caused the delay of a day, but the only loss sustained was in the stores and casks of water thrown overboard to lighten the ship. Lascars were transferred to a brig, that was carrying her to Singapore, but they were, of course, immediately withdrawn, when the ship got off the bank. The other vessels connected with the Expedition are at present at Singapore, in the following:—The Willesley and the Larne, arrived on the 10th, went out again to look for the transports and returned yesterday. The Albatross came in on the 13th. The Albatross sailed yesterday for China. The Madagascar is here, and also the Atlantis steamer, which arrived here after a quick passage of sixteen days from Bombay. There are four transports of H. M.'s 10th regiment. The Satanstoe and Blondel, have been here a week, and the Exmouth Robertson and Mermaid arrived, the former on the 11th, and the latter on the 17th instant. The Rustonjee Coatigue with artillery, and the Johanna Adams with the Supplies and Munitions, from Madras, arrived on the 14th. These two ships are so crowded that two storeships, (the Victoria and Medusa) are to be converted into transports, and receive part of the troops. The Starkent and the Eagle are the only transports of the Volunteers as yet arrived. The Rattlesnake arrived yesterday with part of H. M.'s 18th Regiment from Ceylon. The Cruiser is here, but is not to join the expedition. She proceeds to N. S. Wales. There are no ships yet arrived from England. The above are all the vessels at present at Singapore, but they come in so fast that I dare say, that if I could keep my letter a few hours I should be able to give an addition to the list. The Marian is expected soon, having been spoken going into Canton. It is very uncertain when we leave Singapore, as we are given to the masters of our parts to be ready to sail on the 28th, but there is no chance of our going before the 28th, and there is a report that Lord Anckland is coming here, and that we shall not sail until his arrival; but of this, of course, you know more than we do. The Water Witch, which was believed at Penang to have been seized by the Chinese, has been expected here for some days. She has had a skrimmage with the Janks.

Singapore, 4th of June.—News had been received at Singapore, from Siam, to the 1st of May, and it would seem that the news of our preparations to invade China, had alarmed the Court at Bangkok, but this feeling they endeavoured to veil, by affecting to ridicule the smallness of the force despatched against the Celestials. The China expedition left Singapore on the 30th of May, in beautiful order, sixteen transports, escorted by the ships of war.

The following is an extract of a letter, dated Singapore, 4th June 1840, in reference to a gale experienced by the Marion, Captain Pope:—

"I arrived here on the 23rd ultimo, after a very long passage you will say, and, what is worse, I experienced the most severe hurricane I ever was in, on the 24th April, in which I lost all three top masts. They were blown clear over the side without a stitch of sail being set on a yard aloft, save the topsail and lower yards. All my boats were blown to atoms in the gales, and we were obliged to cut them away, in doing which, I regret to say, Mr. Page, 3d officer, and John Gannet, were blown off the pump and drowned. This was about 6 o'clock in the 24th—about the same time, the masts were blown over the side. In fact I never saw, or could have imagined, that it could have blown so hard. The ship, I am happy to say, did not sustain the least injury, but the masts, yards and rigging suffered much, and will not only take time and trouble, but great expense. I had forgotten to say, that the long-boat was blown off her chocks and fell to leeward, and, melancholy to relate, crushed a native to death. He was the kinsman of Major Wilson."

The following is a letter, received on the 26th instant, dated Singapore, Saturday, May 30.—

"We are about to get under weigh, and I have only time to write you a few lines. Our worthy Commodore has evidently been waxing impatient for some time, and orders were issued to sail on Monday last, the 25th; but our departure was deferred, owing (probably) to intelligence received by the Queen. We say, however, to-day, and no mistake. The vessels which have arrived since my last letter, of 18th instant, are the Queen, on the 23d; Conway, on the 27th, Futty Salam, on the 28th, and the Marion yesterday, 29th. We were very anxious about the Marion, (as the report of her having been seen going into Penang was found to be untrue) until the arrival of the Conway, which vessel had spoken her a few days before. The (the Marion) came in yesterday, in tow of the Malagascan, which had been sent out to meet her. She had a very severe gale in the Bay. She lost her top-mast, sprang her main-mast, muffled towards, fore-top-sail yard, &c. They lost all their boats, except the launch, which was stove in, and the 3d mate, and two midlers, fell overboard, while cutting away a boat, and were drowned. All on board are well. Col. Oglander's health is restored. He has taken the command of the regiment, and has removed to the Rohannamny. Col. Jansen has removed to the Edmonstone. The Marion will require nearly three weeks to refit, and the officers of the Staff are to remove into the Queen. The ships that are to sail to-day are as follow: They sail in three divisions.—First division—a steamer, and the three transports of the Commodore, with the Ageron and Whipperin. Second division—Wesley, with the transports Russell, Conway, John Adams, Victoria, and Medusa, with the Artillery and Suppers and Miners from Madras. Third division—a Steamer, the brig Cruiser, the Transports Sulimany, Isabella Robertson, and Mermaid, with detachments of the 40th, and the Stahart and Bayle with volunteers. These, I believe, are all the ships that are to sail at present. The Conway does not sail with us—she had broken off the head of her mizen-mast. The Laine, we hear, is not going to China. The Masters of Transports have been ordered, in case of accidental separation, from the men-of-war, to make the best of their way to Canton River. The Mohamed Shah will, probably, be here to-morrow or next day, having been spoken by the Queen and Marion. The Water Witch, although expected long since, has not yet arrived. A filite d'honneur yesterday, between two officers of H. M. ship-of-war the () ———. Not content with the dangers they run from the chances of war, these two gentlemen must needs have a little "private defaming of God's image," as somebody calls it. Happily no damage was sustained by either party. We have all been much amused by seeing the tars drilled like soldiers. They have landed several times from the different men-of-war, and exercised with the Marines. They handle their muskets in most knowing style, and went through all the manoeuvres most creditably. I had no idea Jack would make so good a soldier. However, he must talk in the ranks, else his gird, cannot quite get rid of his rolling gait when marching. Lieut. Villard died here, after a lingering illness, on the 23rd instant. This has thrown a gloom over the regiment."

P. S.—It is now 8 o'clock A. M. and we shall probably sail about 11."

CHINESE PROCESSION.—For some days past the town has been resonating with the clangour of Chinese gongs, and the streets crowded with processions of this noisy race in honor of a goddess, in the statue of one, that has recently imported from the Celestial Kingdom—but we must say the procession which took place on Monday last, was really something worth looking at. It "dragged its length along" to the extent of nearly the third of a mile, the usual accompaniment of these delectable gangs of thieves, and with gaily banners of every colour, form, and dimension "flouting the pale blue sky"—But what particularly engaged the attention of spectators, and was the chief feature of the procession, was the little girls from 5 to 8 years age, carried a loft in groups on gaily ornamented platforms, and dressed in every variety of European and Chinese costume. The little creatures, were supported in their places by iron coils, or some such contrivance, which were concealed under their clothes, and their infant charms were shown off to the greatest advantage by the rich and peculiar dresses in which they were arrayed—every care being taken to shield them from the effects of the sun's rays, which shone out in full brightness during the whole time the procession lasted. The Dignity herself was conveyed in a very elegant canopied chair, or palanquin, of yellow silk and crape, and was surrounded with a body guard of ecclesiastical wearing tunics of the same colour. We have not been able to ascertain the various attributes of the goddess, but it seems she is highly venerated—and a very elegant temple, according to Chinese taste, has been built in the town for her reception. She is called by the Chinese Tien-Siang-Sing Boh, which we believe may be translated "Holy Mother of the Gods"—being the deity who is commonly termed the Queen of Heaven. She is supposed to be the especial protector of those who navigate the deep—at least, it is to her shrine that the Chinese sailors pay the most fervent adoration, there being an altar dedicated to her in every junk that goes to sea. The procession, we are informed, is regarded as a formal announcement to the Chinese of her advent in this settlement—and the exhibition, with the festivity attendant thereon, is stated to amount to more than six thousand dollars. The temple that has been built for her, will not it seems be fit for her proper reception and installation for a month, and another procession will take place when she is to be deposited in that sanctuary.

Malacca.

Malacca journals to the 14th of May, have been received during the month. The principal items contained in these papers, are the announcement of the arrival of a squadron of Dutch men-of-war at Rhio, from whence, it was supposed, they would sail from China, but for what purpose is not ascertained. A couple of miserable-looking Malays had been running about on board of the brig Enoura. They came on board the vessel as passengers, at Penang, and behaved very well until they were in the vicinity of Malacca, when they one night wounded and killed several of the passengers and crew, and then jumped over board, and were not seen again, though the vessel was hove to, in order to pick them up. The Rajah of Salengore had been proceeding towards the Captain of the Bentuck, in a manner that would justify a suspicion that he intended to commit a piracy on his vessel. He was, however, frightened into good behaviour, on the arrival of the steamer Diana, of which vessel the petty rajahs seem to entertain a sovereign dread. We have not the slightest doubt, that His Majesty of Salengore, and the other independent Malay chiefs, are the main props of piracy in the Straits, and the cause of humanity therefore demands, that they should be summarily coerced into good behaviour. Almost all the pirates apprehended, have proved to be the subjects of these native chiefs, whose territories afford a refuge for the disposal of the plunder taken by these blood-thirsty villains; and as the Rajahs have the power to control, in a great measure, the actions of their subjects, it they encourage them to perpetrate depredations on peaceable traders, rather than to resort to a virtuous and commerce for a livelihood, they should be punished as the aiders and abettors of the enemies of mankind in general.

Egypt.

The following is the latest summary of news from Egypt.

April 25.—The French Steamer, due yesterday arrived this morning. The Turco-Egyptian question has occupied much time in the French Chambers, and the conclusion to be drawn from discussions on the subject, confirms the general opinion, that the French nation is not only disposed to support and uphold Mohammed Ali in his demands and present policy, but is fully determined to use force, if necessary, in his defence. This is in part counteracted by the projected alliance between France and England, in which case the views of both countries must be modified as relates to the Eastern question, and by which means it will be brought to a speedy and amicable settlement, which is to be heartily hoped for, on account of the interest of both countries.

As to commercial interest in Egypt at the present moment, it is a farce; nothing is done and nothing can be done, while the present state of things last—both Turkey and Egypt are daily becoming more impoverished in awaiting the protracted ultimatum of the five powers. It appears, as if each of these powers were determined on weakening both Turkey and Egypt in order to suit their own sinister views; every day, every hour they retard in their decision, places both countries in a still worse position, and we can verify state, that a further continuance of the present miserable policy adopted by the great powers (particularly England) whose interest it is above all others to conciliate and unite Mohammed Ali and the Sultan in friendship, must ultimately end by the total desertion of both countries by mercantile men, who are already tired of inactivity. In fact the frequent failures that present themselves here is sufficient proof for this assertion.

April 30.—An Austrian Corvette came into the harbour today and was received by a grand salute from all the forts. It is thought she has been sent from political motives, although the contrary is asserted by the Austrian Consul General.

May 4.—Advices from Servia arrived to-day, confirm former reports, that preparations for war are continued to be made with the utmost celerity, both on the coast and at different points of the interior, and it is reported, that in a short time, Ibrahim Pasha will recommence the offensive. The latter part of this statement we give in evidence to, unless Mahomet Ali be attacked in the first instance by one or more of the five powers; in which case Ibrahim Pasha has orders to march forthwith with his whole force into Turkey. However, troops are daily sent to St. Jean P'Arved from Egypt, where there are extensive fortifications making under the superintendence of Salemon Pasha and there is already a force of 12,000 men garrisoned there, with no less than 125 pieces of artillery. The reasons assigned by the Pasha for these preparations, is that similar ones are making on the part of Turkey.

May 19.—The English Steamer has just arrived. No news by her further than the settlement of the Sulphur question, between the King of Naples and the British, through the intermediation of France.

China.

A little more of the news brought by the Ariel has at length transpired. It appears, from what we gather, that opium was sold on the coast at 6 and 700 dollars per chest, before it had been published in every town and village, and that the celestial army, but it appeared that at the first month's pay had been disbursed no more was forthcoming. In anticipation of the coming of the English, the women of the towns on the coast and the islands had all been sent into the interior. The shopkeepers and dealers generally, however, remained at their posts, and made no secret of their joy at the prospect of having the English for customers. There are many rumours, of course, of Sh. J. Gordon Bremer's intentions, and of the intent of the expedition. Amongst these, it is confidently given out that, the two forts on the Bogue are to be blown up, as the first measure of vengeance. From the Bogue the expedition is to go to Pechelle; but the general impression is that if the fleet does not get there before October next it will be frozen up for six months at least.

China papers from the 14th of April to the 12th of May inclusive have been received during the month. The Americans had petitioned the Chinese Government, in order to have several ships secured stating as their reason, their wish to have their business transacted, before the English commenced hostilities. The petition had been returned, and the statements respecting the invasion was generally scouted, at Canton, as ridiculous. The American vessels, however, had been subsequently secured, and enabled to transact their business. There was a rumour at Nankin, generally believed by the people, that the English had attacked down four hundred houses. This shows, that however the Chinese may affect to despise us poor out-cast barbarians; they at least have a very high opinion of our prowess. Another edict had been promulgated against opium, a dividend was to have been declared in the Hong-sha's affairs on the 5th of May, and a good many Chinese soldiers were in the harbour of Macao's boats. Captain Wallace, on the Concasse Family, in company with the Sylph, had been attacked by a large fleet of the Chin Chew junks, and had a regular battle with them; the boldness of the Mandarins was quite unprecedented, and required the chippers to do their best. Capt. Wallace fired fifty rounds of shot besides grape, and the Sylph as much. After the action, the Sylph was obliged to return to Macao for more ammunition, and it had been resolved, that for the future, it would be unsafe to send single merchant vessels on the coast, as the united junks were deemed more than a match for any one of them.

CHINESE ATTACK ON BRITISH SMUGGLERS.—The Arlet brought no particular accounts of the Opium market, but from what was communicated on the subject, there does not appear to have been much doing in the drug at Taonkoo or Macao, and it would seem that the trade on the East coast was not going on altogether robustly; the mandarins having to all appearance become bolder. The Water Witch, Lady Hayes and Schooner Jardine had all been attacked—the two former when in company—and one man on board of the Lady Hayes was killed, while the Jardine received a shot between wind and water, rendering it necessary for her to bear up and put into Taonkoo for repairs. The two former vessels were assailed by a force of no less than 17 gun boats, which must have contained an overwhelming superiority in numbers over the two smugglers—and there is perhaps reason to fear that by some unlucky chance, one or two of the vessels engaged in this traffic may fall into the hands of the mandarins—and if the Chinese authorities are not daunted at the prospect of the hostile preparations which they must know are in progress against them, little doubt must remain as to the appalling fate that would await the unfortunate crews of any such vessels.

The mandarins at Taonkoo had it seems been pleased to stop the supplies for H. M. Frigate Dreadnought, having taken the alarm at the crew exercising their great guns in the Bay—but a party being sent from the ship with instructions to disperse these officious gentlemen, and armed with sticks to carry the orders into effect, the mandarins thought better of it, and the usual provisions had since been sent off with the utmost regularity.

CHINESE INCREDULITY RESPECTING AN INVASION.—The calm still continues, and whatever may be our opinion, neither the natives, nor the government officers care much for what is coming on. It is to them a fairy tale, as unworthy of belief as all the previous stories about immense armaments that were said to have arrived in these seas, and never made their appearance.—What, should barbarians dare to insult the dignity of the Celestial Empire? This is considered quite impossible and improbable, and though some naked savages from the desert have occasionally rudely dethroned Heaven's son, yet the barbarians of the west are too few in number and incapable even to approach with any other feeling except entire submission, the confidence of the Celestial Empire. How sweet will be the melody of that famous ode, commencing—"glorious subjection"—which is always played at the audience of tribute bearers, when all the world will lie prostrate before the Great Emperor, and his sacred pleasure be acknowledged supreme, and hiding upon all the monarchs of the world. Then it will be, that the Chinese fleet will retain their sway over the four seas which by the bye has never yet been disputed, and the four colored flag will be a sign of terror to all barbarians on the wide face of the Globe. And one of the first efforts of the Great monarch will be, to dictate peace to all the world, to settle the affairs of Turkey and Egypt with one pen-stroke—he quiet and respect this—and to command all the unruly tribes of the world—especially the nation called Goloosa—to be tranquil and not to stir up any strife. As for the unfortunate rights that came to the Celestial Empire to do homage and to crave commerce, let them be taught due submission, and be put under the laws of the Empire, that they may be beheaded and strangled, whenever they transgress the same, in order to show tenderness to people from afar.

Well then, this glorious era is soon to arrive, and in anticipation of that glorious period when the central Kingdom shall give laws to the world, and enforce its code upon all living beings without distinction, we shall watch the coming events, and record the mighty exploits of the Chinese fleet and army, than which there will be none more glorious ever performed, since history speaks.

AMERICAN CONSUL.—We understand that owing to the American Consul, Mr. Snow's departure from Canton, the Vice-Consul Mr. Delano was not at first permitted to transact the now necessary consular business with the Chinese, regarding ships and their cargoes, but on the 2d an Edict from the Governor was received, acknowledging Mr. Delano Vice-consul, and stating that all Americans coming to port to trade must transact all official business through him. He is styled in this Edict 'Lung-ze' or, controller of affairs instead of the former title of, 'Taopan,' or chief mercantile director.

CHINESE MEN-OF-WAR.—On the 24th April the Mandarins went in state to view the first vessels built at Canton for China on the European model, and which we presume are to serve against the barbarians. These formidable vessels are two cutters of about 25 tons each; well enough built, and painted a bright imperial yellow all over. It is intended to put guns into them. The late English ship Cambridge, which after having become American property, was sold to the Chinese, is lying near Howqua's fort, utterly neglected, the thieves having stripped her of most of her copper.

CAVALRY.—To appreciate this formidable corps, the reader has merely to observe the stately poney, with an immense saddle, and stirrups to boot, that serve all the purposes of spurs. And albeit the said knights with their steeds, appear generally single and scarcely ever in troops, yet it may be fairly presumed from their general appearance, that supposing one thousand could be collected, no Mameluke, Cossack or Hungarian hussars could stand their charge. There is a nobleness in their nags, which greatly exceeds that of the Arabian or English horse, and so fierce are these chargers, that a man must lead them by the bridle, to prevent the rider from tumbling off, or the horse from rushing away with him. It is a fine sight to observe a Celestial riding with his feet nearly dangling to the ground, and to behold the even and sedate asinine trot in which his steed in ordinary times delights. So much was necessary to be said to explain a circumstance, that has lately occurred in Hookwang, to wit, the cavalry officers there have taken it into their hands to sell their horses, money being very scarce, and none to be had in any other way. Thus they have exposed themselves to the vituperation of the whole army, and given rise to the most severe plumpings from the worthy Governor.

FREE SCHOOL EXAMINATION.

The half yearly examination of the male and female departments of this Institution was held, at the school premises, yesterday. There were several respectable ladies and gentlemen, together with the parents and friends of the children present on the occasion, and the examination was principally conducted by the Venerable the Archdeacon and the Rev. Mr. McQueen.

Since the re-organization of the Free School this was the first examination at which we have been present, we are therefore unable to speak of the actual progress of the children during the past half year. Comparing, however, the quality of education imparted in this institution a few years back with what we find the gratification to witness yesterday, there did appear a decided improvement both as regards a generally useful, as well as a religious education.

The junior classes read a very creditable examination in the first rudiments of grammar, geography and arithmetic, and afforded very good specimens in writing, as regards correctness in punctuation and both large and small orthography. They also evinced great ability in pointing to the chapter and verse, and even the verbatim phraseology of scripture texts on almost any given subject.

From the apparent qualifications of the lower classes, we were led to expect somewhat more from the first class than the examination afforded. In almost every well conducted school there is to be observed a more extensive, and much more advanced efficiency among the first class scholars, than the comparatively and higher efficiency among the other classes. The other classes rose on the same step by step advance of the first class in a way more worthy of improvement than all the rest. But this decided efficiency of the first class did not appear in the course of the examination. The first class seemed to be only mechanically versed in their studies as the junior classes. It was manifestly striking in the extreme, to observe that the charity children of this Institution are taught Grammar, History, Geography and Domestic—branches of education which were never deemed of, a few years back, in the Free School. Much credit is certainly due to the Head Master, Mr. Lindsay, for the improvement the School has made under his able, accurate, active and zealous management. There appears to be, however, one great defect in the present system of education adopted in the school, which we would remark, with all deference to the Governors' requirement to be amended. The defect we allude to is, that an inadequate degree of training with Catechisms and Catechisms, appears to obtain in the Schools, which so far from tending to imbue the minds of the children with pious incentives and enlarge their knowledge of the Scripture, is, on the contrary, a cruel restriction and calculated to impede them with a distaste for religious studies hereafter. Reading lessons from the Bible, accompanied, with oral explanations and incitations, will as surely and more safely answer the purpose intended by committing to memory a variety of Catechisms and all the collects of the Book of Common Prayer.

After having examined the several classes of the whole Department, the Venerable the Archdeacon rose and expressed the satisfaction he felt to mark the improvement of the boys, and gave it as his sincere opinion, that ever since he has been in the country he never witnessed a more satisfying examination connected with the Free School. He concluded by rendering the merit of praise due to the teachers of the school, and by hoping that the scholars would show their gratitude to those whose benevolence supported the Institution, by endeavouring to be diligent and assiduous whilst in school, and upright and useful through the remainder of their lives.

C. K. Robinson, Esq., also observed, that on the part of the Governors he had to bear testimony to the very satisfactory and efficient manner in which Mr. Lindsay, the Head Master, had managed the School.

The company then proceeded to the female department of the School.

The children of the first class being called up recited the Catechism of the Psalms. Their pronunciation is generally correct but in common with the children of the male department there is a manifest sing-song tone in which they recited and read, highly disagreeable to the ear.

This class was also questioned in the definitions of Grammar, and a few first chapters of Goldsmith's History of England.

The answers returned were generally accurate.

There were specimens of needle work and penmanship exposed for inspection on the table, which were all very satisfactory. There was some letter writing by the girls, which was very cleverly and tastefully executed, and effectively attracted the attention of the teachers. There was no time to examine the other classes of the department.

The Company were then treated to a very interesting exhibition of the Infant School of little ones. This department of the Institution is composed of from thirty to forty young children, who look so cheerful, and sing so sweetly, and chime so heartily, that it is really a pleasing spectacle to see them go through their infant school lessons.

The Archdeacon then conveyed the satisfaction felt by the company in the Mistress of the school, after which the company dispersed.

We have been able to ascertain that there are about two hundred and fifty boys and about a hundred and fifty girls in the institution at present. But for

PROPOSED MILITARY RETIRING FUND.

CIRCULAR NO. 7.

Major Cox, of the 64th Regiment Native Infantry, having intimated to Majors Home, Henderson and Simmonds, the wishes of their brother Officers of Infantry, that they would act as a Managing Committee to the proposed Retiring Fund to which a large majority of that arm of the Bengal Army has subscribed. The above-named Officers met this-day and agreed to give their best services to a Fund calculated to do so much for the advancement of Promotion.

Proposed by Major Henderson and agreed to by Majors Home and Cox, that Major Simmonds' offer of his services to act as Secretary be accepted pending the approval of the Subscribers—the expense of Office, &c. to be adjusted in communication with a Sub Committee proposed at Barrackpore.

AGREED.

1 That in each Regiment a Committee be formed for correspondence with the Secretary, and for the management of Remittances to the Agra Bank, according to the Scale of No. 1, for 300 Rs. which has been approved of by a Majority of Subscribers. This committee, if all the Regiment's subscribers, would give a surplus of 5400 Rupees, but it is not desirable to reduce the Regimental amount, till there is an unanimous consent on the part of all concerned, and even then, it might be a question whether the excess should be not allowed to accumulate, as the means of increasing the purchases.

It may be more agreeable to Subscribers that the amount contributed by a Regiment be made up by a Scale agreed upon by the Officers of the Regiment itself. This suggestion is particularly brought to the notice of the Members of the Fund. But for the benefit of such parties as may wish to adhere to a prescribed scale for a whole Regiment, the following may be found to answer, viz.

A Major,	41 6 nearly	Rs	41 6
1 Captain	21 12 5 =		108 12
1 Lieutenant	13 8 8 =		108 0
1 Ensign	10 8 4 =		42 0 or 501 2 0

Rules are now being framed that will give many advantages to original Subscribers to the Fund, more particularly to Lieutenant Colonels who contribute 200 Rupees for any advantage gained through the Fund.

Subscriptions from Regiments and Individuals are requested to be forwarded to the Agra Bank for the payment of Bonus to a Lieutenant Colonel who wishes to retire.

J. H. SIMMONDS, Brevet-Major,
Acting Secretary to the Managing Committee of Bengal Retiring Fund.

Calcutta, 10th July, 1840.—Hush July 15.

MEETING OF THE FLOATING BRIDGE COMPANY.

A meeting of the subscribers to the projected Floating Bridge Company, was held at the Town Hall yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock. There were present about twenty gentlemen interested in the establishment of the proposed Bridge, and D. C. Smyth Esq., was called to the chair.

Mr. Prinsep, the provisional Secretary, then read the following

Upon the 7th September 1839 the late Captain T. J. Taylor, addressed Government for permission to work across the river Hooghly, a Steam ferry boat with chattis, upon the principles of Mr. Rendle's bridge across the river Tamer, at Fort Point and if successful, to obtain the exclusive privilege for 21 years for all such bridges within the limits of the town of Calcutta.

The use proposed for making the first trial was from the mint to the ghāt, nearly opposite, between the salt golahs and the Howrah docks, called Gohbaries ghāt, presuming that it would accommodate the greatest number of passengers, and afford the least obstruction to the navigation of the river. The Government referred the question of the practicability of the scheme to the report of a Special Committee consisting of the officers of Government in the engineering, civil, military, marine, police, and steam departments, and I was then permitted to see the papers and view which passed during the discussion of the important question which the question gave rise to, and had the honor to meet the committee and explain in reply to some of the objections most prominently urged. These objections rested chiefly upon—

1—The obstruction to the river navigation in the site chosen for the first trial.

2—The obstruction on likely to be expected from increased mud deposit arising from the piers to be erected for the approaches to the Floating Bridge.

3—The occupation of space before the Calcutta side of the river's banks, which, it was stated, could ill be spared by the Harbour Master in his arrangements for mooring the ships, and small craft of the port.

4—The difficulties and dangers of the river itself in the strength of its tides and torrents.

These objections have been met in the following manner—

1—By an offer on the part of the projectors, that in case any serious difficulty should be experienced by ships desiring to cross the chains, from the circumstances of the absolute necessity for their lifting their anchors to their bows, so as not to hook the chains with their anchors in kedging up or down the river, to provide means either for warping to fixed anchor boats placed in proper position by the Harbour Master's assistants, or by a small powerful steam boat to be kept ready at all times by the Floating Bridge Company for the purpose of tugging ships so passing.

2—By shewing that no piers will be necessary for the road-way approaches at least not such as will project into the River, so as to cause any increase of deposit, and by presuming that the frequent lifting and falling of the chains, will be more likely to disturb and deepen the bottom than to increase the deposit of mud, or sand.

3.—By the argument that the convenience and safety of so many daily passengers, cattle and conveyances, are calculated to avail of this means of crossing, as much deserving the attention and patronage of an enlightened Government, as the mooring in safety of a few small craft.

4.—By the reply of the original projector, Mr Rendle, who has shown that by placing the chains diagonally across the River, all the expected severity of pressure by the force of the tide, or of the Steam against the light of the chains, can be avoided. The strength of the Engine being made equal to the force to be overcome, with relation to the weights of vehicles, &c to be carried across.

Now, with reference to the above observations, I would beg leave to remark, that it is my firm belief supported by replies received from Captain Henderson that a small and powerful Iron Steam boat, carrying one day's coal, may be worked so cheaply, as not only to do the work here required, to meet the first objection but to pay itself handsomely by other work, of a nature that cannot now be done by the large vessels belonging to the Steam Tug Association, such as hauling ships to and from moorings, or tugging cargo boats, sloops, &c at times when the loading of ships is delayed by force of wind, tides and currents. This small auxiliary outlay I have, therefore, not added to the price for the bridge, since I have no doubt it would entirely repay itself, while doing the duty required of clearing ships from the chains, for it is found that the average number of ships annually passing and repassing the site proposed amounts only to 228, which is less than two in every three days.

Plans and sections of the River and its banks have been sent to Mr Rendle to confirm his opinion derived from Captain Henderson's conversation, that with very little assistance nature has left a sufficiently gradual slope to afford an excellent carriage way down with ferry boats' runways. The expense of adapting them and preserving them when made, will be very small. It has been suggested that the wells for the balance which should be formed of rings of cast iron similar to the pottery used in the wells of this country, but rather wider. These would offer with economic greater utility than brick wells upon such alluvial foundations to be found on the immediate banks of the River.

I believe the third objection is generally considered to have been sufficiently answered, if the bridge is ever made as generally useful as is expected.

The chief thing to be considered in adopting Mr Rendle's proposed means of overcoming the 4th and greatest obstacle, was whether the length of chain would not be too great. It is found that the distance now proposed as per plan, from Cross Bank ghaut to Colabarez is only—100 feet, while that at the Fur Point is 2,580 feet consequently there is nothing to fear on this account, nor is the expense greater than Mr Rendle's estimate.

Gauges of rise and of the rise and fall of the river at all seasons, have been sent to England by the Commissioner, along with the plans and sections, requesting Captain Henderson to prepare estimates, &c, it only now remains for this Meeting to give the necessary authority for conveying the positive orders, for carrying into effect the purposes of this project.

W. G. QUINCY, Provisional Secretary

Mr W. P. President introduced to the Meeting, that although he had not received a copy of the original paper by Government upon the review of the Committee's report, and the original application of the late Captain T. J. Taylor, he had heard, from an authority which could not be doubted, that the scheme had been very favorably considered by Council, but that there would be a limit placed to the site of its operations, so as not to come within the range of the moorings laid down for the use of the port, and that, consequently, as the proposed site was entirely above this range, no further difficulty was to be anticipated to the commencement of proceedings, and he therefore urged the present meeting to save another month's delay, by allowing the order for the boats to go to England by the present Mail.

OBSERVATIONS BY THE PROSPECTOR.

Estimate of Expenditure.

- Cost. I have taken the cost of each boat with its Engines and chains complete, from Captain Henderson's letter, who merely repeats Mr. Rendle's own statement which may be presumed to be correct. The cost of bringing out has been fully allowed for, and the cost of putting together. I have estimated from what Captain Johnstone has found his iron steam boats to cost; which, however, are much larger than these floating ferry bridges. For the contingencies and roadways, I have reason to think ample allowance has been made. For the estimate for crew and monthly establishment I have been guided by the experience of practical men.
- Establishment. I have been guided by the experience of practical men.
- Coals. I have assumed double the expenditure of coal stated by Mr. Rendle to be required by his boat at Tor Point, presuming the engine to be of the same strength, but with the advantage of many subsequent improvements, and as the boat and engine are of simple construction, the monthly repairs ought not to exceed what I have stated.
- Repairs. I have assumed double the expenditure of coal stated by Mr. Rendle to be required by his boat at Tor Point, presuming the engine to be of the same strength, but with the advantage of many subsequent improvements, and as the boat and engine are of simple construction, the monthly repairs ought not to exceed what I have stated.

The cost of management may be fixed by a committee to be now appointed.

N. B. It is proposed to have out two boats and chains complete at the same time, by different ships, that no accident at starting such a project, with the consequent interruption to the passage, may prejudice the public mind against it, but after a proper term of trial and probation, this second boat may be applied to another location, and thus not only reduce the debit side of the present estimate, but add greatly to the earnings at credit.

Estimate of Returns.

- Numbers. This has been formed from the actual tally taken of the numbers of persons found to pass daily at the various ghats near to the proposed site; but as it has been found that the average time of crossing by native ferry boats now in use, is eighteen minutes each way, and as the engine boat will always make the passage in 4½ minutes with the regularity of clock work, and will cross four times in each hour of the day in all weather, it is fair to presume that the number of daily passengers by this means will exceed that of any present ferry where at times in fact, great danger has to be encountered and frequent casualties occur.
- Safety. But if the number of foot passengers is over-estimated, I have been assured by native gentlemen who have good means of judging, that the number of animals and conveyances, particularly loaded bullocks, is far beneath that which may be expected, since the easy method of crossing the River will naturally lead to a great increase of such traffic, for it would enable the grain merchants of Burdwan to bring their produce at once into the Hatala-golabs, without the necessity for boating at all or the double coolie hire for loading and unloading.
- Howrah Rent. The increase to the value of landed property at Howrah and its neighbourhood, must necessarily lead to increased traffic of carriages and palankeens.
- Dawks. It is presumed that we may contract with Government for the passing of the various dawks and dawk bangles.

N. B. The difficulties of collection may be overcome by a proper system of checks, and by the appointment of respectable native gentlemen, who will give the necessary security, and who should be interested in the undertaking themselves.

In the course of reading the above, Mr. Prinsep followed the most important points with explanatory remarks, which were received by the meeting as highly satisfactory. Among other particulars, he also informed the meeting, that he had been able to learn from a respectable source, that their application to the Government had been favourably received, and that the reply, though not yet come to hand, he was assured, embodied the sanction of the Government to almost the full extent of the expectations of the subscribers. There was, however, one proviso, he understood, specified by the Government, that the proposed bridge should be above the limits of the Company's moorings. In consequence it was intended to lay the chain diagonally across the river from Heber Hoar's Ghaut on this side to the Gulabbaroo Ghaut on the other side of the river.

The first resolution was proposed by William Ferguson, Esq., seconded by Samuel Smith, Esq., and carried unanimously:—

“That a Company be formed, called the Steam Ferry Bridge Company, to consist of 2,000 shareholders, each share amounting to one hundred rupees, with the option of increasing the Capital as required. That an application be made to Government for a local Act of incorporation similar to that granted to the Boudel Ware-house Association, and that a deed of co-partnership be prepared forthwith for submission with our petition. That the affairs be conducted by a committee of seven directors, three of whom shall form a quorum, the Directors to choose their own Chairman and Secretary. That half yearly meetings be held for presenting Reports and statements of expenditure and receipts, and that the accounts be closed on each 30th June, when, at the annual meeting immediately subsequent to this date, the directors for the following year shall be chosen by the subscribers.

It was then moved by W. Pinsep, Esq., and seconded by Captain Vint.

That a call be made forthwith for payment of 50 rupees per share, and for promissory notes payable in six months for the remaining fifty per cent. to be placed in the Union Bank for realization.

On the third resolution being mooted, some conversation took place as to the rate and manner in which Captain Henderson's remuneration should be adjusted; whether a percentage should be fixed or a contracted amount. It was agreed, after some talk, that a percentage would be the best course, and the following was finally agreed upon.

Moved by John Cowie, Esq., and seconded by Captain Vint and carried.

That instructions be sent to Captain Henderson to contract with Mr. Rendle for two complete iron boats, engines, chains and spare gear, to be sent in separate vessels, with all detail, and a man to put them together—Captain Henderson to receive commission upon the gross amount at 2½ per cent., and to inspect getting up, shipping, insuring, &c. &c.

The next resolution was proposed by Major Davidson, seconded by E. Starling, Esq., and carried.

That £5,000 be at once remitted to Richards, Liffie and Co., to be held at Captain Henderson's disposal for this purpose only, and that the remittance be completed as soon as furnished with the contracts and date of completion.

W. Pinsep, Esq., then moved, and Major Davidson seconded.

That an order be sent to Captain Henderson for a small iron steam boat, with powerful engines capable of tugging a vessel to and from the moorings or across the chains, limiting the cost thereof to £1,000.

In response to this resolution there was some discussion, but it was finally carried by a majority of five against four.

Moved by E. Starling, Esq., seconded by W. Ferguson, Esq.:

That an application be made to Government for permission to prepare the road without delay so as to become hardened and seasoned during the rains.

The only other resolution passed on the occasion was the following:—

Moved by W. Prinsep, Esq., and seconded by Captain Vint.

That the following gentlemen be elected Directors for the ensuing year:—D. C. Knight, and E. Starling, Esquires, Major Davidson, J. Cowie, J. Colquhoun, W. Ferguson and W. Prinsep, Esquires.

Moved by Captain Vint and seconded by Mr. Prinsep:

That the thanks of the meeting be given to the chairman.

This resolution being carried, the meeting dissolved.—Durk, July 8.

MEETING OF THE OCEAN MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

The half yearly meeting of the Ocean Marine Insurance Office, was held at the office of the Secretaries, Messrs Bruce, Shand and Co., on Saturday last.

The accounts and statements were laid on the table, as also the Secretaries' Report, from which it appeared, that the net total of premium amounted to Rs. 2,58,174 8-2, which being added to the aggregate sum of deposits gave a total of Rs. 3,14,309-13-7. This sum being subtracted by the different amounts under the heads of charges, postages, return commissions, adjusted losses and stamps, aggregating to Rs. 1,12,733 8-3, left a balance of Rs. 2,01,576 5-4, being the present amount of assets disposed of as follows:

ASIATIC SOCIETY'S MEETING.

The usual Monthly Meeting of the Members of this Society was held last evening at their apartments and numerously attended—the Hon'ble Sir Edward Ryan, President, in the chair.

Sir Edward Ryan—Gentlemen, I am anxious, before proceeding to the general business of the Society, to call to the recollection of Members an event which we must all deplore—the very allusion to which indeed will show us the great loss the Society has sustained in the death of its Secretary—the late Mr. James Prinsep. As known to all connected with this Society that for six (and might say eighty) years Mr. Prinsep filled the office of Secretary, in which situation he was indefatigable in his efforts to raise the institution. He carried on large correspondences with Asia and Europe—in the conduct of the Journal of the Society, in natural science, geology, &c., he took a prominent part with equal skill and ability—also in researches into the antiquities of India, and in the new and important task of connecting the history of the East with that of the West, I am not going to attempt to pass an eulogium on the excellencies of the man, for that can and no doubt will be done by others more competent than myself for the duty, but it would be acting unworthily on my part as the President of this Society, if I did not say something on this subject. I am going to conclude with a resolution which will express, in better words than I have done, the regard we have for the memory of so worthy a Member of our Society. As to what he was in his public and domestic life will better be mentioned on a future occasion. Sir Edward Ryan then begged to propose—

"The Asiatic Society is desirous of expressing its sense of the great loss it has sustained by the death of its Secretary Mr. James Prinsep.

"For a period of six years, in the midst of laborious public duties, he devoted himself to the persons of the Society with unexampled assiduity and zeal. He carried on an extensive correspondence in Asia and in Europe.

He edited the Journal of the Asiatic Society—a work containing the most valuable records of all that had been effected in Natural History—in Chemistry—in Geography—in Geology—in Statistics—and in the Language and Literature of the East—amongst these his own contributions form the most conspicuous part, and have been the means of raising the journal to that high degree of celebrity which it has attained not only in this country but in Europe and all parts of the world.

His later labours in deciphering the Pali inscriptions of Aiooa and in tracing through the Bacuan coins the link between the histories of the East and West, have placed him in the foremost rank of those whose brilliant discoveries have enlightened and adorned the obscure path of antiquarian research.

To have a perpetual memorial of such a man among us—the Society solicits the aid of its members to place his bust by the side of those distinguished men who have preceded him.

Hon'ble W. W. Bird begged to second the resolution. It would be presumptuous in me to expatiate upon the labours of the late Mr. Prinsep, that is for the Society, for other members are far better able than myself to do the subject credit. But all, I will venture to express, will agree with me when I say that as to those labours with the numerous other avocations in which he was engaged he sacrificed his life—it would be impossible for this Society to do sufficient honour to the memory of such a man.

Dr. Jao, Grant.—If the last honored speaker deemed it presumptuous on his part to expatiate upon the labours and merits of the late Mr. Jas. Prinsep, how much greater presumption would it be in me to do so at any length. Nevertheless on so peculiar and solemn an occasion, I cannot repress to my feelings to allow the resolution, to pass in silence without testifying, however imperfectly, to the worth of our departed friend. A man of science and unwearied zeal, he could not be surpassed. Whatever he undertook he never gave up until he had either mastered the subject—or satisfied himself that it was impracticable. Truth in him found an active, energetic and clear minded advocate. Our excellent President has alluded to his labours in various walks of Science in this country. He was a valuable Member of the Society before he became its Secretary—and a frequent contributor to its publications and collections. It was said of Cuvier that from a fossil fragment he could reconstruct individual specimens of animals no longer existing. So with Jas. Prinsep, it might be said that from a letter on a coin he could trace a dynasty of ancient kings. The resolution before us was worthy of the Society, and of him, whose memory it was anxious to honour. But it was not solely, as a philosopher and cultivator of Science, that we have cause to regret the heavy loss the Society has sustained—we have also to bewail him as a friend and member of the community. How lovable were his qualities!—how sweet his disposition, which the warmth of discussion never ruffled, and the acerbity of opposition soared! I cannot trust myself to say more—I feel quite unprepared to do so. I have merely risen to cast my humble offering of rosemary upon the grave of our departed friend. His not knowledge also her triumphs as well as war? Did he not a heroic death in the breach of Science—a martyr to his devotion to a glorious cause? To cite an often quoted but apposite sentiment—

"He was a man, take him for all in all,
We never shall look upon his like again."

Dr. W. B. O'Shaughnessy. It has been said, out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh, but with me on the present occasion the reverse is but too true, my heart is too full to allow the expression of all I feel. As a physician I know well before his departure for England, what would be the result of Mr. Prinsep's labours, and in order that the Society might secure some testimonial of so estimable a man, I wrote to Professor Wilson and begged of him to take steps for obtaining a bust for us. Chantry has seen Mr. Prinsep two or three times and I have reason to think that the ardent wishes of this Society have already been in a great measure anticipated. I would beg to add to the Resolution which has been moved that at the Meeting, which is to be held at the Town Hall our office be desired to attend as a deputation from our body to accord with the homage which will be expressed and that dedicated to Mr. Prinsep's memory. This method has been adopted by, on such occasions, by the Académie Royale de France, and by the Academy of Berlin, &c. and with such precedents as these we cannot go far wrong in following their example.

Dr. Grant seconded Dr. O'Shaughnessy.

Sir Edward Ryan.—Gentlemen, I proposed the resolution with an expectation that it would be the only one that would engage our attention this evening, and that in respect to the departed, and the solemnity of the event, this Meeting should be adjourned till a future day. With reference to what has been said regarding the expectation of our being able to obtain a bust, I am afraid from accounts that have been received in India, that we have not yet been successful.—I had intended to visit Mr. Prinsep but from several causes was unable to obtain a faithful likeness. The best way now, in my opinion, to gain what we desire would be to send home a copy of the picture which is in the possession of Mr. Charles Prinsep, from which with a little additional aid, I doubt not, we shall be able to obtain what we require. This call for a testimonial has been made upon particular Members, not upon the Society in general, for I think it is not a subject for the Society to take into consideration—and I beg to propose, that such Members have veneration and regard for the late Mr. Prinsep, and now subscribe for the testimonial. I entirely concur with Dr. O'Shaughnessy in thinking that a deputation from our body should attend the Public Meeting of friends at the Town Hall.

The Meeting was then declared adjourned to this day week, when the regular business of the Society will be gone through.

Several Members before leaving this hall, put down their names as Subscribers to the proposed Testimonial; we doubt not, much more than is needed, will readily be subscribed to so worthy an object.—Calcutta Courier, July 9.

The adjourned monthly meeting of this Society was held at their apartments last evening.—Hon'ble Sir Edward Ryan in the Chair.

The officiating Secretary read the proceedings of the last Monthly Meeting, which were continued.

Major R. J. H. Birch and Lieutenant Broome, proposed at the last meeting, were elected members of the Society, and the following, new members were proposed:

A. Campbell, Esq. superintendent of Darjeeling, proposed by the secretary and seconded by Sir Edward Ryan.

* (Could not the original be sent? We never knew a copy yet especially if done by an inferior artist, that came up to the original.—Ed. CAL. COUR.)

Rev. A. Wallis, of Bishop's College, proposed by Sir Edward Ryan and seconded by the Secretary.

Major Pottinger of Herat, proposed by Captain Macleod and seconded by the secretary.

J. S. Torrens, Esq. proposed by the secretary and seconded by Captain Macleod.

Baboo Ramgopal Ghose, proposed by Dr. Grant and seconded by Captain Macleod

Dr. Thompson, the Curator of the Society, proposed by the president and seconded by the secretary.

Several communications from Societies, &c were read

Read a letter from Mr. Wm. Morley, Barrister at Lincoln's Inn, for forwarding a pamphlet on the Sumat Treacreek or General History of Nations—which is to appear in the transactions of the Home Society. The discovery of portions of this curious work, the 1st volume of which was hitherto supposed to be extinct, is highly valuable. The 1st vol. is the history known as the Treack or Ghazan Khan. the whole work consisted of four volumes, and was compiled by its author, Ruzbeh-oddeen, in the early part of the 8th century. Hey Th. the manuscript now discovered came originally from Lucknow and was found by Mr. Morley, and subsequently other and larger portions of it by Professor Forbes, in the Library of the Society at London. The portions of the manuscript that has as yet been found commenced with the eleventh rice of the Kings of Kabul in the previous part had not yet been traced but the officiating secretary informed the meeting that there was a chance of recovering the remaining portion from Lucknow, or from the Royal Library at Delhi, at one of which places he hoped, traces of it might be found among the collection of other manuscripts—there was also a trace of the same work at Hissar, and he had sent copies of Mr. Morley's pamphlet to several influential members of society in different parts of the country in order to endeavour at a partial recovery of the manuscript.

The Officiating Secretary next submitted the report of the Curator upon the specimens of natural history in the Museum—with a proposition for the Society to purchase the specimens of stuffed animals and birds which were still remaining of Capt. Hay's collection at Messrs. Lal-loh and Co.'s auction Room. Captain Hay had written to the Society, wishing them to make an offer for the whole as he was desirous of getting them off his hands. The Curator and Messrs. Boucher had on this been to inspect the specimens—many of which they found to be very valuable and in good preservation, but many had suffered from the neglected way in which they had been exposed in the Auction Room. Both gentlemen, however, strongly recommended the Society to make the addition to their Museum if it could be done for 3000 or 3500 rupees—the cost to Captain Hay to make the collection had been 25,000 rupees. Dr. Grant thought it a great pity that Captain Hay had not come to some resolution of this nature before; he doubted not Captain Hay paid every farthing of the sum stated for the collection, Dr. G. was at Cape Town when he returned. When the expense for the transportation of all specimens to the Society were taken into the account he thought the Society would do well to give the sum required and place them in the Museum; "for it would cost considerably more to get another specimen of their own." Sir Edward Ryan returned to what had occurred regarding this collection on his first arrival in India in 1838. Captain Hay at that time addressed a letter, requesting of them to make the purchase. A Committee was formed for the purpose of taking the subject into consideration; they highly approved of it and a letter was addressed to Government with an application that they would furnish them with means to make the purchase. The application was refused, and on this ground, that societies of birds &c. were of too small a value for this climate, but that they might be offered to some Society at home, since that nothing had been done regarding the collection on the part of the Society, Sir Edward Ryan did not think the members should be called upon to subscribe the funds, as the object on which the Society was originally established was to obtain only Indian specimens of which duplicates were to be sent to the Museum of the India House, and the purchase of foreign specimens merely for the purpose of comparison could not well be done with any good results unless there was a perfect Museum, and the funds of the Society could not raise it to that. Dr. Grant begged to recall what he had before said as he was then unacquainted with the circumstances now mentioned, and to concur entirely with what had fallen from the President—but he would in addition beg to suggest to the influential members of native society, that they should step forward and now that so good an opportunity offers, purchase the collection themselves and have a Museum attached to one of their institutions, the Hindoo or Medical College &c., by which means all very little outlay they would save to the country, this valuable collection. Mr. L. Sterling proposed that an offer be made to Capt Hay to place the specimens in the Museum at the Society's expense till a better purchase could be obtained. Sir Edward Ryan said this offer had once been made to Capt Hay but refused—he however had no objection to its being made again. The proposition was then put and carried again. Dr. Grant stated that he had just had a little conversation with Nawab Bahawur Jung on the subject of these specimens and that gentleman heartily concurred with what he had said and had promised to stir up his friends to purchase the collection for one of the institutions.

A number of coins from Ispahan had been put into the Officialing Secretary's hand for the inspection of the Meeting—they were not very ancient but very beautiful specimens.

A valuable work of specimens of Fossil Fishes by W. Agassiz was handed round to the Members present. A number of other scientific works were also submitted on presentation.

The thanks of the Society were awarded for all the above presentations, and communications, and the Meeting broke up.—Calcutta Courier, July 16.

MEETING OF THE MEMBERS OF THE CIVIL SERVICE ANNUITY FUND.

A meeting of the members of the Civil Service Annuity Fund, was held at the Town Hall yesterday in the forenoon, to consider the continuance or otherwise of the "grant of Annuities in the present and following season, on completion of payment of one quarter value, with refund of all excess subscriptions beyond." There were about twenty members present, and James Pattel, Esq. was called to the chair.

The business of the day was opened by the reading of that part of the advertisement in the papers, which referred to the specific object for which the meeting had been convened.

Some conversation then took place as to the form in which the question should be put to the meeting when the discussion was abridged by J. Young, Esq. proposing.

That the grant of annuity in the present and following season, under the rules referred to, namely, on completion of payment of one quarter value, with refund of all excess subscription, be discontinued.

The resolution was seconded by C. Tucker, Esq., and on being put to the vote was carried by a majority of thirteen present members against six present, and a majority of 138 proxies against 16, the votes in favor of Mr. Young's resolution being in all 151 and those against only 22.

M. M. Parker, Esq., then rose and begged to propose certain resolutions which it would be for the meeting to decide whether they should be thus submitted or not. The rules of the fund were complicated, and he was not aware whether it would or would not be consistent with them to bring forward his resolutions to the present occasion. He would, however, read them.

Mr. Parker here read the resolutions.

The Chairman rose to say that the resolutions proposed by Mr. Parker he had to put to the vote, but before doing so, he begged to give his opinion on the subject. He considered that bringing forward these resolutions was not consistent with the object of the meeting, which had been convened only for one specific object. It was contrary to rules to discuss subjects in a meeting which had not been called for those particular discussions, and what was best would be discussed. The meeting, therefore, could not receive Mr. Parker's resolutions, which were apart from the particular object for which it had been convened by advertisement, and if these resolutions were brought before them they could only view it as an innovation.

Some desultory talk here ensued, after which Mr. Parker's resolution was modified and put to the meeting in the following form.

That communicating this resolution to the Honorable Court, the managers be requested on the part of the subscribers in the Civil Service Annuity Fund, that they receive with respect and a deep sense of gratitude, the communication of the Honorable Court's Orders regarding a present continuation of the rules for granting annuities on the terms of quarter payment with refund of surplus subscription.

But under a conviction that the continued operation of these rules will be injurious to the interests of the service they have deemed it expedient most respectfully to decline them.

This resolution was seconded by J. Young, Esq., and carried unanimously.

Thanks being then voted to the Chairman, the meeting dissolved.—Mark, July 15.

At a Special General Meeting of Subscribers to the Civil Service Annuity Fund, held this day, Tuesday, the 14th of July, 1840.

The notice convening the Meeting dated the 27th May last was read.

Proposed by Mr. Young seconded by Mr. Tucker—Resolved, that the grant of Annuities in the present and following season under the Rules referred to (35 and 36) viz. on completion of payment of one quarter value with refund of all excess Subscriptions; be discontinued.

The Votes appeared.

Carried by a Majority of 128.

Mr. Parker proposed the following Resolution; which was seconded by Mr. Young.

That in communicating the above Resolution to the Hon'ble Court, the Managers be requested on the part of the subscribers to the Civil Service Annuity Fund, to require that they resign, with respect and a deep sense of gratitude, the communication of the Hon'ble Court's orders, regarding a present continuance of the rules for granting Annuities on the terms of payment of one quarter value, with refund of surplus subscriptions. But under a conviction that the continued operation of those rules, will be injurious to the interests of the Service they have deemed it expedient most respectfully to decline them.

Resolved accordingly.

A vote of thanks was then passed to the chairman, and the Meeting was dissolved.

UNION BANK MEETING.

The twenty-first half yearly meeting of the Union Bank, was held on Saturday last at noon. The meeting was called for the ordinary business of inspecting and passing accounts and electing directors; and it was especially convened to receive the printed minutes of the Directors on the question of buying and selling Bills of Exchange on England, and to determine on the expediency, or otherwise, of undertaking business of this description.

The Meeting was numerously attended, and W. F. Ferguson, Esq., was called to the chair, who having intimated the object of the meeting, the Secretary was called upon to read his report for the past half year. The report itself follows in full, from which it will be seen, that the Bank is in a highly prosperous state, in as much as the net profits of the half year amount to Rs. 3,62,287 exceeding the profits of the preceding half year by Rs. 45,152. The Bank, however, still labours under some disadvantages, the chief of which is stated to be the limited extent of its circulation, occasioned principally by the Bank of Bengal persisting in its refusal to receive Union Bank Notes even at short credit. In order to remove this difficulty, a negotiation, it appears, was opened with the Bank of Bengal but it failed to secure the desiderated object, and the disadvantage in question, therefore, remains unobviated.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The 18th July, 1840. — The accounts now laid on the table, and submitted for the inspection of the Shareholders exhibit the result of the Bank's operations for the six months ending on 30th June last.

They consist, as usual, of the Trustees' account, the balance-sheet, and the profit and loss account.

From the last mentioned document, you will observe that the net profits of the half year amount to Rs. 3,62,287-4-5, exceeding those of the preceding half year by Rs. 45,152-14-10, and thus exhibiting a highly prosperous state of affairs, notwithstanding some adverse circumstances.

The most remarkable of these has been the peculiarly glutted state of the money-market, which caused a large portion of the funds of the Bank to be, for a long time, unemployed, or yielding a very low rate of interest. Thus, the cash balance, at one time, reached 2½ lakhs, and Government securities and acceptances to 2½ lakhs of Rs. Under such a depletion of money, it would have been impossible for the Bank to realize the profits actually attained, but for the superior rates of interest yielded by the new class of cash credit accounts adverted to in the Secretary's last report. These accounts, it is hoped, will be considerably extended, as their convenience becomes better understood by the community.

But the greatest disadvantage under which the Bank continues to labor, is the limited amount of its circulation, caused chiefly by the Bank of Bengal persisting in refusing to receive Union Bank Notes even at short credit; that is, to be brought to the credit of parties, not at once, but when realized, a practice, it is believed, unheard of in England between Banks of circulation of unimpeached credit. A negotiation was opened with the Bank of Bengal with the view of having this difficulty withdrawn. This was peremptorily declined; but a counter proposition was made, offering certain terms on condition of the suppression of the circulation of the Union Bank. The terms offered being deemed altogether inadequate as compensation for the advantages present and prospective that were required to be relinquished, were declined by the Directors of the Union Bank. The details of these negotiations will be printed for the information of the Shareholders, who will then be able to judge whether any and what ulterior steps should be taken with a view of removing or counteracting the impediment adverted to. The object is one of great importance to the convenience, if not safety of the public, and certainly so to the prosperity of this Bank, while it is believed that the concession required from the Bank of Bengal, might be yielded by it without, to the smallest degree, affecting its profits.

But to revert to the sheet of profit and loss. The only item that seems to require explanation, is the amount of profit on the Mirzapore Agency, viz. 21,087½ l. This is the result of the operations of that agency from the time the account was first opened on the 16th March 1839, until, in compliance with the wishes of the Shareholders, the agency was withdrawn on 31st March 1840. The return on the funds employed, of which the average amount was rupees 3,20,000 has been at the same rate of 5 per cent. per annum.

A Dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, will amount to rupees 3,39,572-11, and these will remain to be added to the reserve fund Rs. 22,714 9-5 which, if divided would make an addition to the dividend equivalent to the rate of 7½ annas per cent. per annum.

The reserved fund will now amount to rs. 37,46,510-8 but the Directors regret to add their apprehension that a considerable portion of that amount may be required to be written off against some overdue bills of doubtful recovery.

Under the 34th Clause of the deed of partnership, the Shareholders at this meeting have to elect four Directors in the room of Messrs James Cullen, President of the Bank, J. W. Craig, William Storm and A. St. L. McMahon, whose time of office has expired — and also two Directors in the room of Messrs William Carr, Vice President, and G. F. Reinty, who have become disqualified by quitting the country. The gentlemen who are elected to the room of the four Directors going out by rotation, will hold their places for three years.

and the two gentlemen that may be elected in the room of Messrs. Carr and Ramsay, will retire at the end of one year, as those gentlemen would have done in ordinary course. The gentlemen, who have offered their services for the office of Director, are Messrs. Charles Hufnagel, Dwarkanath Tagore, H. A. Woodlason, John Storm, William Patrick and Charles Lyall, six in number; the vacancies to be supplied being also six.

The following statement of accounts between the trustees and the Proprietors of the Bank was also laid on the table:

Calcutta, Union Bank, 30th June, 1840.

It was then proposed by L. Clarke, Esq., and seconded by R Walker, Esq., and carried.

1. That the Secretary's report just read be approved.

T Dickens, Esq., next proposed and John Allan, Esq., seconded.

2.—That the accounts now submitted, be approved and passed by this meeting, and that the books be closed accordingly.

On the above resolution being proposed some unexpected discussion arose relative to a fraud committed by a late Officer of the Bank.

P O'Hanlon, Esq. rose to say that he had no objection to the passing of the accounts, but for one point which did not appear to be mentioned in them, and which had been brought to his notice. What he alluded to, was a fraud, and that to a large extent been committed by a late officer of the Bank. Such occurrences he thought should not be made secret of, but, on the contrary, every thing should be laid open before the proprietors. In regard to this fraud, however, nothing was known as to what had been done, if the time it was committed, or what has been since done to liquidate the defaucation.

The Secretary, in answer to Mr O'Hanlon, said that the occurrence in question did not happen in his time, but during the time of his predecessor, the acting Secretary.
But he had to assure the meeting, that measures were taken in consequence by which no loss will accrue to the Bank.

Mr O'Hanlon again observed that he and his fellow subscribers should be informed, what was the amount of the defalcation, and how it is to be liquidated. He urged, not press the matter, if the Secretary would assure him that he held available securities and that he would indemnify the Bank from a loss.

Mr. Longworth Clarke stated, that as none of the Directors had risen to reply to Mr. O'Hanlon's question, he would do so, and perhaps he was the fittest person to give the answer, for no one would accuse him of partiality for their late accountant and every measure adopted on the discovery of his fraud, had been with his Mr. Clarke's approval. When he said that no one would suspect him of partiality, he must remind the Proprietors that a year before the discovery of this fraud, he, Mr. Clarke, had, as a Director or in the direction, removed the late Accountant for misconduct—the Proprietors had chosen to restate him, and he, Mr. Clarke, was the only Director, who opposed the measure, and denounced him as unfit for confidence. The moment the fraud was detected, he, Mr. Clarke, was the first who was informed of it, and as it was evident that by decided measures and strict silence, the Bank would be saved from immense loss, he had acted in the one, and concurred in the other. He did not disguise the fact, that the late Accountant could have been transported, but then the Bank must have lost the object was to get the start of other creditors, and he, Mr. Clarke, had done this, and secured every part of the defaulter's property, his furniture, his shares, and insurances, and besides there were other securities. This could not have been done but by great promptness and perfect secrecy, and he wished distinctly to state, that although he had a year before differed with all his brother Directors in regard to their late Accountant yet if there was any blame in the course which had been adopted towards him, he was equally, if not more to blame than any of the others, as he had put himself forward. But he felt assured there was no blame. He had the approbation of his friend, Mr. Dickens, their Trustee, and one of the largest shareholders in every thing which he had done. They all knew, that he, Mr. Clarke, had much at stake in the Bank, and in looking to the Proprietor's interests, he was but consulting his own, and that to uninfluenced by any partiality in the delinquents. Much had been saved, and he agreed with their Secretary that the whole might yet be saved; but he would advise the meeting to have confidence in their Directors. He did not object to what had taken place, or to the questions put, but he would venture to recommend that no further steps should be taken. He, as a Director, had admitted the defalcation, and he had stated why it had not been made public. He believed that a great loss had been saved, and if the meeting had confidence in the direction, and would leave it to their care, he trusted that nothing whatever would be lost.

Mr. Dickens rose to observe that the accounts and statements laid on the table were correct and that, therefore, there could be no reasonable objection for the resolution proposed by him to be passed by the meeting. As to the fraud, he begged to say that at the time it was committed, the Directors had adopted measures to secure the Bank from loss, for the attainment of which end, there was but one course and that was of secrecy.

Mr. O'Hanlon in reply said, that if there was a reason for secrecy at one time that reason is passed. It was to obtain the security of other parties—the security had been obtained, and it was due to the proprietors, that secrecy should no longer be maintained. As for the speeches made by Mr. Clarke and Mr. Dickens, they afforded no explanation. Mr. O'Hanlon however, would

The Secretary could not satisfy Mr. O'Hanlon on this head, but had to inform him, that the securities had not at all been realized, and that part was dependant on this discussion not going on.

An amendment was here put in by Mr. O'Hanlon, which was seconded by Captain Vint, and which was as follows:—

That a statement of the circumstances attending the fraud executed by one of our late officers, be given to the proprietors, and the present state of that account be laid before us.

Mr. H. M. Parker here came forward and said, that he would put the matter to the common sense of the meeting. They were either to have securities or to have none. If they were to have no securities the matter might be made as public as possible; but if they were to have securities, why should they run the risk of lessening the chances of being indemnified from loss by a useless publicity of the affair. Besides, he thought the assurance of the Directors and the Secretary, was sufficient to satisfy the meeting that all had been done that could be done.

The original resolution and Mr. O'Hanlon's amendment were here put to the meeting, when the former was carried with hardly any opposition.

It was then proposed by John Allan, Esq., seconded by R. Walker, Esq., and carried.

3.—That a half yearly dividend at the rate of seven (7) per cent. per annum, on Company's Rupees 35 per share, be now delivered.

I H. Young, Esq. then proposed, and R. Walker, Esq., seconded.

4.—That the time of service as Directors of Messrs. James Cullen, President of the Bank, J. W. Cragg, Wm. Storm and Alex. St. L. McVahon having expired, and Messrs. Wm. Carr, vice president, and G. F. Remby, of whose period of service one year remains, having vacated their direction, by their departure for England, the meeting proceed to elect six duly qualified proprietors in their stead.

The election of Directors, however, was postponed to the last.

The meeting here proceeded to the special business for which it had been convened, namely, to consider the expediency of introducing the traffic of English bills of Exchange.

Mr. Dickens rose and said, that at the last meeting the question of buying and selling English bills of Exchange had been to some extent discussed, and a resolution was then passed that the question should be referred to the Directors for consideration, with the request that they should give in their minutes on the subject. According to this resolution all had sent in their minutes except a few, and among them was his friend Mr. Clarke. These minutes had been printed and circulated, and are now before the meeting for their consideration, and in order not to detain the meeting, he would refrain from any further remarks but at once propose.

That the term of the first clause of the Bank Deed be modified and enlarged by the insertion of a clause per-limiting the business of the Bank to be restricted, so far as to authorise the Directors to buy and sell Bills of Exchange in England.

The resolution was seconded by Baboo Dwarkanauth Tagore.

Mr. W. P. Grant here got up to remark, that he thought that bringing forward a resolution for the alteration of the Bank deed was taking the proprietors by surprise, who were unqualified to make the proposed alterations according to the 61st Clause of the deed, which required that in cases of such alteration a meeting should be advertised specially for that purpose, which had not been done in the present instance.

Mr. Clarke rose to enquire which was of more importance, to follow the 61st Clause according to the spirit or letter. He was aware that the 61st Clause required that no alteration should be made in the deed unless due notice of such alteration was given to the proprietors; but if this meeting was not special to alter the deed, it was called to receive the minutes of the Directors to determine this.

Mr. Grant here withdrew the objection, remarking that after the explanation afforded by Mr. Clarke, the objection became merely formal.

Baboo Dwarkanauth Tagore got up to say a few words. Four years ago the question of buying and selling English Bills of Exchange was mooted, when in consequence of the want of sufficient capital the proposition could not be carried out. The Insurance Offices were then applied to, for the loan of money, but failing in this also, the matter was no more agitated. Now, however, there is capital enough, and we should try the experiment to see at least whether it will yield profit or not.

Mr. Grant here rose, and, after alluding to the disapprobations felt by some in regard to the question before the meeting, went on to advert to the risks that would necessarily be run were the proposition carried, in consequence of the Bank in all probability being unable to compete with other Bank Bills, together with various other arguments which he detailed in an able, elaborate and very lengthy speech. Mr. Grant spoke for nearly a full hour with considerable temper, clearness and ingenuity.

Mr. Clarke, in reply, said, that after Mr. Grant's elaborate, able and temperate speech he was bound to offer a few words in reply. He would not, however detain the meeting by taking all the arguments, advanced by Mr. Grant, but would only allude to some of them. Mr. Grant had stated, that by traffic in English Bills of Exchange, it would not yield a large profit, in fact scarcely any profit. He would state a few facts in answer to this. How comes it that the Mauritius Bank employs forty-five per cent. of its capital in this way? How comes it that the Australian Bank finds the buying and selling of Bills of Exchange a profitable business? How comes it that the report of that Bank prominently mentions the fact? [Mr. Clarke here read and extracted from the report of that Bank] How comes it that all the Capitalists of England engage in business of this kind? How comes it that the late Captain Cockrell, who was a very shrewd man, wanted to introduce this very business? How comes it that mercantile establishments engage in this traffic? How comes it that private individuals not only lay out, but borrow for this purpose? How comes it that a Bank with three millions capital was proposed for this very business, when my proposal of doubling the capital crushed the formidable rival? We have now paid up capital of ninety-eight lacs—twenty-four lacs are unemployed, and there are about five lacs more in silver and gold. With such a large extent of capital unemployed, it is necessary to look out for a new line of business. As for their being no chance of large profit, I would again ask how do so many different Banks engage in it? How are they trying, too, in England, to establish a Bank for this business? How did Captain Cockrell think it profitable? How did so many merchants engage in it? But Mr. Grant said, that by entering on this new line of business, it would be breaking faith with commercial friends, who had come forward with funds and support in doubling the capital. Mr. Clarke denied that there had been any such support suffered by the commercial body, who, if they did come forward to assist in doubling the capital, it was in the proportion of one to forty other individuals. If then there has been no support there can be no pledge, and consequently no breach of faith, as stated by Mr. Grant. Mr. Clarke went on to some length in commenting on what had fallen from Mr. Grant, and concluded by saying that in recommending the proposition he opposed practice to theory.

Mr. O'Hanlon here took the opportunity to observe, that he believed that the wording of the notice had been somewhat unfortunate in restricting the traffic to England. He thought there were Scotch Bills of Exchange, perhaps Irish Bills of Exchange, as well as English Bills of Exchange; and it would be desirable were the term made more general. He thought if it were susceptible of correction, that Britain should be substituted for England.

Mr. Dickens then informed Mr. O'Hanlon that it was not susceptible of correction.

Mr. Dickens then said, that from the temperate tone and gentleman-like manner in which Mr. Grant had addressed the meeting, he would shortly reply to him. Mr. Dickens, in a brief speech, then met Mr. Grant's arguments very ingeniously and clearly.

After this the proposition of altering the 1st Clause of the Bank deed so as to permit the Directors to buy and sell Bills of Exchange in England, was put to the vote and carried by a show of hands; but as the exact numbers could not be ascertained, Messrs. Clarke and McKilligan were appointed scrutineers to examine the votes on each side, as well as to receive the ballots for the several individuals who offered their services for the vacant Directorship, it being agreed that the four names which had the larger number of votes should be appointed for the full term, and the two with a less number of votes should be nominated to the annual

The other votes stood thus:—

Dwarkanauth Tagore 381—C. Lyall 367—H. Wollaston 267—John Storm 252—G. Hoffnagle 246—W. Patrick 212. So that the first four gentlemen, namely, Messrs. Dwarkanauth Tagore, Charles Lyall, Henry Wollaston, and John Storm will succeed Messrs. James Cullen, J. W. Craig, Wm. Storm and Alexander St. Lager McMahon, gone out by rotation; and the two latter, namely, Messrs. G. Hoffnagle and W. Patrick, are elected in the room of Messrs. Carr and Remney, of whose term of service one year remains unfulfilled.—Hulkarn, July 20,

The Secretary in submitting this presentation to the Society stated that he had been authorised by Mr. Leighton to mention that he should be happy to make a translation of the work for the use of the Society, and give it to the M.S. The meeting in return expressed itself highly indebted to Mr. Leighton for this liberal offer, and the Secretary was directed to place himself in communication with him on the subject.

MUSEUM.

1.—Three samples of cotton from foreign seed grown at Allahabad. Presented by R. Montgomery, Esq. [Referred to the Cotton Committee for Report.]

In the letter announcing the despatch of the above samples, Mr. Montgomery mentions, that the Madras tobacco seed received last year from the Society flourished admirably, and that he has saved about three seers of the seed for distribution in the proper season; that the Indian corn obtained from the same quarter has given equally good results and the produce has been sold in the bazar at the rate of four heads for one pie, whilst sixteen and seventeen heads of the country produce is sold for one pie. Mr. Montgomery mentions further his intention of distributing English vegetable seeds in the neighbourhood, and of giving prizes for the best samples of each kind of vegetable raised from such seed.

2.—Samples pods of cotton, the produce of Bourbon seed, grown in a garden, belonging to the Revd. Gt. Wilkin-on, in the Gorruckpore district. Presented by Dr. Wallich on behalf of Capt. Thos. Goldiey.

The opinion of the Cotton Committee to which this Cotton was referred is that "it is very inferior in point of staple to the generality of acclimatized Bourbon cotton."

3.—Three specimens of the Red Bhutte Wheat in ear, of the finest medium and inferior quality. Presented by Lieut. E. I. Robinson, Superintendent of the Bhutte States.

Pronounced to be a good quality Wheat.

4.—A small assortment of grains and vegetable seeds from the South of Europe. Presented by professor Royal on behalf of the Court of Directors of the India Company, who caused the package to be transmitted by the Overland Mail. The Secretary stated that he had transmitted the greater part of them to Mr. Smith at Delhi, and to the Secundra Garden.

5.—Samples of Salep Mian in a green and prepared state, of Chironjee prepared and in berry, a root of what is called by the Natives jungle Chilie, another root known by the name of Biscobra, a sample of cotton of the first description grown in Bihar, specimen of gum ac, found on an old Barr tree, and three pieces of the branch with the insect attached thereon.

Presented by Dr. Riddell, of the Nizam's Service.

Dr. Riddell in his interesting communication states, that the root of the jungle chilie and Biscobra is considered by the Native as an antidote to the bite of all venomous snakes, and is invariably used in such cases. Several instances are mentioned by Dr. Riddell, on the testimony of others, of success having attended the application of these roots to the parts affected. Dr. Riddell suspects that the Biscobra is a species of Hog-weed and the jungle chilie a variety of Bryony.

With reference to the specimen of gum, Dr. Riddell informs the Society, that the Barr tree whence it was taken has not been cut for two seasons, neither has it borne fruit lately it was sown from a Bengal seed and is of the large sort; the tree being pruned the gum, lac were found upon several branches, and with a glass of no great magnifying power, Dr. Riddell could see clearly very minute white insects moving all over the red gummy appearance and apparently at work. Should the specimen be considered of any worth, Dr. Riddell intends directing his attention more particularly to the culture of the insect.

The Gum was pronounced to be of the light orange sort, used chiefly to make the Lac and was worth at present in the market not more than 4 to 4-8 rupees a mound.

9.—Four boxes containing specimens of various sorts of raisins, prepared under his inspection from grapes, the produce of the country. Presented by Dr. R. Riddell.

The raisins here presented were prepared from three varieties of grape.

The Surbera a white grape, which sells generally at two seers also raisins, except as an experiment.

The fukaria, a very luxurious water grape, sells from twelve to twenty seers the Rupee.

The Bokine is still more plentiful and is extensively cultivated, as from its cheapness the grape is consumed by the poorer classes. Sixty seers is the quantity that may be obtained for a Rupee.

The plan pursued by Dr. Riddell in the preparation of these grapes, was simply to get them in as ripe a state as possible and expose them occasionally to the sun on mats, turning them as necessary, they were dry in ten or twelve days. One box contains raisins prepared from the Bokine Grape after the method laid down in Grey's Pharmacopoeia. Dr. Riddell does not think he has been so successful with this latter as with the Bokine, treated in a more simple manner, but wishes to obtain information on this point from the Society here, anxious now that he has quitted that part of the country, (Koonah) to induce the natives, to whom he has taken the trouble of pointing out the mode of preparing the grape, to carry on the experiment, as it is probable it properly attended to, that this staple may become a much greater article of commerce, than it is at present.

7.—A specimen of Bikaner Sugar. Presented by Lieut. E. I. Robinson.

Lieutenant Robinson states that his object in sending this specimen to the Society is, to learn if such sugar is likely to obtain a sale in Calcutta, at the probable cost of one rupee four annas per seer. In the Upper provinces, Lieut. Robinson mentions it is much sought after more as a luxury than for common use. The reason of its being so dear is because the sugar in its raw state has first to be carried from the Doab to Bikaner.

This is a beautiful sample of sugar cane but the price was thought to be abate to its profitable introduction into the Calcutta market.

8.—Specimens of Azimghur Clense and Sukkur Presented by H. C. Tucker, Esq., on behalf of the cultivator.

The clense was pronounced to be a very superior sugar and worth in the Calcutta market at present 11 8 to 12 rupees a bazar maund—the sukkur about 8 or 9 rupees a bazar maund.

9.—A small quantity of superior potatoes, just received from Van Diemen's Land. Presented by Geo. Hodgkinson, Esq.

10.—A canister of Arrow-root grown and manufactured under the supervision of the Garden Reach. Presented by Mr. Wittingbaker.

12.—Specimens of Hamp, of cloth made from the fibre, and a small quantity of the seed. Presented by Captain H. Kirke.

These specimens were grown by Captain Kirke at Deyrah Doon, and were pronounced by a good judge of the article to be of a most superior quality, and almost equal to the staple of the Hawaiian Hamp.

13.—A small assortment of fruit, vegetable and flower seeds, specimens of Cashahar, and Bokhara churra of Kelant onion, of Cashanar spear mint dried and pounded and the leaves, flowers and seeds of the "Poorzah" Presented by Lt. Col. S. A. J.

Amongst other observations made by Col. Stacy in his highly interesting communications regarding the preparation of most of these preparations, his intention that the leaves of the "poorzah" have a highly aromatic smell, they are dried and used by the natives as under the matchlock men always carry this and a bit of flint and a steel. It ignites as readily as any tinder. Of the three sorts of Cashanar churra, the first is described as being almost a resin, this may be smoked or taken inwardly without any fear of after consequences, it is considered in the opinion of an old churra-smoker as unequalled. The second is also very good, but not equal to No. 1, no fears of injury from this variety, if used in moderation; the third kind is common, it dries up the brains, burns the bowels and brings on diseases of the lungs. The Bokhara churra is stated to be very strong, whoever smokes it becomes intoxicated immediately, it is perfectly cooling, produces great heat of body, increased hunger, and kills in a short time, this is the kind used by murderers.

With regard to vegetables Col. Stacy states that the white mustard has been used in Canton simple pointed that in the absence of English preparation it was found a very good substitute. The common lettuce is the largest Col. Stacy has ever beheld one is more than sufficient for a meal. Col. Stacy intimates that he is preparing a good assortment of fruit seeds for the Society, and intends sending it at the close of the rainy season.

The special thanks of the Society were directed to be offered to Col. Stacy for his valuable communications and presents.

13.—Sample of the "West India strawberry guava" presented by Mr. D. W. H. Speed.

The tree from whence this fruit is obtained, was grown by Mr. Speed from seed received from the late Mr. John Palmer in 1835, they are now in full bearing and the fruits is stated to make a very delicate flavoured jelly.

14.—Melon seeds, grown in Calcutta from Calcutta, Calcutta and Calcutta seeds. Presented by Mr. R. W. Chew.

15.—Specimens of boxwood from the Sirmoor Mountains. Presented by Dr. Wallich on behalf of Capt. A. Vica y.

Capt. Vica y states, that the box tree flourishes most luxuriantly in the Sirmoor Mountains, attains a height of 30 to 40 feet and would furnish length of logs of 6 to 10 feet by a foot and more in diameter. Professor Haughton is of opinion that the wood is admirably suited for those purposes to which the Mediterranean Box and that wood only, has hitherto been applied.

16.—A small specimen of raw sugar—prepared from Otahiti cane grown at a factory opposite Houghly. Presented by James Colquhoun, Esq.

17.—Specimen of sun dried plantains from Ipyope, Annam. Presented by Dr. Wallich, on behalf of Mrs. Brownlow.

In a note to Dr. Wallich, forwarding these plantains, Mrs. Brownlow mentions her intention devoting her time to the preparation of this fruit for sale in India, or exportation at four annas per lb.

Dr. Wallich, in bringing these excellent specimens to the notice of the meeting, took the opportunity to state that the fruit had arrived in an exceedingly dry state, although it had had to travel no great a distance at such an unfavourable season of the year,—this could be accounted for from the circumstance of the specimen having been packed up in India rubber cloth, which had completely resisted the moisture of the atmosphere.

18.—An assortment of seeds from Norfolk Island, and a specimen of the fern-tree from New Zealand. Presented by Lieut. White, H. M. 44th.

19.—Five boxes the produce of a stock this had been obtained in South America from the hand of a Spaniard. Presented by Lieut. Wilson. The Secretary informed the Meeting that Lieut. Wilson, to whom he was indebted for this very remarkable curiosity had mentioned to him that he obtained these boxes from a gentleman at Sydney, who had brought them from Lima, where they had been raised by him from seed found in the grasp of some mummies which had of late been found in the Province of Peru.

Prizes for Flax.

The motion of which notice was given at the last meeting by Mr. Prescott for the grant of the gold medal of the Society for the best sample of flax of not less than ten tons in quantity, was, after an amendment had been put to have the quantity reduced, carried, and the compilation of the details left to the Flax Committee.

REPORT ON LITERARY WORKS.

The first Report submitted to the Meeting was that of the Special Committee appointed to decide on the merits of the several works that had been put in competition for the prizes of the Society. Two complete works had been received and one incomplete one. The Committee did not consider the two first works of the description which the Society contemplated when offering its prizes, the latter was deemed deserving of the support which was asked for it, but a letter having subsequently been received wherein the author expressed a wish to withdraw the document, the Society immediately acceded to the application.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON THE INFORMATION OBTAINED IN SUPPORT OF THE VIEWS OF THE CIRCULAR DIRECTOR AND THE SUPREME GOVERNMENT OF INDIA WITH REGARD TO AN INTERCHANGE OF PLANTS, &c.

Your Committee, in continuation of its report which will be found recorded in the proceedings of the Society for the month of September last, desires to report that in accordance with the wishes of the Society, it has caused an extensive distribution of the Circular inviting information, to be made not only throughout the presidency of Bengal and Agra, but to those also of Bombay and Madras, and that your Committee has now the pleasing duty of announcing the receipt of materials, in return to its call, of a most extensive and valuable kind: those from the Hon'ble the Governor of Bombay, through whose powerful instrumentality the Botanical officers under this Government have contributed, especially so.

Your Committee would now beg to state, that in its opinion, these valuable papers should be made over to Government of India as a contribution from the Society to be disposed of as may seem fit,—remarking at the same time, that as the Hon'ble Court, in a subsequent despatch, a copy of which the Society had also been favoured with, from the Supreme Government, expresses a desire that step should be taken in this country for giving publicity to all useful information at the expense of the State, that these papers should be recommended to the careful consideration of the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council, as being worthy of being digested and arranged for the press, a task however, which your Committee would remark, will require some considerable labour.

Extract.—“We propose from time to time, to print and publish such information as may come before us, calculated either to extend the knowledge of the productions of India, to increase their amount, improve their quality, or give a stimulus to the demand for them; and we desire that you will cause similar measures to be taken for effecting the same objects throughout India.”—Despatch to Governor General in Council dated 23rd July 1839.

Your Committee having been formed at the spontaneous suggestion of the Society and not from any expressed wish for assistance made by the Government, who transmitted the Despatch to the Society, it can only venture to suggest the mode of procedure as the one best calculated for giving efficiency to the objects which the Society has in view when dealing to co-operate with the Government in carrying out the work of improvement for the Committee does not consider it right to recommend that the expense of digestion and publication should be paid out of the Funds of the Society.

The Papers referred to consist of fourteen communications, comprised under three forms of classification, viz.

1st.—Food comprising excellent grains of all kinds, medicinal plants, fruits, and roots.

2d.—Fodder and food for cattle and domestic animals, comprising grasses, seed, fruits, roots, and leaves, also ornamental shrubs and flowers.

3d.—Manufacturing and commercial articles, such as oils, gums, dye-woods, and barks and other vegetable staples of commerce.

The amount, in manuscript, of this information extends to 148 pages, but when digested and brought into proper form, would probably not exceed one hundred, if so much.

N. WALLICH, M. D., V. P.
G. W. JOHNSON,
JOHN COWIE,
ROBERT WATSON,
C. K. ROBINSON, V. P.
H. PRIDGINGTON,
D. W. H. SPENCER,
RAM COMUL SEN.

The Hon'ble the President in allusion to the report which had just been read, thought the subject deserving of the attention of the Government, and he coincided in opinion with what the Committee stated that valuable as the papers seemed to be, the Society could not well be expected to pay the expense of publication out of its own Funds, setting aside the consideration of the time and trouble which the arrangement and superintendence of the MS., for the press would entail and which could not be expected should be exacted as an act of gratuitous labour. In transmitting the Report to Government, which he should propose should be done along with the several communications alluded to, in order that the Government might see the real nature of the documents, he would suggest that if the Government were willing to incur the expense of preparation and publication of these practical papers that the Society would be the best Superintendent for the work, especially as other papers, from time to time, might be deemed deserving of publication in fulfilment of the intentions of the Home Government. He therefore begged to move the following resolution:

“That the Report of the Committee now read be confirmed—that a copy of the same with the documents to which it referred, be transmitted to the Secretary to Government in the General Department by the Secretary of the Society, recommending the same to the favourable consideration of the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in Council, and a suggestion, if the Government should think it desirable, that they should be printed; and that sanction be given to the Society to incur the expense which may be required for the compilation of the papers for the Press and the printing of the same.”

This motion was seconded by Dr. Wallich and carried unanimously.

Report of Sugar Committee on Antigua Sugar.

The Report of the Sugar Committee on a sample of Sugar submitted by Mr. Riley at Antigua was first read. The Committee pronounced the Sugar to be a good strong Muscovado Sugar, "rather hard in the berries, but very well adapted for the refiners." It resembles Jamaica Sugar, and it admitted at the same rate of duty it would fetch in the London Market within about 12 shillings of good Bonaire—but as the requisite quantity has not been furnished, the Committee felt compelled to withhold their recommendation of the grant of the Medal.

Report of Cotton Committee.

The Report of the Cotton Committee on samples of cotton grown at the Secundra Garden from Egyptian, Malia, Seychelles, and Nankin seed. Also two specimens of Aracan Cotton and one of acclimated Bourbon from Caruckpore. Of the four specimens sent from the Secundra Garden, the Seychelles was pronounced the best. The Committee considers it soft, of good color, and staple of fair length—a useful Cotton which would meet with an extensive consumption in England. The Egyptian is also considered of a good healthy color, retaining every appearance of Egyptian Cotton, but would be of much less value in the Liverpool Market than "good fair Egyptian," on account of the irregularity of the length of staple, which latter drawback will ever exist in the opinion of the Committee till the proper mode of gathering the Cotton has been introduced. If full grown ripe pods are collected in the same parcel with others but half matured along with sticks and green and dried leaves, discoloration as well as irregularity must be expected. The sample of Malia and Nankin Cotton are considered worthless.

The Committee dwell on the importance, on all occasions of correspondence sending samples of Cotton from foreign seed to the Society at the same time forwarding along with them specimens of the indigenous Cotton of the place in order that an idea may be formed of their respective worth.

The Aracan Cotton is considered very inferior and would not meet with any demand for English consumption, and the Bourbon in comparison to the same kind which has been acclimated in Jamaica and Guzerat is also very inferior.

On the reading of the report being concluded, the propriety of the quantity of Cotton under cultivation in each case was alluded to as being very necessary to be stated by the correspondents, and a question was asked when the promised American workmen which the Court of Directors stated some months ago, would be sent out—might be expected.

The Secretary stated that no information was before the Society as to when the Court of Directors intended to fulfil their promise.

Distribution of Tea Plants.

A communication from Dr. Wallich, Secretary to the Tea Committee, was next read, intimating that he has been authorised to announce that during the next cold season small supplies of Assam Tea plants and seeds will be furnished to the public on application being made to him without delay, accompanied by an explanation showing that the locality of the intended cultivation offers a fair chance of success. The expenses of transportation to be borne by applicants.

Corn and Pasture Grasses of India.

The Secretary next submitted some loose sheets on the corn and pasture grasses of India, which had been generously presented by Professor Royle, who is now drawing "the attention of members particularly to the importance of corn and pasture grasses." The subject has been treated by him in the forthcoming tract published by Mr. Alcock of the Asiatic Society, and the sheets are placed at the disposal of the Society from that portion of it which embraces the subject of grasses.

Successful Introduction of American Seed into the District of Poonah.

An interesting communication was next read from Mr. Pratt, on the result of experiments made by him some years ago (about 1820) while an Indigo Planter in Poonah, with some pebbles which had been sent out to himself and Mr. Henry from the United States. Having retained a few seeds for himself, the remainder was distributed to planters, Zemindars, Alopajaks and other in various parts of the district of Poonah.

The result of the first trial (though made under disadvantages) was very satisfactory, having obtained from callahs (small measure) B. maunds 2 10 seeds at the rate of twenty five maunds per biggah. The next attempt made by Mr. Pratt was upon a large scale in a remote part of the district (Doolapore Zemindary) which is almost exclusively confined to the cultivation of paddy although the want of rain was greatly felt at a particular period of the season, twenty biggahs produced an average of twenty two maunds of paddy per biggah, which quantity far exceeded any thing the Ryots had ever been accustomed to witness from their ordinary crops. Having pointed out to the Zemindars the advantages and importance of introducing this unusually productive and superior grain upon an extensive scale among their Ryots, Mr. Pratt left about 400 maunds for that purpose, and now that four years have elapsed since Mr. Pratt left, he understands that "the bonitas dahn" (so called by them) is cultivated to a very considerable extent.

Being fully aware of its superior value as an article of commerce in Great Britain, Mr. Pratt made several attempts to buy and clean it (so as to retain its proper color with the grain entire) but with the means then and at present available in the M. S. (the ordinary Dhenn-kee) the proportion of whole grain seldom exceeded one third, the remainder broken, thereby rendering it unfit for the Calcutta market.

With efficient machinery, under proper management, Mr. Pratt sees no reason why it should not equal the fine large grained Carolina Rice which in the European markets generally commands a much higher price than any of the best descriptions hitherto imported from Bengal—but under any circumstances it is well worth the attention of zemindars and landholders from its very productive properties alone.

As the Seed presented by Mr. Hodgkinson at the last meeting has ere this probably been distributed among the Society, the season arrived for transplanting it, Mr. Pratt will have much pleasure in giving the fullest information (regarding soil, &c.) to those who may be desirous.

Port Essington.

A letter from Mr. Earl from Port Essington to Dr. Pry on the new settlement of Port Essington, and giving cover to a circular of "H. H. S.", drawn up for the use of travellers in visiting the islands of the Eastern Archipelago by Dr. Thompson, Deputy Inspector of Hospitals at Sydney was next read. Mr. Earl who accompanied Sir G. B. Fraser in the Aligator to Port Essington, describes the little settlement as not yet open for colonization, but for some months older to that effect have been expected from home. The climate has proved admirable. Although within the tropics, there has been neither sickness nor death among the Garrison, who are as healthy as when they left England, indeed the cliinter-tribe warfare is equal to that of New South Wales. The soil is not better than that of any part of Assam when Mr. Bell has yet visited. There is not a spot on the whole Coboury Peninsula, that is not capable of cultivation, while at the same time it is easily cleared. The gardens are abundant in the extreme.

The Ganges of Omurkoniuck in Central India.

A highly interesting note on the subject of a recent tour of the Commissioner in the Saigor and Nerbudda territories, among the Gaud tribes who reside in the district of Rattampore from Dr. Spilbury was next submitted.

Dr. Spilbury dates his letter 20 miles from the hill of Omurkoniuck, and forwards some valuable statistical returns relative to Ramghur, the country of which he says is lorded over by a Rajah who has about 14-0 villages under him. Some of the country consists of extensive tracts without trees, but seemingly of excellent soil with abundance of water and so plentiful with fresh green grass thousands of cattle come up from the south to graze in the hot dry months of the year. The mountains are all iron and laterite. The population which is apparently thin, consists almost entirely of Gaud who are described by Dr. Spilbury as being in the very lowest scale of civilization. Towards Omurkoniuck it rains every three or four days, a circumstance difficult of explanation as Dr. Spilbury remarks, although the Mirdas Hills which are 1200 feet higher, and as richly clothed with vegetation, get no rain to them. In the one case the hill is sandstone and trap while in the other it is all capped with laterite, and Dr. Spilbury says whether this difference in the geological features is sufficient to account for the difference.

For all the above presents and communications the thanks of the Society were accorded.

INDIAN LAUDABLE AND MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

The first half yearly Meeting of the subscribers to the Indian Laudable and Mutual Assurance Society, was held on Saturday last, at the office of the Secretary, Mr. Cullen. Mr. C. H. Hufnagle was called to the Chair, when the report of the Directors of the operations of the Society during the past six months was read.

It appeared from this report that the Society in the very commencement of its existence has been favorably viewed by the public, and that since the 1st January thirty-three new lives have been added, from which five lapses and four withdrawals being deducted, there remains an increase of twenty-four lives. From this state of things, the Directors express a hope in their report that in proportion as the advantages of ensuring to the Society become more practically known, it will advance, in the estimation of the public.

The Directors also thought it necessary to repeat in their report, that parties entering this Society at once acquiring a proprietary right in the Premium Fund and in the interest in the Guarantee Fund—they become immediately entitled to the full share in the Surplus Fund at the close of each half year, such share being in the first instance retained at individual credit in the Guarantee Fund until it amounts to ten per cent, on the individual risk, after which time it is employed, in reduction of premium. If a lapse occur, the amount of credit with the Guarantee Fund is paid in full, with the amount insured; if an insurer withdraw, it is paid to him minus 26 per cent, which is carried to the Premium Fund.

It was also intimated that certain practical modifications for the rules are under consideration of the Directors, of which due notice will hereafter be given, in order to the votes of the Society being taken in regard to them.

There were several documents and accounts, statements laid upon the table for inspection, from which the following results appeared:

Thus after refunding 15 per cent. on the premium paid during the half year to all parties insured in the Society, the actual Cash Fund on the 15th instant, amounts to 15 1/2 per cent. on the amount of outstanding risks, offering the most ample security.

"The following resolutions were proposed and carried, on the occasion :

Moved by Mr. T. P. Morell, seconded by Mr. James Colquhoun,—That the accounts and statements, for the last six months now submitted to the Meeting be passed as correct and satisfactory Moved by Mr. W. Patrick, seconded by Baboo Dwarkanath Tagore.—That the resolutions passed at the General Meeting of the Society held on the 28th of February last be confirmed.

Moved by Mr. T. P. Morell, seconded by Mr. Charles Greenlaw,—That the Secretary be directed to publish the Report of the Directors with an abstract of the Funds and Accounts of the Society now laid before the Meeting for the information of Subscribers.

Thanks were then voted to the Chairman and the Meeting separated.—Hark. July 27.

STEAM COMMUNICATION WITH ENGLAND.

The Committee appointed at the Public Meeting held on the 12th March last give notice, for the information of parties who have subscribed to Mr. Currie's Scheme for establishing a perfect Steam Communication, between England and India, that they have received a voluminous communication from him, as Chairman of the "East India Steam Navigation Company," established in London, too voluminous indeed to admit of publication at once. They, therefore, confine themselves at present to the publication of the most important part, viz. the result of his Communications with the Agents of the "Eastern Steam Navigation Company," and "of the committee appointed on the 14th March last" Immediately on the receipt of Mr. W. Prinsep's letter as agreed to at that Meeting, the Board of Directors of East India Steam Navigation Company took it into consideration, and the following resolutions were the result.

Copy of Resolutions by the Board of Directors.

"With an anxious and sincere desire to promote the important object of an efficient Steam Communication between India and Great Britain, the Directors of the East India Steam Navigation Company have taken into their deliberate consideration the letters which have been addressed to the Chairman and Deputy Chairman by the Venerable T. Dalrymple and Messrs. C. B. Greenlaw, H. M. Parker; J. H. Johnstone and Wm. Forbes, of the 14th March, and to the Chairman by Mr. W. Prinsep of the 14th March, and Mr. W. Limond of the 16th March, and although they deeply lament that such light shades of difference as seem to exist, between the plan the Directors had projected and that now submitted to them by the united Committee at Calcutta, should have interposed to delay or throw a doubt over the effective establishment of the Enterprise, yet, with a view to conciliate those differences, and to accelerate as much as possible this desirable end, they have come to the following conclusions, which they trust will be sufficient to satisfy the Agents of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company, and to induce them to transmit the funds they have received to this Company, so as to consider the union of the two bodies complete, and to enable the Directors to take immediate steps to carry the necessary measures into effect.

1st—"The Directors agree to direct their immediate attention to the commencement of the communication between Calcutta, Madras, Ceylon and Suez, leaving the European line untouched until the Indian line be completed, and as a preliminary step they will purchase or hire as soon as they can a Steam Boat of sufficient size, to be sent out with the least possible delay to Calcutta, to be placed on the station, to perform four voyages in the year."

"They will also undertake to complete the number of vessels required for a monthly communication between Calcutta and Europe.

2d—"The Directors agree to the local management of the Steam Boats, and the Ordinary affairs of the Company (as set forth in the 6th paragraph of Mr. C. J. Gordon's letters to the Members of the United Steam Navigation Committee, dated March 9, 1840, which letter was distinctly and unquestionably adopted as the basis of future proceedings for the union between the respective parties engaged in the promotion of Steam Navigation between England and India) being intrusted to the Directors in India, having the powers of the Indian Board, upon the Deed of settlement of the Assam Tea Company as referred to in the letter from Mr. W. Prinsep to the Chairman."

3d—"The Directors do not agree to the disjunction of the comprehensive plan (so called) by the establishment of two separate companies, viz. one for the Indian side and one for the European side, for all the reasons stated in the letter from Mr. W. Prinsep to the Chairman," viz.

1st.—"They do not think a sufficient "number of subscriptions could be obtained in England, to carry out a scheme exclusively Indian"

2dly—"They do not think the Government would grant a charter to any company not having for one of its objects the promotion of the service of the Government—to which an exclusive Indian line of communication would scarcely contribute"

3dly—"They do not think either Her Majesty's Government or the East India Company would deem the communication of sufficient importance to contribute their aid," and 4thly—"They cannot see upon what grounds a relaxation of the Quarantine laws could be solicited under such a local scheme.

"The Directors have, therefore, resolved that in order to carry into effect the wishes and views of the Indian community, it is necessary to complete the whole line of communication between Calcutta, Madras, Ceylon and Great Britain, by a continued management and the establishment of steam boats both on the Eastern and European sides."

These resolutions were sent to the Agent of the "Eastern Steam Navigation Company" and of the committee appointed on the 14th March last, with the following letter.

East India Steam Navigation Company, "The Post-Office, London, May 20, 1840.

Messrs. Cockerell and Co. and Messrs. Small, Colquhoun and Co. London.

Gentlemen,—As Chairman of the East India Steam Navigation Company, I have the honor of transmitting to you the resolution to which the Board have come, in request to the union of the two parties

we shall be ready not only to assist with our Agents of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company of Calcutta, but to persons ourselves deeply interested in the results to take our limited share of the labor and responsibility, provided some plan is introduced into the Board of your Company giving us seat there, we represent the opinion of deciding for ourselves whether we shall, when the arrangements for the Eastern line be completed, embark our capital in the European line.

"I am, gentlemen, your obedient servt."

(Signed) T. A. CURTIS.

Messrs. Cockerell and Co. and Small, Colquhoun and Co. replied as follows:—

"London, 1st June 1840.

"Sir.—We have to acknowledge your favor of the 28th ultimo, addressed to us as Agents for the Steam Navigation Company of Calcutta, by you, as Chairman of the East India Steam Navigation Company of London, transmitting certain resolutions of your board in respect to the union of the two parties anxious to carry out an effective plan for a regular Steam Communication between India, Ceylon, and England.

"With the knowledge of the sincere wish of all parties in Calcutta to unite on some sound practical measure which will ensure the India Community a direct and speedy Steam Communication, between Calcutta and Egypt, we have paid the utmost attention to these resolutions, with the anxious desire that they may prove the foundation of a satisfactory union between all persons interested in this great measure. It appears to us that the two first resolutions effectively meet the views of all parties in India, in as much as they provide:

1st.—That the East India Steam Navigation Company will take immediate measures for sending a Steam vessel of sufficient size and power to Calcutta, and will undertake to complete the number of vessels required for a monthly communication between Calcutta and Suez, and that they will leave the European line untouched until the Indian line be completed.

2d.—That the local management of the Steam boats and the ordinary affairs of the Company on the Eastern line, shall be entrusted to a local Board of Directors at Calcutta, with powers analogous to those possessed by the Indian Directors of the Assam Company.

"With respect to the 3rd resolution it is our opinion that it is for your Board to decide in what mode it can best carry the above resolutions into effect, whether by the means of two Companies, or one Company, by limiting its operations to the Eastern line or by having power ultimately to extend them to both lines.

"But before we can agree to unite with the East India Steam Navigation Company, we consider it to be our imperative duty to have laid before us the exact situation of your Company, the number of the shares taken and amount of the money raised, and likely to be raised, and what measures have been or may be taken to obtain the sanction and assistance of Her Majesty's Government and of the East India Company to the plan, and likewise with respect to the grant of a Charter and to the relaxation of the present Quarantine laws, and we, therefore, solicit a free conference between ourselves and any members of your board that may be selected to meet us on these points.

"In conclusion we beg to say that if we are satisfied that the East India Steam Navigation Company has a reasonable prospect of accomplishing what it proposes, we shall be ready not only to assist with our Agents of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company of Calcutta, but to persons ourselves deeply interested in the results to take our limited share of the labor and responsibility, provided some plan is introduced into the Board of your Company giving us seat there, we represent the opinion of deciding for ourselves whether we shall, when the arrangements for the Eastern line be completed, embark our capital in the European line.

"We shall be obliged by your early answer to this letter in order that we may communicate by the mail of the 4th with our principals in Calcutta, more especially, as we have express directions from them to proceed with every despatch to carry out their plans.

"We are, sir, your very obdt. servt.,

(Signed) "COCKERELL AND CO.

"SMALL, COLQUHOUN AND CO."

On this, the Board of Directors of the East India Steam Navigation Company, came to the following resolution.

Copy of resolution passed at meeting, June 2d, 1840.

"That as the letter addressed to the Chairman by Messrs. Cockerell and Co., and Messrs. Small, Colquhoun and Co., contains in the 6th paragraph conditions which are inconsistent with the completion of the comprehensive plan, the Directors cannot accept that letter as the basis of an union with the Eastern Steam Navigation Company."

Secretary.

This Committee have the satisfaction of knowing that, notwithstanding this untoward state of affairs, Mr. Curtis and his Colleagues had resolved not to relax in their efforts. A revised prospectus had been prepared to meet as far as possible the views entertained in India, which was about to be submitted to the Board, and, when approved to be put forth to the British public.

The Committee, therefore, once more earnestly appeal to the people of India to come forward and support that scheme which has been taken up at home by gentlemen whose names are a guarantee for the integrity of their purpose, and that the scheme will be fully carried out.

The following is the present state of the subscriptions to Mr. Curtis' scheme under this Committee.

London, East India and China Association, May 21st, 1840

W. LINDSEY, Esq.,

Secretary Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta.

Sir,—In continuation of the subject of my letter of the 25th April, with reference to the steam communication with India, I transmit to you particulars of an advertisement of the Government for a contract for carrying mails from Falmouth to Alexandria via Gibraltar direct. Likewise copy of a letter to the lords of the treasury written in consequence thereof. In giving publicity to their contents, you will understand that the Falmouth line is not intended to supersede that through France.

By a resolution of the house of commons of the 15th instant, an additional duty of 5 per cent was ordered to be levied on all the goods imported except spirits, and upon them 4d. per gallon extra.

I am, Sir, your obedt. servt.,

JOHN STRICKMAN, Secretary.

I.—The contractors to provide at least 2 efficient steamers of 400 horse-power, in all respects properly equipped and manned.

II.—One to leave Falmouth on the 1st of every calendar month, or each other day in every calendar month as the lords of the admiralty may appoint to proceed to Gibraltar direct, and to arrive within 120 hours, or 5 complete days.

III.—To remain at Gibraltar 6 hours and no more (unless specially required to do so by the admiralty agent; but the stay in no case to exceed 132 hours from the time of her leaving Falmouth) so as to arrive at Malta in 116 hours or 4 days and 20 hours from the time of her leaving Gibraltar being 242 hours or 10 days and 2 hours from leaving Falmouth.

IV.—Within 26 hours after the arrival at Malta that is within 208 hours, or 11 days and 4 hours after leaving Falmouth she shall proceed direct to Alexandria, unless specially detained by the admiralty agent at Malta; and then not exceeding 48 hours, she shall arrive at Alexandria within 96 hours, or 4 complete days after her departure from Malta (exclusive of any unusual delay at Malta) within 364 hours or 15 days and 4 hours of her departure from Falmouth.

V.—To remain at Alexandria in ordinary cases 5 complete days (that is till 484 hours, or 20 days and 4 hours from her departure from Falmouth) for the arrival of the East India mails and despatches, unless the said mails, &c. shall have previously arrived, in which case she shall leave Alexandria as soon as the coals can be got on board and the requisite repairs effected. If the mails have not arrived at the expiration of the 5 days she is to remain beyond that period 2 days in February, 4 days in April, June, September and November, and 5 days in the remaining months in the year; and longer in case a telegraphic communication shall have reached Alexandria that the mails have been despatched across the desert.

VI.—To leave as soon as the mails are on board, and to proceed direct to Malta, at which place she is to arrive in 120 hours or 5 complete days from the time of her leaving Alexandria.

VII.—After remaining 24 hours at Malta, she shall proceed direct to Gibraltar, at which place she shall arrive in 116 hours (or 4 days and 19 hours from the time of her leaving Malta) being 269 hours (or 10 days and 19 hours) from the time of her departure from Alexandria.

VIII.—Her stay at Gibraltar on the homeward route not to exceed 12 hours, and she shall then proceed direct to Falmouth at which place she shall arrive within 120 hours or 5 complete days of her departure from Gibraltar, being 391 hours, or 16 days and 7 hours from the time of her departure from Alexandria, and under ordinary circumstances 376 hours or 15 days and 7 hours from the time of her departure from Falmouth.

Other provisions.—The admiralty may alter the particular days and hours of starting on giving 3 months' notice. The contract to be for 6 years, and the contractors to make such alterations and improvements in their machines as the improved state of science may suggest, penalty £500 for not leaving Falmouth, Gibraltar, or Alexandria for every delay of 12 hours; and the vessels are not to linger, or deviate from their direct course on the voyage except to save human life, or to assist vessels in distress under penalty of £200. Two sureties, together with the contractors in the sum of £200. Two sureties, together with the contractors in the sum of £8,000—required for the performance of the conditions.

This is a large stride towards improvement, and as the vessels will be 14 or 1500 tons, and accommodate many passengers it cannot fail to lead shortly to the employment of a larger class of Steamers on the Indian side of Egypt. As the committee conceived some improvement may be grafted on the above arrangements they have addressed the lords of the treasury to the following effect:—

May 8th, 1840.

"My lords,—I have the honor to acquaint you that at the request of the committee, I address you with reference to the intended contract for carrying the Indian mails between Falmouth and Alexandria via Gibraltar. In a letter which I had the honor to address to Mr. Baring on the 20th June last, I stated, that after a full consideration of the subject, at a meeting of merchants convened by public advertisement, the most convenient day for the departure of the India mail by way of France was determined to be the 4th of each calendar month, unless that day fall on Sunday, and then the mails to be despatched on the following Monday. That day was therefore adopted by H. M. Government, and the mail under the convention with France now reaches Marseilles on the afternoon of the 9th, and Malta on the evening of the 14th of the same month. By the intended contract the maximum time for the Steamers to reach Malta is 10 days 2 hours, so that if they leave Falmouth as proposed on the first of the month, they would arrive at Malta on the 11th, but taking letters from London of no later date than the 28th or 29th of the preceding month; whereas, if they were to take their departure from a nearer port two days later (say the 3d) it would give time for them to be at Malta on the same day with the mail of the 4th via France, and possess this additional advantage of enabling the merchants to send the monthly accounts of stock, and the heavy description of correspondence by the cheaper conveyance and entirely through the British post office. It has been represented to the committee that from London to Portsmouth (for instance) by rail way takes 34 to 40 hours, say

Embarking the mails, 1
To Gibraltar 1120 miles, at 8 knots per hour, 124 "
Stay at Gibraltar, 6 " Gibraltar to Malta 960 miles, at 8 knots per hour, 107 "

..... 235 hours, or 10 days and 2 hours; so that starting on the 3d the mail would arrive at Malta (the 11th of) 1st, the same day as the mail via France, which is most respectfully submitted to your lordships' consideration and superior judgment.

The committee also beg me to ask why the time allowed for the return voyage should be longer than the time for the outward passage; being 16 days 7 hours for the former, and only 15 days 4 hours for the latter, it being of more importance to the merchant here (by reason of the competition with France, and the advantage the French derive from the earlier receipt of their letters from a portion of the mail being dropped at Paris that the home-ward mail should similarly arrive at the shortest possible time. I have also recommended to submit that the despatch of Alexandria should not only be delayed when the telegraphic communication announces the mails to have been dispatched across the desert, but also, when the affirmative has given notice that the Bombay Steamer is in sight of Suez, because the despatch could not exceed 3 or 4 hours."

I have, &c. &c.

Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta

Sir, - The Secretary informs me, that on the 23d ult he despatched a letter to you by way of Balmouth stating that Government had advertised for a contract for carrying the mails from Falmouth to Alexandria via Gibraltar, in vessels of 400 horse power in 15 days 4 hours, furnishing you with a specification of the terms of contract, also copy of a letter written by this Committee to the Lords of the Treasury on the subject, embracing the following points: 1st. - As to the most convenient point for the mails departure 2nd. - That greater length of time for the steamers returning from than going to Alexandria, and 3rdly - That she should wait a further time when the India Mail was announced to be in sight from Suez. That letter will be forwarded from Malta by the same steamer which conveys this to Egypt, and I have therefore only to inform you of the result.

The contract has been taken by Messrs Wilcox and Anderson, and there is an expectation that the vessels will commence running on the 1st July.

With respect to the port of departure I had an interview with the authorities yesterday, at the Treasury, when I learned that a committee has been appointed, consisting of Rear-Admiral Sir James Gordon, Capt Drew, an elder brother of the Trinity House, and Mr Lawrence, assistant secretary to the post office, to enquire and report which port may be considered most eligible with regard to facility of access at all times of tide, and the prevalence of winds and currents, at all periods of the year, along the coast adjacent to the harbours, and with reference to the arrangements of post office for despatch in the transmission of the mails. I have reported the Committee to decide where the mails shall be placed on board.

With respect to the voyage homeward, the Admirals report that from the nature of the winds in the Mediterranean (a perfect knowledge of which they have from their officers,) it cannot be done in equal time with the outward one.

The last proposition for the steamer to wait at Alexandria, the arrival of the India mail, when a telegraphic communication announced that the India steamer is in sight from Suez, has been decided to.

I am, Sir, your very obt servant,

W. IMOND Esq

Secy to the United Committee on Steam Navigation, Calcutta.

Sir, - I have the honor of receiving the letter which Mr W. Pinney and you have addressed to me on the 14th and 16th March conveying to me the opinions of the newly constituted committee for all matters connected with steam communication between India and Great Britain and certain Resolutions adopted at a Meeting held at the Town Hall, Calcutta, on the 14th March, and also a remittance, amounting to £2458 68, as an instalment of 20 per cent, on 236 shares subscribed at the Meeting held on the 14th March, and subject to the provisions of the Resolutions passed at that Meeting.

Your letter, and the various documents accompanying it, have been duly submitted to the Board of Directors of the East India Steam Navigation Company, and the reply which I have now the honor of addressing to you is the result of the Meetings which have been held since the receipt of them.

I can assure you nothing is nearer the wishes of the Directors than to see a means devised which should surmount all differences, and discordance in the one great object, and earnest desire to carry out the scheme, so which so much of the time and anxiety of these Gentlemen who have connected themselves with me, and by whom I have been so able and zealously supported, have been devoted.

We all feel with the Indian community that "division can only be injurious and perhaps destructive to our long cherished hopes," and that it is unquestionable that by unanimity and perseverance every thing may be accomplished.

We, therefore, deeply lament, that with such correct sentiments, any division should have taken place, and that so great an obstruction to unanimity and perseverance should have been offered to the triumphant success which awaited the Comprehensive Scheme, by the unfortunate Prætorian Plan having been mooted.

In respect to the difference which appears in the Prospectus from what was originally intended, viz to include Bombay, you will recollect that I have, from the beginning, said that the line was to Bombay, and that, if we include it, we must have a grant from the East India Company and the Government.

The exclusion of that line necessarily and naturally offers a different result and hence, the discrepancy which called forth remarks from some of the friends of the Prætorian Scheme, in respect to statements in the Propeeing, which were necessarily of the attorners of them, as they are of any reply from me.

It is very probable that some errors may have crept into the calculations, but they must be of small amount.

The necessity for the call of 20 per cent. was explained in the letter which carried out the prospectus. You will observe by the prospectus now sent, and which it is intended to take into consideration at our next board that many points have been modified to meet the views and wishes of the Indian subscribers, and whilst I refer you to the copies of the resolutions transmitted to Messrs. Cockrell and Co. and Small, Colquhoun and Co., and to their answer, and the subsequent resolution of the board, I mention that a fresh difficulty should have intervened itself in the conditions which the agents have no right to impose, which would at once make the concern purely Indian, and use the subscriptions and efforts of the British partners as a means of establishing steam boats in India, and then allow the agents, and those they represent, to say, "we have got all we want and we will now withdraw from the European line," without which I venture to say we shall obtain no English subscribers.

The introduction of such a clause in the deed of settlement is that contemplated by Messrs. Cockrell and Co. and Small, Colquhoun and Co., would be next to impossible; and, unless public notice were given of it in the prospectus, which, as before observed, would present any English subscribers to the scheme, we would not be parties to "gull the public" by the mere insertion of it in a deed of settlement, which few, if any, shareholders ever read.

I cannot but think that the majority, if not all the Indian public, will be satisfied that the directors in London have done all they can to meet the agents of the united committee. That they have failed in their endeavours, they deeply lament, but they feel so confident no plan will meet public support in this country which is not essentially and really comprehensive, that their duty to those who place their confidence in them, would not admit of their seceding in the least from the ground they have taken.

I allow myself to make an observation on discrepancies which appear in the communications you have made to me, and the agents and the resolutions at the meeting. The resolutions moved by Mr. Turton, and seconded by Mr. Grant, says, that the letter of Mr. G. J. Gordon is distinctly, and unquestionably, adopted as the basis of future proceedings. In that letter, "the exclusive management of the steamers on the Indian side, must rest with the directors in Calcutta." Your letter says that, "under any circumstances, the constitution of the Company must embrace the entire independence of the local management in India," and your 4 conditions, or suggestions, or by whatever other name it ought to be called, says, "The entire arrangements for the management in India shall rest with the directors in Calcutta."

These several contradictions do not agree together, nor can the London directors assent to them at all, except in the way they have pointed out in their resolutions, viz. by adopting the deed of settlement of the Assam Company as the basis. This is also a discrepancy in your correspondence, in as much as the Assam Company and the universal life Assurance Company, are quoted to us as models, and they are not mentioned to the agents.

Another discrepancy appears in the order which the agents have received from the united committee to proceed immediately in the execution of the plan committed to their charge, whereas, the resolution of the meeting of the 14th March, accorded six months, as a time in which it was to be seen, if the comprehensive plan could be carried out.

I have received a letter from a committee of gentlemen, who have accepted from your committee, who, with their remittance, have also transmitted the names and amount for the several subscriptions.

It would be satisfactory to me to have the list of your subscribers, and the number of shares they have taken, that we might see how far the preponderating influence of names goes, not that I think that will alter the position of the project, which I sum up, as being this: If the precursor scheme, or Eastern steam navigation company, is to be persevered in, the whole will fail; if the comprehensive plan is properly supported, it will meet its proper echo in England, and cannot fail of success. It is, however, to prevent the intention of the directors in London to go before the public at once, and try to secure support, though they feel themselves thwarted to a great degree by the Hydra-headed obstacles which seem to rise in succession, as fast as they are overcome. The directors await your further communications, promised in the letter of the 16th March, and which they expect will arrive in a few days, by the overland mail.

I lament much that this letter should not have been accompanied by one from the agents, announcing their acquiescence in the resolutions of the directors, and

I have the honor, to remain, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

(Signed) T. A. CURTIS,

Chairman of the E. I. S. N. Company.

8, Tickenhouse Yard, 28th May, 1840.

Messrs. COCKRELL AND CO. AND Messrs. SMALL, COLQUHOUN AND CO. London.

GENTLEMEN,—As Chairman of the East Indian Steam Navigation Company, I have the honor of transmitting to you the resolutions to which the Board has come, in respect to the union of the two parties, anxious to carry out an effective plan for a regular Steam Communication between India, Ceylon and England; and request the favor of as early an answer as possible, that the most prompt measures may be adopted for fulfilling the wishes of the Indian community. I have will be a meeting of the Directors, to-morrow (Friday) at 3 o'clock, when I hope you will be able to return your answer.

I am, gentlemen, your obdt. Servt.

(Signed) T. A. CURTIS.

Copy of Resolutions.

With an anxious and sincere desire to promote the important object of an efficient Steam Communication between India and Great Britain, the Directors of the East India Steam Navigation Company, have taken into their deliberate consideration the letters which have been addressed to the chairman and deputy-chairman, by the very Reverend T. Dealtry and Messrs. C. B. Greenlaw, H. M. Parker, J. H. Johnston and W. N. Forbes of the 14th March, and to the chairman by Mr. W. Rintop of the 14th March, and Mr. W. Lindsay of the 16th March, and although they deeply lament that such light shades of difference as seem to exist between the plan, the Directors had projected, and that now submitted to them by the United Committee at Calcutta, should have interposed to delay or draw a doubt over the effective establishment of the enterprise, yet, with a view to conciliate those differences, and to accommodate as much as possible this desirable end, they have come to the following conclusions, which they trust will be sufficient to satisfy the agents of the eastern steam navigation company, and to induce them to transmit the funds they have received to this Company, so as to consider the union of the two bodies as complete, and to enable the directors to take immediate steps to carry the necessary measures into effect.

1st.—The directors agree to direct their immediate attention to the communication of the communication between Calcutta, Madras, Ceylon and Suez, leaving the European line untouched until the Indian line be completed; and as a preliminary step, they will purchase or hire as soon as they can, a steam boat of sufficient size to be sent out, with the least possible delay, to Calcutta, to be placed on the station to perform 4 voyages in the year. They will also undertake to complete the number of vessels required for a monthly communication between Calcutta and Europe.

2d.—The directors agree to the local management of the steam boats and the ordinary affairs of the Company (as set forth in the 6th paragraph of Mr. G. J. Gordon's letter to the members of the united steam navigation committee, dated March 9th 1840)—which letter was distinctly and unquestionably adopted as the basis of future proceedings for the union between the respective parties engaged in the prohibition of the steam navigation between England and India)—being entrusted to the directors in India—basing the power of the Indian board upon the deed of settlement of the Assam Tea Company, as referred to in the letter from Mr. W. Prinsep to the chairman.

3d.—The directors do not agree to the disjunction of the comprehensive plan (so called by the establishment of two separate companies, viz.—one for the Indian side, and one for the European side, for all the reasons stated in the letter from Mr. Prinsep to the chairman, viz.

1st.—They do not think a sufficient number of subscriptions could be obtained in England, to carry out a scheme exclusively Indian.

2d.—They do not think the Government would grant a Charter to any Company not having for one of its objects the promotion of the service of the Government—to which an exclusive Indian Line of communication would scarcely contribute.

3d.—They do not think either Her Majesty's Government, or the East India Company, would deem the communication of sufficient importance to contribute their aid—and 4th.—They cannot see upon what grounds a relaxation of the quarantine laws could be solicited under such a local scheme.

5th.—The Directors have, therefore, resolved that, in order to carry into effect the wishes and views of the Indian community, it is necessary to complete the whole line of communication between Calcutta, Madras, Ceylon and Great Britain, by a continued Management and the Establishment of Steam Boats both on the Eastern and European sides.

London, 1st June, 1840.

Sir,—We have to acknowledge your favor of the 28th ultimo, addressed to us as agents for the Eastern Steam Navigation Company of Calcutta by you, as chairman of the East India Steam Navigation Company of London, transmitting certain resolutions of your Board in respect to the Union of the two parties anxious to carry out an effective plan for a regular Steam communication between India, Ceylon and England.

With the knowledge of the sincere wish of all parties in Calcutta, to unite in some sound practical measure which will ensure the Indian community a direct and speedy Steam communication between Calcutta and

Europe, we have paid the strict attention to the resolutions, with the sincere and anxious desire that

1. they may prove the foundation of a satisfactory union between all persons interested in this great measure. It appears to us that the two first resolutions effectually meet the views of all parties in India, inasmuch as they provide

1st.—That the East India Steam Navigation Company will take immediate measures for sending a steam vessel of sufficient size and power to Calcutta, and will undertake to complete the number of vessels required for a monthly communication between Calcutta and

3. Suez, and that they will leave the European line untouched until the Indian line be completed.

2nd.—That the local management of the Steam boats, and the ordinary affairs of the company on the Eastern line, shall be entrusted to a local Board of Directors at Calcutta, with powers analogous to those possessed by the Indian Directors of the Assam Company.

With respect to the third resolution, it is our opinion that it is for your Board to decide in what mode it can best carry the above resolutions into effect, whether

4. by the means of two companies, or one company, by limiting its operations to the Eastern line, or by having power ultimately to extend them to both lines.

But, before we can agree to unite with the East India Steam Navigation Company, we consider it to be our imperative duty to have laid before us the exact situation of your company, the number of the shares taken, and amount of the money raised, and likely to be raised

6. of, also what measures have been or may be taken to obtain the sanction and assistance of Her Majesty's Government and of the East India Company to the plan, likewise with respect to the grant of a charter, and to the relaxation of the present quarantine laws; and we therefore solicit a free conference between ourselves, and any members of your Board, that may be selected to meet us on these points.

In conclusion, we beg to say that, if we are satisfied that the East India Steam Navigation Company has a reasonable prospect of accomplishing what it proposes, we shall be ready not only to unite with it as agents of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company of Calcutta, but at persons ourselves deeply interested in the result to take our limited share of the labor and responsibility, provided some clauses are introduced into the deed of your company, giving us and those we represent the option of deciding for ourselves whether we shall, when the arrangements for the Eastern line be completed, embark our capital in the European line.

We shall be obliged by your early answer to this letter in order that we may communicate by the mail of

7. the 4th, with our principles in Calcutta, more especially as we have express directions from them to proceed with every despatch to carry out their plans.

We are, Sir, your very obdt. servants,

SMALL COLQUHOUN AND CO.

(Copy of Resolution passed at Meeting, June 2, 1840.)

That, as the letter addressed to the chairman, by Messrs. Cockerell and Co. and Messrs. Small, Colquhoun, and Co., contains, in the sixth paragraph, conditions which are inconsistent with the completion of the comprehensive plan, the Directors cannot accept that letter at the hands of an Agent with the Eastern Steam Navigation company.

(Signed) R. Macdonald STEPHENSON,

Secretary.

Mr. Tuckey read several letters, which he had received from the Agents in London of the Eastern Steam Navigation company, and from Messrs Willcox and Anderson, Managing Directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, and from Mr. Shaw.

After which Mr Beattie observed, that the question was, whether or not Mr. Curtis had concealed the modifications of his plan, which the Resolutions of the Meeting of 14th March required: in his opinion, Mr Curtis had substantially complied with the conditions proposed. Mr Beattie therefore moved as a Resolution.

1. That the Secretary be requested to acknowledge the receipt of the communications from Mr. Curtis, and to assure him that these have afforded to the Committee the deepest satisfaction and further, that we tender our best thanks to Mr. Curtis and his Board of Directors, for the attention they have given to the representations and wishes of the Committee, as conveyed in the letter of Mr W. Prinsep, and I trust he will be able to establish his Company on the plan defined in the Resolutions adopted by his Board on 28th May.

Mr Prinsep begged leave to second this motion, expressing his desire fully to concur in the arrangement.

Mr Grant, seconded by Mr. Colquhoun, moved as an amendment.—That the communication received from Mr. Curtis is not sufficiently specific, to warrant the Committee in recommending to their constituents, at present, to authorize the appropriation of their funds by Mr. Curtis.

The amendment having been put to the vote and lost, the Resolution proposed by Mr. Beattie was carried by a large majority.

Mr. Mackenzie moved, as a Resolution,

2. That the concessions required by the public meeting at the Town Hall on the 14th March last having been accorded by Mr Curtis's Board the subscription which have been forwarded to him by this Committee, be now considered as available to Mr. Curtis's Company as soon as formed, the subscribers becoming shareholders in that Company.

Mr. McKillop, requested permission to second the Resolution. He suggested the Committee was quite competent to make it, as it was but giving effect to the Resolutions of the March Meeting, for which purpose the Committee had been appointed.

Mr. Grant, seconded by Mr. Bushby, moved as an amendment, that this Committee do call a meeting of their constituents, to consider whether the concessions required by the Meeting at the Town Hall on the 14th March last, have been made by Mr. Curtis.

The amendment having been put to the vote and lost, the original Resolution was carried with little opposition. The following Resolutions were then carried without dissent.

On the motion of Mr. Beattie, seconded by Mr. Gordon,

3. That the Secretary be requested, when communicating with Mr. Curtis, to express our hope that, on completion of the line from Calcutta to Suez, unless it shall still appear to his Board clearly expedient to have the line from Alexandria to England connected with it, that part of the arrangement may not be persevered in.

On the motion of Mr. McKillop, seconded by Mr. Allan,

4. That the proceedings of this meeting be published in all the newspapers.

Mr. Turton resigned being Chairman of the Committee as he cannot concur in any one of the resolutions which have been carried.*

Mr. Colquhoun and Mr. Grant, agreeing with Mr. Turton, also withdrew from being Members of this Committee.

Resolved, on the motion of Mr. Beattie, seconded by Mr. Prinsep, that the thanks of the meeting be tendered to Mr. Turton for his conduct in the chair, with the expression of our regret that the proceedings of the meeting should have urged him to resign his office of Chairman of the United Committee.

'MEETING OF THE LATE MR. JAMES PRINSEP.

A Meeting of the friends of the late Mr. James Prinsep, was held this day at the Town Hall, according to advertisement—and very numerous attended by European gentlemen of both services, as well as by a great number of natives of learning and respectability.

On the assembling of the Meeting, before the chair was taken, Sir Edward Ryan begged to be allowed to say a few words, though it was departing from the usual course pursued on these occasions, in explanation of what he was about to propose. Some time ago a few friends of the late Mr. Prinsep, whose names were appended to the notice, had thought proper to call a Meeting of the public together for the purpose of doing some testimonial of respect and gratitude to the memory of their late friend—these gentlemen had held preliminary Meetings, and at one of these it had been resolved that one of their body who had long been intimate with the late Mr. Prinsep, and was well acquainted with his extensive acquirements, should be chosen as chairman on the present occasion—that person was Mr. Rattray. Indisposition, however, unfortunately prevented his presence, and the duty of chairman would devolve on another. Mr. Rattray unaccustomed to speak in public and mistrusting his capability of doing so under the weight of his feelings, had written an address which it was his intention to have read at this Meeting. Sir Ed. Ryan proposed that Dr. Grant, be their chairman in the absence of Mr. Rattray, and that he read the above address in the place of Mr. R. This was seconded by W. W. Bind, Esq, and Dr. Grant took the chair.

hours with the 'Isa Mr. P.—He had prepared a eulogic poem, which he had been deputed to recite to the Meeting.

Pundit Kumlaant here read a part of the poem, which was very long—in a low and monotonous voice. As however it was unintelligible to the generality of those present, Mr. Torrens kindly explained to the meeting that it was no eulogy upon the deceased Members of the Prinsep family, and read a literal translation in English, which he had made, of a part which related particularly to the deceased Mr. Prinsep; this was a very clever and well written production.

Hon W. W. Bird, Esq., would not detain the meeting by adding anything to the eulogy already bestowed upon Mr. Prinsep, but thought it would be doing injustice to one who had so long served the Government, if he remained silent. It had been thought by some persons that he should read to the meeting certain papers recording the high estimation in which Mr. P. had been held by the highest authorities of the land—these documents were not written in the usual official style, but in such a manner as nothing but a full appreciation of his extraordinary merits could have elicited. Mr. Bird then read a letter from Government regarding Mr. Prinsep's application for leave to the Cape and eventually to Europe, also another document showing the entire concurrence of the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in the testimony borne by the President in Council to Mr. Prinsep's high attainments and merits, and also the arrangements made regarding the return of Mr. Prinsep. Mr. P. did not belong to the Civil Service, and therefore it had been considered necessary that some special arrangements should be made for him to take furlough and afterwards again to resume his office. It is consolatory to think that all that was possible was done by the Government for him, and there was every hope that he would have shortly returned among us—but this hope has vanished, he has died a victim to his industry.

Dr. N. Wallich in the absence of the President of the Medical and Physical Society, who had been deputed with other Gentlemen to attend the present Meeting, shortly expressed his concurrence in the above resolutions.

It was proposed that Dr. Grant do leave the Chair, and Mr. Torrens was requested to take it. Sir Edward Ryan then proposed the thanks of the Meeting to be given to Dr. Grant for the able and considerate manner in which the duties of chairman had been gone through by him. Dr. Grant returned thanks and the Meeting separated.

A paper for signature was left on the table, and many gentlemen put their names down for considerable sums towards the testimonial.

[We must crave our readers indulgence for the very imperfect manner in which the above report has been drawn up—the distance we were from the principal speakers and the lateness of the hour that the Meeting broke up preventing our giving fuller details. Reporter.]

MEDICAL AND PHYSICAL SOCIETY.

Proceedings of a meeting of the Medical and Physical Society, held at the Asiatic Society's apartments, the 4th July, 1840.

Dr. WALlich, Vice President, in the chair.

Members Elected

The following gentlemen proposed at the last meeting were elected Members of the Society.

- 1.—D. Manziez, Esq., Assistant-Surgeon, H. M.'s 16th Foot.
- 2.—W. Faithfull, Esq., Assistant-Surgeon, Bengal service.
- 3.—J. McPherson, Esq., ditto, ditto, ditto.
- 4.—G. Turner, Esq., ditto, ditto, ditto.
- 5.—Dr. Cardew, Assistant Surgeon, ditto, ditto, ditto.
- 6.—Dr. Thompson, ditto, ditto, ditto.

Members proposed.

- 1.—D. McNab, Esq., M.D., Assistant Surgeon, Bengal service, by the Secretary and Dr. Wallich.
- 2.—W. O. Davidson, Esq., Assistant Surgeon Bengal service, by the Secretary and Dr. Spry.

Dr. Wallich brought to the notice of the meeting the great loss which had been sustained by the public, and the scientific world in particular, by the death of Mr. James Prinsep, and he suggested that the Medical and Physical Society, on the occasion of the death of Mr. James Prinsep, take measures to mark their respect for his memory, and their sense of his great public services.

It was then proposed by Dr. O'Shaughnessy and seconded by Dr. Spry, that the President and Office Bearer of the Society, with such other members as could attend, be requested to be present at the proposed Meeting at the Town Hall, on Thursday 30th July, 10 a.m., to testify the respect of the Society for the memory of Mr. James Prinsep.

A communication from Mr. Superintendent Surgeon Ludlow, forwarded through Dr. O'Shaughnessy, was then read on the pernicious effects of bleeding in some forms of delirium tremens, with a case illustrative of the treatment. In the course of the discussion, Dr. O'Shaughnessy stated, that he had frequent opportunities of treating that disease, and that he had found it yielded always to the administration of 3 or 4 doses of the extract of hemp, 2 grains at a time, at intervals of 3 hours.

A well-written communication, by Mr. Healy, of the Subordinate Medical Department, now in Candahar forwarded through Dr. O'Shaughnessy was laid before the meeting. The paper gives an abstract of the diseases treated in the Hospital of the Cavalry Horse Artillery, from the 1st of November 1838, to 31st October 1839, showing 735 admissions. The chief of these are cases of fever, bearing a proportion of 35 per cent. There are four cases of fracture, 40 cases of wounds, one of amputation of the arm, successfully operated on by Mr. Healy. The most remarkable of the cases are 4 of Hemorrhage from the mouth, which had been caused by leeches found in the Pharynx Posterior nares palata, and where they appear to have attached themselves after the persons had drunk some muddy water. Three of the leeches were readily discovered on examining the mouth where they were found adhering to the palate and the pharynx. But the presence of the fourth was suspected from a slight oozing of blood down the throat. It being impossible to discover it after a careful examination an injection of salt and water was passed through the nose, and the leech was ejected from the mouth some hours afterwards. The leeches were of moderate size, and resembled the medicinal leech.

Proceedings of the Third Quarterly General Meeting of Subscribers to the Bengal Medical Retiring Fund for the year 1840.

At a Quarterly General Meeting of Subscribers to the Bengal Medical Retiring Fund, held, pursuant to advertisement, at the Town Hall, Calcutta on Monday, the 18th July 1840, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

PRESIDENT.

Thomas Smith, Esq. Member Medical Board, in the CHAIR.

H. S. Mather, Esquires,
W. E. Riddough,

The Secretary read the Proceedings of the last Quarterly General Meeting held on Monday the 13th April, 1840, and the following Report of the Proceedings of the Committee of Management for the quarter, ending this day.

REPORT.

Bengal Medical Retiring Fund Office, Calcutta, 13th July 1840.

The Committee of Management has the pleasure to announce that during the past quarter there have been three applicants requesting admission as subscribers to the Fund, viz. Messrs. Assistant Surgeons James Morrice, M. D. (9th Reg. N. I.) Chas B. Hanlydale, M. D. (Simlah) and John Murray, M. D. (2d Troop Horse Artillery.) The first and last mentioned gentleman having remitted by draft on the General Treasury the amount of arrears of subscriptions including interest, together with the amount of penalty enjoined by Resolution of the 28th February, 1839, their applications for admission will be immediately put in circulation for the votes of Subscribers.

The Committee of Management begs to report that the Memorial for the extension to the Medical Service of the enlargement of the Retiring Pension Regulations as notified to the Army in Government General Order of the 23d May, 1836, No. 104, was duly signed by the first Member of the Medical Board, and forwarded to the local Government for transmission to the Honorable the Court of Directors, and by letter, No. 1234, dated the 20th June, 1840, from the Adjutant General of the Army to the address of Dr. Sayers, intimation has been given that the Hon Memorial will be duly transmitted to the Honorable the Court of Directors.

The following Treasury Notes have been surrendered to Sub-Treasurer for cancellation and credit of proceeds to Appropriated Fund, on account of Annuitants admitted to the Fund.

The unappropriated Balance in favor of the Fund on the 30th April, 1840, is Co's Rs. (1,54 390-3 4) One lakh, fifty four thousand, three hundred and thirty, three pence, four pence, as per General Account Current of the Fund for 1839-40 marked A, now submitted, which amount is available for granting Annuities, Estimating the sum at credit of an applicant's account, being a Surgeon, on the 31st December, 1840, to be Co's Rs (4,600) Four thousand six hundred, the Fund will have to make up Co's Rs. (21,728) Twenty one thousand, seven hundred and twenty eight, for every Annuitant admitted at the age of (40) forty; thus the value of an Annuity at 40 years (vide Rule XXIII,) is Rs. 16,057 or Co's Rs. 17,128, estimated amount at credit of a Subscriber being a Surgeon on the 31st December, 1840, say, Co's Rs. 4,600 equal Co's Rs. (41,728,) Twenty-one thousand seven hundred and twenty-eight, which sum being divided by Co's Rs. 154 890, the available balance will enable the Fund to grant (7) seven Annuities, the deficiency on the value of each annuity at 40 years amounting to Co's Rs. 17,578 being made up by the applicant. The Committee estimate that the realizations on account of subscriptions from the 1st May 1840, to the 31st December following, will amount to Co's Rs. 12 000 per month or Co's Rs 96 000, for the eight months, which sum will yield 4 annuities more, so that 11 Annuities in all may be safely offered for acceptance of Subscribers duly qualified by period of service. Of the (10) ten annuities declared last year only (5) five have been taken up by the parties adrift in the margin,* the difference of (5) five merges therefore into the (11) eleven annuities now offered, of which (5) five are for the year 1840 and 6 for 1837, leaving 18 Annuities still in arrears, to provide for which a surplus of Co's Rs + 3,91,104 will be necessary on the ensuing 31st December, 1840.

A General Account Current of Appropriated Fund is submitted, marked B, showing a payment through the Court of Directors to Annuitants on 1st July, 1839 to the extent of Co's Rs 12 764 7 0, on 1st January 1840, Co's Rs 14,328 14-3, and through the London Agents Messrs. Cockrell and Co during the same period, of Co's Rs 9 600 and Co's Rs. 10,062 the amount at credit of Appropriated Funds on 1st May, 1840, was Co's Rs 6 90 131 2 2 as per list annexed at the foot of the Account Current marked B.

The sum of Co's Rs. 52,879-11-8, including interest, was due on the 30th April, 1840, to the Honorable the Court of Directors on account of Annuities paid by them as per Account Current, marked C, now submitted. Although this amount has not been transferred from the Fund assets on the Government Books, from want of advice from the home authorities of the actual disbursement made by them on account of the Fund, the amount has been duly debited to the Fund and credited to the Government in the accounts of this institution, as will be observed from the general Account Current for 1839

CASE OF LIEUTENANT GIBBARD—SIR H ROPE'S CHARGE.

I come now to the charges for murder against William Gibbard which have given rise to much discussion and excitement. You will of course direct your minds to preconceived opinions as to the conduct of the accused party or the measures which have been adopted towards him. Whether he has or has not been already tried by a court martial for conduct connected with the offence now imputed to him, or even for those very offences, is unnecessary that you should enquire. If put upon his trial for the alleged offences before this Court, he can, if previously acquitted or convicted of the same offences, protect himself by plea to that effect, and although beyond a certain distance from this presidency it would have been competent to recall martial to have tried him for the supposed civil crimes of murder, yet such court martial might only have taken cognizance of the alleged military offence.

The depositions in this case are very scanty—Only two witnesses were examined before the magistrate who committed the prisoner. If the prosecutor then intended to call more than those two witnesses at the trial such additional witnesses should have been examined, if it was practicable, before the committing justice. The omission to do so, seems at variance with the spirit of those enactments which have for an object to enable the Court to see whether the witnesses at the trial are consistent with the account given by them before the magistrates.

The depositions are however sufficient in some degree to guide me in giving directions about the case.

Mr. Gibbard is charged with having murdered four persons in the territory of Sawunt Warre, an independent state adjoining to the territory of Goa. Doubt has been thrown out whether this Court can take cognizance of a charge against a British subject for the murder of an alien committed within the dominions of native power in alliance with the Government of Bombay. The 21st of George the 3rd chapter 25th section 44, the 21st of George the 4th chapter 57 section 29, the 31st of George the 3d chapter 53 section 67 and the charter of this Court leave no doubt on my mind, that if the party accused, be a British subject, and Sawunt Warre be in alliance with the Government of this presidency, this Court has jurisdiction of the crimes imputed to Mr. Gibbard. But you should not embarrass yourselves with questions about the jurisdiction, regarding which, enquiries on your parts as to the Sawunt Warre state are unnecessary, although for other purposes you may deem it right to examine what was the peculiar situation of Sawunt Warre, and what were its relations with regard to this government at the time the supposed offences are alleged to have occurred. You may thus ascertain whether there be satisfactory ground for believing that the crime of murder has actually been committed.

Murder is where a person of sound memory and discretion with malice aforethought unlawfully killeth any reasonable creature in being, that is borne into the world under the Queen's peace or rather—who was not an alien enemy slain in the heat and exasperation of war.

Should it appear that Gibbard was actually present, looking on or though out of sight, was yet at hand and co-operating in the transaction, or that upon a refusal by such soldiers to execute an inhuman order, the deceased persons were shot to death at Mr. Gibbard's request by soldiers of the Sawunt Warre state, the form of the charge against Mr. Gibbard will be the same.

If a law infers malice from the mere fact of killing, and in this instance the alleged circumstances if proved, would leave no room for doubt upon the subject.

It is not murder if the person put to death was an alien enemy killed in the actual heat and exercise of war. But the party slain is presumed to have been within the Queen's peace and under her protection till the contrary shall appear. Perhaps in this instance the contrary may appear when the evidence, in support of the bill against Gibbard, shall come before you.

A grand jury may, if they please, require the same evidence in support of the bill as may be necessary to maintain the indictment at the trial. The grand jury by his oath is to present all things truly as they come to his knowledge.

If upon the evidence adduced by a prosecutor in support of the bill, the matter does not come to the knowledge of the grand jury, the grand jury may either ignore the bill or require further proof, though such proof may be given at the trial might not be considered necessary. Now although in this instance the persons slain will be presumed not to have been alien enemies, in a war till the contrary appear yet if the witnesses called before you in support of these bills should give probable cause for supposing that the persons put to death had been then enemies slain in the heat and exercise of war, you might then call for further evidence, or in default of further evidence you might ignore the bill.

If from the testimony of the prisoners afterwards slain were taken in flight being pursued by armed men, a band of soldiers in the East India Company's service, with Gibbard, in military costume, as they, commander, — that the fact taken on being taken were previously shot to death by the command of Gibbard, and that another person, Mr. Spooner had issued orders, either that the prisoners be taken should be shot, or that no prisoners should be taken — if the evidence in support of the bills should bring such positions to your notice, certain considerations will be forced upon your minds, and you will perhaps enquire what situation Mr. Gibbard and Mr. Spooner respectively held at that period. Should you thus ascertain that a body of the Company's troops was then engaged in hostilities in the Sawant Warree territory, with Gibbard for their commanding officer, he on his part being under the instruction of Spooner as a person having political authority, and Spooner directing either that prisoners, if taken, should be put to death, or that no prisoners should be taken, you will have strong reason to suppose some species of war was at that time pending — especially as any direction to the troops, either to shoot prisoners or not to take prisoners, would be utterly inconsistent with an idea that such troops had been called up on merely to aid a civil power.

Thereupon you might wish for further evidence respecting the political condition of Sawant Warree and the service on which the troops under Gibbard were employed. I presume through the Secretaries to the Government, such evidence might easily be obtained.

If the persons slain were alien enemies, killed in the heat and exercise of war, Mr. Gibbard cannot be punished by the municipal laws of his country however foul and atrocious his conduct may have been. The victims of his alleged cruelty were prima facie aliens if they were natives of a foreign country out of the allegiance of the Queen. Goa we all know belongs to the crown of Portugal. Sawant Warree is also notoriously an independent state. To use the words of Vattel, (v. 2 and 3) — "to constitute a sovereign state, it is sufficient if it govern itself by its own authority and laws. A weak state which in order to provide for its safety, places itself under the protection of a more powerful one, and engages in return to perform several offices as equivalent to that protection, without divesting itself of the right of government and sovereignty, is still a sovereign state." I therefore the Sawant Warree state, without derogating from its sovereignty, may be under the protection of the British power; and if the parties put to death were natives, either of the Goa territory or of Sawant Warree, they were prima facie aliens. There will also be strong presumption of their having been enemies, and entitled to be so considered, if the troops of this presidency were employed in hostilities in Sawant Warree against those persons, or against some political party to which they belonged. There may have been political disturbances — there may have been civil war in Sawant Warree. Vattel (v. p. 156) observes that whenever matters are carried so far as to produce civil war, foreign powers may assist that party which appears to have justice on its side. He goes on to say, amongst other things, that when the bands of political society are thus broken or suspended between the sovereign and people, the contending parties may be considered as two distinct powers; — that the two parties may act as having equal rights and should behave to each other accordingly, till the decision of the affair. — that is, on the usual footing of enemies, and according to the laws of war. If then the Bombay Government, by force of arms supported one political party in Sawant Warree against another, the latter party should be considered as having been enemies, so long as the affair was undetermined. What I am now saying may be irrelevant, for I have no certain knowledge what our relations were with respect to the Sawant Warree state, and the political parties therein at the period in question. But I cannot account for the alleged treachery, and the massacre in Sawant Warree of a British political agent, and of British troops appearing upon rights by force of arms, unless by presuming warlike did in fact exist. Such barbarous orders, as those imputed to Spooner and Gibbard respectively, could scarcely have been issued had the object been merely to aid a civil power. — Such orders would greatly tend to show the object really had been to prosecute a most sanguinary and savage war.

If war was then pending and the parties slain were amongst our enemies, the maxim that Common law cannot determine concerning the acts of arms or of war, might render further observations unnecessary, but it may be as well to enter little further in the matter.

It is asserted in modern treaties upon criminal law that it is murder to kill an alien enemy except in battle, but such a doctrine is clearly erroneous, and the authority referred to in support of it does not warrant the position. That authority is Hale who merely says, 'If a man kill an alien enemy within this kingdom yet it is felony unless it be in the heat of war, and in the actual exercise thereof, and Coke and Blackstone say, it is not murder to kill an alien enemy in time of war. We find in works, upon the law of nations, instances in which enemies — prisoners, defenceless and unarmed, have been, or may be put to death. Such instances would not be given or assumed if such acts were murders by the municipal law, or if it were murder, to put a prisoner of war to death otherwise than in battle.' Mr. Abbott, after Mr. Lord Chief Justice, in arguing a case at the Bar said, without contradiction or controversy, 'Prisoners of War were originally put to death then condemned to perpetual slavery, to this succeeded the system of ransom and the practice now is to exchange them. But after an enemy is become a prisoner, all that he receives is grace and favour, his life itself is prolonged by grace and favour.'

Vattel says —

Page 347 — 'But the very manner in which the right to kill our enemies is given points out the limits of that right. On an enemy's submitting and laying down his arms, we cannot with justice take away his life. Thus in a battle, quarter is to be given to those who lay down their arms, and in a siege, a garrison offering to capitulate, are never to be refused their lives. The humanity with which most nations in Europe carry on their wars at present, cannot be so much commended. If sometimes in the heat of action, the soldier refuses to give quarter, it is always contrary to the inclination of the officers, who eagerly interfere to save the lives of such enemies as have laid down their arms. There is, however, one case, to which we may refuse to spare the life of an enemy who surrenders, or to allow any capitulation to a town reduced to the last extremity. It is when that enemy has been guilty of some enormous breach of the law of nations, and particularly when he has violated the laws of war. The refusal of quarter is no natural consequence of the war, but a punishment for his crime, — a punishment which the injured party has a right to inflict. But in order that it be justly inflicted, it must fall on the guilty. When we are at war with a savage nation, who observe no rules and never give quarter, we may punish them in the persons of any of their people whom we take (these being in the number of the guilty) and endeavour by this rigorous proceeding to force them to respect the laws of humanity. But whenever severity is not absolutely necessary, clemency becomes duty.'

Again he says

Page 348 — 'It is lead us to speak of the law of retaliation sometimes practised in war under the name of reprisals. If the hostile General has, without any just ...spared some prisoners to be hanged, we hang an equal number of his people, and of the same rank,—not doing to him that we will continue thus to retaliate, for the purpose of obliging him to observe the laws of war. It is a fearful extremity thus to condemn a prisoner to death, by a miserable death, for his General's crime, and if we had previously promised to spare the life of that prisoner, we cannot without injustice make him the subject of our reprisals. Nevertheless, as a Prince or his General, has a right to sacrifice his enemy's lives to his own safety and that of his men,—it appears that if he has to do with an inhuman enemy, who frequently commits such enormities, he is authorized to refuse quarters to some of the prisoners he takes, and to treat them as his people have been treated."

Again, in discussing whether the Governor of a town can be put to death for an obsolete defence.—

Page 350.—"Just and honorable means may be employed to dissuade a governor from ineffectually persevering to the last extremity, and such is the present practice of all prudent and humane Generals. At a proper stage of the business they summon a Governor to surrender; they offer him honorable and advantageous terms of capitulation,—accompanied by a threat that if he delays too long, he will only be admitted to surrender as a prisoner of war, and at discretion.—If he persists and is at length forced to surrender at discretion,—they may then treat both himself and his troops with all the severity of the law of war. But that law can never extend so far as to give a right to take away the life of an enemy who lays down his arms unless he has been guilty of some crime against the conqueror."

With respect to the treatment of Prisoners of War he thus expresses himself.—

Page 354.—"As soon as your enemy has laid down his arms and surrendered his person you have no longer any right over his life, unless he should give you such right by some new attack, or had before committed against you a crime deserving death. It was, therefore, a dreadful error of antiquity, a most unjust and savage claim, to assume a right of putting prisoners of war to death, and even by the hand of the executioner."

Page 355.—"Formerly a question of an embarrassing nature might have been proposed: When we have so great a number of prisoners, that we cannot possibly feed them, or to keep them with safety, have we a right to put them to death? or shall we send them back to the enemy?—thus increasing his strength and exposing ourselves to the hazard of being overpowered by him on a subsequent occasion? At present the case is attended with no difficulty. Such prisoners are dismissed on their parole—bound by promise not to carry arms for a certain time, or during the continuance of war."

Page 355.—"But if we have to do with a nation that is at once savage, pestilential and formidable, shall we send her back a number of soldiers, who will perhaps enable her to destroy us? When our own safety is incompatible with that of an enemy,—even of an enemy who has submitted—the question admits not of a doubt. But to justify us in executing and deliberately putting to death a great number of prisoners the following conditions are indispensably necessary—1. that no promise have been made to spare their lives and 2 that we be perfectly sure that our own safety demands such a sacrifice."

These and many similar passages demonstrate, first that it is not necessarily murder to put to death a prisoner of war though unarmed and defenceless. Secondly that acts like those imputed to Mr Gibbar—orders like those imputed to him and Mr Syner respectively are prima facie highly culpable and inhuman. But such offences, if indeed committed, seem to be offences, not against the principal law of the country, but against the law of nations—the laws of war.

As to the meaning of the expression "in the heat of war," and in the actual execution thereof—which clearly does not import either the hour, or even the day of battle, it is unnecessary to affect to discuss, for I have no doubt the municipal law cannot punish a man for putting to death in a foreign country a man engaged in the time and for the purposes of war.—Bonday Charter, July 7

TRACER.—We rejoice in the prospect of a Race meeting, being again held here. The Northern Indian Turf Club having handsomely given 2 good purses to be run for over our course (the best in Upper India) we trust that the Result will not be backward in giving their mites, and thus offer an inducement for those having good horses to send them over, and ensure their "not going empty away." We are aware of the difficulties to be encountered in getting up a meeting, owing to the few Racing men among us, but every one must enjoy this national sport with the concomitant delights of Race balls, &c. &c. We are sure that the Delhi Society, ever so ready to enjoy themselves will not allow this opportunity of enjoying us all after this unusually hot season, to be lost. The native gentlemen also, we hope will not be less backwards than in former years in promoting this sport. We see the preparations are all ready making, for putting the Course in good repair, all we want is, a little rain.—Delhi Gazette, July 15.

INSOLVENT COURT.

JULY 4.

(Before Sir H. W. Selous.)

IN THE MATTER OF JUOOTH DONLUE SING.

This insolvent attended Court, was put on his oath, and asked by the Assignee whether he had given any advance of costs to his Attorney? A. No, my Attorney undertook the case without payment.

After entering the usual attestations, he received the adjudication of insolvency.

IN THE MATTER OF RICHARD FARMER.

After a little conversation in this case, an order was granted to the effect, that the insolvent should receive his final discharge by advertising; the rule nisi, however, being observed in the first instance, the case therefore stands over to the next Court day for final disposal.

IN THE MATTER OF GOVINDCHUNDER KOON.

Mr. Clarke moved in the case of this insolvent against an application made by the Assignee for the moiety of his salary as Deputy Collector of Bicerblom. He stated that the insolvent received the benefit of the Act in Sept. 1857, and in October 1858 he got appointed as Deputy Collector of Bicerblom. The advantages of this appointment were purely official, not personal, as in the case of Colonel Harey, he therefore urged, that the Assignee's application be thrown out. The question stands over for consideration.

IN THE MATTER OF BISSA-SOR AUGURWALLAH

Mr. Leith informed the Court that only two notices out of nine had not been served for the usual time. The two notices had been served for a month only up to this day, the rule requiring the service to be of six weeks. The Court gave an order for the matter to stand over, and to advertise meantime, that the insolvent would be brought up next court day.

IN THE MATTER OF JOHN BRIGHTMAN VANDENBERG.

Mr. Leith said, that on the last occasion, the matter of this insolvent had been put off to this Court day, in consequence of several notices not having been served according to the rules of the Court. He had now to intimate to the Court, that all the notices had since been served but two, which had not been served under peculiar circumstances. One was to Bourkey, the tailor, who had run away to Singapore, and the other party was Dupuis, the dancing master, a creditor of only 50 rupees, who could not be found.

The insolvent having entered the attestations, was discharged.

IN THE MATTER OF —SCHIAETER.

The Advocate General moved, that the name of one of the creditors should be struck off from the Schedule as having received the dividend of seven and a half per cent declared in England and to order the Assignee to declare a dividend to the same amount to creditors in this country.

The Court objected to the name of the creditor being struck out of the Schedule, as that would prejudice his claim to future dividends that may be declared, but a general order was given in the effect that the assignee be directed to declare a dividend of seven and a half per cent to all creditors, who may not have received a dividend to the same amount in England.

IN THE MATTER OF RAMCOOND DAI

On the last of August an order was made by the Assignee for the attention of witnesses to attend Court this day, to be examined.

The Advocate General in reference to the order, that he objected to it, as it was submitted by the Assignee of the Court, namely without an affidavit being made to the effect that the witnesses in question were material in the case. They were not sent to the Court for being taken to be good, the next day will be to obtain an order for apprehension, which could not be done without an affidavit.

Mr. Morton, on behalf of the Assignee said, that the party was not only a witness, but also a creditor, and he wanted simply to examine him. After some conversation the Assignee consented to make affidavit; but an affidavit having been put in to show that the witness was laid up and unable to attend Court, it was finally arranged that an attachment should not be issued, but the case stands over to the next Court day.

IN THE MATTER OF PETER FOSTER.

Rule nisi stands over.

IN THE MATTER OF HENRY COLIN CHINNERY.

Rule nisi stands over to next Court day, in consequence of the illness of the Insolvent.

IN THE MATTER OF DEERNAUTH DUIT.

The Assignee put in a certificate of appraisement of the articles of the Insolvent.

An order was given for the deposit of the unclaimed dividends in the matter of the following Insolvents severally —Charles Wright, James Joseph Fleury, Andrew Hetherlett, John Mercado, William Henry Abbott, Andrew Liddell, James Calder, George James Gordon, John Storm, James Black and David Shaw.—Hark. July 6.

SUPREME COURT.

THE 14th JULY 1831

BY THE COURT OF DEEDS, SHAW, HARKIN

At the Court of Deeds, on the 14th July 1831. The Advocate General moved for an order that the plaintiff should be allowed to see the horses consigned by the plaintiff to the defendant on Friday in the year 1829 for sale at auction. It would be proved that the horses were sold at auction and at an average of about 5000 rupees each, and that no account whatever had been taken by the defendant. The defendant when applied for an account and payment, had given nothing, but was making statements and later he had been told by the plaintiff that all recollection of everything received as horses for sale from any such person. One of the pleas however upon the record was a plea of set off, in which some of the dates particularized corresponded pretty accurately with the truth, but the defendant had endeavored to confound the sales of the plaintiff's horses, with others sold at later dates and for lower prices.

Several witnesses were called for the plaintiff, and letters and other documents, put in and proved.

Mr. Clarke (with whom was Mr. Leith) for the defence, said that he was not instructed to deny that the defendant had received horses for sale from a Syed Mahmoodee, but he should shew clearly that the plaintiff was not the person he represented himself to be.

Ryan, C. J.—You cannot do that upon these pleadings. The only question your plea raises is whether you contracted with "Syed Mahmoodee." If Syed Mahmoodee has not given authority to sue, you might have moved to take the plea off the file.

Mr. Clarke then proceeded to comment upon the evidence of the plaintiff, and said he should be able to prove under the plea of set off that the horses did not fetch the prices mentioned or anything approaching to them, and that debiting all expenses to the plaintiff, the balance was in favour of the defendant himself.

Two witnesses were accordingly called, to prove that certain horses sold on different days and at different prices from those specified by the plaintiff's witnesses, were in fact the horses consigned by the plaintiff, and that a balance upon the whole was due from the latter. The testimony however was little more than hearsay.

The Advocate General replied.

Sir T. Ryan, C. J. said, that there must be a verdict for the plaintiff. The whole defence had been that the horses of the plaintiff were sold at different prices from those stated by plaintiff's witnesses. One account shewed a balance of about 5000 rupees in favour of the plaintiff, and the other about 200 in favour of the defendant. But the clear principle was that where an accounting party does not promptly and fully account, or explain clearly the non accounting, every presumption must be taken most strongly against him, and considering the whole circumstances the Court entirely believed the plaintiff's case and disbelieved the whole case of the defendant. The amount therefore would be calculated according to the prices proved for the plaintiff. Rs 6930, against which the expenses, commission, &c. were to be set off. Interest would not be allowed on the balance, because the Court did not see clearly why the plaintiff had allowed his claim to lie dormant for so many years.

Verdict for plaintiff —Harkn. July 1.

It certainly was not the "law & delay" in this case. The plaintiff was only filed on the 1st day of the present month of June, so that the party has obtained his verdict within one calendar month.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 1.

PRAWNCUNDER PAULIT V. NIMONEY DABEE.

THIS was an action for money lent, upon a Bengallee bond. The defendant had appeared, but had not pleaded, and judgment was signed by default.

Mr. Leith and Mr. Morton appeared for the plaintiff. The instrument was put in and proved. The date of the loan being several years back, and the rate of interest reserved being twelve per cent., the accumulated interest more than exceeded the principal sum.

Sir E. Ryan doubted whether by Hindoo law, more interest could be recovered than the amount of the principal.

Mr. Leith and Mr. Morton said, that the question had been two or three times mooted lately, but never solemnly determined. In some exparte cases, interest had been allowed exceeding the amount of the principal, and on the other hand in the recent case of Dinomoney Dabee, v. Mulloosoodilen Sandell, the surplus interest had been waived by the plaintiff's counsel. There was a case in Sir Robert Chambers's Notes, where the question was raised upon exceptions to the Master's report, and the Court there refused to recognise such alleged rule of Hindoo law.

Sir E. Ryan said, that the Court would at present give a verdict for double the principal sum only, and the plaintiff's counsel might move to increase the damage if they thought fit.

Verdict accordingly.

BOODERUN SAIN VERSUS CHARLES HEATD

Mr. Nott opened the pleadings.

The Advocate General for the plaintiff stated, that the action was brought by him as indorsee of a promissory note made by the defendant in favour of one L. D'Alney. The defendant had pleaded that the note was made and delivered to the said L. D'Alney for a special purpose, and not for the purpose of being negotiated, and that no consideration was given for the same. That the said L. D'Alney had in violation of good faith indorsed the note to the plaintiff, who had taken the same with full notice of the circumstances. Notice of disputing the jurisdiction had been given at the time of filing the plea.

The jurisdiction was proved by showing that the plaintiff was in Calcutta at the time the plea was filed.

Mr. Leith for the defendant, addressed the Court.

The issue raised by the special plea, being upon the defendant, D'Alney's, plea, the payee of the note was called as a witness to speak to the circumstances charged in the plea.

The Court however gave a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount of the note.

Verdict for plaintiff.

DIABRANAUTH TACORR V. PHAWNISEN HOIDAR AND OTHERS.

Mr. Clarke moved (on Monday last) for an order that the Taxing Officer do receive and file certain objections tendered by Messrs. Reuger and Smalley, attorneys for the complainant, on the 24th instant, to the relaxation of a bill of costs in this cause. From the grounds it appeared that on taxing the bill of costs in question, the Officer disallowed as between party and party a sum of Rs. 82 8 (being Brier fees, for attending chambers to oppose motion for two months' further time to answer) but allowed the same as between Attorney and Client, objections to the taxation were therefore filed by Messrs. Reuger and Smalley, and upon the taxation the Officer disallowed the charge altogether (although he had previously allowed it as between Attorney and Client) and also totally disallowed other charges amounting to 8 rs. 8 anns., which he had previously allowed as between party and party objections to the relaxation were tendered by the Attorneys, but the Taxing Officer refused to receive them.

Mr. Vaughan attended in Court, and, was desired by the Chief Justice to state his reasons for refusing to receive the objections.

Mr. V. stated, that Messrs. H. and S. were in arrears in the fees of taxation, and he referred to the 7th and 8th Taxing Office Rules.

Mr. Clarke said, this had never been assigned as an objection by the Officer.

Sir E. Ryan, C. J., said, that at all events this furnished no reason for refusing to receive the objections to the taxation. The Taxing Officer had put a wrong construction upon the two rules referred to, and the order therefore must be made that the objections be received and filed.

Order granted.—HARRIS JURY, 2.

THURSDAY, JULY

IN THE MATTER OF COLONEL HARVEY.

THIS was a petition of appeal to the Supreme Court from an order of the Insolvent Court.

In November 1838, an order was made by the Insolvent Court, that the petitioner, Colonel Harvey, who had been a subject committed to the benefit of the Act, should pay to Mr. J. W. Alexander, his Assignee for the benefit of his creditors, or a committee of his assignees pay and allowances. Colonel H. having since become entitled to receive Command allowances, a further order was made by the Insolvent Court, that one half of the Command allowances also should be paid over to the Assignee. Against this second order Colonel H. appealed.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Leith for the appellant. In the first place, the question arises whether the Court had any power or authority to make an order respecting an appointment of an Assignee by the Insolvent at the time of the assignment. The words of the 27th section of the Insolvent Act, are "if any insolvent at the time of making the assignment, shall hold any public office, appointment or bench, Civil Military, or Ecclesiastical, &c. it shall be lawful for the Court to order the said insolvent to pay such proportion of his receipt therefrom, to his assignee, as the Court shall think fit." Now, in the present case, the appellant was in the receipt of these allowances at the time of the assignment. In the second place, it is submitted that the duty of a Commandant of a Regiment does not come within the terms "public office, appointment or benefice." And, lastly, it appears from the grounds (and this is a question of fact not of law) that the "Command allowances" are given for a specific purpose, and are absolutely required for the due and efficient discharge of the duties devolving upon an officer in command of a regiment. If the officer is deprived of half of these allowances, he must resign the command, because the remaining receipts would not suffice to meet the unavoidable expences attendant upon the office.

The Advocate General in support of the order. The question of law does not arise at all, for it appears that the petitioner was the Commandant of his Regiment up to the time of the adjudication, although he then ceased to draw the allowances. It is no new appointment, therefore, but the same appointment with increased allowances.

Sir E. Ryan said, that the only question about which the Court had any doubt was as to the nature of these "command allowances."

The Advocate-General said, it did not at all appear that the allowances were intended for, or necessarily applied to, a specific purpose. No doubt, if a particular sum was drawn by an officer for a particular purpose, and could not be applied in any other way (as in the case of "band allowances") the Court would not deduct any portion of it. But if it was merely the established custom that the officer in command of a Regiment should expend certain sums in giving entertainments, this was certainly not such a necessary specific application of the allowances as to exempt them from the usual deductions for the benefit of creditors.

Mr. Clarke replied.

Sir Edward Ryan. We think that nothing appears before us to exempt these allowances from the deduction of one moiety. Even under the first order, we consider that a moiety of the allowances would have actually passed to the insolvent, but it is right and proper that a fresh order should be made with respect to any increase of pay or receipts, in order that the party may have an opportunity of showing, if he is able, that the additional receipts are of such a nature that they ought not to be subjected to the deduction. The petitioner may yet come in and shew that if he can in the Court he may mention that the rule upon which the Insolvent Court has latterly acted in regulating deductions from military pay and allowances was furnished by the highest authorities upon the question. A letter on the subject was addressed by the Clerk of the Insolvent Court by the direction of the Judges, to the Military Secretary of Government, and in reply the rates of deduction suggested were, in the case of Subalterns one third of the pay and allowances, and in the case of Captains and field officers, one half. The order of the Insolvent Court will stand confirmed, but without effect.

Orders confirmed.—Hurree, July 3

MONDAY, JULY 6.

DWARKANATH TAGORE (VS.) EDWARDS & SONS LAW.

Mr. Clarke brought to the notice of the Court certain objections to the relaxation of a bill of costs in the above cause, both as between party and party and as between attorney and client. The bill was disallowed by the Taxing Officer upon the relaxation of the bill in question were brief fees for opposing in Chambers on behalf of the plaintiff, an application for further time to put in answer. Now these time motions were frequently the most warmly contested motions in Court, and in the present instance, at all events, the disallowance was improper, as it appeared from the grounds that the plaintiff's attorney had been specially instructed to oppose given further time, and that the opposition had only been withdrawn upon the defendant's attorney undertaking to pay the costs of the motion. It was preposterous therefore in the present case at all events to disallow the charge either as between party and party or as between attorney and client.

Mr. Vaughan referred the Court to the 19th Taxing Rule.

Sir E. Ryan said that no doubt the Taxing Officer had a general power and discretion vested in him in disallowing charges of this nature even between attorney and client, where the matter appeared too trivial for the attendance of counsel, unless it was shewn that the client expressly authorized it: but in the present case, the matter had been by consent, and the disallowance was clearly improper.

Objections allowed.

RANCHHITAN MONDLEY (VS.) RANCHODDER SEAL.

Mr. Lenth brought forward certain objections to the taxation of a bill of costs in the above cause. The bill had been incurred in arguing objections to the party and partly taxation of a former bill in the same cause. Upon the argument, some of the objections had been allowed, and some disallowed, and certain costs had of course arisen in preparing and giving instructions for the argument of the objections. To some extent, therefore, at least the client had benefited. By the 9th Rule the Taxing Officer was at all events, bound to receive the bill.

The Court were of this opinion. The question might afterwards arise whether any of the costs were to be allowed or not, but the officer was bound to receive and tax the bill.

Objection allowed.

RANBHUCK MILLICK (VS.) DISOLZA AND OTHERS.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Clarke shewed cause against the order for reducing the damages. The criterion taken at the trial was the original cost of the Opium in Calcutta. This was the proper criterion, — say, the contract had recently been given for higher damages, by stating that the cost of the opium was the shipping charges. It was contended on the other side that the verdict ought to be reduced to nominal damages, because no distinct price was given for the price of Opium obtainable in Calcutta at the time when the contract ought to be made.

The consequence of this would be, that the party guilty of a breach of contract would be a loser by his wrongful act. He still had the "script" on his possession, and he might sell this for some price at 15 per cent. or even ultimately he might obtain the whole prime cost of the Opium. No fixed rule for measuring damages for breach of contract could be laid down. Each case must be ruled by its own peculiar circumstances.

Mr. Lenth and Mr. Morton contra. The general rule is this — that the party affected by the breach of contract is entitled to recover what he would have received had the contract been performed. The same rule is applicable whether it be an action for not accepting goods (Bowman v. Nash 9 Barn. and Cress) or for not delivering (Stapleton v. Corbett 2 Mr. Cress and Rose) or for not carrying goods according to contract (Brant v. Bowlby, 2 Barn and Adol). The only difficulty is the application of this rule. The criterion is a topped here is wholly inapplicable both as regards place and time. If the present verdict were to stand the guarantee must be treated as a contract to indemnify the plaintiff from any loss upon the whole speculation. This is not the nature of the contract at all. The agents would have fully performed their duty if they had sold the opium for the highest price obtainable at Luntun, and even if this had entailed a heavy loss upon the shippers, the defendants as guarantors would have been wholly discharged. It was for the plaintiff to make out his whole case, and if he has given vague and uncertain evidence of the selling price at Luntun when the opium was delivered up, it is his own laches. In strictness he is only entitled to nominal damages, because the only evidence applicable is the evidence of Dwarkanauth Tagore that prices then were "nominal." The only other criterion which the Court have to choose between are, the price to which opium fell in Calcutta when the Chums were received (200 to 300 rupees) and the price of 5 rupees (100 to 150). At present the verdict stands at upwards of 500 per chest — the cost price — but this is clearly untenable.

[The Court deliberated a long time and were apparently a good deal puzzled.]

Ryan C. J. The rule of apportioning the damages has been correctly stated. It is difficult to rise from the vagueness of the evidence. Upon the whole we are disposed to take the highest price of the "sample" (Rs. 400) as the measure of damages. We do not allow interest, because we think that the fact, and commission may be set off against it. The rule will therefore be made absolute for reducing the verdict to Rs. 400, per cent. Each party to pay their own cost of this motion.

This will reduce the damages to about Rs. 27,000
Rule absolute accordingly.

[Harkati, July 7]

TUESDAY, JULY 7.

WORMSCHUNDER DUTT AND ANOTHER VERSUS PALMER

Mr. Clarke opened the pleadings.

Mr. Princep for the plaintiff, said that the action was brought to recover the price of a bill of 27 bags containing 405 gross of velvet corks, a bill delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant. The defendant had paid as two bags a tender of the amount, and thus the plaintiff had acquiesced in his repudiation, but as to the residue the defendant had pleaded the general issue wholly denying the contract. There was a special agreement in writing, the goods to be according to a certain muster or sample, and three months credit to be given, but as it was shown that the sale and delivery took place recently two years ago, and that the goods still were with the defendant, it was clear that no such defence, as alleged, had quality or tenor could militate to the plaintiff's advantage.

The written agreement of the purchase of the goods, was put in evidence and called to prove the delivery first of two bags (the price of which had been tendered and accepted) and some days afterwards of the 25 bags in dispute.

The Advocate-General (with whom was Mr. Motion) for the defendant submitted that the plaintiff must be disappointed. He had declared for goods sold and delivered, payment to be made on receipt, and he had proved a special agreement of sale the goods to correspond with a certain sample, and 3 months credit to be given. The special agreement was evidence for the defendant under the general issue. Alexander v. Collier 3 B. & Ald. 146. In that case the contract could not be proved specially pleaded for the plea would be an admission to non-assumpsit, and would therefore have been demurrable. Dicken v. Neale, 5 Dowling. The plaintiff at all events ought to have given evidence that the goods corresponded with the sample.

Mr. Princep contra. If the goods have been actually delivered this no defence to an action for the price that they do not correspond with the sample. It is not a question of pleading. The defence can neither be pleaded specially nor given in evidence under non-assumpsit. Where there is a special contract, the plaintiff must no doubt declare specially as long as it remains executory, but it is otherwise when executed. As to credit being given, no action could be brought certainly before the time had expired, but when the credit has elapsed and the liability has accrued a contract results to pay on request. The plaintiff may therefore declare in the common form.

The Court overruled the objection.

The Advocate-General then proceeded with his case. The defence was simply this,—that the goods did not correspond with the muster, and that the defendant had in fact refused to accept them. Non-compliance with a warranty was certainly no defence in itself to an action for the price upon a contract executed, but it was admissible, coupled with other circumstances to show that the contract in fact never was executed at all. It could be shown (as the fact was) that the goods did not answer the description, that the defendant rejected them upon this ground, (though deposited in his godown) and that he gave notice to the plaintiff to take them away,—this at once negatived the plaintiff's case for it showed that there was not such delivery in fact as to sustain an action for goods sold and delivered.

Witnesses for the defendant were then called. They proved that the second batch of corks was of very inferior quality, and that the defendant had notified this to the plaintiff the next day, refusing to complete the contract, and desiring that they might be removed. The corks were never removed, but the defendant had used none. It appeared, however, that there were only 15 bags now in the defendant's godowns, and the evidence was not clear what had become of the other ten, or indeed whether more than fifteen had ever been delivered. The plaintiff had subsequently endeavoured to induce the defendant to take them at a lower rate, but the defendant said they were quite worthless to him, and a few days afterwards he purchased corks from another party at an advanced rate.

So Mr. Ryan said that there were questions of some difficulty in the case both of fact and of law. The Court would find a special verdict for the defendant, with leave to the plaintiff either to move to enter such damages as he might be advised or to put in into issue the facts. The Court found the following facts:—that 25 bags were delivered, that they did not correspond with the sample but were of inferior quality, that the defendant at once notified his rejection of them within a reasonable time, and that there were now only 15 bags in godowns.

Verdict for defendant accordingly.—Hark. July 9

WEDNESDAY, JULY 8.

WORMSCHUNDER DUTT AND ANOTHER VERSUS WORMSCHUNDER DUTT AND OTHERS.

This was a bill of foreclosure upon certain mortgages of money and further charges executed in November and December 1836 and January 1837. The mortgages were the property of one Wormschunder Dutt, and the mortgages were executed by three of his sons (defendants in the suit) two of whom were admitted to be adults at the time and managers of the joint estate and the money raised upon them (about Rupees 1,500) was stated to have been applied in payment of the debts of Wormschunder.

The two adult sons by their answer, admitted the facts charged in the bill.

The third son, Nohinchunder Dutt, alleged in his answer that he was in fact an infant at the time of the instruments being executed, and that he had only been induced to sign them by the fraudulent representations of his two elder brothers, and that the money was not applied in payment of ancestral debts, but raised by the two adults for purposes of their own.

Upon the question of how the money was applied, there was vague general evidence given on behalf of the complainants. Upon the question whether Nohinchunder was an infant at the time of executing the instruments, contradictory evidence had been adduced.

The other infant parties, Wormschunder and Nohinchunder Dutt, had put in the usual infant's answer; no witnesses had been examined on their behalf.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Leith for the complainants, contended in the first place, that it sufficiently appeared that the mortgage money was required for and actually applied in payment of ancestral debts, and secondly, that even if it did not, the mortgagees were entitled to their decree, as no sort of fraud was pretended to be imputed to them, and they were not bound to look to the application of the money. The acts of a Hindoo executor or manager bound even infant parties, and the parties aggrieved must seek their remedy against them, not against bona fide purchasers or mortgagees. As to the defendant, Nobinchunder, the balance of evidence shewed that he was of full age when he executed the instruments, and if so, he was stopped from disputing their validity.

The Advocate General and Mr. Morton contra, for Nobinchunder contended that it appeared that he was an infant when he executed the instruments, and that his act therefore was a nullity. It ought distinctly to appear that the money was applied to the payment of ancestral debts or to other family purposes. If the rule was once introduced that a Hindoo manager could bind infant members of his family, and alien their shares absolutely, the consequence would be that gross fraud would be daily practised, and minors despoiled of their whole property under pretence of disposing of it for family purposes. From Macnaghten's Hindoo Law, and other authorities it was doubtful whether the shares of infant parties could be disposed of at all, even for payment of debts.

Mr. Morton appeared for the two infants also, and contended that their case was even clearer than that of Nobinchunder, for it was not disputed that they were infants, and the only question as regarded them, was whether they were to be held bound by the acts of their adult brothers, to which they were not and could not be parties. At all events the Court would decree a sale instead of a foreclosure, a sale should appear to be more for the benefit of the infants.

Mr. Clarke in reply was stopped by the Court.

Sir L. Rymer said, that the Court enter into the merits of the matter. Even the manager of a Hindu family binds the rest. Where the money was used for family purposes, and bona fide so applied. But a creditor could in every different position. He might deal with the property absolutely, and the money of the parties aggrieved was taken from him, or against the purchaser. Putting aside therefore the disputed point of law in the present case the Court considered the numerous instruments binding upon all the members of the family, and that the complainants therefore were entitled to their decree. As to the sale which the infants' counsel had asked for, the Court would grant it if all of the defendants wished for it. The case will be mentioned in to-morrow.

Decree accordingly.—Murkata, July 9.

THURSDAY, JULY 10.

ALEXANDER JESSE HOLMES

Mr. Leith in support of the rule thus addressed the Court this morning.

The Court said they would consider the point, and give judgment upon Monday.

CAUL LOO NAIM'SING RAMLOCHEN SIRCAR.

This was an action for timber sold and delivered, and came on ex parte.

The Advocate General and Mr. Nott for the plaintiff Verdict for plaintiff.

CARR AND TAGORE LESSEES R. MACDONALD.

Mr. Clarke opened the pleadings.

The Advocate-General for the plaintiff said, that this was an action to recover the sum of Rs. 10,000 and interest, upon a guarantee given by the defendant to Messrs. Carr, Tagore and Co. in April 1835. The circumstances were these:—In the year 1835 Mr. McDonald (not the defendant) contracted to purchase the share of Mr. Storm in the Bagorrah Indigo Factory, of which Mr. Storm and Dwarikanauth Tagore were joint owners. The purchase was completed, and the third instalment of the purchase money (Rs. 11,000 and odd) was paid by a bill drawn by McDonald, the purchaser, and accepted by Carr and Tagore, upon the guarantee of the defendant. The guarantee was contained in a letter written by the defendant, stating that he had been requested by his cousin, Mr. McDonald "to become a security to the amount of from 8 to 10 000 rupees to Carr and Tagore," and that he (the defendant) did thereby engage and bind himself to that amount. The defendant had pleaded the general issue, and a special plea that the contract was void under the fourth section of the Statute of Frauds.

The guarantee was put in and proved, and evidence was given of the other facts opened by the counsel for the plaintiff.

Mr. Leith (with whom was Mr. Morton) for the defence, said that the whole question in the case turned upon the Statute of Frauds. The guarantee was clearly void as being in idum primum for no consideration appeared upon the face of it, and none could be supplied by parol evidence, (Winn v. Holtz, 6 East and Bushell v. Perry, 1 Bingle) New cases were expressly in point. For all that appeared to the contrary, the guarantee might relate to a pre-existing debt,—there was nothing to shew that it related to future advances. The consideration for a guarantee was not to rest upon mere conjecture.

[The learned Counsel was stopped by the court.]

Rymer, C. J. We enter into no doubt upon the point. The rule is well established that the consideration must appear upon the face of the guarantee, and looking at this verdict it is quite impossible to say what that consideration was. It might be otherwise if it were allowable to resort to conjecture, or to supply facts by parol evidence. The Court are clear upon the point, but the plaintiff's counsel may move to enter a verdict, upon consideration they think there is any chance of success.

Verdict for defendant.

HANSEN HEDROGSHEDBY DORSEY A-D ANOTHER V. (WAR

This cause came on for hearing upon the pleadings.

Mr. Phipps, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Leith appeared for the complainants.

The Advocate General and Mr. Morton for the defendants.

After the case had been opened at considerable length, the Court said, that they did not see what decree could be made in this suit, except a mere reference for maintenance, until the cross-cause came on for hearing.

After considerable discussion it was proposed by the Advocate General on behalf of the defendants.—

That the cause should stand over until the cross cause came on. That it should be referred to the Master to inquire and report what part of the jewels, monies, &c. in court, were the Strethum of the complainants or of any of the female members of the family and that such as should be found to be their property should be delivered over to them. That 600 rupees monthly should be paid to the mother, 400 to the grandmother, 120 to the sister, of Cowar Kissenauth Roy. That the residue of the property in Court should be paid over to the Coxar. This order to be by consent, without prejudice to the result of the ultimate account, or to the future rights of the parties.

This proposal was accepted.

[The property in Court amounts to about eleven or twelve lakhs of rupees, of which the complainants claim as Streedhan about the value of 60,000. This arrangement will probably lead to amicable termination of these suits.]

Order accordingly.—Harkum, July 11.

MONDAY, JULY 13.

C. REDD V. RAJAH MOTOY UNNING SING AND OTHERS.

Mr. Motion said, that one of the defendants in the above cause, Omachurn Bonnerjee, had been brought up by habeas corpus, and I was in attendance in Court, to answer his contempt, in not having entered his appearance to the bill of complaint in the above cause, all the processes to compel his appearance, as far as sequestration, having been exhausted. In a recent case, where a defendant Rajkissen Mitter was brought up on similar circumstances, and still refused when interrogated by the Court to enter an appearance, he Court ordered the Registrar to enter an appearance for him, and I to make it as done by the Court's order.

The Court said they would refer to the Registrar to ascertain what had been done in the case cited.

The party, however, in the course of the day, instructed counsel to move to clear certain pro pendent costs, and to enter an appearance in the regular way, so that the application became unnecessary. The execution rules as to compelling appearance in equity, appear to be defective, and if the extremes in civil suits and resulting were brought to the notice of the Court, some amendment would no doubt be possible. At present there is no mode of taking a bill pro for want of an appearance, except in two cases, where the party is of such rank and caste as to be exempted from arrest upon process of contempt, or where the party absconds to avoid the jurisdiction. Now, is the Court have held that a defendant "who has fled to his Zenana," or otherwise most deliberately a "left" in ally baffling the Court's process, cannot be said to have absconded? To avoid the jurisdiction? Defendants especially Hindoos, frequently desert proceedings in equity—remaining in the heart of Calcutta, but entering themselves within the precincts of the Zamindars, or elsewhere where the process of the Court cannot reach them? Every rational purpose would be fully answered, if contumacious defendants, when clearly shown to have notice of the proceedings against them, who refuse to go through the form of entering an appearance, were put upon the same footing, as if they had entered an appearance. Several important cases now pending, have been tried up for years, simply because there is no possibility of compelling appearance in particular cases, and no remedy without doing so.

STAFFE V. GOVINDCHANDRY DONGRE AND OTHERS.

This was a demurrer to a bill on the ground, first, of want of equity, and secondly, defect of parties. The bill was filed to restrain an action at law upon a promissory note executed by the plaintiff in favour of one of the defendants, who was the mere nominal payee, an infant, and the plaintiff at law. The bill charged that the money was in fact lent out of the estate of one Hurry nauth Roy, deceased, by another of the defendants, (who was an executrix and the next friend of the infant) and that the note was taken bonames, in trust for her. The bill further charged that the complainant again had before action brought and paid the amount of the note to the residuary legatee and heir of Hurrynauth under notice from him, the executrixes having been guilty of gross deceit, large sums being due from them and the residuary legatee being the only party beneficially interested. It appeared that there was a co-executrix, who had acted, but it did not appear whether or not she had taken out probate. The bill prayed that the action might be stayed, and that the note might be given up to be cancelled.

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Leith for the demurrer. There is no equity to support such a bill. The residuary legatee no doubt might have filed a bill to restrain the executrixes from collecting the outstanding debts, or the debtor might have filed a bill of interpleader. But he has no right to elect to whom he shall pay the money, and then file a bill for relief in respect of his own voluntary act.

Sir J. P. Grant. Is there equity, where the complainant has paid the only person entitled to receive the money?

Sir E. Ryan. Taking the allegations of the bill as true (which must be done for the purposes of the demurrer) there is really no ground whatever for argument in the case.

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Leith. Then as to the second point, it is clear the co-executrix ought to have been made a party. She is much interested as the executrix before the Court, and is jointly liable for the deceit. In her absence the Court cannot decide that a sum due to the estate shall be surrendered to be cancelled.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Motion contra. As to the second objection,—It was only necessary to bring before the Court the parties appearing, either upon the face of the security, or upon the record in the action at law. The executrix who has been brought before the Court, was made a party, not quæ executrix but as being the next friend of the infant. What conceivable interest has the co-executrix either in the security or in the monies secured? The bonames price would be a trustee in equity for the residuary legatee alone, under the circumstances here set in the bill.

Stippled by the Court.

Sir E. Ryan C. J. The Court entertain no objection either on this point raised. The payment to the party beneficially entitled, is a good defence in equity though no payment would have operated as a valid charge at law, except to the party named in the security. As in non joinder of the co-executrix, it is difficult to see what interest she can have in the subject matter of the suit. The executrix before the Court is the only party who is charged to have been concerned in the transaction. The security is not taken in their names as executrixes, but bonames in the name of a third party, who would be a trustee in equity, in the first instance for the executrix, the lender and, under the circumstances stated by the bill, for the residuary legatee alone. The demurrer must be overruled with costs.

Demurrer overruled.

COLLYCHURN DUTT V. MOHANCHUNDER DUTT AND OTHERS.

This was a bill for the foreclosure of a mortgage. Payments were admitted to have been made in part liquidation.

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Motion for the complainant—Mr. Leith for one of the defendants.

Mr. Barwell for two infant defendants.

The Court then read a reference to ascertain what was due for principal and interest upon the mortgage, and whether it would be beneficial to the infant to foreclose or sell.

Decree accordingly — Hurkum, July 14.

TUESDAY, JULY 14, 1860.

ALEXANDER ASSIGNEE OF BRAMONT L. THOMES AND ALLAN.

Sir E. Ryan, C. J. delivered the judgment of the Court this morning at great length. This was an action of trover brought by the assignee of the insolvent to recover certain cases of military accoutrements consigned to the insolvent, by Hamblugh and Co in London. At the trial a verdict was found for the plaintiff and liberty reserved to the other side to move to set it aside and enter a verdict for the defendant. The rule was obtained accordingly, and argued before us at great length. We consider the question entirely one of fact, the sole inquiry being, whether the goods were the property of the insolvent at the time of the assignment. (His Lordship then cited the facts which appeared in evidence.) The defendants must be taken to be the agents of the insolvent. After the arrival of the consignment the insolvent gives them instructions as to the mode of dealing with the property. His subsequent letter directing them to hold the property on account of the consignee, was in fact written after the property had vested in him. There was, therefore, no revocation of the contract, and if there had been, a rescission by the consignee after acceptance, would be a nullity without assent on the part of the consignee. The strongest case in favour of the defendants is Atkin v. Bannick, Stronge Rep., there, the property had been kept by the trader eighteen days, yet the Court certainly held that his return of the consignment was a valid act. But in subsequent cases, the Courts have always disapproved of the reasoning there employed, and have by implication overruled the decision itself. Lord Mansfield indeed says the judgment in that case, was right but the reasons wrong, for that it ought to have been put upon the ground that the trader was a mere dealer in goods. The facts, however, are otherwise, and it will have been better, perhaps, if the Courts had expressly overruled the case for the subsequent decision of Case, Ball, 21, is directly applicable to it in principle. See also Stille v. Pitt 4 L. R. 517, Stitch v. Hill 4 L. R. 518, Butcher v. Culverwell 1 B. and C. We are of opinion therefore upon the whole of the case, that the property passed to the assignee, and the rule now to enter a verdict for the defendants must be discharged. Rule discharged.

JAMES CLIFFE v. LUCKENBOOVERY, DOWSE AND OTHERS.

In this case there was a decree for an account.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Clarke for the complainant.

Mr. Prince for some of the defendants. The others did not appear.

Decree accordingly.

HURKBOOVERY DOWSE & RADAKISSEN BY JACK
AND OTHERS.

This was a bill filed for the payment of a one-third share of a sum of Rs. 10,000 decreed to be paid by the defendant Radakissen, and certain other parties, in the complainant and two other parties. The sum was the difference in value between two parcels of land, of which the decree in question directed a partition.

The main question was whether a payment proved to have been made by Radakissen to one of the three parties entitled to the Rs. 10,000 as the agent and manager of the two others, was a good payment as to all.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Clarke appeared for the complainant.

Mr. Prince and Mr. Morton for Radakissen, 1
Mr. Nott and Mr. Leith for other defendants.

[The case occupied the Court until six o'clock in the evening.]

The Court under the circumstances, held that the party to whom the money was paid was not the manager and agent for the rest, and that therefore payment did not operate as a payment to the complainant of her share. Decree for one third share, and interest thereon for four years.

Decree accordingly.

This is the last case on the Equity Term Board.

The Court will proceed with the Common Law Sittings Board to-morrow morning.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15

SHOONAUTS AUCH V. COSSERNAUTH DAY AND OTHERS.

This was an action for an assault and battery, on the 23rd of Cartick last. The defendants were six in number, five of whom had appeared and pleaded not guilty, against the other the cause came on ex parte.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton for plaintiff.

Several witnesses were called to prove the circumstances of the assault. A native Doctor stated; that he had been cited in and had attended the plaintiff for several days, in consequence of the injuries which he had received.

Mr. Prince (with whom was Mr. Leith) addressed the Court for the defence.

The Court found a verdict for the plaintiff, with damages Co's Rs. 100 and costs.

Verdict for the plaintiff.

COVING TO STEV V. STERRE.

This cause was set up by a writ of injunction.

RYATCHUND BYBACK v. WOODWARD BYBACK.

This case was compromised between the parties, and struck out.

MACKHLOFF AND CO. v. JADI PCHUNDER SEAL.

Mr. Leith opened the plea.

The Advocate-General said, that the action was brought to recover the principal and interest due upon a bill of exchange for Co's Rs. 7,197 drawn by Deut and Co in China accepted by the defendant. The bill was drawn at thirty days' sight, but the acceptance was qualified, the defendant having accepted the bill payable upon the receipt from Deut and Co of the account sales of 25 chests of Bunnies Opium shipped by the Ind, the defendant had pleaded that he did not accept, and secondly that he had not received account sales.

A witness was examined who proved the acceptance and that he had also sold cloth upon the defendant at Chumwah, when he asked whether he had received account sales from Claret and promised to go and settle the bill. Some correspondence was also put in, from which it appeared that the defendant had been endeavouring to communicate, and that the objection which he made to paying the above amount was that a sum of Company's Remittance 2115 was improperly charged in the account sent by Messrs. Dent and Co.

Mr. Vinton for the defence. The holder of a bill in general is certainly not affected by the state of accounts between the drawer and its acceptor, but if he chooses to take a quibble in acceptance it may be otherwise. The contingency upon which the acceptor was to be liable in the present case, was the receipt of the account sales of opium chests coming from China; and the whole evidence shows that if the account sales in question really ever arrived, they were incorrect, and objected to upon that very point. The condition must be strictly performed. Imprecise account sales are no account sales at all. Suppose that accounts of 24 out of the 25 chests had been sent, would this have satisfied the condition? There is no relationship in the case upon that point, because here is not bound to take a qualified acceptance, and unless the acceptance is absolute he may treat it as a refusal, and refuse to bill for him in acceptance. But if he voluntarily elects to put up with a conditional acceptance of this nature, he will be affected by all the equities arising between the drawer and acceptor.

The Court, however, held that the condition upon which the acceptance was contingent, had been complied with, and that the question was whether the account sales had arrived, not whether they were correct. Verdict for plaintiff.

BYRONHURST V. MORTIMER AND OTHERS.

This cause was struck out by the plaintiff's Attorney. Struck out.—Hucknall July 10.

THURSDAY, JULY 16.

BYRONHURST V. MORTIMER AND OTHERS.

This was in return upon a bill of exchange. The defendant had put several special pleas upon the record.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Stables appeared for the plaintiff.

The Advocate General and Mr. Smith for the defence.

The Court suggested that the case appeared a proper one to be referred to arbitration.

The plaintiff objected to this course. The case had been once referred to a non-professional arbitrator, but the reference had come to nothing.

After some discussion it was agreed to compromise the case, and to take a verdict for the plaintiff for Rs. 1000.

Verdict accordingly.

CHUCKO DASSER V. THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

* Mr. Leath moved for leave to discontinue this case. The action was brought by the plaintiff for the property, that is, over and under jewels, these the defendant had this morning given up.

Struck out accordingly.

WILLIAM BENT AND OTHERS V. SACCOLO AND BENT.

Mr. Leath opened the plaintiffs.

The Advocate General for the plaintiffs, said that the action was brought by Messrs. Bent and Co. against Messrs. Saccolo and Bent, for the sum of Rs. 24,132-12-1, besides interest and costs. The account in question was a bill of exchange drawn by the plaintiffs on the defendants, for the sum of Rs. 24,132-12-1, and the defendants had refused to pay it.

On and other charges. In June 1837, Mr. Bell one of the plaintiffs, was in Calcutta; and it was arranged (amongst other things) that Messrs. Cockerell and Co. should make an advance on the opium, for which they were to draw upon the plaintiffs, charging interest at 8 per cent, payable 60 days after the arrival of the opium in China, that the plaintiffs were to sell the opium to the best advantage, remitting the net proceeds to the defendant, and in the event of there being a deficiency, they were to draw upon the defendant, who undertook to accept and pay the draft. Cockerell and Co. accordingly advanced Rs. 1,01,625 upon the consignment, and the defendant's gentleman signed on behalf of defendant an undertaking to meet and pay any draft that might be made in the event of a deficiency on the return. Cockerell and Co. drew bills for the amount of the advances, upon the plaintiffs who duly honoured and paid them. The greater part of the opium having been sold for at rates in demand to cover the advances, Bent and Co., in May 1838 drew in favor of Cockerell and Co. upon the defendant for the then balance then calculated at Rs. 32,000, but the defendant refused to accept the draft, which was accordingly protested. Upon drawing the consignment, the plaintiffs Bent and Co. found that the unsold opium had realized prices somewhat higher than those calculated upon, and assuming that the former draft had been duly honoured by the defendant they showed the amount in account, and a sum of Rs. 2,378, the balance due to the defendant. Bent and Co., under these circumstances did not deliver to the defendant at all, a much larger balance being really due from him. A bonus of Rs. 500 on the proceeds of the opium, was subsequently received by Cockerell and Co. It was for the balance of the 32,000 which the bonus, and the amount of the bill for Rs. 2,378, that a presentation was brought. The defendant had pleaded the general issue only.

Several witnesses were called, at Calcutta and other places, and were put in on behalf of the plaintiffs.

Mr. Leath with whom was Mr. Clarke for the defence, said that the first plea had to do with the contract with Cockerell and Co., and that there was no question between the present plaintiffs and the defendant. In the second place he would show that higher prices were paid for the opium, and that if sold at the first rates obtainable the balance would have been in favor of the defendant.

The Advocate General in reply said it was clear that no evidence of market sales could be given upon these facts.

Mr. Leath said it is quite clear that such evidence cannot affect the issue here raised. As to the objection, that the contract was with Cockerell and Co. and not with the plaintiffs, but then there is a letter written by defendant Cockerell and Co. to the plaintiffs, in which the following passages occurred: "Should there be any deficiency, I beg you will draw on me at the current exchange of the day"; and "I wish you to sell the opium on arrival at the market with a view to an advantage, i.e. say covering the invoice and other costs and charges, if not, you can hold them for a month, &c." It is proved that Bent and Co. were out of pocket to the extent of the sum claimed in respect of the payments made by them, and that if it is consistent then are they not clear, by entering to recover such sums of money paid for the opium? There is no doubt that there will therefore be a verdict for Rs. 24,132-12-1 and interest.

Verdict for plaintiffs accordingly.

BYRONHURST V. MORTIMER AND OTHERS.

This was in action of a deposit to recover the sum of Rs. 2,332 being the balance of account due to plaintiffs.

The Adocate-General and Mr. Morton for the plaintiff.

The defendants had allowed judgment to go by default, and the plaintiffs obtained a verdict for the amount claimed.

Verdict for plaintiffs.

FRIDAY, JULY 17, 1840.

FRANCIS PATRICK v. RUGGONATHUN KHAN AND ANUNDON KHAN.

Mr. Sandes opened the pleadings.

Mr. Pinsep, for the plaintiff, said, that the action was brought to recover damages for not a centing 7000 mounds of salt, bought from Bombay by the ship "Verbulha" in May last, of which vessel the plaintiff was Captain. The defendant shall split in their defence, one of them pleading the general issue only and the other also pleading a certain alleged custom of the port as to the place of delivery. It was understood that the defendants intended to dispute partnership, and that this was the main case for the defence, but it would be clearly shown from certain correspondence and other facts, that in respect of this transaction, at all events, the parties were joint.

Several witnesses were called on behalf of the plaintiff. The first witness, one Govindchand Doss, a Hindu, said, that the contract at sale was made through him, in May last, when the defendant, Ruggonath, came on board the vessel and concluded the terms. Two documents were put in as exhibits, the one an English writing and the other a Bengallee. The witness said, that the former was explained to the defendant, Ruggonath, who signed at the time, that the Bengallee writing was shortly afterwards drawn up, but that the defendant declined to execute it, saying that he had already signed the writing in English, and he was informed that the Bengallee writing was of substance the same.

The plaint was drawn upon the Bengallee writing, which contained three times different from the English agreement, but as to the quantity of salt, recently, is to the payment of the customs duty, and lastly, as to the place of delivery, the Bengallee writing specifying that it was to be on board ship and the English agreement being silent on the subject.

It was further proved that 200 mounds of salt were paid by Ruggonath. Another witness stated, that he had subsequently gone to demand payment, and that he saw at the custom the defendant Anundon Khan, who said that they would take delivery at the "Verbulha" was removed higher in the vessel. The ship was then being off Killepore; but in a few days afterwards she was removed up to Calcutta by Bazarat. The defendants were again called upon to fulfil their contract. The duty was sold upon the 4th of June by Messrs McKenzie, Lyall and Co. for £60, Rs. 23,160, and the loss upon the resale in London amounted to all charges, amounting to a considerable sum.

The witness who stated that he had seen the defendant Anundon Khan, a Hindu, upon cross-examination, that he had never seen him before, and that he only took it for granted it was he, the custom was passed by their name having been pointed out to him.

The Adocate-General (with whom was Mr. Morton) for the defendant Anundon Khan said, that he did not admit the fact of partnership, and that the plaintiff was not a true partner.

There had happened to be a partner of the same name in the custom of the defendant, Ruggonath, but he had been dead for some years, though the name was still retained. It would be clearly proved, if necessary, that the present defendant Anundon Khan had nothing to do with the transaction. There was a preliminary objection, however, with the plaintiff having by his own shewing apparently, relied upon the wrong instrument. The English agreement differed very materially from the Bengallee writing, and was the real contract between the parties, whereas the Bengallee writing was the contract mentioned in the plaint. The plaintiff must be unimpaired.

Mr. Clarke (with whom was Mr. Lenth) for the defendant, Ruggonath, was stopped by the Court.

Mr. Pinsep contra, contended that the Bengallee agreement had been acquiesced in by the defendant, and being the latter of the two, it was proper to declare upon it. But even if there was a variance, it was amendable. Under the new law very extensive powers of amendment even at the trial, were now given, and the Court no longer allowed technical objections as immaterial discrepancies to prevail. In this country the reason of the rule was stronger, and the Court ought always to permit amendments, if possible.

The Court said, that there was clearly a variance, and that it went to the whole substance of the case. As to his own hesitations, they might perhaps be amended, but the Court, relating to the plea of delivery, was a mistake to do so. The contract, for the special plea of the custom of Calcutta, must remain upon it. The English agreement was the true contract between the parties, and ought to have been declared upon. The Bengallee writing was a mere incorrect copy, signed by neither parties.

SAUNDERS, JULY 18, 1840.

CASES IN THE COURT OF ADJUTANTS.

The Adocate-General said he had a motion to make, and to rather peculiar circumstances. There had been a long time for a considerable long period between Mr. Reed and Rajah Bopy Govind Singh, and lately they had been broken off. Pending these negotiations, the complainant, Mr. Reed, had sought the several processes of contempt for want of answer, against Rajah Bopy Govind Singh, some days ago, and would report that he had been arrested, and the defendant, to be examined yesterday, for the first time that a special writ of habeas corpus was sent up to the Court, to be granted. It was supposed that this amounted to a breach of bail, and that the Court would set aside the processes as irregular. No longer the motion on for strictly to be granted, but under the circumstances, as it might be thought to come from the suggestion of a complainant, perhaps the Court would rather grant a writ of habeas corpus, and then consider the suggestion and more could be made by the Court.

Mr. Alderson said that he would at once consent on behalf of the Rajah, the motion to be granted, and he would give the Court the opportunity to be heard on it. He was not to be heard on all the circumstances. He had been told in a letter that the Court would be in a position to be heard on the motion, and he would be in a position to be heard on the motion.

The Court said that the motion would be granted, and that the Court would be in a position to be heard on the motion.

Verdict—Harkaru, July 18, 1840.

CHANDOO MULLI v. MUNDOLALL KHATTAY AND OTHERS.

This was an action of assault. The defendants were sixteen in number.

Mr. Leith and Mr. Morton appeared for plaintiff.

The Advocate General and Mr. Sandes for the defence.

It was proved by the plaintiff's witnesses that upon the occasion of the death of one of the plaintiff's family in May last, a female relative, coming to the house, was insulted by some of the defendants, upon which the plaintiff and his brothers remonstrated, when they were set upon by the defendants and several other persons and barbarously beaten. The plaintiff was senseless from the blows which he received, and he remained in the Native Hospital for some days.

The Court was crowded to excess with dozens of the Burra Bazar during the trial, and at the conclusion there were symptoms of a general row in the Verandah of the Court House.

The Court found a verdict for the plaintiff, with damages Co. Rs. 100 and costs.

Verdict for plaintiff accordingly.

SHREEMUTTY TREPPOORAH DOSSAY AND ANOTHER v. RAJAH MULLICK.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings.

The Advocate General said that the action was brought to recover the rent of two houses occupied by the defendant, belonging to the estate of the late Sanyal Seal, whose daughters and executors the plaintiffs were. The original agreement to occupy the houses and pay rent, was signed by Peshmher Mullik, the son of the defendant, but it would be proved that he executed it tenamem for his father, and that since his death the defendant had lived there and had paid rent to the plaintiffs.

These facts were proved by a party who was the husband of one of the plaintiffs, and also by another witness.

Mr. Sandes, for the defence. In the first place objected to the competency of the husband of the plaintiff, as witness in the case. But secondly it was clear that Peshmher Mullik, the son, was the real tenant, and he should prove that after his death the rent was paid by his widow, not by the defendant.

Witnesses were called upon this point on behalf of the defendant.

The Court, however, said that they fully believed the plaintiff's case, that the lease was benamem, and that the defendant had acknowledged his tenancy by paying rent to them.

Verdict for plaintiffs—Hilary, July 20.

MONDAY, JULY 20.

SITTINGS AFTER THIRD TERM.

The Court was occupied the whole day in hearing cross and reply motions.

M. HUNCHEND DUTT v. JAMIESON AND CO.

In this case there was an action on an indemnity guarantee the same had once been at issue, and a commission had been issued for taking evidence in China,—the Advocate General for the plaintiff however, said that he was willing to withdraw his replication, and demur to the plea, and abide by the result of the demurrer. Upon these terms the motion for a commission was discharged, and the replication was accordingly afterwards withdrawn and a demurrer filed to the plea.

The Advocate General however this morning said, that upon further consideration, he thought he should not be doing justice to his client if he risked all upon the demurrer as he doubted whether the facts alleged in the plea did not furnish a good defence to the action. He would therefore, by leave of the Court, withdraw his demurrer, paying the costs, and consent to put the opposite party in the same position as before, respecting his commission to take evidence.

Mr. Phipps for the defendants objected to this course of proceeding.

The Court afterwards intimated that they had looked into the case, and that they were inclined at present to think the plea good.

[There is a difference in the wording of the guarantee, between this case and the De'onzas' case. In the latter, the party guaranteed the safe returns of the consignment "in the present case the guarantee is of the net proceeds," and the plea is in substance that the opium had been consigned without the default of the guarantors or their agents before sale, and that there were no proceeds at all.]

ANDERSON v. RUMONMY DUTT.

This is a demurrer raising the question whether the Court of Requests in Calcutta has jurisdiction, in the case of executor-defendants.

The case was argued by counsel to day, but there was not time after the motions had been disposed of.

The demurrer in the last mentioned case will be taken first to-morrow, and afterwards the Equity Sittings Board.—Hilary, July 21.

TUE-DAY, JULY 21, 1840.

W. ANDERSON v. RUMONMY DUTT AND ANOTHER.

This was an action of trespass. The defendants pleaded the case of them Rumonmy, was a Commissioner of the Court of Requests and that the other, Ford, was his clerk, and that the plaintiff was sued in the said Court as executor of one Parker, in which action the said Court found that the said plaintiff Anderson, had committed a trespass in respect of the estate, of Parker, and that judgment was recovered and execution thereunder set out against the property of the said plaintiff, Anderson,—which was the trespass complained of.

To this plea there was a general demurrer. The point raised was whether the Court of Requests had jurisdiction in respect of executor-defendants.

Mr. Leith and Mr. Morton for the demurrer. The case of Julius Buitow, 1 Douglas, is expressly to show that the Madras Court of Requests has no jurisdiction against executors, and if that is good law the first question seems to be whether the words of the Statute which creates that Court (23 Geo. II. c. 33) are less comprehensive than the words of the Statutes and Charters under which the Calcutta Court of Requests is constituted. [They then referred to the Madras Charter file 26 Geo. II., the 37 Geo. III. ch. 113, the 39 and 40 Geo. III. ch. 79, the Charter of this Court of 1771, and one or two Proclamations.] None of the Statutes or Proclamations give the jurisdiction further (except in respect of amount) than the Madras Charter. The words there are 'suit, action or plaint,' and "debt, duty or matter in dispute;" terms not a whit more extensive than if "suit" or "action" alone had been used, and if the subject matter had been expressed to be "debts and damages," which are the words in the Middlesex Act. Besides the extent of jurisdiction ought not to turn upon mere casual variations of expression (See per Abbott C. J. in Chaddick v. Banast 4 Barn. and Cresc.); unless specific powers are expressly given. Indeed, Lord Mansfield, in the case in Douglas Reports, does not put his decision upon any peculiarity of expression, but upon the reason of the thing;—for he says, that although there is no express exception it must be implied. The consequences of allowing Courts constituted like the Court of Requests to entertain complex questions of law arising upon devastat, priority of debts, and the like, would be most mischievous. It may perhaps be urged that it has been the practice of that court of Requests here to entertain suits against executors, no doubt, but a Court cannot acquire a jurisdiction by prescription! The Commissioners of the Court of Requests in Calcutta, appear indeed to have assumed a most extravagant jurisdiction in some cases; as actions of trover, trespass, and other actions to recover damages are said to be frequently maintained there. In the present case they have taken upon themselves to decide what amounts to a devastat, and that the executor made himself liable de bonis propriis.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Clarke contra. As to the alleged inconvenience, the argument is entirely upon our side, for however trifling the debt due from the executor may be, the claimant will be driven to sue in this Court. Questions of devastat may not be necessarily questions of great difficulty, and when it becomes necessary, the case may be removed into this Court by writ of certiorari. As to the words in the Charter, they are clearly extensive enough to include demands against executor. The words are "debt, duty or matter in dispute." It is clearly the "duty" of an executor to pay his testator's debt; and the claim at all events must come within the very comprehensive term "matter in dispute."

Mr. Leith in reply. The argument proves too much, for the terms are in fact exclusive to include every conceivable claim cognizable even in this Court.

Sir E. Ryan, C. J. If we entertained any doubt whatever, we should take time to consider, before deciding upon the jurisdiction of a Court, but we entertain none. The jurisdiction of the Court of Requests is to be found in the Master Charter above, — the subsequent Charters, Statutes and Proclamations do not vary or extend it. The recital in that clause of the Charter is very similar to the recital in the Middlesex Act, and sets forth that the enactment was for the more simple recovery of small debts. We have no doubt that the object was to give jurisdiction only in cases of simple "debts," and not in the trial of questions of difficult law. Our decision does not proceed upon the case in Douglas, but upon general principles. Look at the consequences, if an executor, were allowed to be sued in a tribunal constituted like the Court of Requests. Some of the most intricate questions of law may be raised by the defences available to an executor,—such as when a party has made himself executor de son tort,—whether an executor or administrator has duly administered the assets, and so forth. We are of opinion, therefore, that plea is insufficient, and that there must be a judgment for the plaintiff on demurrer, with costs.

Demurrer allowed.

COLLY DOLL GANDOLLY & SINDHUR MULICK
AND OTHERS

The hearing of this case (the Binzallee Mortgage case) occupied the Court the rest of the day. The argument was concluded until a late hour, and the Court postponed giving judgment. A full report will appear hereafter when judgment has been pronounced; and the correspondence between the Supreme Court and the Sudder Court Judges, relating to Binzallee Mortgages under Hindoo Law, will be given at the same time. (Vide former report in the Hurkaru.)

Mr. Prinsap and Mr. Santos for the complainant, the mortgager, urged that their client had a clear lien upon the lands and that he was to be preferred to a judgment creditor, purchasing with notice, subject to the mortgage claim.

Mr. Motion appeared for the representative of Nundololl Day, the surety of the bankrupt mortgager.

The Advocate General, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Leith argued at great length in support of the claim of Subchunder Mullick, the judgment creditor, who had purchased from the Sheriff subject to the mortgage. They relied mainly on the doctrine of Hindoo law, that a pledge must in all cases be accompanied by actual transfer of possession.

Several causes, in different stages, are awaiting the result of this decision.

Our adv. suit—Hurkaru, July 22, 1840.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 22.

MOHA RANER BHOONUT GOUMARHER N. BULLODDER AND SOUNDER COOPPOORAH.

This cause came on for hearing upon evidence. The bill was filed for an account of the rents and profits of the new Chinn Bazar, received by the defendants, and their father, Muddenmohun Cooporeah (deceased), as the alleged agents of the complainant.

The bill stated that the property in question was purchased some years ago for three lakhs of rupees by Rajah Tez chunder, Rajah of Burdwan, for the complainant his younger widow, as the Saibutee or trustee of a certain idol, and that the rents had been collected by Muddenmohun in his lifetime, and since his death by the defendant.

The defendants by their answer admitted the collection of the rents by themselves and their father; but they alleged that they acted almost entirely as the agents of the Rajah of Burdwan in that the conveyance to the plaintiff was benami and that the rents had been duly paid into the Rajah's cochary and applied to the religious purposes for which they were intended.

There was no proof of the deed of conveyance itself but qualified admissions in the answer relating to the existence of such a document were read on behalf of the complainant, and receipts for rents of the Bazar collected by the defendants in the complainant's name as Saibutee, were produced.

For the defendants it was proved, that Tez Chunder had directed the conveyance to be made out in the name of the Rannee in order to avoid the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, as far as he was personally concerned, that the agents had received their appointments from him, and paid the rents all along into his cochary, and that the complainant had not asserted any right to interfere in the management and collection of the rents until about two years ago.

Mr. Prinsap, Mr. Leith and Mr. Motion for the complainant, contended in the first place, that there was not sufficient proof that the conveyance was benami.

Secondly they urged, that the doctrine of tenancy had never been carried so far as to require a benami. The idol was the real estate, not a trust a cardu, to be case of both parties, and the defendants were forced to content), therefore, that the complainant was trustee for the Republic of Burdwan, not ostensibly interested himself, but as trustee over for the purposes for which the trust was created. Truly, that the title of the complainant did not come into question is between her and the present defendants, for they had recognised her as their principal by collecting in her name and could not now content her with it by setting up jus tertii, and that they were, therefore, accountable to her.

The Advocate-General Mr. Clarke and Mr. Sandes for the defendants, contented that it clearly appeared that the transaction was benami, and that the complainant, therefore, had no interest, legal or equitable.

Benami transactions have been too long recognised in this Court to be now questioned, and it was clear that the party shown to be really the party beneficially interested, was alone entitled to call for an account.

The Court said, that as for as the evidence was before them (for there was no proof of the death) the transaction was simply benami,—in the name of the complainant, but in truth for the benefit of Rajah Tez Chunder.

It might be for religious purposes, but the question raised whether the Court would recognise a "benami trusteeship", or trust upon a trust, did not arise. Having once established then that the transaction was benami, the circumstance of the receipts being in the name of the complainant proved nothing—that being in accordance with benami usages. The complainant, therefore, had no title to call for the account, and the bill must be dismissed.

Bill dismissed.

MIRUNGMOONEY DOSSER N. RAMSABECK MULLICK, AND THE CROSS CASES.

In these causes, a decree was taken by consent, the parties having come to an amicable settlement.

Mr. Leith and Mr. Morton for the complainant in the original suit.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Clarke for the defendant.

Decree by consent. [Harkara, July 23.]

THURSDAY, JULY 23.

AGRA ABBODOL DOOSBAIN O MIRZA REHIBT MULKI AND THE CROSS CASES.

This was a bill filed by the complainant as heir and representative of his brother Agzi Amel, for an account for the proceeds of certain jewels of the value of Rs. 62,000, deposited for sale with Meer Fakram Ally decedent, who was surviving executor of the defendant was. The defendant by his answer denied all knowledge of the matter, and in his cross bill, he charged the whole story to be a fabrication.

There was contradictory evidence as to collateral matters affecting the probabilities of the case, not as the means and circumstances of the deceased Agzi Amel, but for the complainant, a receipt was filed in that the jewels in question had been received, and a letter's purporting to be written by Meer Fakram Ally to Agzi Amel, referring to the deposit, were distinctly proved by four different witnesses to be in the handwriting of Meer Fakram Ally himself and the receipt was made by the defendant to be such by evidence of the authenticity of these documents.

Mr. Morton, for the complainant, said that the evidence upon the subject of the contradictory collateral matters, was preponderantly in his favour, but there was the documentary evidence of the complainant, which could be impeached by the other side, which altogether turned the scale. If the receipt and letters were genuine (and the direct evidence upon the point was all one way) the case for the complainant was at once made out.

The Court inquired why the party had come into equity, and why he could not have asserted himself, of his ordinary legal remedies of trover or assumpsit.

Mr. Morton contented that neither action was necessarily maintainable in the present case and that even if they were, it was a case in which the party had the option of resorting to a Court of Equity for relief. It had been so expressly held in Mackenzie v. Johnston, 4, Muddock, which was not directly so strong a case as the present. If a party consigned goods to an agent for sale, he was in general entitled to call the agent to account in a Court of Equity. In the present case the complainant had no knowledge of the time or the mode in which the goods were disposed of, or what the proceeds were, or whether indeed the whole or any part had been disposed of at all.

The Advocate-General (with whom was Mr. Leith) on the other side contented that the probabilities were in their favour, and that the Court at all events could not decide against them without an issue. If the circumstances shown in the defendant's witnesses were true, the whole story of the complainant must be a fabrication.

SIR F. REYNOLDS.—To what would the issue relate? You have not put in these documents in issue at all.

SIR J. P. GRANT.—You oppose mere matters of probability to documents proved to be genuine by the other side, and not impeached on your side.

The Advocate-General submitted that the documents were not conclusive, and might be contradicted by circumstances alone.

The Court were strongly inclined apparently to receive the documents, but after some discussion they referred to the arbitrator of some gentleman at the Bar.

If the complainant, as he was saying in his cross bill, could not object to it, and it was ultimately agreed that the suit should be referred and Mr. Leith should be named Arbitrator.

Referred.—Harkara, July 24.

FRIDAY, JULY 24, 1840

SOMERSETT V. BAUGHMAN.

This cause came on for hearing yesterday, and occupied the Court until seven o'clock. It is Lord Brougham's postponed judgment.

This is the suit relating to the King of Oule's set of "harness" purchased for Co's Rs. 10,000.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Clarke appeared for the complainant.

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Leith for the defendants.

BURNS V. D. BAUGHMAN.

This cause came on for further directions upon the Master's Report. It may be recollected that at the hearing last Term, the question referred to the Master was whether certain houses and land within the Whitby townement at Barnack were personally owned or leased. The facts at law, the parties who would ask it to be proved was set out in England, and out of the Court in this Court.

The Court decreed, according to the Master's report, that the property was personal, and formed part of the testator's estate.

The compromise stands thus. A power to be executed by Mr. Reed to Messrs Barwell and Morton, to receive and hold as depositors, the funds in Court (Rs 1,87,000), and to pay the same over to Mr. Reed, when and so soon as they shall be satisfied, the Court of Sadler Dowanny Adalat will not order the refund of a certain sum of 166 000, being the difference between simple and compound interest upon certain Wasil taken between the estate of Lhya Jha, and the estate of Rajah Sreenaray Roy. All proceedings to be stayed, between the parties, in the original and cross suits. The appeal to the Privy Council of Rajah Bijay Govind Sing, in the Bouerjee cause, to be dismissed within one week after the execution of the power. The rights of Mr. Reed against the sureties, Collyunker Ghosaul and the Bonnerjees, not to be in any wise prejudiced by this compromise.

Order accordingly.—Husham, July 27.

GENERAL SUMMARY OF NEWS.

Another month has passed away, since last we addressed our home-readers, but it has brought with it little change in the general aspect of Indian Affairs. We had hoped that some interesting intelligence, concerning the progress of the CHINA EXPEDITION, would have reached us in time for this month's Summary, but no such intelligence has been received. The Admiral arrived at Singapore on the 10th of June, in the Melville, accompanied by the Palades and the Blonde; and mindful of his instructions "to detain and bring into port all ships, vessels, and goods belonging to the Emperor of China, or his subjects, or other persons inhabiting within any of the countries, territories or dominions of China," commenced operations at once upon four Chinese Junks, which her Majesty's ship Blonde most valiantly pursued and captured, to the great dismay of the Chinese residents both at Singapore and Penang. We have no later news from China than to the 5th of June—and have therefore little further to report.

Of our relations with AFGHANISTAN, little of a satisfactory nature can be said. Scattered as are our troops, in small handfuls, over the surface of a large tract of country, whose inhabitants are neither well inclined towards us nor to the imbecile Monarch we are forcing upon them, the wonder is that more serious disasters have not befallen us, and that our situation, in the Afghan Provinces, is not even more critical, than it really is. However, though our good fortune has heretofore been signal, there is not much in our present position, whereon to congratulate ourselves. Quetta has been attacked, and great fears are entertained for the safety of the detachment at Khe-lat, as a son of Mohiab Khan, with a large body of "rebels," had determined to retake the Fort. A detachment, under Colonel Wallace, has taken the field against the Ghiljees, and reduced sundry forts, without much difficulty; but we are sorry to say that these feats have in no way added to our reputation, nor indeed to our stability, in those parts. Another massacre has been perpetrated—it is said, and we earnestly hope, not without good reason, Lieut. Nicolson, the Political authority in charge of the expedition, having discovered a plot for the murder of the British at Candahar, and another, we believe, with a similar object, at Herat. Whether the parties massacred were engaged in either of these plots we do not know; but we trust that there is something to extenuate the apparent barbarity of the proceeding. The detachment has since been strengthened, and General Nott has taken command. It is doubtful, whether there will be any open fighting—the policy of the Afghan tribes is to attack our forces, when divided—to fall upon a band-full of our troops, wherever they are to be met with, in camp, garrison, or on the march—and unless something be done soon, either to concentrate our present resources, or considerably to increase them, some serious disasters may be apprehended. Farther Northward, matters are in a somewhat better condition. The Nawab Jubbur Khan, with the greater part of Dost Mahomed's family, arrived at Bameean, early in July. Our political measures in Southern Turkistan have been extremely successful, and the whole country on the borders of the Hindoo Koonh is both peaceful and prosperous. By the last accounts, all was quiet, too, in the neighbourhood of Herat; the ravages of the last siege have been repaired and no apprehensions of a second one are entertained. Accounts from that quarter confirm those received from home, of the discomfiture of the Russian expedition.

We must now turn our eyes in another direction and briefly contemplate our relations with NEPAUL. It is said that a war with that state is inevitable, and some small preparatory movements, to that end, have already taken place. The expediency of such a war is unquestionable, but its justice is not quite so apparent. The effect, which the abjuration of Nepal would have upon other hostile nations, would, doubtless, be highly auxiliary to our successes, but though Nepaul is pretty well known to be badly disposed towards the British, and suspected of intriguing against us, it is not equally obvious that her over acts of aggression are sufficient to warrant our exterminating the Nepaulese, upon principle. Some of the border-tribes have made incursions upon our villages, held possession of them for a short time, and then evacuated them, but the Court of Catamandoo has repudiated all connexion with these predatory bands. Indeed, the Nepaul Government seems to be pretty well occupied, just at present, in keeping its own people in order. It is stated that a rebellion has broken out, and that 8,000 rebels have taken possession of the Capital. Besides this, the army is in a state of mutiny—and little to be relied upon in the event of a war. If the country be indeed so divided against itself, it will fall an easy prey to our army, in the ensuing cold season, should hostilities, as it is supposed, be determined upon by those in authority. We have no lack of available troops for the purpose, at Dinapore, Barilly, and other places in the neighbourhood, but there is, unfortunately, a sad lack of officers with these, as with all other regiments, and unless something be done speedily to remedy this evil, its ill effects will be too apparent. We can rely upon our native troops; but they must be well officered—and, assuredly, they are not so at present.

In our own territories nothing of much importance has occurred, since last we wrote. Great dissatisfaction has been caused, in the Company's Army, by the order, relating to Her Majesty's local Major Generals—a monstrous act of injustice, into which the Horse-Guards has succeeded in forcing the Court of Directors. A general Memorial is in contemplation; but we fear that no active measures will be adopted to bring this into effect. The case of Lieut. Gibbard, of the Bombay Army, who was dismissed the service for putting to death certain prisoners in the Sawant-Warice state, and who would have been tried in the Supreme Court of Bombay, if the Grand Jury had not very properly ignored the bill, has been much discussed during the month, and almost the entire Press of India, has for once, concurred in approving of the decision of the Jury. We hope that Mr. Gibbard's case will be considered favorably by the Court of Directors, and that he will soon be restored to the service.

In the Ditch the two great objects of interest during the past month, have been the James Prinsep Testimonial, and the ceratium question of Steam. A public meeting was held on the 30th ultimo, at the Town Hall, to take into consideration the best means of paying respect to and perpetuating the memory of the late Secretary to the Asiatic Society. At this meeting a great number of the Ditch aristocrats assembled—Dr. John Grant, in the Chair—and it was finally resolved that a Ghaut should be erected on the bank of the river, a little below Fort-William, in honor of their lamented friend. If the speeches delivered, on this interesting occasion, contained a few trifling exaggerations, the amiable error will be readily overlooked; and it is greatly to the honor of the late Mr. Prinsep, that so many personal friends have pressed forward to bear record to his worth. Another meeting has been held, and one of more general public interest, than the foregoing. On the 8th of August, the friends of Mr. Curtis's scheme for the advancement of Steam-Communication assembled at the Town Hall, where a paper was read and unanimously assented to and signed by all present, expressing the fullest confidence in the entire expediency of the measures taken by Mr. Curtis at home, and containing a pledge to support that gentleman, by endeavouring to obtain subscribers to his Company, with a proviso that it should be optional with such Shareholders, to have their subscriptions returned to them, in the event of Mr. Curtis not completing his Company, or to have them transferred to the Agents of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company established in Calcutta, in the terms contained in a Resolution passed at a meeting of the United Committee held on the 1st instant, which was to the following purport:

Having every reliance on Mr. Curtis' judgment and discretion, and every confidence in his ultimately succeeding,—still, to provide for the possibility of failure, Resolved that, in case Mr. Curtis should not succeed in his present arrangements, and should see no reasonable prospect of being enabled to get up his Scheme, he be requested to transfer the Funds remitted to him through this Committee to the Agents in London of the Free Press, provided the original constitution of these is preserved, and they have joined no other Company, but, should such constitution have undergone any change, or the Precursors have joined any other Company, Mr. Curtis will hold the funds respectively at the disposal of the several Subscribers in the event of his abandoning his measure.

It was further resolved, at the meeting of the 8th, that, in the opinion of those present, it is desirable, for the sake of unity of action, that as soon as possible, the management of the affairs of the Company in India, should be confided to a single Committee—to wit, besides, of much importance has taken place. The month of July is not very favorable to activity, and with the exception of certain projected reforms (much wanted) in the Calcutta police, we have no new local improvements to put on record. The weather has been, as is usual at this time, delightfully steamy, and the ordinary quantity of sickness has been abroad.

Our ' Necrology ' contains the names of Lord John Chorchill and the Governor-General of Netherlandish India. The former died of dysentery at Macao, and the latter expired at Batavia.

MISCELLANEA.

Calcutta

THE CROPS—Great injury has been suffered the crops from the heavy rains we have experienced. The jaddy crop in the Healy district has been inundated, by the Dan o'ber overflowing its banks and the Indigo crop in almost all quarters has suffered severely.

INDIGO PROSPECTS—The following is an extract of a letter from Innes dated 14th of July

I am now getting enormous profits — my press has turned out this morning a million and I shall continue to do so, and then I shall make a few copies of my factory. I hope you really is not doing so well.

BANK OF BENGAL - The Bank of Bengal declared a dividend of eight per cent, one hundred and sixty rupees per share.

INFANTRY REEFING FUND—An temporary arrangement, the subscribers to the Infantry Refreeing Fund have appointed Messrs Henders, n Home, and Simmonds as managers. The last-named has acted hitherto, as the Secretary, and now that it is determined to appoint one permanently, he is desirous of being retained in the office.

INUNDATION.—It is said that Ching-pore, an obscure village in the Zikhi Bazar, has been overflowed by the recent rise of the Dimaas. This inundation has destroyed a good fallutment of grain. A number of that led huts and the rest, although a considerable number of domestic animals. But as the scene was in the public that it should have consisted of said brick buildings, whose foundations were rather weak, have led on down.

A BRIDGE AT MIRAPOTI—We learn from a contemporary, that there is a narrow stream at Mirapoti the current of which runs with great violence in the rainy season, so as to be attended with considerable peril to the villagers and others who may have to cross and re-cross. A rich public-spirited friend of the place has, in consequence, made a donation of 20,000 rupees, which he has placed in the hands of Government for the erection of a bridge across the stream in question.

A TERRIBLE CASE OF LORCEPTYL, ABDUCTION AND MURDER—A most dramatic case, which lately took place in the city of New York, and which has attracted the attention of the whole world, is the case of the young lady, who was abducted from her home in the city of New York, and who was found dead in a room in the city of New York, and who was found with a large quantity of LORCEPTYL in her possession. The case is a most dramatic one, and it is a case which has attracted the attention of the whole world. The case is a most dramatic one, and it is a case which has attracted the attention of the whole world.

to the Insane Hospital to see a friend. She had not gone far when a native servant came running after her with a palkey, and told her that her mother wanted her back immediately, and had sent the palkey for her. Miss Maney unsuspectingly got into the palanquin it being dark, and Miss Maney apprehending nothing extraordinary, was not aware that the palanquin instead of proceeding towards the house, was being taken out of the way towards an unfrequented part of the road, where it was suddenly put down. She now perceived her situation, but before she could make any attempts or in fact use efforts of any kind she was rudely taken out of the palanquin and thrown into a carriage which had been provided for the purpose and which immediately drove off. She screamed out for help, but there was no one at hand to assist her, while she was violently kept inside the carriage, and she was shaken by a European named Lyons, and several natives, the former being a young man belonging to one of the hilly tribes. She was then taken to the house of a well known wealthy Mohammedan Zammadah living in Sealdah, where the poor young woman was forcibly detained and abused in the period of a month.

Miss Mance, in the mean time, could find no value for her diamond, whose extraordinary disappearance she could not at first in the most distant manner account for or guess. But after a few days, from some adventurous circumstances, she learnt the precious fact of her daughter's abduction, and was so hurt that the Hospital apprentice would have commenced with the zemindar in quest of an indemnity out of the ruin of the unfortunate Miss Mance, by having received two letters, addressed by the apothecary as well to the zemindar. In one letter she speaks of remuneration for her trouble, and the other appears to have been written the same day on which the abduction was effected, and contains the information that Miss Mance was on that evening going to the Hospital for healing, that it would afford a fitting opportunity for the zemindar to secure her.

Mrs. Maney came to the Police, stating the above particulars, and seeking for redress, but as the case occurred out of the jurisdiction of the Calcutta Police, the Chief Magistrate could not interfere in the matter. In the case, no doubt, will be brought before the Magistrate of the Twenty-four Pargannahs.

and necessary to man districts of the Lower Provinces as an object of a general national interest that it must be regarded as requiring the special care of the Government, and whilst he gives his best thanks for the co-operation of the Committee, and begs for a continuance of its assistance, he is willing to the extent above described, to give it support from the public fund.

THE DIRECTOR OF THE Lottery understands that the fortunate holder of the ticket (185), drawn a prize of fifty thousand francs in the 18th drawing of the "Volonté Lottery," was Abu Abraham, a merchant of this city.

A TRUTH DISPERSED CASE.—A very tragic scene occurred during last week at St James's Church, where a female dressed out in an apparently bridal suit with a masked bonnet, otherwise a diabolic helmet, desperately attempted to nullify the proceedings of Mr Du Costa with Miss C. Mearns, &c. &c. The Bridgroom as her betrothed The Rev gentleman was forced to postpone the nuptial ceremony and adjourn from the Hymeneal Altar to the Bishop's Palace, where, after long enquiries made by the Venerable Archdeacon, it was fairly proved, that the female had no claim to the worthy gentleman's hand or heart. The worthy female, it seems, with blind endeavor to win all things, which she found could be purchased in no other way. But to her infinite surprise she found to a life, that both her money and her object were added loss to her and her regretful feeling preceded in the manner above stated. The Rev. gentleman was so taken back in the female's showing a wedding ring on her finger that he must have verily believed it to be a case of bigamy, and involuntarily closed his book. The lady to her utter shame and confusion, was forced to retire without her object, and the parties were married on the next morning at the Catholic Church, and afterwards at St James's Church.

NATIVE TRIPARTY — Baboo M. K. S. has generously given a bullock horse, Providence Luggage and from plates, enough to hull a boat to hold it, which it is intended to apply to the purpose of a ferry-boat across the Ganges at Bureat hee, on the road to Dordjag. This most liberal gift will prove of incalculable advantage, not merely to the European and other travellers to and from Dordjag, but also to the public generally engaged in the internal trade from Rungpoor, Duxepoor, &c. and the Government itself is likely to reap the greatest benefit ultimately from the powerful stimulus which will thus be given to mercantile traffic.

RAPE.—A case of rape was under investigation at the Police on the 5th instant. The particulars, as far as they could be ascertained, appear to be the following:—A Muhammad girl about twelve years old, was going on Tuesday last, to a bazar to buy something, when, passing by the door of two women whom I know, they called her in and gave her some green liquid to drink, saying that it was a good beverage, and would do her no harm. She drank it off, and a short time afterwards fell down and gaily. The two women told her it was nothing, and offered her some sherbet, which they said would remove the giddiness. She accordingly drank the sherbet, but instead of removing her and spitting it, increased it to a tin-fold degree, so that she was compelled to lie down on the mat on which she had been sitting. She remembered distinctly, that at the two women, while she lay helpless, appeared and a man in a yellow Mahomedan came into the room. Her recollections were, that while her indignation continued to increase the man proceeded to do her every violence. But it is accurate quite unnecessary of what passed around her, and sink into a deep stupor, from which when she recovered the next morning, she found that she had been violently abused. I am therefore of the opinion that the parties had previously planned to compass the ruin of the girl.

AGRA BANK.—The Directors of the Agra Bank have addressed a circular to the Shareholders, requesting them to transact their individual votes respecting a proposed change in the Insurance System of the Bank. The Insurance of the Agra Bank consists chiefly of loans up to approval of personal accounts, granted on many conditions for long terms, and is usually secured by policy of Insurance up to the life of the borrower. The finding is that secured amounts at present to the 37½ per cent. of the business being divided in the Capital, Oriental and Universal Assurance Societies. The Director proposed to the establishment of an Insurance Office at Agra, to be conducted with or under the sole control and management of the Bank, and in short that the Bank should be proprietor in its own insurance.

THE CHINESE CIVILIZATIONS.—It appears that the Chinese Government is not prepared to permit the American missionaries to preach to the Chinese. The missionaries have been refused permission to preach to the Chinese. It was owing to this refusal that the American missionaries have been refused permission to preach to the Chinese. It was owing to this refusal that the American missionaries have been refused permission to preach to the Chinese.

manuer, and would not brook any controul. When off Pabnah, they assailed the boatmen and in direct violation of orders seized the helm and oars and pulled ashore, where they soon engaged themselves in a serious riot, attended with homicide. Sixty of them were confined, to take their trial for this, and the rest refused to proceed without them. The Superintendents endeavoured in vain to prevail on them to go on; they most pertinaciously persisted in their determination to remain. When the sixty that had been confined were liberated, in consequence of identification being impossible, the Superintendents again endeavoured to induce these men to proceed, but they positively refused to do so unless they were allowed, in addition to the provisions of dried fish, rice, &c., that they had contracted for, opium and other luxuries, which it would be too expensive and even dangerous to afford them. Several attempts to induce these refractory characters (who, it appears, are not far different, as they represented themselves, but more conscious,) to proceed to their destination failed, and they still insisting on their own terms the Superintendents were directed by these Committee to discharge them; they were consequently dismissed and have been left at liberty to find their way to their own country, or to engage themselves to any person desirous of their services.

TULNATH ABOARD AFTER MIDNIGHT—For the last few nights the whole body of constabulary has been turned out patrolling all over the town, to prevent the thieving watchmen from sleeping, the consequence of which has been that no constables have been committed in any part of the town excepting one, to an insignificant amount, in Muchash bazar, the number of which division were the only sleepers taken by the constables.

CAPTAIN BOHRAH—This gentleman has just arrived from England in the Harshay, to superintend magnetic, meteorological and tidal observations in India. ROBBERY IN THE 24-PERGUNNAH—On Wednesday last, the 1st instant, a robbery took place in the Kuchee of one Jyannam Bhattacharyya, situated at Atchmah, a small village on the east of Burdwan, in the district of 24 Pergunnahs. It was about midnight when a gang of dacoits, armed with swords, spears, muskets, &c., rushed into the Kuchee, and by their onrush spread terror in the neighbourhood. One Bindum Chandra, of the Gowa caste, a man past middle age, courageously engaged with a club in his hand to the defence of the Kuchee and to prevent the plunder, but none could get to his aid, the dacoits being either not farthcoming, or idle spectators of what was going on, was surrounded by the robbers and received the fatal blow, so that he died on the spot. The dacoits are now engaged in making the robbery successful but has not as yet been able to trace the real perpetrators.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES TO THE STUDENTS OF THE NAVY SCHOOL—On the 12th instant, the distribution of prizes to the students of the Naval School, took place at the Government House in the Park, when His Lordship gave some excellent books and mathematical appliances to those boys that were pronounced qualified by Captain Richardson, whose suggestions for the improvement of this little seminary were highly appreciated by His Lordship. But what was most interesting to observe was His Lordship's remarkable cold secution in taking off from his finger a valuable ring and presenting it to the schoolmaster, Ralph Russell, Esq. in order to mark his excellent very good opinion, his Lordship's commendation of the character and ability of this estimable young man.

MRS. PRINSEP AND PEELE—Mr. C. Prinsep has been appointed acting Consul to the East India Company, and Mr. Lawrence Peel Advocate-General.

TITLE AND EXHIBITARY—It is said, that a case of much importance, and involving a large property, is about to be litigated in the District Court. Upon the death of the late Rajah Chittu Singh, one of the largest Zemindars in Peninsular India, his son, Roodra Singh, set up a will, purporting to make over nearly the whole of the vast property to himself—this document is said to be a forgery, and the young brother, Roodra Singh, is about to maintain its proceedings to impeach its validity. The case of the latter is said to have been taken up by Behar Dutt Kananath Tagor, and one of the Ministers of the Supreme Court has been retained to proceed to Tinsah on his behalf.

A NEW OWNER TO CHOKERDA.—Complaints have of late been made of the slinkers of the petty criminals of the city of Chokherda being disturbed by the boys of the nucleus of the night watch. We understand that Deputy Secretary of Police has ordered a list of names of the slinkers to be made up and moved to put thieves on a nap.

THE SYRIAN MORNING SCHOOL—The pupils of this school were examined on the 31st inst. The use of the Chaldaean script was had to a fully limited for the purpose. Aided by a library and book the examination, and expressed himself greatly gratified by the manner in which the boys acquitted themselves. At the conclusion of the examination, the Archdeacon complimented all concerned in the getting up of this school, which is conducted wholly by young natives, who support it by their gratuitous labour and pecuniary aid. They are chiefly students of the Hindu College, who devote the few hours which they spare from their own studies, to the communication of the blessing they themselves receive, at the hands of European teachers, to their poorer countrymen. Mr Dooltry very liberally observed, that though, as a Christian clergyman, he could not consistently take an active part in the institution of any school in which the Christian religion did not form a leading branch of education, he was not willing to acknowledge the great good that schools for more general instruction might effect, and it was not to be expected that Hindoos professing the religion in their faith, should admit the Bible as a text-book into their school-te establishments. He was however in full, for the diffusion of general knowledge all over India, and it was highly creditable to the young men who had met and taken the management of the Spanish Mission School, that they had done so much good in the little time that it had been established.

OF ARABIAN.—In reply to the enquiry of the Marine Board, which it will be remembered, I had addressed, is pertinent on the subject of establishing a quarantine in regard to the vessels coming from the Persian Gulf, is a measure of precaution with respect to the plague prevailing in these parts, Government have written that the epidemic disease adverted to, is not of that nature which would render such a proceeding necessary.

OTIS SAYS—One hundred and fifty chests of Putnam which had been reserved for the French Government were on the bid instant put up to Auction by the Board, and sold one lot at 710, and the rest were purchased by one speculator at 700 per chest, the average result is to Re 700 5 4 per chest.

OPPIUM SCRIPT—“I'll take Opium Script” for forty-five chests of Pinna and twenty chests of Benares, of the January sale of last year was put up for sale by me about Messrs. Tull & Co. on the 4th instant but we were still no better being told on the 20th to offer none but five hundred rupees per chest.

PRINCE WARREN—Shiradda Warrishindhu who was sentenced by the Session Judge of the 24 Pargannas to one year imprisonment, for wounding and maiming a lad, appealed to the Sudder Nazim Court, for a reversal of his case. One Ghulam Mustaffa pleader in the Court of the Moonsoof or Pusspooh, was ordered by the proccutor to have been present at the time he received the wound, but Ghulam Mustaffa deposed that he was totally ignorant of the circumstances in he was that day engaged before the Moonsoof. As Ghulam Mustaffa was himself implicated in expelling the deroogha, who had done to the Prince, to revive the Magistrate's process, the Judge the fore did not receive his evidence, and the Prince, who was released upon security till the trial was concluded a second time, the charge having been fully proved against him on the re-trial also. The Prince has again appealed to the Sudder Nazim Court and prayed that the evidence of Ghulam Mustaffa be taken and the Moonsoof be examined. On this the Judge of the Sudder Court has ordered that the prisoner be released on bail, and that the Moonsoof be examined. Should the Moonsoof's evidence show that Ghulam Mustaffa was on the day engaged at his Court till a couple of hours (for the witness took place at a little before that hour)

It is understood that the Prince will be at once discharged.

CHANGES IN THE POLICE OFFICE—A short time ago we noticed that a charge of bribery had been preferred against one of the oldest clerks in the Police Office. Mr Robert Hibberly, first clerk to the Chief Magistrate was the party accused. The case underwent an investigation by the Chief Magistrate, with the result of which we are unacquainted. Mr Hibberly, however, has been dismissed from office.

We are credibly informed that he was employed in the Police Office for upwards of thirty years, and it was only about three months ago, that he contemplated applying for a pension, to which by his illness, he has forfeited all claims.

The following are the arrangements made. Mr J W Peterson, clerk in the shipping department, has been appointed to Mr Hibberly's place, for European cases occurring ashore or in the shipping, and his situation has been abolished. Mr Grant the assistant next to Mr. Hibberly, has been appointed for all native cases upon an additional salary.

MIRAT—The weather is fine, and though the rains bids back the Jumna is very much swollen. An earthquake was felt by many people on the 27th of June. Wolves have come into the cantonments, and many are the wonderful tales told of their prowess. Some three children have, however, been carried away from the lanes, and the Commissioner has offered a reward of five rupees for every wolf brought in to him.

RUNGPORE—The following is an extract of a letter from Rungpoore. "The Dargah-e-Pahel at all we have ever seen. Our old friends in Moorshedabad used to say hard but the magnanimity displayed by these cool seconds to extend confession and justice to him. You recollect the old Moghul's plan of putting hot iron half an inch into a man's person. It is comparative comfort to what these unfortunate devils are subjected. A theft took place the other day, the jailer came out and reported no go, which was the case as regards the serious part of it. The thieves were not to be put off, but within the next few days the thieves in 10 days under punishment is imminent and fine. This worthy, to say himself, came out and said all the evils of one of my villages and I put them to the order of his dollah. As soon as I see hukmat, I will explain it. The man is laid on his back, a bamboo is joined under his shoulder-blades, and then across the chest, one man holds the legs, two others press at opposite ends of the upper bamboo, and this causes the most excruciating pain. The unfortunate wretch, in his agony, names any persons his bewildered senses can call to mind, and then he is gone. This most iniquitous mark of torture leaves a swelling and black mark, but it is months before the victims get rid of an internal pain. The vagabond jemadar has sent in some chaps to the Magistrate, and walked off with 200 rupees or upwards as his share of the spoil. The poor devils of Ryots are now with me. I will do my best to get them justice, but the chances are nine to one against their getting any thing more than my sympathy. You know how coolly some of the Dynasty wallahs throw every obstacle in the way of the oppressors of their police being proved. I have no doubt this will only swell the list. What stuff to talk of the oppressors of the slave holders!—no slaves under the face of heaven were ever half so brutally treated as are the natives of Dargah, by the misnomer of Pahel. I firmly believe the greatest blessing the Government could confer on the people, would be to do away with the present Police, and leave the people to themselves, till a better system can be introduced."

AGRA—An affair, which threatened untoward consequences, occurred the other day in the Munzaffargar district. Captain Fisher, Political Assistant, Deyrah Dhoon, while travelling dawn, was at a particular spot, told by his hearers that he was way-laid by a party ahead, who contemplated violence, and recommended him to return. This Capt F—refused, got out of his palanke, and proceeded with great presence of mind towards a body of men armed with clubs, spears, &c., &c., as if he were unconscious of their presence. The coolness saved him, the party intimidated by it, withdrew, leaving him to pursue his journey unmolested. This occurred at the same place where Lieutenant Dawes was some time since so violently assaulted.

The want of rain is beginning to be very seriously felt, and to cause the most uncomfortable apprehensions. Some idea of the severity of the heat may be formed from the circumstance that three soldiers of H. M.'s 9th Regiment, died in one day, of apoplexy.

Wheat has in consequence risen to the very high price of 19 seers per picul, and other articles in proportion.

The June mail announces the appointment of the Lieutenant-Governor Mr Robertson as Provisional Governor General, to succeed to the Office on a vacancy occurring and no success on the spot.

There has been a most favourable change in the weather. It commenced to rain about midnight or early on the 1st July since which, it has been cloudy with frequent and abundant showers. Nearly 4½ inches of water fell and nothing in short could be more favourable at this late period of the season. The effect on the grain market was sudden and wheat is now selling at 4 seers more than it was formerly.

The 1st d'Alabar gives the following—

The lovely daughter of a captain and distinguished officer of rank, now at Cabool, while proceeding to join him, saw, loved, and was, loved by a French son of Mars, an A D C to a gallant General in the service of the Sikhs, of a very "magnificent" name. The course of this true love was so long, that the lovers became enmeshed with of course, the concurrence of the parties next most interested, to themselves. The Sikh General agreed to settle one lakh of rupees on the bride of his A D C on the wedding-day, which was settled. The young A D C Mons La Font, appeared at Cabool, where the ceremony was to be performed and pitched his crimson tent near his future father's door, and all went merrily as a marriage bell. But alas for the course of true love! the happy A D C was one fine morning recognised by some soldiers, of a certain Queen's Corps now at Cabool, as a prince—no—as a shop-boy of Mr White, the Karnal merchant! The discovery made its way to the Officers, to whose mess the sad-disent A D C had been asked by the father of his bride, as his guest. The Officers refused to meet him, until an explanation was offered, none was forthcoming, but next day the crimson tent and its gay occupant had disappeared! and with them the happy event.

His political opinions seemed to prove him a staunch revolutionist, one of the Lib's heroes, but this turn of affairs showed, said the Officers, that he was a comfession.

ATYPOUR—The rains which are to be expected in the next few days, are the 20th of June, will be most refreshing. At a particular place, where the sun is particularly hot, the weather is now most unpropitious. Very little of the rain crops have been sown, though the hills are ploughed—the Indigo cultivation begins to suffer—while the greatest terror prevails amongst the whole community which a few facts will somewhat curiously show. All kinds of grain have become dearer.

thus showing that luxuries have become cheaper, no one buying but what wher necessity obliges. But the signs of the fear of a famine, for which the experience of 1837 has given good cause, are still in the marked. All the numerous projected intrigues a nongst families in this district have been postponed, small thefts have become very frequent, and towards Duhye on the Ganges, several attacks have been made on grain pits, an offence which did not show itself until the end of 1837. But this fear of drought prevents the employment of any one or the advance of money for the purposes of cultivation.

CHITTAGONG—The following is an extract of a letter we received yesterday from Chittagong, dated 14th July.

"We have had more gales here than have been known for some years past. The hills of rain too have been so heavy that several villages to the southward were inundated and several lives lost. The authorities here raised a subscription for the suffering survivors and supplied them with provender. The rains have now ceased for a few days, we have occasional showers only—and the weather has become very disagreeably hot. You should have been here to see the state of the roads immediately after the heavy rains, I am sure it would have astonished you, if such were the state of the Calcutta roads I doubt not the Magistrate's attention would be duly called to it by the public papers. Our Magistrate has been kind enough to set the prisoners to work in filling up the immense gaps—only eight near the Government School has not yet been filled, the gap is about fifteen feet wide and extending across the road. Two bridges have also sunk, on account of the washing away of the sand from underneath them."

MURSHIDABAD 26th June 1840—From a Correspondent—The brethren of the Masomee Order will be happy to learn that a new Lodge named "Kirdi Hope," has been established at this Station, in which the W. M. (the father or founder and first Master of that flourishing Lodge "Light of the North") under a warrant, was regularly installed on the 12th instant, when all the Officers being duly invested, the Lodge entered on work.

This infant Lodge promises to become shortly, in numbers, respectability and working, as prosperous as any in the country.

KURNAUL—A letter from Kurnaul says—'There is nothing going on in this part of the world. The Lahore Government, so far from wishing to oppose us, have acceded to everything we require of it, and we may march as many troops as we like through the Punjab, with their assistance too, so there is an end to a campaign in that quarter for the present. They are, however, fighting amongst themselves, and two powerful hill chiefs are in open rebellion against the Government.'

'We have had no rain to signify up to this, and the weather is hardly bearable in consequence the troops keep remarkably healthy however, as the sick lists show.

'Additional ground has been just taken into the cantonments to admit of the construction of four new barracks, under orders to be built to the north of the 4th lines.'

TUCKNOW.—A most daring attempt to assassinate a poor helpless man, was made on the night of the 16th ultimo, by two hired ruffians, and suspected to have been undertaken at the instance of an influential personage, closely allied to the Royal Family of this country, who failing by every legal means to evade the payment of a large sum of money justly due by him, claimable under the most unexceptionable and incontrovertible documentary and oral evidence, had had recourse to the barbarous and inhuman method of effecting his purpose, by an attempt at assassination; and if, of which there is very little doubt, this base measure has been resorted to at the instigation of the scoundrel advisers by whom he is constantly surrounded, and who, him being indisputably connected, and otherwise too feeble and ill in the extreme, are by no means fit companions for a prince allied to the illustrious family of Saurdur Jung.

RAMPUR—Mr Commissioner Robinson reached Rampur on the 24th June to persuade (it is supposed) the dying Nawab to call in European Troops to prevent further outrage on the part of the turbulent Pindars, who have already proceeded to great lengths and some lives have been lost. The 21st Regiment were expecting orders hourly to move on Kimpore. A considerable sum in cash, nearly twenty lac of rupees, with the Nawab's jewels, &c, it is supposed, would descend to his sister, but this country on the Nawab's death, lapses to the Company in the absence of an heir to the throne of Rampur.

Mhookah is upwards of 7 000 feet above the level of the sea, Jugharra a little less.

REYPORE—Major Thorpe is still busily engaged, attempting to bring the country into some state of order, and, rejecting harsh measures, has endeavoured by persuasion and good treatment to induce the plundering vagabonds of the state to desist from their outrages. This praiseworthy intention has not met with success, nor was it to be expected that it would, among such lawless a people. One instance of the fatality of half measures had been related to us.

The Major having heard of the villainies of a celebrated Kuzak, Hurre Sing, sent for him and in the hope of reclaiming him hastened to all his alleged grievances, which were not a few, as they included the demand of certain lands and villages belonging to his neighbours, which to use his expression, it was necessary he should have to enable him to live like a gentleman. His request not being complied with, he and his followers took themselves off from Jeypre, and within 4 days, first plundered a Mahajan of considerable property, then directed their course to Cheela, which village they burnt to the ground, and several lives were lost, and the worthy gentleman now levies Black Mail, in Tooowatta.

A party of vagabonds have seized upon the Fort at Kintree, which, from its appearance on the map, seemed to be a place of some importance and projecting the old Kamlais, are building defiance to Major Thorpe by.

A large Force under Major Forster, was, however, to start on the 11th instant, for the purpose of bringing the lawless of authority to their senses. Another similar affair has taken place at Seekur, the party there refusing to receive the chief, Ram Nath.

Perak, who is supported by a detachment of Horse and a Company fresh from India.

Mr. Arthur, writing from Tiflis, of the 21st July, mentions a serious insurrection of the Russians against their Government and an apprehension of insurrection in our territories to meet which troops had been applied for, from Diarbekir. The villages taken by the Russians a few weeks since had not been given up.

A letter from Benares communicates the following:—We had intelligence yesterday of a mutiny having occurred in the Bengal army, and that 8,000 men had raised the British Standard. It is supposed this outbreak was first caused by the Tappels, in revenge for the murder of their Chief, Bhern Singh, which took place about a year ago. This diversion will go far to prevent any outrage of the Nepaul mob within our territories.

It has been confidently stated, that hostilities with Nepal are on the eve of breaking out, and that whether fresh signs of provocation be given or not, it is resolved to read our mountain neighbours another lesson, sufficiently effectual to prevent further manifestations of their unquiet and inimical disposition.

THE STRIKE—Our Sikh Allies lie under the imputation and very justly, of being the prime movers of the seditious little emulates which have lately arisen among the neighbouring tribes, and it has been discovered, that their Agents are busily employed in Afghanistan, fanning into flame the smallest spark of discontent wherever it glimmers. The abilities of Mr. Clerk—abilities in which the public may have the full opportunity—have been called into active service in determining the explanation from the Court of Lahore regarding certain intrigues which have been too thinly veiled to avoid detection, and it is much suspected that the seditious shown to Colonel Wallace and his party only checked other operations to be carried on elsewhere. An infatuation has, it is said, been carried on with certain noted rebel Chiefs, and one especially upon whose head a price is set, has had money advanced him in prospect of affording him in his place of refuge, the Khyber Pass. A small party of Nizam-ul-Hind, sent beyond the Hindoo Khosh, it is supposed with the intention of intrigue, perhaps with the Russians, has been detected in Kabul on his return to his country, and our Government have been long aware of the tampering which has been, and is continually going on with the hill tribes, who, though not very favourably inclined to the Punjabees, are but too anxious to capture in any warfare which promises a reasonable prospect of plunder. Now Nihal Singh's refusal to allow our troops to pass through his territories will, however, bring matters to a crisis.

SCINDA-SUKKUR—The following is an extract of a letter from Sukkur, dated 20th June. The writer makes mention of a rumour, and something more preparatory, relative to the dispatch of some troops to Herat.

There is a talk here of troops being sent up to Herat on the opening of the cold season in October, in fact the commissariat is making arrangements for that purpose, and it is probable that part of the command establishment here, will have to accompany our outposts and convoys are much annoyed by the Beloochees, who take every opportunity of bringing down on them in large numbers. There is a report that the Beloochees, 12,000 strong, were marching down to invade Sindh one in Sukkur, but they have not as yet made their appearance.

It is stated, on highly creditable authority, that a deeply laid plot, having for its object the massacre of some British Officers in Herat and Candahar, was discovered by Major-General Sir John Nicholson, and is now being investigated. It is reported that the conspirators, who are numerous, are all of the same tribe, and are now plotting the first massacre of the British in the Punjab against our expedition. They should remember the work of extermination.

We have seen letters from Herat to the 21st July, but they do not give very satisfactory accounts of the state of the country, which is said to be much needed.

Three Steamers have been dispatched with arms and ammunition to Kurrahee, and some troops are to be sent there, even in the event of the relief of Captain Bees' party at Quetta.

Mehrab Khan's son still threatens to attack Herat with a large force. We shall very likely hear the sequel of the late fracas at Quetta before our next number is published.

Letters from Sukkur of the 10th of June, state that the Troops there are to turn out in August to enter provisions to the post of Kohat through the Marraes, Tribe of Beloochees, and after that commence war with those who cut up Elial. Clarks and the 5th Regiment, with all this to do there is a scarcity of officers. The 23rd have only 1 Major, 1 Lt. Col., 1 Adjutant, 1 Acting Quarter Master, and a young officer who has just joined present, and one captain of detachment, the only officer with a whole wing. The 1st Grenadiers have 1 Major, 1 Captain, 1 Acting Adjutant, 1 Quarter Master, 1 Subaltern and a young officer newly arrived, one captain and 1 Major of detachment. The 5th are just as badly off. The flank company of the 23rd were to have gone out in August, but from having no officers, the Grenadiers take the tour of duty. In the 23rd Hospital for the last 24 hours, the Thermometer had not been below 105 deg except for one hour about 8 P.M. and it is a fine large building. Yet for all this they are drilling recruits, the recruits who went up from Bombay started so late that 65 are weather bound in Quetta for the monsoon, and 14 died of cholera in the train. The Steamers are going to take 6 companies of the 2nd Grenadiers to reinforce the Sukkur brigade for the expedition against the Marraes, 3 companies of H. M. 40th Regiment also come by the same opportunity. The Rahans, a tribe in part, and the hereditary enemies of the Marraes, will bring 10,000 men to hem them in on the Warik and Wase, and it is to be hoped a severe lesson will be given them and a stop be put to the confused harassing duty which the Troops in Beloochees are constantly exposed to.

QUETTA—Letters from Quetta have been received, which contain an animated account of an attack upon the fort there, in which, as a matter of course, the Beloochees got a sound thrashing.

Justice Mirree at Quetta, 27th June, 1840.—Here we are shut up in the fort of Mirree of Quetta, and surrounded by about as many thousands and cowardly as a set of rascals as can be found from Constantinople to the wall of China. Since the 1st we have been on the quiver. The first cause of all this was the assembling of a considerable body of Kakurs, chiefly Panizres, Yamares and Bozves, under a Yagoo Panizre chief, named Guffhor. These had taken up their quarters in a deep and narrow gorge 9 or 10 miles to the north east of our camp, but their numbers had not increased sufficiently to warrant, in their opinion, an attack on even our small force, which consisted of about 2,000 of the Shah's Infantry.

and our Beloochee gunners, in all 250 armed men. The night of the 21st was passed in watching by all, the ladies not even excepted, for they, poor creatures, were too much frightened to take rest. At 2 A.M. all being quiet. Hammerly started with four sowars to examine the gorge, and to ascertain the strength of the party in it, of which we were rather sceptical. He reached the Kakur camp at dawn of day, and having satisfied himself of the presence of about 400 men, he turned towards home to acquaint Beas with what he had seen. Some of the fellows who observed us, rode up the side of the hill, and took a few long and barinful shots at us. The 22d brought intelligence of an division amongst the Kakur ardars, and of the Panjze chief having withdrawn his oolos and returned to his home. It was also positively stated that those ardars who had disagreed with Gaffoor, would come in to us, were we to send for them. This all sounded very well, but our suspicions were not so easily lulled—it looked too much like a plot, and we were doing our best to fathom it. In the evening, whilst we were all down at the place, another spy came in and corroborated the statement of Gaffoor's departure somewhere or other, but where he knew not. Our sowars too who had been acquiring all around, saw no signs of an enemy, but still all were on the alert, as on the preceding evening. The following morning some of the headmen who were supposed to have quarrelled with Gaffoor, offered to come in, it set for, and about 2 P.M. they arrived at Beas's house, having left their followers (80 men) at our Bolin Banger camp. Shah Buzoor, a Durrani Kakur, who bears the rank of a subadar in two rangars, on hearing of the arrival of these men in his camp, advised us to send for the head men and to keep them safe till all was over, as it would prevent their men from acting against us in the attack, which was sure to take place that night, and that he would watch the motions of the others and let us know if any thing suspicious should occur during the night. As our adviser had always behaved well, we determined upon following his instructions by confining the ardars. When these men came to Beas's house for the ostensible purpose of making their shikam and entering our service, we requested the pleasure of their society till all should be arranged, but at the same time they were informed that they should be well treated and well rewarded in the event of their establishing proofs of their honesty. Well might come on and with it positive information from divers quarters of the absence of the Kakurs, to the number of 1000. Sowars were posted at the different points, at which we expected the luchker to enter the plain. Piquets were planted all around, with instructions to fire on the approach of any large body, and then to retire on the magazine and quarter guard, which adjoin one another, and which we made our standing point in the event of our piquets being obliged to retire. Sand bags were arranged to the height of 2 feet in front, the treasure was placed within these, and the two ladies and children within the magazine. The 8 pounder was placed at the right front angle and 9 pounder at the left front angle, supported by all the available infantry. Unfortunately there was a bazar about 100 yards in front, and several other buildings all around, which would serve to shelter an enemy, still our position was the best we could find, as all the magazine was there, and we could not possibly remove the stores under three days, neither could we divide our small force between it and any more eligible situation. From dusk till midnight nothing more occurred to lead us to suppose the enemy were near, and we were beginning to think that they had repented of their design, when a sowar galloped in and informed us of the move of the luchker. This man was followed by another and another, till at last each had only to ride a little in front of the luchker to satisfy himself of the approach of a large body of men. On they came, as quietly as possible, till they reached, or nearly reached the right of the line, where the Horse Artillery stables stood; there they set us a most flagrant shot, which they kept till all they arrived within grape range from the 8 pounder; the first round missed the main body but the second did great execution, and I am sure it must have told well, for it completely stopped the yelling and sent the volunteers flying into and behind the hazar for shelter; some passed through the hazar, but were soon driven back by the 8 pounder and the malaktry.

It now became necessary to detach a few men to the top of the hazar, for the purpose of driving them out, a few rounds accomplished this and gave Beas, who stood to the 9 Pounder, a few capital shots, which once more drove the cowardly rascals back to shelter, but they were not allowed to remain there long, for Giffin with a party of sowars, walked up to the opposite end of the hazar from that to which the first party proceeded, a volley did the business and drove the Kakurs right in front of my gun (the 8 pounder). We gave them a few rounds as they came off, and if we did not kill many we did our best depend upon it. This was the finale a few struggling shots were fired on us as the enemy retired, but with no effect. The first gun was fired about 1/2 past 2 or 3 before 3 A.M., and all the Kakurs had fled by dawn. A few were cut up during the retreat, by half a dozen sowars, and had we but a few cavalry or sowars, many more would have been disposed of ere they could have reached the hills. The accounts of the number of Kakurs who actually came down vary much some say that the main body consisted of 1,000 men and others that they were only 800 in the larger body, but that there were other parties to the amount of 600 men ready to fill on or rear and shanks had they had an opportunity of doing so. I forgot to mention to you that the 10 men we confined in the afternoon all declared that no attack was intended, but on their being brought out and lodged in front of the magazine and hazar that they should be liberated in the event of their words coming true, but that on the contrary, all should die, the motive it was shot was fired at us the hearts of some failed and they confessed that the attack was to take place just before day light, and at the very point where we were best prepared. One of the prisoners declared that he would prevent the attack being made if allowed to go away, but this was not what we wanted, and we told him so. I must tell you of a circumstance which will give you some idea of the barbarous tribes we have to deal with. They have an idea that certain men have the power of rendering the sword and bullets of their adversaries harmless—the Musees are supposed to possess this power and are said to have executed it on that unfortunate occasion, when Lieut. Clarke's party was cut up in Chulchee, and I, myself, have heard many of the Musees declare most solemnly, that they had seen the bullets strike the Musees with a force that would have killed any other men, but that they always fell harmless as if they had struck a star. Well, it seems that they have an idea here that we too can deal in charms of this kind, for on the morning of the attack, just as the Kakurs reached a spot where the shooting commenced, it halted for a moment to work a counter spell which would completely defeat our witchcraft. This counter spell consisted in sacrificing a dog by cutting off its head tail and ears, but I don't think they will trust to it on another occasion. The 8 pounders fired 3 of grape and 1 of shot. Our loss was trifling, only two Beloochee Gunners and one of the 1st Regiment of Remains remained of the enemy 16 were head shot dead by snipe and small shot, six were cut up by the few women who followed, in pursuit, and 3 were taken prisoners, but the number carried off wounded is reported to have been an enormous proportion: 100 wounded, 80 of them mortally and 40 slightly. There are also 80 missing, and supposed to have died of their wounds whilst endeavouring to escape through their hills. This may be in some measure an exaggeration; but judging from the traces of blood visible in all directions, and knowing that it is usual for these people to carry off their wounded and send them, if possible, I should say that the number of wounded cannot fall far short of what has been reported.

The ladies, on whose account we are most anxious, have hitherto behaved most nobly, and when shut up in a close and stifely magazine, their courage and passive courage could not have been surpassed."

AFGHANISTAN—PUNJAB.—The letters received from Cabul come down to the 14th June. They mention that Captain Burt of the Engineers was to start on that morning for Balkh in order to make an accurate survey of the Baimakan and other passes in the route to that place. Lieut. Bursdon of 11 M's 14th Light Infantry, accompanied Captain Burt, on leave. These officers taken a lac of rupees with them, and are escorted by a party of the Shah's troops.

CABUL.—Letters from Cabul come down to the end of June, and mostly confirm what has already appeared respecting the state of the Russian Force, though the British journals think it is far from the intention of Russia to give up the purpose she at first had in view, so far as it regards the Khivans.

GHUZAR, JULY 13 1840.—The following is an extract of a letter.—"Pray can you inform us what has become of the 'Ghuzar Medals'? It is pretty generally known that 40,000 Rs. were sent to the cutters for their manufacture, but since then nothing whatever has been heard of them.

The detachment under the command of Colonel Wallace, which went down to Khelat-i-Ghilzie, return here to-morrow not having done any thing in that district save blowing up four forts. Goltan Khan, the head of the tribe, which a short time since assembled in such strength, had fled with his followers to the hills, and has not been since seen, but Christie's horse and Woodburn's corps have been left near the entrance to the hills, at Holan Robat. Col. Wallace starts with Lieut. Nicholson for the Zoonmah country in a few days, and accompanied by the Shahzadah, returns to Cabul via Logar. It is said that the Political gentleman at Candahar is daily expecting of an insurrection in that city, and wishes for an increase to his force, but there being none to spare he must do the best he can without. It is also expected that Khelat will (ere many days pass) be taken by Mehrab Khan's son, who, it is said, was within a few marches off with a strong Arab force. We are anxiously looking for a relief, but from the very unsettled state the country is in we fear there is but little hope of it this year. I have added these few items of information, thinking that they may not be uninteresting."

JUSHARRAN.—Letters dated Camp Jusharran in the country of the Ghilzies, about half way between Ghuznee and Kelat-i-Ghilzie, state that the operations under Colonel Wallace were going on most successfully, Whallos Khan being a prisoner in camp, and M. 1000's hill fort having been taken without any opposition.

The forces reached Ghuznee from Cabul, on the 20th May; marched thence on the 21st via Mushahie, Khonabagh, Oba Khan and Mirkhan.

From the latter's detachment, composed of Cavalry, Artillery, Sappers, and Infantry, made a night march to surprise Mirkhan's Fort. The followers only of this chief were in the valley at Tasse, while Whallos was there in person, and made himself most active and conspicuous.

Fearing the detachments might not reach its destination early enough, Colonel Wallace pushed on with the cavalry only, accompanied by Lieutenant Nicholson, who is in full charge of the Ghilzie country. The fort was invested at daylight, and the main body of the cavalry making towards the gate, Nicholson (to whose exertions the success of the enterprise is mainly to be attributed) preceded the column with his guides, and strange to say, saw the gate opened by the nephew of Mirkhan, who was not aware that any force was at hand, and was immediately taken prisoner by Nicholson, while a party of dismounted cavalry took possession of the kilah. No resistance was attempted, and on entering the fort it was found occupied chiefly by the female portion of the family of the rebel chief, who were treated kindly and their property secured to them.

The fort was then dismantled and the bastions blown up, after which the detachment returned to camp, which was found pitched at Jusharra, having completed a march of upwards of 30 miles.

It appears that some errors have crept into either the instructions to, or the mode of executing them by the politicals, who are playing at cross purposes. Where the blame rests has not been ascertained. By one, life and property are secured to the chiefs, who give themselves up while another demands unconditional surrender. To obviate the evils which must result from such opposite courses, Colonel Wallace has very prudently directed Captain Anderson's detachment to join him, when the force will amount to 2,500 men after the departure of the Shah's Cavalry and 900 men of Captain Calgais's corps towards Cabul, their original destination.

KELAT-I-GHILZIE.—Letters from "Camp Kelat-i-Ghilzie, dated 14th June," state, that, "General Nott had arrived from Candahar to assume the command of the detachments from various quarters amounting to 3,000 men and eleven guns destined against the Ghilzies. They were shortly to march to Holan Robat near the Aghandeh River, five marches N. W. of Kelat-i-Ghilzie, where the rebel chiefs were reported to have taken up a position with 10,000 men. It was the general opinion, however, that the latter would not show fight. The General only brought an escort with him from Candahar, where the 42d and 43d N. I. continue to remain in garrison."

Rumours are rife of atrocities still more revolting, if possible, than those to which we have already referred. It is said that some Ghilzie chiefs, who had laid down their arms to Capt. Anderson, on a promise of safe conduct, have been cut to pieces by the orders of Shah Sonja's son, who treated Captain Anderson's written pledge with the utmost contempt, but what is worse a British Officer is stated to have been present, and did not prevent this stigma on our national faith and honor. Whatever other part of the rumour may be true, we most earnestly hope this part may turn out a gross exaggeration. The young Shah is reported also to have complained that Captain Anderson did not put to death all the women and children he found in the hill forts. Should it prove true, that Captain Anderson's safe conduct has been thus assumed, we really think our position in Afghanistan will become more ticklish than ever, in the event of a demonstration from Russia. Every man in the country will wish to join the invaders, and will resist as with the energy of despair, if the conditions of surrender be thus flagrantly broken.

We may add, that it is also stated that the political authorities have been disposed to censure Captain Anderson for his humanity. Can this be possible?

The force under Colonel Wallace is, we hear from Cabul, likely to break up shortly, and return to Cantonments. It has been much augmented since Captain Anderson's Detachment joined and now is said to exceed 5000 fighting men. Several forts, the strongholds of rebel Chiefs, have been demolished, without resistance on the part of the enemy, who indeed is not to be feared, and Sultan Mahomed Khan, the principal rebel Chief, has fled with only a few followers. Wazir Khan and Marroo Khan as well as a nephew of the latter, all rebel Chiefs are captives. We are sorry to hear that it was found necessary to behead some of the rebels in camp, the consequence, it is said of unconditional surrender. The first mention of such scenes we must confess, causes a shuddering at the idea of killing in cold blood, but we are afraid the fact is but too true, as we have received it from more than one source.

The Camp, from the last accounts was a few miles from Chusma Shaddy, in which neighbourhood it is supposed, a Cantonment will be established for a portion of Shah Soofah's troops. From all we gather there is every prospect of affairs becoming tranquillized. The Troops were in excellent health.

Colonel Wallace has communicated to Sir Willoughby Cotton that the brother of Sultan Mahomed Khan the principal rebel chief in the Ghiljee country, where the colonel is commanding, and who possesses the greatest influence among his countrymen, was in the colonel's camp negotiating on behalf of his brother with Captain Nicholson, Political Agent.

The consequence is, that all their followers were returning to their homes with the families, and strong hopes are entertained that these overtures will bring the hostile operations to a happy termination.

The troops will probably return shortly to their respective stations, after a campaign of only a few weeks duration, and it is expected that the salutary lesson read to the Ghiljees will, for the future, make them doubt the propriety of trying their strength against the troops who so manfully repulsed them, as, of course such precautions as can be taken will be used to prevent such a force from being again assembled, but we cannot think that setting any of the rebel chiefs, now in our power, at liberty, will conduce to the tranquillity of the country.

The following is an extract from a letter dated 30th June:—

30th June.—This morning nearly the whole of the troops were drawn out for the purpose of witnessing the execution of "Sectaram" sepoj of the 55th Regiment V I, who shot a fellow soldier in the month of April last, for giving him abuse. The man was a fine soldier-like looking fellow, and met his pitifully fate in the most cool and composed manner possible. He walked round the square, preceded by the band of H M 13th Light Infantry playing the dead march, with a firm step, and, with an air of perfect indifference, saluted to the troops as he passed by, he appeared to retain his presence of mind to the last moment, when he was launched into eternity.

HERAT.—Intelligence from Herat to the 10th ultimo merely gives out that the Persians have relinquished their intentions on Herat and moved upon Bagdad. Lieut Shakespear had not been heard of since his departure.

BAMCEEN.—A letter from Bamceen, dated June 20, states:—

"According to the latest accounts from the northward, the Nuwab Juhbar Khan expected to reach Bajrak on the 28th and Kamard to-day, and to arrive here early in the next month. Bajrak is situated in the valley of Kamard, about 8 valleys to the eastward of that place, and some four from the southern base of the Kara Kotul pass. Five companies (with head quarters) of the Goukah corps marched from this place to-day, to occupy a fort at the former place, which had been previously given up to us. A Cossid came in from Ormuzje a few days ago, and from him we hear that the Russians have retreated. It is said the Khin, on hearing such a report, sent out twenty men to reconnoitre, they returned, reporting that they had visited the Russian entrenchments, which they found evacuated. It would appear also that Captain Abbott is supposed to be in some danger, as it is reported that Todd had seized three Khivan Elchees, and declared that he will hold them as hostages. I do not however, place much credit in the latter of these statements, but most of our accounts from the northward agree in the fact of the Russians having made a retrograde movement.

30th June.—The Nuwab Juhbar Khan arrived this morning. Mahomed Abram Khan and Shero Khan sons of the Doat, accompany him (Abu whole of the Ex-Ameer's family). The political officers in Southern Turkestan have met with great success, judging from results, as previous to the important arrival of to-day, envoys from the Meer of Herat, Wallee of Kooloom, and Khan of Mazan had passed through.

The Nuwab's followers are said to be very numerous, 30 hundred or more.

ARRIVAL OF A SHIP.—At last positive orders have arrived from Bengal respecting the 37th N. I., and that they are to proceed to China direct.

MYROR OF THE DEATH OF A NABOB.—It is scarcely two months since the arrival of the Rajah of Kurnool at the Fort of Trichinopoly, where he was appointed to spend the remainder of his days as a prisoner of state. On the 11th instant, whilst attending at the Church in that Fort, under the charge of the Missionary connected with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel (the Rev. W. Hickey), the unfortunate Chief was murdered in cold blood by one of his people. The following extract of a letter, received from Mr. Hickey by a gentleman at the Presidency, contains the particulars of the horrible occurrence.

Trichinopoly, 14th July, 1840.—When I last did myself the pleasure to write to you, you were busily engaged in preparations to take the Nabob of Kurnool by war and capture. I now write to you when he has been basely assassinated in my own Church in the Fort of Trichinopoly. The unfortunate man began to read Persian and Hindostanee tracts regarding the truths of our holy religion, and so strong was the impression made upon his mind, that Mahomedanism was an imposture and Christianity the true faith, that he earnestly requested an interview with me several times, but considering the circumstances under which he was placed, I did not think it prudent to obey his wishes; but promised to send him an Hindostanee Gospel as soon as procurable. In the meantime he begged permission to attend Church, and did attend for two Sabbaths regularly, i. e. until the 12th current. After the Morning Service in English, he remained without going home from his dinner, until 3 o'clock P. M., in order to be present at the Tamil Service also, when he was stabbed mortally, and expired five hours after. The wounds were received in his stomach. He suffered dreadfully, but in the midst of his sufferings he recognized the Padre with an affectionate look, pointing towards heaven with the exclamation "Glory!"

I have reason to believe he died a believer in Christ, from his having requested of me the administration of private baptism, before this dreadful event had happened; but that wish was only communicated after he had been assassinated. The Mussulmen here think he richly deserves his end, for having disgraced their cause by being found within the precincts of a Christian church, and they have buried him on the highway near the west gate of the Fort. He was refused whilst alive admission into their cemeteries for wishing to become a Christian, which made him more strongly inclined to embrace our faith.

THE PAUMBAM PASSAGE.—The following supplementary remarks respecting the Paumbam Channel have been addressed to the Speaker by Colonel Monteth.

"The shik (350 tons) is no mistake, and that tonnage of some Native craft is fully as great, drawing not more than eight feet water. Returns which have been elsewhere quoted, only relate to square-rigged vessels,—dohnies are put down as one item as regards number and report of tonnage. There are but few, 1000 candy dohnies, but five or six have passed through this year. We should however look to the soundings, as it signifies little what a vessel is rated if she draws only the water given. The Wellington, though 50 tons, drew eleven feet; a bark passed through at 2 1/2 fathoms, but the draught of water was reduced to seven feet."

MYROR OF THE DEATH OF A NABOB.—It is scarcely two months since the arrival of the Rajah of Kurnool at the Fort of Trichinopoly, where he was appointed to spend the remainder of his days as a prisoner of state. On the 11th instant, whilst attending at the Church in that Fort, under the charge of the Missionary connected with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel (the Rev. W. Hickey), the unfortunate Chief was murdered in cold blood by one of his people. The following extract of a letter, received from Mr. Hickey by a gentleman at the Presidency, contains the particulars of the horrible occurrence.

Bombay.

SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE SHIPWRECKED.—Liberal subscriptions have been raised for the relief of the parties lately shipwrecked off Bombay. The Free Masons alone subscribed sixteen hundred rupees for this laudable purpose.

SPECIES SAVED.—A quantity of specie which was on board the Castlereagh, was saved through the presence of mind of Captain Tonks. He caused several barrels to be emptied, the money to be put into them, and then the bung-holes corked and leather to be nailed over them. The barrels were then thrown over board, and have been since found on the shore.

"The number of the persons lost from the Castlereagh is now stated to be from 70 to 80.

H. M. QUEEN'S ROYALS.—A private letter from Deesa, of the date of the end of June, states that H. M. Queen's Royals are suffering severely from fever. 200 men are in Hospital and in five weeks 50 gallant soldiers have fallen a victim to the wasting pestilence.

FORTUNATE NATIVE.—Lalla Koombar who has been so fortunate as to gain successively Rs. 50,000 in the Bengal, and Rs. 10,000 in the Madras Lotteries, gave a donation on the 2nd instant, of Rs. 500 to the Native Education Society, with a request that the Scholars might be allowed a holiday.

A BRAHMIN HUNG.—A Brahmin was lately hung at Joocper for the murder of a neighbour's child in so barbarous a manner, that the inhabitants of that district, including his own caste, were fully convinced of the justice of his sentence.

THE PERSIANS AND THE PLAGUE.—A letter from Meghieh dated 13th June, states that the Persians had taken Sullmania, a province to the N. E. of Bagdad, and that the plague was raging in Demasceus.

UNSETTLED STATE OF MOCHA.—A letter from Judda, dated the 12th ultimo, states that Mocha was in a very unsettled state, about the latter end of March. The whole of the Pasha's troops there were encamped in and around the town, filling the place with turbulence and violence. There were forty boats of all sizes and one of the Pasha's large ships receiving the baggage of the refugees, who were told to be abandoning the place altogether by the Pasha's orders, which, if not countermanded, will by this time have left Mecca and the Yemen independent. There were also about 20,000 of the Pasha's troops assembled round Jidda, and in no. were arriving daily from other parts to this point of concentration, in pursuance of orders commanding their return to Egypt, the Pasha having determined to shake all his Arabian conquests. There were four ships belonging to the Victor outside Jidda, and reports were prevalent that secret counter orders had been received, relative to the abandoned territory, in which case, we may receive intelligence of more bloodshed, as the Arabs are terribly averse to the yoke of Mahomet Ali. The Euphrates is lying off Jidda, and the Elphinstone has gone to Suva, both these vessels are employed, in looking after British interests in those quarters.

ANTICIPATED ATTACK ON ADEN.—Since the arrival of the Columbo there has been much conversation respecting an anticipated attack on Aden, of which however nothing positive appears to be known except that it is expected to be very serious;—the 27th June was the day assigned by some. It has been stated that the companies of H. M. 6th Regt. are not to land at Bombay, but embark from Panwell for the ship:—100 men are to go in the Scotstrie, and the rest with the Bampers and Blumers, &c. in the "Longee Family" taken up by Government for Rs 27,000.

We have been favoured with the perusal of a letter which has just reached Calcutta, from which it will be seen, that the anticipated attack had been made upon Aden by the Arabs, who were repulsed with considerable loss. The writer of the letter was in Aden at the time the attack took place:—

"On the night of the 4th. of July, the Arabs, in number about four thousand, attacked the out works of Aden. The firing commenced at about 1 o'clock in the morning, and lasted until half past 4, during which time a great number of shells were thrown, which did considerable execution among the attacking party, while none of the garrison were hurt. According to accounts from the interior, forwarded to Captain Haynes there have been about 60 killed, and from 80 to 90 wounded, a great many severely. According to a prisoner's account of the attack, he says all fell around him so that there was no person to carry him away, as they invariably carry off the wounded. It appears on the whole, that the Arabs would accept the terms now formerly refused by them, as they find there is no chance of regaining the place.

The Constance schooner, Lieut. Young, arrived at Aden on the 7th July, and the Zenobia steamer sailed the same night with the mails brought up by the Constance from Bombay.

P. S. The Ino is at present in Kedgerie, waiting for a pilot. It is a great pity that ships should be detained for want of pilots, as it is well known they pay high for their services."

SAHIB GHOREPARAY.—On the 2d of July His Excellency the Commander-in-chief, in the presence of the Brigade, invested Dajee Sahib Ghoreparay, the famous Rasauldar of the Poonah Auxiliary Horse, with a gold medal. This meritorious individual has distinguished himself with much gallantry and bravery on several occasions. He shone conspicuously in the late campaign beyond the Indus, and is well worthy of the distinction which has been conferred on him.

PUBLIC GUARDS.—Orders have been issued by His Excellency the Commander-in-chief, that hereafter European soldiers are not to occupy any public squares, and that while locked without stocks be sent by magistrates to gaol for their duty. At the Presidency however, it appears to be considered inadvisable that the treasury and police guards should be furnished by European troops.

LEUTENANT GIBBARD CASE.—The bill against Lieutenant Gibbard for murder in the Sawyer was yesterday, was, on the 14th of July, thrown out by the Grand Jury.

JUDICIAL CHANGES.—A story is going round the native press relative to some changes shortly about to take place amongst our law authorities. The Times states, that Sir John Amdry, our respected Chief Justice, is soon to relinquish his present high situation, and return to his native country, whilst his seat is to be occupied by Sir H. Roper, and Mr. Graham, formerly of the Bombay bar, is to be erected into a Palena Judge.

THE WEATHER.—Rutnaghar.—In most parts of this collectorate the rain was rather deficient from the 15th up to the 19th of last month, owing to which the transplantation of rice and other agricultural operations were at a stand; in the Severndrooz Petta, and the Sonba division of the Unjwul Talooka, however, the fall was more favorable, and in those portions of the Zillah the Ryots were proceeding without interruption in the preparation and cultivation of their fields.

Tannah.—The Acting Collector of this Zillah reports that there was very little rain in the districts forming his charge from the 25th to the 28th, and that the people were beginning to apprehend damage to the crops if not soon refreshed by a seasonable fall.

Candlish.—In this Province there was with some trifling exceptions, a total cessation of rain during the week ending the 28th of last month, but this was hailed as a favorable state of things, as it enabled the cultivators to take advantage of the previous plentiful fall and busy themselves in sowing the toor or early crops, and preparing the ground for the kureel or latter seed.

Nuggur.—A general fall of rain was anxiously looked for in this collectorate, in which very little fell during the last week of the past month.

Poonah.—The rain was also scanty in this portion of the Deccan between the 19th and 28th, and the want of it was more severely felt in the Indapur Pargannah than elsewhere. The acting collector added, that as yet the cultivation of this Zillah had not become general.

Sholapur.—In some of the districts of this eastern collectorate there was little or no rain during the fortnight ending the 28th ultimo; in consequence of which sowings were either not yet commenced or suspended; in other districts, however, where there had been moderate showers, sowing was in progress, though not actively, at the date of the acting collector's last report.

Ahmednabad.—The report from this collectorate states that there was little or no rain in any part of it during the week ending the 30th of last month.

Kaira.—The greater part of the week preceding the 26th passed off without rain in the vicinity of the town of Kaira; but on the morning of the 27th

There were light showers, and in the evening there was heavy rain which lasted for two hours. The accounts from the surrounding area of the state of the weather, and in the evening this state of the weather, it was stated, was favourable, and enabled the fishing parties to make operations for which they required a little fair weather. The cloudy appearance of the sky at the time the collector wrote, indicated that there would be a speedy fall of rain, and he stated that up to the 27th of last month the cultivation had extended to 35,000 hectares.

Surat.—The principal collector of this district reports that reasonable supplies of rain fell throughout the district under his charge during the week ending the 20th, and that the sowing of every description of crop was proceeding favourably.

Brach.—Throughout this sub-collectorate also there had been several heavy showers during the same period, and husbandry was in full progress every where, except along the course of the Kim river, where it was somewhat retarded in consequence of that river having overflowed its banks, and inundated the lands bordering it.

KANAR VARSUR, TINDALL AND PARK.—On the 9th of July, the case of Mr. Kane, a Cadet in the R. C. Service came on before the Supreme Court, Sir H. RORRER on the bench, Mr. Cochrane counsel for the prosecutor, and Mr. Howard for the defendant. Mr. Kane was a passenger, with other young gentlemen on board the Earl of Durham, commanded by Captain Tindall, and while the ship was approaching its destination, the following circumstances occurred, which gave rise to this prosecution. It appears from the evidence adduced, that one evening, while the cadets were at dinner, one of them ordered the caddy servant to remove from his plate some pork, upon which he then felt no peculiar inclination to exercise the muscular region of his mouth. The lad, as the counsel said, impressed with the notion, that fingers were made before forks, grasped the superabundant morsel in his delicate digits, and projected it to some distance from the caddy room. The captain, who was on the poop, was somewhat nettled at seeing his pork flying about, and finishing that it was owing to the young gentleman below, immediately without taking the least pains to enquire into the circumstances, and to ascertain who was the offending party, bawled out a very coarse threat which we need not repeat, further than that the worst form of address used to the parties involved at, was "chutty," and the mildest treatment announced, was that of breaking their heads. Mr. Kane being most severely hurt in his feelings, by the offensive and highly irritating expressions of Capt. Tindall, immediately went out to remonstrate with him, and to request an explanation. No explanation could, however, be given, and he was only met by repetition of blasphemous execration. In the meantime, the other gentleman had come up, and the capt. ordered one of them, Mr. Young, to go to his cabin. He accordingly went, followed by the first and second mates. When the latter returned, the first mate exclaimed in a triumphant sort of manner to the captain—"well, who's next, I suppose it must be Mr. Kane," or words to that effect. Mr. Kane (to the mate, Sir, you had better not attempt to interfere with me. Captain Tindall—Don't you talk that way to my officer, Mr. Kane.—Then tell your officer not to interfere with me. "Take him away—take him away,"—exclaims the captain, and immediately the first mate, Mr. Park, sprang upon the young lad who clung by his arms to the railing round the front of the poop, and he was immediately seconded by the boatswain and the carpenter, who had been called after for the purpose, and then by the captain himself, who clutched the arms of the young man, and succeeded in wrenching them from the railing, and wrenched them from the railing, and in the midst of this most unmanly and unjustifiable assault, Mr. Kane managed to release one arm, and threw it at the captain's head, but the blow on the face, he was, however, soon laid on his back, his legs were bent from the front of some one, while he was in this totally defenceless position, with his arms and feet fast held by others, the captain, we must say, struck him three times heavily on the face, in a most unfair and un-English manner, and blackened one of his eyes. He was then dragged down the companion ladder and thrown into his cabin, where he was kept as a prisoner for fifteen days. The evidence produced was perfectly conclusive against the defendants, though it did not appear that the captain who is a young man, acted through considerable irritation, and appeared to be somewhat incensed against the young gentlemen for their manner and gaffety, and some jest and jokes which might have been cracked at his expense. But nothing was produced, in the least extenuative of the coarse and obscene swearing, which he had used towards them, and the violent conduct both of the captain and the mate towards Mr. Kane, the seeking and dragging him from the poop to his cabin, could not be justified or explained away in any shape whatever. Mr. Howard, in his defence, wrought to show how any man, even the landlord of an hotel would be vexed by seeing his pork flung about, and spoke about the captain's anxiety to preserve order in his vessel, as being stimulated and goaded into passion by what he took to be the disrespectful and insulting conduct of the young gentleman.

The jury after consulting about an hour, returned with a verdict of guilty of assault and imprisonment, against both defendants, accompanied with a recommendation for mercy. The sentence of the Court was, that Captain Tindall should pay a fine of 400 Rupees, and that Mr. Park should be imprisoned for one week, and pay a fine of 50 Rupees.

AHMEDABAD.—Letters from Ahmedabad, dated 8th July we learn that in the Kaira Collectorate almost all the highway and gang robberies have been put a stop to. Lieut. Fulljames with 500 men, whose headquarters are at Ahmedabad, had been doing yeoman's service amongst the lawless bands in the adjoining country. This force is divided into parties of 300 men for duty in the Ahmedabad Collectorate, and 250 for that of Kaira; 50 being left with the Political Agent in the Mhyee Coats. The Ahmedabad men have charge of the gates of the city, and of the town of Yeeragam. They are described as a fine rough and ready set of fellows, equipped with a blue coat or angries, with a pugna of the same colour, and wear round their waists black leather belts. They are armed with a fuzil and sword. This service imposes pretty severe duty on the officers.

MURDERERS OF CAPTAIN WHIFFEN.—The Supreme Court was occupied the whole of the 17th of July, till about 11 o'clock P. M., in the trial of the murderers of Captain Whiffen of the Barque Virginia. Six were found guilty and remanded for execution. They underwent the sentence two days afterwards.

H. M. GRAY.—The five Companies of the 16th Foot embarked for Aden on the 21st of July, on board the Hon'ble Company's Steamer Frigate Sesquiped and Lojfee Family, hired transport, after a march almost unparalleled for extreme exposure and privation in the road from Poonah, and more particularly in the boats from Panwell. The men acknowledge their extreme gratitude to Jamssetjee Jeejeebhoy, Esquire, for two days shelter he afforded them by his munificent Establishment at Khandalla, which enabled them to dry their saturated clothes and prepare for the severe march of the following day. The good fortune of the detachment in this trying march has been remarkable, as by the good arrangements of the different authorities, and those on the road, the cases of sickness are very few in number and slight in their nature.

Ceylon.

CHOLERA.—Cholera still prevails to a very great extent in Ceylon.

HYDROPHOBIA.—Hydrophobia has been prevailing to an extent about Panara. Eight individuals in the same family were bitten by a mad dog on the 31st of June; and a rabid cut on the 8th instant hit 17 persons. In the latter case the 17 persons of different houses were bitten in endeavouring each to catch the cut, which was very handsome, as it appeared at their several residences, none of them suspecting it to be mad until the last, who, on being bitten, killed it.

Burmah.

Letters from Rangoon to the 15th of June, state, that there was a report prevalent, that at Shony-uee symphony of another rebellion are exhibited, by the holding of a white flag; and this report is strengthened by troops, which were about to depart to the capital, being detained, and more so by the Mayo-won declining to comply with a requisition of the Court for 500 men.

There were rumours, likewise, of "systematic torture and executions" being prevalent at the capital.

MAURITIA.—The following news, which has been received from Madagascari during the week, we give, arranged according to date.

June 10.—The reports from Amarapoora are, that the new palace has been completed, and that the king, previously to taking his seat on the throne, caused his brother, the deposed monarch, to precede him, and then to transfer the throne to him in a formal manner. His Majesty is said to have been advised to this measure by his daughter. This princess is reported to be a great astrologer, and told her father, on the present occasion, that, unless this formal transfer were made, his reign would be very short.

It is said that some circumstances have occurred, which seem to implicate the deposed king in the insurrection, which has not yet been put down by the royal troops.

There is a spirit of disloyalty spreading abroad, and the Shan tributary states are especially infected with it.

A boat had arrived from the capital in ten days, bringing accounts that the following persons had been executed:—the old queen, (wife of the deposed king) her brother, Meng-tha-ryee, and his daughter, and three other women. Besides these, seventeen officers of the old king had been executed, and a great many others of rank were in confinement, awaiting a similar fate. All these persons were suspected, or proved to be implicated in the designs of the insurrectionists.

According to Burmese custom, the late Queen was trampled to death by an elephant. The whole number of executions that have occurred in consequence of the insurrection, are reported to be about ninety.

Of the rebel forces and their movements accounts are various, and of course none can be depended on. Some say the insurgents are dispersed; others, that their condition is unbroken, and that they are not far from the capital.

The King and Court, it is said, have their suspicions very strongly excited that the English are the instigators and encouragers of this outbreak. This circumstance seems to be corroborated by the fact that all the Post-Office packets and letters which were sent to Rangoon by the Schooner Wagon from this place, a few days ago, contrary to the usual practice, were put into the hands of the Mayo-won, and an application being made for them, he replied that he should consult with the Ye-won on the subject. After a detention of two or three days the letters were delivered up, and there is no evidence that the seals had been broken.

June 17.—A report prevails in the town, that the King of Ava has put the finishing stroke to his usurpation of the throne, by causing the death of his brother, the late occupant. It is not stated how the death of the late King was brought about, but he is said to have died in imprisonment, either from grief at the destruction of his queen and her family, or from actual ill-treatment or perhaps torture inflicted on him under the supposition of his being personally connected with the present rebellious disturbances in the north of Ava. Whatever may have been the cause of his death the treatment of the body, as reported here, is curious. It is said to have been placed in a kind of large blacksmith's forge, and with the bellows playing upon it, there consumed to ashes, and these afterwards dispersed.

June 24.—It is now doubted, whether the late king has been put to death, though there is no doubt of his queen, her brother and a large number of persons of rank, male and female, having suffered. It is now affirmed that the rebels are dispersed, and that the royal troops sent out to meet them could find none, much in the same manner as the rebels in the neighbourhood of Rangoon, two years ago, came to an unaccountable end, without a single soul ever having been discovered with arms in his hands.

One report states that the Burmese have discovered the whole affair to be nothing more than the execution of a band of dacoits sent by the English to molest them.

On the other hand again, we have heard it actually asserted, that the rebels are fast gaining ground, nay that the King and Court have fled the capital and taken refuge in Toung-yogoo.

The Report seems to gain ground that the late Wagon-dock of Rangoon is to return to that place with higher honours and more court favour than ever. It is also said that the old Biling man is to be relieved at last, not for any particular cause, but as part of a general relief of all Governors of towns throughout the kingdom.

The following are the most interesting items that have been received from Burmah during the week.

THE TRISTIA.—The Schooner Thistle captained by a squall at Rangoon just as she was prepared for being hauled ashore to undergo some slight repairs. Hopes were entertained of her being recovered.

LOSS OF THE SCHOONER SYLPH.—Some of the crew of the Schooner Sylph, which was bound for Tavoy to Rangoon, came over from Martaban, and reported the loss of that vessel in the Syang river.

THE REBELLION.—Reports of all kinds are as usual current, some tending to the dispersion and destruction of the rebels, some to the almost desperation of the royal cause prevail. The former seem to be the more generally credited. There is a man who used formerly to cut a figure on the Assam frontiers, of the name of Duffa-Gann, and who would seem to be now playing a conspicuous part in the present commotion. Indeed, if one might credit the stories that have reached this place regarding him, he may be considered quite a King-making Earl of Warwick, as victory must decide for the party he espouses. Unfortunately for his fame, however, they have it here, that being sent out with 5,000 of his own men (a few of his mole or less are nothing with a Borman,

We should doubt if this Dutch-Gaun could muster 50 of his own men, to meet and destroy the rebels, one half of his force joined the enemy, and Mr. Duff-Gaun came back without having seen any of the rebels, notwithstanding the diligence of his search.

Sumatra.

THE ACHINES AND THE DUTCH.—The Brig Norfolk, has brought intelligence that the Achines and the Dutch were at open war with each other. The conflict was very sanguinary, and the issue extremely doubtful, as the natives were fighting with determined spirit. The Naval force of the Dutch consists of two frigates, five schooners, two transports, a steamer, and a steam tug—in all fourteen vessels. At the time of the Norfolk's departure reinforcements of troops had arrived from Holland and Batavia, and the transports were busily at work importing ammunition and provisions from the latter place.

Penang.

TUANKU MAHOMED SAAD.—The three gun-boats returned from Bagras Tiag, accompanied by this pirate and the prahus formerly mentioned by us. It appears that on Captain Steward's communicating to him the peremptory orders with which he was charged, and insisting on his giving himself up unconditionally, he enquired whether it was the intention of the British Government to deliver him over to his enemies, the Siamese, at Queda; but on being assured that such would not be the case he consented to sail hither in company with the gun-boats, but not to be towed, as he said that circumstance would entail shame upon him in the opinion of his countrymen. The guns of his prahu, which were found to be well loaded with grape and musket balls, were then ordered to be fired off, and the small arms and ammunition removed into the Diamond, after which the whole weighed anchor and steered for this island. The Tuanku was brought on shore a few minutes after his arrival and conveyed as a prisoner to the Fort, we understand, he is to continue until the next Admiralty Session. Tuanku Mahomed Salawee has since been released, but remains with another younger brother named Tuanku Mahomed Talib, and the crews of the prahus, under the vigilance of the Police.

Singapore.

Singapore papers to the 18th of June have been received during the week.

On the forenoon of the 10th of June, Rear Admiral the Hon'ble G. Elliot, arrived at Singapore in the Melpville, accompanied by the Pylades and Blonde, and was to have started again on the 18th for China. Almost immediately after the Admiral had reached Singapore, the Blonde pursued and captured a Chinese junk, that had got under weigh and was proceeding on her homeward voyage, and this proceeding was succeeded by the seizure of three more junks that were lying in the roads at the time. These operations filled the Chinese residents of Singapore with great consternation, many of them being the owners of the cargo on board of the junks; and although the junks were released again on the 17th, in consequence, as it appears, of the Chinese having received an assurance of protection from the local authorities, yet the alarm created by the seizure had not entirely been allayed; and as soon as a report of the circumstance reached Penang, the Chinese passengers and shippers of goods on board of the Portuguese brig Semplicea, which was proceeding to Macao, became alarmed and proposed to her commander, either to purchase their shipments at a discount, paying for the goods to their friends in China, or to re-land the whole with a forfeiture of half freight. The explanation afforded by the Singapore Free Press, however, had induced them to let their annual remittances proceed as originally intended.

The Governor-General of Netherlands India, Lt.

General De Borens, expired on the evening of the 30th of May, at Batavia. He is succeeded, pro tempore, by Count Van Hogendorp. We have copied a brief account of the life and services of the deceased General, in another part of our paper.

China.

China news to the 5th of June brought by the Harlequin, reached us yesterday. We subjoin the only news of importance they contain:—

CHINA.—By the arrival of the American Ship Albat since our last from Macao the 24th ultimo, we have received the Canton Press of 30th May, and private letters to the 5th June. The extracts we give from the Press contain the account of an attack of a number of piratical junks on the Hellas, on the coast near Namoch, in which the crew of that vessel suffered severely. Two of the European crew of the Hellas have since died of their wounds, but the commander and the others who suffered were doing well. The vigilance of the mandarins, and the attacks to which vessels were liable from the piratical junks, had combined to render the Opium trade on the coast of increased risk and difficulty, and reduced the price very low. According to last accounts from Canton, scarcely any Teas were procurable there, and there seemed no prospect of the exports for Great Britain exceeding for the season 20 million lbs. The exports of the silk are stated at 1,573 bales, but would probably reach 2,500 or 3,000 bales. Such of the Teas as had been unable to find direct tonnage for England, had been transhipped for Singapore, and the Spanish Brig Patriota, Dutch Brig Tartar, and American Ship Lintin had already sailed with Teas for this port; but being all foreign vessels, and to avoid any question that might arise as to the admissibility for home consumption of the Teas conveyed here on board of them, under the existing state of the law, already brought to the notice of our readers in a former number, they will all tranship their Teas at the neighbouring port of Rhio. It was expected these vessels would be shortly followed by the Ardaceer, also with a cargo of Teas.

The letters received by this opportunity, report also the death of Lord John Churchill, at Macao, on the 24 ultimo, from an attack of Dysentery. Every thing still continued quiet at Macao. The latest intelligence in China from England was to 4th February, by the Overland mail.

Since writing the above we have been requested to insert the following two accounts of the attack on the Hellas extracted from a letter from China:—

On the 22d of May, the Hellas, Capt. Jaucoy, was becalmed not far from the Brothers, to the northward of Nam, in company with eight junks and three large pulling boats, to all appearance trading vessels, and no particular notice was taken of them on board until their moving nearer to the Hellas roused the suspicions of the Commander, who gave orders to clear for action. Before everything could be got in perfect readiness the junks had approached the vessel right astern, and immediately opened a smart fire of musketry upon her, which the Hellas could only answer with a similar fire, the calm preventing her to bring her guns to bear, besides which she had got entangled between the fishing stakes, which rendered motion without the aid of wind altogether impossible. The fire from the Hellas proved ineffective, the junks being well defended with mattresses and mats, from behind which their crews fired with great steadiness, taking such good aim, that they generally wounded whoever for a moment exposed himself to their fire. The Chinese besides made use of hand-grenades by means of which the vessel was fired several times, but the flames were fortunately extinguished before they could communicate to the rigging or sails. At length a breeze sprung up which enabled the Hellas to make use of her guns and after having done considerable damage to the junks and ketch, it is supposed, a great number of pirates, these after a flight of four hours, shivered off. A crew of fifty the Hellas had all the Lucy was, fifty in number, and ten lamara more or less severely wounded, and we are sorry to report that Captain Jamney was of all most badly wounded, having besides several fleshwounds in the legs and other parts of the body, been struck by a ball on the chin, which broke his jawbone, and also received a dangerous wound in the eye, the wounds are not however considered dangerous, and we are happy to hear that he is doing well. From all accounts the Officers and crew of the Hellas have behaved most gallantly, and an act of bravery by the first Tindal a Malay, deserves particular mention, who, when one of the junks had got foul of the Hellas, jumped on board the junk and clef the head of a fellow whom he saw just taking aim with his matchlock, and then returned a shout again to the vessel. Had the pirates had cannon it is more than probable that in spite of the gallant defence, the Hellas would have been overpowered. After the loss of the vessel had been brought to bear, she again got foul of a junk, when Mr. MacGinnis, the first officer, followed by two sailors, jumped on board, on which all the crew on deck leaped into the water, but one of the pirates fired his matchlock from the hold, and badly wounded a sailor on the head. On trying to reach their junk many were shot, and it is supposed their loss must have been very severe.

* The schooner Hellas has returned from the North East coast having been attacked near China, a little to the east of Narnoh by 9 junks, having the appearance of merchant vessels and supposing to be part of a who severely wounded her commander and several of her crew. The junks anchored near the Hellas at night and their not exhibiting any suspicion, no particular notice was taken of them till they unexpectedly commenced their attack in the morning, when as there was no wind the Hellas was nearly unmanageable, they were however after a short time repulsed.

It seems the coast is swarming with pirates, in consequence of which the merchant junks are afraid to move except in convoy for mutual protection, and Captain Jamney supposed his adventures were a peculiar feat of this description until he was informed by their unexpected attack. Captain Jamney is happily recovering from the injury he received.

* We are without later dates from China than 5th June, when the English were still living quietly at Macao, the Canton market was cleared off, and the Americans were preparing to leave by the end of June. The expedition had not arrived. The last seen of it was off Pulo Sepatan the 13th ultimo. The Chinese had junks at anchor, laden with stones, ready to sink as soon as they heard of approach. Ford John Churchill of H. M. S. Druid, died at Macao, on the 21 ultimo, of dysentery. The schooner Hellas had been attacked by pirates on the coast, and nearly taken, Captain Jamney and all his crew were wounded, two of whom have since died. Opium was quoted at the outer anchorage at 4p Drs. 500 a 400 for Patna 4p Drs. 400 a 500 for Malabar and Bazar at 4p Drs. 300 a 370 nominal, there being scarcely any demand, and it was very difficult to effect on the coast. The market was nearly at a stand.

The following is extracted from a letter from Singapore, dated 13th June —

"On our way here we called at a point where we anchored on the 30th, and found that the proceeds to Malabar were 1500 (1500) and the new at anchor for the Company's ship a beautiful piece of naval architecture. The work is more like a ship's work than that usual in building ships. Her gunboard streak is, at the lower edge 12 inches, and 13 the upper, decreasing one inch per plank up to the beams, and is rabbitted throughout. She is completely planked on one side, and about two-thirds on the other, and has most of her beams in, and a finer mass of timber I never beheld. She does great credit to Mr. Bremner, the builder. She will not be finished for the next four months, but when she is launched, she will prove the finest boat of the sort in India.

The Admiral, after filling up his water casks, &c., sailed yesterday, with the squadron, for China, and directed it up. How soon to follow, with the transports left behind, as soon as possible. The only transport that has not arrived is the Nuruth Shaw. The Faterruz has started to join the Admiral. The Blenheim and Madras are daily expected from England, and it is said that they have troops on board. Another letter on the 21st June, says, — "Unless the opium ships on the coast have succeeded in disposing of their cargoes, we fear great disappointment will be experienced by shippers, as a strict blockade will be employed by the fleet. Persia

The following is an extract of a letter, dated Isfahan, 20th May 1840

"We are now all quiet and comfortable here. The temporary stay of the Shah at Hafidat, has been productive of the most beneficial results to the people of the country, who have fled from the presence of the turbulent and the rebellious, has just commenced tasting the sweets of peace and tranquillity. A census of the population of the city and of its suburbs was taken by order of His Majesty, who ordered a body of his own Suzers to be permanently stationed here for the protection of life and property. Some of the more unnecessary of these troops such as fire-wood, and tobacco, are to be supplied by the inhabitants of the districts, which they are appointed to protect. The Shah has imposed a fine of a pair of muskets or pistols on each of the affluent Peishans of the country. The Armenians and the Jews were pronounced to be exempt from this tax or contribution. His Majesty has graciously expressed a desire to promote the happiness and welfare of these interesting remnants of two of the most ancient nations of the East."

The dak from Bombay has brought several letters from the Persian Gulph, from which we glean one or two items of intelligence. Mahomed Shah was still at Isfahan, to which place he intended to transfer the seat of his government from Teheran. He ordered the royal palace of Hafidat to be thoroughly repaired, and the people were called upon to contribute towards the expenses of the repairs. The consequences of his late expedition to Herat had caused an unexpected strain upon the royal treasury, which he attempted to replenish by extortions from the affluent Mollahs and Merchants of Isfahan. He is represented to be determined on crushing the preponderating sway of the priesthood and to uphold the prerogatives of the crown, on which several of the Mollahs, backed by his faithful latter, had the audacity to encroach. In failure of the expedition to Herat, and the civil wars within the heart of his own dominions, have taught him a salutary lesson, and made him wiser and more vigilant in the management of the affairs of his Government. Now, that he is convinced of the necessity of war he will be disposed to pursue peace, and to cultivate alliance and friendship of the British, in which he was assisted by his own thoughtlessness and short-sightedness at the instigation of the vile and crafty emissaries of the Bear of the North."

STEAM COMMUNICATION WITH ENGLAND.

MR. CURTIS'S PLAN.

The Committee appointed at the Meeting of the 12th March last, publickly for general information, the following correspondence with Mr. Curtis. Mr. Curtis having replied separately to the several paragraphs, the letters are, for more ready reference, placed in juxtaposition.

To Messrs. Curtis and Larkins, Chairman and Deputy Chairman of the East India Steam Navigation Company.

Gentlemen,—Your letter of the 4th Jan. last, was received in Calcutta on the ultimo. It was addressed to the Committee of the New Steam Fund, and it will rest with that body to reply to a communication, which ought, in so many respects, to have afforded the highest gratification to the Indian Community.

2.—No doubt, it will be acknowledged in that feeling by a body, which we believe to be as deeply impressed as ourselves with the vast obligations you have imposed upon all who desire to see a Comprehensive Scheme of Steam Communication established, and which, we also believe, are equally anxious for the attainment of the great object in view, though they may not altogether concur in the sentiments which have induced us to recede from them.

3.—We do not wish it to be understood that there may not be others in the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund, who participate in our views. If they have not taken the same steps as ourselves, they are, no doubt, influenced by a persuasion that they are more likely to aid the great cause by continuing Members of the Committee.

4.—We shall endeavour to explain, why those steps were taken. On the 5th instant, a meeting of parties who had paid the first instalment, and of others disposed to support the London company on the prospectus received with your letter of the 4th January, was called at the Town Hall.

5.—For the proceedings of that Meeting, we beg to refer you to the Hurkaru newspaper of Thursday the 7th instant, a number of which accompanies this despatch.

6.—The result was the rejection of an amendment proposed by Mr. Greenlaw upon a resolution placed before the Meeting by Mr. W. Phipps, which resolution appeared to us to exhibit a want of confidence in our Committee and an absence of that reliance in our friends at home, which we considered them entitled to expect, and which we also considered necessary, in order that your direction might not be embarrassed in its future operations.

To the Venerable Archdeacon Deatry, H. M. Parker, Esq., D. McFarlan Esq., Major Forbes, Capt. Johnston and Chas. B. Greenlaw, Esq.

Gentlemen,—Your letter to the Deputy Chairman of the East India Steam Navigation Company and myself of the 12th and 14th March, has been duly received, together with the remittances enclosed in it, amounting to £2000, on account of the subscription, and first instalment for 250 shares from sundry persons, who placed their reliance in the Company formed in London, under certain conditions.

21.—Para. 3 to 6.—Your secession from the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund has been learnt with great regret, although the reasons for that step seem sufficient. But we hope, that the majority of the Indian public will not be misled by the adoption of a partial Scheme, which will find few or no supporters in England, and will probably, if persevered in, be the means of protracting the accomplishment of our common object, for a considerable period.

7.—Under these circumstances, and conceiving the power of acting with our friends at home, in the month which we believed to be the most beneficial for this country, to be virtually withdrawn from us by the rejection of Mr. Greenlaw's amendment, we thought it due to ourselves and to you to resign our seats in the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund.

8.—The several reasons which urged us to this step are placed on record, and will be found in the Bengal Hurkaru newspaper of the 10th instant. We repeat that we do not attach the shadow of blame to those who have not thought or acted with us. It is sufficient to ourselves that we have followed the course which we considered our own good faith and our gratitude to you required us to adopt.

9.—Having thus seceded from the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund, we conceived that we could not, under existing circumstances, serve the cause of this country or support your exertions at home more effectually than by calling a public Meeting of the shareholders in the Comprehensive Scheme; is proposed by your prospectus, to manifest their confidence in Mr. Curtis and his Associates, by making an immediate remittance of 20 per cent. on the amount of their respective shares, and the remaining remittances to the extent in the whole of 50 per cent. at the periods required by the Chairman and the Deputy Chairman of the Company in their letter of the 4th January last. We also invited the attendance of all friends to the Comprehensive Scheme who had not yet taken shares.

10.—At this Meeting which was held on Thursday the 12th instant, and for the proceedings of which we beg to refer you to the Bengal Hurkaru of this day's date the following resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The Venerable Archdeacon Deatry, in the Chair.

Proposed by Mr. G. J. Gordon, seconded by Mr. McFarlan, and carried unanimously.

1st.—That words expressing in Mr. Curtis our warmest gratitude for his past exertions and our entire confidence in his care, prudence, and judgment, we point out to him what appears defective in the prospectus, or as a tendency to vitiate its calculations.

Proposed by Mr. H. M. Parker, seconded by Major Forbes and carried unanimously.

2d.—That we express our reliance upon the honour and integrity of the Chairman, and Deputy Chairman and Board of Directors, that if the calculations of the prospectus are in their judgment premissably vitiated by the corrections now made, the project will not be persevered in on its present footing.

Proposed by Captain J. H. Johnston, seconded by Mr. C. B. Greenlaw, and carried unanimously.

3d.—That we make our remittances and place our funds thus frankly in the hands of the Board of Directors in the entire understanding and confidence, that according to previous intentions, the line between Calcutta, Madras, Point de Galle and Suez, shall be completed in the first instance, each vessel being put on that line as she is ready.

* These have been previously published.

Proposed by Captain Harrington, seconded by Colonel Daulap and carried unanimously.

4th.—That we consider it inexpedient to start the Scheme with functionaries receiving high salaries, either in India or in England; but, that the fixed stipends should be on the most moderate scale, and the aggregate emolument of an office should be made to depend in some degree upon the profits of the concern.

Proposed by Colonel McLeod, seconded by Colonel Tables, and carried unanimously.

5th.—That we understand ourselves to be advancing our funds to a Company assured of a Charter.

Proposed by Major Irvine, C. B., seconded by Major Forbes, and carried unanimously.

6th.—That we trust the first steamer will be placed on the line between Calcutta and Suez within eighteen months from the present date.

Proposed by Mr. Newell, seconded by Robert Campbell, and carried unanimously.

7th.—That a committee be appointed, consisting of the following gentlemen: The Venerable the Archbishop, Mr. H. M. Parker, Mr. Greenlaw, Mr. McLean, Major Forbes and Captain Johnston.

Mr. Greenlaw consents to act as Secretary

Proposed by Mr. Greenlaw, seconded by Mr. Wm Forbes Gibbon, and carried unanimously

8th.—That if in the judgment of the Venerable the Archbishop and Mr. Parker, any Resolution shall be passed at the Steam Meeting convened for Saturday next, by the spirit of which the Funds collected under the Resolutions now passed can be remitted to Mr. Curtis by the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund, without prejudice to such Resolutions, the Committee now appointed be authorized to transfer them to the Committee of that fund to be by that Committee remitted to Mr. Curtis.

The thanks of the Meeting were then given to the Venerable the Chairman, and the Meeting dispersed.

Town Hall,
Calcutta, 12 Mar. 1840

I. Dalry
Chairman.

11th.—This morning the Meeting advertised to in the 8th of the above Resolutions, was held at the Town Hall. With out offering any comment on its proceedings of which you will no doubt be duly apprized, we need only observe that they did not appear to call for the transfer of Funds contemplated by the above Resolution. We have, accordingly, acting under the instructions of the Meeting of the 12th instant, made arrangement for remitting by this Mail the amount of £2,000 as per memo below. 5th, being

4th Para. 11. We observe that the Resolution held on the 11th March were ratified by you without to affect your previous determination, and that the remittance made to the London Directors was therefore to be considered as made under those conditions. We observe how ever, a discrepancy as to the number of shares in the paragraph to which we are now replying. You say "old shares 351 and New Shares 50," while at the foot of the letter you say, "old shares 241, new shares 61" and in which letter you say you have remitted £2,000, 20 per cent, on the number of old shares transferred or new ones subscribed for under the above resolutions.

* The total subscribed and taken and nearly paid for as follows:

	1st inst. 20 per cent
Old Shares, 218 Rs.	21,800
New " 61	6,300

but Batta for more than £2,000 could be obtained only. Full particulars will be sent to-morrow, if possible, of the names of the subscribers.

12th.—Having brought our proceedings down to this point, it is our duty to request your particular attention to the Resolutions which we have the honor to communicate, assented that you will be well credit for having introduced some powerful authorities of good faith and gratitude towards yourselves appear to be depressed in your esteem by speaking frankly and in a spirit of unreserved confidence on what occur to us as defects in your Prospectus. We call these observations of an entire person so that you would, as men of business, desire us to do so, and that as men of honor, possessing our integrity and doing you well, if they immediately affect your credit, preserve us from a useless sacrifice. But we make it condition, We rely upon the good sense and integrity of the London Board of Directors, and if our objections, after investigation, which we cannot but will be both careful and conscientious, do not appear valid to those whose interests are identified with our own, we are content that our Funds should at once be appropriated to the promotion of the great object in view.

13th.—We would first refer you to a paper marked A, which communicates Mr. Parson's, whom we have never before permitted to use it in writing, however, that it is only a rough sketch, and we are the more intending a further remittance of £800 by the next packet; your farther advice will probably set this matter to right.

The * former or Old Shares being 350, and the latter or New Shares 50.

5th Para. 12 to 15.—Nothing can be more acceptable to the Directors than a frank expression of opinion, and transmittal of the means of correcting any doubts or errors which unfortunately may pervade the calculations made in respect to the cost or profit of the plan proposed. All the estimates sent with the Prospectus were formed from actual experience as to cost, the returns of course, in a projected concern must be speculative, and in this respect, the calculations of the persons who made them on this side of the water, are quite as likely to be correct as those of Mr. Torton. Leading the details to be dealt with by the accompanying paper No. 3, we merely refer to the number of passengers, as taken by Mr. Torton. The estimate on which he founded his number of 3100 was made in 1833 or a most respect of materials, collected by Mr. Greenlaw himself, and furnished by the public officers during the time of the East India Company's monopoly, can any data be assumed as satisfactory to show that since Indian trade has been thrown open the number of persons going to and coming from India, has not greatly increased?

* Upon a revision, however, of the paragraph in the Prospectus, sent on the 1th instant, it appears that an error had so far crept in, that the number on 2,064 had been stated as that calculated on for ready to avail ourselves of his kindness, as you are aware that he has long and deeply studied the subject of Steam Navigation between Great Britain and India, and also as he is an influential member of a body of gentlemen who are already in communication with Mr. Cairns. We may observe upon this paper, that no charge is made for the important item of Laminage, and that, generally speaking, the assumption of the cost £30 per ton per voyage, of coal, of victualling and transit across the Indian Ocean, appears moderate.

14th.—With respect again to the number of passengers, Mr. Taiton is probably correct in his assumption that if the present number may be taken at 2,500, certainly not more than two-thirds can be expected to avail themselves of the new route, but the calculations do not go forward to the point respecting which all past experience gives us confidence, viz. that when the time becomes completely established the number of passengers will be increased.

*Note 2064 even being Passengers.

the most favorable calculation is now based. Mr. Taiton, moreover, has made no allowance for postage, though we believe credit is given for that item in the Portenur Scheme. It must necessarily be available to the credit of the efficient Steamers which start from Calcutta, and which perhaps he fairly estimated at £10,000 per annum in both ways.

15th. Leaving the calculations we have noticed to that full consideration which we are persuaded they will receive, we will advert to other points, and with us with perfect frankness, in the assurance that we are acting as you would desire.

16th. It has been stated, from the fact of very high authority from England that the salary of Capt. Birnie, as Superintendent of Steam Vessels, is to be fixed at £2,000 per annum, and that each director will receive a salary of £200 per annum. In this country, where gentlemen have been in the habit of devoting their time gratuitously to the furtherance of great public objects, the salaries assigned to the Directors, if correctly stated, appear very large, while that of the Superintendent, though pro-making the whole voyage from Calcutta, &c. to England, whereas the number on which the calculation was founded was in a reality only 1433 as going the whole way; and the balance to make up the number 2064, was for short voyages from Calcutta to Ceylon, Egypt, &c. and from Egypt to England.

I am sorry this error should have existed, it escaped my observation, and I regret it the more as it seems to have afforded grounds for capricious objections, and reasons for the Portenur Scheme being persevered in. You may, however, rely upon it that every care will be taken by the Directors to prevent erroneous calculations being circulated, their object being to lead the public to the support of an honest scheme, and not to "gull" them by putting forth statements which they cannot substantiate.

In the annexed Prospectus which is accompanying this letter, and which is intended to be brought before the Board of Directors for approval, at their next meeting, you will see to many modifications have been introduced—both as to sums, and proceeds of account.

It is impossible for us to guess who the "very high authority from England" was, who promulgated such falsehoods as have reached your ears. The question of compensation, whether to Officers or Directors, has never been agitated, or even thought of by the Board to the moment, and the calculation of £10,000 for London management, was merely taken to swell out the amount of charges that every possible contrivance might be introduced at its greatest height.

bably not more than adequate to the labor and responsibility of a conscientiously matured and in full action seems somewhat excessive for the present, when all is uncertainty and the chances of profit remote.

17th.—In contemplating a scheme of management for this company, fixed salaries for the board of Directors were never thought of; but as wholly unpaid labor is not altogether desirable, it was contemplated to pay a Part of a very few Members, say, five, one gold mohur (£2 sterling) for each day of attendance, with a fine of the same amount for each day of non-attendance. Assuming fifty meetings annually, which would probably be sufficient, such a Board would not cost more than £250 per annum, or with a Secretary and Superintendent of steam vessels, say (at first) on vessels £1,500 per month, the total cost would be rather less than £2,000 per annum for the management, which must necessarily fall on this side of the largest number of Steam vessels.

18th.—It was with reference to the above points that the 4th of the Resolutions of the 12th instant, which we now have the honor to forward to you, was passed, and while on the one hand, we could not but that the suggestion it conveys, will receive your most attentive consideration, on the other, we are fully prepared, in that spirit of confidence which we have endeavored to express, to adopt whatever decision you may arrive at on that subject.

19th.—In conclusion we need scarcely express our assurance, that you will take measures for re-transmitting the amount we may from time to time lay out, if within a reasonable period, say, three months from the receipt of this letter in London, the shares in the East India Steam Navigation Company are not taken up, or arrangements are not in progress for establishing the Steam line between Calcutta and Suva.

We have the honor to remain, Gentlemen,

Calcutta, May 14, 1840

The "very high authority," therefore, who gave himself the trouble to promulgate such a false statement, must have had some sinister purpose in view in trying to sow distrust in India—so far from any extravagance having been indulged in, all the meeting of the Directors have taken place at the Counting House of Mr. Cairns, and no expence has been incurred, save that of stationary and those unavoidable contingencies connected with printing and the first construction of a company. We quite agree in the necessity of avoiding the engagement of "functionaries with high salaries," as named in your 4th Resolution of the 12th March, and you may depend upon our discretion, in all that relates to the economical management of the concern—at the same time we must have efficient persons to serve the Company, who must be duly and fairly rewarded.

20th. We shall attend to this paragraph, though we think, under the circumstances in which we are placed by the proceedings of the Portenur, that three months will scarcely suffice to bring the whole matter to a right issue, unless the effect of the February communications, to which a reply will probably be received in a few days, should be to accelerate our actions.

We hand you a copy of the letter we have written to the United Committee on Steam Navigation, in reply to theirs of the 14th and 16th March.

I have, Sir,
(Sd) T. A. Cairns,
Chairman of the East India Steam Navigation Company.

(True copies.)

C. B. GREENLAW.

The Committee now, with reference to the above correspondence and to the revised Prospectus which appeared on the Calcutta papers of the 1st instant, earnestly urge on the Bengal public to come forward and, by taking Shares in Mr. Curtis' Company, secure the long sought object.

Parties who have taken Shares are requested to forward to the Union Bank the amount required to make up 50 per cent. on their Shares.

By order of the Committee,

C. B. GREENLAW, Secy.

Calcutta, August 3, 1840.

[Hurkaru, August 4, 1840

A meeting of Mr. Curtis' friends took place on Saturday last, in one of the small rooms in the Town Hall, pursuant to a notice inviting the attendance of those who might be disposed to unite for the purpose of supporting Mr. Curtis, and obtaining shareholders for his company; about thirty Gentlemen attended.

The Archdeacon was called to the chair, and said that it was gratifying to find that the friends to Mr. Curtis' proceedings were now united and desirous of aiding him in his endeavours to secure the great object for which we had been so long striving; that it appeared desirable, with a view to bring all operations to a point, that there should be but one Committee, and, therefore, he should recommend that the several parties should unite.

Mr. Greenlaw then stated that, being one of the parties instrumental in calling the meeting, he wished to mention the object in view. It had occurred to Mr. Limond and himself at an interview that had taken place between them, that it would be desirable that some communication should be made to Mr. Curtis by the next mail, demonstrative of the union of purpose which had arisen between the parties who had remitted their subscriptions to him through the United Committee, and those who had done the same through the Committee of which he (Mr. Greenlaw) was Secretary; and it was considered that the better mode would be to obtain signatures to a paper pledging the subscribers to support him, and obtain shareholders in his company, which paper should be sent to him by the mail now about to leave Calcutta. A paper had accordingly been prepared by Mr. Limond and himself, which he would read. It had received the concurrence of Mr. Gordon, who was unable to attend from circumstances which prevented several other friends to Mr. Curtis from attending the meeting, namely the departure of the Rohards to-morrow morning, on which friends of the parties were proceeding to England.

Mr. Parker also, who was prevented from indisposition from attending the meeting, had given the paper his concurrence. Mr. Greenlaw also observed that he had received a note from Colonel McLeod, stating that he had resolved to attend the meeting but was prevented by indispensable business. He then read the paper, which will be found in the authorized notice of the proceedings in our advertising columns.

Some observations were then made as to the course to be pursued with reference to the recommendation of the Venerable Chairman for the attainment of our Committee, in which, after some discussion, in which Mr. McKilligan, Mr. Wm. Prinsep and others took part, the resolution which will be found in the proceedings was come to, to the effect that in the opinion of the meeting it was desirable that, as soon as circumstances would admit, there should be but one Committee in Calcutta in support of Mr. Curtis's measures.

In speaking on this subject Mr. William Prinsep took occasion to defend himself against a charge which had been brought against him of inconsistency. He said that he was delighted to find so many friends to Steam Communication with England assembled for the purpose of carrying out with still stronger union than had existed on a former occasion, the objects that he had had the honor to convey to Mr. Curtis in March last. As the organ of the United Committee then convened, he regretted that there had been any interruption to that unanimity which was then called for, and still more that there should now be a strong party determined not to go with those who felt themselves more than ever united to support Mr. Curtis and his Board, in completing, if possible, the great scheme always had in view by most of the subscribers to Steam Communication with England, under whatever denomination. He thought it necessary to take this opportunity of stating to the meeting, that he had been roundly taxed with inconsistency and want of good faith in still being a member of the Precursor Committee, as well as a large contributor to its scheme, and yet standing forth to second the very proper resolution, moved by Mr. Beattie, and carried by a large majority, at the late meeting of the same United Committee, of which, he had been the organ of communicating to Mr. Curtis the points, to which he considered that the late mail had brought Mr. Curtis' most satisfactory reply. He then read a minute, he had prepared to shew what he considered the views of the Precursors in which he had cordially joined, which had been the resolutions forwarded to Mr. Curtis by the United Committee and how they had been met by Mr. Curtis and his Board. He then pointed out the manner in which the Agents of the Precursor had nullified their expressed good will for united progress in the great scheme, by demanding a clause in the deed of Mr. Curtis' company, never thought of in Calcutta, nor inserted in any of the public resolutions sent home. He regretted much that they should have again so materially interfered with Mr. Curtis' hopes of completing his scheme; but, with the cordial co-operation of Indian subscribers now, he hoped to be about to be communicated to him by a still more united body of them than ever, he trusted that Mr. Curtis and his Board might be able to go before the English public with that fair prospect of success, which the Precursor agents have themselves stated, they would cordially join when once it could be shewn to them, but he considered that it was impossible to suppose, that the English public would support a Comprehensive subscription with the knowledge that the Indian subscribers were afterwards to be permitted to withdraw if they chose, as soon as they got their own line of boats completed, and that it was still more impossible to expect that Mr. Curtis could put forth his scheme, embracing such an incomprehensible comprehensiveness. He concluded by hoping that he had made it clear to the meeting, that by seconding Mr. Beattie's motion he had acted up to the true spirit of and cordial desire to unite both the objects of the Precursor and those of Mr. Curtis, already conveyed in his letter to that gentleman as Secretary in the United Committee, and that in doing so, he had fully shewn his intention of keeping faith with all parties but not with one alone.

We could not obtain a copy of the minute which Mr. Prinsep read, but it detailed so clearly, and so satisfactorily, the principles on which he had all along acted in this matter, and the reasons why he still continued with the Precursor Committee, was found among the records of Mr. Curtis' Company, that we regret we have it not in our power to lay it before our readers. The resolution above referred to having been then put and carried unanimously, thanks were voted to the Chairman and the meeting separated. — Hurkaru, August 10, 1840

EASTERN STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE EASTERN STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

GENTLEMEN,—Your Committee publish for your information and that of the public generally, the following account of the negotiation in London between your agents and Mr. Curtis, the result of which reached Calcutta by the last English mail.

No. 1. Letter G. J. Gordon to the members of the United Steam Navigation Committee, 9th Mar. 1840.

No. 2. Letter W. Prinsep to Mr. Curtis, 14th March, 1840.

No. 3. Letter Cockrell & Co. and Small Colquhoun & Co. to T. E. M. Norton, 4th June, 1840.

No. 4. Letter T. A. Curtis to Cockrell & Co. and Small Colquhoun & Co. 28th May, 1840.

No. 5. Answer thereto, 11th June, 1840.

No. 6. Letter R. M. Stephenson to Cockrell & Co. and Small Colquhoun & Co. 3d June, 1840.

The principles upon which that negotiation was directed to be conducted on our part, are contained in the paragraphs of Mr. Gordon's letter, printed in the annexed schedule No. 1, and in the extracts from the letter of Mr. W. Prinsep also printed in the schedule No. 2, which letter was adopted by a meeting held in the Town Hall here, on the 14th March last.

No. 3, of that schedule is an extract of as much of the letter received from your agents as bears reference to this negotiation, and Nos. 4, 5, and 6, are the papers therein alluded to.

From the perusal of these documents it will be seen, that it was stated in Mr. Gordon's letter:

First.—That unless it should appear to be essential to the success of the plan for establishing monthly packets from India to Suez, that it should be extended so as to include the route from Alexandria to England, it would be wiser to limit our exertions to establishing packets on this side of the Isthmus.

Secondly.—That if it should appear to your agents as well as to Mr. Curtis and his Board of Directors, first, that the assistance required to establish monthly packets on this side could not be reckoned on without including the other side in the undertaking, and, secondly, that the larger amount of assistance required to establish monthly Packets on both sides, could be reckoned on, if the extended project were undertaken, then, and then only, should the Indian subscribers be required to interest themselves in the establishment of the extended line.

The letter of Mr. Prinsep states in express words, that 'it is the deliberate opinion of, we believe we may say, all the subscribers in India,' that their exertions should be confined in completing the connexion between India and Alexandria; and states the grounds on which only, an union with Mr. Curtis of the parties who adopted that letter was to be expected by that gentleman, viz. —

That the line between Suez and Calcutta was to be completed in the first instance, and that the line between Alexandria and London should be left, for the present, out of view.

That letter also expressly cautioned Mr. Curtis, that he must be prepared for a large body of Indian subscribers refusing to embark their capital on the other side of Alexandria, unless it should be found;

1. That subscriptions enough to accomplish what they wanted could not be obtained without enlarging the plan and enough to accomplish the larger plan could be procured if it were started.

2. That a Charter could be obtained if the large plan were adopted, and could not be obtained for the smaller one.

3. That Government assistance would be given in the large plan, and would not be given to the small one.

4. That the quarantine laws would be relaxed in favour of the large plan, and would not be relaxed in favour of the small one.

5. That the entire management of the Indian side should be left to the Directors in Calcutta.

By the terms of the letters of Mr. Gordon and Mr. Prinsep, your agents would have been warranted in breaking off all negotiation, when Mr. Curtis communicated to them the resolution come to by his Board, without any conference with your agents, to abide by their determination to embrace both sides of the Isthmus in their plan.

This was an assumption by the party with whom we had opened a negotiation, of a power to decide, by themselves, a question which we had left to be decided, by the united opinion of them and of those whom we had employed to tie it for us; or it was a declaration by that party that the bringing over to their views, persons who, unless they were so brought over, had no power to unite with them, was of no consequence.

Even if the decision had been left to them, which it was not, it was to say the least of it, an uncourteous treatment of an opinion which was communicated to Mr. Curtis, as 'the deliberate opinion of, it may be said, all the subscribers in India,' to decide against that opinion, without hearing what those who supported it had to say in its favour, and it was an uncourteous treatment of those Indian subscribers who, as Mr. Curtis had been distinctly instructed, formed a very large portion of the whole and who would not, unless certain advantages, which appeared to them very questionable, were made clear to their agents, 'consent to interest themselves, on the double comprehensive plan,' in determining to persevere in that double plan, before they admitted to a conference those who were appointed, on behalf of that large portion of Indian subscribers, to conduct the negotiation.

Your agents, however did not break off the negotiation on this refusal by Mr. Curtis and his Board, to discuss a question which 'we believe we may say all the subscribers in India,' entertained in opinion, directly at variance with that which the resolution laid down as unalterable law, and, believing that the rest of the resolutions come to by that Board, indicated a disposition to acquiesce in the other preliminary points which they were directed to press, to wit, the propriety of completing the Indian line by the other side should be attended to at all, and the entrusting the management of the Indian vessels and concerns to Indian Directors, addressed a letter to Mr. Curtis requesting to be made acquainted with the exact state of his Company, the number of shares taken, the amount of money raised, and to be asked, the measures proposed for getting assistance from Government, by the ordinary means of intimation, and by the extraordinary means of procuring a charter to the company and relaxing the quarantine laws in favour of their vessels, and soliciting a free conference upon these points; intimating that they were ready, if satisfied that Mr. Curtis & Company had a reasonable prospect of accomplishing what is proposed, not only to unite with it as our agents, but, as members of two mercantile houses, (and more eminent ones in the India trade, London does not produce) to take their due share of labour and responsibility in the undertaking.

They qualified this readiness to unite, with a proviso, viz. that some means should be taken to allow that to be an open question, on which all discussion was declined, and on the decision of which no present measure was to be based.

These overtures Mr. Curtis and his Board declined, sending merely, in reply, a resolution that they would not take your agents' letter as the basis of an union with us, which they were not asked to do, and taking no further notice of that letter.

It is not for your Committee to indulge in speculations as to the reasons which induced Mr. Curtis and his Board to adopt a course which at once put a stop to all further negotiation. The reason given in the resolution communicated to your agents on the 3d June, your Committee feel bound to say, they do not think sufficient reason for refusing to allow your agents to ascertain the exact situation of the projected Company, the amount of money which they had actually raised and that which they expected to raise, together with their grounds of expectation, the measures which they had taken, and those which they proposed to take, to get Government assistance in the different ways mentioned, all of which appear to your Committee to be matters on which your agents would require to be fully informed before they could, as honest men, in constant presence, consent to place your fund at the disposal of persons, however respectable, to be employed in any scheme however plausible.

Not so, however, it would appear, think Mr. Curtis and his Board. In their last communication to your agents, they express their confidence, that the meeting without any conference, a part of the modifications of their original plan, which your agents were directed to treat for, and the herein they retained without any conference, of another modification which was submitted to them, would be sufficient to induce your agents at once to transmit the funds they were in possession of, to Mr. Curtis and his Board, and to consider the union of the two bodies as complete.

Your Committee feel bound to state, that your agents would have lost all time to your conference, if, without a rigid inquiry into all those circumstances which they asked for in their last application to Mr. Curtis, they had complied with that request. Your agents represented a body which exists—which has already paid up a sufficient sum to place its own objects in a state of forwardness, as under any circumstances, those objects could at present be, and which has placed the power and means in the hands of its agents to raise, as it may be required, the additional money for completing those objects with the least possible delay. It is not impossible that upon inquiry it might have turned out that the projected Company of Mr. Curtis, had not the means, nor the probable prospect of acquiring the means, of carrying out their extended objects. If your agents, without inquiry, had placed your funds in such hands, and experience had afterwards proved that which is now merely a possible supposition to be an actual fact, would it have been an excuse for them that they had acted not like men of business, entrusted with a large sum of money, for a certain object, but had been carried away by unbounded confidence in Mr. Curtis, and a passionate devotion to the Comprehensive Scheme?

Your Committee have purposely abstained from entering upon the question, so promptly decided by Mr. Curtis and his Board, relative to the propriety of confining our operations to this side of the Isthmus. They have, however, in the history of the present negotiation, and of circumstances which were occurring in Great Britain, during its progress, relative to this very question, proves that some at least of the reasons which were advanced in favour of the lesser plan were not unfounded, and that some at least of the peculiar benefits held forth by the advocates of the larger one as entirely contingent on its establishment, have been obtained without reference to it, and under circumstances which materially lessen the probability of its ever being accomplished.

On the only reason in favor of his extended views put forth by Mr. Curtis in the papers now submitted to you, which is not practically refuted, viz. the impossibility of otherwise getting a sufficient subscription in England to accomplish what is desired, your Committee entirely dissent from him. If India were united, £80,000 raised in England would be sufficient to complete the desired communication between the two countries. It would be difficult to convince your Committee that the mercantile houses in Great Britain connected with India would not undertake, without any appeal to the public, to raise for such an object as the completion of a monthly communication, by means of Steam vessels, between Great Britain and all the ports of India, as much money as our Company undertook to raise, and has found no difficulty in raising in Britain alone for the one Steamer necessary to begin with. It is demonstrable that £80,000 added to what is now subscribed in India, for Steam communication would accomplish all of this great object which is not already done to our hands.

The Peninsular and Oriental Company, a purely private Company, unconcerned with any person who either here or in England, have interested themselves in procuring a communication by means of Steam vessels between the two countries, have obtained a contract with the British Government to convey, for six years, the mails on the line between England and Alexandria, in one Steam vessel, in about what less time than that originally contemplated in the prospectus put forth by Mr. Curtis, and have obtained from Government as great a relaxation of the quarantine laws in favor of the passengers and goods on board their vessels as Mr. Curtis by that prospectus proposed to ask for. In point of fact, all that by the double plan was proposed to be done on the European side of the Isthmus, and which we were told by Mr. Curtis could only be expected to be done by and in favor of the double plan, has been actually accomplished by and in favor of a plan which embraces nothing but the line between Alexandria and England, on which it has got for six years to come, the exclusive benefit of the mail contract, and has established the means of transporting as safely, as quickly, as comfortably, and as often as Mr. Curtis by his prospectus proposed to do, all the correspondence, passengers and goods, which monthly Steam packets can convey between Suez and all the ports of India.

The question of undertaking the double line, is materially different now, when an independent Company is in possession of one-half of it, from what it was when the whole was unoccupied. As a pecuniary speculation, the chance of gain is materially lessened by the presence of such a competitor, while the same inducements which have led many to come forward personally to assist that which they took on as a public cause, would secure them in holding out the hand of fellow-ship to those to whom they feel grateful for having supplied so much of what was desired, and would certainly prevent their encountering any opposition to such persons; with whose pecuniary profits, derived from a source, owing its existence to their skill and energy and fore-sight, and in defence of so much public good, public spirited men would never be satisfied.

Your Committee have in accordance with these sentiments, desired your agents at home to convey to both Mr. Curtis, and the managers of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company their assurance that nothing which promotes, in any way, the improvement of the present means of Steam Communication between India and Great Britain, will meet with opposition from the company which your committee have the honour to represent; that they are ready to co-operate with any company who are as far advanced as themselves in construction, and who have funds at their disposal which they are willing to devote to the improvement of the present defective means of Steam Communication between the two countries, but that your Committee will not part with their funds to any who do not put down an equal amount, and who are not an actually organized body, with whom they may treat, and that they will not entrust the building of their one steam vessel to any who will not satisfy their agents, that thereupon two equally efficient ones shall be carried on as expeditiously, and placed as soon upon the line between Calcutta and Suez, as your Committee feel confident that your Steam vessel will be.

Whether or not Mr. Curtis shall ever form his company,--whether or not any other company shall undertake to establish Steamery on this side the Isthmus, your Steamer will be the first built for plying, and unless your energy shall have awakened other companies into action, will be the first to ply upon a line which is as yet wholly unoccupied, and shall whilst under the control of your Committee, continue to ply there, not opposing, but holding every fresh adventurer in her useful path, until a regular monthly communication shall be completed.

Your Committee only wait for the arrival of the next mail, to call a General Meeting of the subscribers.—Hurkaru, August 13, 1840

MEETING OF THE MEDICAL AND PHYSICAL SOCIETY.

Proceedings of a Meeting of the Medical and Physical Society of Calcutta, held in the Asiatic Society's Apartments, the 1st August 1840.

J. Sawrns, Esq., President, in the Chair.

Members Elected.

The following Gentlemen proposed at the last meeting were elected Members of the Society.

D. Mac Nab, Esq., M. A., Asst-Surgeon Bengal Service.

W. O. Davidson, Esq., Asst. Surgeon Bengal Service.

Member proposed.

J. H. Freeman, Esq., assistant Surgeon Bengal Service, by the Secretaries and Dr. Goodhue.

The following Papers were then read and discussed—on Dracunculæ (Filaria Medinensis) communicated by Mr. Brett.

Mr. Brett states that he has had opportunities of observing the disease from the Dracunculæ, as it prevailed in the valley of the Dhooon, amongst the cultivators of that district, as well as amongst the passengers, and seers of the boat guard, whilst the Regiment was stationed there, and he has also witnessed the further development of the infection since the Regiment returned to the Presidency.

Mr. Brett's experience goes to favor the opinion entertained by other authors, Dr. Moschcow, of Bombay, Dr. Clincham, &c., that the localities in which Dracunculæ prevails are districts, the rocks of which are of the secondary trap series, although he admits the manner in which is requisite in drawing inferences between Geological structure and disease. By means of examination, with a strong magnifying glass, he observed the animal to be formed of small rings, united to each other, by a very fine membrane.

Mr. Brett considers the Dracunculæ to be very similar, if not identical, with the worm found in the eye of the horse. That the animal is injected when coming into the system, gets into the circulating current, through the medium of the digestive organs, and when not target than a minute hair, threads its way, through some capillary pore into the cellular tissue, where it derives its nourishment, and grows, and as it migrates to the surface it increases in size, and excites the plegmonous inflammation usually found previous to its escape from the body. From the period of reception into the system, to that of development, many months elapse, as has been stated by others, and as fully confirmed by the fact that no symptom of the Dracunculæ shewed itself during the first years' confinement of the body guard in the Dacca, and that it was not until the second, and during the following year, that the disease made its appearance.

A Paper—on the use of Opium in Dysentery, by J. Mackinnon, M. D., was then read and discussed.

Dr. Mackinnon speaks highly of the value of Opium in the treatment of this disease, and is desirous of removing the prejudice which exists against its use, and which has been induced by the general condemnation passed upon it by some eminent practitioners. In the earliest stage of Dysentery, Dr. Mackinnon has found Opium to cure the disease and at a more advanced stage, often to be a most useful adjunct to the treatment by depletion, for he does not dispute the propriety of treating acute dysentery, fully established, upon antiphlogistic principles. Still in those cases where blood letting, and its concomitant, have failed to cure the disease, and when the patient is dying from extreme exhaustion, opium he has found to be the sheet anchor, and he illustrates some cases in proof of the value of this treatment.

A letter from Ragh Bahadur Bahadur, forwarding a Medical work entitled Ajor Veda Darpan, was laid before the Meeting.

Rowland on Nephritis presented by the author through Mr. Goodson, was placed upon the table, also the last numbers of the Medical Gazette and Lancet.

Presentations to the Society's Library.

1.—Transactions of the Medico Botanical Society of London.—Part 4 of volume 1.—Presented by the Society.

2.—Madras Journal of Literature and Science,—(No. 26).—Presented by the Madras Literary Society.

3.—A Pamphlet on increasing the depth of soils. By Cuthbert Wm. Johnson, Esq.

4.—Six copies of a Pamphlet containing Observations on the Employment of Salt in Agriculture and Horticulture, with directions for its application, founded on practice. By Cuthbert William Johnson, Esq.

The seven foregoing brochures were presented by G. W. Johnson, Esq. on behalf of his brother the author.

Museum.

1.—Eleven bottles of Sandoway Tobacco seed, and a sample of Sandoway Tobacco.—Presented by Lieut. Thos. Lutter.

2.—Two bottles of Sandoway Tobacco seed,—samples of Black Pepper from Sandoway and Ramree,—of Hemp from Ramree and Akyab,—a small quantity of Sandoway Flax seed,—and two samples of Cotton Blankets made in the Hills, North of Akyab.—Presented by Capt. Bogle, Commissioner at Arracan.

Capt Bogle states that the Black Pepper does not appear to be indigenous to the Province although it is found growing almost in a wild state, and he thinks it might be cultivated to a considerable extent. The plant is found on the sites of deserted gardens, entwined around the stems of tall trees and growing without the least attention being paid to it. The natives adopt the plan of boiling their pepper to preserve it from insects, and the specimen forwarded by Captain Bogle, has been so treated. Captain Bogle sends the specimen of Hemp and cloth in consequence of the highly favourable opinion that had been pronounced on a former sample.

3.—A box containing ten Potatoes grown at Dardjeling from Madras seed, received from Mr. Low.—Presented by Dr. Pearson.

Dr. Pearson mentions that the Potatoes now submitted to the Society far exceed their progenitors in size and goodness, the seed was sown at the latter end of March in ground twice manured, and three times well dug over.

The Potatoes were much admired and Dr. Pearson's polite offer to furnish a further quantity for seed, gladly accepted.

4.—A box of apples from Nepal.—Presented by B. H. Hodgson, Esq., Resident at the Court of Kalmundoon.

5.—A small assortment of English flower seeds.—Presented by Professor Royle, on behalf of the Court of Directors of the India Company, who caused the package to be transmitted by the Overland Mail.

The packet arrived in excellent order, Dr. Royle acknowledges the receipt of the Affghanistan seeds that had been forwarded to him by the Secretary, and promises a further despatch of English seeds for the approaching cold weather season.

6.—A maund of flax seed produced in Bengal, from English seed.—Presented by the Trustees of the London Flax Company.

7.—A small quantity of Cotton seed produced at Indigelee from Seychelles seed, and a minute sample of Cotton of the second year's growth, grown at Indigelee from Seychelles seed.—Presented by Dr. Alexander Smith, Civil Surgeon.

Dr. Smith mentions that the Natives at Indigelee are now very anxious to get foreign cotton seed, having observed how much more productive and better the staple is than that obtained from indigenous varieties.

8.—Specimens of Egyptian, Sea Island and Upland Georgia Cotton, raised at Delhi from acclimated seed of the fourth generation, a sample of Nankeen Cotton, as also raised at Delhi from acclimated seed of the third generation—and specimens of Egyptian, Sea Island, and Nankeen Cotton, raised in 1839 at Deyrah Dhoon.—Presented by G. H. Smith, Esq., Collector at Delhi.

Mr Smith mentions that the specimens of cotton from the Dhoon, have been produced from a portion of the same seed which produced those raised at Delhi,—and he is anxious to learn whether they are considered superior or inferior to the other samples. The whole was referred to the Cotton Committee for report.

9.—Samples of Hazarah Wheat.—Presented by ditto.

10.—A specimen of the Bread Fruit of the Andamans and Nicobars, (Pandanus Mollon) brought from the Maldives by Captain Denny of the brig Nine.—Presented by John Allan, Esq.

11.—Cobs of Maize, each containing from 608 to 720 grains of corn grown at Allypore.—Presented by D W. H. Speed, Esq.

12.—Four samples of undried and one of dried Sugar manufactured from native cane goor at Seebpore Factory belonging to Messrs. Ferguson and Co.—Presented by A. Morony, Esq. on behalf of Messrs. Ferguson and Co.

These samples were justly esteemed for the excellence of their grain and quality generally.

13.—Samples of hemp, cloth, fibre, cord and seed, from Nepal.—Presented by Dr. Wallich on behalf of H. D. Hodgson, Esq., Resident at Katmandhoo.

Mr. Hodgson states, that the cultivation is peculiar to the Northern districts of Nepal, but only, as he suspects, because the tribes inhabiting them are less scrupulous than the people of the great valley and other central and Southern tracts; for, at least in the valley the plant flourishing greatly, if properly tended, as Mr. Hodgson has proved in his own garden, and the spring crops of the valley are almost choked with spontaneous growth of hemp. Which, however, being uncultivated is stunted and virtuous. The Northern districts (popularly called Cachar) are nevertheless the prime seats of culture, and there alone is the plant manufactured into rope or cloth; though the edible extracts are sometimes prepared nearer to and around Katmandhoo.

The season of sowing Bhang seed in Nepal is from Chyett to Byeack. (a)

Damp soils comprising black earth, the fittest for this crop. Before ploughing the field, sufficient manure is to be sprinkled over it, then completing the work of the plough, the seeds are to be sprinkled, and having broken the clods into dust, the field is to be made even.

At seven or eight days after sowing the seeds the plants come up, but their rapidity of growth and their size and strength depend on the abundance of the rains or artificial watering. If the plants be very thick, they must be thinned, so as to stand three inches distance from each other. They flower and fruit in Sawun: (b) and at the beginning of Bhadoon (c) are in their full growth but while yet succulent and in flower they are to be cut, with exception of some seed plants which are not to be reaped till October. It is the bark of the young but full grown or Sawun plants, which is soft, that is used for making Bhangela. That of the old or October plants is hard and not suitable for manufacture.

After the plants have been cut off at the ground, they must be placed in the sun for 8 or 10 days, or until they be dried sufficiently. They must then be steeped in water for 3 days—and on the fourth day the plants must be taken out of the water and peeled. The peelings are to be washed and put in the sun; and when quite dried they are ready for manipulation. They are then to be torn into thin threads by the nails of the hands next twisted with a spinning wheel (Pikuli) and when the threads are thus prepared they are to be boiled with ashes of wood and water in a pot, for four hours and to be washed again for the purpose of whitening. This is the way of preparing Bhangila thread, out of which blankets are woven.

One (d) mana of seed is sufficient for a Ropini of land (e) which produced 10 or 12 loads of bhang. Hemp grows equally well on slopes or flats, and near the tops as well as on the sides of the mountains, if not too low. But a most rich soil is indispensable. The plant attains in a height of 8 to 10 feet and should be cut when the Bour falling and the seed forming.

14.—Specimens of asparagus bean (Dolichos asparagus. Pdl.) from seeds received by the Society from the seed-men at Paris.—Presented by H. Piddington, Esq.

Mr. Piddington mentioned that he had succeeded at length in establishing this useful esculent as a bazat article. That in connection with this subject, he begged to propose as a notice of motion, that the gold or silver medal should be awarded to Messrs. Valmoutin and Andreux of Paris, for having sent out to the Society this valuable asparagus bean.

Proposed by Mr. Deane, seconded by Dr. Wallich.

REPORT OF THE SILK COMMITTEE.

The first report submitted was from the Silk Committee on samples of Raw Silk, which had been submitted for the medals of the Society.

(a) March to April.—see.

(b) July.—ditto

(c) August.—ditto.

(d) Half a kucha seed

(e) 1 of Badshah Bigah,

Two competitors had come forward and the Committee after alluding to the sitting of a former day on the subject of their samples, states, that it is obliged to decline recommending the award in either case, as in one instance the specimen appeared on the showing of the competitor to be an isolated sample and not the average of a larger or a large merchantable quantity; and that on his showing of the cost, it was found acknowledgedly incomplete, inasmuch as he stated that it did not contain several items of charge which would necessarily attend an entire expenditure in the preparation of a large merchantable quantity.

In the case of the other gentleman he was by the decision above given left by the disqualification, a solitary candidate for the prize, and being without a competitor, and the Committee without the means of making, (under a 'legitimate comparison') any comparative examination, there remained no ground in the opinion of the Committee on which it could within the meaning of the General Rules of the Society proceed to an examination and award,—but independently of this difficulty or objection, the Committee observed, also that in this case it was not positively stated or shown that the specimen was an average one of a larger or large merchantable quantity produced by the competition, however much the tenor of his letter in some other respects might interestingly lead to such a supposition.

The Committee observed, that the thanks of the Society are due to both the gentlemen for their detailed information and especially to one of them for the very interesting manner, in which he has explained the merits of his manufacture.

REPORT FROM THE NURSERY.

The Garden Committee desire to state that owing to the irregularity of the usual course of the last cold season the cane nursery was deprived of rain at the early planting and that the rotations in consequence were equally deprived of water except by artificial irrigation. The result has been that the crop is not so forward nor so prolific as it was last year, and the time of distribution cannot be declared positively. At the next month's Meeting the Committee propose to determine finally on the subject.

The Committee desire to notice the favorable appearance of some plants of the Manila hemp tree, (the Abaca or Musa Parviflora) and also the state of the Nepales, the guinea grass field, the black bean cultivation, the mulberry (Morus milticaulis), and other few fruit plants in the nursery of the Society.

INFORMATION SOLICITED REGARDING ASSAM TEA.

The receipt by the Supreme Government of the recent intelligence from the authorities in England, regarding the Assam Tea sent from Calcutta having been incidentally alluded to, the proposition was made by Mr. Leach and seconded by Mr. Gibbon, that an application be made to Government requesting that the Society might be obligingly furnished with any report that may have been received by it on the Teas of Assam sent home in the Marguerite. The same was agreed to unanimously.

PUBLICATION OF INFORMATION REGARDING THE SPREAD OF USEFUL PLANTS.

The Secretary submitted a reply from the Supreme Government to the letter which had been addressed by him on transmitting the recommendation of the Society to have the papers on the spread of useful plants prepared and printed at the expense of Government.

To H. H. SEW, Esq., M. D. Secy.

Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India.

Genl. & Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge the Dep't. Secret's from you, upon the part of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, of valuable papers upon "the spread of useful plants in India," with the copy of a Resolution by which a request is conveyed "that sanction be given to the Society to incur the expense which may be required for the compilation of the papers for the press and the printing thereof," I am directed by the Governor General in Council to express his thanks to the Society for the communication of these papers, which though they embrace less wide a range than might be desired, are most valuable, and in some instances do very great credit to their writers from the well directed zeal and spirit of observation which they display. His Lordship in Council readily sanctions the expense which will be necessary for the publication of such portions of them as the Society may think useful and would only suggest that the proof sheets be submitted to Dr. Wallich and to Dr. O'Shaughnessy, and if time could be allowed also to Dr. Falconer, so that any commentary which may occur to those gentlemen, in illustration of the progress made within the last few years in the interchange of the vegetable productions of India with other countries and more particularly in the improvement and better application within India itself of its own productions may be added.

I have the honor to be Sir your most obedient Servant,

G. A. BURNBY,

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Council Chamber, the 22d July, 1840.

In order to facilitate the wishes of Government as suggested in the above letter it was thought the three gentlemen whose names are referred to, could best fulfil the pleasure of the Government in affording their own illustrations by joining with the Secretary in a Committee and this arrangement was finally decided on.

FLAX MONEY PREMIUM.

The Secretary next submitted the accompanying letter unfavorable to the recommendation of the Society for the sanction of a money premium to the Experimental Flax Company.

To H. H. SEW, Esq., M. D. Secretary, to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

Genl. & Sir,—I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 3d instant, forwarding the Report therein mentioned of a Committee of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society, on the subject of the cultivation of Flax in India, with the recommendation of the Society that premium be given by the Government of 10 000 Rupees upon the production of ten tons of Merchantable Flax, yielding a fair profit in the English market.

2. In reply I am led to state that, after considering the subject with all the attention due to the wishes and suggestions of the Society. His Lordship feels himself unable to submit a proposition to the Government of India, with a view to obtaining authority for the offer of this premium.

3. His Lordship cannot, but regard with interest the public spirited proceedings of the gentlemen, who have come forward to promote the improvement of the cultivation of flax in India but it is only in very rare instances, and with the view of exciting a direct and general competition, that he would attempt by encouragement or bounty to influence the course of Commercial and Agricultural enterprise and he does not feel that the case before him is one which would justify the special interference of the Government.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

G. A. BURNBY,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Fort William, the 29th July, 1840.

INTELLIGENCE REGARDING THE AMERICAN COTTON PLANTS.

Dr. Spry states that he had the pleasure to announce to the Meeting the receipt of a letter from Dr. Royle, dated, India House 4th June, who writes to announce the intelligence of the arrival of ten American Cotton Plants in England, four of whom are destined for Bengal three for Madras and three for Bombay. The Madras and Bombay gentlemen were to sail the following day (June 5th) while those for Bengal were to start overland on the 20th of the month, at all events two of them.

Dr. Royle further mentions that he has been getting some information respecting the difference of soil and climate, must of Cotton cultivated and the various specimens which have been received from India—altogether about 40 or 50 different specimens.

Dr. Royle states that the Planters are much inclined to prefer the Indian Cotton to any other and think that it is susceptible of great and easily effected improvement. They do not care a great deal about soil, at least they say that they will grow cotton, in any soil, if it is deep enough for the plant to take good hold of the ground. After which, that is when it is 2 or 3 feet high, they think the plant quite manageable and may be made to produce anything. They pick the seed, that is, they first select the best plants and the best seeds of these plants, and sow none but what are approved of. They also change their seed and import from Mexico, where the planters say the best seeds are produced and they consider the Georgian Upland short staple and New Orleans Cotton to be a native of Mexico. The plants are kept widely separated even as much as 8 feet. They plough and hoe between the plants regularly so as to keep down weeds, and make the plant shoot with lateral branch by topping. The gathering and they consider the most difficult work, which slaves in the Southern Provinces of America have to perform.

Dr. Royle also mentions that they are bringing to India with them large quantities of seed of all kinds but the three Provinces. Also very light ploughs and saws which they say never ripen the staple. A good mechanist was expected from America in the British Queen when the latter came away. Dr. Royle writes that all the planters seem to prefer the Northern Provinces, 30 deg of latitude, they seem to think essential, but Dr. Royle says he has tried to deceive the in this respect and read them the accounts of the culture in Guzerat, Surat, Malabar and Timbuctoo, Ganganu and Vizagapatnam, in Dr. Wright's excellent paper on the subject. Moisture is decidedly objected to, the climate and soil cannot be too dry after the plant has once taken hold. A little lime is advantageous. The suggestions made by the Agricultural and Horticultural Society, as to the way in which they would be employed, Dr. Royle states they thought very judicious. A few Honduras Cotton seeds came in the latter. They had been presented to Dr. Royle by the Hon. Fox Strangway.

MEMORANDUM ON THE DHODA SUGAR WORKS, AND PROPOSITION OF THE GRANT OF GOLD MEDAL TO MR. BLAKE.

The Secretary next submitted a memorandum (f) which Major Sleeman had been so good as to forward to the Society, which had been made by him on the 27th December 1837, after a visit to the Dhoba Sugar works which he requests may be submitted to the President and Members.

Major Sleeman mentions in his letter which accompanies the memorandum in question that he has been told that the Society had not considered itself called upon to confer any special mark of its approbation on his exhibitions on the ground that Mr. Blake did not grow his own cane. But the introduction of the manufacture upon such a scale as that pursued at Dhoba ten is, Major Sleeman considers, to extend and to improve the cultivation of the cane, by opening distant markets to the produce and, by inducing among the people those who can show them the advantage of growing cane but the best cane to which their soil and climate are adapted and provide them with a ready demand for all of this kind that they can produce.

In this light Major Sleeman feels assured the President and Members of the Society will consider Mr. Blake as a great public benefactor, and excuse his rank in the Society to bring his claims to their particular consideration. It is only by the skill and enterprise of Europeans, by which capital is concentrated in great works and expensive machinery, that we can ever hope to open the markets of the world to the Sugars of India; and as Mr. Blake was the first to venture his fortune, and he ventured his all in the undertaking, Major Sleeman hopes that he may be considered to have merited some special mark of the Society's approbation.

Mr. Barrow in the District of Shahjehanpore in the same manner as Mr. Blake in Burdwan, is extending and improving the cultivation of the cane, and a public benefactor to the people around him, but Major Sleeman says he has not seen his works and he has mentioned Mr. Blake as having been first to show what could be done at the hazard of all he had or could hope to have in the world.

The proposition stands for discussion at the next Meeting.—Hurkaru, August 15, 1840.

COTTON AND MAIZE CULTIVATION IN THE DELHI PROVINCE.

A long and interesting communication was next brought forward which had been transmitted by Mr. Smith, Collector at Delhi, on the subject of the cultivation of Maize and foreign Cottons in India.

Mr. Smith after acknowledging the receipt of the American Maize and Grass seeds which had been forwarded to him by the Secretary, then goes on to remark that he has drawn up rough notes on the cultivation of Maize, a copy of which he forwards (a) to the Society. Mr. Smith says that he shall be glad to receive any suggestions which the experience of others may point out, as he is very anxious that the instructions for the cultivation of this description of grain, the introduction of which he considers likely to be attended with much benefit, should be as correct as possible.

Mr. Smith takes the opportunity of announcing the despatch of various specimens of acclimated seed Cottons which have since arrived and are ordered to be submitted to the Cotton Committee for report.

Mr. Smith submits a statement showing the produce of each sort per pukka beegah of 3,025 square yards, by which it will be observed that the Egyptian and Nankeen Cottons gave by far the largest returns and the Upland Georgian the most scanty. He is inclined however to attribute the deficiency in the crop of the latter to accident, the experiments of previous years having shown that it gives an ordinary occasional, very nearly as heavy a crop as the Egyptian.

It is also of importance, Mr. Smith considers, that he should note the fact, that the Sea Island and Nankeen Cottons were injured by grubs that either the Egyptian or Upland Georgian. This grubs mark the seed of the Cotton when on the point of ripening and injures the Cotton with which it is surrounded, the two former had one half of their produce more or less deteriorated, and the two latter not more than one quarter.

(f) This will appear in the Pamphlet of the Society's proceedings.

(a) This will appear in the monthly pamphlet of the Society's proceedings.

Mr. Smith therefore is inclined to class these Cottons as follows:

- 1st.—Egyptian.
- 2nd.—Upland Georgian.
- 3rd.—Sea Island.
- 4th.—Nankeen.

He places the Nankeen at the bottom of the list, samples of the produce of previous years having been pronounced by competent judges in Calcutta, as utterly worthless. It is however, Mr. Smith believes much prized in this country, and he has heard of a considerable quantity having been sold at Lucknow at the rate of 30 rupees a maund.

As regards the general introduction of the cultivation of any of these Cottons into the Delhi Province, Mr. Smith deprecates of seeing it effected unless Government steps forward and adopts some energetic measures to bring it about.

Seed, especially of the Upland Georgian Cotton, has been distributed in hundreds of Villages situated in the most eligible parts of the country, and instructions have been given to the Assessors as to the best mode of cultivating it, but in no case that he has heard of, have foreign Cottons obtained a secure footing in any village; on the contrary, the cultivation has generally been given up after an imperfect trial of one season.

Mr. Smith encloses copy of some notes (b) regarding the cultivation of Cotton, which he has drawn out on the plan recommended, being that suggested by the experience which he has gained during the period he has directed his attention to the subject.

Europeans have tried the cultivation on an extended scale, but it has been found impossible sufficiently to economize labour so as to make it pay.

The nature of Cotton cultivation, is such as to render it doubtful whether in India, Europeans can with a neat cultivation, compete with natives, from the latter being able to bring a much less expensive description of labour to bear during the tedious process of cultivating, sowing, picking, and cleaning the Cotton, which whilst it costs the native who has his wife and children available, comparatively nothing, subjects the European speculator to a considerable outlay, the latter not being able, as Mr. Smith has remarked before, to economize this description of labour in the same way as the village cultivator.

But little aid can, therefore, be expected from this source, as Mr. Smith is satisfied that no European speculator will ever be able to grow cotton with a profit where he has the cultivation in his own hands.

The only plan which appears to Mr. Smith likely to secure the permanent introduction of foreign cottons into these Provinces is as follows.

Let Government make over on easy terms, the farm of some villages situated in the best cotton districts to a person well acquainted with the cultivation of cotton. Let that person establish a neat cultivation of one or two hundred bheghs of cotton in each village and, by degrees, if he finds the returns good, let him compel his ryots to extend the cultivation over a considerable portion of the minka, he himself exercising a general supervision over the operations of each ryot, and seeing that proper attention is given to the cultivation and picking of the cotton, which he must arrange to take as rent at a certain fixed rate.

By this plan the cultivation of foreign cottons (if really more remunerating in their returns than those indigenous to the country) might, in process of time be generally introduced throughout India, more especially, if Government would, by establishing an agency for the purchase of foreign cotton for a short time, and until a market was created, secure to the grower a certain sale for his produce.

Should these hints be considered worthy of attention by the Society, Mr. Smith will be glad to go into further detail and explain how his plan might be tried with advantage in his own neighbourhood, which is particularly well adapted for an experiment of this nature.

Mr. Smith is satisfied that some descriptions of foreign cotton (especially the Egyptian) might be introduced generally into the Northern Provinces; but it is vain to hope that this will be accomplished, without the aid of Government as the native population are far too poor and deficient in enterprise, steadily to follow up experiments which may subject them to loss.

It is Mr. Smith's intention to continue as he has done for some years, his efforts to bring into more general cultivation those foreign cottons which appear to him suited to this part of India, and which, from their superiority as regards produce and staple, are calculated to supersede the indigenous cottons of those districts—and, as it is of great importance in making the necessary experiments, that the samples of cotton which he has from time to time submit for the examination of the Society, should be cleaned after the most approved method and not have the staple injured by the use of imperfect machinery. Mr. Smith will feel greatly obliged to the Society, if he can be furnished with one of the machines for cleaning cotton which have been sent to the Society, and which they may consider best calculated to clean Egyptian cotton most expeditiously and with the least injury to its staple.

It was not till after the foregoing remarks were penned, that Mr. Smith saw the report which the Society made to Government, at the best mode of carrying into effect the wishes of Government, relative to the improvement of the cotton cultivation of India. Mr. Smith considers that a much better position could be fixed on this Agra, for the American planters between Muttra and Delhi, where cotton cultivation prevails, to a much greater extent, than in the vicinity of Agra.

Should the Society not have finally decided on Agra as a station, Mr. Smith will be glad on hearing from the Society on the subject, in order to enter on a full exposition of his views as to the way in which the services of one of these planters might be made most extensively useful, pointing out, at the same time the station where he should reside. Mr. Smith will be happy himself to do all in his power to insure the success of the experiment, which, with certain modifications which he can point out, he considers well adapted to attain the object which Government and the Society have in view.

In addition to the valuable testimony of the correctness of the views taken by the Society in the formation of its Report, which this practical communication of Mr. Smith's affords a letter from Dr. John Campbell, Resident at Cawnpore, to Dr. Spry was next submitted.

Dr. Campbell writes—"Your Cotton report was admirable, and this was not only my opinion, but that of every unprejudiced practical man that I consulted. But with regard to extending the cultivation of foreign Cottons, or improving our own indigenous ones or introducing the cultivation of them into these provinces, nothing will be done till Government give up lands, or lightly acquired lands, to commence the experiment on 'The bounty system must be acted on here, to give your views and hopes a fair trial.' The prejudices, the poverty of the Zemindars about this will not allow them to enter on any untried cultivation, and so such as I have spoken on the subject, their reply is, "it is to be such a good thing, why does not Government take it up?" Does the Sireat not grow opium? and what good has the Opium done us?" they can just pay their revenue, and hardly support themselves besides, by following the path of their fathers. Any failure in the success of these experiments, (which the servants of Government are doing all to persuade them to undertake) and their Zemendaries may be put up for sale to satisfy the claims of that very Government, which deceived them into uncertain speculations.

(B) There will also appear in the monthly pamphlet.

Is it no excuse to say that the native has himself to blame, for failure must occur only from want of that attention that is paid to Cotton and Hemp cultivation in the Western world. Government knows its native subjects, and ought to change their natures before exciting their extravagant hopes."

On the subject also Mr. McLeod in charge of the Jabulpore District writes to Dr. Spry expressive of his delight that Jabulpore has been selected by the Cotton Committee as one of the ports where one of the American Planters is to be stationed. Mr. McLeod desires to state, how anxious he is to receive some further particulars as to the time at which the establishment will be set to work, and the measures which should be taken in anticipation. Mr. McLeod states that he has got in readiness about thirty begahs of Cotton Land, and hopes to obtain from Saugur in time for the sowing, a supply of the various kinds of acclimated seeds.

ADVANTAGES FOR AGRICULTURISTS IN THE ISLAND CHEDUBA.

An important communication from Captain Bogle the Commissioner of Arracan was next presented.

Captain Bogle desires to offer in the name of the little Branch Society, best thanks for the seeds sent to them. The Caranna Paddy Seed, Captain Bogle states, is now in the ground and from what is said of its productive qualities it certainly would appear to be an object of most importance to encourage its growth in the Province of Arracan, which is so peculiarly favourable to the growth and export of rice. It will therefore have Capt. Bogle's very best attention. The Rice of this Province, at least some kinds is singularly bulky when boiled, Captain Bogle has heard it stated that it is some 25 or 30 pr. Ct. more filling than Bengal, consequently in high favor with the poorer classes of natives.

The Report the Society has sent on the sample of Hemp, has induced Captain Bogle to send two other samples, that from Raturree appears to be remarkably strong—and Captain Bogle thinks the article deserves every encouragement, and would venture to suggest that were the Flax Company to take a grant of waste Land on the Island of Cheduba, say 2000 acres, and import 2 or 300 Bengallee Coolies from Chittagong or Hill Coolies, a very successful experiment might be made. There is plenty of land on Cheduba which they might have for nothing, with the sea at their very doors, and the soil is well adapted to the growth of Hemp, Rice, Sugar Cane, Cotton, &c. The Island is not thickly peopled, there is great variety of soil and situation, the climate very temperate, security of property perfect, and petroleum and wood oil as well as coal, may, it is believed, be procured in some quantity.

Captain Bogle much wishes the attention of speculators could be drawn to Cheduba, as he believes it might be made a little Mauritius. Any body wishing to inspect it might come to Akyab in the Imherst, and would meet with every assistance from Captain Bogle, SANDOWAY TOBACCO,—ITS SOIL AND CULTURE.

Lieutenant Latter, Secretary of the Branch Society of Arracan has favored the Society with an interesting description of the soil and mode of cultivating the Tobacco at Sandoway. No soil whatever ought to be in the soil and the greatest care is taken in having the ground thoroughly cleaned of all stones and extraneous matter.

When the plant has attained the height of six inches it is transplanted, all decayed and injured leaves during the growth of the plant are removed; when the plant has attained its full growth the leaves are pulled off and fastened between slips of bamboo and left in the sun to dry. The plant requires the greatest care in its treatment to insure its goodness.

SALEABILITY OF THE VALLEY OF HERAT.

Major D'Arcy Todd, the British Resident at Herat, in a letter to Dr. Spry expresses a wish to introduce the fruits and vegetables of Europe into the valley of Herat, the climate of which seems admirably adapted for them, and communicates much valuable information on the natural productions of the place.

The winter at Herat is not so severe as that of England, although snow lies on the ground for a few days during the month of December and January, and occasional frost often occurs until early in March. The summer months are much hotter than in England, but cooler than in India, in consequence of a very high wind which blows steadily from the north during the months June, July, August, and September. Little rain falls except in winter and early in spring, the cultivation of the valley being carried on by means of canals from the river, the climate may certainly be considered as a very dry one.

The principal trees in the valley are the elm, the ash, the fir, the plane, the poplar, the willow and the cypress. Of fruit trees there are the pear, apple, quince, peach, apricot, plum, cherry (sour), mulberry (red and white), pomegranate, walnut, liberry, barberry, and fig; the pistachio flourishes in the district immediately north of the valley. Of melons and grapes there are every variety in perfection. The vegetables of Herat are cucumbers, beet, onions, lettuce, brinjall, carrots, turnips, spinach, mule cole and beans, all, except the three first named, of very indifferent quality.

The garden flowers are few in number, the rose, red, white and yellow, the jessamine and a species of lilac, the common red tulip, the narcissus, the blue iris, the pink and marigold, the sun flower and holly hock, and cockscomb, are common, but excepting the nasortian rose. Major Todd has not seen any flowering shrubs in which our English and Indian gardens are so rich. Regarding the wild flowers, Major Todd regrets that he is not competent to afford any useful information. He would merely mention that he has seen the buttercup, dandelion, nettle, cornflower, clove, forget-me not, and poppy, and concludes his interesting sketch by stating that the above may perhaps give some idea of the climate of Herat.

JOINT STOCK COTTON COMPANY.

The Secretary next laid on the table a series of papers which he had received by the Overland Mail from Mr. Howell, one of the Directors of the Joint Stock Cotton Company forming in England, for the purpose of investing capital in the improvement and production of Cotton in India.

For all the above contributions the thanks of the Society were awarded.

DORJELING

TO THE RIGHT HONORABLE GEORGE EARL OF AUCKLAND, G. C. B.

Governor General of India, &c. &c. &c.

MY LORD.—As a Member of the Darjeeling Committee, I am aware of the interest your Lordship takes in its success; and, as certain propositions relative to the roads leading to it, agreed to at the Meeting of yesterday, are to be laid before you this evening, the want of time to submit the following information through a more regular channel, will, I trust, plead as a sufficient excuse for my addressing your Lordship direct on the subject.

In November and December 1838, I directed Captain Warner to survey the Road from Malda to Dinagepore, and the old Road from the Ganges direct to Dinagepore and Titalya and to furnish plans, estimates, &c. of the same. It was only in December 1839, that Captain Warner forwarded the estimates, with various plans connected with this road, direct to the Military Board, in consequence of my absence in Assam; the Board (forgetting that they had approved of my instructions to Captain Warner, and sent him the instruments requisite to carry them into effect,) sent the papers to me, as they had not called for these estimates. As the survey did not accompany them (nor have I yet received it,) I could not submit them to the Board again, until I received an essential document, the papers are therefore lying in my office, and the discussions at the Meeting yesterday having induced me to look them over this morning, I think the following remarks may be useful to your Lordship, in connection with the papers to be submitted to you this evening.

The Ganges has thrown up a large sand bank at Golagaree, so as to prevent the ferry boats from Bogwangolah reaching it, except in the rains; they are, therefore, obliged to go down to Burgutchee, an indigo factory, 4 miles 5 furlongs lower down, where steamers and all sorts of boats can always bring to at any season of the year. The factory is situated on a high and hard bank, which is not likely to be cut away by the river. From this place, therefore, the line of road must be begun, and the distances will be as follow:—

From Berhampore to Bogwangolah M. F. and then crossing the Ganges in Burgutchee, ..	21 0
From Burgutchee to Dinagepore, ..	91 0
	112 0
From Dinagepore to Titalya,	72 1
From Titalya to Kuchinguri, the first bungalow in the Hills, 209
Add from Calcutta to Berhampore,	120

The present dawk route is from Comrah, a little above Bogwangolah, to Malda, crossing the Ganges to Seebunge, and this line of road is 24.5 longer than the one above given, besides, having greater obstacles to contend with, for, in addition to crossing the Ganges common to both, the following rivers will require ferry boats, viz the Seebunge Roony deep and rapid; the Mahanuddy ditto at Malda;—the Jangou at Tindake, the Rungamtee and Potterghatta Nullah, and the Pernabubhab, close to Dinagepore, all of which are too broad to bridge over and 3 or 4 of them will require ferries all the year round.

On the proposed line of road (the same as the one referred to by the Darjeeling Committee, substituting Burgutchee for Nowabgunge) there is not a single river, where bridges might not be easily and cheaply made, using far trees, which are procurable in the neighbourhood for their construction; and which, if well made, will last some time or until it may be deemed advisable to make them puckah. There are but 2 of the nullahs on this line where perhaps it would be advisable to place ferry boats, not because they could not be easily and cheaply bridged, but because the cutcha bridges might obstruct the passage of the large grain boats, during the rains, for there is very considerable traffic in this direction at that time. There was formerly an excellent road the whole way with trees planted on each side for several miles from Dinagepore; it was made by convicts but has not been repaired since 1825-26, in consequence of the dawk line being changed to Malda, and though abandoned as far as repairs go, yet it is still used by the natives, and, during the cold weather, strings of hackeries from 50 to 100 daily pass, carrying grain to the Ganges, and in repairing this road the great wear and tear from this cause should not be forgotten, and probably it would be better and cheaper in the end, to make the bridge puckah. However, at present, I would only make such drains, as intersect the road in bad places, puckah, and from the papers before me, I find 11 at between—

Burgutchee and Dinagepore 11 drains, are required, costing..... Rs.	2,513
and from Dinagepore to Titalya 6 more, costing	1,222

It is not improbable, that some few more may be required, if only to prevent natives cutting the road either to procure water for their lands, or to let it off quickly, exclusive of the drains and ferry boats. I am inclined to think that if 5,000 Rs. are given to Mr. Halkett, the Magistrate of Dinagepore, he might, with the sanction at his disposal, make this good cutcha road, passable for wheeled carriages all the year round; from neglect, there is much jungle on the road, which should be cleared, and which could be easily done, except at Golagaree, Bangahkoury, and Titalya Haut, where it is very heavy, and much infested by tigers.

A part of the road runs through a doubtful jurisdiction, it has been suggested to make this over to the Dinagepore Magistrate, as he could then keep the whole line in repair as well as lay beaters on the road, which may be easily done, as though now but thinly inhabited, it is evident, from the large tanks in every direction, this was not always the case. The whole line of road from Burgutchee to Titalya, runs over (for Bengal) high and undulating ground, not generally inundated during the rains, which renders it easier to construct and keep in repair, any road; and judging from what I saw of the roads in this part of the country, I think the soil very favorable for making them.

2 or 3 ferry boats will be required between Dinagepore and Titalya. The ferry funds are rich and if proper boats were once constructed, the contractors might be forced to keep up similar boats &c. all ferries, instead of the miserable ones they now maintain, and in which it is positively dangerous to cross in at any season.

I have the honor to be, my Lord,
Your Lordship's humble servant,
E. GANSTON, Major Engineer

Barrackpore, 11th July, 1840.

[Copies of the instructions referred to in the letter now published, have been sent to the Committee by Government. These are addressed to Dr Campbell and Mr. Halkett and the Military Board and fully carry out in detail all that is promised, and sanctioned. But they are lengthy documents, and as our columns are already pretty well filled with the letter to the Committee, we think it unnecessary to publish them.]

No. 295.

To H. M. Low, Esq.

Secy. to the Darjeeling Committee.

Sir,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from you of the — requesting from the Government, on the part of the Darjeeling Committee, assistance in printing and circulating, for the information of the public, a description of the route to Darjeeling, and of a second letter of the 11th instant, suggesting measures to the Government for the improvement of that route.

2.—The first point, I am directed to observe, is one of comparatively but little importance. His Lordship in Council would, however, be disposed to defer the publication by authority, of any description of the route to Darjeeling, until the arrangements in progress should be better matured, and is inclined to think that the compilation and distribution of such an itinerary may safely be left to our public journalists and to our professional publishers, to whom, no doubt, the Committee would readily impart any information in its possession.

3.—To your second letter a very attentive consideration has been given by His Lordship in Council, and I am directed to convey to your Committee the acknowledgements of the Government for the intelligence and careful consideration for all interests with which your observations have been made, and your requests brought to notice, and His Lordship in Council has readily and earnestly applied himself to the important task of facilitating the communications between Calcutta and the new station of Darjeeling, as far as this may be done within the limits necessary to all public expenditures, and with the caution with which all new undertakings must be regarded.

4.—His Lordship, in addition to your letter, has had before him an excellent and detailed memorandum upon the present condition of Darjeeling, prepared by you and by Lieutenant Napier, and he is enabled to reply as follows to the several propositions which have been conveyed to him.

5.—Although all reference to the land route between Calcutta and Berhampore is purposely omitted from your letter, it may be satisfactory to your Committee to know that the construction of a dâk bungalow at Kishnagar for the convenience of travellers, will be ordered through the Military Board, and that a portion of the public buildings in the neighbourhood at Berhampore, will be fitted and appropriated to a similar purpose, and that the Executive Engineer of the division will be desired to inspect the road between Calcutta and Berhampore, and to report upon its present condition.

6.—Upon the line which should be preferred for the road between Berhampore and Dinagpore, His Lordship in Council, in addition to the opinions communicated in your letter, has had the advantage of notes by Major Gustin, and of advice from Members of the Military Board, and does not hesitate to sanction the line through Bargatchee in preference to the longer and more difficult road, which has hitherto been in use through Maldah.

7.—His Lordship in Council will look forward to the whole of the road being ultimately metalled, but he will not pledge himself, without further information, upon the time when a work, which may be one of considerable expense and some difficulty, shall be undertaken or completed. He will be satisfied, at least in the first season, with facilities given for a passage over all water courses, with the removal, as far as it may be accomplished of inequalities and obstructions, and with the construction of a clear level road, practicable for every vehicle at all seasons except perhaps in the season of rain, when it would be least required. Information, however, will be called for upon the case with which, throughout the line, materials for more substantial road-making may be collected, and it may possibly be found expedient, in some cases, immediately to apply them.

8.—The road from Berhampore to the Ganges opposite to Bargatchee, is already practicable, or will be made so by an Officer of the department of public works, who will also be directed to survey the Banks of the Ganges near to Bargatchee, and to establish, in communication with the Magistrate, a ferry at the most convenient point, with boats to be constructed as solely to receive cattle and carriages.

9.—The road is reported to be good for 16 miles from Bargatchee, and for the next 20 miles to require new making, and an European overseer will be immediately placed at the disposal of Mr. Halkett for this purpose.

10.—From the end of the 20 miles, the road is already made for 55 miles on to Dinagpore, and for 60 miles to within 12 miles of Titalya—and a second European overseer will be placed at Titalya, who will, also under Mr. Halkett, complete these 12 miles, superintend, (if he can conveniently do so) the construction of the road between Titalya and Siligoree, and open a good communication for hackeries with Dinagpore, to which place, 100 miles from Darjeeling, on the Mahamuddee, water carriage for heavy goods is open for the greater part of the year. A third European overseer will be stationed at Pookharree, in whom will be committed, under Mr. Campbell and Lieutenant Napier, the superintendence of the road down to Siligoree.

11.—His Lordship in Council will not at present sanction expense upon the road through Raneelango to Pookharree; it would give the shorter line, but the rivers (one of them 1300 feet between bank and bank) are difficult to cross, and he will be satisfied for the present with the more circuitous road by Siligoree, and with a convenient ferry at that place.

12.—His Lordship does not apprehend, that Mr. Campbell will find difficulty in overcoming the inconvenience, which might be apprehended in crossing the small strip of land which lies within the territory of the Sikkim Rajah, and the Magistrates of Rungpore and of Purneah will, of course, be required actively to co-operate with Mr. Halkett in the works mainly committed to his charge.

13.—His Lordship in Council will direct that wooden bridges of the largest or other available material be erected over the smaller water-courses with which the road is in many places intersected, and it may, after further experience of soil, and of materials, and of the force of the streams, be considered in what places more substantial, stone or iron bridges may be substituted. He will wish for further information before it can be determined for what tolls, ferries must be established. He is led to believe that between Bargatchee and Siligoree only two streams will require bridges, and that bridges may be erected for all the others.

14.—It is understood that dâk bungalows are already built, or in the course of construction, at the expense of the Committee, half way between Bargatchee and Dinapore, at Dinapore, half way between Dinapore and Titalaya, and at Titalaya. Directions will be given to the Military Board for the building of one on either bank of the Ganges opposite to and at Barga-chee, and five others at intervals onwards to Siligoree, so that there shall not be any where an interval of more than 2½ miles between bungalow and bungalow. It may probably be found convenient presently almost to double this number, and to diminish the intervals by half this distance, but His Lordship in Council would not immediately sanction more extensive works than those which he has enumerated. Apparently but one bungalow is required in the hills beyond those which have been already erected, viz. at some point nearly half way between Mehalderam and Dargachang, and Mr. Campbell will be consulted upon the construction of one in this situation.

13.—His Lordship in Council is much gratified by the interest which has been taken by the public in this line of communication, and must regard with very great satisfaction the works subsidiary to its convenience, which have been undertaken by the Committee, with funds contributed for the purpose. At the same time the establishment of a healthy settlement within a short distance of Calcutta, and accessible to many districts of the Lower Provinces, is an object of so general a national interest, that it must be regarded as deserving the special care of the Government; and whilst he gives his best thanks for the co-operation of the Committee, and begs for a continuance of its assistance, he is willing, in the extent above described, to give it support from the public funds.

16.—It may be matter for future consideration whether a moderate toll should not be levied upon any expensive bridge which may be constructed on this route; but it may reasonably be estimated that the tolls to be levied, at the accustomed rate at the ferries, and the fee payable by travellers resorting to the bungalows, will, if not sufficient to give a full return for the money expended, yet afford funds for the maintenance and improvement of such establishments. His Lordship in Council sees no reason why all the more essential of these works should not be completed before the month of March next.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

H. TORRES,

Offg. Secy to the Govt. of India.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTION.

The Third General Half Yearly Meeting of the members of the Mechanics' Institution took place last Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock in the premises No. 6, Tank-Square.

Dr. F. Corbyn Vice President in the Chair.

The chairman expressed his regret that the President Sir John Peter Grant did not attend, he being absent from Calcutta, it was raining to him he said of being present at the Third Half-Yearly Meeting of the Institution, the Secretary, he added, will read the Report for the last half year.

The Secretary read the Report which shewed that the subscription for the current year, already received, amount to Co.'s Rs. 855.

The expenditure during the last half year has been heavier than any former corresponding period: the total amount being Co.'s Rs. 2,453-11-7.

Disbursements for lectures 100 rupees per month, Secretary 50, and rent 60 rupees per month, annual total expenditure inclusive of sundries 2,520. Of the total number of subscribers whose subscriptions closed at the first year so far as the Committee has been enabled to ascertain up to the present period viz. 56, 29 only resident in Calcutta, have voluntarily withdrawn from the Institution; of the remaining portion 17 have left India or retired to the moribund, and 10 have been removed by death.

The donations received were, from Mr. Clint a copy of Rock Algebra, from the author, Speeder's Indian Hand Book of Gardening.

From Mr. F. N. DeGarmo, a specimen of iron ore from the Island of Meigue.

A model of the paddle wheel of the H. C. Steamer Enterprise on a scale of half an inch to the foot.

An experimental model of a paddle wheel for illustrating the advantage of the dogwood paddle wheel over those of the ordinary construction on the same scale as the preceding. From Mr. James Dennis, boatwain of the ship Zenobia, a piece of the Royal George after sixty years immersion in salt water.

Bahon Bolachand Bysack 5 rupees.

A new building is to be erected in 13 Government Place in the premises occupied by Mr. Watson, which will cost the Committee 2,116-10-9. The premises have been taken at a monthly rent of 50 rupees on a lease of 6 years; Mr. Voe, Architect, has undertaken to build it; it is now in progress and will be ready by the latter end or the beginning of the next month. It is to have, a lecture Hall which will be capable of accommodating 280 persons, and three smaller rooms which will be fitted up for the use of the classes, the reception of the books, apparatus and models.

Mr. Andersen, the lecturer and teacher, having tendered his resignation, it was deemed expedient to separate the two duties. Mr. C. J. Montague, head master of the Parental Academy, has been engaged as the mathematical teacher and Mr. F. G. Siddons as lecturer.

Mr. C. Grant has tendered his services gratuitously for the instruction of an elementary class in perspective drawing which will soon be carried into effect. By arrangements made with Messrs. T. Oatley and LePage, the Committee has been able to add to the shelves of the library several valuable new works on scientific subjects, and to complete and bring to the latest procurable period of publication, others of which the Institution possessed imperfect portions.

Proposed by Dr. Pearce and seconded by Mr. Mauret and carried unanimously. That the Report just read be adopted and published.

Dr. Pearce in alluding to the indefatigable and zealous services of the Secretary proposed a vote of thanks to him.

Proposed by Dr. Pearce and seconded by Mr. G. I. F. Speede.

advantage could result from it, which was not already secured by the existing rules, and he earnestly cautioned the meeting against the danger of following Mr. Speed's advice, which, as he (Mr. Crow) had shown, tended to produce the very evil it proposed to avert, and to frustrate the very object, viz. the good of the Institution, which both he and Mr. Speed had at heart. (Cheers)

Dr. C. Pearce in a short but pithy speech, supported Mr. Crow's views.

After some desultory conversation the Chairman stated that as Mr. Speed's proposition had not been seconded it must necessarily fall to the ground.

The Secretary now read the minutes of the individuals who had withdrawn their support from the proposition. Its purport was the postponement of the proposed measure to a future period.

Mr. Crow stated that had Mr. Speed insisted on the present occasion to press his proposition on the notice of the meeting it might have been permitted to stand over for future consideration, as it had been intended by the recurring subscribers, but now that Mr. Speed had brought it on and subjected it to a full discussion, the termination of which was its complete overthrow, he Mr. Crow did not see, how, consistently with the practice usual on such occasions, a proposition thus disposed of could be retained on the Board; and he submitted to the Chairman the propriety of at once consigning it to the tomb of the capulets.—This was accordingly done.

Proposed by Dr. Pearce and seconded by Mr. Crow, and carried.

That the thanks of the members be given to Mr. C. Grant, for the gratuitous offer he has made of teaching an elementary class in perspective and drawing, and also for the design of the facade of the new building.

Proposed by Mr. Speed and seconded by Mr. Crow and carried unanimously.

That the thanks of the meeting be offered to the Chairman for his able, zealous and unflinching services and steady adherence to the interests of the Institution, from its reformation and also for his able conduct in the chair.

After this the meeting separated.

AGRA BANK.

Proceedings of a General Half Yearly Meeting of the Shareholders of the Agra Bank, held at the Paul House on the 1st August, 1840.

Major General Pollock, C. B.—at the request of the Meeting, takes the chair.

Read the following report of the Directors.—

The Directors have the pleasure to submit for the inspection and approval of the Shareholders, the usual accounts for the six months ended 30th June last, the result of which, exhibiting an amount to profit considerably exceeding the divisible surplus of the half year immediately previous, affords satisfactory proof of the continued successful operations of the Bank.

Although, owing to the still depressed condition of the cotton and opium trades consequent upon the unsettled state of the China question, our Hongkong account continues to show less favourably than it otherwise would, and that the same reason has operated prejudicially to the realization of any considerable advantages from the Muzipore Agency, the Directors are happy to state that, on both these branches, which, as affected by the same causes, may here be classed together, there is, notwithstanding, a net profit of Rupees 12,127-5-1.

The amount of funds employed in loans and credits at Agra and Calcutta as outstanding on the 30th June, was Rs. 51,981 8-4, which compared with the amount outstanding on 31st December previous, exhibits an increase of 1,91,524 13 9.

With reference to the resolution of a previous meeting on the expediency of conducting the Calcutta Agency on a more economical footing, and with due attention to the security of the funds there employed, the Directors have the pleasure to state, that from the 1st April last, they have been able to effect a reduction to the extent of one half the previous salary of the Agent, and that the business is now conducted under the guarantee of a highly respectable mercantile firm in Calcutta on behalf of the Agent.

A new and desirable line of business has been opened out during the period under review, in the granting of advances on the Stock of the Calcutta and Bombay Banks, to retain which the Directors have latterly considered it advisable to reduce the interest previously charged thereon to 7 per cent, and otherwise to modify the conditions, so that the total of such loans may, at 3 months notice given, be always reclaimable whenever required, thus constituting an available fund to answer any calls made upon the Bank's 4 per cent. deposit account, which is likewise subject to the same notice of withdrawal. The sum thus employed at the close of the half-year was Rs. 3,21,621 3 6.

The divisible surplus on the transactions of the half-year just expired, amounts to Rs. 1,01,780-10 8, equal to a dividend of rupees 10-10-10 per cent.

During the interval since the last half-yearly meeting the Directors have been joined by their new Secretary, whose nomination by them unanimously was duly confirmed by the Proprietors at a special meeting for that purpose held on April last. In the appointment of this gentleman two objects of considerable importance to the Bank have been secured, namely, the certainty of his continued service throughout the currency of our Co-partnership, and the guarantee of competent service to his behalf to the extent of rupees 50,000. A similar principle has also been lately applied to the case of the Native Treasurer, for whose faithful and honest performance of his duties, the Directors hold in deposit an equal amount.

The Directors are happy in at last being able to state that the Deed of Co-partnership has been duly revived by Counsel, and received from Calcutta; that their best attention was immediately given to that important subject, and, after such final correction as appeared necessary, the Deed was returned to the Bank Solicitors for engrossment and in a short time the Directors expect to be able to submit it to the Proprietors for execution. It may be right to add, that the extension lately agreed to, of the term of Partnership from a period of 5 to one of 10 years has been embodied in this Deed.

The Directors have recently had under their consideration the system on which the Bank conducts its large Insurance business and being fully convinced, from the official report which they have received from their Secretary on the subject, as well as by their own observation, of the many inconveniences and errors inseparable therefrom, and of the safety, profitability and diminished labour of the contrary system recommended, namely that the Bank should become its own Insurer, have decided, so far as in them lies, on its early abandonment. A printed circular detailing the objections alluded to, and the preferableness of an internal Assurance Office, has in consequence been forwarded to the Shareholders, and the Directors are happy to add, that not a single opinion adverse to their recommendation has yet been received, and they cannot but look to the change in contemplation, as one which will eventually and at no distant date, prove very beneficial to the interests of the Bank.

The following propositions were duly moved and seconded.

1st. That the report now read be published, and that the Accounts submitted be passed. Carried.

2d. That a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum or Rs. 25 per share be declared, and that the balance of Rs. 6786-10-3 be carried to the credit of the reserve fund.

Amendment proposed —

That the maintenance of a reserved Fund being in opposition to the wishes of a very large Majority of the shareholders, the small balance now at credit of that Fund be appropriated for the purposes of a dividend accordingly, and that a dividend be declared at the rate of 11 per cent. or rupees 27-8 per share.

The Secretary submits a Memorandum on the subject, which being read, the Amendment was thereupon put and carried.

The following gentlemen were elected Directors for the current half year:—

Messrs Pollock, Richards, Dalzell, Graham, Blois, Mansel, Laudey, Bell and Wollaston.

The Meeting was then rendered special for the purpose of appointing proper persons to be Trustees of the Bank.

It was duly proposed and seconded that Messrs. Pollock, Mansel, and Dalzell, having signified their willingness to accede to the general wishes of the Proprietors, that they should undertake the Office, be appointed Trustees accordingly.

Which was carried nem. con.

The Meeting separated after a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

That the best thanks of this Meeting to the Directors be now recorded, when so little was to be done, for their having done so much.

Which having been seconded by Dr. HENDERSON was passed unanimously.

MEETING OF THE ROMAN CATHOLICS.

Proceedings of a General Meeting held by the Roman Catholics, Colombo, at the Seminary in Wolveendahl Street.

This Meeting took place on the evening of the 5th instant, and was very numerously attended, the Chair was taken by the Very Reverend Father Antonio, who addressed the assembly to the following effect:

ADDRESS OF THE VICE PATRON TO THE GENERAL MEETING.

GENTLEMEN,—I am gratified to find that my suggestion of the propriety of convening a general Meeting of the adherents to our Holy Faith in Colombo, has been so unanimously responded to, and I must say that it gives me very pleasurable anticipations of ultimate success to the Roman Catholic Seminary. The peculiar object of this Meeting, Gentlemen, is the dissolution of the present Committee and the election of another for the current year. I am aware that the Meetings of the Committee, as it now constituted, have not been frequent—but from the many and various occupations of the different members, I could scarcely have been expected that exact regularity would be observed. I hope and trust, however that the Committee you are about to form, will always bear in mind that the most strenuous and zealous exertions are necessary on their parts, to uphold the Establishment of which they will have the management. It is an excellent institution, Gentlemen, and combining as it does, all the advantages of a religious as well as literary education for your children, it calls for the warm support of every friend to our faith. You will have it to say that your children have been reared in a Roman Catholic Establishment for the various walks in life, for which you brought them up; and moreover they will not only be strengthened and confirmed in their religious belief, but they will have ample instructions as to the best and most christian line of conduct, to pursue in their career through the thorny path of the world. I call upon you therefore, Gentlemen, and all who hear me—that as you value the future prosperity of your progeny; as you are desirous of proving yourselves worthy fathers, you will not fail to afford all that zealous support, which the Institution claims. It has the most laudable objects in view—it is the only Seminary which you have in this Colony, and therefore you should cherish it the more and give it your undivided attention.

Previous to my leaving the Chair, I will lay before you a list of Gentlemen, who I consider will prove themselves efficient members of the Committee, which you will now appoint—I also think it my duty to mention, for the guidance of the new Committee, and I am sure you will all concur with me that no payments, beyond the ordinary outlay, such as salaries, house rent, &c., should be made by the Treasurer of the School Fund, without the sanction of the Patron or Vice Patron. Past experience, Gentlemen, justifies the adoption of such a Resolution, and further it is absolutely essential that proper rules and regulations be immediately framed for the better management of this Institution, subject to the approval of the Patron or Vice Patron—But before I take my leave, Gentlemen, I must express to you as a Committee together with your Vice President and your highly respected Chairman, Mr. Van Der Straeten, my unfeigned thanks for the zeal which has ever characterized your conduct as an official body—And I am perfectly convinced that I echo the sincere feelings of all around us, and of the community at large—when I say that they all entertain the same sentiments as I do. You are about to be dissolved as a body, and I can say, your successors no greater complement, than to express my conviction that their zealous exertions will equal yours. As regards our excellent friend Mr. Van Der Straeten, I must say that I should feel sorry to see the onerous duties of a President imposed on him again. His honoured years, and the multiplicity of his avocations demand that this task at least, should be spared him and if, Gentlemen, I may be allowed to suggest the alteration, I would feel proud and happy to find him associated with myself as a Vice Patron of this excellent Institution. I have not the slightest doubt, Gentlemen, that you all think as I do, and you will act up to a suggestion, which has only the object of conferring honour upon a Gentleman who is as the founder of this Establishment more than than he serves it. With respect to the Treasurer, Mr. Fernando, I must do him the justice to say that there is but one opinion as to his unwearied alacrity, zeal and patience with which he had executed his task. You will therefore, Gentlemen, not hesitate, I am sure, for an instant in joining with me to request that Mr. Fernando will kindly continue to discharge the duties of Treasurer, an office for which his abilities, particularly mark him as the fittest amongst us; and as his own business cannot be a secondary matter, I would propose that our friend Mr. Van Langenburgh be requested kindly to render his valuable assistance to the Treasurer.

Let me entreat you, Gentlemen, whilst you are exerting yourselves to recruit the funds of the Establishment, not to lose sight of the claims upon our gratitude possessed by His Excellency, the Governor, both officially and privately. The Hon'ble Mr. Turnour, Sir Jno. Wilson and other Gentlemen, who have so generously and liberally contributed to our funds. You must not consider the contributions of these distinguished individuals as matters of course, or proceeding from the same impulse which induces them to afford pecuniary aid to other Establishments. I am fully impressed with the conviction that their motive emanated from feelings of the most disinterested kindness—and with a view to public good—for you must reflect that they have contributed to the support of a Roman Catholic Institution, which in a religious point of view is at variance with their tenets of belief—though I am happy to say that in the grand result we are the same—and we cannot but be fully sensible of and thankful for their kindness, when we call to mind the many instances in which the appeals of Roman Catholics have been treated with neglect and apathy. There is no other topic, Gentlemen, to which, I deem it essential to draw your attention, and I will now take my leave, fully confident, that you will not in your resolutions this evening leave any thing undone, that may in the least conduce to the prosperity and good management of the Roman Catholic Seminary.

The very Reverend Gentleman after concluding his speech left the assembly, and the members of the New Committee were then chosen. Mr. Vasco was elected Chairman, and Mr. Sansout, Vice Chairman. The General Meeting was then dissolved, and it was arranged, that the Committee would meet the following Saturday for the dispatch of business.—Herald, July 10, 1840.

MASONRY—THE LODGE “ANCHOR AND HOPE.”

On Friday evening, the 21st instant, the Lodge “Anchor and Hope,” (W. M. Alexander Grant.) held a special meeting to receive Dr. Burnes, and presented to him the following address, in a highly ornamental frame:—

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother, we, the Master, Past Master, and Wardens of the Lodge “Anchor and Hope,” with feelings of the highest respect and esteem for your great and unwearied masonic zeal, your universally acknowledged worth, and your kindness and urbanity to all, beg to tender, for your acceptance, this humble tribute of our fraternal affection. It is almost presumptuous in us to offer this memorial, possessing as you do the homage of every heart acquainted with your masonic career, but we do so Right Worshipful Sir, in the hope that this poor offering will tend, while it lasts, to record the fame of your virtues, the vigour of your mind, and the place you held in our affections.

In conclusion we have only to implore the great Architect of the Universe, that you may long be spared as an instrument, through him, of promoting the welfare of our ancient and hallowed institution.

A Welcome to the R. W. Brother James Burnes, R. H., written by ———, and sung at the Convocation of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Bengal, 17th Aug., 1840, by the W. Brother Henry Lorenz, Master of the Provincial Grand Stewards' Lodge.

Oh, say when the wine cup is brimming around,
And the murmur of welcome is heard in our hall,

Why should music, sweet hand-maid of joy, stint her sound.

And the glad voice of song fail to come at our call?
Ere' all rudo be the rhyme, yet it smooth may appear,
When the fervour of feeling its vigour shall lend,
And the harsh tolling measure steal sweet on the ear,
When it welcomes the Master, the Brother, the Friend!

Then say why, &c.,

Had you wandered among us, all penniless, poor,
With no hope on the ocean, no home on the land,
Oh, the key that you wot of had opened each door,
And each brother stood by you, with lip, heart, and hand:

Then as welcome you'd been in you moment of woe,
By the name that you bear, and the meed that's your due,

As e'en now when our hearts every sorrow forego,
And the eye beams glad welcome, true mason, to you,
Then say why, &c.

And oh, when hereafter you think of this night,
In the mine of each Lodge, know their wishes express,
Like “The Star in the East” be the presign of light,
Let “Humility, Fortitude” still be your rest,
“Perseverance and Industry” profit each day,
The support of “True Friendship” be thine to the end,
Let the “Anchor of Hope” be your hold and your stay,
And “St John's,” bless the Brother, true Mason and Friend.—Eastern Star, August 23, 1840.

UNION BANK MEETING.

The Special Meeting of the Shareholders of the Union Bank, took place last Monday, at the Office of the Bank, for the purpose of finally determining on the resolution of the General Meeting of the 18th instant, "that the terms of the 1st Clause of the Bank Deed be modified and enlarged, by the insertion of a clause permitting the business of the Bank to be extended so far as to authorize the Directors to buy and sell Bills of Exchange on England.

R. Walker, Esq., was called to the chair.

Proposed by Longueville Clarke, Esq., and seconded by Major Burlton and carried.

That the resolution of the last meeting, enlarging the 1st clause, be confirmed.

The attention of the meeting was then called for the purpose of considering and amending an apparent repugnancy between some of the provisions of the 5th Clause of the Deed, relative to the right of voting of holders of shares in the capacities of trustees, Executors, Administrators or Assignees of Insolvent Estates.

Proposed by Longueville Clarke, Esq., and seconded by W. S. Smith, Esq.

That the 58th Clause in the Deed of proprietorship, be altered in the two last lines, by striking out the words "and not;" after the word "firm," inserting the word "or;" in the same line striking out the word "agent," and in the last line striking out the word "nor," and after the word Assignee, inserting the words "and not;" and after the word "as" inserting the words "agent or."

Mr. Ferguson said, that as proxies were not allowed to vote, he did not think the modification ought to be permitted—it was exactly the same in principle. After some discussion he proposed the following amendment.

That the following words be adopted. That as proxies are not allowed to vote, no person holding shares as Trustee or as collateral security for any loan, shall be entitled to vote.

Mr. J. W. Cragg proposed, as an amendment, that the 58th Clause in the Deed be amended, by emitting all the words following the words as Assignee of Insolvent Estates.

Mr. Clarke's resolution, and the two amendments, were put to the vote and carried unanimously.

The meeting was then made special for the purpose of receiving a Report of the steps taken with reference to conversations of the late accountant.

The Secretary read the Report regarding the speculation carried on by Mr. Sim.

The Secretary mentioned that the report just read had been submitted to the Directors and approved by them. The whole amount, he said, that had been from time to time drawn by the late accountant, had been paid up.

Mr. O'Hanlon remarked, that there were various reports regarding the amount that had been embezzled by the late accountant—he was informed that the sum was one lac and eighty thousand rupees. He wanted to know what was the exact sum, one lac and twenty thousand or one lac and thirty-four thousand.

The Secretary stated, that the whole sum amounted to one lac and thirty-four thousand rupees.

Mr. Clarke told the meeting, that they had already the frequent mention of his name as having taken active measures to secure the Bank from any loss. As soon, he said, as the discovery of the fraud had taken place, the Treasurer called on his brother, Dwarkanauth Tagore, and communicated the circumstance to him. The affair was soon made known to the Directors, and they consulted him as the standing counsel to the Bank, and as a shareholder; what he did on the occasion is embodied in the minute which he had in his hands and would read.

MR. LONGUEVILLE CLARKE'S MINUTE RESPECTING THE FRAUDS OF MR. A. H. SIM.

"It will be recollected by many of the proprietors, that in October 1838, the directors removed Mr. Sim from his situation of accountant on charges preferred against him by me for a breach of the 41st Clause of the co-partnership deed in disclosing the state of a constituent's account and for other misconduct. At a special meeting of the proprietors held on the 7th of November following, it was proposed by Dwarkanauth Tagore, that Mr. Sim should be restored to his situation; Mr. Pattick seconded the motion, and Mr. Dickens supported it, none of these three gentlemen were then directors. I moved an amendment to the effect, that Mr. Sim was unworthy of our confidence, and should not be restored; and this was negatived by a majority of 53 against 8.

On the 31st of May, 1839, Dwarkanauth Tagore called on me about eleven o'clock in the morning and stated, that one of the native writers in the Bank had just confessed to him, that Mr. Sim had been guilty of extensive frauds by causing a cipher to be added to his account in the English and Native Ledgers, and then drawing against this fictitious credit. Dwarkanauth had immediately communicated the circumstance to Mr. William Carr, his partner, who was one of the Directors, and they had agreed that I should be directly consulted. Finding that Mr. Sim had considerable property, but also large debts, I proposed that the matter should be kept secret until we had used every effort to obtain security, but that Mr. Cullen the Chairman of the Directors, should be informed of what had occurred. We accordingly proceeded to Mr. Cullen's house, who approved of our plan, and in pursuance of it, I returned to my office and gave orders for a bond and warrant to be prepared in favor of Mr. Dickens, to be executed by Mr. Sim. While this was drawing up, we went to Mr. Dickens, who readily promised his assistance, upon which Dwarkanauth took me in his carriage to Mr. Sim's house. As I had never spoken to Mr. Sim since I had brought the charges against him, and he was known to be in a deplorable state of health, I remained in the carriage, and he was not aware that I had accompanied Dwarkanauth. In about half an hour Dwarkanauth came to me, and stated that Mr. Sim resolutely denied the whole affair, affirming it to be a conspiracy against him. On which I determined to see him myself. Surprized and thrown off his guard by my unexpected appearance, he confessed the whole of his guilt, stating that he had overdrawn to the extent of 1,20,000 rs., and that he had been practicing these frauds for four or five years. He readily executed the Bond and Warrant to Mr. Dickens, and I became witnesses to both, judgment was immediately signed and from the time that the discovery was made until the security was obtained, not more than two hours and a half had elapsed. The following day a meeting was held in Mr. Dickens' Chambers, at which Mr. Cragg, the Director, was invited to attend. There were present, Mr. Cullen, our Chairman, Mr. Dickens, our Trustee, Mr. W. Carr, Mr. Cragg and myself Directors, Dwarkanauth Tagore, the largest shareholder in the Bank, and Colonel Young, the Secretary. I then stated it to be my opinion, and in which, if I recollect rightly, Mr. Dickens acquiesced, that from the manner in which the fraud had been committed, no criminal proceedings could be taken against Mr. Sim. First, the offence was not larceny or stealing, for the money had been voluntarily paid to Mr. Sim on his cheques in the regular course of Banking business by our officers, in whose charge it was. Secondly, it was an embezzlement; for our secretary and Treasurer had on our behalf the custody of the money, and to constitute embezzlement there must not even be a constructive possession of the money by the owner. The offence to which it approached most nearly was cheating, or obtaining money under false pretences; but I felt considerable doubt whether from our constitution as a joint stock Bank not having a charter, and Mr. Sim himself being one of the shareholders or partners, and interested in the property, we might not find a serious obstacle to a conviction on such a charge.

There were three points on which we all agreed. First, that there would be little chance of succeeding in any criminal proceedings against Mr. Sim, and therefore it would be imprudent to make the attempt. Second, that by civil proceeding, and the lien we had obtained over his property, we might retrieve the greater part if not the whole of our losses, but that it was essential to avoid for the present any disclosure of his affairs, in order that we might obtain the most out of his property and avoid litigation with others. Thirdly, that the interest of the Bank would be best consulted, by abstaining from making any disclosures at that moment.

There were then large sums in deposit in the Bank, which might have been immediately withdrawn; our note circulation would have poured in upon us, and we might have had about 20 lacs of deposits taken out of our hands at the very season we were employing them most profitably. But even this would have been a smaller evil than the injury which the Bank would have sustained in the shock to its credit by a panic and a run, the effect of which it might have required years to get rid of. There was every chance of a panic and a run, had the disclosure followed the discovery made two whilst Mr. Sim was in the country, and the press would have teemed with anonymous correspondence by persons writing from interest, or in ignorance, all clamouring for criminal justice against the delinquent. On the other hand, if the matter became gradually known, by those private and confidential communications, which inevitably result from the progress of time and the secret being known to many, the public avowal of the defalcation would little affect the Bank, if not made until after every one had previously known it, and when it was found that the measures, which the Directors had adopted, had saved the proprietor from the greater part, if not the whole of the loss. Assurances were likewise given, by parties who were deeply interested in preventing any depreciation in the value of the shares by a run on the Bank, or its credit being impaired, that on the express condition of the matter not being made public, they would make good any deficiency which might ultimately occur.

It was for these reasons and especially the two last, that I strongly advocated the plan of keeping the affair secret, for as long a period as it was necessary and practicable. I felt assured, that I at least would be acquitted by the proprietors of any intention of improperly favoring Mr. Sim, or being influenced by any other motive, than what in my humble judgment was dictated by a desire to consult the Bank's best interests. That but six months before I put myself in opposition, not only to all my brother directors, and the great majority of the assembled proprietors, but all my most intimate personal friends, in order to expel Mr. Sim for his misconduct; those friends then differed with me, but it is evident from the early information I received when the fraud was discovered, and the unanimity and cordiality with which we all acted, that what I had previously done, had rather given them confidence in me. If those gentlemen who had on the first occasion dealt leniently with Mr. Sim, felt any delicacy in permitting him to withdraw on the second occurrence without exposure, it may be that they were confirmed in the course which was adopted, when they found that I offered to take the responsibility of the measures on myself, under the full conviction of its paramount necessity. Differing as we before had done in judging the individual, there was no difference as to the measures which the emergency demanded.

It were idle in the extreme to suppose that any system can be rendered so perfect, as to guard against all possible loss. In page 63 of Mr. Gilbart's history of Banking will be found the details of a scheme by which the most strictly managed institution in the world, the Bank of England, lost in the year 1824, through the unassisted frauds of one man, the enormous sum of 36 lacs of rupees.

The event has proved that the measures were judiciously taken, and the results currently foreseen. The Bank has suffered no loss. The promise to make good any deficit was given on the condition that what had occurred should not be made public but it has been made public, and the parties were released, but the object has been attained, the panic and the run never took place, the credit of the Bank has remained unshaken, and the shares have not depreciated in value, but have risen and are daily rising.

The Bank is saved from every loss by the securities and liabilities of Mr. Sim, having been taken up by Dwarkanath Tagore, for he has voluntarily performed a conditional promise from which he had been fully released.

LONDONVILLE CLARKE.

A desultory conversation here ensued.

To the resolution moved by Mr. Turton, that the meeting do adjourn.

Mr. O'Hanlon said, that the property of Mr. Sim was not legally obtained. The proper way was to make fair distribution among his creditors, of the sum realized from his estate; this, he said, he would move as a resolution. The direction, he stated, had not acted with strict metropolitan propriety. Mr. Sim had committed a fraud, and they consented to make it a debt, and how he had got out of the country he did not know. Mr. O'Hanlon then asked whether any of the native assistants concerned with Mr. Sim, in the fraud, were still retained in the office. The Secretary said, that they had all been dismissed as soon as the affair was brought to light.

Mr. O'Hanlon observed, that if he had been instrumental in bringing the matter to a disclosure, some merit is due to him. The fraud he said had been going on for the last 4 years, and if the disclosure had been made when it was detected, it would not, as stated by Mr. Clarke, have injured the interests of the Bank. Now, in the eleventh hour, if any one, he said, would second him, he would move the following resolution.

That all the creditors of the late accountant, Mr. Sim, may be permitted to come in and claim, and be paid ratably on his assets.

The resolution was seconded by Major Barltan.

Mr. Turton wanted to know, that if the creditors preferred their claims, out of what fund they would be paid.

Mr. O'Hanlon replied, that he would willingly give up his portion.

Mr. Turton said, that that was the wildest thing he ever heard of. Here, he said, a person comes to pay you his debt; you tell him, 'no, I don't want the money—you are an insolvent, go and pay Peter and Tom and others.'

This excited some merriment. Mr. O'Hanlon essayed to say something, which was followed by a repartee from Mr. Turton, when Mr. Clarke, who likewise opposed Mr. O'Hanlon's resolution, said that from the long connection of his friend with the Insolvent Court, he had caught the contagion, to wit, the equitable principles of that Court. More laughter followed, when Mr. O'Hanlon's resolution was put to the vote and lost, not being supported by any one.

Proposed by Captain Vint and seconded by Mr. Allan.

That the Secretary and subordinate officers of the Bank be prohibited from holding or dealing, on their own account, in the purchase or sale of shares.

This proposition met with some opposition, and after some desultory conversation, Mr. Turton moved the following amendment, which was carried non con.

That the Directors be requested to take into their consideration, whether it would be expedient to adopt Capt. Vint's resolution, and to report thereon at the next half yearly meeting.

Thanks being voted to the Chairman, the meeting dispersed.—Harkara, August 27, 1840.

MEETING OF THE FRIENDS OF THE LATE MR. JAMES PRINSEP.

A meeting was held at the Town Hall on the 30th ult., for the purpose of determining in what manner the virtues and remarkable attainments of the late Mr. James Prinsep should be commemorated. The meeting was called by a body of those gentlemen who enjoyed Mr. Prinsep's most intimate friendship, and who were most capable of estimating and describing his worth, and the call was responded to by not less than 4 or 500 of our fellow citizens. Shortly after the hour appointed for the commencement of business, Sir Edward Ryan addressed the assembly as follows:—

Sir Edward Ryan.—Gentlemen,—I am about to propose that one of our number should take the chair, but before I do so, I may be permitted to enter into a short explanation, which though unusual perhaps before the chair is taken, may not when heard, be thought altogether out of place. At a preliminary meeting of the friends of Mr. James Prinsep, who by public advertisement have called together this evening, it was that from the great intimacy which for years had subsisted between Mr. Rattray and our late friend, no one could so appropriately fill the chair as Mr. Rattray. Mr. Rattray, on this occasion, I confessed, declined consent to discharge this duty from the want of habit of speaking in public, and on this occasion he confessed, that difficulty would be tenfold increased by the excited state of his feelings. This objection we thought ought not to deprive us of his services or prevent his filling the chair, if approved of by the meeting, and we thought that on such an occasion a written address read from the chair would be far from being inappropriate or opposed to the established usage on similar occasions. Mr. Rattray kindly yielded to our wishes, and it was decided that I should on this day propose his taking the chair: unhappily however his feelings on this subject have so overpowered him as to affect his health and have made it impossible for him to attend here. Under the circumstances as he has committed to paper the address he had hoped he would have read to us himself, and as that has been committed to the charge of my friend Dr. Grant, I beg to propose that Dr. Grant do on this occasion take the chair for Mr. Rattray, and that he be kind enough to read to us the address of Mr. Rattray. Before this proposal is recorded, I wish to state that, owing to an attack of fever, Mr. Parker has been obliged to absent himself from our meeting, and Major Forbes is also unable to attend, owing to a severe domestic affliction: both these gentlemen are well known to be warm admirers and friends of the late Mr. James Prinsep, and both of them, if present, would have taken a part in the proceedings of this day.

This proposal was seconded by the Hon'ble W. W. Bidd, Esq. and adopted by the meeting.

Dr. J. Grant.—Gentlemen, in rising to thank you for the honour you have done me, I beg also to express my best acknowledgments to Sir Edward Ryan, for having interposed to spare me the awkwardness, in the first instance, of explaining the reason of my appearing before you in a position to which many might consider I had no claim. While thanking you, gentlemen, for the honour you have thus conferred, permit me to assure you at the same time, that it is with most unfeigned diffidence I bow to the urgency of circumstances in accepting it.

My friend Sir Edward Ryan has already mentioned its having been intended, that this chair should be occupied by a highly distinguished and respected member of our community, who is not only qualified by his long and intimate friendship with him whose memory we have met to honour, to do the subject justice, but by his own gifted nature to sympathize deeply with the triumphs and sacrifices of kindred genius. I can assure you, for I have recently sat by his sick bed, that nothing but severe indisposition has prevented Mr. Rattray's being at his post. Mitigating his incapacity, under the pressure of feelings natural to the occasion, of expressing himself with the requisite facility and clearness at the proposed meeting, he determined to attend it provided with a written memoir of his friend. Three or four days ago he addressed himself to the task, but even in the privacy of the closet, it proved too much for a constitution weakened by a long residence in the east, and constant application to highly important, responsible, and honorable duties. There are minds of a sensibility so keen that any thing like a fixed reference to, or contemplation of the merits, qualities, claims and beauties of character, of a departed and congenial friend, renews the bitterness of grief, and re-opens the wounds of bereavement. Himself a man of a acknowledged genius it is not matter of surprise that Mr. Rattray should be chief mourner by the hearse of genius. No wonder that his feelings should have been most distressingly wrought on in the performance of what he deemed a sacred, though it could not prove otherwise than a painful duty, calling up, as it must do, the recollections, of many departed years of cherished and delightful communion, he had passed with that bright spirit now gone from us for ever. No man knew James Prinsep more thoroughly than Mr. Rattray, no man understood him better, or more fully and justly appreciated the value of his great intellectual powers and sweet moral dispositions. No man esulted more warmly, I may say fraternally, in the triumphs of his brilliant career or more poignantly deplored its premature close. It is that very poignancy of feeling while endeavouring to perform a solemn duty, which his friends deemed him the best qualified of all to fulfil; that brought on Mr. Rattray's indisposition and has entailed upon your patience the task of having to listen to me his unworthy representative in this chair. Though he is thus of necessity absent, his letters with us, and I verily believe that the circumstances of his, thus, as it were, giving the lead to that tribute we are about to pay to departed genius and worth, will prove a great comfort to her who has been rendered most desolate, by the afflictive dispensation that has deprived our society of one of its most splendid ornaments.

I thank you, gentlemen, for having so patiently listened to me and craved your indulgence while I read to the meeting Mr. Rattray's memoir.

"Gentlemen,—I had been in some degree prepared to anticipate the position in which your kindness and confidence has now placed me, and, trusting my powers of self-protection under the influence of those feelings which usually would attend, and the presence of which would interfere with a due fulfilment of your expectation. I committed to paper such recollections and impressions from those which suggested themselves connected with this life and character of him to whose memory we are now assembled to do honor, as I deemed most likely to be acceptable, both to those whose opportunities of observation had been comparatively limited, and those whose higher attainments would enable them to testify to the fulness of what should be exhibited. When you heard the first and last period during which I was in the most intimate communion with him now lost to us, you will, I am sure, grant your indulgence to me in being thus facilitated, as I do I, while you acknowledge the difficulty of doing justice to an object so dear to the effort, unworthy though it be, which a willing but weary heart shrill render.

It is not twenty years since I had the happiness of a first introduction to Mr. James Prinsep, who had then lately been appointed to this office of Assay Master of the Mint at Benares, at which city I was stationed. His reception amongst us was the ordinary welcome of a stranger, for such he was to all; but, prepossessing in appearance, exclusively accomplished, with his winning gentleness of temper and unaffected frankness of demeanor, he soon stood, what he continued to the last, the most admired and most beloved of what was then a very large society. The adulation which attended this, was perhaps calculated to operate injuriously, but the purity and simplicity of his nature shielded him from those dangers which have proved the wreck of so many a noble mind—because unsupported by that rigid principle which was at once the stay and ornament of his. Ere long, he grew to be the common friend and general adviser of our community, and scarcely had a twelve-month elapsed before the impression of his superior judgment became so thoroughly established, that on all occasions where an object was to be attained or a difficulty surmounted—whether involving questions of public import or of local changes and improvement, private interests, or individual perplexities—reference was made to the young in years but the matured in understanding.

On his first arrival amongst us, he was indeed a mere youth, and to the casual observer seemed chiefly remarkable for the playfulness of his manner, and the versatility of his talent and accomplishments; but this was the spiritiveness of a fresh and buoyant spirit in its hour of relaxation from thoughts too deep to be discerned; for, even then, the idol which his soul bent to in its secret aspirations, and which, alas, eventually allured him to an early grave, was Science. The path by which this object of his ardent worship was to be sought, was probably determined by the chance circumstance of his Indian career having commenced at Benares. It was this, I think, which decided the course of his pursuits, and was the germ of his celebrity. In the mixed mass of its dense population, its magnificent religious establishments, its many and numerous frequented scholas for the cultivation of the dead and living languages of the country, its learned but too, its hereditary priesthood, its ancient and still existing reputation as "The Holy City" the seat of all past and present knowledge which the East may boast, there, a center attractive to a mind constituted like his, naturally roused curiosity, enquiry and research followed; and thus opening to his view the distant and only hidden niches of strange and perished ages passed away, to which his own land had nothing bearing resemblance, awakened still stronger excitement, a still increased craving for information; and it length led him to devote the whole powers of his intellect to their development.

The preparatory step, was the acquisition of the native language. His official duties, though simply assigned to him full employment to one of ordinary habits of diligence, left, after their strictest performance, by him, many hours to be filled up which he might claim as his own disposal—these were devoted to a regular course of self-instruction; and while exercising a cheerful, and I might almost say boundless hospitality—for his house was the resort of all travellers of all countries, of name or note, and of all his fellow-residents of the place as if his studies were never abandoned and seldom interrupted. In complete his qualifications for the great work before him, he added to the Sanskrit and the Persian, the Greek and Latin authors of antiquity, a acquaintance with whom a highly useful rather than a classical education had left imperfect. Amidst these avocations, was completed that ample which we still possess of his ready and faithful pencil. The most striking of the singularly picturesque edifices at Benares were from time to time delineated, till a volume was created,—which shall long maintain a two-fold interest, as the perfect picture of what it professes to represent, and of what was first seen to our friend's advance to that elevation which was then in rising promise.

But let it not be supposed that the record of a picture was all he left to mark his abode at Benares. The city is very ancient, very crowded, built, and very irregularly distributed and built, as an ancient city, wherever situated, is usually found to be. In the very heart of this, a chain of tanks, so-called, but which are, or rather were ponds or pools (some of them of immense extent) of a black and filthy fluid, supplied from every street and every sewer, when the moon should to what man never dreamt of attempting—cleanse these from the nankeen accumulations of the foregone season. These ponds had been the common, indeed holy, receptacles of the entire excrements of their vicinity, for ages. Their offensiveness and the atmosphere engendered by them cannot readily be imagined. When contemplating his design, Mr. Prinsep commenced a survey of the city, took a comprehensive view of the whole, the expense, and finally, with the least difficulties and impediments that would have existed, he planned and superintended the work. It succeeded in draining these, and in converting them into what they had been in so many reservoirs of wholesome water. This is one of the many benefits which have shown the prayers and blessings of a whole people upon him, but it is only one; the success of the occasion had produced confidence, and he had now only to suggest to be immediately supported in every proposition of improvement. Bridges were built (that over the Karamnasa for instance) where quicksands had been supposed to render their erection impracticable; circuitous roads were straightened; buzzies were improved or newly constructed; other works (many literally copied from his own funds) might be enumerated: but these are sufficient to show how much of effective energy and practical usefulness was, in this exemplary being, combined with those mental perceptions and attainments which captivated the philosopher, and those unobscurable attractions and graceful arguments which fascinated all.

Though his income was never excessive—never equal to his desires, self-denial enabled him at all times to meet the claims and appeals of indigence. His charities and private donations were munificent; and it may be safely asserted that no case of real distress that ever came before him, was dismissed by him unrelieved or left unaided by his sympathy. It was not engaged as I have just described him, in the halls of science, in scenes of festivity, that James Pinsep was unity to be found: in the house of sickness and of mourning he was no stranger: and there were many, and still are some, to whom in their hour of sorrow and calamity he was a friend and a brother.

But the bright season of his career was only now beginning. All that he had done of good, and all that he had won of approval, were about to be absorbed, though not forgotten, in the display which a wider field soon permitted to his universal genius. In 1830, the Arts at Bhenares having been abolished, his official services were transferred to that of Calcutta, in which, two years subsequently, he succeeded Mr. Hodge Wilson in his old calling of Assay Master, and almost simultaneously became his successor as Secretary to the Asiatic Society. Here I pause—Soon after this period, commenced that series of brilliant discourses which attracted the notice and fixed the attention of the learned of the whole civilised world, and which at once placed him a greeted member of their number; the leading Philosophical Institutions of Europe were proud to enrol his name amongst the worthies of their country, and the language in which this testimony was conveyed of the high sense entertained by them of the claims and merits of a stranger, added a tenfold value to the honor. But the period of these—the far limits of years of unintermitting labor—is a sacred deposit in the archives of that body with which he was, by no intimately associated, and its members—some of the most distinguished of whom are now present,—doubtless regard it as their privilege to unfold it to your view, and thus more than confirm my feeble and imperfect eulogy. All I will venture to add on this head, is, that I consider these discourses as amongst the most surprising and most interesting of the age in which we live, and as calculated to remain, in connexion with the name of their gifted author, an imperishable monument of the great results which well directed talent and enduring perseverance, are capable of producing.

James Pinsep was one of several brothers, all more or less known to us as clever, active minded men, each possessing some peculiar aptitude distinguishing him from his brethren, and each bearing some stamp of capacity, marking him as at least partially endowed beyond the common standard. Of this brotherhood, the larger portion has, alas! been prematurely swept away; three only remain to weep over him, the last departed, and I am sure they will be the foremost to support me, when I make this lamented one the exception to what I have just made generally applicable. His distinction was not in this or that particular excellence, but in a combination of all—of those faculties of conception and capabilities of action, which, divided amongst so many, were still sufficient to give to each an exalted position amongst his fellow men. Taking into consideration that (the mere rudiments of certain branches of education set aside) James Pinsep was entirely self-taught, where too there were none of corresponding habits and pursuits to consult on points of doubt and difficulty, none to forward and assist, by sharing the knowledge already theirs and joining in the search of what was hidden; availing too to the comparatively short time allowed for perfecting his vast and varied attainments; I think—as he was assuredly one of the most amiable as was he one of the most admirable of those whose image and whose deeds we delight to recall and look upon. What he was as a social member of our community, I need not say; you knew him; and to know him was to love him and in your recollection must be yours at such an hour as this, causing your hearts to swell at the thought which his departure has occasioned.

The marriage of our friend, which took place in 1835, held forth a promise of more than common happiness. Of the personal endowments of the now bereaved one, I forbear to speak—he was not long since amongst us, and cannot yet be forgotten. There was the same beautiful serenity of temper, the same kindly regard to the feelings of others, the same accomplished, every thing in short to render her a meet companion for such a husband. Then home was indeed a dwelling where the softer affections bloomed in all their loveliness. If she was the prob and joy of his yet unclouded hours, doubly valuable did she become as the ministering angel who through the many months of his protracted suffering never quitted the chamber of sickness, and who to each interval of his malady guided his wandering thoughts to that world of spirits he was fast approaching. But why distress you and myself by dwelling on the dark close of that beautiful day whose sun had run its course so gloriously? About the middle of 1838, symptoms appeared, which before the end of the year became so alarming as to demand immediate change of climate as the only chance of safety, and he embarked for England. But the blow was struck. In the words of Professor Wilson, who was then in London “nature, exhausted by incessant intellectual toil, was not able, even with the favorable circumstances of a healthy constitution, temperate and regular habits, cheerful spirits, and a time of life scarcely in its prime to rally from the effect of interest too perpetually excited, and application never intermitted. He died on the 22d day of April last, after a twelve months’ lingering illness, in the 40th year of his age.”

One duty still remains to me: and I proceed to it with unaffected diffidence, the more so as I invite you to become a party to what I acknowledge myself incompetent a liberally to perform. What you have hitherto condescended to lend your attention to, has been the overflowing of my own full breast—what I would now ask you to subscribe to, is the joint expression of the sentiments of us all, as I have endeavored to depict them in the assurance of common sympathy between us. I submit then for your consideration, and if approved, for your adoption, the following as our first Resolution, viz

“That this assembly contemplate with sentiments of the deepest sorrow the loss which they have sustained by the death of Mr. James Pinsep: that they regard this loss, not as a bereavement involving his family and relatives in great and lasting affliction: not as a deprivation to themselves, individually, of the sore friend, the sage counsellor, the cheerful and instructive companion, or, collectively, of the life and ornament of their circle: but as a public calamity, afflicting all classes of the community from the highest grade of intellectual intelligence to the lowest of enquiring ignorance,—from the foremost rank of social refinement to the humblest of dependent penury.—that while, however, thus deploring a dispensation, which was not to be averted in accordance with human wishes, they turn with pride and gratification to the valour that presents itself in the contemplation of a character which abounds regret in admiration—admiration of those surpassing attributes, the influence and example of which shall never die:—that, with adroitness to these,—to the innate amiability of a disposition, generous, confiding, and forgiving: the endearing sweetness of a temper which nothing could ruffle or provoke to anger: the overflowing benevolence of a heart yearning towards the unfortunate and ever awake to succour or to share the suffering it wept for; the ready hand, open to bestow, and the soothing and persuasive sympathy which enhanced the value of the gift by the warmth and grace of the bestowal,—add to these, the vast powers, and the accumulated stores of a mind unceasingly engaged in the pursuit of what was useful and beneficial to its attainment, and at ways equal to what it undertook to acquire or perform, the zealous and indefatigable application of that mind's resources, and the modesty which disclaimed the applause which its successes elicited,—with reference to those combined excellencies, they consider the lamented subject of this record to have been an honor to his name, to his country, and to his nature; and finally, they earnestly desire to unite towards the accomplishment of the object of this meeting, by the dedication in his memory of such a tribute of affection and respect, as shall most suitably evince their sense of his transcendent worth, and the extent of that loss whose announcement has thrown so deep a gloom over the scene which, living, he adorned and animated."

The address and resolution were listened to with a deep and mindful attention. The Resolution being put from the chair, and seconded by Mr. Henry Torrens, was unanimously adopted.

Mr. J. P. Grant.—I rise to move the Resolution which has been entrusted to me with those mixed feelings which I doubt not press upon the minds of all who hear me, and which render it so difficult upon an occasion like the present adequately to give expression to what is due to great public merit while deeply sympathizing in private affliction. But in performing the duty which has been assigned to me, I labour under disadvantages which are personal to myself.

It was impossible to know James Prinsep even for so short a time as I enjoyed that happiness without feeling for him the sincerest personal friendship. It was impossible to be acquainted with what he had done, and was doing, for science, with the unostentatious and modest manner in which he accomplished it, without feeling the most affectionate respect for his character. But my acquaintance with him was not of that endurance, to enable me to portray him as he ought to be portrayed, to those who knew him only from reputation, or to recall him, as he ought to be recalled, to the recollection of his friends. Add to this, my slender acquaintance with those departments of science in which he shone. It has been the fortune of my life—partly perhaps from the accidents of early education—partly perhaps from natural turn of mind—and partly from the circumstances in which I have been placed, to apply myself, so far as I have applied, to the acquisition of knowledge of any sort—God knows, much too little—rather to those subjects which concern the moral and political history and government of mankind, than to those no less useful and interesting branches of learning which entirely occupied his attention—branches of learning no less useful and interesting than those others I have referred to, since they bring us acquainted with the phenomena of nature—since they extend the power of man, improve his moral and social condition, and see him destined in an indefinite and incalculable degree to increase the means of his enjoyment and happiness. To these studies, it is known that our departed friend devoted the extraordinary labours of his active mind—the singular perspicuity of his unobtrusive genius, and the indomitable ardour of his desire of knowledge, and his love of truth.

If it had been necessary for me, in moving the Resolution with which I am to conclude, to point out the extent and nature of his success and the course which he pursued in its attainment, I must, under the circumstances which I have stated, have declined to take a prominent part in the proceedings of this day, as being wholly incompetent to such a duty. But I relied upon the statement which I knew was to be made by the excellent and respectable person whom we expected to have seen in the chair, but of whose services we have been so unfortunately deprived, for such an ample detail of the history of our friend's scientific life, and of the details connected with his career, as to relieve me from the necessity of adding anything upon these subjects. I have been so relieved by the eloquent, and affecting paper which has been read from the chair, in which nothing upon those subjects requires to be added.

I therefore proceed at once to what immediately concerns the object of the resolution which I am to propose to you, viz. that a suitable monument be erected in this the capital of British India, to the memory of the public services and private virtues of James Prinsep. It was the practice among the ancients to erect their monuments to the illustrious dead, by the sides of the public ways, and in elevated sites where they might attract the attention of every passer-by. It has occurred to the committee, who have taken upon themselves to convene this meeting, that the most appropriate and best monument to the memory of James Prinsep would be a spacious and handsome Ghaut upon the Bank of this noble river, upon a site which I shall indicate where it is much wanted and will be extensively useful. This structure will, unite, as he did in every thing he undertook, what is the most beautiful and engaging, with what is the most useful. Placed at the entrance of the city, it will be the first object that will strike the eyes of those who come from distant lands to visit the capital of British India, while it will be presented daily to the view of the inhabitants recalling to them, as they take their evening exercise, the recollection of his talents, of his labours, and of his worth. Other monuments have been suggested, but we are of opinion that this will be the most suitable. It will be a great ornament to the city, and it has this advantage, that its size and beauty may be in proportion to the sum that shall be subscribed for its erection, and that every extension of its dimensions will be an extension of its usefulness.

Upon the propriety of a public monument to his memory in a conspicuous place, in this scene of his labours and the witness of his attainments, it is to be presumed there can be but one feeling. If a splendid testimony of the regard borne to him by his fellow citizens will be creditable to his memory, it will be an act not less creditable to us that we have not failed duly to appreciate the merits of such a man.

I beg, Sir, to move that a spacious Ghaut be erected on the river side at the most convenient spot below Fort William and above the site of the Ghaut known by the name of the Baboo Ghaut—in memory of the public services and private virtues of James Prinsep.

The proposition being seconded by Colonel Kildes, and put from the chair, was carried unanimously. Professor O'Shaughnessy then rose, and said,

"At the desire of some of the eminent personages around me, I venture to present myself as the proposer of the next resolution. I am thoroughly aware of my unwhiteness to take part, however humble, in the proceedings commemorated by our friend, but the admirable tribute to his memory, which Mr. Rattray has so eloquently paid, relieves me at least, of much of the difficult duty I contemplated. No one could hear that tribute read, without feeling that all the wounds of sorrow as yet too freshly and too slightly healed were again torn rounder. I have but few words to say to James Prinsep's eulogy, but these I utter from my heart. I have not many, who like him ran a career of glory in the ways of learning and science, but never did I know one, who combined so many acquirements with such intimate and practical knowledge of each. Others highly competent to judge have borne testimony to his extraordinary merits as an artist, an engineer, an astronomer, and a linguist. Let me add the humble view of my admiration of his success in physical and chemical science. No subject was too abstruse in the theory, too difficult in manipulation for the resources of his genius and the dexterity of his practical skill. Before a mixed assembly like the present, it is scarcely appropriate to descend on all his researches in these departments of science. But I cannot but allude to his extraordinary essay on the specific heat of the gases.

His experiments in the standard instruments for, and his tables for the facilitation of all kinds of meteorological observations—in his experiments on the expansion of metals by heat, and to his celebrated researches on pyrometry, by which he, and he alone, succeeded perfectly in giving us an instrument for observations of temperatures as high as the action point of platinum, comparable with the graduation of the common thermometer, and so simple in its management, that a child could use it with certain success. To these, as to all his other researches, James Prinsep owed the high place he occupied in the estimation of scientific men in every country. But I would turn from such thoughts now, and as superior to all his other virtues, communicate his singular kindness of disposition, his modesty, his inimitable power of combination, his generous anxiety to promote at every sacrifice the efforts of the few who were behind him in the path of science. It is to be said there was a perfect being, one third of a foot from the last alloy of envy, James Prinsep. I think that man. Would that this day, as the most appropriate monument to his place, we could resolve to imitate his example and bind ourselves on his tomb to forego those bitter controversies with each other, which he so consistently avoided, and by which our once true and too frequently, too deeply engrained. With the press of those who propose the election of the great, I fully concur. I say other to be elected by the great is inferior to that, I will give it my humble, but cordial support. In one way, perhaps, there is a valuable opportunity of keeping his memory alive. It is my fortune to be connected with one of those great institutions to which is committed the sacred task of training the native youths in the sciences. Just as I am adorned and improved. I will say it before this assembly of his friends. That hall at the University shall survive, his name be celebrated with affection, and our pupils taught to look to it as the brightest beacon they can follow. While I have the honor to occupy my present position, a medal bearing James Prinsep's name will be the annual premium of that youth, who most unobtrusively himself in the pursuit of physical science. I have wished, that however devoid of intrinsic value that name will ever be an inestimable price to the rewarder, I will further in my care to guard effectively against its ever being improperly bestowed, so that its possession may be looked upon as a proof, that the owner gave promise of perseverance and eventual success in the cultivation of the transcendental qualities of our departed friend.

Resolved, that he following gentlemen constitute a Committee to carry into effect the second resolution, viz. Mr. Barrow, Mr. Parker, Major Lamb, Major Forbes, Major Laithwaite Day and Sir Alexander Akbar.

This motion was carried by Dr. Wallich, and supported without a dissenting voice.

The Hon'ble W. W. Bird.—It is not my intention to add any thing from myself to what has been so eloquently and appropriately said in regard to Mr. James Prinsep, but on an occasion such as this when so many persons are assembled in testimony of their regret at his loss, and to do honor to his memory, it would be almost an injustice to one who devoted so large a portion of his life to the public service, were Government to remain silent on the subject. So deeply and extensively his loss appears to be felt, that it cannot but be acceptable to the community to be made acquainted with the high estimation to which his character and merits were held by those authorities both in England and in India, who were best able to judge and to appreciate them. I have accordingly been authorized to read to you documents which I hold in my hand, and which will be found written not in the ordinary style of official correspondence, but in a strain which nothing out the pre-eminence of the individual concerned could have called for. The first document is a letter from the Secretary to the Government of India in answer to the report announcing Mr. Prinsep's illness, and it was addressed to the Select Committee on the 31st October 1838 as follows:

"Your letter of the 29th ultimo, addressed to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal on the subject of Mr. James Prinsep's application for leave to proceed on sick certificate to the Cape and eventually to Europe having been laid before the Government of India, I am honored to transmit you in reply, the enclosed extract of a Resolution, in which His Honor the President in Council had endeavored to the utmost extent of his competency, to meet your wishes by every practicable arrangement favorably to that gentleman's advancement, his absence, and conducive to his reinstatement in the office of Assay Master on his return.

His Honor in Council entertains the most confident hope that His Excellency the Governor General will enter into the feeling and unite with India in pressing it upon the Hon'ble Council as an act not merely of justice to Mr. Prinsep, but of consideration for their own interest, to secure by every liberal provision that Government can to a country where his services have been so distinguished.

But it is not in his official capacity alone that Mr. Prinsep's sudden and unaverted departure is felt by His Honor in Council to call for the expression of sincere regret as a public loss.

Whatever adds to our national reputation, in every walk of literature or science, is assuredly matter for the grateful acknowledgment of the Government, and never was there an individual to whom British India was more largely, or variously indebted for literary and scientific obligation than Mr. Prinsep.

Among his distinguished contemporaries and predecessors there are several who attained considerable pre-eminence in different departments of literature and science, but there is scarcely one who has pursued with equal success the seemingly rival pursuits of antiquarian and scientific research, and whose labours have thrown so much light on the early history of the country or contributed in so great a degree to the development of its physical resources.

That so useful and accomplished an officer should be compelled by the state of his health to quit the country is a subject of the deepest regret, as I am directed to convey to him the right your Committee, the assurance of His Honor in Council's earnest hope, that he at no very distant period may be enabled to resume charge of that office in which he has so long served with credit to himself and benefit to the public."

In the foregoing letter a confident hope is expressed that the Governor General would unite in urging the Hon'ble Court to secure by every liberal provision, Mr. Prinsep's return to this country. It will be seen from the following extract of a letter from Mr. Secretary Macnaghten dated 27th November of the same year, that his Lordship concurred entirely in the recommendations of the President in Council and added his own high authority to His Honor's, in attestation of Mr. Prinsep's merits and services.

"The Governor General deeply laments the loss which the science and literature of India are about to sustain, and he would not omit this opportunity of recording his grateful sense of the excellent counsels which on many occasions he has received from Mr. Prinsep, of the forwardness with which he contributed to the general diffusion of knowledge and of the pains and intelligence with which he was ready to watch and to promote every useful undertaking. His Lordship therefore fully concurs in the testimony borne by the President in Council to the eminent abilities and services of Mr. James Prinsep, and he requests that his own earnest recommendation may be added to that of his Honor in Council that the Hon'ble Court will be pleased to consider the case of that gentleman in the most favourable light that circumstances will admit."

It may be necessary here to explain that as Mr. James Prinsep did not belong either to the Civil or Military Service, he had no title to any of the advantages in respect to Furlough, and retirement which those services enjoy, and that unless some special arrangement were made, he would not only during his absence have been left without any allowance, but by his departure would have forfeited his situation. It is satisfactory to add that the Hon'ble Court acceded in both respects to all that had been recommended—a resolution was passed providing for Mr. Prinsep's case, and all future ones in the office to which he belonged—his situation was left open for his return—and I had his health been restored there was every reason to hope that we should have had him again amongst us, to shed by his researches additional lustre upon the learning and science of India and to establish additional claims to the esteem and attention of the community. But all the hopes were disappointed—he sank, as we are all aware, under the effects of his almost superhuman exertions, and on the 29th of April last the Hon'ble Court announced to us the melancholy event of his death in the following words:—

"It is with deep concern that we communicate to you intelligence of the death of Mr. James Prinsep, late Assay Master in our Mint at Calcutta—while his profound and varied attainments extending to almost every branch of learning and science both European and Asiatic, commanded universal respect, his services established a powerful and peculiar claim upon our approbation. We should not be justified therefore in treating the loss of them as an ordinary event, nor in passing it over without a strong and sincere expression of our regret."

After such testimonials it would be superfluous to me to say any thing further on the subject. I will only therefore add that I cordially concur in all the Resolutions which have been passed, and shall be happy to do every thing in my power to assist in carrying them into effect. The utmost we can do to perpetuate his fame can only be local, and in the natural course of things must sooner or later pass away; but he has raised for himself by his discoveries a monument that will never fade, and will perpetuate his name, as a benefactor of mankind throughout the civilized world to the latest posterity."

Dr. Wallich, in the absence of the President of the Medical and Physical Society, rose, and on behalf of that Society, who had sent a deputation to the meeting expressed its common sympathy with the business of the day.

Mr. Torrens then stated to the meeting that the learned Pundits of Calcutta were desirous, through Pundit Kaimala Kauth Vidgobindar, of offering their tribute to the departed worth of Mr. James Prinsep, and that it would gratify them if he were permitted to read an eulogy in Sanscrit, which had been prepared for the occasion. To this the meeting good naturedly assented, but as the eulogy was to the greater part of the persons present totally unintelligible, Mr. Torrens, as Officiating Secretary to the Asiatic Society read the following extract from a translation:

"Mr. James Prinsep was the fifth (of the brothers)" who was alike known in beauty, kind to all, free from anger and well esteemed by the Hon'ble Company."

Mr. James was skillful in reading and writing the various characters, and the impressions of inscription taken off in inverted order &c.; he knew the various parts of the world, and their kings and royal lines, he was dispassionate, and always mindful of spreading the fame of kings; and never spoke ill of any one.

He knew the causes of the lightning, and of the thunderbolt, of clouds, of the rainbow, of hail, of the storm and fog; he also knew when or where the different characters were prevalent in antiquity; he could draw fire from every substance and not from stones only, and the era of the science of chemistry in inventing machines.

Might he, (Mr. James) ever be prospered! who could separate the five particles of light, of air, and of water, separately, and could display the velocity and time. He was skillful and wise in analysing gold, copper, and iron, &c. &c., and he was most skillful in extracting metals from earth and stones.

He established two markets at Benares, and constructed a large road there, and also, a bridge across the celebrated river named Kaimnassa, that its water might not be touched by crocodiles.

He has caused various inscriptions of gifts and the eulogies of many ancient kings, or facsimiles of their impressions to be brought from temples, mountains, and different countries; and having thus spread the fame of the Kings of antiquity.

He could make out the characters of every inscription or coin of antiquity that was brought to him, and could point a letter when it was omitted in it—He caused the alphabets of various languages to be printed and published. He departed this life in the year of Christ, 1840, and has since assumed a memorable form.

Life is very short, and intellect is very small, and how all the tribes the fame of this able man! The like that of a poor man, after reaching the golden mountain (Tamaru) to take gold from it only with his hands.

Who is there in this world that can still the grief occasioned by the loss of this personage?"

Sir Edward Ryan—Sir, I do not rise with any hope of being able to add one word to what has been so ably and appropriately said by others as to the high moral and intellectual qualities of our lamented friend, and I certainly will not impair by any imperfect efforts of mine, the effect the admirable address read from the chair must have produced on all assembled, but it would not be fitting that I should be altogether silent. I attend here as the President of the Asiatic Society, accompanied by its officers, in pursuance of a resolution of that Society, that a deputation of its members should attend for the purpose of furthering and assisting the objects of this meeting. This is a course, as many present will be aware, that has been adopted by societies in Europe when desirous to pay honor to the memory of any distinguished literary or scientific character. A deputation also attends this meeting from the Medical and Physical Society, and their representative will probably address you. Sir, we are most deeply sensible of the eminent services which Mr. Prinsep has rendered to our Society, and that much of the reputation which the Society, now, we hope, has attained in Europe, is owing to his efforts. I will not attempt to describe him as eminently gifted to accomplish such an end, to scan and weigh the intellectual powers of such a man, would require knowledge and intellect equal to his own. But the Society has not omitted to put on record its opinion of the high sense it entertains of his merits, the resolution it has passed, with your permission, I will proceed to read to the meeting, and I would propose that it be embodied in the present proceedings. "The Asiatic Society is desirous of expressing its sense of the great loss sustained by the death of its Secretary, Mr. James Prinsep. For a period of six years, in the midst of laborious public duties, he devoted himself to the pursuits of the Society with an exampled assiduity and zeal. He carried on an extensive correspondence in Asia and in Europe. He edited the Journal of the Asiatic Society, a work containing the most valuable records of all that had been effected in Natural History, in Chemistry, in Geography, Geology, in Statistics, and in the Languages and Literature of the East; amongst these his own contributions form the most conspicuous part, and have been the means of raising the journal to that high degree of celebrity which it has attained, not only in this country but in Europe, and all parts of the world. His later labours in deciphering the Pali inscriptions of Aneka, and in tracing through the Bactrian coins the link between the histories of the East and West, have placed him in the foremost rank of those whose brilliant discoveries have enlightened and adorned the obscure path of antiquarian research. To have a perpetual memorial of such a man among us, the Society solicits the aid of its members to place his bust by the side of those distinguished men who have preceded him."

The members of the Society have, without delay, placed in the hands of the officers ample means for erecting this testimonial; and no time will be lost in giving the necessary directions to those in Europe who, for their love and veneration for this distinguished man, we know will cheerfully undertake this duty. Sir, I have one proposal to make which is in conformity with a course pursued on similar occasions by learned societies in Europe, namely, that the whole of the proceedings of this day, after having been carefully collected and arranged by the Committee that has been named, be engraved on Vellum, and transmitted to the widow of our lamented friend.

The proposition was seconded by Mr. David Hare and carried unanimously.

Mr. L. A. Riehy then suggested that the bust should be multiplied by casts or engravings, as he felt assured that the European friends of Mr. Prinsep would inspire many persons and Societies in France and Germany with a wish to possess some memorial of his worth and talent. Mr. Riehy was answered that the suggestion would be attended to.

It was moved and seconded that Dr. Grant do leave the chair, and that the chair be taken by Mr. Torrens.

Sir Edward Ryan.—Sir, I am sure I express the opinion of every one present in tendering our most grateful thanks to Dr. Grant for having so ably conducted the proceedings of the present meeting, and for having so kindly undertaken to fill the chair for Mr. Riehy; the task was not an easy one, considering the feelings which the address he has read, was likely to excite and did excite in us all.—Hurkaru, August 11, 1840.

FREE MASONRY.

The Brethren of St. John's Lodge, gave an entertainment to the most excellent and R. W. Brother James Burnes, at Free Masons' Hall, on the 23rd instants. About eight of the most distinguished Brethren in Calcutta, were present on the occasion, including the Venerable Brother Blaquiere, the Provincial Grand Master of Bengal, V. W. Brother Edward Ryan, and V. W. Brother Buxton. The feast of reason and the flow of soul prevailed, and dulcet song, also, tended to promote and complete the harmony of the evening. Brother Guest sang a very queer song in a particularly queer manner.—Brother Henry Torrens sang the Welcome to R. W. Brother James Burnes, composed by himself, and Brother Flamerinn favored the company with the following song, composed by himself, which he sang to a beautiful air, also of his composition, which so pleased the brethren, that he was obliged to sing it a second time, to satisfy them.

LET'S WELCOME THE HOUR.

Let's welcome the hour when thus happy we meet,
May the light of our order long gloriously shine,
While in kindest feeling and harmony sweet
All true brother Free-masons for ever combine!
Some sage once declar'd, that a portion of gold
In mankind lay concealed, but he ne'er could impart
The secret recess, till our masters of old
Provd' the ore was Free-masonry lodg'd in the heart.
Then welcome the hour, &c.

This gold of kind nature shone then but in few,
Nor had masonry's virtue as yet it's full scope,
Till, illum'd by Faith, it arose to our view,

And the heart was adorn'd by the sun-shine of Hope.
The ore even then was unyielding and cold,
Nor as yet had the ensign of light been unveil'd,
Till, melting with Charity's glow the heart's gold
In a stream of warm fellowship flow'd through the word.
Then welcome the hour, &c.

The craft thence diffused the rich, pure golden tide,
Of masonic benevolence right from the heart,
Over all human nature, extensive and wide,
Shedding lustre the order alone can impart.
And now for a toast,—fill your glasses be sure,—
And let each with each heart flow in union with me
A bumper, my friends,—here's the health of all poor
And distressed brother masons, wherever they be.

The toast of obligation was here drank, and the Brethren generally, with heart-felt pleasure, joined in the chorus

Then welcome the hour when those happy we meet,—
May the light of our order long gloriously shine,
While in kindest feeling and harmony sweet
All true brother Free-masons for ever combine!

Several exquisite speeches were made, particularly by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Bombay and Brother David Drummond, and the spring of wit and mirth was kept up till midnight, when the Brethren separated, all quite delighted with the entertainment of the evening, which was greatly promoted by the kind attentions of Worshipful Brother Henry Torrens.

SUPREME COURT.

FRIDAY, 31st JULY, 1840.

ADJOURNED SITTINGS.

Before Sir E. Ryan, Sir J. P. Grant, and Sir H. W. Selous.

COLLYDASS GANGOOLY D. RAJESCHUNDER MULLICK AND OTHERS.

The Court delivered judgment this morning, and there being a difference of opinion upon the Bench, the learned Judges pronounced their opinions seriatim.

Selous, J.—the question here is whether by Hindoo Law, a mortgage, unaccompanied by actual transfer of possession, creates any lien upon the land. The decision in 1837, in the case of Rasickchunder Neoghy, is entitled to great respect and consideration; but it must be recollected that the main ground of the decision was the supposed absence of an entry among the records of this court giving such effect to Bengallee mortgages. Cases, however, have since been found (and for these the court is indebted to the diligence and research of Mr. W. H. Stimpel) in which the court have fully recognized these instruments as creating a lien on land. If these cases had been adduced on the former occasion, the court would probably have arrived at a different conclusion; and I do not therefore feel myself concluded by the authority of that decision. [His Lordship then reviewed the former cases, and I referred to various Hindoo Law authorities.] I am of opinion, therefore, that there must be a defect against the mortgagor (or rather his representative) and the purchaser under the execution.

Grant, J.—regretted that he was unable to arrive at the same conclusion as his learned brethren. The question was simply, whether by Hindoo law (for it was strictly according to Hindoo law that the court must decide) an ordinary pledge was good against creditors and purchasers without delivery, actual or symbolical. As to a mortgage between Hindoo parties, by deeds of lease and release, that depended upon a fiction of law,—the lease giving possession, and the release giving title. With reference to the recent correspondence upon the subject of Bengallee mortgages, between the Supreme Court and Sudder Judges, his Lordship said he had great respect for the opinions of those learned persons, but as the Company's Courts were only governed by Hindoo law in certain matters, their decisions did not necessarily furnish any guide as to the Hindoo law upon the subject now under consideration. [His Lordship then referred to various Hindoo law authorities, and said that it was quite clear that pledge without possession gave no lien. His Lordship also referred to the cases collected as having been decided by this court, and expressed his opinion that Ghose v. Rasickchunder Neoghy was the only case in point, all of the other decrees being either exparte or by consent, and the question not appearing to have been raised by the court or the counsel.] According to the rules of Hindoo law therefore, and the authority of the case of Ghose v. Neoghy, the bill ought to be dismissed.

Ryan, C. J.—said, that it was always to him a matter of regret when any difference of opinion existed on the Bench, and the more so when (as in the present case) the question to be determined was a most important question of law. His Lordship admitted that the question must be decided according to the rules of Hindoo Law relating to contracts of pledge. He admitted also that even if those rules were found practically inconvenient in their application, it was for the legislature, and not for the Judges to remedy the defect. But the cases produced from the records of this court showed that the court had already put a construction upon the rules of Hindoo Law, as applicable to mortgages, and it would be unwise and unsafe to depart from that construction now. [His Lordship reviewed the cases in detail, and said that the case of Ghose v. Neoghy was the only one opposed to the current of authority, and that was decided upon the supposition that the Court's Records furnished no precedents of decrees upon Bengallee Mortgages. The result of the decisions was that the court had, in innumerable instances, recognized mortgages between Hindoo parties, as creating a lien, without any actual possession of the land. It was true that in the majority of instances, the instruments were English deeds of lease and release; but it was idle to talk of fiction and symbolical delivery in one case, and to repudiate it in the other. No doubt the decisions of Company's Courts were not to be looked to as guides for the construction of Hindoo law, which this court was bound to follow, but those decisions were of importance, at all events, when found to be in conformity with the practice which had prevailed in this court. His obnoxious reason why so few decrees upon Bengallee Mortgages were to be met with, was that they had hitherto been treated as creating a simple contract debt at law, upon which the Mortgages might proceed (as the covenants in an English Mortgage might be proceeded (as the covenants in an English Mortgage might be proceeded upon at law), and as the remedy was found to be generally simpler and more expeditious, it was only in a few cases that a Court of Equity was resorted to. It was clear, upon the whole view of the decisions, that this court had treated Bengallee Mortgages as equitable, if not as legal, mortgages. In the present case there was a delivery of the title deeds and the purchaser at the Sheriff's sale purchased, not merely with notice, but actually subject to the claim of the mortgagor. Supposing it therefore, to be an equitable mortgage only, and not good as against a bona fide purchaser without notice, it would at least override the claim of an execution creditor (with or without notice) and of a subsequent purchaser with notice. The complainant was therefore entitled to his decree.

Decree accordingly.

RISUNSHUR BEAL D. RAMDHONE BONNERJEE AND ANOTHER,

Ryan, C. J.—delivered the judgment of the court. This was a bill filed by the complainant, a mortgagee (under a Bengallee mortgage) against the mortgagor, Ramdhone Bonnerjee, and wife, Nocomimoney Dabee, the latter of whom claimed to be entitled under a prior (English) Mortgage from her husband. The Court was satisfied that the prior mortgage set up by his wife, (for the alleged consideration of four lakhs of rupees) was fraudulent. The court would always look with suspicion upon such a transaction between husband and wife, and would require the strongest and clearest proof before they allowed it to defeat the bona fide claim of a third party. Here there was no question as to the bona fide of the complainant's claim,—he was admitted to be an unpaid mortgagee (to whom about 1,00,000 was due). Some letters had been put in at the hearing, tending to show that the complainant had notice of the wife's claim. This would no doubt be a bar, if the court thought the fact established; but they totally discredited the authenticity of the letters. Mr. Justice Grant concurred with the rest of the court in this case, although the complainant's title was under a Bengalee Mortgage; because his opinion in the preceding case had reference only to the intervening rights of third parties—bona fide creditors of purchasers for valuable consideration. Here no third party's right intervened, as the court considered the wife's mortgage wholly fraudulent, and void as against the complainant. The complainant therefore was entitled to his decree.

Decree accordingly.

BOMBERGERS V. BARTIE.

The Court pronounced their judgment in the case, decreeing for the complainant.

Decree accordingly.

PIKA SIDA.

MITYLOU SEAL, PRISON DUNCAN LATIMER.

Mr. MITYLOU opened the pleadings.

The issue being upon the defendant, his counsel commenced their case first.

Mr. Clarke (with whom was Mr. Sanders) for the defence, said that this was an action to recover damages for the alleged breach of a special contract to fit certain new machinery on the Steamer Banion. The defendant admitted that the contract in question had been made, and that he had thereby undertaken to complete the specified repairs for Rs. 6533, (of which Rs. 3094) was to be paid down within three months from 13th May 1839, and in default he was to pay Rs. 100, per day for damages, for the whole time after the expiration of the three months and one month more, that the Steamer should remain unhurried. The work was certainly not done within the time, and indeed still remained unhurried; but the defence was that certain materials were to have been supplied and the work done by the plaintiff, and that it was the plaintiff's own delay in this respect which caused the non-performance on the part of the defendant.

Several witnesses were called for the defence. One of them, a ship-wright employed by defendant said that he had been delayed in the construction of the boiler, for want of sheet iron,—which the plaintiff was the party to supply, but on cross-examination he admitted that this did not occur until September.

The main circumstance relied upon for the defence was that the "Spars" (which were to have been built by the plaintiff) were not finished until long after the time limited in the contract for the completion of the whole work, and two witnesses swore that the Spars could not be fixed after the boiler and engines were aboard, without very great risk. It would require to careen the vessel over very much, and the Banion was very particularly crank.

The Advocate-General (with whom were Messrs. Leith and Morton) first contended that the defendant had made out no case at all. There was nothing in the agreement about the supply of materials by the plaintiff, or the work to be done on his part, being a condition precedent. As to the evidence about the "Spars" not being completed, this could be no excuse for his omission. The plaintiff might choose to run the risk (such as it was) of fixing the Spars after the whole of the defendant's work was finished.

The Court said that there certainly was evidence to go to a Jury, whether the plaintiff's own delays had not in fact caused the delay of the defendant.

The Advocate-General said he should call witnesses, who would prove clearly that there was no delay whatever on the part of the plaintiff, or his people, until at least long after the contract had been broken by the defendant; nay further, that the defendant had even complained that they were getting on too fast with the wood work. In the month of November the plaintiff had certainly refused to supply further materials, because the defendant could not send in any general estimate, but annoyed him by daily applying for different items. It was hoped the plaintiff would be allowed to recover for the whole period at the rate per diem agreed upon,—from the day of the contract broken to the time of action brought.

Three witnesses were called for the plaintiff. The case was not over until past eight o'clock.

The Court found a verdict for the plaintiff, calculating the damages at Rs. 100 per day from the time of the breach of contract until the 30th of November. This amounted to Rs. 7,800.

Verdict for plaintiff accordingly.

The Chief Justice, in a neat and short address, told the gentlemen of the Grand Jury, that he was glad to inform them that there were not many cases this Session, and no one of these was of any serious nature, comprising burglaries and larcenies. His lordship observed, that he was happy to see that there was not any case of murder or manslaughter, or even maiming, cutting or wounding, which is a common offence with the natives of this country. Some of the gentlemen of the Grand Jury had similar cases before them on a former occasion, his lordship therefore trusted that there would be no difficulty experienced in going through them. His lordship concluded by saying that he hoped the Grand Jury would bestow their attention to the evidences brought before them, and should they have occasion to consult him, he would be very glad to render them every assistance.

Thomas Mandon, charged with uttering, with intent to defraud one Honemally Seal, a forged bill of exchange, purporting to be drawn by David Clarke, of Boywangleah, for Co's Rs. 200, on Messrs. Cokerell and Co. of Calcutta. On being placed at the bar, he appeared very much affected, and on being charged by the Clerk of the Crown pleaded Guilty. The Chief Justice deferred passing sentence to a future period. We learn that the young man who is about 20 years of age, is very respectably connected in this country.

Hurry Doss—Bhoynauth—and Kartick, were placed at the bar, the first charged with stealing from his master Sumbuchurn Sein a waist chain and ear-rings value 210 rupees and the two last with receiving the same. In the case the jury retired at 2 a. m. and did not bring out their verdict until 5, owing, it is said, to the obscurity of a well known juror, who has already signalized himself in similar freaks, even to the length of a summer's night.

Donkhoo.—Charged with stealing from Captain Marshall, of the schooner Harlequin, a quantity of sovereigns, was found guilty, but recommended to mercy, and sentenced to hard labour in the house of correction for 3 months. On the prisoner's being arraigned, one of the gentlemen of the jury shewed his Lordship that some other juror may be substituted instead of Mr. William Anderson, with whom he found from experience that it was impossible to come to any just conclusion, as neither reason or facts had any effect on him. With this reasonable request his Lordship could not of course comply, and the case was gone into and concluded without any corroboration of Mr. Anderson's of the sic volo sic jubeo principles so ungenerously imputed to him.

8TH AUGUST.

Nilmony Mistry, Cheroo and Dhurmin, were charged with having forged nine papers, intended to be notes of the Bank of Bengal, eight for ten rupees each, and one for sixteen rupees.

It appeared in evidence, that about the beginning of Falcoun last, the first prisoner, Nilmony Mistry, had proposed to a man named Calcechurn Dutt, whom he had previously known, to effect the sale of forged banknotes for him. The other pretended to agree with the proposal, and having even seen forged notes with Nilmony, went and communicated the circumstance to the Police. He was for some days afterwards employed in watching the proceedings of Nilmoney, and reporting what he observed to the Police. The consequence was that on the 4th May last, Mr. McCann, Mr. Constable Perry, and others, went to a house in Sukea's Street, and found the three prisoners sitting together on a mat in the veranda with a cushion before them, and one of them, Dhurmin, apparently doing something with a copper plate on the cushion, which, upon seeing the police, he quickly concealed under the mat, and attempted to escape, but he was immediately seized by Mr. McCann at the same time that Cheroo and Dhurmin were secured by his attendants. In the hand of Cheroo was found a genuine Bank of Bengal note. On the mat, on which the prisoners had been sitting, were found a counterfeit Bengal Bank Note for 10 rupees, and some engraving instruments, and under the mat two copper plates, which were produced in court and one of which appeared to be an unfinished plate intended for Bank note of twenty rupees. Mr. McCann then entered a room, which opened on the veranda, and there found on a mat likewise, some sheets of post paper, a small hammer, a rompage and a pencil, and eight other counterfeit Bank of Bengal notes, seven of which were for 10 rupees each. All these things were produced by Mr. McCann in court. Mr. Lee, accountant of the Bengal Bank, examined the notes and pronounced them all to be forgeries. These he said might, however, pass for genuine notes with natives. It further appeared that the prisoners had but a few days before hired the house, in which they were taken up from a washer woman named Duputty, to whom they represented themselves as persons employed in engraving police badges.

The Jury having found them guilty of the crimes they were charged with, the three prisoners were sentenced by the Judge to be transported for the term of their natural lives to the Eastern Coast of the Bay of Bengal, South of the Gulph of Martaban.

A European named Henry Weekes, recently arrived, was charged with having stolen a sapphire ring, the property of Pittar and Co., from the shop of Mr. William Charles, at Benares, where the article had been exposed for sale upon commission. It appeared from the statement of witnesses, that the prosecutor Mr. Charles, was a general shop keeper at Benares, and that he had in his shop, besides various other articles, jewellery on commission, part of which latter being the property of Messrs. Pittar and Co. of Calcutta. The prisoner had been for some months in the commencement of the present year, employed as an assistant by Mr. Charles in his shop, and was afterwards discharged at his own request. Some time subsequent to this, prisoner was living with a Mr. Gwatkin at Benares, and one day previous to his departure from that place, pressed upon Mr. Gwatkin to accept a sapphire ring, although Mr. G. declined to do so, saying he did not want one. Weekes continued to offer the ring as a present, and threw it into Mr. Gwatkin's desk. Mr. G. having afterwards occasion to go to Mr. Charles, took the ring with him, which he showed to Mr. Charles in the course of conversation, and the latter immediately recognized the ring as his property. Gwatkin explained how he had come by the ring, the consequence of which was that they both waited upon the magistrate of Benares, and afterwards upon the magistrate of Gazipoor; from the latter they obtained a warrant, with which they went to a budgerow proceeding down the river, and took Weekes into custody. The ring was produced in Court; it had been sent down sealed by the magistrate of Benares.

The defence of Weekes appeared to be a lame one and unworthy of credit. He ascribed the prosecution to the malice of Gwatkin, because the latter, he said, was afraid that the prisoner would bring to light some malpractices of his, and had, therefore, recourse to this mode of incapacitating him from giving evidence against Gwatkin.

Prisoner being found guilty, was sentenced to be transported for seven years to Van Diemen's Land.

10TH AUGUST.

(Before Sir Edward Ryan.)

Akbar, Anusichunder Pathioch, and Liehman Pindah, charged with stealing, while on their way from the Godowns of Carr, Tagore and Co. to Seemlah 530 gross of corks, value 1812, the property of Hurachunder Paul and Thackoor Doss Paul, when the two first found guilty (but not sentenced) the last acquitted and discharged.

The Court does not sit to-morrow. It stands adjourned until Wednesday.—Hurkaru, August 11, 1840.

August 12, 1840.

(Before Sir Edward Ryan.)

Gopul Dass, Thakoor Dass, Coomar Thakoor Dass, Bearer, and Sisterbur Bearer, charged with breaking into the godowns of one Budeenauth Munna and stealing therefrom various kinds of cloth, handkerchiefs, thread, and umbrellas, value 193 rupees, were severally found guilty, and the sentence deferred to a future period.

Abraham Joseph Cohen an Israelite, charged with stealing a remnant of velvet and some silk, the property of Ezekiel Musleah, was found not guilty and discharged.

Ramdeen Jemadar, Ramdeen Jomadar of Ferozpoor, Ramjohn Jemadar, Roorkha Hibe and several other policemen, stood charged with assault and robbery, but as the prosecutor did not appear, and it was proved, that he had left Calcutta, we are unable to give the particulars of the case. They were, under the direction of the Judge, severally acquitted.

August 13.

Runkisore Ray, charged with forging a Bengallee endorsement on the back of a Company's paper, was found not guilty, and discharged.

INSOLVENT COURT.

AUGUST 1, 1840.

(Before Sir H. W. Seton.)

To day being the first day of the Sessions, the court in consequence did not sit until 12 o'clock.

IN THE MATTER OF KISTNOORE DAY.

The insolvent was discharged without opposition.

IN THE MATTER OF SINGARAY SEN.

The insolvent is not in custody, and as no advertisement had appeared, which they could not dispense with, he was ordered to be brought in on the next Court day, which would be on the 3d of September.

IN THE MATTER OF SYUD MEERAH.

The insolvent was opposed by Mr. Clarke on behalf of Abdool Gunny. On being examined, he said that he had only one creditor to whom the sum of 1,587 rupees was owing, but the debt was disputed; he had instituted an action against the creditor named Abdool Gunny at the Supreme Court, and the Judges referred the case to the arbitration of Mr. Smith. The arbitration occupied 5 days, he had to receive 1,935 rupees and the arbitrator very unjustly cut his claim to 4 rupees, 15 annas and 1 pie, and denied to pay all the costs of the action. He never applied to the Court to set aside the award but instructed his attorney, Mr. Martindell, to do so. Insolvent was then arrested and put in jail. He was residing at Bahaghat at the time of his arrest. The two boxes put down in the schedule were in his house and 1,600 rupees, were in them, six Bank of Bengal Notes for 50 rupees each, and six for 100 Rupees and 150 rupees in silver. He has the numbers of the notes at the jail and could furnish them to the Assignees. All the notes were stolen two days after he had been put in jail, together with his other property. He gave notice of the robbery to the Chief Magistrate, through one of the jail peons, and sent the numbers of the notes to the Bank, and has not received information yet of their having been presented. When the theft took place insolvent's servant was with him at the jail, he had no suspicion against the man, and therefore did not make him over to the police. Insolvent earned on trade to the amount of 4 or 5,000 rupees, but he had been defrauded and ruined. Abdool Gunny, Mr. Martindell and others are instrumental to his ruin. The receipts given by Mr. Martindell are all lost. He informed him of the circumstance, but never applied for fresh receipts. Mr. Martindell had received from him 1,600 rupees, and when he heard that the receipts were lost he said that he had received only 1,400 rupees and claimed 200 rupees more. About 4 or 5 months prior to his going to jail he lent Shariff Khansanah 500 rupees; the man extorted this money from him, he said that if insolvent would not give him that amount his business to Court would be spoiled. Shariff gave no evidence on his behalf; he was insolvent's meektest and he took him to Mr. Martindell. When the case was about to come on, Shariff was put in jail and insolvent gave Buncheram 300 rupees under the same circumstances. Shariff as well as Buncheram said, give us the money and we will give the witnesses, and also bribe Abdul Gunny's witnesses. Buncheram gave his evidence before the arbitrator. Another person named Oodui obtained 100 rupees, he told insolvent that Abdul had offered him a bribe of 600 rupees to give evidence against him, but if he received 100 rupees he would not do so.

Mr. Clarke said that he had never before observed another schedule live the insolvent's almost all the creditor's names were put down as having received money under false pretences and no security. The insolvent was remanded till the next court day, in order to amend his schedule.

IN THE MATTER OF DEONATH DUTT.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Leith were for the opposing creditors, the former for Kunny Lall Tagore and the latter for Ramchunder Ghose. Mr. Clarke and Mr. Lurion were for the insolvent.

Being examined by the Advocate-General, he said that he is the son of Madob Chunder Dutt and is about 26 or 27 years of age: he was employed under his father (who is a Baman) at Jamieson and Co's. He had purchased property without the knowledge of his father. He receives no fixed allowance by his father, if he absented himself from business his father allowed him only the common necessities of life, and if he gave his attendance regularly he used to get 200 rupees per mensem for his private expenses. The horses belonging to him are mentioned in the schedule, viz. a long tailed mare and a Hangoon pony—another one died. He had the use of an English horse belonging to his father, bought from Hunter and Co. He purchased it for 1,500 rupees with the consent of his father; his father is not in the habit of riding. There are four saddle horses in his father's stables which were used by him as well as his brother and nephew. He is designated the Sporting Haboo from his partiality to horses and hunting and being generally seen on the course. He has given up hunting for the last 3 or 4 years consequent on an accident that he met with. Insolvent does not consider the English horse as his property, as at the time his father paid for it he abused him, and he had only the use of it. The bill the believes was made in his name, but the horse is in his father's stables. Insolvent was also in the habit of purchasing jewellery in his own name, and has given them all away. He thought that his father would pay for them. Had he been aware that his father would not pay he should not have made the purchases. He purchased a gold chain from Pittar in October 1838 for 98 rupees and gave it to his brother in law named Modosodun Pyne, who is a resident of Calcutta—he is also employed under the insolvent's father in the same way as he was. The chain was given to Modosodun about 5 or 6 months ago, and some time after that which he believed to be about two months he went to jail. This was in April, and two cases were pending against him. His father came to the knowledge of the purchases of the jewellery after he was put in jail. His father never saw him put on the chain as he had never used it, but once or twice a watch was purchased by his father and given to him to use. His father has the watch now; the watch is not entered in his schedule as it did not belong to him. There were two or three seals attached to it, and his name was engraved on them. Before he got his name engraved on them, he told his father of it, and he got Pittar and Co to do it, and his father paid for the engraving. He purchased a pair of gold spectacles on account of bad sight and afterwards gave it away as a present to a friend of his who is a Deputy Collector at Sylhet, named Govind Purnaud Pandit. This was about 8 or 9 months ago, and he did not know whether his friend required it or not. He believes that the gold chain and spectacles were bought at the same time; the chain was not fixed to the watch given to him by his father, but the one he purchased from Rajoo Roy, which he disposed of to a native during the last rains. Insolvent also bought a set of English sleeve studs for 27 rupees, which he gave his brother on the same day. In November 1838 he purchased a gold enamelled ring which he gave away to a Hindoo lady named Bad-hah Khasnum about a month or so after; he also gave a gold signet ring to a female visitor on one of her visits. D Dutt was engraved on it; this was about a month and half before he was put in jail. Insolvent also purchased 27 very rich silver crests for the Pagree or turban, which he gave to all the servants. He does not recollect what he paid for them, his name was not engraved on them. Some of the servants are still in the employ of his father and some have left. He had one personal servant and his father allowed him one. He also bought a single stone brilliant diamond ring for 150 rupees, which he presented to his brother on the same day; a gold signet ring set with onyx that he purchased was given to his father-in-law, a day or two after, he also bought a handsome gold ring set with blood stone, which he lost ten or fifteen days after, together with a silver hookah surprise, he had not his hookah with him immediately before he went to jail, he is obliged now to use a common hookah. All the rings that he bought were five or six in number, and all have been given away. He gave a single stone diamond ring to his brother and another to another female friend named Hyah. This friend came occasionally to see him in the jail. He did not allow her 80 rupees per month whilst he was in jail. He does not think that any of his friends paid her unless she was under any of their protection. He does not recollect of having had more watch chains than one. A friend had given him one in order to get it repaired. He does not remember his name, but believes it was Modosodun Pyne. It was not the one given to him by the insolvent. Insolvent's crest is a tiger or a cat, he does not recollect which—he believes it to be a tiger. He forgets what was his motto, it was a something in English characters, the gold pencil case that he had dropped out of his pocket one day, while in the act of getting into his carriage, and was lost. This happened in the last cold season. The chain was not attached to his person by a chain. About 3 or 4 months before he went to jail he bought a diamond and emerald ring for 200 rupees, and made a present of it to Mr. Postlowate, the wife of Lieutenant Postlowate, of the Cameroons. He had for the last eighteen months purchased from one shop jewellery in the amount of 12 or 1,300 rupees, and has already said what he had done with them. He never gave any champagne to his friends at the jail, his friends used to give them. J. E. D Silva, is one of them who is in jail, for debt. These things used to be given in insolvent's house because his own room was too small, he used to sit at the same table.

On the Advocate General's asking him whether he partook of the wine on the table, Mr. Clarke objected to his replying as it involved his cast. He does not know from where the things were brought. Insolvent pays for house rent in jail 125 rupees. He is sick and cannot live in the rooms allowed by the Company. He gave Captain Currie an accommodation note for 8,000 rupees—it was on the mortgage of the Duke of Bedford. Captain Currie wanted to give him as security his life insurance. He executed no deed and promised to pay him after one year. Insolvent took a draft of the deed of security to Mr. Shaw to be examined—he was not in the office then, and he left the deed with his assistant. He does not know if that was Mr. Shaw's writing on the deed as he had no correspondence with him. Rajoo Roy is the son of Kinnoo Roy, and was the person who sold him the watch, for which insolvent paid him about fifteen days before the filing of his schedule. He had not given any instructions about it then. He thought of getting a letter of licence from his creditors and did not intend taking the benefit of the act. He thinks Rajoo Roy is worth property, as he had paid eight or ten thousand rupees on his acceptance.

Cross-examined by Mr. Leith.—Insolvent used a buggy and a grey horse, but not an English one. He cannot say the exact value of the horse, but he was offered 600 rupees for it by Mr. Stopford, and he told him to speak to his father about it. He bought a horse from Captain Collie and gave it to Abdul Hossein of Emaubaug lane, in exchange for the grey one. It belongs to my father and is in his stables. When I contracted all this debt, I thought that his father would have paid it as he did on former occasions, but he refused to do so. On this occasion, however, he forbade insolvent to incur any more debt, for he would not pay any of his extravagant bills in future; insolvent after this gradually left off his extravagance. The English horse was purchased with the consent of insolvent's father. Subsequently he twice or thrice told insolvent and his father paid for him. Within the last year and half he had about five or six horses, including his father's. Whenever he spoke of them, he represented them as his own horses, in the same manner as the clothes and shoes he had on, being purchased by his father. Some of his wearing apparel are at his father's; the value of them may be about 1,000 or 1,200 rupees, there were no shawls, as he seldom or ever used any—when he had occasion for any he generally asked his father. He is in the habit of using flannel. About a month before he was put in jail his father took away three or four silver spoons from him—he had not any gold or silver plates.

He does not recollect of Mr. Hedger having told him that Captain Currie had signed the assignment of the Duke of Bedford.

The Advocate-General here said that when he examined Captain Currie a short time ago on behalf of Moteeloll Seal, he swore that for the accommodation note will be made an assignment of the Duke of Bedford, he paid 23,000 rupees for it and it is worth 40,000 rupees and worth while redeeming.

Insolvent stated that he had no conversation with Mr. Hedger, Mr. Smalley gave him a draft and he (insolvent) told Captain Currie that he would not make the security. Mr. Smalley said you better take the security. Insolvent saw the evidence of Captain Currie in the newspapers and sent word to his father to make enquiries. His house-rent in jail is 125 rupees, he could not positively state what his other expenses amounted to. He has stated the amount in his schedule by guess. Insolvent is troubled with asthma, and must confess that he drinks wine by the advice of his doctor.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clarke.—Mr. Smalley gave the draft of the deed of assignment of the Duke of Bedford; insolvent took it to Mr. Shaw and told him that it would not do. When Captain Currie wanted the money he offered insolvent his life insurance. A few months after when insolvent asked him for the life insurance, Captain Currie offered him a ship which had been driven ashore at Saugor during the May gale of 1833. He never saw the draft engrossed and was not present when it was executed. After he had given his acceptance, the money was given by Ramchunder Ghose. Insolvent produced a letter from Captain Currie to him when he had signed the draft. Captain Currie was then living at Mr. Hedgers, a letter from Mr. Guest the tailor, was also produced, and another from Mr. Parker, of the Exchange. Insolvent borrowed money from Kunnye Loll Tagore on two occasions, once 2,000 rupees which had been paid by his father, when his father forbade Kunnye Loll to give him any further credit. After the repayment of the 2,000 he borrowed 900 rupees more.

Cross-examined by the Advocate-General—Kunnye Loll Tagore charged me no interest, as he and the insolvent were intimate.

Mr. Gifford a witness examined by the Advocate-General—The insolvent's father is a Banian in the house of Jamieson and Co., the insolvent was not the Banian nor had he any property in the house.

Mr. Hedger, examined by the Advocate-General, stated that he is an attesting witness to the assignment the draft of which had been prepared some time before by Mr. Shaw, on the part of the insolvent, the acceptance for which the security was given was for 12 months; before it became due, Captain Currie applied for its renewal. The insolvent did not believe the security to be good, he is not aware if the security is worth anything. Capt. Currie told him that the vessel was copper fastened, and if it was broke or blown up it would fetch more than the amount for which it had been mortgaged.

Examined by Mr. Morton.—Witness generally acted as the Attorney of Captain Currie, but this time he acted merely as a friend, he is attorney for one of the opposing creditors and the assignment came out of his possession.

Cross-examined by the Advocate-General.—Witness prepared the schedule of Captain Currie.

Muldeb Chunder Dutt being examined by the Advocate-General said the insolvent is my son, and there are various kinds of properties belonging to me which he would use, and when he gave him the use of these he told him that he must not consider them as his own. Witness gave him the use of an English horse, and told him that he would not pay anything but contractually, him, and forbid those who were in the habit of giving him credit, not to do so any more. The insolvent was employed under witness as a scribe, and was subject to his orders, he mortgaged a silver surpise which witness gave him to use and he redeemed him and redeemed it, this occurred about 5 or 6 months ago.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clarke.—His son has been very expensive to him, and he has been obliged to pay several times large sums on his account. There was a draft drawn by Gossin and accepted by the insolvent taken to the Bengal bank for discount, witness happened to be at the Bank and said, that he would not pay a pice on his account. Witness paid 2,000 rupees to Kunnye Loll Tagore on account of the insolvent. He pays the expenses of the horses and also for the insolvent's servants and expenses in jail, including the rent of his house he occupies. Witness settled the rent with Mr. King, he did not pay for any Champagne parties on account of the insolvent, he has paid for soda water.

The Advocate-General submitted that what the insolvent had the use of ought to be inserted in his schedule including his wearing apparel amounting in value according to his own statement to about 1,000 or 1,200 rupees, also the four horses. He has put down wearing apparel to the value of only 50 rupees, and a long tailed mare and Rangoon pony and ratan buggy. The insolvent comes toward nobbling and says 'I am the Sporting Baboo' and perhaps if he is out, his father will restore to him all his wardrobe and this very evening he will be seen on the course sporting his top boots and leather breeches upon his English horse, and now tells that he cannot pay his debt, there was nothing more disgraceful than his applying for a discharge, the Advocate-General contended that he ought to be remanded,

Mr. Leigh submitted that independent of there being sufficient grounds for the insolvent to be remanded, there was a serious objection to his being discharged. By the 58th section of the act he had contracted debt under false pretence, and no reasonable chance of ever repaying it, 'till he recklessly went into debt, and he was surprised that his father known as a man of opulence should before all the flimfoos present keep back his clothe, it is perfectly clear that the schedule is not as it ought to be.

Mr. Clarke stated that there was no disgrace attached to his client who is a young man, but to those who had encouraged him Kuanyo Lall, after being warned by the father, promised that he would not let him have further credit after the 2 000 rupees were paid him, he then lets him have the loan of another sum of money, and when he could not get from the father he comes here to oppose him. This the learned counsel said was disgraceful, and contended that his client should not be remanded.

The Court observed that the insolvent did not come within that Clause of the Act cited by Mr. Leith, for he had expectations of paying, knowing he had an indulgent father. With regard to the omission of the security it did not appear to have been wilful.

The Advocate General spoke at great length and after some argument examined the insolvent again. He stated that there was in his father's stable an English horse, an Arab horse a grey pony and a grey mare. The latter he got in exchange for the one he purchased for Mr. Captain Colffe, his father did approve of the exchange and he was obliged to pay out of his own pocket about 125 rupees.

The Court said that all the property the insolvent had the use of should appear in its schedule and be subject to be claimed by his father.

The case was adjourned till Monday.

The matter of Manuk Malcolim Minuk stands over for three months.

The following dividends were declared

In the Estate of James Cullen, 8 rupees 12 annas per cent.

John Brown 15 rupees per cent.

Kinnoolali Benugram and Chirleetha 1 rupee 13 annas p r cent.

The Court broke up at a very late hour — Harkara,

IN THE MATTER OF DEONATH DUTT.

The solvent was further examined by the insolvent, he said, his father had examined such of the schedule as he paid for. The practical hearing of the schedule applies in the whole of the article, he had marked off with a pencil, viz., a beaver Scotch cap, one silver faced officer's cap, and two boat cloaks, the latter he gave away, one to his brother and the other to his brother in law. His brother - not lives in his own house, which is about a mile from it - and his brother received only a father. Of the three boat cloth jackets, and 2 1/2 yards of blue cloth were presented to his brother, the three in the other two were given to his brother in law. The other two were given to his father's house - the silk mantle was bought for her; he gave away the six pairs of male breeches to his brother and brother-in-law, and they were partly used by him. This was about a month or two prior to his being put to jail. Some of his wearing apparel was stolen from the shop of his washerman. He purchased a silver mounted shabraque and an urdhar for his horse, which were stolen by his syc named Gunga, together with a saddle and bridle. Insolvent was in the habit of selling some of the horses, that he purchased on credit, when he did not like them; he also purchased horses for ready money. A great quantity of his wearing apparel was lost by his sirdar beater. Insolvent did not take him to the Police. Mr O'Hanlon once fined him 10 rupees for assaulting one of his servants. The articles purchased from Mr Houtkey, the tailor, were not mentioned in the schedule, as they were not of the same kind. Insolvent gave Mr. Houtkey two shirazi, one for 500 and the other for 400 rupees, one of which was discounted at the Union Bank, and has not yet been paid, 14 rupees are put down as due to Gibson and Co. Insolvent purchased from them a fur and three velvet caps, and two or three vests, which he presented to a friend, the former about three or 4 days after, and the latter a time day. The amount of such bills as were sent by Gibson and Co. has been mortd. About six or seven days subsequent to his going to jail, he sent circulars to his creditors. The money borrowed from Kunney Lall Fagrie has been expended. Insolvent has not been in the habit of keeping an account of monies received and expended. Insolvent also borrowed money from Kallikissen Roy, but has no recollection whether he gave him a promissory note or not. It was spent as soon as it was received, but he cannot say to what particular purpose it was applied. The debt to Kunney Lall Fagrie, of 2,000 rupees, was contracted previous to this, the money was not borrowed in order to give D. M. Nixon. Insolvent did not give Dr. Maxton any money, nor had he any idea of giving him any. Insolvent does not recollect whether he borrowed any money from Kallikissen or his father, for the purpose of paying Dr. Maxton. A person cannot always recall to him every last occurrence. Insolvent recollects borrowing money from Kallikissen, but he does not remember if it was for Dr. Maxton. He was in the habit of borrowing money from Rajoo Roy. He used to draw small sums from him, and when the account came up to 2,650 rupees he gave him a promissory note. Last Saturday he mentioned that he received a silver watch chain and two seals from his father, and he purchased a gold watch and chain from Rajoo Roy; the latter he sold to an individual whose name he does not recollect. Insolvent gave the person a certificate, mentioning the maker's name, number, &c. Insolvent does not remember what amount he received for the watch, as some time has since elapsed. This transaction took place during the rains of the last year. Insolvent is positive that the person was not a relative of his, he is not aware if his brother in law knows the name of the individual, or the time at that the watch was sold. The maker, to the best of his recollection is either McCabe or Murray. Insolvent paid 5 or 600 rupees for the watch, but he does not remember for what sum he sold it. He has not got a copy of the certificate, and therefore is unable to say what the number was. His brother-in-law did pay him the money, but he was instrumental in getting it sold. The money was paid to him by a Hindallee at Jackson and Co's office. Insolvent is unable to give any further account of the watch. Insolvent bought a bulgy with the money. It was to the best of his belief from a Mr. Lyons.

His father had given his wife some jewellery on her wedding day. About 9 years ago insolvent sold a part of it consisting of diamonds. It was done without the knowledge of his father. When he subsequently came to know of it he took the rest of the jewels, being apprehensive that they would be sold also. He said that he was entitled to take back the jewels as they had been given to her by him. As they were considered to be his father's property, insolvent did not insert them in his schedule.

Examined by Mr. Leith—Insolvent purchased the horse that he had sold at Jenkins, Low and Co's about 7 or 8 months ago. He does not recollect from whom it was bought, but it was a gray horse. He does not remember what sum he paid for it. For the last of his recollection, he paid 7 or 800 rupees. He believes that he paid the money for it, otherwise it would have been inserted in his schedule. Insolvent cannot say whether the horse was an English or an Arabian—he does not know the difference between one and the other, notwithstanding that he is the Sporting Baboo. Insolvent had purchased several horses from Hunter and Co., and he believes he might have purchased the horse from them. He has had extensive dealings with Hunter and Co. in the way of buying and selling horses. He does not remember the date of the month that he was put in jail. He recollects it was in April last. The Sheriff of the Jail must be aware of it. He cannot state if it was on the 12th of April. Insolvent does not recollect of having received 200 rupees from Captain Currie from the 8,000, or it would have been inserted in his schedule.

Then examined by Mr. Morton The things that he used were detained by his father prior to his insolvency, and are mentioned in the list, which is correct.

Mr. Morton said, that the father of the insolvent was willing to give up the four horses, silver watch chain and seals, and other property, to the assignee, and proposed that they be entered in his schedule.

After some argument between the Advocate General who applied that the insolvent should be remanded until he gave a more satisfactory account of the whole of the property he had in his possession, and the insolvent counsel, the court ordered that the property given up by the father be inserted in the schedule, and the insolvent was discharged.

In the matter of PETER FORSTER. Discharged with costs.—Hurkaru, August 5, 1840.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1840.

(Before Sir H. W. Selon.)

IN THE MATTER OF ISAAC JACOB AND OTHERS

These insolvents (who are not in custody) attended for further examination. Mr. Prinsep appeared for the opposing creditors, the Bank of Bengal, and Mr. Morton for the insolvents.

The chief partner in the late Hebrew firm of Jacob and Co. was examined by Mr. Prinsep at considerable length. The debt due to the Bank arises upon twelve different drafts, amounting in the whole to Co's Rs 88,637. The insolvents were unable to give any distinct account of the mode in which this money had been disposed of, or indeed of any of their dealings, but referred to the Hebrew and Bengallee books of account, which had been given to the Assignee. One of the partners Abraham Mukleah, when examined, was unable to give any account whatever of the contents of the Schedule or the general dealings of the firm, and said that he had nothing to do with the matter, the whole being managed by Isaac Jacob, the chief partner.

Mr. Prinsep remarked, that the account given was most unsatisfactory. There could be no hardship to the parties, in adjourning the examination, as they were not in custody, and at all events the Schedule required amendment. He had doubts, whether it would not turn out that the partnership was itself a fictitious and fraudulent concern, and the petitioning creditor's debt collusive. It was desirable to have time allowed for inquiry, and it was not improbable that there might be grounds for moving ultimately to set aside the adjudication.

Mr. Morton admitted, that the Schedule must be amended, and he enumerated the several amendments which he proposed should be made. With respect to the partnership being fictitious, and the petitioning creditor's debt collusive, this charge rested at present upon nothing but surmise. The insolvents were certainly not in jail, and under present circumstances an adjournment of the examination was but a small hardship, they might be taken into custody, however, at any moment except when actually attending to be examined.

The Court adjourned the further examination until the 14th proximo.

IN THE MATTER OF RAMGOVIND DAT.

Mr. Morton applied on behalf of Mr. Alexander, the assignee, to examine one Ramchand Seal, regarding a certain bond and policy of insurance for Rs. 50,000 in his hands. This examination had been put off from time to time, and it was believed the witness was not now in attendance. If not, he should move for an attachment.

Sir H. Selon said it had been brought to his notice that a petition of appeal to the Supreme Court had just been filed against the order for examination of the party.

Mr. Morton said that the appeal was probably for mere purposes of delay. But waving that consideration he contended that the mere order that the petition of appeal be received and filed, did not tie up the proceedings in the court below, and he cited a case from Clarke's rules and orders, where it had been expressly so held with reference to appeals from the Supreme Court to the Privy Council.

The Advocate General for Ramchand Seal contended that there was no discrepancy between the practice in appeals to the Supreme Court from his court and Appeals from the former to the Privy Council. If the Court committed one now proceeded to enquire the attendance of this witness and to issue an attachment, the pending appeal would be a nullity.

Sir H. Selon felt the difficulty, although he was very anxious to assist the application, as there were many circumstances strongly tending to show that the opposition was merely for delay.

After some further discussion his Lordship thought that he could make no other order than that the application should stand over until the appeal should be disposed of.

IN THE MATTER OF DAWES AND OTHERS.

The Advocate General on Monday applied for an adjudication of insolvency, on the petition of Ram Dass of Benares, who is a creditor of Rs. 1000 of rupees. Some of the amount of about Rs. 1000 having fled to avoid the parties were at Chanderpur had taken the benefit of a Mohul insolvent and one of the parties of the petitioning creditor was a respectable man by these parties, who had been cheated out of very considerable sums by these parties, who had combined to only be got at. Only last Sittings found if they could obtain in a cause (Dawes v. Halloway) to surmount some of the above parties being legatees and legatees, and the parties of that cause.

Sir H. Selous this morning said, he had looked through all of the papers, and the case presented many difficulties. From the proceedings in Dwyer v. Hewitt, it appeared that some of the debtors under the decree were infants.

The Advocate General submitted that the merits of a foreign judgment or decree could not be gone into, and that it constituted a valid debt without reference to matters which might have formed a good defence in the original action.

Sir H. Selous.—That may be, but it does not affect the question of an adjudication of insolvency. That is a fact. Then a question might arise how far this court would proceed to adjudge a party an insolvent, who has been already so adjudged by the insolvent law of a municipal court.

The Advocate General said that there were other parties included in the application to whom these objections did not apply, and he hoped that a separate adjudication would be granted as to them.

Sir H. Selous said he had thought of that, and that the only matter for consideration would be whether the defendant's decree constituted a several debt in such a way as to lay a foundation for separate adjudications. But it had occurred to him that perhaps the defendant might in some way be brought before the court by supplemental suit in the Equity suit, and he intended to pray against paying over the land to the defendant. The decree in the Equity suit was not absolute, and the court would be much inclined, if possible (with those facts before them) to postpone setting aside the decree until some steps were taken to reach the property in court.

The Advocate General said he should have been taking some steps to prevent the money from being paid out of court.—Burkara August 6, 1840.

BOMBAY SUPREME COURT.

FRIDAY, 17TH JULY 1840.

PRESENT.

The Chief Justice and Sir Henry Robert.

Seedeo Almas, Abdul Kurreem, Saduk Ali, Hameer Radhoo, Parshotam Jatta, Vella Premjee, and Puthia Meerja were put to the Bar charged with Piracy and the murders of Captain Whiffen and Mr. Harland, late of the Barque Victoria.

The prisoner Ahool Kurreem although warned by the Judges that his doing so would be of no avail insisted on pleading guilty. The plea was read in English. Prisoner taken from the Bar. The remaining prisoners pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Howard conducted the case.

Charles de Cruz called into Court and duly sworn. I am a Seanny, I reside at Kaitwaly. On the 2nd Sept, last I was shipped in this capacity on board the Barque "Virginia" at Calcutta, the name of the Captain of the Vessel was Charles Whiffen now deceased, and the name of the Chief Mate was Mr. Harland now also deceased. The Crew of the vessel including the Master, Mate, Gunner, Seamen and I were consisted of 24 persons. I proceeded in the same vessel from Calcutta to Bombay, at which place we arrived in the month of November last. I do not recollect the day of the month. About the 14th of December, the vessel being then loaded and bound for Singapore, 36 native convicts were brought on board, among which convicts were the six prisoners now at the Bar, viz Seedeo Almas, Ahool Kurreem, Saduk Ali, Hameer Radhoo, Parshotam, Jatta and Vella Premjee. I do not know whether the prisoner Puthia Meerja was one of the convicts or not. I cannot identify him. The convicts had iron on their legs, and a portion of between decks was assigned to them to sleep in. I sailed from Bombay on or about the same day. I recollect of our voyage, on Friday the 17th of December, having been 3 days at sea, about nine o'clock in the morning, I was at the wheel steering the ship, we had a fair wind and the ship was under full sail, we were in sight of land, but I know that we were on the coast on which is situated the town of ... At that time the chief mate, Mr. Harland, said, was walking on the starboard side of the deck, the Captain Charles Whiffen aforesaid was below in his cabin and the convicts (apparently the whole of them) were on the starboard side of the main deck, close to the main hatchway, receiving from "the Anise" their day's allowance of food. When the food had been given to the convicts, the prisoner at the bar Saduk Ali, came on the quarter deck to the chief mate with a small cup full of ghee and a handful of dholl which he shewed to the mate, saying that "that allowance was not sufficient food for him for a day." The mate replied that he, the said Saduk Ali, had received the established allowance and that no more could be given to him. He, the said Saduk Ali, then replied that he got more than that when on shore, the mate then abused the said Saduk Ali and told him, that if he did not go to ward he would put him in town, at which the said Saduk Ali threw the dholl and the ghee at the mate, the mate immediately called his servants to fetch the hand cuffs, the servant was not present, and the mate turned round towards the cabin to go, as he supposed, for the hand cuffs, and just as he got on, the said prisoner, Saduk Ali ran behind him, and seized him by the throat, and laid him on the poop, which is merely a narrow quarter deck the mate struggled violently with the said Saduk Ali, and presently five or six other convicts ran to the assistance of Saduk Ali. At the same time the prisoner at the bar, Abdul Kurreem, ran from the fore part of the main deck towards the poop taking as he said he pump, an iron pump sucker or piston. He ran up to the mate and having raised the pump sucker with both his hands struck the mate, the said Mr. Harland a violent blow with it on the back put of the head. Mr. Harland had hold of the pump sucker and did not fall. Saduk Ali and some of the other convicts (whom I cannot name) came down into the cabin and returned on deck armed with the ship's sword, pistols and pikes. A Malabar Christian convict, whose name I do not know, seized a blow at the mate with a sword but did not hit him, the mate then escaped from the convicts and ran into the jolly boat at the stern of the ship. He was pursued by Abdul Kurreem and some of the other convicts. He begged for mercy, the mate's name of before mentioned struck him on the back with a sword, the mate then ran out of the boat at the starboard side of the deck towards the fore mast pursued by the prisoner Abdul Kurreem and others. I did not see what occurred forward. The prisoner Saduk Ali accompanied by the prisoners, Hameer Radhoo, Parshotam Jatta and Vella

Prisoners went down into the cabin and dragged the Captain, the said Charles Whiffen on deck, they took him to the larboard side of the poop, he held up his hands, and said, that he knew nothing about the dispute, that he would take them wherever they wished to go. The prisoner Seeloo Almo, the tall Seeloo, then came from the main deck with an iron erg-bar in his hands and raising it with both hands gave the Captain a severe blow on the back of his head, the Captain held on by the edge rope, and appeared stunned. The prisoners Hameer Radhoo and Parshotum Jetta then seized the Captain by the legs and pulled him down: he laid on his belly on the edge of the poop, his feet resting on the quarter deck. The prisoner, Seeloo Almo, then struck the Captain with the crowbar several blows on the back of his head. The Captain's brains were beaten out, and his last eye was forced from its socket. The Captain was then quite dead, the prisoner Saduck Ali gave the dead body several cuts with a sword on the back part of the thighs, and the prisoners whom I have just mentioned, then threw the dead body of the Captain into the sea. The prisoner Hameer Radhoo, also struck the Captain several blows with a stick. I did not observe whether the body sank or swam, but I am sure that it was dead when it was thrown into the sea. I did not move from the wheel. When the Captain had been thrown over board, the prisoner Hameer Radhoo ran up to me and struck me a violent blow on the back of my head with a stick. I was stunned and fell in the deck. In a short time I recovered and again took hold of the wheel, the prisoner Saduck Ali then came up and told me to take the ship to Muscat, adding that, if I did not do so, he would kill me. I was in great fear and said "spare my life, and I will take the ship to Muscat." I requested to be relieved; the prisoners Saduck Ali and Abidool Kurreem brought a Secunny named Manuel Joquin who relieved me, I went forward and I found the convicts had possession of the ship, the gunner and the other Secunnies informed me, that the mate had been thrown overboard. The prisoner Saduck Ali took the Gunner to the quarter deck, told him to take charge of the navigation of the ship, and to steer direct for Muscat. The convicts took the guns from their persons, and some of them dressed themselves in the Captain's clothes, the ship was steered towards land and, about six o'clock in the morning, two days after the murder of the Captain and the Mate we made land near Goa. The convicts seeing the land, became furious and threatened if we attempted to go near any English port, they would instantly kill us, on hearing the land we saw a ship riding off Goa, it was a Portuguese ship, we steered along the coast and the convicts directed us to steer to the land at Cape Ramas. We were about six miles from the land on the night of the 19th December, and about eleven o'clock the convicts lowered down the three boats got into them, and rowed towards the shore, we then made sail for Bombay, where we arrived on the 24th of the same month. I was in the chains heaving the lead when the convicts left the ship, the convicts each carried on shore a bundle, but I do not know what they contained.

The prisoners cross examined the witness at great length principally to elicit that they were starved and threatened, but his testimony was not at all affected by the general tenor of the cross examination.

Jacob de Cr. recalled into Court and sworn.—I am a gunner, I was employed on board the Barque Virginia, commanded by the late Captain Whiffen. The mate's name was Mr. Harland, no other Europeans on board. I was gunner of the barque. I have seen all the prisoners, they were convicts on board the Virginia, I saw them in Bombay when they came on board about the 13th of December last, there were other convicts, in all 36. We left Bombay on the 14th of December, after we got to sea, on Monday, the chief mate gave me order to bring the arms on deck to clean them. After cleaning them before these people, we took them below again. The next day Tuesday about 9 o'clock in the morning, I was in my watch from 4 to 10 A.M. and the chief mate after his breakfast ordered me to serve out the meals. I did so and I was told to go and get my breakfast, which I did forward. Just as I commenced eating I heard the officer Mr. Harland cry out, I threw down my meal and ran aft to assist him. I saw 10 or 12 persons run up with arms, boarding pikes, swords and pistols. I was at the gangway, when they saw me they said "Save and kill that Moor, that Kafir." They had heard of Mr. Harland, the Magul prisoner (points to Saduck Ali) was one of them, I don't recollect the rest. When they came after me I ran away to the fore rigging, I stopped there, but the tall Hindoo prisoner, (points to Hameer Radhoo) came after me, I had a boarding pike in his hand, he struck at me and I jumped up on the fore yard, as the prisoners had chains on their legs they could not ascend the rigging. At this time the mate ran forward and jumped down the fore hatchway, the Magul jumped after him. He wanted to run between decks, and the Magul got hold of him by the legs, afterwards the tall Hindoo struck the mate twice with a boarding pike on the back. I saw all this from the foreyard. The Magul sung out "Lift the chief mate and throw him overboard" they did throw him. I only marked the Magul and Hindoo. The rest were in a mass. I saw the mate thrown overboard. The Magul then said to the Syang "Take this vessel to Muscat." I did not see the Captain at that time. I never saw him after the mate was thrown overboard. The Syang said that he did not know the way to Muscat, and desired them not to kill the gunner and secur-nies, who knew the way thither. The convicts then called me down, but being afraid that they would kill me, I refused to go. The prisoner Saduck Ali, then said, that he would swear upon the Koran, if I would come down on deck I should not be killed. On this promise, I descended to the deck, on reaching which several of the convicts seized me, and took me aft to the quarter deck; they desired me to put the ship's head in the direction of Muscat. I put the head towards Bombay; they all said that her head was towards Bombay, and they threatened that the moment they should see the Light house, they would kill us. At this time the land was not visible, we were on the Malabar coast about abreast of Vingoola; there were no ships in sight. There was no wind then, it remained calm all that day and night the second day after the murder a breeze sprung up and at the request of the convicts I steered the vessel towards the land. We first saw the land off Vingoola and I steered along the coast, passed Goa, where a Portuguese ship was at anchor, and afterwards a Portuguese ship was at anchor, they left the ship there; and about eleven o'clock at night, they left the ship in three boats and rowed towards the shore. The ship then made sail for Bombay, where I arrived on the 24th of the same month. The convicts before I entered the boat, proposed setting the ship on fire, but as the prisoner Saduck Ali objected to the proposal, they went away without doing so; they carried with them a bale of silk, and other property which I should now particularize.

Mahomed Tuckee sworn.—I am a cashee, or native seaman, and am at present residing in D. S. area, Guclia without the Fort. In the month of November last I arrived in Bombay from Calcutta on board the barque "Virginia," of which vessel I was one of the crewals—

Captain Charles Whitham was the commander, and Mr. Harland was the mate of that vessel, both of whom are now deceased. There were also upon the vessel two European Officers on board. In the middle of December the vessel being ready for sea, thirty six native convicts were brought on board the said vessel for the purpose, I was informed, of being conveyed to Singapore. The prisoners now before me (Seedee Almas, Abdool Kurroon, Saduck Ali, Hameer Radhoo, Purshottum Jatta, Vella Premjee and Pulla Meerja) were some of these convicts. The same day, the vessel proceeded to sea, this was on a Saturday. On the following Tuesday, between eight and nine o'clock in the morning, the gunner and the chief mate placed on the starboard side of the main deck the day's rations for the convicts, who all assembled there to receive their allowance. The gunner went forward to the galley to take his breakfast, leaving the chief mate to serve out the provisions. The chief mate, aforesaid, was at that time walking on the starboard side of the quarter deck; the captain aforesaid, was below in his cabin. I was sitting by the main hatchway, near the convicts making mats when the prisoner Saduck Ali, received his allowance of Dholl and Ghee, he said that the former was not sufficient, and he went to the chief mate, and made a complaint to that effect, he asked the mate where he could cook so small an allowance; the mate told him, that three or four of them had better club together and cook their allowance in one pot; the said prisoner was very importunate, the mate abused him and ordered him to go about his business. The said prisoner, Saduck Ali, then threw the dholl at the face of the mate who instantly called for the handcuffs. The prisoner Saduck Ali seized the mate by the throat, and threw him down on the deck. Several other convicts, among whom were the prisoners; Seedee Almas and Hameer Radhoo, ran up to the mate and laid hold of him, he struggled with them, escaped from them, and ran to the larboard side of the deck. At the same time the prisoners, Saduck Ali, Abdool Kurroon, Hameer Radhoo, Purshottum Jatta, and Vella Premjee, with some others, who are not now present, ran down into the cabin. The prisoner, Saduck Ali, who had armed himself with a sword, brought the captain on deck, holding him by the arm, the other convicts who went into the cabin came on deck, at the same time carrying with them, the swords, pistols, and pikes belonging to the ship. The mate, then, seeing the captain brought on deck, ran into the jolly boat at the stern of the ship. The prisoners, Pulla Meerja, and others, received the spare arms from those who had gone into the cabin, and distributed them to the convicts. They took the captain to the larboard side of the poop; he said "My Sons Baba Logue what violence is this!" they made no reply; the prisoner Hameer Radhoo, struck him a violent blow at the back of his head with a crow bar, which he had brought from under the long boat, and the prisoner Seedee Almas, struck him several times on the same place with a stick, he fell, and they, when he appeared to be dead, threw him overboard. I did not see the body in the water. While the convicts were killing the captain, the mate lent the boat, and ran along the starboard side of the deck towards the fore-castle, he jumped down the fore hatchway. Some of the convicts followed him, I do not know whether any of the prisoners followed him or not, he was killed. I did not see by whom, and I saw his body thrown overboard. I was then on the fore-castle near the head. The gunner was in the fore-rigging. 2 or 3 men were sewing mats on the main, the prisoners Saduck Ali, Abdool, and Pulla Meerja, called him down, and told him to steer the ship to Muscat. The gunner took charge of the navigation of the ship. Two days afterwards, we made the land near Goa, and a little beyond which place, the whole of the convicts got into three of the boats, and left the ship, taking with them some silk piece goods and other property, which I cannot particularize.

The witness was cross examined by the prisoners to the same effect as was the 1st and 2d witnesses.

Mytee Rehmah sworn.—I am a calashee or native seaman, and am now residing at Chorkla, without the Port. About five or six months ago, I came to Bombay as a calashee on board the barque "Virginia," of which Charles Whiffen was master, and of which Mr. Harland was chief mate, both of whom are now dead. Having remained in Bombay about a month, the said vessel was again loaded and ready for sea, she was bound to Singapore. Thirty-six native convicts were brought on board, and the same day, we sailed in prosecution of our voyage; the six prisoners now at the bar, (Seedee Almas, Hameer Radhoo, Saduck Ali, Pureshum Jatta, Vella Premjee and Pullia Meerja,) were among the convicts brought on board. On the morning of the third day, that they had been at sea, between eight and nine o'clock, when I was at work near the gangway on the larboard side of the deck,—I heard a noise on the quarter deck, and, on looking in that direction, I saw the prisoner Saduck Ali, seize the mate and knock him down upon the poop.—The mate got up, several convicts ran up to him, among whom were the prisoners Hameer Radhoo and Vella Premjee, and he ran to the jolly boat, pursued by the two prisoners above named. The said prisoner Saduck Ali, accompanied by the prisoner Pullia Meerja, and five or six other convicts, ran down into the cabin, and presently returned, dragging on deck the captain, whom they took to the larboard side of the poop.—He said "what is this—what is this?"—The prisoner Hameer Radhoo, struck him a violent blow on the back of his head with a large iron crow bar; the captain appeared stunned; the said prisoner Hameer, gave him a second blow; and he, the captain, fell on the deck.—The prisoner Seedee Almas, also struck the captain several blows with a stick, with which he was armed.—The captain appeared quite dead; the prisoner, Saduck Ali, kicked the dead body with his foot, and by his direction, it was thrown overboard.—I heard him give this direction.—Many of the convicts were armed with the ship's swords, pistols and pikes.—I saw the body of the captain thrown overboard.—I did not look over the side to see whether it sunk or swam.—There were no ships in sight, and we were out of sight of land. Supposing that the convicts intended to murder the whole of the crew, I ran up the main rigging.—I saw from the rigging the mate assaulted in the boat by the prisoners, Abdul, Hameer, and Vella Premjee.—They brought him to the gang way; he there struggled violently, escaped from them and ran towards the fore hatchway—several convicts followed him; he was murdered in the fore-castle, and his body was brought on deck, and thrown overboard.—I did not see it afterwards.—The convicts had then possession of the ship.—The prisoner Saduck Ali, Hameer, and Pullia called down the gunner, who had escaped to the foreward; and directed him to steer the ship for Muscat. Two days afterwards, we made the land near Goa, and the convicts there about 11 o'clock at night went on shore in three of the ship's boats, we then returned to Bombay. The prisoners and the other convicts opened some bales of merchandise and took into the boats with them some silk piece goods and other property, which I could not now particularize.

The same sort of cross Examination entered into by the prisoners which elicited nothing new.

Samut Ali sworn.—I am a calashee, a native seaman, and at present reside at Chorkla. About six months ago, I came to Bombay as a calashee on board the barque Virginia, from Calcutta.—Charles Whiffen was the master of that vessel, and Mr Harland was the chief mate, they are both now dead.—Having been in Bombay about a month, we again put to sea, bound for Singapore.—We had on board thirty six convicts, among whom were the prisoners now at the bar, Seedee Almas, Abdul Kerreem, Saduck Ali, Hameer Radhoo, Pureshum Jatta, Vella Premjee and Pullia Meerja.—Having been at sea three days, I was about half past eight o'clock in the morning, sitting at work on the deck near the fore hatch, when I heard a noise aft; and frequently the chief mate ran from aft; he jumped down the fore-hatchway pursued by the prisoners Abdul Kerreem, and Hameer Radhoo, and others whom I do not now recollect. He ran to the fore part of the fore-castle in the 'tween decks, and was brought by the said prisoner Abdul, under the hatch.—The prisoner Hameer who did not go below put a pike down the hatchway, and gave him, the Mate, several stabs, which killed him. His body was then brought on deck, and thrown overboard.—I was on the fore-castle, and saw this. The convicts had possession of the ship.—The gunner was ordered by Saduck Ali, Abdul Kerreem, and Hameer Radhoo, to steer the ship to Muscat, we then made the Malabar coast to Goa, and two days after the murder, the convicts got into the boats and rowed towards the shore.—The gunner brought the ship to Bombay.—The convicts took with them some silk piece goods.

DEFENCE.

Prisoner Seetoo Aijmes states, I know nothing about this, and was not concerned. Ask the rest of the Prisoners on their oath—"where was and what I was doing?" Whatever they say, I am ready to abide by. They said I wore the Sahib's clothes and sat on the table, and had a pistol fastened to my waist behind. This is not true.

2nd Prisoner, Hameer Rhadoo says I came from Bombay in the ship. On the second day this quarrel took place, we were on board the ship for 3 or 4 days, we had no provisions, and had no cooking, I had sea sickness and drank nothing but water, we vomited. The Captain said "I will seize any fellow by the legs who vomits here and throw him overboard." One day I was going up the ladder for water, he kicked me down, when the quarrel took place we went up, there was a fight among the people, who struck I don't know, but the people began to cut off their irons. When all of them cut off their irons, I had mine cut off too, I was not concerned in this affair "God is above and your Lordships below" who will give us justice in the case. I never struck any one with my hand.

3d Prisoner—Saduck Ali states I was convicted here without fault the first day I went on board, I had no food or provisions; next day a handful of rice was given me a little dholl and fish, we had not got sufficient provision and we vomited. Next day I got the same quantity of provision, I went and complained to the captain, who used to kick people, throw them down, some of us being fettered from below. On the third day we all agreed Death was better than starvation. The food was bad again, we complained to the sahib that Hindoos could not eat the rice and that we had not sufficient food, he replied "take that or none"—The Hindoo said Death was preferable, God was above and sea below if we might have some food, and any sum to pay for it should be liquidated at Singapore. The crew told us the Captain had lots of good provisions, but would not give them out, the crew instigated us to go to the Mate and beat him, and we should get all that was wanted. We have irons on our legs, and you are many in the ship, they said we must interfere, thrash him.—They said whenever convicts come in this ship, the Mate ill-treats them, he killed one once—only two of us were allowed to go on deck at once.—They also told us at 10 o'clock, the sahib will go to his meals, then all come and ask for good provisions. When the sahib went down to his breakfast all the convicts came up on deck.—After breakfast he came up and asked "what do you all want up here." We said we want provision, he abused the crew and said "2 only are allowed to come up at once, why did you let them come." The crew said they came of their own accord. He said very well, give them some provision. The Gunner said they wanted better food, that so little rice and dholl was not enough for them. The sahib then abused us. The crew gave us all Gunje to smoke, and when the convicts heard the abuse of the Captain, they all fell upon him.—I don't know who killed him or not.—The Crew threw the Mate overboard, whether alive or dead I don't know.—We then all assembled and the Gunner said make no noise, when the Capt. comes we will now get provisions. The Gunner and another Portuguese went down and said the Captain is a little deaf, we will explain to him, they remained below and the Captain came on deck. The convicts had no meals for 3 days, they had taken Gunja, their heads were turned, they all fell upon him whether he was dead or alive God knows, the crew threw him into the water. The convicts then told the crew don't be afraid, take us where you like, we are in fear of the hands. The carpenter came and took off all our irons. The convicts said to the crew take us to Singapore or Bombay. The crew replied if we go to either place we shall all be killed. The crew said "you did not do this alone, we are all concerned, Goa is near, let us go there." "If we go ashore, you had better all go below, if so many people are seen, it will create suspicion." When we were at Goa, the convicts said you had better put us on shore. We also said we are not acquainted with the way.—The Gunner said don't be afraid, this is not English but Portuguese Government, a small boat was lowered, and some of the crew went, one Jeeran and Abdool Kurraem also went on shore to find out where they were, they were told "under the Portuguese Government." They came back about 8 or 9 o'clock at night, we said we should go on shore at night to avoid suspicion, they brought fruit on board for the convicts. One boat containing 24 convicts from Bombay, went on shore about 9 p. m. When that boat returned from land, the Hannah convicts, 12 of us went in that boat we asked one of the crew to guide us to the Town, he did so, when we had gone about 2 coss we dispersed, there was a quarrel and disturbance on account of want of food both we and the crew, asked for more, still were refused by the Captain. We trust in your Lordship's mercy.

4th prisoner.—Purshotam Jeta says "the convicts from Tannah went on board the day before us.—They had not received any provisions on that day, we had received only provisions for one meal on that day and we all complained of dying with hunger, &c."

5th prisoner.—Made a similar statement to the last.

6th Prisoner.—Vellar, Premjee states his case was the same as the last, and has nothing to add.

7th Prisoner.—Putha Meerja, I was very sick in the hold below, and know nothing of what occurred, I was pldy and fell down, I heard the row, but know nothing about it, I was brought up by a chacee and saw Guzzarattee cannaies with a sword in his hand, he abused me, and I said kill me if you like.—He replied go down.—The carpenter cut off my irons I was starving 4 days without food, I said I would not leave the ship, I owed money to Government, and was the son of a landholder and his sway was every where.—The carpenter said he would throw me in the water, I was forced into the boat.—The prisoner then deposes to the same as the other with very slight variation.

CHARGE TO THE JURY.

Sir HENRY ROBERT first alluded to the liteness of the hour and the protracted length of the trial (it had occupied the whole day) and then read over the whole mass of evidence to the Jury and commented thereon and was of opinion that there was not sufficient evidence to implicate the Prisoner Putha Meerja as a participator in the Murders. He pointed out some discrepancies in the evidence, but attributed them to a great measure to the to aflection, fright and horror inspired by such a scene of bloodshed. The learned Judge spoke at great length and analyzed the whole of the witnesses' examinations.

The Jury retired at 10 minutes to 10 p. m. At 10 o'clock they returned into Court and brought in a verdict of GUILTY against Seede Almas, Hameer Radhoo, Saduck Ali, Parshotum Jatta, Vella Premjee, and Abdulol Kurram (who had pleaded guilty at first). Pootia Meerji was found Not GUILTY.

SENTENCES.

Sir HENRY ROPER then put on the Black Cap and in a very impressive manner sentenced Seede Almas, Abdulol Kurram, Saduck Ali, Hameer Radhoo, Parshotum Jatta, and Vella Premjee to be returned to the Jail from whence they came, and from thence be taken to the place of execution on Monday (this morning) to be there hanged by the neck until dead and their bodies given for dissection.—Gazette, July 20.

ROGONATH DADAJEE, PROMOVENT,

AND

LUXUMBHOYE WIDOW OF WASOODEW WITTOJEE, IMPUGNANT.

This was a cause, on the Ecclesiastical side of the Court, in which Rogonath Dadajee, a respectable Hindoo of Bombay, was Promovent, and Luxumbhoye, his son's widow, was Impugnant.

The object of the Promovent, in instituting the suit, was to obtain the probate of the will of his son Wasoodew Wittojee, whereof he was appointed Executor.

The facts of the case were shortly as follows:—

In the year 1824, Witoba Cannooje, a very wealthy Hindoo, being childless, adopted as his son, according to the usual ceremonial observances of Hindoo, Wasoodew Wittojee, the only son of Ragonath Dattjee, whose sister he had married. Witoba Cannooje died in the year 1829, and by his Will appointed Ruckmahoye, his widow, his Executrix. She proved the Will of her deceased husband, and afterwards died in the year 1834, when Wasoodew Wittojee, the residuary legatee of his adopted father, obtained letters of administration with the Will annexed, and thereupon took possession of all the estate and effects of Witoba Cannooje deceased. Wasoodew Wittojee married Luxumbhoye the Impugnant. In November 1837, Wasoodew Wittojee was attacked by serious illness, and being childless, made a Will on the 21st November 1837 and a Codicil thereto on the 22nd November 1837. Subsequently, however, in consequence of not having made any provision for the adoption of a son, he cancelled the Will and Codicil of the 21st and 22nd November, and made a second Will dated the 3rd December 1837 at 11 o'clock at night. By the latter Will he appointed his natural father, the Promovent, his sole executor, who, on the 29th January 1838, petitioned for Probate, whereupon Luxumbhoye entered a Caveat—and a great number of Affidavits were filed on both sides.

Before the petition for Probate could be heard, Luxumbhoye as heir, according to Hindoo law, of her childless husband, commenced an action of ejectment against Rogonath Dadajee, to try the validity of the Will. This action was tried in June 1838, and lasted several days—the Will of the 3rd December was established, and a verdict pronounced for the defendant.

Subsequently, the present suit became necessary, in consequence of the Court, upon the hearing of the Petition and Caveat, intimating that the case was too important to be decided upon affidavits, when, as issues having been offered and rebutted, the Promovent was advised to institute the present suit, for the purpose of establishing his right to Probate, as Executor.

The points of the 'Promovent's' case, as disclosed by the Libel were,—1st.—That Wasoodew Wittojee, at the time of the execution of the Will of 21st and 22nd Nov. 1837, was of sound and disposing mind, and of testamentary capacity. 2nd.—that Wasoodew Wittojee, when of sound mind, memory and understanding, cancelled and revoked such former will, because he had thereby made no provision for adoption. 3rd.—that Wasoodew Wittojee was the adopted son of Witoba Cannooje, and 4th.—that Wasoodew Wittojee was of sound mind and of capacity to make a Will, and that he did accordingly duly make and execute his will of the 3rd Decr. 1837, and that he was after, as well as before, making such Will, legally and fully capable of making and executing the same.

The case of the Impugnant, to meet those allegations, was,—1st.—that Wasoodew Wittojee, laboured under a general incapacity, to make a Will, (with the exception of one sound interval on 21st and 22nd Nov.) during the whole period of his illness; 2nd.—that he was totally incapable for the last five days of his life, from the nature of his disease (inflammation of the chest and lungs); and 3rd.—that such a state of circumstances existed for the last 5 days of his life, that it was impossible that a Will could have been executed by him, without the knowledge of several persons, who were constantly sitting in the room with, and watching him, or without Wasoodew Wittojee's mentioning to some persons, named in the Pleadings, that he had made a Will.

In proof of the several facts charged in the Libel, the evidence of about 20 witnesses were adduced—and to sustain the case of the Impugnant, there were about 30 witnesses. Many of the witnesses were of the caste of the deceased; medical attendants, Native and European, and many of the servants of the family, were also examined—and there were for the Promovent, three or four Parsons whose evidence seems to weigh very much with their Lordships, from their individual respectability, and the absence of all pecuniary interest in the event of the suit, or prejudice of caste.

After a minute and laborious investigation of three days' duration, the Court, on the evening of Monday the 27th instant, gave judgment for the Promovent, Ragonath Dadajee, whereby he obtains probate, as Executor of his late son Wasoodew Wittojee, and a Legacy of Rupees 150,000.

We do not pretend to follow the Chief Justice through-out his judgment which was luminous and comprehensive, and exhibited a nicety of discrimination, as to conflicting points of evidence, and peculiarities of native testimony, which can only be acquired by long and extensive observation and experience, but it was impossible to have heard His Lordship without being satisfied that, in the severe comments which he thought it necessary to make upon the character of a large mass of the evidence, the moral and social improvement of the Native population was his paramount object, and we, who, as regards the Chief Justice, have neither hope nor fear, dispassionately declare, we never heard in a Court of Justice, or elsewhere, a more enlightened, appropriate or philanthropic lecture than that delivered by His Lordship to the Jurors and others, who were the subject of his remarks; and we would strongly recommend to those who were present, to weigh well the importance which European Courts of Justice attribute to an inflexible adherence of truth. If the number of witnesses constituted the strength of a case, than, judged there might be some inducement to the parties to come forward and state the merits of his testimony, then the lingual who could afford to purchase evidence must necessarily bear down all rights of truth, all justice, in the case of his less wealthy opponent, but the late proceedings of the Court and the judgment delivered by two enlightened British Judges, will serve to impress upon the minds and memories of all who heard them that the unthought, unpurchasable, published straight forward testimony of one witness, whose truth and character can be relied on, is worth more than all the evidence that the great Pazar can supply. As public Journalists, we have not—we repudiate the idea that we can be supposed to have any personal hostility to any of the parties, whose misconduct at the trial was so severely reprehended by those whose duty it was to uphold and administer the law: the only motive which induces us to enter so fully upon this subject, is an anxious desire to perform what we have pronounced in our Prospectus simply, fully, fairly, and freely, to discuss every subject, with the honest intention of making the truth manifest of bringing about useful reform, and of promoting the advance of the best species of knowledge."—United Service Gazette, July 12, 1840.

MISCELLANEA.

Calcutta

EXPRESS PACKETS—The Government here have determined on making up a packet, to be despatched by express to Bombay, for the Steamer, three days after the dispatch of the regular Mail, and are in communication with the principal merchants on the subject.

INJURIES CAUSED BY THE HEAVY RAIN.—Houses and huts in all parts of the town and suburbs of Calcutta, have fallen through the heavy rains we lately had, and in several instances the people residing in these houses suffered serious personal injuries and two or three have been killed. Calcutta was completely flooded, several of the lanes and alleys were under water and many children were drowned in them. A greater fall of rain, than the one instance, has not occurred at the same season of the year for several years past.

HINDOO COLLEGE—The salaries of the junior teachers at the Hindoo College have been increased by the Committee, on account of the exertions in the attention they have bestowed on their class. The Head Master, Mr. Middleton, has returned and resumed his duties at the College.

UNION BANK—In conformity with the 61st Clause of the Deed of Partnership a Special Meeting of the Shareholders of the Union Bank was held on the 24th instant, and attended by a large body of those interested in its affairs.

R. WALKER, Esq. in the Chair.

Mr. Tongue, Mr. Clarke proposed that the resolution passed at the last Meeting of the Bank—that the terms of the first clause of the Bank Deed be modified and enlarged by the insertion of a clause, permitting the business of the Bank to be extended so far as to authorise the directors to buy and sell bills of exchange on England?—be confirmed—which was carried by a large majority.

The next thing which came before the Meeting was the amendment of an apparent repugnance between some of the provisions of the 58th Clause of the Deed relative to the right of voting of holders of shares in the capacities of Trustees, Executors, Administrators or Assignees of Insolvent Estates.

Mr. Clarke in the absence of Mr. Dickens proposed that the two latter parts of that Clause should be so altered—"from on as trustee, executor, administrator or assignee and not as agent or collateral security for any loan."

Mr. Cragg moved as an amendment to the above—that all the words subsequent to the words or as assignee in the Clause should be omitted—the Clause will therefore read as follows—

"That at every General or Special Meeting of the said Company, every question, proposition, matter or thing which shall be propounded or discussed, shall be decided by the majority of votes of the Shareholders then present, according to their respective shares in the following manner that is to say one vote for one share two votes for three shares, three votes for six shares, four votes for ten shares, five votes for fifteen shares, six votes for twenty shares, seven votes for twenty five shares, eight votes for thirty shares, nine votes for forty shares, ten votes for fifty shares, and for every ten shares about fifty-one additional votes, and that in case the number of votes including the vote or votes in his own right of the Chairman of such Meeting shall be equal, he shall also have a casting vote, but that no person shall be entitled to vote at any General or Special Meeting of the said Company, or at any adjournment of such General or Special Meeting in respect of any share or shares which he or she may possess in the said capital stock, unless such person or persons respectively shall have actually and bona fide held and possessed such share or shares for the full space of three calendar months next before such General or Special Meeting as aforesaid, unless such person or persons shall have become possessed of such share or shares by right of marriage, bequest by testament or intestacy or as Assignees."

In this Messrs. Clarke and Dickens acquiesced and being put to the Meeting was carried unanimously.

The Secretary then read a report of the late Accountant's misdeeds—

Messrs. Clarke, Cragg, Tutton, and others made some observations on the report, and agreed in the whole proceedings of the Directors.

Mr. O'Hanlon observed that all these proceedings would be set aside by Mr. Sim's insolvency, if such should take place—but in this he was met and refuted very ably by Messrs. Clarke, Tutton, and Dickens. He also observed that there should be a greater check on the accounts of the Bank in future, which it was contended by the other side it was not possible to do.

Mr. O'Hanlon then proposed that all the creditors of the late Accountant Mr. Sim be permitted to come in and claim and be paid ratably from these assets.

Mr. Tutton after a few observations met this with a negative proposition, which was carried unanimously.

Captain Vint next proposed that the Secretary and subordinate officers of the Bank be prohibited from holding or dealing in the sale of shares on his own account.

The Secretary said he would be glad of any measure which would put temptation out of the way of officers.

Mr. Dickens wished to know what effect the passing of this resolution would have the number of shares, (which was considerable) held by the present incumbents could not be sold.

Mr. Turton thought it would be better that the Directors should be solicited to take the resolution into their consideration and report upon it at the next Half Yearly Meeting. Mr. Dickens thought it not exactly in the right line of business to bring these things forward before the present Meeting as it did not come immediately within the scope of the notice convening the Meeting.

To meet Mr. Dickens' objection, Mr. Clarke thought that all new officers should be admitted under those engagements, and that if the Directors thought it proper, it might on their report be afterwards made prospective.

Mr. Turton proposed an amendment to the original motion—That the Directors be requested to make a report on the expediency of adopting or otherwise the resolution now before the Meeting at their next Half yearly Meeting—which was carried with only three dissentients.

Thanks were then voted to the Chairman and the Meeting separated at 2 P. M., which will account for the shortness of our report.

REWARD FOR GALLANT CONDUCT.—Mr. Thomas Warden, a volunteer Pilot, has been rewarded by Lord Auckland, with a present of two hundred and fifty rupees, and the expression of his Lordship's approbation of Mr. Warden's conduct, in having saved the lives of two men, who fell into the river from the Sultana, while that vessel was proceeding down the river, and who would, in all probability, have been drowned. Had not Mr. Warden flung his lead-line over their shoulders, and held them at the risk of his own life, until they were assisted into the vessel.

THE EASTERN STAR'S GOLD MEDAL.—There was only one candidate for the gold medal offered by the editor of the Eastern Star, for the best essay on a given subject; and, consequently, as the editor did not wish to part with his medal, on "the walking over" principle, it was withheld.

RAPES.—Rapes are getting frequent, it appears, in Calcutta. On the 15th instant there were two cases of rape under investigation at the Police Office. One of these is said to have been committed on a young Mahomedan woman, by six or seven men, at Mirzapore, on the night of Thursday last, in an empty godown, into which, it appears, the fellows had contrived partly by deception, and partly by force, to carry the woman for their abominable purpose. The other was perpetrated on a rather elderly woman also at Mirzapore, by a Mahomedan, who was assisted by a friend of his in the commission of the deed. These were both rather intoxicated at the time; and the offence took place in an empty house behind a liquor-shop.

THREE CHILDREN AT A BIRTH.—A woman named Dhunnee, was, on the afternoon of the 14th instant, about 4 o'clock, brought to bed of three children, one boy and two girls. This extraordinary event took place in Cullinga, in the house of a Mrs. Ruben, in whose service the woman is. The children are doing well.

NEWLY DISCOVERED REEF.—Extract from the Report from the Bark Crest.—Sir.—I beg to inform you of the existence of a reef, extending in a S. E. by S. direction from the N. E. Hope Island, in the coast of Australia, and connected to the Island, about 3 miles in length, in lat. 15° 45' South; longitude 145° 23' East. This reef lies much in the tract of ships pursuing the inner route through Torres Straits; and it is not noticed in Capt. P. P. King's survey of the N. E. Coast of Australia, Sheet 2, on which chart the tract of a ship is laid in the direction of the reef. This reef has also been seen by Capt. Tweedie, of the Gilbert Henderson, and by ——— of the John Barry. The sea breaks on it at low water on a sand bank off Cape Direction. It is separated from a low sandy Island with bushes, and not in the way of ships.

Tuesday, June 30. At 11 A. M. experienced the shock of an earthquake, Port Essington bearing S. S. W. which lasted about 3 minutes, and began at the fore end of the ship and continued shaking the ship throughout her frame with a rumbling sound, the sea presenting its usual appearance, and the air clear, with a pleasant breeze at the time, sky rather cloudy. This was also experienced by Captain Tweedie, of the Gilbert Henderson, although 40 miles West of the Crest.

CIVIL FUND.—At a Special General Meeting of the Subscribers to the Civil Fund, held on the 18th August, 1849, pursuant to the notice dated the 18th June last.

Present.—Chas. Morley, Chas. Trower, G. A. Busbby, an. Lewis, B. Stirling, P. R. Davidson, R. H. Snell, R. B. Thornhill, and H. V. Bayley, Esquires.

Chas. Morley, Esq. in the Chair.

Mr. Busbby moved that such extra contribution as may be found requisite to meet the liabilities of the Fund shall be levied from the subscribers at large as being more consistent with the liberal feelings under which the institution was founded than an exclusive levy at the expense of widower and married subscribers.

Mr. T. R. Davidson, seconded Mr. Busbby's motion: and the same was carried unanimously by those present.

The votes on the motion appeared,

THE CHINESE TEA CULTIVATORS.—About twenty-five of the Chinese tea cultivators, were brought up to the Police on account of maltreating one of the Calcutta Chinese, and getting into an affray with the Police people when they interfered. It appeared that Government had very generously provided about one hundred and twenty of them with a passage on board the ship Moira, which is bound for Singapore, and no doubt waited for another favorable opportunity to send the remainder. The men were provided with every thing necessary for the voyage in the shape of provisions, consisting of good beef, pork, &c. and even medicines, which were supplied from the H. C.'s Dispensary. Arrangements were made for these men to embark last Sunday evening, but as one of the Calcutta Chinese had told them that they were entitled to five or six dollars each, previous to embarkation, they refused to go, unless they received this money. Upon enquiring the following morning they discovered, that this friend of theirs was a wolf in sheep's clothing, who wanted to put obstacles in their way, and to inconvenience and annoy them. Consequently, as mentioned above, about twenty-five of them went yesterday morning and caught the man in Cosmopolis, they soon laid violent hands on him, and continued maltreating him, when the Police came up. On their interfering, the enraged men did not desist, and the consequence was that a skirmish ensued between them, in which the Chinese were defeated and taken prisoners. At the Police, they still refused to go on board, when the rest of the Chinese, who were to have embarked with them, came and interposed, and prevailed on them to go. They were afterwards put on board of the ship which had been one day detained on their account.

FREE MASONRY.—The Officers of the Grand Lodge of Bengal, assisted by the Wardens and Officers of other Lodges, met at the Free Mason's Hall on the 17th instant. At about 8 o'clock, the Lodge was opened in due form to receive the Provincial Grand Master of Provincial India, Dr. Burnes—the grand stewards received him at the bottom of the steps headed, by their Master Worshipful Brother Torrens, the latter introduced him to the Members of the Grand Lodge, after which the Lodge was closed and the company retired to the refreshment table—they sat down to the number of between fifty and sixty, to a splendid dinner of Spence's best, and the flow of wine and flow of soul did not cease to enliven the convivial party till a late hour.

The toasts given at the dinner were—1, "The Queen and the Craft," by Provincial Grand Master Galt, 2, His Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex," by Provincial Grand Master Burnes, 3, "All distressed Masons round the Globe," 4, "The Deputy Grand Master of Bengal, Brother Nave," 5, "Brother Burnes, Provincial Grand Master West in India," 6, "Right Worshipful Brother Blaquiere," 7, "Worshipful Brother H. Torrens," 8, "Brother S. Edward Ryan," 9, "Brother Barltan," and 10, "Brother Henderson."

These toasts were nearly all prefaced with excellent speeches from the givers—the address from Brother Burnes was particularly good and appropriate—we have seldom heard an address so excellent in matter and in words delivered on any similar occasion. The address from the Provincial Grand Master of Bengal was also one of his best—his expressions regarding Masonry were so appropriate and striking, that we think no member who heard them will ever allow them to escape his memory. The toasts were all responded to by the distinguished individuals toasted, in a very eloquent and interesting manner. Not having taken any notes of the speeches, we are unable to give our readers even an outline of them. Between the toasts some excellent songs were sung, one of these was by Brother Torrens, who composed it for the occasion, and the conclusion of it elicited the greatest applause. Brothers Thomson, Burnes, Barltan, Linton, Hamerton, Guest, and many other brethren also favored the company with several songs.

We were happy to see our venerable brother Blaquiere present in good health and enjoying himself in the general hilarity of the evening.

The Hall was most tastefully fitted up for so grand an occasion, and the whole evening did great credit to the exertions and taste of our Grand Provost. We trust we shall often hear of such happy meetings.

On the 21st instant, the Lodge "Anchor and Hope," held a special meeting to receive Dr. Burnes, and presented to him the following address, in a highly-ornamental frame:—

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother, we, the Master, Past Master, and Wardens of the Lodge "Anchor and Hope," with feelings of the highest respect and esteem for your great and unwearied masonic zeal, your universally acknowledged worth, and your kindness and urbanity to all, beg to tender, for your acceptance, this humble tribute of our fraternal affection. It is almost presumptuous in us to offer this memorial, possessing as you do the homage of every heart acquainted with your masonic career, but we do so Right Worshipful Sir, in the hope that this poor offering will tend, while it lasts, to record the fame of your virtues, the vigor of your mind, and the place you held in our affections.

In conclusion we have only to implore the great Architect of the Universe, that you may long be spared as an instrument, through him, of promoting the welfare of our ancient and hallowed institution.

A Welcome to the R. W. Brother James Burnes, K. II, written by ———, and sung at the inauguration of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Bengal, 17th Aug., 1840, by the W. Brother Henry Torrens, Master of the Provincial Grand Stewards' Lodge.

Oh, why when the wine cup is brimming around,
And the murmur of welcome is heard in our hall,
Why should music, sweet hand-maid of joy, shut her
And the glad voice of song fail to come at our call?
Tho' she should be the rhyme, yet it smooth may appear,
When the fervour of song its vigour shall lend,
And the harsh rolling measure steal sweet on the ear
When it welcomes the Master, the Brother, the Friend!

Then say why, &c.
Had you wandered among us, all penniless, poor,
With no hope on the ocean, no home on the land,
Oh, the key that you wot of had opened each door,
And each brother stood by you, with lip, heart, and hand
Then as welcome you'd been in your moment of woe.
By the name that you bear, and the meed that's your due,
As how often when our hearts every sorrow forego,
And the eye beams glad welcome, true mason, to you.
Then say why, &c.

And oh, when hereafter you think of this night,
In the name of each Lodge, know their wishes ex-press'd,
Like "The Star in the East" be the prism of Light,
Let "Humility Fortitude" still be your rest,
"Perseverence and Industry" profit each day,
The support of "True Friendship" be thine to the end, Let the "Anchor of Hope" be your hold and your stay,
And "St John's," bless thee, Brother, true Mason and Friend.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Hugh McKinlay, a mauls p-man, on board the duffy of Liverpool, met with an untimely death by a fall from the main-yard of the vessel.

SWIMMING.—He following chimney having appeared in the several presidency journals, viz

At Dum-Dum, of the Brim Lever, with which he was attacked on the 4th August, and died on the 9th,

Lieutenant and Adjutant W. S. Barlow, of the 1st Regiment Madras Native Infantry, deeply regretted by his brother officers and all who had the pleasure of knowing him, aged 18 years, 9 months, and 7 days, elicited a statement in the Hurkaru to the effect that no such person had died, or even been known at Durg-Dum near Calcutta, "within the memory of the oldest inhabitant." It was further remarked, that if an officer of the Madras Infantry had died within two days' walk of Calcutta, on the 9th of the present month, he could not have been "sincerely regretted by his brother officers," as they could not have heard of his death; and that an officer of little more than eighteen years of age was not very likely to have been a Lieutenant and Adjutant. Nor did the Madras Army list (corrected up to the 30th of June) contain the name of Lieutenant W. S. Barlow in the Army, and that the only person of the name is an Ensign A. Barlow, who, according to the list, proceeded to Europe, on sick certificate, dated 13th of March.

On the appearance of the Hurkaru's statement, information was communicated to the editor of that journal, which not only confirms the belief that the obituary notice was incorrect, but that it had been put upon the public to forward some swindling speculation. It appears that a party describing, himself as Lieutenant Barlow, of the Madras Native Infantry, absent on leave, called on the 4th instant at Madame Champenois's Millinery establishment, and ordered a wedding suit, and many articles of female apparel, which he said were required for his approaching nuptials with Miss P. The party never again made his appearance at Madame Champenois's, and it is supposed, that apprehending detection for being hardly pressed by others from whom he had obtained goods under similar false pretences, he had recourse to the malicious announcement of his death, in order to stay the pursuit. We have thought it our duty to give prominent place to this intimation, as the race of swindlers is daily increasing in the town, and we deem it necessary to put our fellow citizens on their guard.

WRECKS.—The following is an extract from the log-book of the Nine:—

"Thursday, July 23d.—At day light saw the Sunda Islands or Maldives. At ½ past 8 A. M. went to one of the small islands which I reached at 11 A. M., and on landing on a beautiful beach as white as snow (and no surf), to my astonishment, found a ship's cargo in three large bays consisting chiefly of cotton in good order, besides many stores. We stayed on the island only half an hour, being anxious to return to the ship to land in a larger boat, when I might be able to bring the most valuable articles on board, but the ship drifting by the current to the N. Eastward we had a long pull off and did not think it prudent to return to the island till the following morning, when to my surprise the island was nearly out of sight; the ship being becalmed and set by the current and the island being nearly 20 miles off, I did not think it prudent to return, not knowing the disposition of the natives, and having seen some of them on the island with a prow or canoe, who hastened away at our approach. It is my opinion that there must be at least 700 bales of cotton on the island, a great quantity of rope, a quantity of copper and many other stores, Ships Latitude 41° North, and Longitude by Chron. 73° 4' East, Island bearing S. S. E. 10°. I found a bill, having ship's name John Campbell of Greenwich."

The following is an extract from a letter from on board the Dido which reached us yesterday:—

"I am not certain whether the following little incident will be to you worth the postage; but I feel ever so well disposed to oblige, that I cannot resist the temptation of trying it.

On the evening of Saturday 1st, about 8½ p. m., Sunk-e-lyon bearing the Northern extremely N. N. E., the Southern S. E. ½ E., the wind blowing from the W. with frequent squalls, throughout the day—we were startled by a yell of supplication and despair from several voices, on our weather quarter. We were however unable to distinguish the persons, or the raft or spar to which they clung, although they were evidently close to us, so close that any object so high out of the water, as a boat, must have been visible.

A light was immediately shown and an attempt made to put the ship about, which failed in the first instance—she having refused stays, and when it was at length effected, the wretched beings were no longer to be heard. It is probable, from the direction of the wind and upper current at the time, that they may have drifted on to the 'Brothers.'—I may mention that about four hours before we experienced a very severe squall. No vessels appear to have left Singapore or Penang at a time which could have placed them in that position, while it was quite out of the way of coasting craft,—but it is wrong to hazard conjecture on so distressing a subject.

The Penang Gazette of the 25th ultimo, mentions the total loss of the bark Louisa of Penang, on the North sands. I met a Mr. Brown at Singapore, a townsman of ours I was informed, who had been a passenger on board, and had lost every thing he possessed.

The Gulnare from London arrived at Penang on the night of the 20th having evidently encountered bad weather, her bulwarks on both sides having been swept clean away, and as no attempt had been made to repair them, it is to be inferred that she had experienced her rude treatment recently, I was unable to pick up any particulars regarding it, however."

THE RETIRING FUND.—Such has been the promptitude with which the Regiments subscribing to the Retiring Fund have remitted their subscriptions that there are actually funds in hand at this moment sufficient to purchase out four field officers.

MINT COMMITTEE.—The Office of Secretary to the Mint Committee was abolished on the 13th instant.

MR. RYCKMAN.—Calcutta is about to lose the benefit of Mr. Ryckman's talents and services. A series of domestic troubles, which have quite unhinged this accomplished musician, have induced him to relinquish his engagements with the artillery (whose band master he has been two years and a half,) and proceed to Batavia on the Harmonie. He will carry with him the good wishes and regrets of many in this place who admire his talents and respect his character.

CALCUTTA AS IT IS—Mr J. H. Stacqueler, the Editor of the Englishman, has edited a work on Calcutta and its, which will be published in England in February and reach in India by June next. There can be no doubt, from Mr. Stacqueler's well-known talents and humour, that the work will be a highly amusing one.

COURT MARTIAL—A general court martial has been sitting in the Fort, for the trial of an officer of the 18th N I, upon certain charges preferred against him by the General Management of the Military Orphan Society, on account of alleged misconduct towards one of the wards of that Institution.

THE HALF JUMNA SETTLEMENT—The Supreme Government has finally passed the Rules, technically called "half jumna settlement Rules," for the resumed lakherni tenures, and directed a copy of the same to be furnished to the Landholders' Society.

A NEW MAGAZINE—A Prospectus for the publication of a new Monthly Magazine is now in course of circulation amongst the natives of Calcutta and its vicinity. Its price will be only two annas a month.

CAPTAIN ABBOTT—Intelligence has been received of Captain Abbott, who has confirmed his safety, after he had had some narrow escapes. On the 14th of April, the date of our communication, he had not been without much difficulty the part of Munirwak on the (aquan, where floating no vessels about to cross he determined to push on to the Russian frontiers of Dushkallah, 150 miles to the northward. When within two days journey of this place he was attacked in the night by a party of Cossacks, and after being four times beaten to the ground, and losing two of the fingers of his right hand in quarrelling with a leader of his assailants, he eventually received a blow, which rendered him senseless. While he was in this state, one of the party more humane or considerate than the others stood over him, and prevented the ruffians from taking his life. He remained here fifteen days in captivity, when he was happily discovered and ransomed by a person, who hid at the peril of his own life, followed him from Khiva, with a supply of money. These particulars are communicated in a letter from Captain A—himself—written with his left hand. By the way a cousin of his, communicated by the person who ransomed him, he had reached the Russian frontier above mentioned, and had been most hospitably received by the Russians. The how-ever, resting on the report of this Khiva, cannot be entirely depended on, which the preceding account may.

A NEW SCHOOL—Baboo Jyotsnarayn Bindopadhyay has, since the 1st of Aug., established an English Free School at Jhampura, a village to the west of Calcutta. In this School, the boys of the village in question, and of those surrounding it, are gratuitously instructed in the English language from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M.

LOST MATRONS—We are permitted to state that all the letters dispatched from Calcutta to Madras & Cochin, between the 2d and 17th June a period of seventeen days, have been lost in the Boln Pasa.

NEW BEAM FOR THE DWARKANATH—We were invited to Messrs. Lascar & Co's foundry yesterday, to witness the cast of the new beam for the Dwarkanath Steamer, and were happy to observe the ease and complete success with which the cast was made. Fifty castings of similar size were poured out of the furnace with as great facility as a boy would cast a bullet of lead. It is only a few years since that the operation was deemed impracticable in Calcutta, and incidents for new shafts were sent home; but the excess of talent we have had in our corps of Engineers lately, has obviated the necessity of sending home for almost any kind of iron-work.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT—A gentleman who had the charge of embanking the Damoodah, was lately riding over the embankments along that river near Koomorool, a village in Zilla Hooghly, when some of the inhabitants cautioned him not to ride that way, as the mound to a considerable length was cracked and consequently insecure. But the gentleman heeded not the warning, and continued to ride as before, when all of a sudden the bank, on which he was fearlessly riding, to the extent of fifty paces gave away, and the horse with his rider was precipitated into the stream, which carried them nobody knows where.

THE NEPAULESE—We are happy to hear that intelligence has reached town from a quarter that may be relied upon, that the Nepaulese have readily evacuated the villages and districts which they have recently been occupying. What effect this may have upon the warlike intentions of that Government, we of course do not pretend to know.

THE MINT ESTABLISHMENT—It was mentioned the other day in the Government orders, that the office of secretary to the mint committee had been abolished. We have since learnt that Mr. John Greenway has been appointed head clerk to the committee and registrar of the office, and that his son, Mr. William Greenway, has been transferred from his temporary employment in the Assay Office, and permanently appointed assistant and accountant in the office of the committee. We announce this circumstance with great pleasure, because, apart from our personal knowledge of the worth of both father and son, it was impossible to help sympathising with both, when we saw so nothing like an indirect attempt to attach to Mr. Wm. Greenway a certain share of blame and censure for some irregularities committed in the Assay office, and recently brought to public notice. The attempt, we are happy to say, has been completely foiled and we suspect we are not far wrong in attributing to the mint committee a generous desire to confide the Greenways, by the new appointments for all that they have suffered.

NOTES.

DEATH—Torrents of rain have fallen, and the Jumna has crept beyond its usual bounds, even during the rains. Every one, except Banneah, rejoices in the prospect of plentiful crops and cheap prices. Much credit is due to the Government for the way in which he has secured the bridge of boats this year, as yet it has not been very high, and if not shortly repaired, however will be entirely washed away.

A respectable woman, a Cashmiri at the whole of her own property, including her house, to burn with the corpse of her husband. The violation of the police and the execution of the joint Mir-ah had prevented the Sathurah, but it was necessary to use force, the woman expressing her determination and using her utmost efforts to destroy it by dashing herself on the floor of the house where she was confined. The Brahmins were, as usual at the bottom of it and would have willingly gloated themselves over the sacrifice.

A boy of the Bannesh caste was atrociously murdered in the city, for the sake of the ornaments on his person, valued at 100 rupees.

AGRA.—The half-yearly Meeting of the Agra Board took place on the 1st instant, at which a dividend was declared for the last six months, at the rate of eleven per cent. per annum. A report of the proceedings will be found in another column.

The weather continues very favourable, and the apprehensions entertained for the Kurruck crops almost dismissed.

Mr. W. Money, C. S., has arrived and taken charge of the Collectorship of Customs.

The weather continues tolerably favorable, though less so at Agra, than the adjacent districts, where the rain is represented as more plentiful.

The balance of the sum fixed by Government to be paid by the Rajah of Bhurtpoor, to defray the expense of taking his city, amounting to five lakhs of Rupees, has been remitted by the Governor General, in consequence of his Highness "fealty" and "the badness of the times."

Native States.

RANPORE.—The Nawab of Ranpore died on the 18th of July. There has been a disturbance in which some lives have been lost and the Minister killed among the rest.

The following particulars of the murder of the Minister have reached us. The man, who it is generally considered deserved his fate, was represented to the Nawab as having practised sorcery towards him, which produced his illness. The Nawab, on this charge sent for him, but he refused to come, and a brother-in-law proceeding to arrest him, had one of his people cut down by the followers of the Minister, Daulat. This led to the massacre, which followed immediately, of Daulat and his party. Every thing was quiet, and there was an anxious feeling among the people that our Government should take the country. They had suffered too much from their own rule of tyranny to desire its further continuance. Mr. Dick, with a detachment of troops entered Ranpore on the morning of the 26th of July.

SULTANPOOR, ORDE.—A letter from Sultanpore says:—"We have had incessant rain for the last 6 days, the crops promise well. The prospect of the Indigo planters must be favorable by this rain. The Nazim of Purabghur, Muzza Akhbar Beg, has had a skirmish with Raja Pirthee Pahl of Doodpore, in which unfortunately the far famed has come out the second best—2 guns of the King of Dood captured by the Raja—the Tumhills burnt, and the bullocks driven away—the Nujehs of Gungu Sing's and Agah Jaan's Paltan well thrashed by the Raj Koonwar Sepoils of the Raja—stripped of all their arms and accoutrements, nay even of the Dhotee. Ungahs the Nazim thought he could do without the aid of Robert kah Paltan, and without giving the least notice to the Commandant of Colonel Robert's detachment, he went out with two Nujeh Paltans,—he has found his mistake, for the better half deserted their posts and left Nazim at the mercy of his Klans. Ambassadors to protect him or to leave him. The Raja says, were it not for Robert kah Paltan, they would drive the Nazim with all his favorite Nujeh forces back to Nawabganj from whence they came. The measure adopted by the King of Oude, by the recommendation of Colonel Caulfield, the Resident of Lucknow, for the apprehension of Bhugs and Dacots is very judicious and praiseworthy.

The Officers of Colonel Roberts' Brigade appointed on this duty, have been very vigilant, and numbers of the offenders have been apprehended and sentenced to punishment."

THE PUNJAB.—By recent accounts from the Punjab, it appears, that the following are the subjects of discussion at present between the British and Sikh Government; viz:—a free passage through the Punjab, for our troops, proceeding either to or from Afghanistan;—an adjustment of boundaries between the Sikhs and Shah Shoojah, on the side of Peshawar and the Dera Jât,—the presence of the Mahomedan force which the Sikhs are required by treaty to maintain in the vicinity of Peshawar, for the service of the Shah; the punishment of Sultan Mohammed Khan, for giving an asylum contrary to his engagements, to the Ghilzee fugitives, and when their delivery was demanded, allowing them to escape,—and a revival of the present rate of tolls levied by the Sikh Government for the navigation of the Sutlej and Indus.

To the first of these demands, the Kuwar Nao Nihal Singh, who, as our readers are aware, has usurped his father's authority in the Government of the Punjab, is supposed to be decidedly averse; and to have offered the strongest objections to the passage of any force, exceeding a single Regiment, as an escort to occasional convoys of stores and provisions.

SCINDIE.—It was mentioned that Lieut. Jackson, the Assistant Political Agent at Candahar, had left that place with a body of Afghan horse, for the purpose of endeavoring to open the communication between Candahar and Quetta. It now appears, that letters have been received in town announcing the arrival of Lieut. Jackson and his party at Quetta, and the consequent removal of all apprehensions of any effectual attack from the Beloochees.

Much anxiety has lately been felt for the fate of the detachment under Lieut. Loveday occupying Khelat, and likewise for that of the small force shut up in the Quetta, under Capt Bean. Numerous reports have been current, to the effect that Mehrab Khan's son had obtained possession of Khelat, and that Mr. Loveday was wounded and a prisoner, with some horrible cruelties in store for him; and stories of an almost equally unpleasant kind have been circulated regarding the Quetta detachment.

The following extract of a letter from Ferozepore, dated 29th July, confirms the report of the re-capture of Khelat.

"The Commandants of the 27th and 33rd Regiments are said to have received instructions from Army Head Quarters, to complete their complement of men without delay, &c, while two days back, the 5th Regiment N. I. was in orders to hold itself in readiness to proceed by water to Sukkur. The indent for the tonnage has been prepared and sent in. The cause of this unexpected movement, is removed to be the recapture of Khelat by the Natives, and that young Loveday, our Political there, is in no danger. The order came from the Lieut. Governor."

AFGHANISTAN.—The following extract of a letter from Ferozepore, dated the 2d August, we are glad to perceive, contradicts the statement, we lately published, of the fall of Khatul:

"I have this moment seen a letter dated July 21, from Afghanistan, and I listen to put you right in respect to my last communication about the ou dit of Loveday having been wounded and Khelat-retaken. Such is not the case. Loveday at present is at Khelat-Nasreen, quite safe, but his native agent, Mousatung Kallang, was apprehended by a Beloochee rebel.

Assistance has been sent to Benar, and Col. Wallace, with the 2d Regt. is in full march for Candahar, while all is quiet at Cabool. The officers are amusing themselves with races, which are good, although the cattle are not known to fame. The king's movements are doubtful, he may either winter at Jellalabad or Candahar.

BAMEEN.—It was lately stated, that the people in the province of Bameen were furnishing daily evidence of their growing confidence in the British rule. Further proof of this reaches us by every dispatch from that quarter. So perfect indeed is the reliance of even our wild Turkoman neighbours upon the security and protection they will receive, that those on the frontier actually come in and cultivate close round our camp! They were not wont to trust to the camps of Shah Boojah's predecessors in this way.

Madras.

CRUEL SPORTING.—The following anecdote of cruel sporting, is from the Madras United Service Gazette:

"I believe that I mentioned in my last that H — — had made a net of 5000 rupees that he would make his horse 400 miles in 5 days. At that every one laughed at him, even the dealers shook their heads and said it could not be done. The match commenced on Tuesday at 3 p.m. and H — — in the first twenty-four hours performed ninety miles and four furlongs, that is sixty rounds of the Bangalore B Course. On the second day he rode seventy-six miles and four furlongs, at the end of which day, he was very tired, and afterwards five to one against him. On the third day he performed sixty-nine miles and four furlongs and twenty yards. The horse was very tired, looking much better than he did on the first day. The odds if any thing to be made, were three to one. On the fourth day at ten a.m. he completed thirty-three miles and two furlongs; a great improvement for the horse in the appearance of the horse, the odds will rising, as he had been going the pace of the preceding night with the exception of about 45 minutes that he halted to have his legs rubbed. He still eats well and drinks a bottle of beer very two or three hours. I think he will win."

"Bangalore, Saturday, 11 — —, I am happy to say H — — won his match, with three hours and forty five minutes to spare. He finished this morning at about 17 minutes to 12 o'clock. Both man and horse took wonderfully well; the latter began cutting capers the moment his saddle was taken off. Thousands of people were out on the course. Sir Hugh Gough rode with H — — for the last eleven rounds 16 miles and a half, and the good old General appeared to take much interest in his success. The horse Jumping Tommy, fed admirably well to the last. On reaching the winning post where thousands were assembled — was received with thundering cheers and carried in triumph up to the Race Stand, in a chair that had been prepared for that purpose amidst the deafening hurrahs of all present."

LIFE BOAT — A life-boat on Palmer's principle, and Dumett's improved rocket auxiliary for preservation from shipwreck, are now being prepared for the port of Madras, and may be expected in due time to be available for service.

ATTEMPTED ESCAPE OF CONVICTS.—"On the night of the 23th of July about 12 o'clock the convicts sent from Mysore to be transported, for fifty, seventeen in number, made their escape from the prison near the marker, leaving one of their party behind, who is supposed from his corpulence to have been unable to squeeze himself through the passage made by his comrades. These convicts were all kept together in one long room, at the door of which stood a peep, as usual. About the above specified hour one of the prisoners asked permission to go outside in the court yard soon after another followed and the peep from some unaccountable cause became inoperative, in other words we presume had taken a nap, when the prisoners having bent the end of the cross bar of a window removed it from its place; this gap was sufficient to permit a man to escape side ways, and it led to the terrace of the cook-room where having thrown cumblicas on the edge of the wall faced with broken glass, the prisoners got clear of the prison and made for a new house, new building on the west, where they happening accidentally to tread on the inmates an alarm ensued. Meanwhile the convict left in the rear roused up the peons, a search followed, 4 convicts were taken upon the terrace of the prison, some on the belfry of St. John's Chapel, some in the compound laid in a bush, and others in an adjoining toddy shop and one near Davidson's Chapel altogether to the number of a dozen — two more were apprehended in endeavouring to pass out of the gate of the town walls, and another was secured in one of the huts near the road to Chinolay. Still however there are two more at large, but these will probably be apprehended in the course of a day or two."

SIR SAMUEL FORD WHITTINGHAM.—We are enabled to announce from an official source the arrival of the Madras Commander-in-Chief. The Intelligence is conveyed to us as follows:

"The ship Minerva, having on board His Excellency Lieutenant General Sir Samuel Ford Whittingham, Knight Commander of the Most Honorable Military Order of the Bath, appointed to the Office of the Commander-in-Chief at this Presidency, anchored in Madras roads on the 1st of August 1840, and at 1/2 before 7 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day His Excellency landed under a salute of 15 guns at the Sea Gate of Fort St. George, where he was received by the hands of the General Staff at the Presidency and an assemblage of Civil and Military Functionaries, and conducted to the carriage in waiting for his reception."

Bombay.

CAPT. TORKE.—The mercantile community of Bombay, in consideration of the noble exertions made by Captain Torke, of the Lord Castlereagh, to save the lives of the passengers and crew, have presented him with a complete outfit of nautical instruments and plate, valued at four thousand five hundred rupees.

MEDICAL COLLEGE.—A Medical College is about to be established at Bombay. The funds by which this very desirable object is to be carried into execution, now amount to two lacs and forty thousand rupees. Of this sum one lac is contributed by the Government; one lac by a munificent Purser, Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, and the remainder is the amount of a subscription set on foot on the death of Sir R. Grant, with a view to the erection of a building in honor of his memory, to be called Grant's Medical College. We cordially unite in the wishes and anticipations of our Bombay contemporary upon the subject of this projected Medical Institution at that Presidency.

PRINCE HYDER'S ALLOWANCE.—Prince Hyder, the son of Dost Mahomed, who is now residing at Bombay, was at first granted an allowance of 1,500 rupees per month, with house rent allowance. This sum was, however, in a short time reduced to 500, upon which the prince wrote to Lord Auckland with a request for the continuance of the original sum, with the understanding that it was to cover all his expenses.

THE OBSERVATORY.—Captain Shortrede has come down from Poona, in order to assist in the reparation, and better construction, of the astronomical apparatus in the observatory near the Light-house. Whatever the nature of the necessary alterations may be, they could not be entrusted to better hands than those of Mr Shortrede, whose abilities and professional endowments, both as an astronomer and mathematician, are well known and appreciated by Government.

THE AVORIA GUNDS.—Sumbhjee Angria, who was at Gwallior, and who has, on several occasions asserted his rights to the quddis of the Anri State, has arrived at Poona, for the purpose, it is supposed of preferring his pretensions to the Raj of that principality.

FEVER.—Fever of a bad description has again been prevalent at Rajpote, and the 31 Cavalry were suffering severely therefrom, having 3 officers and forty men sick.

THE STEAM FRIGATE.—The Ship Lord Auckland cleared out of dock after delivering the large copper boilers sent out for the Steam Frigate now in the course of construction. She also discharged some enormous guns, fashioned on a recent principle, and adapted for the projection of heavy shot or shell.

MORO RAGONATH.—Moro Ragonath, whose name was so familiar during the contest about legal jurisdiction carried on between Sir J. P. Grant and Sir J. Malcolm, has been lately very graciously treated by Sir James Carnac.

EDUCATION IN BOMBAY.—At a recent meeting of the Committee of the N. L. S. it was resolved that the students in that Institution would be generally charged for their education a monthly sum of one rupee. To this measure it might be objected that the schools of the Society were originally founded with the aim and object of bestowing free and gratuitous education, and that the present plan, resolved upon is a departure from the views and intentions of the original institutions. The system of remunerative education appears to be fraught with many benefits to the cause of education, both in regard to the estimation in which it may be held, and the eagerness with which it may be pursued.

SUSPENSION BRIDGES.—Two suspension bridges are to be erected on the new line of road constructing between this and Nagpoor.

THE SEASON.—A letter from Surat states, that the season is very favorable, but at Gwalior the fall of rain was not very abundant.

TANNAH CAUSEWAY.—The Tannah causeway has been a work of great and tedious complexity, but something, it appears, is at length attained. The plan which has now been approved of is rather singular one. The causeway is to rise only to the height of two feet above the lowest water mark, so as to enable vessels to pass at all tides, and it will be passable for passengers only about four hours in the twenty-four.

ROAD ROBBERY.—Highway robberies have of late been very frequent on the Tannah road. The author of a villainy named Sankar about three miles from Poway, the estate of Manjee Cowasji, Esq, gave intelligence to that gentleman's establishment, that two men had armed themselves for the purpose of plundering. In consequence, his Pans and Carpoons set off and apprehended the two robbers in their own houses, and there found also a quantity of Jewels and other stolen property. They were taken to the Commissioner who after an examination forwarded them to Tannah for trial.

NEWS FROM THE RED SEA.—The Hugh Lindsay had returned from Busurah and Karrack to Muscat on the 18th of July, and had brought no intelligence from Europe.

The Cleopatra has brought from Muscat, as a present from the Imam to H. M. the Queen two very beautiful Arab horses, and two equally beautiful mares of the same strain.

A French Corvette, la Dardogne was at Muscat, having on board M. Noel, for whom the French Government wishes to procure a recognition from the Imam, as French consul at Zanzibar on the coast of Africa. The Corvette is expected to arrive within a few days at Bombay.

Letters from Karrack describe the weather there as exceedingly hot. Lieut Jackson, of the 24th Regt N. I. is stated to be very ill, and it was feared that the weather would also affect the soldiers.

Letters have been received from Basora of the 6th of July, which describe the Arab Chiefs as disputing among themselves, and the more particularly as Kurshid Pasha had left Nejd and gone to Egypt. It is also said that some sickness prevailed on board the iron steamers, in consequence of their not being kept continually afloat. Two of the Engineers had died. Those letters make no allusion to the attack contemplated by the Shah on Bagdad. The Marquis Beaumont d'Autpoul, and Count Dinn with the interpreter M. Ostry had come to Basora with the intent on of coming on to Bagdad, in order to join the French Embassy, which had proceeded thither direct from Ispahan.

Letters from Basora allude to the intent on of the Shah to proceed to Bagdad, and state that he intends of that intention to fleece his subjects in order to complete his preparations, or perhaps to fill his coffers.

SUGAR COMPANY.—At a meeting of the Joint Stock Sugar Company, on the 6th instant, a resolution was passed to create a number of new shares, in order to encumber the stock of the Company.

EUPHRATES EXPEDITION.—A letter from Muscat, states that the Euphrates expedition is over a many every obstacle, notwithstanding the oppressive effects of the heat, the thermometer being at 101d, at 7 A. M. The Arab tribes in the Gulf are quiet. One of the ships of a French Corvette lying at Muscat, died a few days before the steamer left. By another account we have been informed that three canoes belonging to the expedition have been cut off through the excessive heat.

MUSCAT SPOONER AND COURTNEY.—It is said that in consequence of several complaints preferred against Mr Spooner the late Political Agent of Muscat, Walter M. Courtney has been appointed to succeed him. It appears that this newly appointed gentleman strives most strenuously to diffuse peace and harmony among the people.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—A number of reports, belonging to Chachice, Jametjee Beg were being brought down Bagdad, and things belonging to that gentleman, on the 31st of last month, when they were overtaken by a gang of highway robbers near the village called Sheppoor, situated about two miles from Poona, who attempted to plunder the baggage, but fortunately the sepoy's were armed with guns which they loaded on the appearance of the thieves and boldly threatened to shoot them if they came in contact with the baggage, upon which they desisted, but succeeded in getting a chest off a cart which contained a few things belonging to a European Gentleman. They broke the chest to pieces with a stone, and took out the contents, which consisted of silver utensils and a few other articles.

Ceylon.

THE COPPER CROP.—It is said on the authority of persons from the interior, that the prospects of the coming Copper Crops are most encouraging, the bushes being loaded with fruit, under the weight of which they already bend.

LOSS OF THE FAIRY QUEEN.—The following letter details the loss of the Fairy Queen—

"The English Barque Fairy Queen, under my command, sailed from Sydney N.S.W. Wales, for this port on the 23d May last, in company with the English Barque Potentate Capt. McGilchrist, & a Torres Straits, when on the evening of the 20th June with strong contrary current, I lost sight of the Potentate, and in the morning made sail intended to pass between Urk island and Kingelang, but we experienced a strong current to the South East, which drove us to the S.E. of those islands, and at 7.30 P.M. we struck on a reef in the neighbourhood of the Antelope Islands, not laid down in my charts—at day light in the morning we were surrounded by a number of Malay prows, the boats were employed taking out the anchors, that we might attempt to get the ship off myself and two hands only remained on board, when the Malays began to board us in immense numbers, in spite of our threats and remonstrances, when at length they increased to the amount of two or three thousand men, all armed with Irvies, &c., and began cutting the rigging, sails, cables, &c., to pieces and appropriating them in their own boats. We then retreated to the Cabin intending to defend ourselves, but on seeing the mass of men we had to contend with, we found it would only have entailed destruction upon ourselves, so that we thought it better to save our lives if we could, so we managed to get into our boats with two small kegs of water and a raw ham, and after three days, arrived at Point Panca, where we found the Potentate, I then put the crew, seventeen in number, on board the vessel and proceeded to Sourabaya to note a protest, after which again went on board the Potentate and sailed for this place, where we arrived on the 1st instant, and gave notice to the proper authorities here.

The Dutch Admiral has kindly agreed to send a vessel of war in which I proceed to the wreck to morrow morning, in hopes of saving the whole or some part of the property.

China.

The following items of news from China have been received, as our paper was going to press and may be relied on—"The Black Jade and two other vessels were driven off the coast by thirty War Junks—the 'Jarl' in conflict with the Mandarin received a shot between wind and water, and was compelled to haul off to repair damages—Imperial officers offered a very large reward for every Opium smuggler's head and in retaliation the smugglers on the East Coast have deprived every mandarin they could lay hands on of his soul—Lots of long tails, ornamented with the tail of some of the elephants, but he has not yet got any heads to display—The British ship the Devil has taken possession of the two small islands called Moles or Brothers, situated in the Cape of Good Hope—they have been converted into Farm lands for Bullocks, &c.—John Bull won't ever forget him, but in China—The Chinese appear perfectly unconcerned and indifferent to the tremendous storm—There was a sham fight, a few days back in which the ship, 'Cambridge,' was boarded and taken possession of in a quiet style—Where was the resistance?—I'm assured the scene of action much, and enterprising the opinion that all the Barbican ships are to be captured on equally easy terms—The Mary Gordon's last cargo of Opium sold at Dollars 480 to 400 per chest. The Arden's at 450—Nearly all the Cotton, that has been landed at Macao has found its way to Canton and was selling here for 13½ to 14 taels.

Aden.

We have been favored with the perusal of a letter, which has just reached Calcutta, from which it will be seen, that another attack has been made upon Aden, by the Arabs, who were repulsed with considerable loss. The writer of the letter was in Aden at the time the attack took place.—

"On the night of the 4th of July, the Arabs, in number about four thousand, attacked the outworks of Aden. The firing commenced about one o'clock in the morning, and lasted until half past four during which time a great number of shells were thrown, which did considerable execution among the attacking party, while some of the garrison were hurt. According to accounts from the interior, forwarded to Captain Haycock, there have been about 50 killed, and from 80 to 100 wounded, a great many severely. According to a prisoner's account of the attack, he says all fell around him, so that there was no person to carry him away, as they invariably carry off the wounded. It appears on the whole, that the Arabs would accept the terms now, formerly refused by them, as they find there is no chance of regaining the place.

The Constance schooner, Lieut. Young, arrived at Aden on the 7th July, and the Zembeh steamer sailed the same night with the mails brought by the Constance from Bombay.

P.S. The Zao is at present in Kedgees, waiting for a pilot. It is a great pity that ships should be detained for want of pilots, as it is well known they pay high for their services."

Persia.

THE TURKS AND PERSIANS.—By the intelligence from the Persian Gulph, it appears that another severe shock has been experienced by the already tottering Ottoman Empire, induced by Russia on the north and the Pacha on the south, her eastern frontier is now assailed by Persia, the quarrel having arisen out of frontier aggressions, a couple of years ago. The fort of Salaman was taken by storm in May, by a Persian Army consisting of 6,000 Infantry and 2,000 Cavalry, commanded by Amir Nizam, the garrison and a brave detachment were slain, but 3,000 killed, besides prisoners and wounded. To add to the calamity, a reinforcement of 4,000 Turkish troops dispatched to assist the garrison by the Pacha of Bagdad, after being too late to effect their object, were suddenly attacked at night by the Persian Army, which made a forced march for the purpose, and the Turks experienced a total defeat, with the loss of all their baggage.

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE PENSION FUND.

The Annual General Meeting of the Subscribers was held in the Town Hall, on Thursday the 27th of August 1840. Capt A. B. Clapperton in the chair.

The following report was read by the Officiating Secretary Mr. H. Andrews.

Third Report of the Uncovenanted Service Family Pension Fund.

The Directors, in surrendering their office beg leave to submit to their constituents the following Report of their proceedings, and of the state and progress of the Fund during the period its interests were committed to their care and management.

They will first advert to the manner in which the Resolutions passed at the last General Meeting have been carried into operation.

Copies of the report were in accordance with Resolutions 2 and 3, forwarded to the Right Hon'ble the Governor General, the Patron of the Fund, and to the Hon'ble the President in Council, for perusal and eventual transmission to the Hon'ble the Court of Directors. The reply with which His Lordship favored the Directors will be found in the Appendix.

Copies of the Report intended for the Hon'ble the President in Council were sent under cover of a letter transmitting the Memorial to the Hon'ble Court, prepared pursuant to Resolution 4. Copies of the memorial and of the favorable communication regarding it vouchsafed by his Excellency the President in Council will also be found in the Appendix. The Directors cannot in this place, refrain from congratulating their fellow servants, on the continued kind disposition of the Supreme Government, towards the establishment of a Family Pension Fund for their Uncovenanted Servants. It now rests with the Hon'ble the Court of Directors to honor with their sanction the reiterated recommendation of their Government and to recognize with their liberal support, an institution which has been established and maintained in exception of such support.

The Directors feel happy to state, that the Fund has worked very successfully during the past year. Since the 1st of May, 1839, there have been 29 additional Subscribers, and six Members have increased as per margin, the Annuity subscribed for their families. The amount

1 from 600 to 1200, of names registered on the books

2 from 300 to 600, drawn from death 8, from withdrawal 3 from default in paying up subscriptions 3, and from death of wives 7, less two continued for their children, the actual number of Subscribers on the present date is 115.

The capital of the Fund, the progressive accumulation which is shown in the figured statement in the Appendix, amounted on the 30th of April last to Co.'s Rs. 65,318-7-6.

The gross amount of receipts on the same date, on account of the Widows' Fund for 115 lives assured was Rs. 73,382 6-9, and on account of the Children's Fund for 19 lives assured Rs. 18,096. The disbursement to 4 Widows who were incumbents on the Fund on that date, was Rs. 4,459-14-7, and to 18 Children Rs. 4,944 2 11 the receipts on account of both Funds, since the establishment of the Institution, inclusive, of the interest allowed by Government, and the amount of legacy left by the late Baboo Nilmony Day, amounted in the aggregate to Rs. 78,144-11-8. To this sum be added

* Since this report was prepared another Subscriber has been admitted, paying Rs. 9 12 per mensem, for an annuity of Rs. 25 per month for his wife.

the receipts for the months of May, June and July, of which certain official returns have not yet reached the Directors, the gross amount will be Rs. 85,920-4-2. Deducting from this, the amount of expenditure during that period, viz. Rs. 14,364-4-3, the surplus or credit of the Fund will amount on the 31st of July, 1840, exclusive of interest since the 30th of April to Rs. 72,055-15-11.

The books of the Fund having been balanced and closed, exhibit a clear sum of Rs. 65,318-7-6 as credit of the United Funds on the 30th April, 1840. This sum is disposed of as follows:

During the past year and up to the present time the Directors have had to record 3 deaths among the subscribers. The demise respectively of Mr H. Marquell and Mr J. C. Hoff has brought 5 children upon the Fund; payments to whom amount to Rupees 80 per month. The demise also of Mr. C. Jones entitles his widow to Rupees 50 per month—Miss Helen Levina Babonau, one of the incumbents on the Fund; died on the 27th May last, since which date her allowance of Rupees 16 per mensem has of course ceased to be drawn. This is the second lapse among the incumbents, Miss Victoria Olivia Babonau having died on the 27th May 1838. Since the establishment of the Fund down to the present date, there have been lapses of risks from the demise of parties interested as follows:—

6* Wives amounting....to Rp. 305 10 8 per month.
10 Children at 16 160 0 0

The Directors have found it necessary to suggest alterations in certain Rules and Bye-laws and to frame a few additional Rules and Bye-laws which will be submitted for the sanction of the meeting in a substantive resolution.

CHILDREN'S FUND.

Adverting to what was stated in the last report regarding this branch of the Fund, the Directors have to report that they received from Mr. Clint, on the 9th of March last, two tables constructed on annuity principles for male and female children. These tables were referred to a Sub-Committee of their body, whose report will be found in the Appendix. The Directors after mature deliberation, determined on the following scheme to which they have given effect from the 1st of May 1840.

Ages of Fathers.	Rates for Boys.	Rates for Girls.
20 to 35	4 0	5 0
35 to 40	4 4	5 10
40 to 45	4 8	6 10
45 to 50	4 12	7 0
50 to 60	5 0	7 0

The above rates will secure a provision as heretofore of 16 rupees per mensem for girls till married, and for boys till they attain the age of 16. Parties however are allowed the option of subscribing for any amount of annuity from 4 to 32 rupees per mensem, for their children's subscriptions being increased or decreased in proportion.

As the age of the father was to regulate the rate of subscription, it was determined that the age of existing subscribers should be computed to the 1st of May 1840, the date from which the new rates have obtained. The Directors are happy to state, that with two or three exceptions, all existing subscribers have consented to pay at the new rates. Two have augmented the amount of provision for their children, but none have fallen below the former standard of rupees 16. It was expected that the increase of income from the revised rates would amount per mensem to rupees 265-3, a sum which nearly covered the payment to incumbents on the 1st of May 1840.

ACCOUNTS AND CHECKS.

The Directors in the month of April last, considered it expedient to review and revise the existing forms of the accounts of this institution and the checks adopted by its auditors. To this end, a Sub-Committee from among them was appointed whose Report with the Proceedings of the Directors thereon will be found in the Appendix. The following abstract of these Proceedings was published in the daily papers of the Presidency.

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE FAMILY PENSION FUND.

With reference to recent unfortunate disclosures in connection with the Military Fund, the Directors of the Uncovenanted Servants Family, Pension Fund, have deemed it their duty to increase the check already established for the security of the monies of the Fund.

"By these additional checks, all receipts for subscriptions to the Fund, all acknowledgment for Bonds, Drafts, &c., transmitted by subscribers, will from the 1st instant, bear the signature of a Director of the Fund in addition to that of its Secretary.

"The signing Director is strictly enjoined to keep a Register of whatever money acknowledgments he may then authenticate, and to take care that such acknowledgments are carried to the credit of the Fund.

"All orders for payment on account of the Fund, will continue as heretofore to bear the signature of the Secretary and three Directors of the Fund.

"Those subscribers who make payments to the Secretary, are hereby accordingly informed that no receipt or acknowledgment for money issued on or after the 1st instant, will be deemed valid by the Directors, unless it bears the signature of one of their own body in addition to that of the Secretary of the Fund.

"In promulgating this notice, the Directors beg leave to refer to the superior advantage of subscribers paying their monthly subscriptions by deductions from their pay abstracts; by this method payments appear at interest to the credit of the Fund, the moment they become due and no risk whatever of a misappropriation of subscriptions is incurred."

The Directors would notice under this head an arrangement which was subsequently made in consequence of M. D. Clark, the Secretary and Accountant, having expressed a desire to be relieved of the financial duties of his office. The following notification which was published by the Directors contains the substance of this arrangement.

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE FAMILY PENSION FUND, JUNE 5, 1840.

"Notice is hereby given, that the Secretary to the above Fund is from this date, at his own request, relieved from the financial duties of his office.

"Mr. H. J. Lee,† of the Bank of Bengal, has consented to act as Collector to the Fund, and he will, therefore, receive such subscriptions monthly as are at present paid through the Secretary instead of through office abstracts.

"Subscriptions on their receipt will be immediately placed to the credit of the Fund in the Bank of Bengal, and at the termination of each week the amount then accumulated will be remitted to the General Treasury.

"Pensions, &c. will in future be payable on the 3d of every month by Check on the Bank of Bengal which establishment will be furnished with an order on the sub-Treasurer to meet these liabilities."

It was considered expedient, owing to an objection in the General Treasury to receiving small sums of money, to make the Bank of Bengal the depository of all daily collections instead of allowing the money to accumulate in the hands of any of the officers of the Fund. The amount which accumulates in the Bank, is transferred by check at the end of every week to the General Treasury. All disbursements from the Fund are now made by checks on the Bank instead of in cash payments.

The Directors would now advert to two other matters, first the resignation, in the month of March last of their colleague Mr. C. F. Hyatt, whose place was supplied for a few months by Mr. A. Heberlet, and afterwards by Mr. C. N. Cooke, and secondly, the resignation of their late Secretary Mr. D. Clark. Mr. H. Andrews,* has officiated as corresponding and recording Secretary since the 13th of July last, the date of Mr. Clark's resignation. The vacancy having occurred so near the time of the Annual General Meeting, the Directors deemed it proper to leave the permanent appointment of a Secretary to their successors. They, however, beg to recommend that the salary of the Office of Secretary and Accountant, be increased to Rupees 100 per mensem, a sum which is only an adequate remuneration for the extent and importance of the duties to be performed.

The benefits which this institution proposes are already sensibly felt. The families of the eight of the uncovenanted body, now derive a portion of their comforts from the provision which was secured for them through this source. The directors have allowed no opportunity to escape to direct attention to the advantages held out by the institution. This they have done by the publication of quarterly reports of the state of the Fund. During the past year the Directors have learnt that a dispatch had been received from England strictly restricting the grant of pensionary allowances to the families of Uncovenanted Servants left in destitute circumstances, they immediately applied for and obtained from Government an extract of that dispatch. This extract was published in the newspapers and a copy of it is included in the appendix. The publication of this dispatch has, the Directors believe, had the effect of compelling some to report to this institution but unfortunately the result is not general. The Directors feel that such unconcern will not long continue to prevail they find much to encourage them in the circumstance that so large a body of their fellow servants have already united themselves in supporting the Fund and they are certain that those who are alive to the calls of prudence and affection will not hold back, when they reflect both upon the rigid restriction which this Honorable Court of Directors have now placed on the bounty heretofore only occasionally bestowed by the State and the fact that by a small contribution out of their monthly income, a certain provision may be made for their families, by means of an institution which can only be viewed in the light of a doubtful expense but one offsetting by its practical working, the most reasonable expectation of stability.

In conclusion the Directors have to notice three propositions which have come before them during the past year.

The first of these is to admit widows who are servants of Government to subscribe to the Fund for the benefit of their children. The rules of the Fund provide only for the admission of "Christian men," and it will rest with this Meeting, to determine, whether, taking into consideration, the fact that the tables by which annuities are regulated, have been framed with reference exclusively to male life, any alteration should be made on these rules. The Directors are not aware that there are any available public documents shewing the decrement of female life in India.

The next question mooted by a few subscribers is, the propriety of extending the provision for male children until they attain the age of 18 or 21, it being considered injurious to remove boys from their studies at the early age of 16 and the objection being enhanced from the admitted difficulty of orphan children obtaining employment at that early age. The Directors conceive that the desired alteration may be made if approved by this Meeting, but it can only be done by increasing the rates of subscriptions for boys.

An address bearing the names of 124 gentlemen, natives and Europeans, was received by the Directors in the month of June last, proposing the establishment of a Widowing Fund on annuity principles for the Uncovenanted Servants of Government. This address will now be read to you, pursuant to the wishes of the gentlemen who have signed it. The Directors while sensibly appreciating the advantages which such an institution would afford, could not on the one hand entertain the proposal in their capacity as Directors of this Fund, and they considered on the other hand, that it would be prudent to defer the consideration of it, pending the application which has been submitted to the Honorable the Court of Directors in behalf of what is of far greater importance—the establishment under their auspices and support, of a Family Pension Fund for their Uncovenanted Servants.

Two letters containing the propositions above mentioned, were now read, after which the following Resolutions were passed.

Proposed by Mr. M. Cockburn, seconded by Mr. G. J. Scott, and resolved.

1—That the Report now read be adopted, printed and distributed.

Proposed by Mr. J. J. L. Hoff, seconded by Mr. H. B. Gardner, and resolved.

2—That a copy of the Report be presented to the Right Honorable the Governor-General, as Patron of the Fund.

Proposed by Mr. C. Cornelius, seconded by Mr. C. U. Smith, and resolved.

3—That six copies of the Report be forwarded to the Right Honorable the Governor-General of India in Council, with the respectful prayer of the Meeting, that copies may be forwarded to the Honorable Court of Directors, with any observations which His Lordship in Council may think the subject to deserve at his hands.

Proposed by Mr. W. Ryland, seconded by Mr. F. D. Kellur, and resolved.

4—That the following amended Rules and Bye-laws, and additional Rules and Bye-laws be adopted, and that they obtain in this Fund from the present date.

Proposed by Mr. C. Kerr, seconded by Mr. C. N. Cooke, and resolved.

5—That as the duties and responsibilities of the office of Secretary and Accountant in this Fund have considerably increased within the last two years, this meeting, in order to ensure the services of a properly qualified agency, deem it necessary to fix the salary of the office at Rs. 100 per mensem and they leave it optional with the Directors to appoint, as they may judge to be expedient one or two officers for the duties respectively of Secretary and Accountant.

Proposed by Mr. R. J. Row, seconded by Captain Clapperton, and resolved.

6—That the sincerest thanks of this meeting are due to the Directors of the past year, for the services which they have rendered to the Fund.

Proposed by Mr. M. Cockburn, seconded by Mr. A. G. Avel, and resolved.

7—That the following gentlemen be elected Directors for the ensuing year.

Messrs. W. Balfour, C. N. Cooke, J. J. L. Hoff, C. Kerr, F. D. Kellur, R. Kerr, H. J. Lee, J. Madge, J. H. Madge, W. Ryland, P. Sutherland, W. Stanley, and L. Wilkinson.

* Mr. Andrews's services were also bestowed gratuitously.

* These Rules and Bye-laws will be printed and bound up with the Report.

Proposed by Mr. E. Wilkinson, seconded by Mr. H. B. Cresswell, and resolved.

Chairman for his kindness in presiding on the present occasion.

LANDHOLDERS' SOCIETY.

Proceedings of a Meeting of the Committee held at the Society's Office, on Monday, the 31st August.

The gentlemen proposed at the last meeting were unanimously elected.

Read a letter received from Government dated 18th August, in answer to the Society's letter soliciting a modification of the existing law regarding the suspension of punishments awarded by the Magistrate pending an appeal before the Sessions' Judge.

Resolved that the above letter of the Society, together with the answer from Government, be published for the information of the Members.

F. J. HASTING, Esq.

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

2nd.—We are directed by the Landholders' Society to which the favor of His Lordship's attention to our letter dated the 7th September 1839, and to the suggestions contained in the 11th paragraph thereof for the remedy of certain grievances.

3d.—The Society having had access to the circular issued by the Sudder Court under the sanction of His Lordship to the Magistrates in the Mofussil, by which it appears that the adoption of the first part of those suggestions has been recommended by Government namely "that a zemindar, his officers, riot or any other person should not be called to attend the Court of Justice established at Sudder sessions, and be thus suddenly diverted from the usual occupations. In consequence of the alleged neglect of police duty, without first affording him an opportunity to explain any charges that might have been preferred against him." The Society beg to express their grateful thanks for His Lordship having on this occasion, condescended to give effect to those suggestions and they feel a high degree of gratification that their efforts have proved useful in remedying a grievance which was a subject of general and serious complaint particularly among that class of agriculturists and zemindary amils, whose absence from home, at the harvest time generally operates injuriously to their interests and that of their employers.

3d.—The Society further direct us to solicit His Lordship's consideration of the latter part of the suggestion above alluded to expressed as follows: "Should the party accused be convicted by petition signify his intention to appeal the case to the sessions, the Magistrate provided it be not a case of felony, is to suspend the execution of his sentence, and release the accused party on taking bail, the amount of which should be limited by law not to exceed 200 Rupees." Although the proposed measure has exclusive reference to the conviction of neglect of police duties, the same provision may the Society humbly represent, be extended with considerable advantage to all misdemeanor cases indiscriminately which may have been degraded by the Magistrate, and the Society beg to submit that no party should be held liable to a penalty whenever he signifies, in writing his intention to appeal the case and tenders bail as the law directs.

4th.—In illustration of the hardship and sufferings to which innocent persons are exposed, under the present system, we need but bring the following instance out of many, under His Lordship's notice; and in so doing we beg to state that we purposely abstain from going into the merits of the case, confining ourselves to a simple exposition of the system now alluded to.

5th.—On the 18th November 1839 a case of a ffay having been brought before the Magistrate of the 24 Perganahs, the parties convicted were sentenced to three months' imprisonment and duly committed to jail.

6th.—On the 10th December following, they appealed against the decision of the Magistrate and the Sessions Judge, after having called for the proceedings on the 16th of the same month, passed a judgment on the 27th of March, then next ensuing, declaring the decision of the Lower Court illegal, and ordering the prisoners release. But they had been already enlarged on the 13th February preceeing as the period of their confinement had expired on that day. Here His Lordship will perceive that several individuals whose innocence was acknowledged by the higher jurisdiction, were not withstanding, obliged to undergo imprisonment by the subordinate Magistrate and were deprived of their personal liberty in a close jail, and subjected to three months' deprivation of home, comfort and acquirement while so long as the adjudication of the final sentence was in suspense, the law considered them as innocent. The Society beg respectfully to observe that when such anomalies are to be met with in judicial administration in a district of which the Sessions Judge and Magistrate are renowned for their zeal, integrity and diligence in the discharge of their official duties, much greater evils must be necessarily endured in parts of the country less favorably circumstanced in the above respect, which evils have been all found uniformly to originate in the defects of the system itself. By the means proposed an important amendment would probably be effected without any apprehension of the possibility of culprits escaping condign punishment held, as they would not fail to be sufficient bail.

7th.—Under these circumstances the Society respectfully beg that His Lordship may be pleased, should he deem the present representation worthy of adoption, to refer the question to the Sudder Court, as to the propriety of issuing a circular for the purpose of carrying into effect the modification above proposed in the system of executing the sentences of the subordinate Courts.

8th.—An authenticated copy of the proceedings of the Sessions Judge, with an abstract translation thereof is herewith submitted for reference in the case above alluded to.

We have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Honorary Secretaries.

Calcutta, 5th August, 1840.

TO THE HONORARY SECRETARIES TO THE LANDHOLDERS' SOCIETY.

Gentlemen,—I am directed by the Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, of the 5th instant, with its enclosures, and to inform you in reply, that the subject matter therein referred to, will be submitted for the consideration of the Legislative Council.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your obedient humble servant,

(Sd.) J. H. YOUNG, Deputy Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Fort William, 18th August, 1840.

Read a letter from J. H. Young, Esq. Deputy Secretary to the Government of Bengal, dated 18th August forwarding a copy of certain Rules submitted to the Supreme Government respecting the half-assessment settlement.

No. 1195.

TO THE HONORARY SECRETARIES TO THE LANDHOLDERS' SOCIETY.

Gentlemen,—I am directed by the Right Revenue, Honorable the Governor of Bengal, to send for communication to the Landholders' Society, a copy of certain Rules which the Supreme Government has been pleased to pass for the guidance of the Officers employed in the prosecution of suits for the resumption of Lakhiraj Tenures, and for the settlement of such Tenures when resumed.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your most obedt. servt.

J. H. YOUNG, Deputy Secy.

to the Govt. of Bengal.

Fort William, the 25th August, 1840.

Rules for the guidance of the Government Agents employed in prosecuting public claims in regard to Lakhiraj tenures drawn up in pursuance of the orders of the Government of India passed on the 14th of October 1839.

The following rules in explanation of the views and wishes of the Government as to the mode of enforcing on its part the Law of Resumption against Lakhirajdars, having been determined upon by the Government of India are ordered to be observed by all Government Officers employed in prosecuting public claims against Lakhiraj tenures held to be invalid, and in the assessment of resumed lands.

I. Officers charged with prosecuting claims against Lakhiraj Tenures shall not prefer, or maintain any suit for Lands not exceeding ten beegahs which have been held exempt from the payment of Revenue or have without interruption since the 1st December 1793. Provided that in the Districts of Chittagong, Sylhet, and Cutchak, this indulgence shall not extend to such lands, except where this indulgence is bona fide appropriated to an endowment for temples, or for other religious or charitable purposes, and that in Cutchak the proof of possession without interruption shall not be required in the cases so excepted beyond the 14th October 1803, the date fixed by C. 7 sec. 18 Reg. XII 1833.

II. In all cases where the Sudder Board of Revenue, to whom general report shall be made in the forms which the Board may prescribe of claims relinquished under the preceding rule shall pass orders for the confirmation of such relinquishment, the orders shall be final, and a certificate in the form to be determined by the Board shall be granted to the holder of the lands confirmatory of his Title, to secure him from all future claims on the part of resumption officers on account of the lands in question.

III. In Estates, wherein the Government have acquired the proprietary right, and which it may be determined by the Revenue authorities to let in farm, the farmer shall be precluded by an express condition in his engagement from instituting any process for the resumption of Tenures referred to in rule I, under the privileges reserved to zamindars, talookdars and other proprietors of Estates with whom a permanent settlement has been concluded.

VI. If it shall appear, in the course of the investigation of any claim that the produce of lands the revenue of which is claimed for Government whether the same have been held since 1763, without interruption or war, and whether exceeding in extent ten bighas or less has been applied consecutively in right use or charitable purposes, or to objects of general utility, it shall be the duty of the officer prosecuting on the part of Government claim to revenue, to report the fact through the prescribed channels for the consideration and orders of the Government.

VII. Whenever any land has been held Lakhraj since the 12th August 1763 and the question shall arise whether having been so held, the tenure was originally hereditary, if it be proved or be ascertained in the course of the investigation, that one or more succession took place before the said date such succession or successions shall be admitted by the Government Prosecutor or Agent as conclusive against the claim of Government to deal with the Tenure as a grant for lives, liable to resumption upon decease of the incumbent of 1863, and if there be not proof of an actual succession by inheritance before the 12th August 1763, still if from the circumstances of the case, there be strong ground of presumption in favor of hereditary possession anterior to that date the Government officers shall abandon the further prosecution of the claim by law and shall not require proof of the specified conditions of the original grants, in the manner prescribed by a strict interpretation of the existing law.

VIII. Whenever lands may be held under assignment for purposes in themselves permanent and perpetual and their produce continues to be duly appealed for those purposes, no benefit shall be taken in the conduct of the prosecution on the part of Government of the provisions contained in Sec. XII Regulation III, 1826, under which, strictly construed, the grant, though specifying permanent objects might be deemed to be for life because of the omission of words declaring perpetuity in the grant.

But if the grant be specific as a Charitable provision for one or more persons, and not an endowment for purposes to their nature unlimited as to duration, it shall be construed strictly according to its terms.

VIII. Persons in possession of Lakhraj Lands in Cuttack from the date of the acquisition of the Province consequent to the present law, shall be allowed to retain possession during their natural lives, and in the prosecution of any claim to try the validity of the grant of title by which land may have been so held the Government on the part of Government shall be for and shall be presumed to take effect upon the decease of the incumbent.

IX. Whenever decree of Resumption may be made against a Lakhraj holder who consecutively held the land, and enjoyed the produce without demand of Revenue for thirty years from the date of decree, the case shall be reported through the Revenue authorities to the Government, but the settlement of the land under the decree shall not be delayed because of such reference.

X. In the case of lands held under Badshahes title, in the possession since 12th August 1763 in Benar, Behar and Orissa, and since 1791 in Cuttack be consecutive and uninterrupted, and if the plea for resumption be that the original Grantor did not actually surrender and obtain possession of the lands while the British exercised Supreme Power within the Territory in which the lands are situated, it will be incumbent on the Government Officer conducting the prosecution to prove the effect of such plea. In like manner subsequent non-resumption by a Government officer being a condition of the validity of Badshahes grants, the Lakhraj holder shall not be required to prove this negative by direct evidence, but if such subsequent resumption be alleged as a ground for resumption, the proof of the fact shall be exhibited on the part of Government.

XI. The claim to resume on the ground of non registration of tenure in the manner prescribed by the Regulation 19 of 1793, 37 of 1793, 41 of 1795, 42 of 1795 31 of 1803, 36 of 1803, 12 of 1805, 7 of 1808.

laws referred to in the margin shall not be urged on the part of Government except in districts in which Registers, duly prepared, exist, to be produced if required before the Magistrate deciding the case, and in which the issue of the public notice prescribed in those Regulations may be susceptible of proof, nor shall the claim to resume for non-registration be urged in regard to any tenure registered in the Bazaar and Nuzara established by orders of Government dated 31st May 1782, or in the offices established for Behar by orders dated 29th June 1784 or in the Patna Registry Office for Bada. shall be granted established in 1770-71. Nor shall this claim be urged in respect to any tenures the Official recognition of which as Lakhraj, that is the knowledge of its existence of which is with the Public Office of Government can be proved from the public acts and proceedings of the Government, or of the Board of Revenue or of the Land Revenue Collector of the District of date prior to the passing of the act under which the registration is made obligatory for the district in which the lands are situated.

XII. No title to hold land Lakhraj shall be brought into question if it be raised as a permanent and perpetual tenure, on the sole ground that it is not duly decreed as such in the opinion of this required to be given in for Registry under the Regulations above cited and referred to.

XIII. The above rules are to be understood as a declaration of the principles by which it is desired by the Government of India that the Officers employed in prosecuting on the part of Government claims against the holders of Lakhraj tenures shall be guided. The rules are to be binding upon those who conduct the prosecutions and appeals on behalf of Government, and are to be enforced by the Board of Revenue and by the Revenue Commissioners, so far as their authority reaches in the course of the proceedings of these Officers, and in any case that may be pending in any Court of Justice or other Tribunal appointed to try the validity of claims to hold land exempt from the demand of the public revenue the parties concerned shall consider that the rules and principles thus laid down have been lost sight of, or have not been properly applied by the Court or of the plaintiffs and proceedings for Government, they shall be at liberty by petition to the Land Revenue Commissioner, or to the Board of Revenue, or to the Government to procure, that instructions shall be issued requiring their observance, and if decrees have passed in the interim of such application, and judging resumption upon any ground which it is herein declared to be the intention and desire of the Government to abandon, the party suffering by such decree shall, upon proper representation to the Revenue authorities, be referred in the position he would have held if such plea had not been urged against him.

Rule for XIII. Whenever settlement shall be made with the holder of any resumed Lakhraj tenure for the duties of Government thereon, the Jinnah demanded from the said holder shall be at a rate not exceeding one half of the gross rental of the land resumed, and if the late Lakhraj holder have held the whole or any part of the land in his cultivation then for such land at the rate of one half of the estimated rent value. This bonus is to extend prospectively to all resumed lands settled since the promulgation of Regulation IX-1825 (the date on which, the settlement principles of Regulation VIII, 1822, for the Western Provinces were first introduced into Bengal) with the exception of Lakhraj resumptions which after settlement have been transferred to new hands by public or private sale at prices corresponding, it is to be presumed, with the Jamma assessed upon them at the time of purchase. In cases however where the purchase has been made by Government, the Estate will be restored to the Proprietors at a Jamma not exceeding one half of the gross rental, subject to all obligations and encumbrances which may subsequently, to the purchase, have supervened upon it.

XIV. These rules, fourteen in number, are to be considered as in full force and effect from the 1st of October 1839, and should any lands have been resumed or assessed in deviation from the same subsequently to that date, a report is to be made thereof through the prescribed channels for the consideration and orders of Government.

By order of the Board of Directors of India in Council.

UNION BANK.

Report read at a Special Meeting of Shareholders, held on the 24th of August, 1841

At the last General Meeting of Proprietors, allusion was made to a report of frauds on the Bank having been committed by the late Accountant, and, in reply to a question as to the particulars of the case, it was stated, in general terms, that securities were held for the debt of the delinquent and that the whole amount was safe, unless indeed the matter were further ascertained, which might endanger the recovery of some portion.

The whole amount being now paid up, no motive remains for any longer retaining from satisfying the wishes of any Shareholder to obtain information regarding the matter alluded to.

Towards the end of May 1839, it was discovered that accounts of the several constituents of the Bank were apparently overdrawn, and upon Mr. Sim being questioned on the subject, he admitted his responsibility for those irregularities, and immediately discounted some Bills, the proceeds of which amounting to about Rs. 64,000 were appropriated by him to the rectification of these accounts. It was almost immediately afterwards made apparent that, though in some instances bona fide accommodation had been given by Mr. Sim on his own responsibility, as was the case in the majority of cases, some to his hands which he hid, for a time, appropriated to his own use instead of bringing the amount to the account of the respective parties in the books of the Bank.

Mr. Sim being, from severe illness, unable to attend Office, the Native writer of the Ledger was now strongly pressed upon the subject of the correctness of Mr. Sim's own account. For two days, he was employed in bringing it up, when it exhibited a sum of only 12 or 13,000 Rs. due by him. This balance corresponded exactly with that exhibited by the Bengallee Ledger kept in the Office of the Treasurer, and that fact would naturally have excited suspicion at first for the time, had not another Native writer given private information to Mr. Da Cruz, our present Accountant, that the English and Bengallee Ledger writers were in collusion, and that they both falsified their books, so that they might be found always to correspond.

Having ascertained himself, that fraud had been committed in some of the accounts, the paid up and furnished in his suspicion of the information privately received. Mr. Sim told the Ledger writer with false saying he was well assured that, in Rupees Mr. Sim had overdrawn. Upon this the writer retired in a private way and acknowledged that his overdrawn, as far as regarded the fact of overdrawn his account to a much greater was exhibited by the Ledger, handing some to him a memorandum of the parties entries, the amount of which turned out the sum given as by Mr. Da Cruz. Eight in number, the first false entry of October 1836, when by the prefixing of Rupees 592-1-4 was converted into 10 592-1-4, and in the same way the others falsified by prefixing or altering one or

The Ledger credits being entered Cash Book, these accounts are, when handed over to the Ledger writer, the possibility of a scrutiny by comparison in the Cash Book with those in the Ledger of the Ledger altered the entries in the Cash Book in his possession so as to correspond with the Ledger, while the balance page were allowed to remain unaltered. Each half year, the Accountant, whose duty is to strike off the half yearly account the balance by falsifying the additional entries of accounts, so that the errors are mutually compensating, the general balance correct.

But though by the alterations of the Cash Book, the writer of the Ledger might expect in case of need to throw the charge of the writer of the Cash Book, he was brought detection home to him. In the Cash Book three receipts upon one day together, their true sum, namely, Rupees written beneath and yet the sum carried to adjacent general column is Rupees 49,469 6 5, the false Bank being altered to 4. In another instance, the original entry in the Cash Book was, by some oversight, allowed to remain unaltered, so that the falsification of the ledger stands unsupported. In the first place, the inconsistency between the additions and the entries might have plausibly attributed to mere inadvertence in carefully copying the corresponding entries in the Cash Book, but in the case when the Ledger alone was falsified, it was impossible to frame any entry; and the writer, a very intelligent and active gentleman, though a rogue, was dismissed accordingly, and those facts were pointed out. The Ledger writer, persisted in asserting that the falsification originated with the writer of the Cash Book, a Native who is now dead, alleging that he ascertained the particulars of the fraud, of which he gave information to Mr. DeCruz, by comparing the Ledger with the Cash Book.

Then better to escape detection, Mr. Sim did not allow an account in his name to be opened in the Cash Ledger, but, without the connivance of that Ledger writer, he could not have appropriated to himself the payments made by the contributors for a longer time than during the intervals between the balancing of the Bank Books. The writer of the Cash Ledger has also been dismissed. The correspondence of the Bank with the Native writer, who had no doubt of the participation of the writer of the Cash Book in the guilt of falsification, he was dismissed by the Treasurer.

To prevent frauds, the late Accountant must have been informed by the permission to have dealings on his own account. This indulgence appears to have been granted to him by the late Secretary on the pretence of a similar indulgence having been enjoyed by the Accountant of the Bank of Bengal, who was allowed to speculate, as in fact he did, in the purchase and sale of Company's Paper, Bank Shares and Bills of Exchange. Mr. Sim appears to have at first, confined himself to dealings of that description, but afterwards to have entered into other transactions requiring a large and continued command of money. His success in getting away to his purposes three of the Native officers of this Establishment whose collusion was indispensable to his success was a contingency so extraordinary, that it is not proper that it was not anticipated nor provided against.

However much the Accountant might have been suspected, it was not likely to have occurred to any one that he could have got a principal assistant in another person, that of the Treasurer, a man with whom he was in the course of business, he had no communication to make with him, and even now after the whole system has been unravelled, it is difficult to say by what course of investigation the fraud could have been detected had not the payments been divulged by the accomplices.

The attention of the Directors was, however, immediately directed to the prevention of a recurrence of a similar fraud. With this view, it was ordered that no officer of this Establishment should engage himself in any private business that requires pecuniary accommodation; and recently, that no officer of the Bank should have any account in the books except for the amount of his salary. The rigorous observance of this rule is insured by the appointment of an Assistant Secretary, one of whose duties it is to see and to order payments of all cheques; and who, besides, examines every morning, the receipts and payments of the preceding day. Besides this the great increase of the Bank's business has rendered indispensable numerous additions to the former Establishment in every department, so that a much more extensive combination than formerly, would be requisite for the success of any fraudulent attempt while the dangers of detection would be multiplied in the same proportion.

Having stated the manner in which it appears, that the fraud alluded to was perpetrated, it will be a matter of congratulation for the Proprietors to know that the sum thus embezzled amounting, as already stated, to Rupees 120,000 did not exceed what it might be expected could be secured by the property and claims of the delinquent.

As soon as Mr. DeCruz had obtained information of the embezzlement in the manner already stated, he gave notice of the fact to the Treasurer and to the Acting Secretary. The Treasurer forthwith proceeded to the office of his brother Dwar Kannah Faze to deliver to him as many notes as might be expedient to take, for the security of the Bank, from loss and disrepute. The result was that Dwar Kannah by the advice of an Indian company with his partner Mr. Carr, who was a Director of the Bank, went to consult Mr. Clarke the Standing Counsel of the Bank and also a Director. At his suggestion, Mr. Cullen then President of the Bank, and Mr. Dickens a Trustee of the Bank were also called in, and it was agreed that the best plan was to require of Mr. Carr to give a Bond and Warrant for the amount he had embezzled to Mr. Dickens as Justice of the Peace, which was with some difficulty, obtained from Mr. Sim by Mr. Clarke in person.

Next day, the 1st of June, a Meeting was held at the Chambers of Mr. Dickens at which were present the President of the Bank, with Mr. Cragg, Mr. Carr, and Mr. Clarke, Directors, Mr. Dickens Trustee, Mr. Young Secretary and Dwar Kannah Tagore, the largest Shareholder in the Bank. It was agreed at that Meeting that, under the circumstances, it would be difficult to make any thing of criminal proceedings against Mr. Sim, and such being the case, and it appearing essential with a view to the interests of the Bank to avoid for the time any disclosure of Mr. Sim's affairs it was resolved that the matter should be kept secret, a resolution with which the more readily entered into, from an assurance given by Mr. Carr who was deeply interested in preventing any depreciation in the value of Shares by the credit of the Bank being impaired, that on the express condition of the matter not being made public, they would make good any evenual deficiency after realizing the assets of Mr. Sim's property. It was to that engagement allusion was made when the question regarding the security held by the Bank was put at the last Meeting, but the object of safety to the interests of the Bank having been obtained, the conclusion of further continued silence has been dispensed with and the money has been made good in the spirit of the original engagement.

MEETING OF THE DOCKING ASSOCIATION.

The Shareholders of the Docking Association, met at the office of the Secretary yesterday on the forenoon. The attendance was numerous, and the chair was taken by A. Dehouza, Esq.

The business of the day was opened, by Mr. William Prince, reading the Report of the Directors for the several half years.

This document was of somewhat more than usual length, and contained a great many more important particulars, connected with the interests of the Association, than the half yearly reports generally embody or we have space to detail. The chief points only are, that it can be noticed. It appeared, that the business of the Association has been considerably increased during the past half year, for while there were only forty nine vessels reported in the first half year of 1839, the present numbers being eighty eight, thus showing an excess of forty nine. The report showed a loss in reference to the arbitration of the cause against Government for Rs. 23,685 on account of the steamer Enterprise captured at the last annual meeting. The present engagements of the Society in the building branch are only a new ship in the Killarney Docks built finished, and another contracted for by a different party but not commenced yet. The estimate for 1840 with a six months is Rs. 61,182 said to be equal to a result of the whole year's transactions, with similar work, of two percent per annum on the capital of the Association. The report likewise brought to the notice of the meeting, the state of the gates of both the Howrah large Docks, which are reported to require a complete renovation, but the immense expense, and loss of time this would occasion, has led the directors to the opinion that it would be preferable to build a new dock. The Report concluded with the intimation, that the house at Indurone, now rented by Mr. William Prince, Treasurer, has been offered to purchase for 30,000 rupees, a proposal which the Directors recommended the proprietors to accept.

The Report having been read in the customary manner, the following resolutions were proposed and carried without opposition.

"Proposed by G. R. Homfray, Esq. and seconded by Manukjee Rustonjee, Esq., that the half yearly account should be published for the benefit of the Association, and that the same be printed and distributed.

Proposed by W. Prince, Esq. and seconded by G. Smith, Esq., that under the authority of the Association, the transfer to the Association of the year's interest be continued for the year 1840, to debit the sum of Rs. 12,000.

Proposed by Baboo Ram Comal Sen, Esq. and seconded by Baboo Ram Comal Sen, Esq., that the proceedings of this day's meeting be printed and distributed for the information of the Association.

Proposed by Baboo Ram Comal Sen, Esq. and seconded by Manukjee Rustonjee, Esq., that the Association should pay 16 rupees for each attendance in the case of absence to be paid 16 rupees for each attendance.

Proposed by R. Homfray, Esq. and seconded by Baboo Ram Comal Sen, Esq., that the Association should be authorized to send a committee of the Association, and that the committee of Directors will be prepared with a statement of the defects in the position of the Association, that they will calculate the scheme provided for the annual meeting for the consideration of the Association.

Proposed by G. W. Prince, Esq. and seconded by G. Smith, Esq., that with reference to the Dock Gate at Howrah, the Committee should be requested to have a plan prepared for the alteration that would admit large steamships to the present Viable Dock, as far as the existing Dock for Steamers, should they be, of opinion that other is of urgent necessity, they should be referred to the General Meeting for the purpose of being taken into consideration.

Proposed by G. Smith, Esq. and seconded by Prince, Esq., that with reference to the Dock Gate, the report regarding the House at Indurone, the directors be authorized to sell or lease the same.

Thanks being then tendered to the Association, the meeting separated.—Hunter's Sentinel, 2nd March 1840.

STEAM MEETING.

A general meeting of the Subscribers to the New Bengal Steam Fund and the Petitioners to the House of Commons met at the Town Hall yesterday forenoon, at 10 o'clock. The meeting was attended by about sixty persons, and it was characterized, like most Steam Meetings have been of late, with professions of unshakable union on one side, and the most elaborate and determined opposition on the other. There were some lengthy speeches delivered on the occasion highly eloquent, and denunciations, but as they chiefly embodied the "sweet tidings" of Comprehensive and Precursor respectively, we feel loath to bore the readers with their details. The general sentiments, however, of the different speakers connected with the actual proceedings of the meeting we shall only notice.

On a motion of G. A. Hushby, Esq. seconded by H. M. Parker, Esq. the Venerable the Archdeacon was elected Chairman.

The Venerable Chairman, in opening the meeting, of the day alluded to the object of the meeting, and in the requisition which appeared in the paper. He felt it a ground of regret that the Association had taken a very active part from the beginning to the establishment of a steam navigation, and that the Association separated, though on the one side the Association had appeared, however, by the prospect of a steam navigation. They had never before met, which was more auspicious circumstances being, as they were, about to realize the grand object. The steam was up—the vessel had come into port and the great consummation of every expectation was about to be attained. The Venerable Speaker went on to allude to the great deal that had been said at the last meeting on the subject of steam, and he now would call upon India to show its face to the world that they subscribed all party feelings, and party considerations for the attainment of their object.

The meeting, all would on the present occasion, have been held and proceed as an united body in the appointment of a new Committee and a new Secretary.

Mr. Alexander Beattie, Secretary of the United Company, has read the following report to the meeting:

Report of the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund, read to the Subscribers to that Fund, and to the Portion in favor of Steam Communication with England via the Red Sea, at the 14th Half Yearly Meeting convened under the 10th Regulation of the original Meeting, held on the 22d June, 1839.

The period having come round, when it is the duty of the Committee to render to the subscribers to the New Bengal Steam Fund, a Report of their proceedings during the interval since the last meeting took place, as well as a statement of the accounts of the Fund at this date, the Committee present the following brief record, for the satisfaction of their constituents:

Shortly after the meeting held in February last, the Committee were deprived of the valuable assistance of their able and zealous chairman Mr. Parker, their able and indefatigable Secretary Mr. Greenlaw, and of their valued colleagues Major Forbes, Captain Johnston, and Mr. David McFarlan. The circumstances which led to the resignation of these gentlemen, and their respective reasons for retirement, have been all published in the newspapers; and it is now deemed unnecessary to advert to the subject, further than thus publicly to express the regret with which these resignations were received by the present members of the Committee, as they are fully recorded in the minutes of their proceedings.

The Committee have been receiving regularly, by each overland mail, communications from Mr. Curtis, and Captain Barber on the subject of the company proposed to be formed in Calcutta, through the zeal and energy of both these gentlemen, backed with the support of many other well known friends to the object in England.

They have also received several communications from Messrs. Wilcox and Anderson, Agents of the Peninsular and Oriental Navigation Company, in London, informing them of the measures taken by that Company to commence immediately with the communication on the Mediterranean side, by means of large and powerful vessels to run regularly between England and Alexandria, and intimating their intention, if supported by the Indian public, of extending their arrangements to an establishment of similar vessels between Calcutta and Suez, touching at Aden and Point de Galle. These communications have been all published in the newspapers at the instance of the Committee, and have respectively received by the Committee, and it has been thought necessary to occupy the time of this meeting, with any prolonged detail of these subjects; more especially as the duty of reply has fallen upon them in more properly devolved upon the other Committee, which have been formed since the last half yearly meeting of the subscribers to the New Bengal Steam Fund, for nearly the whole of the time, which were conditionally subscribed for the company, which Mr. Curtis proposed to establish in England, have been transferred to those Committee, or assigned to the parties themselves.

At the present moment this Committee may be said to be almost entirely relieved of further correspondence with the public, and the Committee referred to having been the means of communication with Mr. Curtis and other parties at home, since the period when the transfer of the management of the conditional subscriptions was made to them. The custody and disposal of the funds, which were originally subscribed to promote that object by resolutions and petitions from this side, may therefore be considered the principal business of the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund.

The Committee are happy to be able to congratulate the subscribers on the advance, which the cause has made during the last six months, the prospect of the attainment of that object for the promotion of which the Committee was originally formed, is now, they have every reason to believe, vastly brighter than it has ever been before; and it seems to them, that nothing is wanting to secure its accomplishment, but the continued zeal and united efforts of all the friends of the cause here and at home.

In the present position of affairs, it is necessary that the subscribers should determine what additions should be made to the Committee, concerning the redoubt referred to, or what modification of the Committee may be desirable under existing circumstances.

Some arrangements are most desirable, that may tend to promote union among the friends of the cause, in carrying forward to its completion the great object that all have at heart; and least, at the same time, to insure harmonious co-operation among those who may have to supervise and direct the working on this side the business, when a company shall have been fully established. And the Committee would leave the matter in the hands of the subscribers, in the confident expectation that no difficulty will be experienced in effecting such arrangements at this meeting as are calculated to produce these desirable results.

When the Committee shall have been re-organized or enlarged, they will require to proceed to the election of a secretary, as Mr. Beattie, who had consented to act for a time on the emergency which arose from the retirement of Mr. Greenlaw, finds it impossible to continue to hold the office, and has begged that the Committee would relieve him of it as speedily as possible.

The accounts, with vouchers, for the half-year just ended, are laid upon the table as usual.

The following summary of accounts showing the receipts and disbursements during Mr. Beattie's Secretaryship was also laid on the table:—

(5d) ALEXANDER BEATTIE,

Acting Secretary N. P. S.

Calcutta, 18th August, 1840

It was then proposed by Col McLeod supported by G J Gird n, Esq., and carried.

That the report now read be approved and adopted.

Col. Denlop proposed the second resolution, which was as follows—

That it is Meeting desires to express the great satisfaction, which the communications recently received from Mr F A Curtis have afforded to the friends of Indian communication between India and England in this place—and tenders to that gentleman and his Board of Direction its best thanks, for his unwearied and persevering in endeavouring to secure the accomplishment of this object, as far as possible in accordance with the suggestions and wishes of the Committee of the Presidency as expressed at the Public Meeting convened in the Town Hall, on the 14th March last.

The meeting further expresses its entire confidence in Mr Curtis and his Board of Direction in London, and sincerely trusts they will shortly be able to advise that the complete establishment of their Company on the basis of the Resolutions of the 20th May last, on the main principle the Committee are requested to use their best exertions to obtain shareholders in that Company.

The resolution was seconded by W. Fraser, who took the opportunity of making a few remarks, said that no doubt the meeting would be very much the revolution, the letter of the last meeting to Mr. Curtis having been prepared by him. It has in consequence been accused of inconsistency and treated with distrust. But he feels confident in his own conviction because he feels certain that Mr. Curtis has fully acted up to that letter. Mr. Pringle then, after incidentally alluding to the divisions which have arisen, concluded by hoping that the Scheme would very soon be laid before the people of England, and that the whole divided party the Precursors may join the Company.

Mr. Taiton then rose and delivered what Mr. Parker termed a "very discursive and rambling" speech. The speech was of considerable length and among the vast variety of subjects it mentioned, the most prominent points urged by the speaker were the following—

That Mr. Pringle's objection was a "vague dole"—that Messrs. Wilcocke and Anderson were a mere waste of confidence in this matter; that Mr. Curtis, that Captain Henderson is the only individual in the Lane Company who is informed sufficiently on steam matters, and that Mr. Curtis and the rest of the committee are mere novices on the subject; that although Captain Henderson is experienced, he is affected with the monomania of the two thousand ton vessel—that Mr. Curtis, the only, or at least the only one, who is under the influence of Captain Parker is so much so as to seek a position for himself and Mr. Henderson. And that in fact the whole is a job done for nothing to end, to put a few hundreds into the Precursors' pockets.

Mr. Taiton also dwelt at great length on the last prospectus and, after stating every numerical item possible, pronounced the whole fallacious. He concluded by declaring that the meeting had "no right to pass the resolution proposed by Col. Denlap and seconded by Mr. Pringle."

Mr. Pringle had thought it necessary to enter into another further explanation in regard to the consistency of his words.

Mr. Greenlaw regretted that he was unequal, as well from want of practice as from not being able to hear every thing that fell from Mr. Taiton to follow him on every point. Perhaps, however, the meeting might be better pleased that it was so.

With the first part of Mr. Taiton's speech, or that which referred to the Precursor operations in connection with the United Committee he had nothing to do and therefore never intended to notice. It is, however, necessary to say a few words on the subject. On the remaining part of Mr. Taiton's speech he wished to offer a few remarks. It appeared to him, as far as he heard, that Mr. Taiton's observations might be divided into three points.

First, if he heard him right he had said that in March 1837, he had become satisfied of the expediency of a joint company for each side. He wished to know if this was the case.

Mr. Taiton observed, that it was not exactly so, but he was of opinion that, when on board the Itzia in 1837, he had thought the Peninsular Company ought to take up the Mediterranean side.

Mr. Greenlaw—Well, that presently. The next point mooted by Mr. Taiton was the relative credit and influence due to Mr. Curtis and his Company and to the Peninsular Company—and lastly, Mr. Taiton had suggested to take in pieces Mr. Curtis's present estimate. For the first he thought Mr. Taiton must have mistaken the date, as we believed it was in April 1837. The second, Mr. Taiton's letter was received from England suggesting that amount of capital might be expected from India.

Mr. Taiton then observed that that letter was written in July 1837.

Mr. Greenlaw admitted he might be in error as to the date, but it was of little consequence. It was quite sufficient that it was written after the period at which Mr. Taiton had come to the above conclusion in respect to the Peninsular Steam Company.

Now, it was certainly extraordinary that in requiring to know how much might be expected from India to a Company to be formed in England no mention should be made of Mr. Taiton's conviction on so essential a point; moreover, Mr. Taiton, being in England, looked to the Establishment of a Company there to carry out the measure; and, very properly so, Mr. Greenlaw's opinion (though it right to ascertain what was to be expected from India before he appealed to the people of England, thus establishing the principle that it was in his that should first show what she would do, and, primarily, place confidence in parties at home, rather, than that England should be the first to come forward, establishing, moreover, that in Mr. Taiton's opinion, at that time at least, that India could not do the thing without the aid of England.

Further Mr. Taiton, in his evidence given before the Select Committee of the House of Commons, given after his being on board the Itzia and arriving at the above conclusion, strenuously advocated the whole line being under one management, and that on the ground expressly that it would pay best.

So he would come to a later date on the point, namely, to Mr. Taiton's own declaration in the hall on his return to India. When a year ago, he first brought the Precursor forward he expressed on temporary ally der a criticism that if he thought it would tend to justify the Comprehensive, including of course the other side he would not do it. But it was all a trial so it will have it, thus then in September last was Mr. Taiton advocating the Comprehensive Scheme, including the other side even to the extent of a determination to forego his own proposition if he thought it would justify it. This was all he had to say on the first point.

For the second, on the comparison between Mr. Curtis and his Company and the Peninsular Company, I had two views,—first, as to the title each had to confidence in India personally and next to their acts. Mr. Taiton had noticed the first, although he had given Mr. Curtis, full credit for integrity and ability,—but he impugned his intention and expressly as he was, referring to Mr. Taiton, led entirely by Captain Barber. Mr. Taiton had not referred to the title, any one party on the other side had to the confidence of the people of India from his personal character, beyond the fact that they had the confidence of the Government is evinced by their having a contract between England and Alexandria—nor was it (Mr. Greenlaw) at all likely to do this—because the parties were wholly unknown to him,—and he believed to India. They had come before the people of India and asked them to take reserved shares in their company, without intimating to whom it was composed beyond their own three names. They did not say how much their capital was to consist of the value of shares, nor did they advance any thing in support of their hitherto unknown names in India.

As regards Mr. Curtis and his Company on the other hand, they were known intimately of every body by name, a designation, or personally throughout India—there were Mr. Curtis, Sir John R. R. and others, whose names were sufficient voucher that they would not willingly join in any unpopularity or unworthiness. Then there were names of parties well known in India fully entitled to confidence. Mr. Larkins, Mr. B. Harding, Captain Henderson, Mr. McKillop, Mr.

Regent. As to the relative confidence due from India to there then could be no possible question.

Then to their acts. Mr. Tutton had advanced the Peninsular Company having obtained the contract from the Government between Alexandria and England, and their purpose to send a steamer to ply between Calcutta and Suez, and he had said that while Mr. Curtis was talking they were thus saying.

But it should be remembered that Mr. Curtis was alone prevented from that seeing by the Procurator themselves. If they had not interfered, Mr. Curtis's Company would have been forthwith, and he would have been in a position to tender for the contract; and if it was indeed given in preference to the degree of confidence which Government might repose in the parties not rising—then, there could be no question as to which party was most entitled to that confidence. But Mr. Tutton had omitted to mention that the contract was open to all on the same terms, so that there was no necessity whatever to adopt Mr. Tutton's advice that we should at least establish the communication on this line only for the next years of their contract.

But what is the Peninsular Company now purpose to do, and what Mr. Curtis's Company? The former in their advertisement dated July 4th, after very properly announcing their being about to send steamers monthly between England and Alexandria and adjoining the Indian Peninsula of the rate of passage money description of accommodation, &c. &c., all which is very proper, and not to be complained of, as an intimation of intention to send one steamer out to commence a line of communication between the Eastern Peninsula of India, Ceylon and Suez. Why—his proceeding is plain—it is only to establish the communication on this line, and consequently no connection whatever with the other. Yet the Peninsular Company, who are actually in the position of the Procurator, complete the other side of the line, and in this, and purpose to make the communication throughout under one management, and now the Procurator either has been or is to be joined to them, and we are called upon to do the same.

Mr. Tutton here intimated that there was no intention to join the Procurator to the Peninsular Company. Then, said Mr. Greenlaw, why do you advise us to join that which you refuse yourselves? But Mr. Curtis replied that he and a steamer out immediately—and to complete this side of the line—and the simple question is which of the two is most worthy of an port. Mr. Tutton as one ground of want of confidence in Mr. Curtis declares, that he is entirely led by Capt. Barber. This Mr. Greenlaw denied positively. Since Mr. Curtis had obtained colleagues he acted with them, and not under Capt. Barber's influence. At first, when Capt. Barber applied to him as Agent of the Committee of the New Bengal Canal Fund, he knew nothing of India at all, and only listened to Capt. Barber's wishes; he might be a certain degree, at first have been influenced by Capt. Barber, but now he had colleagues, and as far as he (Mr. Greenlaw) could judge if influenced by any person it was that very man who had been helped up by Mr. Tutton himself, in that hall as of all other men of home most entitled to confidence, he meant Capt. Henderson.

On the third point, he, Mr. Greenlaw, had been always one of those who desired to get the question taken up at home by men of integrity, of talents, of business habits, and capital, that when so taken up that it might be best left to them to effect the object. He confessed therefore that he had never given himself the trouble to scrutinize the estimates. He looked at the question in this way, would the establishment of the communication pay or would it not? Let those who thought it would pay, and should not think proper to devote 500 or 1,000 Rs. to the cost of the establishment of a great good, without partially giving it to the other party. On the other hand, if it would not pay, then let them join a company with the purpose of carrying it out—and the question would simply be, which Company should they join—because in either case, they would be giving what the estimates of Mr. Curtis's Company or the Peninsular Company—or the Procurator might pay the one it would pay the other; and he would before without referring to the estimates of one party or the other, the question was, which Company was most entitled to confidence for the ulterior completion of the measure. Mr. Greenlaw referred to the well known names in Mr. Curtis's direction, to their integrity, ability, and capital. They had among themselves, and a few friends prior to coming before the public, subscribed £100,000, what the other party had done, he did not know.

Mr. Greenlaw continued, in contrast to the other party, relatively due to the two parties, and for himself, he was inclined in favor of Mr. Curtis and his company, and appealed to the Meeting to declare the same.

In conclusion, Mr. Greenlaw observed that Mr. Tutton had objected that the Meeting could not pass the resolution, on the ground, as he understood, that it pledged the public or a majority of them to something, as he had but imperfectly heard the resolution read, and as he was extremely desirous not to hold his hand up for any objectionable resolution he would with the permission of the meeting read it. He did so, and declared he did not see a single word objectionable on the principle referred to, and as he entirely concurred in the sentiments he would support it.

Captain Harrington here came forward to put one question to Mr. Tutton, namely, how came he to know better informed than others in matters relating to Mr. Curtis? If Mr. Tutton threw a suggestion at Mr. Curtis's character, represented him as a weak man, entirely under the influence of Captain Barber, it would be desirable to know how Mr. Tutton deduced his information.

Mr. Tutton in reply said, that he threw no arguings on Mr. Curtis's character, though he would repeat, that Captain Barber exercised great influence over Mr. Curtis. As for the information Captain Harrington alluded to, Mr. Tutton said, that he derived it from his intercourse with Mr. Curtis and Captain Barber; while Mr. Tutton was in England, and a great part in Captain Barber's office.

Mr. Greenlaw here observed that the declaration of the early period of Mr. Curtis's coming forward, and before the formation of his Board of Directors.

Mr. W. P. Grant here came forward to say, that he had heard Mr. Greenlaw mention that Captain Barber was known about the Peninsular Company. He referred Mr. Greenlaw to Cockwell and Co. where he thought information could be obtained. Mr. Grant then had the opportunity to observe that the Procurator had been asked to join the Peninsular as had been hinted at by Mr. Greenlaw, but that they would afford every assistance in their power on this side of Alexandria, but none on the other side.

Major Forbes observed that in the course of the discussion, it had been asserted, that Mr. Curtis had been led by this person, and by that person, who is the fact, was, he had been mainly carried by the valuable evidence taken by the Committee of which he was Chairman, and by that given before the Committee of the Board of Commons, or, in other words, by the conclusions of the the following persons: Mr. J. J. Smith, the 24-year-old, newly married and the mother, particularly of the family has been half yearly of the table and published, it is the paper for Friday, after having been previously issued in the meetings.

At the hearing, in reference to the resolution proposed by him on March 11, 1942, in evidence, that he was appointed to the Committee out of those invited to attend the meeting, namely, sub-committee to the Bopgal Steam Fund and out the petitioners, and in fact those who were before on the Committee. In fact Mr. Barker was not a subscriber to the New Bopgal Steam Fund, yet, his name belonged to the Committee.

Mrs Parker then begged to enquire of Mr. Turtton what qualified a subscriber to belong, to or become a member of the Committee. He had been a subscriber long before he became a member. And so it did not matter what the amount of this subscription may be. It will be viewed as a subscriber. He had to inform Mr Turtton that he was a subscriber to the extent of four annas, and what was more had paid up the amount of his subscription.

Hereupon a considerable amount of business was expended, followed by a meeting of the board of trustees, when silence being restored, Mr. Hedges' resolution, with the addition of Mr. Limond's name to the Committee, and Mr. Grant's amendment, were put to the vote. The former was carried by a majority.

Mr. Parker here proposed.

That Mr. W. L. Lumbard, the Secretary to the United Committee, be requested to become joint Secretary with Mr. Greenlaw. And took the opportunity to observe shortly, that he would resign his seat in the Committee, though not so happily as he might have done. In regard to the resolution he proposed, he remarked, that he viewed it as a type of union. Mr. Parker concluded with one or two animated observations on the subject of Mr. Curtis being deserving of confidence. He referred to a private letter he had seen from England which stated Mr. Curtis's determination to employ the press on payment—to advocate his Cause; and its a medium through which to bring his Scheme to public notice. Mr. Curtis responded much as so obtained, and that itself, thought Mr. Parker, was enough to inspire him with a sense of confidence in Mr. Curtis.

Mr Greenlaw seconded the resolution and passed some very flattering encomiums on Mr. Limond.

Mr. Turton then rose just to say, that to this resolution he could give his hearty concurrence.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. I. W. Cragg.

Mr. Tilton here observed, that the Precursor Company had no constitution, and he begged to suggest, that instead of leaving the Committee to appoint a Secretary to the Club, the meeting should do it.

and a great deal of jocularity, laughter, and discussion followed, after which,

Mr. Grant proposed an amendment, to the effect, that no person who is a subject should be allowed to vote or belong to the Committee.

The resolution was carried unanimously. After which the Venerable Chairman was succeeded by Col. McLachlan, and the following resolution, proposed by Major Forbes and seconded by Brigadier White, was carried with great cheering.

Mr. Tamm supported the amendment, and in doing so observed that a great part of the fund had been misappropriated and wasted, and that if he were allowed to release the accounts he would point out that much had been expended in a way in which it should not have been.

That the thanks of this Meeting be tendered to the Venerable Archbishop Dalgry, for his kindness in presiding at this Meeting.

The Meeting broke up within a few minutes of one o'clock. — Barkers, September 10, 1840.

4. On the Treatment of Dysentery, by H. H. Goodere, M. D.

—Mr. Brett's case of successful removal of a tumor over the parotid gland was then read.

The tumor was removed and the patient was discharged. The tumor was found to be a benign fibroadenoma. The patient was followed up for one year and no recurrence was observed.

[illegible]

3. Dr. Macra's case of acute leucemia, in which the young girl had been treated with large doses of the salts of iron, goodlyne application, the use of arsenic and small doses of strychnine, was cured every 2 hours, for a period of 19 days, without abatement of the symptoms.

The extract of hemp was taken from 100 grains of hemp seed and 5 grains every 2 hours so as to keep the patient comfortable. The most marked relief was seen after the second dose. The patient was given the extract as follows: The first dose was 10 grains 4 times during day, and was the second dose. The third dose was 10 grains 4 times during day, and was the third dose. The fourth dose was 10 grains 4 times during day, and was the fourth dose. The patient was entirely free from pain, and was perfectly well.

Several very beautiful specimens of Alaria were successfully removed, were presented by the patient from one of the patients as they had been taken.

The last number of the Lancet, Medical Gazette, Medico Chirurgical and Edinburgh Journal, were laid upon the table.

PRESENTATIONS TO THE SOCIETY. Museum.

1.—Specimen of Over-ripened Plantains from Dacca. Presented by Dr. Geo Lamb. These plantains although over-ripened in appearance were particularly sweet and palatable and reached Calcutta in good order.

2.—Sample of Hemp grown and manufactured in Bengal after the manner pursued in Belgium. Presented by Mr. H. Woolaston, on behalf of Mr. G. Deneef, Belgian Farmer.

In his letter to the Secretary, accompanying this specimen, Mr. Deneef mentions that he considers it fully equal to the Italian and Manila Hemp which sell in the English market at the rate of 22 to £27 a ton; the manufacturing is very simple, not requiring any intricate process, so simple indeed that the article is prepared in Belgium by old men and children. Mr. Deneef adds that very little preparation of the soil in this country is requisite, and that the plant does not occupy the ground more than eighty days. From a cultivation of a little less than four beegahs, Mr. Deneef expects to obtain about 1000 lbs of fibre, which it is his intention to transmit to the Flax Experimental Company for a report on its value;—on receiving this information he will forward to the Agricultural Society, a detailed Report on the mode of culture, &c., of this rising staple.

3.—Specimen of Undressed Flax grown in the district of Munghyr. Presented by the Hon'ble the President of the Society on behalf of Mr. Wallace.

The Hon'ble the President stated when submitting this specimen to the Meeting that it was a sample of a large consignment that was coming from the Munghyr district, where the experiment of growing flax on a large scale had been undertaken by a practical flax-grower, and that he was particularly desirous of obtaining the sentiments of the Flax Committee on the quality of the fibre. He already had the strength ascertained by Professor O'Shaughnessy at the Medical College, and the result showed the following comparison:

Munghyr,.....	40,000
Arenasael,.....	43,000
Rathic, dressed,.....	42,033
Dato, on breast,.....	19,075
Irish, dressed,.....	17,075

The specimen was made over to the Committee accordingly.

4.—Two cases of Nepot plants loaded with grasshoppers and other insects. Presented by Mons. Bodier at Bourbon.

The cases which were only opened a few minutes before the Meeting assembled, attracted great attention, as the plants were in apparent excellent order and many of the insects seemingly alive and well. The whole were offered to be transferred without loss of time to the Nursery at the Nursery.

PRIZE FOR NEW VEGETABLE.

The motion of which notice was given at the last Meeting by Mr. Piddington, to the effect that the gold or silver medal should be awarded to Messrs. Vilmorin and Audouin for having sent to the Society, the valuable a-fragans bean was met by a counter-motion from Dr. Wallich, seconded by Mr. Robinson, and carried—that no best thanks of the Society be given to Mr. Piddington for his exertions in introducing this valuable vegetable into the Bazar.

PRIZES FOR A TREATISE ON SOME OF THE CHIEF STAPLE ARTICLES OF INDIAN COMMERCE.

Previous to the Society entering on the discussion of the motion made at the last Meeting by Mr. Deatio, for the appropriation of some of money, for the best treatises founded on practical knowledge on different articles of Indian Commerce, the Secretary submitted a note from Mr. Deneef intimating his inability to be at the Meeting, but hoping that the importance of the propositions which he had submitted would meet with encouragement from the Society, and that the spirit of the motion would be preserved.

Before entering on the merits of the question, however, the Hon'ble the President of the Society stated the Society at present was not in a condition to entertain the important subject brought forward by Mr. Deane, as the Society had not the money in hand requisite to meet the call should the propositions be carried. Dr. Wallich as the second of Mr. Deane's motion begged therefore to intimate that after what had taken place from the President he desired to withdraw the motion.

AWARD OF A GOLD MEDAL TO MR. LAKE.

The Secretary next called the attention of the Meeting to the proposition which had been made by Mr. Meeman to award the gold medal of the Society to Mr. Charles Lake at Dacca, for his exertions in advancing the Sugar manufacture of India, and intimated that he had in accordance with the wish expressed at the last Meeting submitted the paper to the Sugar Committee who was favorably disposed towards the grant.

The question then underwent discussion, but on being put to the vote was lost.

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS.

The closing Report by the Special Committee appointed by the Society to carry into effect the wishes of the Hon'ble the Court of Directors as conveyed by the Supreme Government of India in their communication of November 1838, was next submitted.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE OF STATISTICS OF AGRICULTURE.

The Special Committee in bringing their labours to a close, deem it right to advert slightly to the nature of the task which it had undertaken, and the manner in which it has been performed.

2.—The Society will not fail to recollect, that on the receipt of a letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, giving cover to the copy of a despatch (A) from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, applying at the invitation of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, to the Right Hon'ble the Governor-General in Council, for information respecting the prices, &c. of the most ordinary productions of India in various districts, and we desire that you will furnish this information, if it can be procured without much inconvenience.

(B).—I am directed by the Hon'ble the President in Council to transmit to you the accompanying copy of a letter No. 10 of 1838, from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors in the Public Department, dated the 17th of August, and of its enclosures, and to request that the Government may be favoured with your suggestions as to the best mode of meeting the wishes of the Committee of the Royal Asiatic Society in the matter referred to.

(Ed) H. T. Prinsep,
Secy. to the Govt of India,
Council Chamber,
Nov. 28th 1838.

3.—The Society having adopted this report of your Committee, a communication was made to the Supreme Government by the Secretary of the Society, under date 19th January, and to it a reply was received and read at the Meeting of February 1839 in which, after acknowledging the receipt of the Report, and a letter which accompanied it, His Honor the President in Council announced (C.) that the Lithographic Committee has been ordered to afford the aid of that Institution in preparing forms and statements for circulation to the Medical Officers. On this it was resolved that "the Special Committee remain as now constituted, and give to the Society the benefit of its services."

(C) Extract.—"In reply, I am directed to state, that His Honor the President in Council has ordered the Lithographic Committee to give you the aid of that Establishment in preparing forms and statements for circulation to the Medical Officers, and will be happy to learn that the Agricultural and Horticultural Society can procure from the Medical or any other Officers the information required by the Statistical Committee of Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Great Britain and Ireland."

* The Report in full, is to be seen at Page 8 of Proceedings of the Society of 1839, Vol. VI.

4.—The Society will not fail to recollect, that on the receipt of a letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, giving cover to the copy of a despatch (A) from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, applying at the invitation of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, to the Right Hon'ble the Governor-General in Council, for information respecting the prices, &c. of the most ordinary productions of India in various districts, and we desire that you will furnish this information, if it can be procured without much inconvenience.

5.—Here for a time the labours of your Committee ceased, but as its expectations concerning the result were to be fulfilled, it is referred on the 10th of the month and took into consideration the method by which the information should be given.

6.—The Royal Asiatic Society having recommended that the returns should be arranged as far as they possibly could the course of their preparation both internal and external. A form of table devised a form of table for each article, separately, and placed the District whence information regarding it had been obtained, in such a manner as to embrace as much as possible the object sought by the application. In addition to this it occurred to your Committee that an additional benefit would be conferred by representing a map of a geological character, showing the position of the places whence the returns have been obtained, so that the relative distances might be ascertained, and the nature of the soil ascertained.

7.—In regard to this latter object, the geological construction of the Map—your Committee would desire to mention that they by no means wish to sacrifice its complete accuracy. In the present limited amount of knowledge of the geognostic features of the country, a strictly accurate Map cannot be framed, but still your Committee think it due to itself to say, that the best authorities have been consulted in the formation of it, and that, as affording a fair idea of the character of the formations, it may be relied on.

8.—With respect to the extraordinary discrepancy in the nature of the selling prices of the various articles recorded in the tables, now submitted in the several districts mentioned, your Committee has nothing to offer. These circumstances will speak for itself. There is one article however which carries in its various locations such a great difference in price that your Committee cannot help alluding to it, and that is "Barley." By referring to the table of this article, it will be perceived that in the Furreedpoor and Dacca Districts the price is less by half to what it is in the contiguous districts of Malda and about four times than what it sells for in the Calcutta market, the quantity grown however in either Furreedpoor or Dacca is but small.

9.—The Medical Officers who have thus so generously come forward, to assist in bringing to light the valuable information which your Committee has now the pleasure to present, have each had their names placed under the Station where they reside, and your Committee cannot avoid calling the attention of the Society to the more than ordinary zeal which has been shown by Mr. Spilsbury, Surgeon of the Political Agency in the Nerbudda. This gentleman has not only kindly filled out for your Committee, the blank forms of tables which were sent to him, but he has favoured your Committee with a most valuable diary of the three chief articles of consumption, while on an official tour through the Territories, where by the sudden and startling differences will be frequently perceived of prices, rising and falling at places within a few miles of each other, just as the article required would appear to be in the hands of one or more individuals or more plentiful, or scarce, so this would seem to be the communication between village and village, or facilities for making it so.

10.—In conclusion, your Committee has further to remark that it has been careful to reduce the returns to one uniform standard of weight and money, in which it has been entirely indebted to the able assistance of Baboo Kishenchand Dutt, Principal Accountant to the Board of Customs, Salt and Opium, that a separate memorandum has been appended of such information as could not well be inserted in the regular tables, and that the whole they trust, will prove acceptable to the Government and the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland.

* Letter from the Hon'ble Holt Mackenzie, Chairman of the Committee of Agriculture and Commerce of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, to Secretary of the Society, and eventually to Secretaries at India House, dated July 21st 1838.

REPORT ON COTTON RAISED FROM FOREIGN SEED AT ALLAHABAD, DELHI, AND DEHRADU DHON.

The Secretary next called the attention of the Meeting to the accompanying reports, with which the Society had been favored, on the specimens of bowed, and other cottons which had been transmitted by Messrs. Montgomery and Smith.

SPECIMENS RECEIVED FROM MR. SMITH, RAISED AT DELHI.

No. 1.—A sample of Egyptian cotton raised at Delhi from acclimated seed (being the fourth generation) which cotton has been carded and bowed in the native manner, after having had the seed separated from the Kupas, by the common churki of the country.

No. 2.—A sample of Sea Island cotton raised at Delhi from seed similarly acclimated and which has been subjected to the same process.

No. 3.—A sample of Upland Georgia Cotton, raised at Datto, from Datto, Datto.

No. 4.—A sample of Nankeen cotton raised at Delhi from acclimated seed of the third generation, and subjected to the same process as the others.

SPECIMENS RAISED AT DEHRADU DHON.

Egyptian Cotton. No. 1. A.—With the seed in it.

No. 2. A.—Separated from the seed by the common native churki.

No. 3. A.—Cleaned with the hand.

Sea Island. No. 1, 2 and 3. B.—As above.

Nankeen.—No. 1, 2, and 3 C.—As above.

No. B.—These cottons were raised in 1839, from a portion of the same seed as produced those grown at Delhi.

SPECIMENS RECEIVED FROM MR. MONTGOMERY AT ALLAHABAD.

No. 1.—A sample of Sea Island cotton.

No. 2.—A ditto of ditto.

No. 3.—A ditto of Malta cotton.

Minute by Mr. Owen Potter, on the above Samples.

MR. MONTGOMERY'S SAMPLES.—No 1. In Kupass, grown from sea Island seed. Very much deteriorated—staple irregular, and parts of the same very tender other parts of fair strength. It is difficult to judge of the color until the cotton is taken from the seed, but even in this respect I think it would be found inferior to the bulk of sea Island.

No. 2.—Rather a better color, and the staple longer on the average but so very irregular as to be objectionable.

No. 3.—Unmerchantable in England for manufacturing purposes.

MR. SMITH.—No. 1.—From Egyptian seed. A good coloured cotton, but probably injured in staple by being bowed. Tolerably regular. It would meet with extensive consumption, but I apprehend the expense of bowing to be so great as to raise the price beyond what it would be safe to pay for shipments to English markets.

No. 2.—From Sea Island seed. A very useful and valuable cotton indeed—a good and regular staple of fair strength. It is faulty from its nubiness, which I cannot help thinking has been occasioned by the native bow which very much loosens all cotton, but is more especially injurious to fine fibred kinds.

No. 3.—From Georgian seed, of good healthy color but deficient in staple, and rather irregular.

No. 4.—Nankeen cotton. Its color would make it unmerchantable in England.

N. B.—In regard to the above four samples a fair estimate of color, and value cannot be formed, owing to its having been bowed and carded—all samples for report should be sent without undergoing any other operation than that of the churki.

No. 1 & 2 A.—From Egyptian seed—Kupass and Cotton ge 1 color, but deficient and irregular in staple—very much deteriorated.

No. 3 A.—Cleaned by the hand, which process is very expensive in other respects not differing from the above.

B. 1, 2 & 3.—Irregular in length and strength of staple,—more strong.

C. 1, 2 & 3.—Nankin, not merchantable in English market.

Calcutta, August 24th, 1840.

Minute by Mr. Chas. Haffnagle.

Calcutta, September 1, 1840.—I have to-day hastily looked over several samples of cotton sent by Dr. Spry, for the inspection of the Members of this committee and also read with much pleasure the interesting communications from Mr. Smith of Delhi and Mr. Montgomery of Allahabad—it is only to be regretted that these gentlemen did not send the samples of the cotton raised by the natives in the vicinity, to compare with the specimens they have forwarded. Delhi, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, from Mr. Smith are all specimens of good and valuable cotton, No. 1 from Sea Island seed, as I think preferable to either of the others from having the finest and longest fibres and being of equally good colour; No. 2 is a coloured cotton, which appears from the opinions generally expressed to be valueless; of the Dehra Dhoon cotton, we have three specimens from Egyptian seed—of good colour—staple fair strength, but not long.

And three specimens of sea Island; from the master in Kupass, this appears very much deteriorated and more resembles Upland Georgia, than the produce of sea Island seed.

From Mr. Montgomery of Allahabad we have first a sample of sea Island, raised on a grey soil, second year's growth from seed sown in 1838.

No. 1.—This in my opinion is inferior to many specimens I have examined from Upland Georgia seed. It has deteriorated both in length and strength of staple, and the seed which in the American cotton, separates with the greatest ease, adheres in the specimen firmly to the fibre. Is this caused by change of soil and climate.

No. 2.—Same soil, but gathered within the first year—superior I think to the foregoing.

No. 3.—Malta cotton, (colored).

DISTRIBUTION OF SUGAR CANES.

The Nursery Report was next brought up and read. In it the committee say that taking into consideration the inclemency of the weather during the past fortnight, whereby many canes have been destroyed, coupled with the previous disadvantages which the crop has sustained from the causes intimated in the months of last month, the committee does not consider that more than 10,000, perhaps not more than 9,000 canes can be made available for distribution during the month of October next,—at which period the committee will be enabled to state what further quantity will be fit for the purposes of the Society.

Adverting to the limited quantity of canes for the supply of the present year—and the result of the arrangement of last year with reference to the means for recovering the expenditure which the maintenance of the Nursery entails, the committee would desire to suggest that for the present year, a new arrangement should be made and that a small charge of one anna for each cane should be exacted, which charge is to include the expense of straw bands for securing the cane in bundles.

DISPATCH FROM THE COURT OF DIRECTORS ON THE DEEP IMPORTANCE OF ATTENDING TO THE PROMOTION OF THE AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES OF INDIA.

The Secretary desired to call attention to the accompanying communication from the Supreme Government, expressive of the strong continued interest which the Hon'ble Court of Directors take in the advancement of the Agricultural resources of India and of the importance of the Local Government directing attention to the subject.

To H. H. SPRY, Esq., M. D.

Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India.

Genl. Sir,—I am directed by the Right Honorable Dept. of the Governor of Bengal to transmit to you for the information of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society, the accompanying copy of despatch No. 7 of 1840, from the Honorable the Court of Directors in the Public Department, dated 27th May, together with a transcript of the letter from Dr. Royle which accompanied it.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

G. A. BUSTINY.

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Fort William, the 12th August, 1840.

PUBLIC DEPARTMENT, No. 7 of 1840.

OUR GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

We have on various occasions given expression to the strong interest which we feel in the development of the Agricultural resources of India, and to the deep sense which we entertain of the importance of directing attention to the subject. With a view of assisting the promotion of these important subjects and in the hope of eliciting valuable information, we forward a paper by Dr. Royle on the crop and pasture grasses of India. A copy of a letter from Dr. Royle in reference thereto also forms a number in the packet.

We are, &c.,

(Signed) by two Chairmen and eleven Members.)

London, 27th May, 1840.

To J. C. METVILL, Esq.,

Secretary of the Court of Directors of the East India Company.

Sir,—As nothing is of more importance in the Agriculture of a country than increasing the number of the productiveness of the different plants which yield fodder for cattle or food for man, so I was induced in proceeding through my recently published work—"Illustrations of Himalayan Botany, &c."—to pay particular attention to the Corn and Pasture Grasses of India, for the purpose in the first instance of ascertaining their names, number, identity or difference, value, and the parts of the country in which they occur, in order that I might subsequently have the means of giving a more popular view of the subject.

As Rice, Sorghum, Indian Corn and many other grains are sown to Bengal, and the rainy seasons, so Wheat and Barley, with Oats and Millet are equally at home during the cold weather months in the plains of Northern India, and in the summer of the Himalayas.

There are pasture grasses peculiar to the table-land of Mysore, and to the plains of India, as well as to the Himalayas, but it will probably be advisable and quite practicable to introduce some of the gigantic pasture grasses of Brazil into Bengal, and of Italy into the North of India. But the Himalayas possess so many of the identical pasture grasses, which are so much valued in this country, as well as many peculiar to themselves that it is probable they have more to give than to receive. As this subject is one of great importance and not much attended to, I have been induced to have a few copies of that part of my work referring to the corn, and pasture grasses of India struck off separately and which I beg to send.

If the Court of Directors will be pleased to direct these being sent to the three Presidencies, it is probable that many gentlemen in different parts of India might be induced to pay attention to a neglected subject, and make public what are the capabilities as well as the wants of the several Provinces in this respect. The pasture grasses, always a subject of importance, becomes of still greater interest when considered in reference to the attempts going on to improve the breed of cattle and of sheep, at present going on in India, by which it appears that the Meeno and its varieties are succeeding so well in the Mysore and West of India, though I believe that the English breed is best suited to the Himalayas.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

RENEWAL OF APPLICATION FOR REMISSION OF DISCRIMINATING DUTY ON INDIAN TOBACCO AND RUM.

Mr. Faigueson desired to call the attention of the Meeting to a proposition which he desired to submit, relative to the continuation of the discriminating duties on East India tobacco and rum. Having referred to the resolution of the Society passed on the 8th of May 1839, he again begged permission to be allowed to bring the subject to the notice of the Society, it being one of vast importance to the interests of India, since its continuance tended considerably to retard the progress of the Sugar culture and the welfare of the country generally.

The Resolution was then read and seconded by the Hon'ble the President and carried unanimously - the Secretary being at the same time instructed to transmit the communication direct to the Hon'ble the Court of Directors and to the Board of Control for the Affairs of India, with a duplicate to the Supreme Government of India, and the expression of a hope that the subject would meet with the support of the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in Council.

RESOLUTION.—That with reference to the Proceedings of the 8th May 1839, when it was resolved that the Society should address the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, on the subject of equalising the duties on the East India Rum and Tobacco, with that received from other British possessions, but which application has not been successful - the application is repeated by the present overland despatch, particularly with reference to Rum, the production of which simultaneously with that of Sugar has greatly increased, more than in previous years have more than 20,000 tons of sugar has been exported from India to England, whilst in the present year the export will exceed 40,000 tons;—and if the production is further encouraged by the equalisation of duties on Rum there is little doubt that it will be further much augmented, so as to furnish a larger portion of the supply required for the consumption of Great Britain on moderate terms, it being evident that the facility of disposing of the Rum, whilst it increases the advantages derived from cultivating the cane, tends to diminish the cost of the sugar.

The following is the letter which has accompanied the resolution.

To G. A. BURNBY, Esq.,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal Gent. Dept.

Sir, — I have the honor to inform you that at a Meeting of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, held this day, the growing importance of promoting the cultivation of free labour sugar in the territories of British India occupied much the attention of the Society, and the great necessity of relieving the country of the discriminating duties now exacted on East India rum and tobacco again adverted to, — and in reference to the receipt through the Governor of Bengal of the Hon'ble Court's despatch in the Financial Department, No. 22 of 1839, acknowledging the receipt of the representative made by the Society on the 8th of May 1839, for the relief of India from this additional impost on its produce, — the accompanying resolution was again unanimously carried, with an instruction that as this is the 9th of the month, and the latest safe day advertised by the Post Master General is the 13th current, that the communication now to be forwarded be made to the Hon'ble Court of Directors of the East India Company, also to the Board of Control for the Affairs of India; — and that a duplicate be transmitted at the same time to the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in Council, through the Secretary to Government in the General Department for His Lordship in Council's information, — and the Society trusts that His Lordship in Council will do whatever may be practicable to give weight to this representation.

I have &c.

AMERICAN COTTON PLANTERS.

The Secretary next submitted extracts from two letters which he had received by the Overland - one from General Briggs, and the other from Captain Grindlay,

The former gentleman alluding to his pamphlet on cotton writes "you will perceive that I have separated the subject into two parts—the indigenous and the Western plant. They require different soils and climates, and they even require different manipulation in clearing the 'galle' from the seed. Whenever your Agent they should be sent up at once to the North West Provinces of Beagah, and they should never attempt to grow the Western cottons on the soil formed from the debris of the trap formations, as is all the well known cotton soil of India. The Saugur will probably answer very well for the New Orleans and Upland Georgia cottons, but it tears the finer cottons, whether Sea Island, Pernambuco Poulton or India - to pieces. With these hints the cultivator with their simple complex will be found the best cultivators. When the Americans have succeeded in teaching the natives how to gather the cottons, the latter should be sent to other districts to teach other natives and so on. This is a point of great consequence. All these points are dwelt upon in my pamphlet in detail. The settlement of the Ceded and Conquered Territories will now open a fair field for the growth of Cotton, Linseed and Flax, and I look with great expectations for the result of a measure which I so long ago pointed out as the only means of doing justice to the Landholder and to mother earth herself.

Captain Grindlay writes under date 4th July, "as to the Cotton American Planters Captain Hyde has brought over ten, three are gone to Madras, three to Bombay and four accompany him through Egypt next month, taking in the mean time important lessons at Manchester and Liverpool and en passant in Egypt."

ARRACAN HEMP, AND ASSAM RHEA HEMP.

A letter from Mr. Hodgkinson on the specimens of Hemp which have been forwarded by Captain Hyde the Commissioner Arracan was next read. Mr. Hodgkinson states that the Hemp if prepared properly would not be the home market well and be much preferred to either our "Sunu" or "Jute."

Of the specimen of Yema Hemp sent from Assam, by Capt. Jenkins, Mr. Hodgkinson states that it is a superior description and would answer admirably for cordage, nets, coarse and perhaps fine cloths and were it more carefully prepared and offered to the field, would in his opinion become an article of large export. Even in its present state, Mr. Hodgkinson considers it far superior in strength and fine to either "Pat" or "Sunu." Mr. Hodgkinson states that he would be glad of a ton or two of this article for shipment to England.

PROGRESS OF THE FOREIGN COTTON AND SUGAR CANE CULTIVATION AT SAUGUR.

Mr. Ommaney, in charge of the Saugur District in a note to Mr. Spry, mentions that "the Georgian Cotton plants in the grounds at Saugur from the acclimated seed are beautiful." Mr. Ommaney promises a report on the Cotton plantations there and will transmit the produce to the Society. Mr. Ommaney also states that he has magnificent Sugar Cane in the Garden from plants obtained from Banoel in the Nerbudda Territories one of the finest Sugar Cane trunks in India.

CUTTACK BRANCH HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Secretary next submitted two interesting letters which he had received from Capt. Reid at Cuttack, intimating the revival of the Cuttack Branch Society, which for some time, owing to the departure of the former residents, had necessarily fallen into neglect. Capt. Reid states that a respectable list of donations and monthly subscriptions have been obtained, and that a new site has been chosen for the garden which has been enclosed and made ready for cultivation.

Dr. Spry stated that he had rendered all the assistance at his disposal by dispatching seeds of all kinds to Capt. Reid.

MODE OF GROWING CAROLINA RICE.

The last paper submitted was one by Mr. Pratt on the best mode of sowing Carolina Paddy.

Mr. Pratt is of opinion that the soils best calculated for Carolina Paddy are those of a rich clayey and alluvial kind. In the experiments made of growing this rice in Purnah, the method ordinarily observed by the Native cultivators was followed,—three or four plants were stuck in the soil at a span distance from each other, and to insure the most favorable result there should not be less than from four to six inches of water on the field either from rain or irrigation at the time of sowing.

Mr. Pratt states, that his plant differs from that observed in the Carolinas where according to Captain Basil Hall the water is not allowed to remain on the field many days at a time. However this may be, Mr. Pratt remarks, with reference to the difference of temperature between the two countries as well as from his own practical observation, he thinks it essential to the full development of the plant that the field should always remain inundated to a sufficient depth—varying according to the height of the Paddy which runs up to about four or five feet.

PROCRATION TILL NOVEMBER.

The Hon'ble the President intimated that as the native holidays interfered with the sitting of October, that he thought in future no meeting should take place during that month which was agreed to.

For all the foregoing presents and communications, the thanks of the Society was accorded.

Donations.

A few seeds of the Melanorrhoea usitatisima or black Varnish tree of Ava, from Dr. Wallich.

Proceedings of the Agri-Horticultural Society of India, by the Society.

Six Oak plants, presented by Wm. Douglas, Esq.

A very large assortment of Flower trees, from Mrs. General Waugh.

This collection comprises nearly 30 pots of Flower trees, many of great rarity and generally in the healthiest condition.

For this very munificent donation the Committee received a special vote of thanks to Mrs. General Waugh, and desired that the same be officially communicated by the Secretary.

From Dr. Wallich, 27th March 1840—"Here is a great rarity, three perfectly ripe fruit of the Melanorrhoea usitatisima. They fell from the tree this morning. Long not an hour in putting them into the ground. The tree which produced them has still a few; and I trust we shall have the means of furnishing you with a further supply hereafter. I send you some more Banarosea seed perfectly fresh and also some Sapotas."

The Melanorrhoea seed are most desirable ones, and it is greatly to be hoped may succeed. The tree is that which produces the black lacquer in general use to the eastward for varnishing furniture and vessels for holding water, &c. The tree on account of this product is one of great value and in every respect a desirable addition to our stock of useful plants.

From Z. Adair, Esq., 1st April.—Declines that the "Lucky Plant" promised to J. Dowdewell, Esq., be sent to the "Lucky Plant" as the Captain of that vessel very kindly offers to take them free.—Canes sent.

From W. A. Neave, Esq., Salem, 31st March.—Transmits a Bill on Messrs. Bindy and Co. for twenty eight Rupees as his entrance fees and subscription, and states that he will be happy to wait till October for the Mauritius Sugar Cane.

From Major General Waugh, 1st April.—Requests that his name be withdrawn from the List of Subscribers to the Society from the 31st March 1840.—Name struck off the list.

From James Shaw, Esq., 4th April.—Proposes John Arathoon Esq. as a Candidate for the honor of being a Member of the Society.—Elected.

From Major H. Moberly, Coimbatore, 1st April.—States that Carrots, Lettuce, and Onions, the last the produce of some Bombay Onion Seed which he had procured from Hyderabad had produced vegetables superior in every respect to any at Bangalore. Major Moberly adds that he considers the information important and requests a packet of Seed of last season's produce from the Society's Garden, to be sent to him for trial on the 11th.

The Seeds of as many kinds as were gathered were forwarded.

From the Collector of Rajahmundry, 14th April.—That with reference to the Society's letter of the 25th June 1839.—Requests to be informed whether the Society can let him have a few of the Sugar Canes alluded to, and that he has made arrangements with a thorough practical ryot to make the first trial of them, in order to ascertain their superiority over the common Canes of the district—and adds that he will be answerable for all expenses attending the packing and transmission of the Canes to Coimbatore by Sea.

Mr. Smith was informed that, as the present was the most favorable season for sending Canes North, 200 would be sent to Coimbatore for his district by the first opportunity, and that gentleman was recommended to have the ground well prepared in anticipation of the same.—It was intimated to Mr. Smith that the Canes in the Garden of the Society would not be ready for cutting before October, but an arrangement having been entered into with a Native Member (who has an extensive cultivation of these Canes) for the supply of a large quantity to meet urgent demands, some should be sent as soon as practicable.

From the Collector of Chingleput, 25th April.—"I have much pleasure in stating that the Sugar Canes forwarded last year are generally thriving, but the produce will not near suffice to meet the demands for coimbatore. I request therefore, you will inform me whether I can be furnished with another supply."

Mr. Freese was informed that the personal of his letter afforded much gratification, and two hundred Canes were forwarded. These were not the produce of the Society's Garden, as they are at present very young and will not be fit for cutting before October, but by the arrangement before alluded to the Secretary was enabled to meet the demand of Mr. Freese.

From the Collector of Tinnevely, 20th April 1840.—With reference to the Society's letter of the 25th June 1839, regarding the introduction of the Mauritius Sugar Cane, intimates that some farmers in his District are desirous of trying the cultivation of these Canes and adds that he will be very glad if the Agricultural Society can supply him with Canes sufficient to plant 3 Acres of land.

Mr. Thompson was informed that just now the single Cane could be supplied from the Society's Garden, that none were expected before October or November next, when it is hoped the quantity required by him may be forwarded.

Dr. Wight having intimated his approaching departure from Madras and the probability of his being for some time absent, the Committee record their regret at losing, even temporarily, the benefit of his valuable services in the Secretary's Department, and request two of their Members J. Ouchterlony, Esq. and Captain G. A. Underwood to take it under their charge during his absence, which is agreed to.

Resolved accordingly.—That all communications for the Secretary be in future received by J. Ouchterlony, Esq. and Captain G. A. Underwood, who are temporarily charged with the duties attached to that Department.

Donations.

A parcel of Sesuo Seed, from Surgeon R. Wight, M. D. for trial in the Society's Garden.

The whole of the packet of Seeds were not sown owing to the inclemency of the weather.

Three Pamphlets, proceedings of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Bengal, presented by the Society.

Several packets of very valuable Seed, from the Calcutta Botanical Garden, viz. Deadua, Havenia, Berberis, Spiraeae.

Rhodan, Elwardesia, Mader, Presented by Dr. Wallich. Read the following letter from—Dyke, Esq. 26th April 1840.

Solicits a supply of vegetable Seeds as enumerated in the annexed list, and wishes to be informed if the Society can aid him in procuring a Gardener from Madras, and the terms of his engagement.

Resolved.—That the Seed required be supplied to the utmost extent the Society's store will permit, and that Mr. Dyke be informed that there is no probability that a Gardener deserving the name, will be procured; the Madras Market Gardeners are the best, that their ideas are of the most contracted description, being confined simply to sowing and watering without the most remote conception of laying out a garden or keeping it neat and clean.

Read the following letter from J. Bird, Esq. 2d May 1840.

Forwards a small packet containing specimens of Cotton raised in the Coimbatore District from Sea Island, American and New Orleans Seed during the last season, solicits opinion as to the quality and probable value of such in the Madras mart, states that the Mauritius Sugar Cane furnished by the Society last year are flourishing, and that he will be glad to purchase a few hundred if any can be had at Madras.

The prices of the specimens of Cotton have not yet been ascertained—Mauritius Sugar Canes can be had at 1 Anna each from Colenda Moodelly, a Member of the Society, and the Committee can testify as to being the real genuine Cane.

Resolved.—That a letter of the above tenor be addressed in reply to Mr. Bird.

Read the following letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue in the Revenue Department, 4th May 1840.

Intimating that the Board having received an Indent for 24,500 cuttings of the Mauritius Sugar Cane, from the Principal Collector of North Arcot, begging to be informed whether the whole or any portion can be conveniently supplied from the Society's garden, and if not, whether the party adverted to in our letter of the 23d November last has still a stock left for disposal.

Resolved.—That the Board be informed that there are not now any Canes fit to cut in the Society's garden, neither has the person adverted to in the Society's letter of the 23d November any left, having given the last he had to the Society in exchange for others to be returned to him when those in the Society's garden are ready, but that the Committee are informed, he will have a considerable supply ready to cut in August or the beginning of September, and in the event of that season being considered suitable for planting in North Arcot the Board can be supplied to the extent of several thousand at the moderate charge of 1 Anna each—the garden Canes will not be fit for removal before October.

Read the following letter from the Collector of Chingleput 9th May 1840, No. 64.

With reference to the Society's letter of 23th April requests the 200 Sugar Canes therein mentioned may be delivered to the Thasildar of Sydapet.

Resolved.—That the number of Canes promised to the Collector of Chingleput from those effected in exchange from Colenda Moodelly be immediately delivered to the Thasildar of Sydapet.

Read the following letter from Surgeon R. Wight, M. D. 14th May 1840.

Transmits a packet of Sisso seed for trial in the Society's garden, and subjoins extract of Minutes of Consultation, with transcript of Dr. Wallich's account of the nature of the tree.

Resolved.—That the packet of seed be sent to the Society's garden to be sown after the rains have set in—and that Dr. Wight's letter, the subjoined extract of Minutes of Consultation, and the transcript of Dr. Wallich's account of the nature of the tree be published with the Quarterly Proceedings of the Society for general information.

Read the following letter from J. D. Gleig, Esq., 15th May 1840.

Transmits a Bill on the Accountant General for Company's Rupees 28-12 being the amount due by him for a supply of Mauritius Sugar Canes furnished by the Society.

Resolved.—That the receipt be acknowledged.

Read the following letter from Mr. J. Abraham 18th May 1840.

Solicits a supply of vegetable seeds.

Resolved.—That the seed required be supplied as far as the Society's store will permit.

Read the following letter from A. P. Onslow, Esq. 21st May 1840.

Requesting a small quantity of Mauritius Sugar Cane cuttings for cultivation in that District, and states that he will pay the expense of transportation.

Resolved.—That Mr. Onslow be informed of there being no canes at this time fit to cut, nor can he be supplied with any before the latter end of October or the beginning of November.

Read the following letter from Dr. Wallich, 17th and 18th May 1840.

Transmits a few Packets of Seed—and begs to be informed whether Hyocyamus will be acceptable.

Resolved.—That the seed offered be accepted, and the thanks of the Society be recorded for this very valuable donation.

Read the following letter from G. Fischer, Esq., 23d May 1840.

Expressing his regret that the extract from one of his former communications inserted in the last Quarterly Proceedings of the Society has become capable of a construction which he never intended it should bear in consequence of the insertion of the paragraph respecting "Madras Capitalists" immediately after the one in which the Firm of Messrs. Hony and Co. was mentioned, and that the Firm in question was not meant to be included in his general remarks on the subjects, &c. &c. &c.

Resolved.—That the above letter be published in conformity with Mr. Fischer's request.

Read extract from the Minutes of Consultation, 25th May 1840.

Transmitting despatch from the Honorable Court of Directors to Surgeon R. Wight, M. D. Secretary to the Madras Agricultural Society, with a request that he will give effect to the orders of the Honorable Court of Directors by obtaining and transmitting to Dr. Royle, small quantities of the seed of the most choice shrubs and herbs as also seeds of some of the most remarkable trees and shrubs and flowers, and of the common excellent vegetables indigenous to the provinces subject to this Presidency.

Resolved.—That this extract of Minutes of Consultation be forwarded to Dr. Wight as, from the tenor of the instructions it conveys, the Committee consider the communication to be intended exclusively for that Gentleman in his official capacity under Government.

The Committee having taken into consideration, the necessity of exercising a due check upon the extent of work daily performed in the Society's Garden, upon a suggestion made by Colenda Moodelly, and this with a view to hold strict economy in combination with efficiency.

Resolved.—That the Superintendent be in future required to keep a diary of the particular employment upon which the several gardeners and coolies attached to the establishment may be engaged.

[Hurkara, September 4, 1840,

It says much for the policy, benevolence of the Chinese that they should have been so anxious to receive the Chinese section of the Society. It is a pity that the Chinese section of the Society should have been so long in coming to the notice of the Chinese government. It is a pity that the Chinese government should have been so long in coming to the notice of the Chinese government. It is a pity that the Chinese government should have been so long in coming to the notice of the Chinese government.

General, Singapore Relief Society for all nations, 17 rue Neuve des Mathurins, Paris

We have on several previous occasions drawn the attention of our readers to this philanthropic institution, which having its chief establishment in Paris, thence corresponds with the various sections established in the different countries not only of Europe, but of all quarters of the globe. The object of the society, as its name already expresses it, is to establish throughout the globe, the means of preventing the disastrous effects of corn prices, and the loss of the arising from shipwrecks at sea, inundations of rivers, and also to provide relief for those who may suffer from such calamities. The protectors of the English section of the society are H. R. H. the Dukes of Kent and of Sussex, and Henry, Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Marquis of Anglesea, Lord Grenville, and Admiral Sir Sidney Smith.

Hitherto, we believe, the Chinese section of the society of which the Revd. Charles Lutzliff is President, has not been organized, or at least not as yet had an opportunity of affording assistance or relief to shipwrecked persons, which has chiefly been owing to the very confined position of foreigners here, but there being now a prospect of the intercourse of foreign nations with the colonial empire becoming much more frequent and less restricted than hitherto, it is now to be hoped that the general Shipwreck Relief Society will have a more active branch established in China. From a letter addressed by Comte de Liancourt, the secretary of the society in Paris to its President here, we find that it had remitted to H. M. Minister for foreign affairs, a plan of the following foreign residents here as members of the society, viz—Messrs J. Maitland, J. B. Daniell, L. Dent, J. Fox, R. Turner, W. Wallace, W. R. T. ibot, C. W. King, P. W. Snow, and A. R. Johnson.

For the present we fear that the members of the Chinese section will be limited to foreigners only, though it may be hoped that in course of time the Chinese, when more assured of the purely philanthropic objects of the society, and feeling themselves the benefitted of it, may also contribute their share towards its support, but we hear that a translation of the prospectus and a statement of the general objects of the society have been drawn up in Chinese, and sent to China to the admiral of the Peking station, requesting him to become a member, to which however that officer vouchsafed no answer, but returned the paper. Another copy was forwarded to the emperor but though it is supposed that it reached the hands of the government at Peking, they have not deigned to give any reply. In Europe and Asia many benevolent persons are engaged in the same work, and the Chinese section of the society is not the only one of its kind. It is a pity that the Chinese government should have been so long in coming to the notice of the Chinese government. It is a pity that the Chinese government should have been so long in coming to the notice of the Chinese government. It is a pity that the Chinese government should have been so long in coming to the notice of the Chinese government.

In conclusion we again repeat the prospectus the rate of annual subscriptions of the society, and of members as well as the name of the society, and hope that our readers of this month will be able to find themselves as members.

[Hukku, September 11, 1840]

It is indeed a proud recommendation for me that I am the representative of those true and faithful brethren

[Hutchins, Sept 5, 1840]

My brethren,—I accept this cordial and brotherly compliment in the warm heart and hearty spirit with which it has been tendered to me, feeling apprehensive that I have no claim to appropriate to myself the high eulogium with which the eminence and distinguished labors of her who presides over you have been tendered to introduce me to the Convention. I have ever committed the consumption of my words to no ambition to be in the coterie and to do so upon high intellectual ground, and although I have a ready and copious supply of contributions from the altar in the pages of my country and magnificent testimonies put in the will sweeter and more grateful form of the unvarying brotherly love which has elevated, and animated me unworthily as I am, to the use of the instrument of reconstructing on a solid and liberal great foundation on the Western side of the Atlantic, I deeply do appreciate the fact you extend to this me, and secretly do I thank you for the opportunity of our sympathy with which you have welcomed me this night. Although the proud object of it, I may be permitted to remark that it is as honorable to yourselves as to me, for it is in accordance with the true spirit and immemorial usage of our order, and that happy distribution of its spirit and power, principles, by which all discord is annihilated and the stranger himself made at once to the hearts, and hospitality of his brethren.

* This alludes to the shipwreck of the Benetech and Casternagh at Bombay, on the 18th June last. On the following day a Masonic subscription for the assistance was commenced, which amounted in eight hours to 1800 Rupees, and in 48 hours to nearly 2500. The R. W. Brother mentioned that the principal instrument in distributing this charity was Brother, the Rev. George Light Chapman to the Lodge Perseverance, who nobly supported his Christian and Masonic character, by remaining at the point, during the pelting of the pitiless storm, tending the living, and burying the dead, (for both were thrown on shore in a church yard) till the last moment his services continued to be useful.

I have derived my highest pleasure to Masonry in India, not only because it draws closer the hearts of men, and makes of them a single brotherhood, but because it brings together to support reciprocal and ennobling efforts of all noble minds, and gives to each, especially, the high opportunity and not alone the scope, to the inextinguishable inheritance of every noble soul, the European continent, but also as it means admirably suited for extending, without awakening religious prejudices, a true knowledge of the great Architect of the Universe, and more just notions of their duty to each other, among the nations of this murky sphere. With discretion and judgment I have never doubted that it may in time be applied to those stupendous objects, and as justification which possesses such a spirit, and contains within it such a tendency, may justly demand the respect and earnest support of every generous and philanthropic man.

Deeply impressed with these feelings, my brethren, you will believe that I have watched with intense interest the late revival of the craft on this side of India, and I confess to you that one of the chief objects in visiting this stately metropolis of the East, was to have the rising and spreading light, issuing from darkness under the fresh and vigorous guidance of my dearly valued, and Right Worshipful Brother whose elevation to the Provincial Chair of Bengal, followed, as it has been, by his excellent selection of officers is, I conceive, one of the most important steps that has occurred in the march of Masonry within the present century, pressing probably momentous even to those affecting the civilizing and happiness of our fellow men.

My pride and exultation have been extreme in finding him aided in his good work, in particular by the illustrious brother who takes this Indian 'Prometheus' in his hand. It may be said of Sir Edward Ryan that he is a philanthropic and energetic champion of education, or system of moral improvement from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin with which his native land is inseparably connected may not be overestimated. The accession of such a non-ardent individual to a tower of strength to our cause, the efforts of his efforts may be incalculable, but it is, I believe, coupled with the exertions of the worthy excellent and active brethren with whom he is associated, that under the favor of the Supreme Master, it will prove fruitful in diffusing the blessed gifts of charity, good will, and love to all men.

It is in favor of my opinions of Masonry that they are identical with those of this eminent brother, who although raised by Providence to a high sphere of fortune and power, presents probably the best example amongst us of that happy combination of humility with true dignity which gives such grace to the Masonic profession. Long intervals, the inferior of Sir Edward Ryan as at things else, I may yet be permitted, as ruler in Israel to demand of you an overflowing tribute to his perfect knowledge of the true principles of the craft, and his unswerving devotion to its practical objects—Englishman, Sept 5.

[HURKRU, September 7, 1840]

On another gathering of the Mystic Brethren took place on the evening of the 8th instant, under the able direction of the Worshipful Brother Charles, Master of Lodge "Humility with Fortitude," commonly called the Fort Lodge. This Lodge has nobly maintained its place, and has done its part nobly in well doing, contributing to the elevation of Masonry in Calcutta, to add to its numbers, and to support the true principles of the craft.

The occasion of the present Meeting was to receive the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Bengal, Sir Edward Ryan, to whom all the Brethren of the Province were present. At the express request, a very extensive hall was hired, but there was abundance of excellent fare. A large party of distinguished persons, among whom we observed the Honorable Members of the Council, A. Grant, and others, Members of the Provincial Grand Lodge. After the usual toasts and the Worshipful Master proposed the health of the distinguished guests, specially dwelling on the circumstances that he was a Mason equally ready to join his humble brethren in a bomb proof as at present, as in a circle with the most exalted society in the proudest halls. The Right Worshipful Brother Barnes made a valuable reply. The health of the Provincial Grand Master of Bengal, as well as those of Brother Burton, and the W. M., were also drunk with enthusiasm, and in the course of the evening Brother Barnes brought particularly in notice the uninterrupted services to the craft of Brother E. W. Birch, whose kindness and hospitality to himself personally he also acknowledged. Brothers Birch and Burton both gave apt and excellent illustrations of Masonic principles. Other toasts were also given, and some excellent songs, and altogether, although more gorgeous feast may have greeted our esteemed Brother from the West, we never saw him enjoy himself more than with the worthy brethren of Lodge "Humility with Fortitude" in the bomb proof of Fort William. As some of Br. Barnes' addresses to other Lodges have been imperfectly obtained, and others altogether lost, means were taken on this occasion to secure a correct version, and the following (after thanking the brethren for their hospitality, and complimenting them on their admirable work) are very nearly the words, in which he expressed himself in his first speech.

"It is in India such as this that the Brother not yet initiated in the Masonic feeling may obtain profit, and the instructed Mason may gather a fresh incentive to exertion, for it is here that Masonry especially presents herself in her genuine and fairest aspect, namely, as a pure democracy of morals, totally independent of, and indifferent to, distinctions in society, but into which every true-hearted and honest man, who is well and worthily recommended, may seek a home, and secure a place. Having once done so, he becomes the brother of the most affluent Mason, and meets him on the square; the humble question being then, who shall best work and who shall best agree."

At the last assemblage which I attended at Bombay, I had occasion on taking leave of an excellent Brother and conductor William Wallis, who was quitting India, to comment, in presence of about 50 brethren, on his honorable career of nearly 25 years as a Mason and a soldier as known to myself and testified by his superior officers then in India. The feelings of the brethren went with me, the host of the worthy brother were overcome, and a scene ensued which would have touched the hearts of most men. Among those chiefly interested was an accomplished scholar and Mason lately arrived from Europe Brother George Dunt, the Editor of the Bombay Times, who entering intensely into the emotions of the old soldier expressed his conviction of the innumerable benefits of Masonry, particularly in India, where the high and the humble of the public services might thus meet together for reciprocal gratification without the fear of assumption on the side, or loss of dignity on the other.

I was pleased to find my opinions confirmed by an observant individual, for I have ever fancied Masonry

As a sort of very wreath that might be returned to the noble Order of Military Discipline, inspiring a great and hearty to its form, without impairing its beauty or strength, since it is a system entirely devoid of opposition and insubordination, encouraging attachment to the office, and even devotion to the person of the officer, at the same time that it enhances the self-respect of the holder by making him feel that the reality of his moral worth, there is a point at which he may be on the level, where the good qualities of both may become admirably known to each, and where neither would obtain a place without the things of good report, which founded for and true.

The misapprehension under which even some intelligent persons labour that any person may enter Freemasonry is so remarkable at that which induces the uninitiated to believe that the workings of our Order consist only of festive appointments, the conviviality which fills our labour being, in fact, precisely so, and one of the objects of our system, for I have attended numerous Masonic meetings on the continent of Europe, and never saw any entertainment introduced. I need not say how and where is invariably a most rigid scrutiny into the character of candidates, which is peculiarly strict in the case of soldiers. My first experience of this I acquired in a mission which I shall not forget. I had been deputed to assist the present Earl of Roslin to fill up his Regimental Band to attend at the celebration of the Centenary of the 4 and Lodge of 944 land in 1836. His Lordship, the representative of a long line of hereditary Grand Masters,* although himself no Mason, not only at once complied with my request, but expressed his wish to enter the Craft—praying me not to desert until he had given the requisite orders to his Adjutant. This officer, a gallant veteran, soon appeared, and having heard Lord Roslin's orders, addressed him as follows:—"I am myself a Mason, my Lord, many years standing, and I hope a conscientious one; this gentleman knows that the musicians can not attend the meeting without receiving at least the lowest grade of the Craft, let me ask if he has instituted the necessary inquiries into their characters? I protest against the admission of some of them."—I took it as a rebuke as be came me, and the selection was left to the worthy Adjutant, for whom I am glad to say also, a place was reserved as an honored guest at the Centenary. I have even some years ago known a Field Officer make the humiliating confession that, much as he desired to be a Mason, he knew he could not obtain admission into the Lodge of his own Regiment from the want of a moral qualification.

The Duke of York, when he sanctioned Lodges in the Army, foresaw their advantages not only as inducing the soldier to obtain, and retain a character, but in conferring on him also a sure protection in the time of need. Every one knows that even in the fury of the late war, the Chevaliers diplomas, and insignia of Lodges used to be returned with courtesy after an engagement. I am old enough to recollect when my own father, the Master of a Lodge, and a magistrate, took the responsibility of moving some French prisoners from jail to his own house because they were brethren, and it was only last night that Colonel Logan a brave officer of the Peninsular War, mentioned to me an authentic anecdote which will interest you. "A whole Battalion of the 4th Foot had been taken prisoner, and the officers stripped of every thing, several of them were hemmed in the middle of a desert, when to their surprise they found themselves surrounded by their own countrymen, who had been sent by special invitation to assist them. Some of you may have heard the remark of Walter Raleigh, when speaking of the Maccabees, persecuted as they were with such innocent and pious motives, that the most wicked of men, in order to escape a party of soldiers, had taken refuge in the Temple of the Lord, and by the French Emperor Le Roy, who was all, he found the means of escape on the Captain's discovery that there was the master of some of the Colours Lodges amongst them. It is useless to multiply instances, every one knows that a Masonic when has often stretched the sword of the destroyer, and I would not ask of one who represents our Order as a mummy relic of bygone times alleged to be incompatible with the golden age in which we live to point out any other invention of man which could so soften the miseries of war, and lighten the conflicts of life between individuals of contending passions. For my own part I conceive that until the light of true religion shall pervade the universe and the happy period arrive when the whole world shall be one people, and every man a brother, the fondest enthusiasm for the amelioration of the human race can scarcely direct a constitution of society to which the enforcement of the obligations of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth can be inapplicable or otherwise than a liberation, and I glory in the conviction, that Masonry was never more elevated in triumph, and influential, than at the present moment.

From the qualifications required in Military Lodges, as well as the character of our Institution, the Masonic badge has become an honorable distinction in the ranks of the Army. Although I have known much of soldiers, I offer not my own experience. On last St John's Day I had the honor of being supported by Brigadier Valiant (commanding the Garrison of Bombay) and Colonel Griffith the Commandant of Artillery two distinguished officers and Masons who assisted in presence of the Militia Lodge. Ours is a new ed by brothers Sergeant Major and Captain in Hall, that Masonic brethren are invariably the best conductors of soldiers. It is within my knowledge that a gallant officer well known to all present, Colonel William Dunlop, the Quartermaster General of the Army, himself no Mason, is happily one of those worthy men who actively require to be raised, and stated publicly at the meeting at Agra that during his command of the Bengal European Regiment no Masonic Brother's name had ever appeared in the deserters' list. Do the most accurate inquiries into their proof if it is only to calculate to make them better, and to keep them so? It is from a philanthropic contemplation of its effects upon our countrymen, that I believe my Right Worshipful Brother the Provincial Grand Master for Bengal, of whom, as I am absent I may say that a more noble minded, generous and enlightened man was never sent by Europe to Asia, has initiated the idea of making admission with us a piece of reward for well-earned integrity, and intellectual attainments, amongst the natives.

So much, however, for the effect of Masonry on the soldier.—How it has characterized the officer, I need scarcely recount here, since the annals of this country contain a glorious record of its triumph, and many still glow with enthusiasm at the recollection of the august scene when Francis Maitland Hastings, the most chivalrous character of later times, impressed with devotion for the Craft, and love for all his brethren descended from his high estate, as Governor General and Commander-in-Chief in India, and within the halls of his own palace, offered

* The reign of James II., William St. Clair of Ross Prince of Orkney, and Earl of Caithness had tested him, and his heirs ever the dignity of Grand Master of Mason of Scotland, which continued with his descendants until 1716 when William St. Clair of Roslin being childless, resigned it to the Craft.

One of the severest obligations of charity upon practice, is the want I have to propose, which as with every thing else in unvarying union will continue its lesson, reminding us, even on the full tide of festivity, like the whist skeleton at the revels of the Egyptians, of the instability of all human enjoyment surrounded by every luxury, we are now required to suspend our smiles, and by a silent and solemn invitation to rebel to memory all our past and suffering brethren throughout the globe, to flock on our comrades with them and once we cannot tame their distresses, to make the blessing of our Exalted Master on their lot. This is most impressive when there is a gap in our own circle, occasioned by the absence of a brother in distress, and it becomes doubly affecting when, as at present, we know that an officer and faithful auxiliary of this Provincial Grand Lodge, - a worthy determined, and uncompromising servant of our Order - one who has devoted the inimitable energies which have descended to him, from the Orient and enduring race of the flood and mountains from which he is sprung, to the advancement of its interests, has bowed down with domestic affliction and heart-stricken by the same shafts of its great Leveler which has robbed him of his first born. It is the feeling of all present, that I should place Brother Alexander Grant foremost among those whose self-sacrificing whom we prize, cherish, in esteem. I off-reit him my feeble congratulations as he came in, and it was a blessing to my feelings to learn, that in the hour of sorrow the warm sympathy of his brethren had been as a balm to his wounded spirit, and that Masonic principles had been his anchor and his life, teaching him to how with humility, resignation and fortitude to the will of Him whose all seeing eye is not withdrawn from us. - Hurkara, September, 24, 1840.

We begin to think that a dispensation to open lodges for the Indians, must soon be obtained for except a few stiff-necked old gentlemen, we believe all the sterner sex, of mature age, have already been made Masons. The members of our Fraternity upon Saturday night and initiated three more Brethren. After which the brethren sat down to a supper given in honour of the True Friendship, and Brothers W. H. Hamerton, A. H. E. Boddess, W. S. Thomas, John Ward and several others, entertained the company with vocal exertions singing and music.

Brother W. H. Hamerton sang two songs, which were new to us, and which we believe were composed by himself. They were very pretty, and we regret we have not been able to obtain copies of them. The first, A. H. E. Boddess, - who though a young mason has already proved himself a good one - also sang an original song, composed by him for the occasion. We were fortunate enough to get a copy of it and I publish it, though our brother of the Literary Gazette has already anticipated us in publishing it. We feel assured that every Mason will read it with pleasure.

Altered from Sir Walter Scott's Lady of the Lake, Canto II., Stanzas XIX and XX.

1.
Hail to our Craft which in triumph advances,
Honoured and blessed be the Free-mason's sign;
Long may the light of our Order that glances Stream forth undiminished, and brightly shine.
Heaven send of happy days
With level as our days,
Upright in faith and bravely to spread,
While all our Brethren,
Echo the shout again
"Long may Free-masonry hold up its head!"

II.
Ours is no cottage, chance-built, by a fountain,
But an edifice founded on Christ's rock;
When the wild wind of poverty sweeps o'er the mountain
The more shall our pillars resist its fierce shock
Based on no shifting sand
Spreading through all the land,
Tumult and storm up the rough rude, it may blow;
Wisdom and beauty,
Give strength to our duty,
And help us Free-masonry's blessings to know.

III.
Piously we'll carry our symbols before us
No leave a yonder brother's wants unsupplied,
For true Fellowship we'll live till the grave closes
Over us,
When we approach and master must lie side by side.
We'll bow and kneel, -
Sink into deep distress,
Burdened with sorrows, weak hungry, and poor,
The Wife of our brother,
Should not be forgotten
Long light of darkness when she calls at our door.

IV.
Sing to her sing for the love of our Order
Lift up your eyes to the light from above
O let each heart in each little most border
We wear a true re-garland of Brotherly Love
O that a re-union fruit,
With which we merit
Oft from True Friendship's rich branches may fall,
So would each brother then,
Say with a loud Amen,
"The Great Architect's blessing remain with us all!"

MEETING OF THE CATHOLICS.

In pursuance of the following invitation, a meeting of the Catholics took place last Friday evening, at the Parochial House, attached to the Principal Catholic Church.

Sir,—In accordance with the pastoral exhortation published last Sunday the 13th instant, the Very Revd the Vicar General requests the favour of your attendance at the Parochial House, on Friday evening the 18th instant, in order to carry into effect the object proposed in that address, viz., the restoration of peace in this distracted community.

The chair will be taken at seven half-past six precisely.

I have the honor to be, your most obedt. servt.

THOM. OLLIFFE, D. D.,

Secretary.

Calcutta, 15th September, 1840.

The business of the evening was commenced by the Very Revd the Vicar General, stating that, not being familiar with the English language, in which the proceedings would be conducted, he begged to depute the Hon. Dr Olliffe, to preside on the occasion. The chair was then taken by Dr Olliffe, who before proceeding to the order of the day, observed, that there were present in the room of some gentlemen, who had not been invited, those he requested would separate themselves from those who had been invited, for as the meeting had not been convened by a public invitation, he did not think it would be regular to allow those a voice in its proceedings, who had not been called to it, but he saw no inconvenience in their being permitted to remain without taking a part in the proceedings. On the expiration taking place about eight gentlemen appeared to have come without invitation. A desultory discussion here took place as to allowing the uninvited to have a voice in the proceedings. It terminated by Mr J. O'Brien, proposing to take the case of the meeting upon the point under consideration. This was done by the chair, and the gentlemen above alluded to were by a majority allowed to take part in the business of the evening.

The order of the day was commenced by the chairman reading a pastoral exhortation in the Vernacular, which had been published in the Vernacular, both at the Principal Catholic Church and the Chapel of St Francis Xavier. The subject of the pastoral was the restoration of brotherhood and peace among the Catholics of this Province.

The Chairman—The main object of the present meeting, as will have been seen from the invitation and the pastoral just read, is peace—but peace can only be restored unless the obstacles which have disturbed it be removed. I shall, therefore, bring to your notice some of the principal causes which at this moment distract the Catholic community of this city. The first is the withdrawal of the only Catholic periodical in this country, from the control and patronage of the ecclesiastical superior of this Vicariate, and its transfer to an institution not recognized by him. In order to put you in full possession of all the particulars connected with the transfer alluded to, I shall read to you a correspondence, which has taken place on the subject.

The very Revd, Fr. Antonio de Santa Maria, as you are already aware, having been empowered to administer this Vicariate, by virtue of a decree of the Propaganda, and possessing all the ordinary and extraordinary powers of a Vicar Apostolic, except those that belong to the Episcopal character, sent to his duty in 1838 a letter to Mr. James Rastow, pastor, the editor of the Bengal Catholic Reporter, which periodical had been established by our late lamented Bishop, and had in the last day of his life sponsored under the British patronage and patronage. Following in the correspondence.

JAMES RASTOW Esq., JUNIOR.

My Dear Sir,—I deem it my duty to give you this timely notice, in my official capacity of superior of this Vicariate, that it is my wish that no article be published either in the editorial or correspondence columns of the Bengal Catholic Reporter, unless my sanction be previously obtained.

I am, my dear Sir, your obedt. servt.

(Signed) FR. A. DE SANTA MARIA.

Vicar General of Bengal.

Calcutta, 7th September 1840.

To the very Revd. Fr. Antonio de Santa Maria, Vicar General.

My Dear Revd Sir,—Allow me to congratulate you on your appointment as Vicar General of the Bengal Vicariate, and I sincerely trust that under your spiritual care and management our holy religion will be extended and glorified in this country.

With reference to your letter of yesterday, I beg to observe, that the Catholic Institute having at a meeting held last week, as you will have seen in the first number of the Reporter, adopted the journal as its organ, the Reporter has been placed under the superintendence of the Institute, the Secretary of which will afford you further information if necessary.

I am, very Revd. Sir, your obedt. servt.

8th Sept 1840. (Signed) JAS. RASTOW, JUN.

My Dear Sir,—In reply to your yesterday's letter I beg to inform you that the Catholic Reporter, was originally established under the immediate patronage of the late superior of this Vicariate, and that it continued to be directed under his surveillance until his premature demise. On the other hand, the Catholic Institute alluded to by you has neither been established under the patronage of the present superior (for the originators of this Institute in Bengal, thought it a wiser course not to wait his appointment) nor has it yet been recognized and approved by him. Under such circumstances I ask even the Reporter withdraw itself from the surveillance of the acting superior in order to shelter itself under the wings of the Catholic Institute.

Your humble servt.

TO THE VERY REVD FRA ANTONIO DA ST MARIA, Vicar General Bengal.

My Dear Rev Sir.—I beg leave to inform you, that the letter which you did the honor to address me yesterday, has been handed over to the Secretary of the Calcutta Auxiliary Catholic Institute.

I am, very Revd. Sir, your obdt. servt.,

JAMES ROSEMAN, JUN.

10th September 1840.

JAMES ROSEMAN Esq JUN.

Dear Sir,—I protest against the authority you have assumed of "handing over" my letter to the Secretary of an Institute, which I do not recognize. I, therefore request the immediate favor of a direct reply, to the simple query contained in it, which if I did not receive before noon to-morrow, I hereby warn you, that I shall be compelled to adopt such measures as will mark my sense of the injudicious conduct of the conductors of the Expositor.

Yours faithfully

10th September, 1840.

TO THE VERY REVD FRA ANTONIO DA ST. MARIA
Vicar General of Bengal.

REVD. SIR.—Mr. Rosman yesterday handed over to me the correspondence which has recently taken place between your Reverence and himself regarding the Bengal Catholic Expositor.

In reply to your last letter to the address of J Rosman, Esq., Junior, I beg to state, that the idea of the journal in question originated with our late worthy and lamented Bishop Dr Taberni. After the establishment of the Bengal Catholic Expositor, it received the approval of His Lordship and that of all our neighboring Vicars Apostolic. You will have seen by the public announcement in the Expositor of last Saturday, that the Catholic Institute has adopted it as its organ, and it needs the sanction of nobody.

With reference to the Calcutta Auxiliary Catholic Institute, which has been duly established, and of which you make mention in the second part of your letter I have to inform your reverence, that it is not necessary it should have the recognition and approbation which is said to be requisite.

I am, Revd. Sir, your obedient servt

(Signed) J. W. WALLER,

Secy. C. A. C. Institute

Calcutta, 11th September, 1840.

P. S. May I beg that your reverence will have the kindness to inform me when the inquisition was established in this country.

(Signed) J. G. W.

A little before the receipt of the last, the following letter had been written, and on its receipt a postscript was added,

REVD. R. SUMNER.

REVD. AND DEAR SIR.—I address you on a little matter connected with the Expositor, as you are the sole legitimately appointed Revisor of it after the resignation of Dr O'Hiff.

The time which I limited for a reply to my query in my letter of the 9th instant, to the Editor of the Expositor, having now expired, before I publish my reply of the unjustifiableness of the proceeding alluded to in his letter of yesterday, I deem it judicious to enquire of you whether the translation of the paper from the supervision of the superior of the mission to that of the Institute has been made or not with your knowledge or sanction. As I repeat you are the only clergyman responsible for the doings of the Editor in question, I hereby request you will with the least possible delay, give a direct reply to this query.

I am, &c.

(Signed) FRA ANTONIO DA ST MARIA,

Vicar General of Bengal.

Calcutta, 12th September, 1840.

P. S.—Since writing the above, I have received an insolent letter signed J. G. Waller, of which I shall take no notice in the proceedings.

The following is the reply —

TO THE VERY REVD. FRA ANTONIO DA ST MARIA,
Vicar General of Bengal

VERY REVD AND DEAR SIR,—Your letter of yesterday refers to another addressed to a third party. If the reference was necessary you would perhaps have the goodness to favor me with a copy.

The adoption of the Bengal Catholic Expositor by the Committee of the Institute for its organ was a measure which "as reviewer of that paper," I had nothing to do. That charge imposed upon me the ease of seeing that the articles submitted to me contained nothing "contrary to faith and good morals," and extended no further.

In reply to the closing observation of your note, I have to say that I neither am now nor ever was "responsible for the doings of the Editor of the Bengal Catholic Expositor."

Your most humble and devoted servant,

(Signed) R. SUMNER

September 12, 1840.

You have thus seen gentlemen, by the correspondence I have alluded to, that the Bengal Catholic Expositor is no longer under the control of the ecclesiastical superior of the mission. I shall now bring to your recollection certain circumstances connected with the establishment of the paper. At the time that event took place, I had the honor of being Secretary to his Lordship, and by his direction I issued invitations to a certain number of the Catholics of this city in a manner similar to that in which I acted to those who were asked to the present meeting. It is needless to detail all the particulars connected with that meeting, I shall therefore only state that it was convened and conducted in the same manner as the present meeting, that at that meeting the Bengal Expositor was established, and it always continued under his Lordship's sole control until his unexpected demise. There are indisputable facts, and it is now left to you, gentlemen, to express your sense of these proceedings, and to indicate the course that should be adopted to remedy the evil. It is absurd to suppose that the right to control the Catholic Expositor requires episcopal consecration, if, therefore, the Vicar General be possessed, as he is of every other power vested in a Vicar Apostolic, it clearly follows that all subjects in regard to this matter ought to have full weight and authority. In order further to show that the present meeting has been convened in the same impartial manner as that at which the Expositor was established, I shall read to you the names of those who were invited, some of whom have not attended.

Here the Chairman read a long list of names for which we have no room, but we particularly noticed those of the following gentlemen who were not present, viz the Rev. Mr. Chadwick, Rector of St. Xavier's College, Rev. Messrs. More, Sumner, and Boulogne, and Mr. Antonio Pereira, the President of the Calcutta Auxiliary Catholic Institute.

Mr. Crow begged leave to observe that as this meeting had been called expressly for the purpose of restoring peace, he had a resolution to submit, which he thought would tend to the attainment of that object. The meeting was aware that a controversy concerning the College of St. Xavier and the Expositor had been carried on for some time past, and that it had lately assumed a character which he apprehended was calculated to excite in this community angry feelings, and he wished to see a stop put to that controversy. All those who had taken part in that discussion, had signed in the several public journals under assumed signatures, and it was therefore impossible to address any individual personally on the subject. (Hisses from the side of the minority.) The only way that appeared to him likely to effect the object he had proposed, was for this meeting with the Vicar General and himself to express their earnest desire that all those who have been concerned in the late angry discussion should cease from writing any further on the subject. (Cheers.) He was aware of the sacrifice of a long while some of the belligerent parties would have to make in order to show their opponents to have the last word, but this sacrifice was necessary, some one must have the last word, otherwise the dispute could not terminate. For his own part, he did not care whether the individuals who would be called on to make peace there were his friends and advocated the same side of the question with himself, or whether they belonged to the opposite party. One of the latest publications connected with this dispute was a pamphlet published under the signature of Veritas. He had not retained from seeing this publication, because he did not wish to contribute to the controversy, but which might produce a result. The party in which Mr. Crow was supported, was pretty well known to the meeting, it also was known how the quarter which the pamphlet of Veritas had taken. Yet he hesitated not a moment to call upon the meeting to present so far as they lay, a very strong and united front to that pamphlet, and he hoped it would be supported in the proposition which he had to submit. Mr. Crow then moved, seconded by Mr. W. Waller, —

"That this meeting is of opinion that for the sake of peace the controversy which has been for so long time past carried on in the public papers and in the press here, should be discontinued." — Carried unanimously and with cheers.

Mr. Waller, the secretary of the Institute, being one of those who had come in uninvited, wished with reference to what had been said from the chair regarding the transfer of the Expositor to the Institute, to offer some explanation. Having thanked the meeting for allowing him and Mr. Crow's voice in the proceedings of the evening, he attempted to read the advertisement announcing the appointment of the Vicar General, and stated that he did not consider it a sufficient authority for the appointment, the validity of which he questioned.

The chairman. — Mr. Waller, I must call you to order. The authority of the Vicar General has been acknowledged by all the clergy in Calcutta; his appointment has been published in the Principal Catholic Church as well as at St. Xavier's chapel, and not one of the clergy has hitherto entered any protest against it. This meeting has been convened by him, and the very fact of your coming to a meeting so convened, and of addressing him as Vicar General in the correspondence that has been read, is a recognition by you of his authority, you have therefore been convicted of inconsistency, and I must request that you will not touch upon this object which is quite irrelevant to the main object of the present meeting. You must remember, Sir, that this object is the restoration of peace, and that you have been permitted to speak upon the express condition that you will say nothing but what may tend to promote that desirable object.

Mr. Waller. — "Then am I not to be heard?" Chairman — No, not on this subject, we shall be glad to hear you on the question which is before the meeting.

Here a good deal of desultory conversation took place in which Mr. Waller and some of those who had accompanied him endeavoured to carry on the discussion on the Vicar General's appointment, and the chairman, supported by a large majority of the meeting, attempted to keep them in order. No explanation however regarding the transfer of the Expositor having as yet been offered, the following resolution was moved by the Reverend I. M. Brandao.

"That this meeting deems the transfer alluded to, to be unjustifiable, and that the Expositor having withdrawn itself from the control of the Ecclesiastical Superior of this Vicariate, be no longer considered worthy of the support of the Catholic community."

This proposition was seconded by Mr. E. O'Brien, who adverted to the manner in which the Expositor had been established by the late superior of this Vicariate, and had always continued under his direct control, which he contrasted with the mode in which it had since been drawn over transferred to a lay Institute, and its subsequent withdrawal from the control of the same authority now vested in the Vicar General.

Mr. James Rostan, Jr. (the declared Editor of the Expositor), who spoke from some distance and in a low tone, so that we could not properly catch all that fell from him, appeared to admit that the Expositor had been established by the late Bishop, but denied that that Prelate exercised any control over it for thirteen months. He then stated he, (Mr. R.) considered himself the proprietor of the Expositor, and as such he claimed a right to transfer it to whom he pleased. (hears, &c.)

Mr. Waller here took up the discussion and stated, that the Expositor had been made over during the interregnum which occurred between the death of the late Vicar Apostolic, and the appointment of the present Vicar General, — a time at which there was no one at the head of this Vicariate, and he thought that this circumstance justified the transfer which had been made, inasmuch as the right which the late Vicar Apostolic had enjoyed of exercising his control over the Expositor, died with him.

Mr. John O'Brien here observed that he with several others had been formally invited to and was present at the meeting which was convened by the late Vicar Apostolic for the express purpose of establishing a Catholic paper. The very circumstance of a meeting being held was a proof that the Journal was public property. The present Editor and the collector of the Bengal Expositor, were respectively elected by the votes of those who constituted that meeting. If, as was attempted to be proved by the last speaker, the interregnum abolished the right and authority of the ecclesiastical superior with regard to the Expositor, the same argument might be applied to all the other rights and functions of the superior.

Mr. Crow adverted to the remarks of Mr. Rostan, and wished to know the time from which Mr. R. admitted that the late Bishop had exercised control over the Expositor. Mr. R. had informed the meeting that for thirteen months his Lordship had not exercised any control over that paper; Mr. Crow wished to know from Mr. R. when his Lordship had commenced to exercise control.

Mr. Rostan made a reply, that so far as we could hear he did not furnish the information sought by Mr. Crow.

Mr. Crow then observed that Mr. Rostan not having answered the simple query he (Mr. Crow) had asked; but on the contrary having limited the time of the non-interference of the late Bishop with the Expositor to thirteen months, Mr. Crow concluded that, according to Mr. Rostan himself, the late Bishop had exercised control for all the remaining period. Mr. Crow saw nothing in the non-interference of the late Bishop for thirteen months to warrant the conclusion that his Lordship had no authority over the Expositor; because if for a period the Expositor had acted with propriety, the Bishop would not interfere, but when he found it was going wrong he would then, as he appears to have done, exercise his right of control.

Mr. Waller again addressed the chair, and after a few observations, one of which was that no Catholic is bound to receive a single article in the Expositor as matter of faith, returned to the subject of the appointment of the Vicar General, and was again called to order by the chairman, but he persisted in maintaining that he was perfectly in order, that the subject he was commenting on was intimately connected with the resolution before the meeting, and that he had a right to be heard.

At one time, notwithstanding the repeated calls to order, Mr. Waller persisted in interrupting the chair in that degree, that the Rev. Chairman was obliged to say "Mr. Waller, have the politeness to listen to me."

This conversation between the chairman and Mr. Waller continued for a considerable time, during which many hot words were spoken, and had it not been for the exemplary forbearance of the Rev. Gentlemen who presided, we fear business would not have proceeded to a close.

On Mr. Waller's repeating that the resolution involved the question of the Vicar General's authority, the chairman replied that it did not involve, but that it pre-supposed it, that it was the Vicar General who had convened the meeting, and therefore that all the Gentlemen present, the uninvited as well as Mr. Waller (was one) not excepted, by attending it, had recognized, at least implicitly, his authority. The chairman then observed that it was very extraordinary for a layman to question that authority, which all the clergy in Calcutta had expressly recognized, and he therefore drew the conclusion, that Mr. W. ought consistently either to acknowledge the authority of the Vicar General, or to retire from the meeting which had been convened by him.

In the midst of this desultory discussion, Mr. J. Lackersteen addressed the chairman, and spoke as follows:

He was grieved and astonished that a meeting convened for the avowed object of restoring peace to a divided community, any gentlemen should come forward to moot a question which in its own nature was calculated to frustrate that important object. At the meeting which lately took place at St. Xavier's College no layman was invited who was not declaratory of the party which was known to advocate every measure that originated with the Reverend Fathers of the College, although the object of that meeting was to establish an Institute professing to defend the rights and privileges of Catholics in an hostile country—he believed throughout India. Did any of the gentlemen who were not asked by the Rev. Rector of St. Xavier (and the majority of those who were then present had been excluded) presume to officiate on the meeting at the College, for the purpose of taking part in the intended discussion? No, properly regarding the established forms of courtesy, they declined to obtrude where their presence was manifestly undesired. Mr. Lackersteen then adverted to the nature of the present meeting where every thing was done on the basis of strict impartiality. Gentlemen who were known to hold dissimilar opinions, were asked to meet in a friendly way to discuss amicably the points of difference and if possible, by mutual concessions to unite the hitherto jarring interests of a distracted community. Mr. Annam Perera the President of the Auxiliary Institute and Mr. Rostan the declared Editor of the Beagol Expositor, had been specially informed by the Rev. the Vicar General of Bengal that the Institute in question and Periodical Expositor, would severally form subjects for discussion. Was this an object of concert calculated to promote each other? Was it not a convention understood that it was not to touch on any party by surprise, but that every thing would be done fairly and openly, and that nothing would be kept a secret till the very moment of discussion? How was such a convention met with? Several gentlemen have come unbidden to this meeting, they have been implicitly allowed to remain in the room, they have requested permission to print the proposed discussion, even this request was granted by a great majority of votes on the express understanding how far their exertions would tend to promote the restoration of peace. But he is grieved to observe the language and conduct of one of these, who professing to be actuated by the most noble and pious motives, has refused to concur in a discussion on a subject not only irrelevant to the points which were proposed to be discussed, but one which was fully capable of provoking party feelings. Such an act, so exercised in violation of every sacred and solemn object of association and civility. Mr. Lackersteen then begged that the resolution which had been moved and seconded be put to the vote.

After this some of the uninvited, who before appeared to have supported Mr. Waller, disclaimed every intention of disputing the authority of the Vicar General. The resolution which had been proposed by Rev. Mr. Baughman was now put from the chair, and carried by large majority.

The following resolution was then proposed by Mr. J. Lackersteen, seconded by Mr. T. Gregory, and carried,—

That the Vicar General be solicited to give publicity to "this decision."

About this time Mr. Waller and those who had accompanied him retired.

The Chairman.—I shall now explain to you, gentlemen, another cause of dissension, it is the Institute recently established at the College of St. Xavier's. As a report of the proceedings which took place on the occasion has been published in the Expositor, I need not advert to them in detail, but I must read for your information a letter which the clergy, at the time rendering this written in the Bengallee language, and there was another written in our combination of English and Bengallee. I am not aware of the names of these writers, nor do I know where to find them. I was not inquisitive and it was my part of the business to go in and out, so that I had little opportunity of learning the names of the writers. Ezekiel Moses, one of the partners, who generally remained on the premises, must know every particular as regards the writer. From the beginning to the end we never made any settlement of accounts. Some of the firm asked for it, but Isaac Jacob put it off from day to day till our failure. The Bengallee language could only be a little spoken by Benjamin Abraham Jacob, but none of us could read or write the language. We were all unacquainted with the English language also, so that we were entirely dependent, as regards our accounts, on the pinhead of the Bengallee writer. The writer had been brought by Isaac Jacob, and, as far as any knowledge of him goes, I found him to be honest. The disappearance of eighty or ninety thousand rupees arose from losses experienced by the firm, which took place in the Mauritius, England and other places, as no doubt will be given by the Hongkee books of account. I am not cognizant of the names of the ships on which our goods had been taken, but bills of lading, policies, &c., were prepared by Isaac Jacob, which documents must be with him. About this time last year I was informed of four or five hundred bags of wheat being exported of the London market. The debt of the Bengal Bank is to the extent of eight thousand rupees. I do not know any one of the names of Hongkee's charges. I am aware of the contents of our Schedule, they having been explained to me. They are all true. Isaac Jacob assured me that the entries in the Schedule were correct, and upon this assurance I put my name to that document. Though Isaac Jacob may not know to read and write Bengallee, yet he knows the English figures. The Schedule was not prepared before the. The Comptroller also explained it to me. I never examined the Schedule, but, as I said before, Isaac Jacob's assistance as to its accuracy, satisfied me, and I signed it. Isaac Jacob did not particularise the contents of the Schedule to me; but the gross amounts he mentioned to me. The gross amount of losses he said was eighty or ten thousand rupees. Our transactions with the Bank were to the extent of five lacs, and we received eighty six thousand on renewed bills.

Examined by Mr. Leith.—I know what wheat is sold the four or five hundred bags I have alluded to, I did not see myself but my knowledge of the exportation was derived from Isaac Jacob. I am certain they were sent to England, because three or four days prior to failure, a letter was received from England about the wheat. The letter is with Isaac Jacob.

Ezekiel Moses (in custody) examined by Mr. Principal.—I have been in Calcutta twelve years, and before I joined the firm of Jacob and Company, I transacted business by myself. I cannot read or write the language. I joined in the general business of the house, but was not solely responsible for anything. I know Mackie and Co., with whom we did business, though the precise nature of the transaction I am not aware. Isaac Jacob managed the whole concern, and he must know it. I do not also know how the debt of Mackie and Co. arose, nor the number or extent of the dealings between us. Our accounts were all kept and prepared by our Bengallee scribe Ramthora Moukerjee. I know nothing about the schedule or its contents, which I understood Isaac Jacob to have got prepared by the scribe. It was then brought to me and signed it. I cannot explain particularly the account, but the scribe Ramthora can. I do not know where he lives but Isaac does.

Between the examination of the two witnesses some discussion took place between the opposing Counsel, where several points connected with the case were considered, till it was finally arranged that the case should stand over to the next Court day, which will be on the 19th October—when an amended Schedule should be put in, and in the meantime it was proposed for Mr. Principal to apply in Chambers for the rule nisi—*Hear. SUPREME COURT.

IN THE MATTER OF FANIELA CATHERINE ANN GALE, A SUPPOSED LUNATIC.

REPORT C. A. NOTT AND E. D. BADWELL, ESQ. QUINCE, COMMISSIONERS.

The following juries were sworn

R. C. Paton, Foreman, F. Hampton,

Willis Esle,	W. L. White,
Edward Onkes,	W. F. Githon,
D. Macleod Gordon,	H. Chapman Kemp,
T. C. Chlogan,	James Campbell,
A. G. Glass,	and
Robert Hunter,	Samuel Smith, Esqrs.

Mr. Nott charged the jury.

Mr. Leith appeared as counsel for the commission.

Horatio Court sworn. I was formerly in the Indian Navy and am now in the Judicial Department. I am acquainted with Miss Gale daughter of Mr. Gale, formerly in the Marine Office. He died 5 or 6 years ago.

was about 24 or 25 years of age. I have known him about 30 years, and have had frequent opportunities of meeting Miss Gale. She is now at Blunquay, on the charge of Mr. Beardon. I saw her there on 15 days ago. She was at there two or three months after the death of Captain Collier, her grandfather by Messrs. Leigueson and Co. who had charge of her estate. Captain Collier died in May 1846. Miss Gale appeared a weak minded person, and shy of every one who came near her. I have known her from her infancy. After her father's death she varied much in her conduct. She once came to my house to pass the day, when her conduct was very strange, inasmuch that Captain Collier would not take her home in the carriage, thinking that if she went with me, I might be able to pacify her. She went in the buggy with me, and at the passing of every boat, she said her grandfather was sending to take her away, and repeatedly tried to jump out of the buggy. Captain Collier subsequently went to live at Cossipore; I cannot speak as to date. Miss Gale went with him. She remained two days at my house just before, and I could not keep her longer. Dr. Twining and Dr. Bramley both declared her to be quite mad, and recommended her removal to the Insane Hospital. I saw her about fifty times at Cossipore; she was then considerably worse, so much so, that she was put into a hospital. I saw her there; so far as I could judge she was decidedly mad. She made efforts to get away from the nurses and would not allow any one to remain on her person. Three women, one of whom was an European, Mrs. O'Neil, were employed to watch her. It would not have been safe to have allowed her liberty at that time. She had been in the same state in my house. When I saw her 15 days ago, she was as bad as she could be. She bang her head down, and her eyes were rolling like a wild cat. She snapt at the shirt and of Mr. C. who was with me. She could not speak any thing distinctly. She was dressed in a gown, but I don't think she knew whether she dressed or not. This state must I think have come on gradually; but it was very sudden after her father's death, by which she appeared much affected. She always was very strange in her conversation. She has about 70,000 Rs. which she inherited from her father and Capt. Collins. She is not able to take care of herself or her property. She has one brother, Colbert Roger Gale; and a married sister, Jane Collins Binstow.

Dr. Stewart was sworn and deposed that he went to the Asylum about 15 days ago for the purpose of ascertaining her state of mind. The opinion he formed was that she was decidedly insane and quite incapable of managing herself or her affairs. He considered that she was born of a naturally weak mind.

Duress Gallard, resident in Mr. Bingham's, and Mr. Bingham himself were examined and deposed to her having been in a state of insanity for many years, and that they had been in possession of the Asylum. She was received on the 15th May 1836, on the petition of Dr. Goodenough. She has never had any legal friends, but her violence has since increased. She is as bad as a child, and requires to be treated as well as directed. Her habits are but slowly.

W. J. Thompson and Colbert Roger Gale were respectively examined and deposed to the contents of the above points.

The jury, after retiring for a short time, returned a verdict, by a majority of twelve out of thirteen, that Emmella Catherine Anne Gale has been, from the emanation of God of unsound mind from the 25th of July 1836 to the period of this inquest, and that she is without any legal friends; and that she has been incapable of managing herself and her affairs from that date, and that she is possessed of property to the extent of about 70,000 Rs., and that her nearest relatives are her brother Colbert Roger Gale and her sister Jane Collins Binstow. — Englishman, September 15, 1840.

Officiating Judge Advocate Captain Woodburn 25th Regiment N. I. proceeded to the trial of Captain Daniel George Duff 16th Regiment Bombay Native Infantry, placed in arrest by order of His Excellency the commander in chief on the following charges:

For disgraceful conduct, unbecoming the character of an Officer and a Gentleman, in having knowingly and wilfully given false testimony on oath, at a General Court Martial held in a mess room near Poona, between the 30th December 1833, and the 14th January 1840, on a matter deemed material to the defence, by deposing on the sixth day's proceedings, that he (Captain Duff) did in a conversation with Mr. William Gibbard, then an Ensign in the 16th Regiment N. I., at the quarters of Lieutenant Munro of the same Regiment, at Amroha on or about the 15th January 1839, relating to a person, who had been taken prisoner and put to death by a party of Irregular Troops under the Orders of the said Mr. (then Ensign) Gibbard, at Koonpore in the Sawant Warre State, condemn the action of Mr. Gibbard, in not sparing the life of the said Prisoner, and that he (Captain Duff) did not believe the circumstance, whereas (Captain Duff) did in the conversation before specified (but on a date anterior to that stated by him) distinctly express his approbation of what Mr. Gibbard had then related, and advised him to make an official report of the same, through him (Captain Duff) his (Mr. Gibbard's) then immediate commanding officer, that he (Mr. Gibbard) might obtain the further approbation of superior authority.

Adjutant General's Office, Bombay, 23th March 1840.

By order of the Commander in Chief,

(Signed) S. POWELL, Lieut. Colonel,

Adjutant General of the Army.

As soon as the charge had been read by the officiating Judge Advocate, the Prisoner, Captain Duff, delivered in the following statement of objections thereto:

Before pleading to the charge just read, I beg to request, that the Court would be pleased to call upon the prosecutor, to specify the particular words made use of by me, in my deposition before the General Court Martial held at Poona on the 30th of December last, on which this charge is founded. For that deposition consists of more than four pages of foolscap paper, and,

Therefore, such specification is given, it must be shown that it will not only be impossible for me to do so myself, against an indefinite charge, but also that the Court is unable to observe, whether the prisoner charged in the prosecution applies to the case, and whether the words are actually used by me, or are not directly contradicted by the prisoner's statement. The allegations in this charge, relate to a conversation in January last year (1839) and I am accused of having given false testimony, with respect to that conversation. What, therefore, if true, has this actually said, and it is alleged, should be proved, are forth at judgment, the charge is such, that I might have an opportunity of comparing it, with what I afterwards deposed at the Court, and what the General Court stated, and also with the evidence, which may be given on the present trial. However, this charge is, in fact, an allegation of perjury, and the words held in a judgment for perjury, the words, on which it rests, should be set forth, as clearly as error; but in the charge now before the Court, it is only alleged that I gave false testimony, by deposing that, I had condemned the return of Mr. Gibbard, to a conversation, held some time in 1839, whereas, on the contrary, I had deposed that I had no apprehension of it. This, however, is a mere conclusion, which may have been drawn from erroneous impressions of the real intent and meaning of what I said at that conversation. The precise words, therefore, used by me on that occasion, ought, according to every principle of law and common justice, to have been set forth in the charge; and it ought also to have been averred, that I did afterwards depose to the contrary, at a Court Martial, and the precise words of that part of my deposition, ought equally to have been set forth, and not merely alluded to, in ambiguous terms. For it is held, that in a Military charge, as well as in a civil indictment, the allegations should be so circumstantially stated, that the prisoner may clearly understand the charge, that he is called upon to answer, and that the Court Martial may know whether the evidence adduced, is relevant or not, and it is essential that it is sufficient for the conviction of the prisoner. On these grounds, therefore, I beg leave to submit to the Court, that the charge now before it, is drawn up in so vague and indefinite a manner, that it should not undergo investigation, until it receives a more specific and legal form.

(Signed) D. GEORGE DUFF,
Captain 16th Regt. N. I.

Bombay, 14th August 1840.

The Court having been cleared to deliberate on the objections raised by the prisoner to the original charge, and the President on its reopening, stating that the Court did not see sufficient ground in those objections to require a new charge to be framed, the prisoner pleaded Not Guilty, and the proceedings were opened by the officiating Judge Advocate, reading the following portions of Captain Duff's evidence at Poona on the trial of Lieutenant Gibbard, on the 24th day of its sitting—Wednesday, the 8th January 1839,—on that occasion he swore for or against Captain Duff's having knowingly and wilfully given false testimony on that occasion:—

Captain D. George Duff, 16th Regiment Native Infantry, is called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the prisoner. (Lieut. Gibbard.)

Q. Were you not under your command at Vingorla in December 1838 and January 1839?

A. Yes, from October 1838 to the latter end of February 1839.

Q. In December 1838, was I detached at Sawant Warree with 100 men with instructions to remain at that place till the Prisoner's Court was over?

A. Yes, but I do not recollect the exact number of men.

Q. Do you remember the beginning of January 1839, on my returning to Vingorla from Warree, my relating to you certain circumstances which had taken place at Kowtanee's house, and if so, have you goodness to state what you heard me say on that occasion?

A. Yes, I heard you say, in January (about the 15th), Lieut. Gibbard had killed a man, Major's quarters say, that one man killed him, and I said, "I could not believe it, but I did not believe the man, and Mr. Gibbard said that Mr. Gibbard had killed him to give no quarter, or no quarter to be given such an outrage of probability; I thought the proposer was for belief; and imagined that the subject was introduced merely to promote a discussion, as to the policy or otherwise of refusing of pressing quarter, and regarded it as a rhodomontade of Lieut. Gibbard, and did not believe him. There is an explanation of this conversation which I wish to make. In my statement before the commanding officer of the regiment, I mentioned that I had heard from Lieut. Gibbard that one man had said 'don't kill me, take me to the gate of Warree or Humsav, and I will give you my weight in gold, or words to that effect. This on further recollection I heard from Rama, a Drummer of the regiment, since dead. What I actually did hear Lieutenant Gibbard say, I have above mentioned.

Q. In the month of January, the day I returned from Warree, do you recollect any telling you, or in your presence, what had occurred at Kowtanee relating to the man who had been taken and afterwards shot?

A. No, I do not recollect that Lieutenant Gibbard told me any thing about shooting men, except the one above referred to, and had I believed what Lieutenant Gibbard had said about refusing quarter, I should have put him under arrest, and reported the circumstance, but I did not believe it for a moment. I was smoking, and I think reading, to the best of my recollection, and I am not certain if this was on the day of his return.

Q. After my return to Vingorla in January 1839, did I in any way communicate to you the transactions at Kowtanee, and if so, state what they were?

A. No, I do not recollect that Lieutenant Gibbard communicated any thing beyond the prior conversation.

Lieutenant Charles Munro, 16th Regiment Native Infantry is called into Court and duly sworn.

Questions by the Judge Advocate.

Q. Were you present with a detachment of the 16th Regiment N. I. at Vingorla in the early part of January 1839,—and who was in command of it?

A. I was,—Captain Duff was in command of it.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Gibbard then an ensign in the above regiment, rejoining the detachment at Vingorla from detached duty, and from what place did he come, and about what time of the month?

A. I recollect Mr. Gibbard arriving at Vingorla from Sawant Warree. It was about the 2d or 3d January.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Gibbard being at your quarters on the day or soon after his return?

A. I do.

Q. Do you remember Captain Duff coming to your quarters on that day when Mr. Gibbard was there?

A. I do.

Q. Did any conversation then take place between Captain Duff and Mr. Gibbard relating to what had occurred a little before at Kowtanee; and if so, state fully what each respectively said?

A. When Captain Duff came to my quarters, he said to Mr. Gibbard, I hear you have been giving it to the rebels—Come let us hear all about it.—Mr. Gibbard then told Captain Duff that he had been sent by Mr. Spooner to a place called Kowtanee after some rebels,—that Mr. Spooner told him to make no prisoners, and give no quarter,—that he proceeded to Kowtanee with his men, and had a skirmish with the rebels,—that several of them had been killed, and that some of the Warre-sepoys were bringing him a prisoner, when he waved his hand, and told them to take him away, that he did not want prisoners—that they took him away, and shot him. Captain Duff then said, well I am glad you have given it to them. It serves them right. I wish you would make a written report of it, and I will forward it on to the general, and you will get a compliment. He would like to hear the gap.—(News.)

Q. Did Captain Duff appear to believe or disbelieve what Mr. Gibbard said; and did he approve, or condemn what Mr. Gibbard said he had done?

A. He appeared to me to believe it, and certainly did not disapprove of it.

Q. Was any other person present at the above conversation besides yourself, Captain Duff, and Mr. Gibbard?

A. Ensign Raitt, 16th regiment N. I. was present.

Q. Do you remember any future conversation taking place at your quarters, between Captain Duff and Mr. Gibbard on the above subject?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever hear Captain Duff at any time, during your residence at Vingorta, condemn the act of Mr. Gibbard in having at Kowtanee shot a prisoner?

A. I never did.

Q. Did Captain Duff ever in your presence, make any remark, or ask any question, showing he was aware of Mr. Gibbard's having caused a prisoner to be shot?

A. He did one day at his own house, he said I wish Mr. Gibbard would make me a written report, as I should like to send it on to the general. He then asked me if I knew more about the Kowtanee affair. I replied I did not. He asked me if I knew how the men were killed, I replied I believe they were shot.

The prisoner here expresses a wish to postpone his cross-examination of witness until he comes on his defence, to which the Court is pleased to accede.

Lieutenant Munro withdraws.

Second witness for the prosecution—Ensign Alexander Raitt, 16th Regt. N. I. called into Court, and duly sworn.

Examined by the Judge Advocate.

Q. Were you present with a detachment of the 16th regiment native infantry at Vingorta, in the early part of January 1839?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Gibbard then an ensign in the 16th Regt. N. I. forming a detachment from detached duty in the early part of the above month?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Do you remember being present at Lieutenant Munro's quarters at Vingorta, when Captain Duff and Mr. Gibbard were there on the day of the return of the latter or soon after?

A. Yes, I do remember.

Q. Did any conversation then take place between Captain Duff and Mr. Gibbard, relating to what had occurred some time before at Kowtanee, and if so, be pleased to state fully, what each respectively said?

A. There was a conversation between Mr. Gibbard and Captain Duff,—concerning what had taken place when at Kowtanee.—Mr. Gibbard said, that he came up with the rebels at Kowtanee, on the river, and had fired upon them while crossing. Some of the sepoys with him were bringing a man, a prisoner, and he said you have got your orders and know what to do with him, and made a sign to them with his hand. He the prisoner was taken away and shot. Captain Duff appeared to be pleased with what he had related, and told him, if he made a report of it would send it on to the general, as he likes to hear all the news.

Q. Did Captain Duff appear to believe or disbelieve what Mr. Gibbard then related, and did he condemn what he had done?

A. He did not condemn it, and I should say he believed it.

Q. Who were present besides Captain Duff, yourself and Mr. Gibbard at the above conversation?

A. Lieutenant Munro was present.

Q. Were you present at any other conversation on the above subject between Captain Duff and Mr. Gibbard, at Lieutenant Munro's quarters?

A. I never remember having heard any more than the one I have alluded to.

Ensign Raitt here withdraws.

Third witness for the prosecution—William Gibbard Esq. (late Lieutenant 16th Regiment N. I.) is called into the court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Judge Advocate.

Q. Did you belong to a detachment of the 16th regiment N. I. at Vingorta in the early part of January 1839, and under whose command were you?

A. Yes, I did—I was under the command of captain Duff, but detached to Sawant Warren. I was under the immediate orders of Mr. Spooner.

Q. Do you remember rejoining the detachment at Vingorta from detached duty soon from what place did you come, and about what time of the month?

A. On the morning of the 2nd or 4th January—I rejoined the detachment from Kowtanee where I had been sent by Mr. Spooner.

Q. Do you remember being at lieutenant Munro's quarters on the day or soon after your return?

A. On the morning of my return, I was at lieutenant Munro's quarters.

Q. Did any conversation then take place between Captain Duff and yourself relating to what had occurred at Kowtanee a little before, and if so state what it was?

A. After breakfast Captain Duff came into lieutenant Munro's quarters and asked me what I had been doing saying he understood I had been successful with the rebels. I told him I had been sent to Kowtanee by Mr. Spooner with orders to take no prisoners and to give no quarter; that I surprised a party of rebels at Kowtanee, and that several of them were shot, crossing the river which divides the Goa from the Warree Territory, that some time afterwards four or five rebels were taken prisoners by the irregulars under my command, and that according to orders I had received from Mr. Spooner I ordered them to be shot—that one of them was a leading rebel named Goonda Purub:—and that he had offered a large sum of money for his life, but that still I had ordered him to be shot—that on my return to Warree I had reported to Mr. Spooner what I had done, who had highly approved of my conduct. Captain Duff exceedingly pleased at my success with the rebels, and expressed his pleasure in several remarks he made—and said give me a written report of what took place and I will send it to General Salter, who will be pleased—I answered I was under Spooner's order at the time, and having reported to him, I did not consider another report necessary.

Q. Did Captain Duff appear to believe or disbelieve what you related to him, and did he condemn the act of shooting the prisoners.

A. Captain Duff appeared to hear and believe what I said and made no remark either then or afterwards, condemning my proceedings at Kowtanee.

Q. Who was present at lieutenant Munro's quarters during this conversation?

A. Lieutenant Munro was and I believe Ensign Rott, but I am not certain as to the presence of the latter.

Mr. Gibbard withdraws and the prosecution is here closed. The prisoner being here put on his defence, requests the indulgence of one day's delay before entering on an examination of the witnesses in his favor, with which request the court complies,—and is in consequence adjourned until Thursday, the 6th day of August, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

SECOND DAY, THURSDAY, 6TH AUGUST, 1840.

Lieut. Charles Munro is again called into Court and examined on his former Oath.

Cross examined by the Prisoner.

Q. At what time of the day did the conversation between Mr. Gibbard and myself in your quarters at Vingorla, alluded to in your Evidence on the 4th Instant, take place?

A. I cannot recollect the exact time of the day: it was some time between eleven A.M. and six in the evening.

Q. Did you not hear, or understand from Mr. Gibbard at that, or any other time, that he saw the Prisoner, whom the Warree Sepoys were bringing to him, when he waved his hand and told them to take him away, that he did not want Prisoners?

A. He did not mention that he had seen the Prisoner. He merely said, they were bringing one, and that he waved his hand, and told them to take him away.

Q. Did Mr. Gibbard state at that time or any other in your presence, the name of the Prisoner so taken away, or who he actually was?

A. He mentioned his name was Goondee Purub, the leader of the Rebels at Kowtanee.

Q. Do you mean to say, with reference to your Evidence on the Prosecution, in which you state, that I said well, I am glad you have given it to them: it serves them right, that I was glad Mr. Gibbard has beaten the Rebels or that I was glad he had ordered the defenceless Prisoner, whom the Warree Sepoys were bringing to him, to be taken away for the purpose of being shot?

A. I took it in a general view, and that you were glad of the whole affair, as it had occurred.

Q. Do you think, that a report to the General Officer of the division from an officer under his orders, containing an account of a Prisoner deliberately put to death, after capture or surrender, was likely to meet his approbation, and obtain a compliment for the officer by whose orders the man was so deprived of life?

A. I do not think it would.

Q. How then do you think, I approved of the act, and what did it reported to General Salter for Mr. Gibbard's benefit?

A. You did not condemn his having ordered the Prisoner to be killed, besides that, you said that you were glad he had given it to them.

Q. Did you yourself approve of Mr. Gibbard having put the Prisoner to death, as related by him?

A. I did not approve of it in words, but in consequence of the orders he said he had received from Mr. Spooner, I did not think at the time he had done wrong.

Q. Do you mean positively to state, that I include the death of the Prisoner in the service of Mr. Gibbard, which were, according to the account you have given of the conversation between Mr. Gibbard and myself, to obtain for him a compliment from the General?

A. I believe that you did intend the death of the Prisoner to be mentioned in the Report, as after hearing Mr. Gibbard's statement of the Kowtanee affair, you said to Mr. Gibbard himself that you wished him to make a written Report of it, which you wished to send on to the General.

Q. To what men did you allude when you told me, as stated in your answer to the last question put to you on the Prosecution that you believed they were shot?

A. I allude to the whole of the men killed at Kowtanee that morning, including the Prisoner Goondee Purub.

Q. Did you ever afterwards hear of other Prisoners besides Goondee Purub being put to death at the same time, as he was, by Mr. Gibbard?

A. I did.

Q. When did you first hear of this?

A. It was after my arrival in Bombay in February 1839.

Q. Did you ever previous to the Court Martial on Lieut. Gibbard, hear the particular manner those Prisoners were put to death?

A. I heard various statements of how they were put to death before the Court Martial.

Q. From whom did you hear those statements?

A. I heard one day from Mr. Orrok that Mr. Rigby had heard it at Parell.—It was the general talk in Bombay, and I heard it from various persons.

Q. Was that the first time you heard the report?

A. I do not think it was, but I cannot call to mind, who I first heard it from.

Q. Had you not yourself previous to the day on which you heard from Mr. Orrok that Mr. Rigby heard it at Parell, mentioned the circumstance of those Prisoners being put to death at Kowtanee in the presence of Lieut. Orrok and Mr. Rigby at the Mess of the 16th Regiment N. 1?

A. I have been told I did; but I do not recollect having done so.

Q. Did you the Evening before the Officers of the Regiment were ordered to attend at Colonel Capon's quarters, in the early part of May 1839, or on any other Evening immediately preceding the one abovementioned go into ensign Rigby's quarters, and address him as follows,—or in words to the same effect?—"I understand you are going to say, that I have been speaking at the Mess about Gihbard's putting men to death:—You must know very well, I have never opened my mouth on the subject—I have made it a rule never to do so—You must have dreamt this Rigby—You know you have—Hav'n't you?"

A. No I do not recollect speaking to Mr. Rigby upon the subject but I asked Mr. Orrok if he ever heard me. He said he had, I then told him that I understood that Mr. Rigby had been saying, that I had mentioned something at the Mess one evening, regarding the Kowtanee affair, I told him that I did not recollect a word about having said so at the Mess—I asked him if he had heard me, and he said he had, and moreover he told me, he had before I mentioned it, heard of the affair from Captain Duff himself, and that I might make use of his name, that he had so heard it. This occurred on the morning of the day when the Officers met at Colonel Capon's quarters.

Here a question that the Prisoner desired to put connected with Lieut. Munro's early knowledge of the Kowtanee affair in Bombay, was overruled, and also others connected with previous matters—and Captain Duff declined to examine Lieut. Munro further.

By the Court.

Q. State as nearly as you can when you did hear of the other Prisoners being put to death, that is how soon after your return to Bombay?

A. I should think about eight days after my arrival.

Q. Do you remember on what days of February you arrived in Bombay?

A. It was about the end of the month.

The cross examination is here closed, and the witness Lieut. Munro, withdraws. It being past two o'clock, the Court adjourns until eleven o'clock to-morrow forenoon.

THIRD DAY, FRIDAY, 7TH AUGUST 1840

William Gihbard, Esquire, is called into Court and examined on his former Oath.

Cross Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. If as you have stated on this trial, I asked you on the 3d or 4th of January 1839 at Vingorla, to give me a written Report of what took place at Kowtanee, which I would send on to General Salter who would be well pleased, how did it happen that in the course of your examination of me, as a Witness on your Court Martial at Poona, you never alluded in any way to such request, or recommendation on my part?

A. Because, I considered it had nothing to do with the charge on which I was tried.

Q. You have stated in your evidence for the Prosecution, that you returned to Warree, after the affair at Kowtanee, and reported your proceedings at that place to Mr. Spooner:—Do you mean to say that you reported the whole of your proceedings to that Gentleman including the order you had given for shooting the four or five Rebel Prisoners whom you state on your examination on the 4th Instant to have been so put to death by your orders at that place on the 25th December 1838?

A. Yes, I do. I reported to Mr. Spooner that I had ordered four or five Prisoners taken at Kowtanee on the 24th or 25th December to be shot, and they were shot accordingly.

Q. Was your report to Mr. Spooner a verbal or a written one?

A. A verbal one.

Q. Was it in consequence of the report so made of the whole affair at Kowtanee, that you obtained Mr. Spooner's approbation?

A. It was partly in consequence of that, and partly in consequence of the assistance I had formerly lent him.

Q. Did you ever see any of the Prisoners before they were shot? I mean were they all or any of them brought to you either by men of the 16th Regiment N. 1 or of the Sawant Warree Irregulars before you ordered them to be executed?

A. Yes, they were brought up within ten or fifteen paces of the House in which I was, and were taken away again immediately. I do not remember seeing any of the Prisoners, except the man who was released. There was a great assembly around them consisting of a few regular and great many Irregular Sepoys.

Q. Did you ever write any other Official Letter to any one containing an account of the affair at Kowtanee different from the account you gave of that affair in your Letter to Mr. Secretary Willoughby dated 4th June 1839, recording on the proceedings of your Court Martial at Poona?

A. I did not write any other official Letter on that subject.

Q. Did you ever see this letter before?

[Here a letter purporting to be written by the Witness is produced.]

A. Yes.—At the time I gave the answer to the former question relative to Official Letters, I did not remember that this had been an Official Letter, although I remember perfectly well writing it. (After looking at the Letter) I wish to explain to the Court that in it twelve men are stated to have been killed subsequent however to the despatch of the Letter, the bodies of three or four more rebels were reported to me, as having floated down the river.

The following letter was then read by the Judge Advocate.

Kowtanee, December 25th.

SIR,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and beg to inform you that I arrived here this morning with a party of 250 men, and have succeeded in killing the son of Futtee Purub and 12 others whose names I do not know—6 men escaped across the river opposite Nakon Kurfer's House and one man severely wounded lower down (although at the time there were upwards of 200 people on the spot, and many of them armed with Guns, and apparently Gna Sepoys), and I also beg to state that persons from the opposite side threatening my men and took their guns up to fire at them, at the time they were seizing the son of Fauter Parub, also 3 men crossed the river to the left of the house, within 500 yards of the place placed there, but the sepoys took no measures to seize them, and allowed them to escape. I am very certain that if any active measures had been taken this morning, not a man would have escaped and out of the 6 who escaped 2 or 3 are severely wounded; this I shall report to Mr. Spooner with your letter, when I have no doubt some measures will be taken to prevent the people in the Gun Frontier assisting the Insurgents to escape, which occurred this morning, as I saw the men myself, and shot two of them and wounded one man who escaped into the sugarcane opposite Narroo Kewler House a mile Howkoke was seized and I suppose is dead, as he cut his own throat; the remaining Insurgents are Blaw Sawant, Narroo Kumlee from Sawant, Sumbajee Neynoon, Mloo Sounlakm, Sukkon Kotwalla and the Lambool Desa. An Masam Rowal informed me this morning that Subuss and Sukkon Kotwalla had been seized, which I shall report to Mr. Spooner, and at your convenience will forward them to Warree under a party of men.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most Obedient Servant,

(Signed) W GIBBARD, Esq.,

Commanding Detachment Kowtancee.

To the Officer commanding at Pandua.

The Court was then closed and on its re opening the Prisoner was informed that the above letter would be recorded, but that two others of which one was without date and the other dated 26th December 1838, from Mr. Gibbard to the same party, as the one recorded, could not be received in evidence, as they did not appear to bear immediately on the matters in issue at this time.

Q. Was there any fighting between the Detachment under your command and the rebels at Kowtancee on the 25th December 1838?

A. No, because they were completely taken by surprise, and only one or two shots were fired by them.

Q. Are you sure, with reference to your mention of the shooting of the prisoner whom the Warree Irregulars were bringing to you, that I did not say at the time "Then if you allowed him to be shot, you did damn well wrong."

A. No, Captain Duff made no remark of the kind neither on that date nor up to the date of my leaving Vingoria about the 23rd of February, during which period I was under his command.

Examined by the Court.

Q. Had you had any communication with Captain Duff, regarding the Evidence he intended to give on your Trial at Poona, previous to the sitting of that Court, and if so, did he give you to understand, the nature of the Evidence he was about to give?

A. No, I had no communication.

The Cross Examination is here closed, and Mr. Gibbard withdraws.

Ensign Alexander Raitt is called into the Court and examined on his former Oath.

* This and other names are very difficult to be deciphered in original letter and may not in consequence be very correctly transcribed in the copy from which we print.—Editor.

Cross examined by the Prisoner.

Q. At what time of the day did the conversation between Mr. Gibbard and myself in Lieut Munro's Quarters at Vingoria, alluded to in your Evidence of the 4th Instant, take place?

A. I should say in the Evening, so far as I remember.

Q. Did you hear or understand from Mr. Gibbard at that, or any other time, that he saw the prisoner whom the Warree Sepoys were bringing to him, when he waved his hand and told them to take him away that he did not want prisoners?

A. I did understand from what he said that he did not see the Prisoner.

Q. Did Mr. Gibbard state at that time or any other in your presence the name of the Prisoner so taken away or who he actually was?

A. I do not think the name was then stated, but I heard afterwards from him, that it was Goondee Parub.

Q. Do you mean to say with reference to your Evidence, on the Prosecution in which you state that I appeared to be pleased at what Mr. Gibbard had related, that I was glad that Mr. Gibbard had beaten the rebels—or that I was glad he had ordered the defenceless Prisoner, whom the Warree Sepoys were bringing him, to be taken away for the purpose of being shot?

A. When Mr. Gibbard had stated the whole of what I have stated, Captain Duff then said, he was glad he had given it to them, but I do not know which he alluded to, when he said that.

Q. Do you think that a report to the General Officer of the Division, from an Officer under his orders, containing an account of a Prisoner deliberately put to death, after capture or surrender, was likely to meet his approbation, and obtain a compliment for the Officer by whose orders the man was so deprived of life?

A. I should think not.

Q. Can you then believe that I approved the act, and wished it reported to General Salter, for Mr. Gibbard's benefit?

A. I do not know whether Captain Duff believed it or not, but the words I have stated were made use of by him, on the occasion.

Q. Did you yourself approve of Mr. Gibbard's having put the Prisoner to death as related by him?

A. I never approved or disapproved of the act at all. I believed what he told me.

Q. Did any discussion or conversation take place on the 2d or 4th January 1839, as to the propriety of giving quarter?

A. Not that I heard of.

Q. Did you ever afterwards hear of other Prisoners besides Goondee Parub being put to death at the same time as he was by Mr. Gibbard's orders?

A. I did afterwards hear of other Prisoners being put to death, but I do not think it was until I arrived at Bombay, sometime afterwards.

Q. From whom did you first hear, that other Prisoners than Goondee Parub had been put to death by Lieut. Gibbard's orders?

A. I do not remember from whom I heard it, or where I heard it.

Q. Are you sure that when Mr. Gibbard mentioned the shooting of the Prisoner, whom the Warree Irregulars gulars were bringing to him, I did not say at the time "Then if you allowed him to be shot, you did damned wrong?"

A. It may have been said, but I do not remember it.

Question by the Court.

Q. Do you think the remark at the end of the last question could have been made by Captain Duff with out your hearing it?

A. I think I would have heard it, had he said so.

Q. Did you ever hear Mr. Gibbard say at any time he had been offered money, by any of the Prisoners to spare their lives?

A. Yes—I think I did hear him say so.

Q. Can you state when or where Mr. Gibbard said so?

A. It was at Vingorla, but I cannot say exactly when.

Q. When you say the conversation which took place at Lieut Munro's house was in the evening, do you mean before or after six o'clock?

A. To the best of my recollection it was about 6 o'clock in the evening.

Q. Did Capt. Duff in your presence at Vingorla condemn any part of Mr. Gibbard's conduct with reference to the Kowtanee affair?

A. He never did.

Q. What was Capt. Duff's general manner towards Mr. Gibbard on his reporting the Kowtanee Proceedings, was it as if he fully or only partially approved his proceedings, and was it cordial or otherwise?

A. He appeared to approve of it fully. After the report was made, he clapped his hand, and appeared to believe it.

Q. Between the arrival of Mr. Gibbard at Lieut Munro's and six o'clock in the evening, was there any conversation regarding the killing of the prisoners, and was Captain Duff present the whole time from Breakfast till the Evening?

A. Captain Duff was not present the whole time, there was no conversation relative to the killing the prisoners between the Breakfast time and 6 o'clock in the Evening, so far as I can remember.

Q. How long during the day above alluded to, was Captain Duff present in Lieut. Munro's quarters?

A. He was there some part of the forenoon.

Q. Was Mr. Gibbard present with him in the forenoon.

A. I do not remember if he was present or not, but he had no other place but Lieut. Munro's house to go to.

Q. Do you, in your own mind, entertain a doubt as to whether the approbation expressed by Captain Duff, in your presence, of Mr. Gibbard's conduct, included the destruction of the prisoners?

A. I think in my own mind, he was aware a prisoner had been shot, and he never disapproved of it.

Q. From the time of Mr. Gibbard's arrival at Mr. Munro's quarters until you arrived in Bombay, did you imagine at all that Mr. Gibbard was likely to be brought to trial for the Kowtanee affair.

A. No. I was quite surprised to hear that he was to get a Court Martial, after I got up to Bombay.

Q. On what terms have you and Captain Duff been during the time you have been in the corps?

A. I was on very good terms with Captain Duff until my arrival in Bombay from Vingorla sometime in April, when a Court of Inquiry took place.

Q. Were Captain Duff and Mr. Gibbard on good terms, when the latter returned to Vingorla from Kowtanee?

A. They were on good terms.
The cross examination is here closed, and Esq. Ratt withdraws.

The Prisoner requests the indulgence of the Court, being adjourned until Monday, in consequence of the Friend who is assisting him on this trial finding himself unwell, and not likely in consequence to be able to attend to-morrow. His request is complied with, and the Court accordingly stands adjourned until that day at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

FOURTH DAY, MONDAY, 10TH AUGUST 1840.

First Witness for the Defence.

Lieutenant Christopher Rigby, 16th Regt. N. I. is called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. Do you remember Lieut. Munro returning to Bombay from Vingorla, about the end of February last year (1839)?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever subsequent to Lieut. Munro's return to Bombay as above, mention to Lieutenant Orisk, in Lieut. Munro's presence having heard the subject of Mr. Gibbard's affair at Kowtanee talked of at Parell, and say that it seemed to be the opinion there, that Mr. Gibbard would get him trouble in consequence? and if so, state whether Lieut. Munro made any, and what observation on that occasion?

A. I did. On returning from Parell, I mentioned to Lieut. Orisk in Lieut. Munro's presence, having heard the subject of Mr. Gibbard having put a man to death talked of at Parell and that it was likely to be a serious thing—Lieut. Munro said, I am sure it cannot be true, I hope for poor Gibbard's sake it is not true.

Q. Had Lieut. Munro at any time subsequent to his arrival at Bombay from Vingorla, but before the conversation given in your last answer mentioned Mr. Gibbard's affair at Kowtanee, on the 15th December preceding (1838) and if so, state, when and where Lieut. Munro mentioned it, and what he said respecting it?

A. A very few days after his arrival from Vingorla, Lieut. Munro sat at Tiffin at the Mess, that Mr. Gibbard had been sent by Mr. Ratt with a party of men, after some Insurgents—that they had a skirmish and that some prisoners had been taken—that as they were brought to Mr. Gibbard, he made a sign with his hand, that they were taken aside, and then throats cut.

Q. Did Lieut. Munro at any time subsequent to the conversation regarding what had been said at Parell, but previous to the assembling of the officers at Colonel Gibbard's quarters, in the early part of May 1839, come to you and make any observation regarding it which he saw you had been making, respecting putting men to death at Kowlahee?

A. Yes.—Lieut. Munro came into my Tent, I think the evening before we assembled at Col. Capon's quarters to state what we knew about Mr. Gibbard's affair, he said "I understand you are going to say that I have been speaking at the Mess about Gibbard putting men to death.—You know I have never said a word about it, I made it a rule never to speak on the subject, you must have dreamt it, you know you must. Haven't you?" I replied.—"Munro, if I am questioned I must state what I have heard."

Q. What object did Lieut. Munro appear to you to have in view, in addressing you as described in your answer, to my last question?

A. It appeared to me that he wished to disavow all knowledge of the subject, as it was likely to come under investigation.

Q. From whom did you first hear the account of Mr. Gibbard's putting men to death?

A. The account Mr. Munro gave at the Mess was the first I heard.

Cross examined by the Judge Advocate.

Q. In your answer to the first question you say Lieut. Munro made use of the words, "I am sure it cannot be true, I hope for poor Gibbard's sake it is not." Did it appear to you, that he meant that the circumstance was true, that Mr. Gibbard had put men to death or that the circumstance itself, of men being put to death was not true?

A. It appeared to me that he thought it could not be true that Lieut. Gibbard had put men to death.—He made use of the words, as if he appeared to be surprised.

Q. In the remarks made by Lieut. Munro at the mess, relative to Mr. Gibbard having put certain prisoners to death, did he state from what source he had derived that information?

A. He did not.

Q. You state that Lieut. Munro, came to your Tent or as you think, the evening previous to the meeting at Colonel Capon's, and made use of certain observations to you.—What led you to come to the conclusion, that his reason for making these, was, because he wished to disavow all knowledge of the matter?

A. He wished to persuade me that he never mentioned a word about it, and that, together with the remarks he had made in Lieut. Orrok's presence led me to believe, that he wished to appear ignorant of the matter.

Q. At this time on what terms were you with Lieut. Munro?

A. We were on terms of intimacy at that time; but I had intended at the time to drop his acquaintance, in consequence of Evidence I heard him give at a Court of Inquiry of which I was Interpreter?

Q. On what terms are you at present?

A. I do not speak to him now.

Questioned by the Court.

Q. Had the Court of Inquiry you have alluded to reference to the subject now under investigation?

A. No.—It was a Court of Inquiry on Captain Duff.

Q. Was Mr. Munro's account of the Kowlahee affair addressed to you and what were the positions of Mr. Munro and yourself at the Mess Table?

A. I did not remember it addressed to any body in particular—I recollect Lieut. Japp questioning him upon it.—Lieut. Munro was sitting nearly opposite to me at Table.

Q. About how many officers were present on this occasion, and who were they?

A. I recollect Lieutenants Japp, Munro, Orrok, and myself, and I think there were some others present, but I cannot specify who they were.

Q. Do you remember any of the questions referred to by you, by Lieut. Japp to Lieut. Munro?

A. No, I do not recollect; I remember he did question him, but not what he asked.

Q. When Mr. Munro related the circumstance at the Mess, of Mr. Gibbard having put prisoners to death, did he mention it as something he had only just become acquainted with or that, he had previously known?

A. He had been relating different things that had taken place at Warree, and in the course of this conversation, he also mentioned what I have before stated.—He appeared to have heard of it before he came to Bombay and was giving it to us as news.

Q. How many prisoners did Mr. Munro state at the mess had been put to death at Kowlahee?

A. He did not specify any number that I heard of.

Q. Did the officers present appear, then to hear the news for the first time?

A. As far as I can say they did.

This witness Lieut. Rigby here withdraws.

Second Witness for the Defence.

Lieut. William Orrok, 16th Regiment N. I. is called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. Do you remember Lieut. Munro returning to Bombay from Vingoria, about the end of February last year (1830)?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did Lieut. (then Ensign) Rigby, ever, subsequent to Lieut. Munro's return to Bombay as above, mention to you in Lieut. Munro's presence, having heard the subject of Mr. Gibbard's affair at Kowlahee talked of at P'rell, and say that it seemed to be the opinion there that Mr. Gibbard would get into trouble in consequence, and if so, state whether Lieut. Munro made any and what observation on the occasion?

A. I recollect Mr. Munro being present, when Lieut. Rigby mentioned that the affair had been talked of at P'rell; and he (Mr. Munro) said I shall be sorry if it is the case, on account of poor Gibbard, or some words to that effect.

Q. Had Lieut. Munro at any time subsequent to his arrival in Bombay from Vingoria, but before the conversation given in your last answer, mentioned Mr. Gibbard's affair at Kowlahee on the 25th December preceding (1838) and if so, state when, and where Lieut. Munro so mentioned it, and what he said respecting it?

A. He mentioned it at the Mess at Dinner time very soon after his arrival from Vingoria.—He mentioned that Mr. Gibbard had been sent with a party, and that he came on a body of ~~thirty~~ ^{thirty} men on the bank of some river, and that ~~they~~ ^{they} were fired upon, and some of them were shot—that one man had been brought to him as a prisoner by some of his irregular Troops, and that he had offered a certain sum of money, if Mr. Gibbard would spare his life, but Mr. Gibbard waved his hand to take him away, and that he was immediately taken, and destroyed some way or other.

Q. Did Lieut. Munro at any time subsequent to the conversation regarding what had been said at Parell, but previous to the assembling of the Officers at Colonel Capon's quarters in the early part of May 1839, come to you and make any observations respecting reports that Ensign Rigby was said to have been making, about putting men to death at Kowtanee?

A. Yes,—it was on the same morning immediately before the Officers were ordered to Col. Capon's quarters.

Q. State what remarks Lieut. Munro made on that occasion?

A. To the best of my recollection he said—Fancy, that fellow Rigby has been telling Captain Duff, that I have been relating the story at the Mess about Mr. Gibbard's affair at Kowtanee. He went on then to say that he had not said any thing of the kind at the Mess.—I made no reply to this, and soon after he asked me if I heard him.—I then said to him, as I understood there was to be some investigation about it, I did not wish to be hauled in as an Evidence; but as he asked me, I would say that I heard him mention it at the Mess, I believe he then said, that he did not recollect it.—This was all that occurred.

Q. Did you ever tell Lieutenant Munro that you heard of the Kowtanee affair before he mentioned it at the Mess?

A. No, certainly not.—I mean about this Prisoner being killed.

Q. Did you ever tell Lieutenant Munro that you had, before he mentioned it, heard of the affair from me, and that he might make use of my name?

A. No, certainly not.

Q. From whom did you first hear the account of the Prisoner alluded to above, being killed?

A. From Lieutenant Munro.

Cross examined by the Judge Advocate.

Q. You have mentioned that on hearing that the affair at Kowtanee had been talked of at Parell, Lieutenant Munro remarked "I shall be very sorry it is in the case," or some words to that effect.—Did you understand him to mean he should be sorry if the killing of the Prisoner was true—or sorry at the probability of Mr. Gibbard getting into trouble for it?

A. I think the impression in my mind was, that he appeared to know nothing about it.

Q. Did Lieutenant Munro state at the Mess, from whom he had obtained information that Mr. Gibbard had put a prisoner to death?

A. No, I do not recollect that he mentioned who he heard it from.

Q. Was the account given by Lieutenant Munro of the Kowtanee affair at the Mess, addressed to you, and what were the positions of Mr. Munro and yourself at the Mess Table?

A. No, the conversation was not addressed to me; it was not addressed to us all.—Mr. Munro was sitting at the end of the Mess Table, and I think I was sitting at his left hand.

How many officers were present on the occasion, and who were they?

A. I recollect Mr. Jopp being present and Mr. Rigby, I think that was all besides Mr. Munro and myself.

Q. Did it appear to you that Lieutenant Munro had known at Vingoria, what he stated at the Mess, or that he had heard it since his arrival in Bombay?

A. I should think, that he heard it before he left Vingoria.

Q. How many prisoners did you understand from Mr. Munro had been put to death at Kowtanee?

A. One.

Q. From whom did you first hear, that Prisoners had been put to death?

A. I never heard that prisoners had been put to death.—I only heard of one man.

Q. Did not Lieutenant Jopp at the Mess, when the conversation above alluded to, took place, ask several questions of Lieutenant Munro on the subject?

A. He might have done so, but I do not recollect it.

Q. Were any remarks made by those present relative to the prisoner being put to death?

A. No: not that I recollect.

Q. How long was it between the time of Lieutenant Munro's statement at the Mess, and that of his disavowal of all knowledge of having made such, after hearing the affair had been talked of at Parell?

A. I cannot exactly say.—I do not recollect how long it was.

Q. Did it appear to you that Lieutenant Munro, at the time he made the statement at Mess, was in a state of sobriety?

A. Of course he was.

Q. At the time of meeting of Officers at Colonel Capon's quarters referred to by you, are you aware on what terms Lieutenants Munro and Rigby were?

A. I think they were on speaking terms at the time.—They were on bad terms soon afterwards.

Q. On what terms are you and Lieutenant Munro?

A. Very good terms.

Q. At the Mess on the occasion you have alluded to, can you distinctly state the relative positions of Lieutenants Munro and Rigby?

A. To the best of my recollection, Lieutenant Munro was at the end of the Table, and Lieut. Rigby at the opposite side to me, near the middle; and on the right hand side of the Table.

This witness Lieutenant Orrok here withdraws.

It being now 3 o'clock the court adjourns until 11 o'clock to-morrow forenoon.

Examined by the Court.

Q. Do you mean positively to state that Lieut. Gibbard saw the Prisoners, or is your meaning that they were brought near enough for him to see them?

A. They were brought near enough for him to see them, and Lieutenant Gibbard cast his eyes towards them, and there was no obstruction between.

Q. Did Lieutenant Gibbard address any of the Prisoners, or did the Prisoners, or any of them address Mr. Gibbard?

A. Lieutenant Gibbard did not speak to the Prisoners, one of the Prisoners addressed Mr. Gibbard.

Q. State where Lieutenant Gibbard was, when you took the Prisoners, you have mentioned to him, and whether the Prisoners were taken near enough to him, to enable him to see them all?

A. Lieutenant Gibbard was standing twenty paces below the House of Naroo Kumlee. I took them within two or three paces of him, and he could see them.

Examined by the Court.

Q. Was a crowd of people around the Prisoners?

A. No, there only was a Duffedar and four or five of the Rajah's people standing close,—there were some more people at a distance. A Havildar and one Sepoy and myself were also near the Prisoners.

The Witness Private Ranjee Palanday here withdraws.

Fifth Witness for the Defence.

Madoo Ghan, an inhabitant of the village of Mulpra, near Paadui, being called into Court, and sworn according to the same manner as the first Witness.

A. Yes, we were all bound.

This witness, Madoo Ghan here withdraws.

Sixth Witness for the Defence.

Major Catchart, 10th Regt. N. I. being called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. Have you had any opportunity of forming an opinion on the accuracy of Mr. Munro's recollection of past transactions?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you think he is accurate in his memory, or otherwise?

A. During the time that Lieut. Munro was an evidence at a Court of Inquiry, of which I was President, he appeared to forget many things, until he was well cross-examined, and then he appeared to recollect them. This can be seen by referring to the Court of Inquiry in question.

Q. Was his memory equally bad when the circumstances were favorable to, as when they were unfavourable to the accused?

A. His memory was generally very bad regarding any thing favorable to Captain Duff, otherwise he appeared to recollect things very well.

The Court is here closed and the Judge Advocate states to them that not perceiving the drift of the last question put by the prisoner to Major Cathcart, he did not object to it. It appears to be one however, which he considers objectionable, on the grounds of its tending to impeach the credit of the witness, Lieut. Munro, on a particular collateral fact, instead of bearing against his general character for veracity, he therefore, begs to suggest to the Court, that the question and answer referred to, be struck out of the proceedings. The votes of the Court are here taken on the matter and they decide on the question and answer remaining, as they have been put on record, but that no other question of a similar nature be allowed to be put to any other witness.

Examined by the Court.

Q. Are you sufficiently acquainted with Lieutenant Munro to be able to form an opinion as to his general character for veracity?

A. The only way I can form an opinion regarding Lieutenant Munro was during the time he was an evidence in the Court of Inquiry. I have not been acquainted with Lieutenant Munro on the terms of intimacy.

Q. Do you mean by your last answer that you do, or do not, consider yourself sufficiently acquainted with Lieutenant Munro to form an opinion as to his general character for veracity?

A. It is impossible for me to give an opinion as to Lieutenant Munro's general character for veracity, as the only acquaintance I have had with him, was during the Court of Inquiry referred to.

This Witness, Major Cathcart, withdraws.

Seventh Witness, for the defence.

Lieutenant Thomas Prendergast 10th Regiment N. I., being called into court, and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. Have you had an opportunity of forming an opinion on the accuracy of Mr. Munro's recollection of past occurrences?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Do you think he is accurate in his memory, or otherwise?

A. I should say very inaccurate.

Examined by the Court.

Q. Are you sufficiently acquainted with Lieutenant Munro to be able to form an opinion as to his general character for veracity?

A. As to his general character I cannot.

This witness, Lieutenant Prendergast withdraws.

It being now past 3 o'clock, the court is adjourned until 11 o'clock to-morrow forenoon.

SIXTH DAY, WEDNESDAY, 12TH AUGUST, 1849.

The Prisoner requests to be allowed to put on record part of the Evidence of R. Spooner, Esquire, given on the Court Martial of Lieutenant Gibbard on the 29th day of December 1839, the proceedings of which were laid before this court duly authenticated on the first day of its Sitting.

R. Spooner, Esquire, Bombay Civil Service, is called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Judge Advocate.

Q. Did Lieutenant Gibbard report that Gundee Purub had been put to death by his Orders?

A. Lieutenant Gibbard reported that the Sawunt Warree Irregular Sepoys had informed him that Gundee Purub had been seized, and that he told them that as they had been ordered by him not to take prisoners they were to take Gundee Purub away as he did not wish to have any thing to do with him, and that afterwards Gundee Purub was shot by the Irregular Sepoys, that he himself did not see him.

The following Extract also from a Letter embodied in the above mentioned proceedings which was admitted and read to the court addressed by Lieutenant Gibbard to Mr. Secretary Willoughby and bearing date 4th June 1839.

I told the Jemadars to obey the orders they had received, and not to bring the men to me, I saw none of them except the man who was released. The rest were taken by the Irregulars, and shot at some distance from the house.

Eighth Witness on the Defence.

Lieutenant Charles Munro, 16th Regiment N. I., is called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. With whom were you living during your stay at Poona when summoned there as an Evidence on Mr. Gibbard's Court Martial?

A. I was living with Mr. Gibbard during the whole time I was at Poona - Lieutenant Jopp, Esquire Raitt and Mr. Hancock staid with us during their stay at Poona, Mr. Gibbard, Mr. Raitt, and myself had taken a house between us.

The following question was then placed in the hands of the officiating Judge Advocate by the Prisoner for the purpose of being put to this witness, Lieutenant Munro.

Have you at any time spoken or acted towards me in a manner irregular in my professional character as to cause your impropriety of conduct to be visited with the disapprobation of the General officer in command of the army?

This was objected to by the officiating Judge Advocate on the ground that the Prisoner was not allowed to bring discredit on his own witness, and the Prisoner not having any further questions to put to Lieutenant Munro which were not likely to be objected to on similar grounds, declined to trouble the Court further, and the witness Lieutenant Munro withdrew.

Ninth Witness on the Defence.

Martin Thomas Kays, Esquire, is called into Court, and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with me?

A. Nearly Fourteen Years.

Q. Have the goodness to state to the Court what opinion you entertain of my character generally and particularly in regard to the dependance that is to be placed on my veracity?

A. I always considered you a very gentlemanly upright man, both as an officer in the army, and a private gentleman in Society. I have considered you tenaciously scrupulous of your word of honor. I always considered you charitable, humane, and generous to a degree, and I believe you to be a man that would not injure any person.

This witness, Dr. Kays here withdraws.

Edward Armitage, Esquire, is called into court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with me?

A. Upwards of ten years.

Q. Have the goodness to state to the court, what opinion you entertain of my character generally and particularly in regard to the dependance that is to be placed on my veracity?

A. I have always regarded Captain Duff as a man of honor and upright principles, and from opportunities I have had of judging of his character, I should say he was a man of very kind and humane disposition, and that his word may safely be relied on.

This witness, Mr. Armitage, here withdraws.

Hugh Gibb, Esquire, Surgeon, 25th Regiment N. I. is called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with me?

A. Twelve years.

Q. Have the goodness to state to the Court what opinion you entertain of my character generally, and particularly in regard to the dependance that is to be placed on my veracity?

A. I know no man of whose honor and integrity I have a higher opinion.

J. H. Crawford, Esquire, Accountant General is called into Court and duly sworn.

Examined by the Prisoner.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with me?

A. I have known Captain Duff from his birth—I lost sight of him for many years, but had an opportunity of renewing my acquaintance with him at Surat in 1832.—Our intercourse was interrupted by my absence at the Nalgherries and in Calcutta for some years, but during the last eighteen Months I have had constant and intimate opportunities of acquaintance and friendship.

Q. Have the goodness to state to the Court what opinion you entertain of my character generally, and particularly in regard to the dependance that is to be placed on my veracity?

A. I was educated under the roof of Captain Duff's Father.—As a boy he was the favorite of the whole School, for his straight forward, daring character.—Since the renewal of my acquaintance with him in India, I have had every reason to believe him a man of highly honorable and upright principles, and he is one in whose word I would place the utmost dependance, I may be permitted perhaps to add, that during the last four months, I have had great opportunities of testing his veracity, and that in every instance, in which corroboration of his word has been practicable, I have found it confirmed entirely.

This witness J. H. Crawford, Esquire, withdraws.

The prisoner here intimates that he has no more witnesses to call on his defence, and requests to be permitted to delay the reading of his written address until Tuesday next the 18th Instant, and the court is accordingly adjourned until that day at 11 o'clock forenoon.

MISCELLANEA.

ANKHERRY—The Ankerry arrangements, we hear, have nearly been completed, and will come into operation by the beginning of the next year.

GOONKAR MARRIAGE—The following is an extract of a letter, from Gornulipore, dated the 14th instant:—

"All is quiet here, 350 Gornkars have been enlisted for Shah Soojah's service, and are being drilled under their havildar, Lieut. Macenzie, of the Madras army, who at one time expected to assume charge of them. On completing their numbers to 700 they will leave Gornulipore for the Khyber Pass. Some recruits are said to have been drowned in the vicinity, in crossing a river in progress to join."

SHAH SOOJAH'S SERVICE—We gather from the Madras papers, that the appointments in Shah Soojah's service, lately conferred on certain officers of that army, have caused considerable dissatisfaction. It is said that interest has done every thing—desert is not—and an outcry has been raised against the injustice of the procedure. But surely this is nothing new.

A BAD EXAMPLE—The following is duly authenticated, and we are very sorry to hear it—I have much pleasure in informing you, that on the 1st of June last, the Very Reverend Father Alexander, Vicar General of the Diocese of Calcutta, received a solemn invitation of admission from the Hon. Alexander Nugent Murray Macgregor Esq. Regt. N. I., and from Mrs. Eleanor Macgregor, his wife. At the close of Divine Service, he administered the Holy Sacrament of Penance to the convert, who then received the Sacrament of the Eucharist. He also customarily baptized the child.

REMARKS FOR REMARK—On the other day we read that a man had been put in the debtors' hole, who had been liberated by the suitable intercession of a native gentleman.

CHURCH OF THE FUTURE—The Church of the Future is now being built by the Government. It is a large and handsome building, and is now being built by the Government. It is a large and handsome building, and is now being built by the Government.

MILITARY SERVICE—The following is an extract from a letter, dated the 1st of June last, from the Hon. Alexander Nugent Murray Macgregor Esq. Regt. N. I., and from Mrs. Eleanor Macgregor, his wife. At the close of Divine Service, he administered the Holy Sacrament of Penance to the convert, who then received the Sacrament of the Eucharist. He also customarily baptized the child.

FREE MASONRY—A splendid meeting of the dignitaries of the craft took place at the Freemasons Hall, on the evening of the 22d instant. Amongst the present were the R. W. J. Grant, P. G. M. for Bengal, R. W. J. Burns, P. G. M. for Bombay, the R. W. Brothers Blaquiere and Sir Ed. Ryan, the R. W. Brothers Burton, Henderson, E. W. Luch, Bagehow, Torrens, Lush, Craig, King, Chaw, Strong and other officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, besides the Masters and Wardens of most of the Calcutta Lodges.

The R. W. P. M. Masters of Calcutta and Bombay, Brothers Grant and J. B. Burns, made some admirable addresses to the brethren. Some excellent songs were sung, particularly by Brothers Torrens and Thompson, who lent their powerful aid in furtherance of the enjoyment of the meeting.

The (last) speeches were better than the most sanguine among the brotherhood could have expected on the resumption of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, John Grant, his, indeed, worked wonders. The several Lodges meeting now occupy nearly every night of the week, and at every meeting, almost, are additional members gathered to the fraternal body. On Thursday night last, with perseverance enrolled some distinguished individuals under its banner, Capt. D. L. Richardson, E. Hampton, Esq., Capt. A. B. B. and Lieutenant Ferguson having been initiated on the occasion. The R. W. P. G. M. of Bombay, in the absence, in consequence of indisposition, of V. W. Br. Edward Ryan, the Master of the Lodge, officiated as Master during the earlier part of the evening, and was relieved by V. W. Brs. C. G. and Buch, alternately. Several of the officers of the Grand Lodge, and of other working Lodges, were present.

After the business of the evening was finished, the Brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, and a pleasant party we never were at. Several excellent songs were sung, and Br. D. L. Richardson, displaying his vocal powers, sang to the brethren, in his most lively and beautiful and truly masonic song, which he had composed ten years previously, when he first contemplated becoming one of the "favoured few." We have a strong desire to obtain a copy of it, and only regret that we have not four masonic readers to read it, or then recited at the "week hour" by our twelve.

A MASONIC SONG.

How sacred is the mystic Craft,
Fraternal and human love,
Which is the true masonic law,
Conjuring opposing hands?

II

Thou hast claimed of ruthless war,
A sacred and holy law,
Which is the true masonic law,
Conjuring opposing hands?

III

Thou hast claimed of ruthless war,
A sacred and holy law,
Which is the true masonic law,
Conjuring opposing hands?

IV

For that vast family are taught
To form one soiled hand,
And to the universal chain of love
To earth's remotest land.

No narrow bounds of creed or clime,
Of language or of name,
To restrict the Mason's sympathy
When suffering lies before.

VI.

To all alike, in weal or woe,
A brother's smile is shown,
Whose heart is the same great father love,
The same Great Master own.

VII.

To one celestial Architect,
Ascends the general prayer;
They live within the compasses,
And act upon the square!

D. L. R.

FALSE IMPRISONMENT WITH A VENGEANCE.—Some stir has for the last few days been made in the Police Office, relative to several points connected with its management and machinery. Among other things the chief Magistrate, in consequence of what has lately been brought to his knowledge, and does not appear to have been brought to his knowledge before, has, we are credibly informed, officially written to Mr. Blaquiere, the magistrate, to enquire as to what would be the best mode of disposing of some young women at present incarcerated in the female lock-up, commonly called the kuttra. From what we have been able to discover, and the purport of the discovery is indubitable, we find there are some females who have grown from childhood into maturity, in that very kuttra, having been confined there for no less a period than about TEN years!—and more, yet not a single individual came to the rescue in extent of guilt. We would induce this protracted imprisonment, and in such a place as the kuttra, which is professedly intended only for the temporary confinement of vagrants and suspected felons. The Chief Magistrate, at length becoming cognizant of this state of things under his immediate supervision, has come to the determination of liberating these poor unfortunates, and in consequence has made the enquiry as above alluded to.

ON DUTY.—Mr. Summers, the Roman Catholic Chaplain to the soldiers at Danu-Danu, has, we understand, been suspended by the Viceroy-General, in consequence of the observations "possessing such a malicious tendency," which were publicly made by Mr. Summers, and which have been so unanimously and deservedly condemned by the metropolitan press. We further learn, that this matter has been referred to Government by the Viceroy-General, who has also placed Mr. O'Hill at Danu-Danu, in the room of Mr. Summers pro tempore—

SWINDLING.—A Mrs. East, who has before flourished in the Courts, for sundry impecuniousness, has lately succeeded in swindling Mr. Donald Mackie, of the firm of James Mackie and Co., out of several thousands of rupees. The case has been before the Magistrate all the past week, and has created a great sensation. Mr. Mackie was so completely deceived by Mrs. East, that he advanced her money on the security of an empty box, which she assured him contained the deeds to the amount of three lacs of rupees, and never even thought of looking into the box, before taking charge of it.

THE MURDER BUILDING.—The building, under the authority superintendence of Mr. Robinson, is likely much sooner to be completed than might be expected. The old house has already been razed, and the ground for the foundation nearly altogether dug up. There is said to be some bad ground on the site to find out the locality of which, they are at present excavating the place. The foundation stone will be laid in November next, by the Right Worshipful Grand Master of Bengal, aided by that excellent mason, the R. W. Grand Master of Bombay.

THE NEW CATHEDRAL.—Gladly do we announce, that the Court of Directors have allowed one lac and a half of rupees towards the erection of the New Cathedral.

CAPTAIN D. L. RICHARDSON.—Captain D. L. Richardson, of the Invalid Establishment, has been elected a Member of the General Management of the Orphan Asylum, by the Honours Division of the Army.

SALE OF GOVERNMENT PRESENTS.—The sale of Government Presents was concluded on the 14th instant, the whole realizing 2,51,000 rupees, which we understand is considerably more than was expected. There were 1,100 lots and six days were occupied in effecting their disposal. The jewels brought the full valuations, and in some instances considerably more. The shawls brought prices much beyond those at which they were valued. The Upper-country cloths did not so well. The attendance throughout was very great, but there was not much of competition among the native jewellers. The chief buyers were wealthy gentlemen who gave higher prices than the Jawahirs.

THE NYMPH.—We have at length been able to glean some intelligence respecting the unfortunate clipper Nymph, which has been so long missing. A Malay on board of one of the vessels now in the river, states, that he had seen some of the stores, &c., of that vessel exposed for sale in different parts of the Malayan Peninsula, and that the vendors of those articles stated, that the Nymph had been captured, whilst off Malacca, by one of those sudden typhoons, so well known to all who have ever sailed in those seas, and that all on board perished. We incline to put faith in this statement, from our own experience, in days when, of the power of these hurricanes, which are as furious as sudden in their advent.

ACCIDENTS.—Accidents have been very frequent on the evils of late. On the 17th instant, one of the Government-General steamships, in crossing the river, was, through the impetuosity of the tide, carried athwart the bows of a French vessel lying in the stream, and was immediately afterwards under her. Her crew, however, fortunately, all escaped and the boat itself was subsequently picked up off Kidderpore, but in a very damaged state.

On the night of the same day, a small junk with 16 and driver set, drifted athwart the bows of the Kutchi Ratan, and struck immediately. Whether any lives were lost we know not. On the night of the 18th instant, there was great collision among the shipping, off the Custom House. We have not as yet been able to learn particulars, but we understand, that in consequence of other vessels drifting and running aground, the American ship Albatross, she suffered considerable damage. The French ship Minobari, had her foremast and yard carried away by the Regent's, as the latter vessel was sweeping down the river.

The only accident on land, that we have heard of, is, that the large godowns belonging to Messrs. Boyd and Company, situated in Mangoe-lan, suddenly fell on the 18th instant. In it was stored a very large quantity of silk piece goods, some of which have been greatly damaged by the rain, and will consequently entail serious loss on the owners. Several Europeans and Europeans immediately resorted to the place and endeavored to save as much property as possible. The godown was a new one, having been built within the last ten years by Messrs. Bain and Co.

THE PREVENTIVE SERVICE.—We understand that the Preventive Service were last year the means of causing a considerable accession to the usual revenue, consequent on which, Government at the recommendation of the Collector, has sanctioned an increase to the establishment, and eleven or twelve hands have already been taken in.

Mofussil.

AMRER.—Accounts have been received from this place, stating, that the people are suffering from all the evils concomitant on famine. Wheat is selling at 8 annas the seer, and is procurable only with great difficulty. In fact, there is hardly any grain left in the District. Seven years of drought consecutively, and the effects of positive famine will weigh fearfully on the inhabitants of this unfortunate Province, who, now that the season is so far advanced, have little choice left between emigration and absolute starvation.

JAMSHEDPUR.—The rains have been very heavy indeed this season and the "oldest inhabitants" state that there has not been so heavy a fall since 1821. For 15 or 16 days the pouring scarcely stopped for an hour, and the poor ryots are beginning to fear for the crops. In many parts of the low grounds the seed has rotted in the earth, but the weather has now cleared up and it only holds for 7, or 8 days, there is every chance of having grain at very reduced prices, the usual rate is 40 to 45 annas for the small measure of 14 annas. The houses in cantonments have suffered much.

A discharged Sepoy of the name of Soowhar Singh, murdered his wife in a most brutal manner a few days ago, first stabbing her, and then mutilating her face and body. The exact cause is not known but the indefatigable Magistrate is investigating the case.

SIRSA.—A case of the most atrocious description of murder and robbery occurred in the immediate vicinity of Sirsa a short time since; two bhainias coming to Sirsa with 4 or 5 camels laden with goods, met some distance from the city, two men, apparently travellers, in whose company they arrived just outside the city—when sitting down to refresh the selves, they unsuspectingly accepted some sweetmeats from their companions, which it appears were poisoned, the result, together with the loss of all their goods and camels, no trace of the perpetrators has yet been discovered, although an active pursuit has been instituted.

NUSSEERABAD.—The following is extracted from a private letter, dated the 6th instant, from Nusseerabad:—

"Grain has been selling here of late at very high rates—Gram at 13, and Ootah at 11 annas per seer.

We had a rain from the end of July up to the morning of the 4th instant, when a pretty smart shower fell—but as the dry, Westerly breeze set in again we concluded that the rains had given us the slip, in this season at least—and that our harvests would be totally lost. Towards evening, however, the wind shifted to the East, when a small, dense cloud was observed advancing and rapidly spreading—and soon afterwards we experienced one of the most tremendous storms of wind and rain, I ever remember to have witnessed."

Native States.

KHIVA.—Lieut. Shakespeare, who lately returned from the banks of the Oxus, seems absolutely enraptured with the beauty and fertility of the country over which he has travelled.

The Khan of Khiva has expressed the utmost hostility to the British interests. He is cordial and friendly to a degree, and so suspicious of this hostility seems for a moment to be enlightened. He seems dubious about our position without troops, and when we speak of our power, his question very naturally is, "where is your army?"—At what place? a more civilized and learned man than the Khan of Khiva might well ask, in casting his eye over the troubled regions for so many hundred leagues, threatening us along the Indus—where is your army?

The story of Captain Abbott's Mission, of which the outline was given in our extract from the Asra Ubbor, published in our last, seems to have been a romantic one. It was put in the Khan of Khiva that he owed his deliverance, but to a more humble friend. A chivalrous native had known and attached himself to Capt. Abbott during his residence in Khiva, and the moment he heard of the perils of his journey, furnished himself with money, and pursued his footsteps, determined with him all to add him. He came to him in his hour of need, when wounded and in captivity. He removed him at his own charges, and at his own risk assisted him on his journey. Mr. Lord has returned to Head Quarters at Casool, or rather we imagine at Bamecan, to take fresh instructions. His distance in advance was not so considerable as by this means to occasion any very inconvenient delay. The Government has been indefatigable in endeavouring to procure the release of Col. Stedart, and it is hoped that their efforts will soon be crowned with success.

KURRACHEE, 28th August.—The 25th N. I. have arrived and will start immediately for Upper Seinde. Authentic account from Sakin confirms the fall of Khelat, which, it appears, has been caused by the wife of Merado Khan (the fallen chief of that Fortress), who so far intimidated Nawaz Khan, placed by our Government on the Gudar, that he willingly swore fealty to her son, the young Khan, who, we hear, is about

- (a) 100 horse gone to Quetta.
- (b) 2 Guns at Quetta
- (c) A Wing 60 men in advance of Bamian.

12 years of age. The guards of the fort were entirely in her favor, so that the attack must have succeeded, had there even been a regt. of natives in the Fort, as an inferior chief resident there, commanding about 400 Heloches or Kahurus, was ready to assist them, from the interior. The young chief, it appears, has afforded protection to the deposed chief, and the two European gentlemen there, by sending them the Koran bound in gold, as a protection, and has promised their lives on the condition, that the 40 lacs of rupees taken by the former army, shall be restored.

The following interesting items are from Quetta:—

QUETTA.—"Quetta, 10th July, 1840.—My last letter to you despatched from this, was dated the 8th, and since that I have scarcely been in bed. Every succeeding hour was bringing us fresh rumours of an approaching foe, and we have been incessantly under arms day and night. Yesterday morning the enemy were in sight with swarms of cavalry and infantry round the slope of a hill to the westward. Their number was estimated at 5,000 and they took up a long line of encampment, partially investing the town. The previous evening I went through the ceremony of erecting on the Citadel the Union Jack, Shah Soojah's flag and the regimental color, which were placed upon the highest bastions amidst a general salute and three hearty cheers. The enemy in the morning sent a party of cavalry to the Lucerne's light, some distance from their camp, and within range of our guns.

Bosanquet went out with 80 of his sowars to drive them off, but a body of their infantry advanced and commenced a fire, while a slight skirmish took place with the enemy's sowars, and several casualties occurred among, which Bosanquet received a slight sabre cut on his bridle hand; one of his sowars was cut down, and two horses wounded. Our guns then opened with round shot and shivered a few men and horses. At 4 p. m. they again advanced in detached parties, but were soon scared with the 9-pounder round shot. It was determined among them to scale our walls, or dig them down by night, and they had brought for the latter purpose all the spades and shovels of Mastoon. At 1 A. M. as the moon went down, we heard their 'nokarus' beating, and the walls and bastions of the fort were immediately manned, but after 3 hours' impatient suspense, day-break discovered to us their camp in 'at a qu'! They very soon, however, appeared moving in masses, for the purpose of plundering the village in the distance, and from the firing we heard, there must have been a great deal of resistance made. A little after sunrise they advanced in both of cavalry towards the town, but our guns opened upon them with grape and round shot with fearful effect, falling upon their masses and rolling over men and horses in splendid style. It remains now to be seen whether they will dare venture within our walls. We have 600 men on the walls. Bosanquet's troops are all supplied with muskets from my spare arms, and take the Northern wall, acting as foot soldiers.

The 424 guns and 300 cavalry had received orders to hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's notice to our assistance, and may be expected here in a few days.

Quetta 19th and 20th July.—The enemy raised the siege of Quetta on the morning of the 17th, suddenly breaking up their camp and retreating on Mastoon after having kept us in expectation of a storm for seven days and nights, during which time, scarcely a man had off his accoutrements. We had some pretty Cavalry skirmishes outside the walls without very many severe casualties.

The enemy left behind all their scaling ladders, by which they had intended mounting the walls by six abutments.

You have no idea what a period of anxiety it has been to us, surrounded as we were by such a faithless race.

Two of Beas's own Choprasses had actually volunteered to lead and place the ladders at the weakest points; another personal attendant, decked with presents and riding one of Beas's own horses, (as a non-combated valuable servant) went over to the enemy. They appear to have made certain of taking the town, and certainly their numbers were in their favor; (8,000 at least) and the walls of the town are low, broken and extensive.

The Chiefs quarrelled among themselves on the night of the 16th, and the several parties in a couple of hours more (had they remained) would have themselves been engaged in a bloody feud. All my men (600) were on the walls, and would gallantly have defended them to the last, but all things considered, it is as well that the attempt was never made. The Kakur tribe joined the enemy and swelled their ranks much. The people of the town itself, I always feared, and between two fires, what could our utmost exertions have effected? In such a case, not one amongst us could have survived. On the morning of the 16th, an advance was made by the enemy, amidst clouds of dust, firing and smoke. The walls were manned and all ready to receive the attack, when their plans were concerted by the sudden arrival of 150 Affghan horse under Lieut. Jackson, by an unsuspected route on their flank. He had several casualties, and the enemy amidst the dust and confusion, fancying it a larger body, retreated to their camp. On such trifling events depend the fate of thousands, for thousands must have fallen that day under the galling fire of guns and musketry. The enemy were all told to take Beas's life! Mahomed Hoossein Khan, the Chief, a son of the late Khan of Kutch calls him the murderer of his father. From the 23d of last month until this time, I have slept in my clothes every night, my mind has been constantly on the rack for the safety of Quetta. I knew that while the British flag floated on the Citadel, no British man would fail—to defend its honor, and I knew that, should it fall, not one European would live to witness it, but then the very idea that it should fall to such a set of villains was enough to harrow up the very soul! All now I hope is right and the people of the country have seen the folly of their ways, and may they renounce them.

20th July.—Muran's Company and Cooper's guns, have been moved and pitched near our lines. What the order of the day is to be for the future I know not. Had we been hard pressed, this delay in their arrival might have caused the fall of Quetta—the people in the town fully expected it would have been taken, and I think, that had a resolute son taken place, it very probably would have fallen. We were too weak for the extent of the place.

The attacking party amounted to about 1,500 strong, 800 of which remained in the rear as a reserve, whilst 700 advanced to the attack. A tremendous shooting and leveling with fire of matchlocks, announced the approach of the enemy in our rear. I changed the position of the troops accordingly. The guns were placed in the centre covered on each flank by about 100 Sepoys, while 30 Sepoys occupied the interval between the guns. Concluding from the apparent wish, that it was the enemy's intention to dash in sword in hand on our position, I had previously given the most particular and positive order to reserve the fire of the muskets, until the short distance it could be delivered with the most deadly effect.—The guns were opened with the grape and staggered the advancing column. Finding that the enemy pushed, I advanced upon them with 100 men from the right flank, and poured a couple of volleys into the mass before me, forcing them on the left flank detachment commanded by Sergeant Major Matthews, who in like manner opened a heavy fire upon them in that direction. I now discovered a considerable body of men on my right flank moving round to the rear of the entrenchment and in the direction of Captain Rees's horse. I immediately brought back my detachment in a parallel direction and intercepted them as they emerged from the corner of a wall, and again fired a couple of volleys in to the midst of them, on which they dispersed, carrying off their killed and wounded. The whole affair occupied from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ of an hour. All accounts concur in stating the loss of the enemy at 200 killed and wounded.

"2d August.—Since I last wrote to you, we have had a bit of fight at Moostang with the rebels. On the 20th ult. I was directed by Bann to proceed that night with Saloo Khan's Sawara, in number 800, and 30 of Christie's horse for the purpose of surprising any of the rebel chieftains that have remained at Moostang. I could not prevail on Saloo Khan's men to cross the Luck pass at night so was forced to remain till morning. In my rear was a Detachment, consisting of Macan's corps and two of Cooper's guns, with the remaining fifty of Christie's horse. I met with no opposition in the pass, which is about three miles in length. We were fired at from a distance with no effect. After gaining the middle we came on a party of about 20 horse and foot who were returning upon the other pass where they were keeping check. I asked Saloo Khan to charge them with me; but out of all we had, I could not get 60 men to follow me, and upwards of 500 stood still and looked on, we killed between thirty and forty, or a man and one horse injured, two horses killed, three men wounded, four horses ditto, and I am my little nag each for a sure, but I had my satisfaction for I cut down four and shot a fifth. I was very nearly done for twice, once I was knocked off by my own fire which sent me the shield of my adversary and my horse shot a little to the left—off I came on my bottom, and the fellow rushed at me when I was down, but I was soon up and ready, to meet out set his sword and lost it from the scabbard over his head; he still tried to close, but a second and third over the head did his business. Had the rebels ally Affat and behaved moderately well, not a man could have escaped, but such cowardice I could not have imagined. I saw one man armed with a sword and shield keep about 20 or 30 of Christie's and Saloo Khan's horse at bay—he was cut down by Saloo Khan just as I galloped up to the spot, but he wounded two men and two horses before he fell. My wound I got in the beginning of the fray, but it is a mere scratch on the thigh, taking out a bit of flesh about as big as a common wash, I had gnawed the cut, but my wound was freed back a little, I have every reason to be thankful for getting off so easily. You will have heard, I dare say of the treaty between Shah Nawaz and the rebels, by which the latter gained pass down at Khelat, and the former with Lacey, and their party are allowed to go where they choose, three attempts were made on Khelat, but they failed, treachery at last drove them to negotiation.

Aug. 13th.—Joolah Wallah Shah (minister of the Mir Wallah) and Gulama Beg, are at Banneau with Dr. Lord. The former has written to his chief, advising him to abstain from hostile proceedings. It is said, that the late outbreak was caused by an absurd rumour prevalent, that Gulama Beg was forcibly detained and ill-treated in Calcutta—indeed the rumour declared, that this was the cause of their violent proceedings, such being the case, it is probable, that the news of his son's safe arrival at Banneau, may avert hostilities.

KHATU AND KELAT.—We received at a late hour yesterday afternoon, intelligence from Karachi down to the 29th of August. It is in substance as follows. Our correspondent, seems to surmise that we know all about the capture of Kelat, which we do not:—

"From Kelat the last accounts mention the young Khan having quietly assumed the command; report says that he is making preparations to relieve Quetta. There is some discrepancy between the accounts of Lieut. Loveday's situation; some give him as imprisoned in a fort westward of Kelat called Ghuree with Shah Nawaz and Kaimul Khan, others as still confined with his party of sepoys in a house at Kelat. Shah Nawaz having been allowed to go to Bachtwana, all mention him as unhurt and illiterate, and letters up to the end of July have been received from himself. Mueson had been promised his release and a passport by the young Khan, and it is not unlikely he may have left Kelat.

Rumours were afloat for some days of Kahun having been taken and every soul killed but Captain Brown; then we heard that Kahun had been attacked and the Murreea defeated after a desperate fight, leaving about 100 on the ground; both turn out untrue, there has been no fight, and Kahun is safe—some Murreea were seen one day lurking near the fort, and a shot thrown among them, on which they made off. The state of information, or rather the total ignorance which prevails in Upper Scinde relative to the movements of the Murreea, &c. shows a screw loose somewhere. Reinforcements are being thrown into Upper Scinde from both flanks—the 38th B. N. I. and a body of 400 Gurkhas from Ferozepoor, the 25th from Karachi, and 6th from Deesa overland, exhibit the extent of our resources.

Another account states:—The statements circulated as connected with the capture of Kahun are fearful, for it is rumored—so say rumored,—for we hope that this statement may be incorrect—that a number of soldiers, some even say, the sick soldiers, were butchered. The fate of the others is not known. It is said that they, with the exception of one, who was killed, are prisoners.

The dates of those melancholy occurrences are not specified, but the facts of the capture of the three places Moostang, Khelat and Kahun are not doubted. What further notice it may have been perpetrated by Miran Khan's son, we have not heard, but it is probable that he has made other attempts.

THE UPJOON DIES.—Delighted are we to be able to announce that these truly lionhearted fellows, the Baluchies, have been again visited with a measure of retribution—a kind of horrid warning of the lighter punishment they have required and which is approaching.

A European soldier having been savagely murdered, whilst bathing in front of our camp, by a party of Beloochees, whose strong bodies were as small boys at no great distance, and another man being injured, supposed to have fallen by the same weapons. Colonel Wether promptly determined to drive them from these haunts. Accompanied by Captain Macgregor, and taking with him four companies of the 45th N.

L. and two companies of the 1st European regiment with one six-pounder, he moved from Kadjah early on the morning of the 18th ultimo. The vicinity of the Forts was reached without molestation. Captain Macgregor with the six-pounder blew open, in rapid succession, the gates of all the forts, for, though in each the defence was determined, the indignant courage of our troops was irresistible. The slaughter was great, but none of our informants have been able to furnish us with the actual number who fell. One letter says emphatically—"the Forts were speedily simplified." So active were the troops that this brilliant coup de main was completed, though it was dark, and our camp, well lined during the day on the morning of which it had been left. We hear that Colonel Wheeler speaks in the highest terms of the conduct of our soldiers. The loss on our part is small considering the nature of the service; Lieutenant Parker, of the 1st European regiment, was wounded, as were eighteen of the men, and two killed.

LUCENOW.—The rise of the Coomtee has been fearful, the water came up the Contonment road for a quarter of a mile, some hundreds of houses have fallen and several lives have been lost, the fall of rain has been tremendous and, as usual, the oldest inhabitant never remembers such doings.

BEKANER.—The state of Bikaner appears to be in a most disorganized condition, caused, by the severities used towards the petty Thakors, and Ryats of this ill-fated country through the advice of the Minister Hindoo Mull, who, together with his family, seem at present exclusively to have monopolized every post and office throughout the country and such is their rapacity, that it is to be feared, ere long they will drive the inhabitants to a revolt: it is unfortunate, that at so disturbed a period, the Rana of Oodypore should have chosen to pay Bikaner a visit, where he is going to marry Mahia Rajah Ruthen Sing's sister, (an old lady of 50 years of age), to celebrate this occurrence, great preparations are making, at the Capital, whilst Hindoo Mull's agents are levying contribution in every part of the country, to meet the exigencies; the Thakors of the Belawat tribe have been driven out of their possessions for refusing to be stripped of their all, whilst several wealthy Brahmins, have fallen by their own hands for similar reasons,—confusion and misery reign throughout the district, and to add to these evils, a ship of rain has fallen in every part of the district, so that unless the British interfere in some way, the consequences may turn out to be very serious. We shall soon hear of our subjects, and of our own countrymen, extending to the aid of our Government in matters like these.

Madras.

RETURN OF THE GOVERNOR TO MADRAS.—Private letters mention the probability of the return of the Governor and Government establishment at the Hills to Madras in the early part of October.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—A Sepoy of the 33d N. I. on his return from the ship Hoppe, imprudently left the boat before it was well on shore, in consequence the approaching surge brought the boat with such rapidity and violence against him as not only to knock him down, but carry it over him. The injuries he received were of so serious a nature that he died shortly after being conveyed to the General Hospital.

COORG.—The beneficial measures undertaken since the Coorg country has fallen under British rule, measures which, unless we are greatly misinformed, have already in no ordinary degree contributed to the prosperity of the people, whose condition has been greatly ameliorated by the change from the Jata dynasty, and they are represented as expressing themselves deeply confident in the British government, whereby they can now calculate on realising to a certainty the value of the produce of the soil which, whilst under native rule, they could never depend upon. The inhabitants of Coorg, too, besides building more ground hitherto to a jungle wilderness under cultivation, are striving to improve their breed of cattle, in which they will doubtless receive every assistance from Captain Le Hardy, in political charge of the country, whose exertions are to a great degree directed to forming open and excellent roads in all directions, whereby the produce of Coorg may be advantageously conveyed for consumption to the nearest markets.

Within the fort of Mysore too, great improvements are in progress for the comfort of the troops, who have hitherto in some degree suffered from an insufficiency of accommodation. An hospital, a magazine, a place of arms, guard rooms, gun sheds, and other buildings have either been already constructed or are in progress of erection.

STEAM NAVIGATION.—The following resolutions were submitted and unanimously agreed to at a Meeting of the constitutional Subscribers to the Comprehensive Steam Fund of 1851, and of parties favorable to the plan proposed by Mr. Curtis, held at the College Hall on Wednesday the 9th of September 1850.

Proposed by Sir Robert Comyn, seconded by Colonel Alexander—

RESOLUTION 1.—That having taken into consideration the modified Prospectus of the London and Indian Steam Navigation Company lately promulgated by Mr. Curtis, this Meeting most cordially concurs in the following declaration adopted by a Meeting of the supporters of the Company held in Calcutta on the 8th ultimo, viz.

"We whose names are hereunto signed believing that the proceedings in progress at home under the management of Mr. Curtis and his colleagues are those most likely to result in a regular steady and efficient Steam Communication with England by way of the Red Sea, hereby pledge ourselves to support him, and to endeavor to obtain Shareholders for his proposed Company, and we earnestly entreat our respective friends to do the same. It being understood that it shall be reported with such Shareholders to have their subscriptions retained by them in the event of Mr. Curtis not completing his Company or to have them transferred to the Agents of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company established in Calcutta on the terms contained in the following Resolution passed at a Meeting of the United Steam Committee under the 1st instant, viz.

"Having every reliance on Mr. Curtis's judgment and exertions and every confidence in his ultimate succeeding—still to provide for the possibility of failure, Resolved that in case Mr. Curtis should not succeed in his present arrangements and should see no reasonable prospect of being enabled to get up his scheme he be requested to transfer the funds committed to him through the Committee to the Agents in London of the Precursors, provided the original constitution of those is preserved and they have joined no other Company, but should such consolidation have undergone any change or the Precursors have joined any other company, Mr. Curtis will hold the Funds respectively at the disposal of the several Subscribers in the event of his abandoning his measures."

Proposed by Mr. Norton, seconded by Capt. Biden—

2.—That the conditional Subscribers who have already paid a deposit of 10 per cent on their Shares be requested without delay to pay up an additional 10 per cent, and to complete the payment of their further instalments in the manner laid down in the prospectus—And parties who have not yet subscribed be now earnestly invited to do so; and pay up instalments to the same extent.

Proposed by Archdeacon Harper, seconded by Dr. Wylie—

3.—That Subscribers be requested to transmitting their instalments to communicants to the committee their wishes as to the ultimate disposal of their subscriptions, it being understood that where no such communication is made; the committee will remit the amount to Mr. Curtis to be held subject to the further instructions of subscribers, in the event of his failing to establish the Company now started under his auspices.

Proposed by Mr. J. Thomson, seconded by Mr. G. Wellington—

4.—That this meeting consider it due to Mr. Curtis again to record their grateful acknowledgments for his long and unwearied exertions to establish a Comprehensive Social Communication with India, and more especially for the concessions he has made, in his last Prospectus to the wishes of the Indian Subscribers, when it is hoped may be the means of multiplying all Parties in one general and strenuous effort for the accomplishment of the great object they all have in view.

Proposed by A. Maclean, Esq, seconded by Mr. Arbuthnot—

5.—That the following Gentlemen be added to the present Steam Committee, viz

G. Norton, Esq, Captain Biden, Colonel Dwyer, J. Thomson, Esq, G. Wellington, Esq, and Lieut Col Tulloch.

TROOPS FOR CHINA.—The Seyn, Sanchang and Sanchang have been taken up by the Government for the conveyance of the 3rd Regiment, and the Hope for the recruits of the 31st Regiment to Moupin.

TERRIBLE STORM.—Early on the morning of the 25th of August, Madras was visited by a terrible storm, which continued nearly three hours. The thunder claps were loud and frequent, the lightning, which was extremely vivid, flashed without intermission, and the rain fell in torrents. Altogether it was the most violent tempest with which Madras has been visited since the evening of the 11th of November 1837. We are happy to learn that through the merciful care of that gracious and all-powerful Being who "rides on the whirlwind, and directs the storm," no loss of life has occurred, though one of the servants of the Nabob was deprived of the use of his limbs. The property of His Highness has sustained considerable injury, Chepauk Palace having been struck by the lightning. The electric fluid entered the storeroom in which the Nabob's State dresses, and other valuables, were deposited, and committed damage to the extent of four boxes of robes. A state sword, formerly belonging to his late Highness the Nabob Wallajah, (valued at 2,500 rupees) was shattered to pieces.

Bombay.

NAVAL COURTESY.—The following letter mentions another instance of French discourtesy to our flag:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BOMBAY TIMES.

SIR.—In sailing out of the Harbour this day, in the ship Earl of Clare, I passed a French Corvette, bearing a pennant and the French national Tricolour flag flying. In compliment I lowered the colours of a British Merchant Ship, of which no notice was taken. Having passed French Men of War before, and the compliment always been returned, which is also done in our own Queen's Ships, I trust and hope, that a British Ship will pay the same respect again to the ship now proceeding into harbour.

My only regret is, that our Red Ensign of England should be lowered half down to a Foreign ship, and the Captain not have the courtesy to return the compliment.

I remain, dear Sir, yours obediently,

JAMES SCOTT, Commander, Earl Clare.

Sept. 2, 1840.

CAPT DUFF.—Capt. Daniel George Duff, of the 16th Regiment of Bombay Native Infantry, who was brought to a Court-Martial, on a charge of having been guilty of conduct highly unbecoming an Officer and a Gentleman, in having knowingly and wilfully given false testimony on oath, at a General Court-Martial held in cantonment near Poona, betwixt the 30th December 1833, and the 11th January 1840, on a matter deemed material to the defence, by deposing on the sixth day's proceedings, that he (Captain Duff) did in a conversation with Mr. William Gibbard, then an Ensign in the 16th Regiment N. I., at the quarters of Lieutenant Munro of the same Regiment, at Vizagapatnam or about the 15th January 1839, relating to a person, who had been taken prisoner and put to death by a party of Irregular Troops under the Orders of the said Mr. (then Ensign) Gibbard, at Kowtance in the Savant Warree State, condemn the action of Mr. Gibbard, in not sparing the life of the said Prisoner, and that he (Captain Duff) did not believe the circumstance, whereas (Captain Duff) did in the conversation before specified but on a date anterior to that stated by him distinctly express his approbation of what Mr. Gibbard had then related, and advised him to make an official report of the same, through him (Captain Duff) to Mr. Gibbard's then immediate commanding officer, that he (Mr. Gibbard) might obtain the further approbation of superior authority, has been honourably acquitted.

Ceylon.

THE GOVERNOR.—We understand His Excellency is expected at Colombo in the early part of next month, and that the residence at Galle has had a most beneficial effect upon his health.

THE COFFEE CROP.—A very competent authority, lately come from the interior, states, that, according to present prospects, the coming coffee crop will be abundant, but a month or six weeks later than usual, in consequence of the first blossom having been withheld by drought.

Burmah.

The only news of importance from Burmah is, that nearly the whole city of Mairapoora has been destroyed by fire, and that a whole village and much of the crops, have been destroyed by heavy rains. The Maulmain Chronicle has the following:—Some rains were experienced in June last, but the then deficiency of rain might prove injurious to the crops, but now there appears some reason to fear that too much has fallen. The fall has indeed been very heavy during the last six weeks, which, added to an unusual rise in the waters of the rivers, has left the upper part of the country under water, so much so, as to injure those districts very much. A very serious disaster is said to have occurred somewhere on the Yoon-zeeen River, which enters the Salween on the Burmese side. The rush of water appears to have undermined some considerable piece of land on which a village stood, and forced it suddenly into the stream when upwards of a hundred lives were lost. It is remarked among the natives that the rivers have not risen so high since the year preceding the Burmese war.

At Tavay and Mergul the rains appear to have been equally heavy. In the former Province we regret to learn that the mortality among the cattle continues to be very severe, and it is said to have commenced also among the pigs in the place and to have extended among the wild animals in the jungles. At Mergul the very great rise of waters in the River is said to have put a temporary stop to the work at the coal mine, as adequate means were not at command to keep the mine free from water. The interruption, however, will be but partial, and the interim time will be employed in improving the means of transporting the coal from the mine to the River.

DISTRICT CHARITABLE SOCIETY

Pursuant to request for a Special Meeting at the Central Convention at the District Chamber Society, was held this morning at the Town Hall and very generously attended—Hon. Sir Edward Ryan in the Chair.

In opening the business of the Meeting, the Chairman remarked that at their last Meeting this sort of a young man, Mr. Albright, had been taken into consideration, and it was then determined that the Committee should prepare a letter on the subject to Governor Edwards as the general means of the Meeting then, that the almshouse was the only way of effectually relieving the poor, and having that view a letter was prepared and sent to Governor Bradford, in the event of a piece of ground to erect a large almshouse for the purpose, and before a bill was introduced for the same. It was also determined when this system came into operation, namely, that if the poor were now on the land would be a better situation for them, and we will become vigorous in the same manner was the third reason that the Society had caused Government to pass a law to prevent street beggars, and that—on this substitution the respectable ones who had been applying for their removal to the almshouse, then their numbers increased—a law was to state of the case when the letter was sent up to Governor Edwards, and it had been referred to that time, on the matter, and before the publication of the law was passed, which resulted in the passing of the poor law, introduced by the Society, and as the draft was published it was used by the members of the public, and was then being passed by the Legislature, and thought that the Society said address Government and saw much, that this was not a law which would answer the purpose of the Society, without a word as to what they thought it should be. The act now given is to be passed, he thought, would be given full liberty to the Society to go to be in the streets of Canada was necessary, while the Society in distress four instances would be put off and doing so. The Chairman moved the draft of a letter which was proposed to send to the Government expressing the views of the Society and in doing so, he remarked, that the Council of the Society should not be silent on the present case, as it then silence might be construed into an acquiescence in the new law, which was now the case—the draft was then was adopted.

The next subject was, would the boys were to be with the Union in order that the home front was prepared and a need to encourage it in order to get around the aspect should be put forward and we were have Government consider the need to have a national fund for the defence home front by an appeal to call a Special Meeting for the group.

The Meeting then went on to consider a number of several casual donors, and a number of letters from individuals. After that, the meeting turned to the question of what not to do, and then to the question of what to do in the Worker's Union case. The meeting then turned to the question of the general interest, and then to the question of the future of the Union. The meeting then turned to the question of the future of the Union.

ASIATIC SOCIETY'S MEETING.

The usual Monthly Meeting of the members of the Asiatic Society was held in their apartments last evening, and numerously attended—the Hon'ble Sir Edward Ryan, President, in the Chair.

The following gentlemen proposed at the last Meeting were elected members of the Society: M. P. Elgworth, Esq. C. S.; Capt. Hutton, of the 37th N. I.; Captain Loveday, also of the 37th N. I.; and Dr. Hemberlin.

It was mentioned at the last Meeting that Mr. Grant, Magistrate and Collector at Delhi, had forwarded upwards of 130 forged seals, which had been discovered in the excavation of some ruins in that city—impressions of these seals had been taken and were handed round to the Meeting. They were forgeries of the sunnuds of the Omrao or principal personages about the Mogul Court during the latter days of the Mogul dynasty.

Various works on different scientific subjects had been received.

Impressions from gems sent down by Captain Hutton, Captain Conolly, Dr. Chapman of the Lancets, and Dr. Falconer of Seharanpore, were shown round to the Meeting, as also some coin of the time of the earliest Mussulman Dynasty, for which they were indebted to their indefatigable friend Captain Hay, who had found them in the Hindoo Cooch; and also some casts of coins from Dr. Chapman.

Captain Burt had favored the Society with an extract from a very early number of the Repository regarding the column at Singea in Behar.

The officiating Secretary mentioned having received a communication from Sir Edward Ryan, regarding the purchase by the Society of the very valuable Geological and Mineralogical specimens, belonging to the estate of the late Mr. Prinsep, which with the rest of the effects are to be sold by auction shortly. Sir Edward Ryan therefore begged to propose that application be made to Government, to authorize the Society to purchase those specimens, together with a very valuable standard barometer, at which he thought the Society should make themselves possessed, for the purpose of depositing in their apartments, where it could be used as a standard for the comparison and correction of other barometers. Dr. O'Shaughnessy begged that two other valuable barometers, both the invention of Mr. Prinsep, might be added to the list, the compensation barometer and another, the name of which escaped us—the proposition was acceded to by the meeting.

Mr. Avdall presented the Society with a short memoir of the principal Armenian Legislator, and also a Code of Armenian Law.

Mr. Middleton entered into explanations regarding the Astrolabe which had been entrusted to him some months ago, but which on account of his late severe illness he had been as yet prevented from returning to the Society with his remarks.

The officiating Secretary next brought up the subject of the appointment of a Curator—he remarked that the committee of papers had exerted their best in endeavouring to procure the services of a person, duly qualified to carry on the permanent duties of the situation, but all their endeavours had failed—in the mean time a letter had been received from Professor Wilson, addressed to the President, intimating that if they were still in want of a Curator, he could recommend them a gentleman in every way qualified to perform the duties of the curatorship, a Mr. Blyth, who had the most flattering testimonials from most eminent men in England, and who was willing to come out on the Society's allowance—under these circumstances the committee of papers had thought it better to leave the situation open. It was proposed by the Hon'ble W. W. Bird and seconded by Dr. Wallich, that Professor Wilson's proposition be accepted. It was also carried that a letter should be addressed by the President to Professor Wilson by the present overland, on this subject.

Proposed by Dr. O'Shaughnessy and seconded by the Hon. W. W. Bird,—That the committee of papers be empowered to enter into arrangements regarding the curatorship without reference to the Society.

The thanks of the Society were accorded for all the above presentations and communications, and the meeting separated.—Calcutta Courier, Oct. 15, 1840.

STEAM TUG ASSOCIATION.

The ninth half yearly meeting of this Society was held at the office of the Secretaries, Messrs. Carr, Tagore and Co, yesterday, in the forenoon. The attendance of the proprietors was particularly select, and Mr. W. W. Smith was called to the chair.

Mr. William Prinsep read the report of the Secretaries for the past half year. The following were the chief particulars noticed in the report. The Forbes, which is undergoing repairs is expected to be able to resume work by the end of the present month, or the beginning of the next. The Seetk had been re-launched and has been in work since June last, and in consequence of her great want of power, let out at the reduced rate of 300 rupees a day. But this Steamer will, after a few months, be rendered a great deal more efficient than she is at present, as a set of new engines for her are nearly ready. The engines will cost in all £6,000. The accidents which were mentioned in the last report, as suffered by the Andrew Henderson, kept that boat only twenty-five days from work, ever since she has been employed on active service. The Dwarkanath experienced an accident in August last, having suffered serious damage to one of her main beams, whilst towing a vessel. She put back in consequence and her repairs will take up about two months. The Secretaries further intimated, that in consequence of great scarcity in the coal market, that article could not be supplied under the rate of eight annas a maund. The report concluded with a suggestion, to the effect that the Association should build another boat and for that purpose augment their capital to the extent of two hundred shares, on the ground that the increased number of ships that now come to this port, renders this measure necessary, much disappointment having been felt in respect to the obtaining of Steamers. Should the proposition of building a new boat be carried, it is determined that it should correspond in power with the Andrew Henderson.

The state of the Association's finances were noticed in the report as follows:—That a balance of Rs. 7,511 has been paid off to the Union Bank, as also Rs. 2,210 on account of interest, and Rs. 3,641 on account of debt, making in all Rs. 13,361. There appeared to be from the whole an available profit of Rs. 25,233.

The resolutions passed on the occasion were the following:

Proposed by Mr. Paul, seconded by Captain Cunningham and carried.

"That the accounts now on the table be approved and passed as satisfactory and published in the daily papers."

Proposed by Captain Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Paul and carried.

"That the report of the Secretaries be approved and published likewise."

Proposed by Mr. J. Cullen, seconded by Captain Richards and carried.

"That a dividend of fifty rupees per share, being the equivalent of ten per cent. per annum, upon the capital, be paid out of the profits of the past half year!"

Proposed by Mr. J. W. Cragg, seconded by Mr. John Carr, and carried.

"That the balance of the profits, Rs. 5,233, be carried to the credit of the reserved fund, which with the Rs. 15,294 reserved last half year, will make Rs. 18,527."

Proposed by Captain Mackenzie, seconded by Mr. Paul, and carried.

"That the thanks of the meeting be given to the Committee of the past year, and that the same gentlemen, namely, Messrs J. W. Cragg (acting for Mr. Bruce) J. Colquhoun, J. Cullen, K. R. Mackenzie and Baboo Dwarkanath Tagore, be re-appointed and requested to act as Committee for the present year."

Proposed by Mr. J. Colquhoun, seconded by Captain Cunningham.

"That it is desirable to meet the increased demand for Steam Tugs, by the construction of another steam boat for this Association; and that as the new engines coming out for the Seetk are not yet paid for, the capital should be increased fifty per cent., for the purpose of carrying both objects into effect, and that a special meeting be called to take into consideration that part of the Secretaries' report relating to the above."

Before the above resolution was carried, some conversation took place as to the expediency of incurring heavier responsibility until the present debts of the association were liquidated. Mr. Cragg proposed an amendment also to the resolution, to the effect that the question relating to the construction of a new boat, should be in the first instance referred to the Committee for consideration, but on being put, the amendment was lost, and the original resolution carried.

Thanks being then voted to the Chairman, the meeting separated.—Hutkar, Oct. 21, 1840.

STEAM COMMUNICATION.

The following extract of a letter, dated 4th August last, from Mr. Curtis, and the enclosures referred to therein, to the address of the undersigned, as Secretary to the Committee appointed on the 12th March last, are published for general information.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Curtis, dated the 4th August 1840.

4th.—I wish I had to report any progress in respect to the wished for Union with the agents of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company. I enclose copies of the letters which have passed between us since my last letter; by which you will observe that the Agents will adhere to their conditions, that the extension of the operations of the Company to the European Line shall be discussed when the Eastern line is finished, which, in good faith to the Indian and British public and consistently with our own public declarations, we cannot assent to. My letter to them of the 10th July expressed the unequivocal meaning of the Directors of this Company, and could not be misunderstood. Notwithstanding which, the reply the Agents have made to it on the 14th July still reverts to a power to be vested in the majority of the subscribers, by the deed to enable them to entertain the question of extending the line or any other matter. To this of course the Directors could not assent, as it would be striking at a fundamental principle of the company, and unless such a reservation for such a purpose were openly stated to the public, which the Agents did not contemplate being the case as they say. "We did not mean that there should be any specific clause inserted in your deed of settlement, relative to taking the opinions of the subscribers as to the expediency of commencing the European line after the Eastern line was finished," we never could allow any private understanding to exist between the Agents and ourselves, that the reservation of this question was part of the conditions of their Union. To the public that would be "keeping the word of promise to the ear and breaking it to the hope," and purchasing their co-operation at the expense of our own good faith.

Under such circumstances it was needless continuing the correspondence; and—as I met Mr. Larpent shortly after receiving his letter, and he agreed with me that the exchange of letters which with their instructions could lead to no good result was useless—the last letter of the Agents has remained unanswered. But we trust to the good sense and good feeling of the Indian community to set the matter straight at once by withdrawing all the difficulties which will be in the way of the full accomplishment of their wishes, and which difficulties are entirely of their own creation by splitting and dividing, instead of firmly uniting to carry out the whole plan. If these divisions had not taken place, I may venture to say that in the course of this year, barring political events, the ground work of the whole line, would have been laid, and a vessel of 2,000 tons on the berth of Calcutta.

I trust, therefore, still that the Indian public will see that their interest lies in the full support of the Comprehensive Plan—and that the subscribers to the Eastern Steam Navigation Company will give immediate orders for the transfer of their loans to the East India Steam Navigation Company, thus avoiding the useless sacrifice of time and money in constructing vessels of inferior class, and which will not be fitted for the service.

Sth.—* * * * *

* 6th.—Our subscription list up to this date, amounts to 3024 shares, and we have extended the time of receiving applications until September 3d; and, I believe, I may say, that few lists have been better subscribed to in point of numbers in any concern which has not held out the glittering prospect of a rich and rapid return. We only require the determined support of a plan which is essentially Indian, to carry it into triumphant execution—and to raise us above the spurious connection which the Peninsular and Dublin union offer to India.

You will learn from Captain Barber that the India, Steam Ship, built for Captain Sir John Ross's Company, has been taken up by some gentlemen connected with this company, to be sent to Calcutta for sale. I trust she will answer the expectations of her builder, in her rate of sailing, and in her qualities as a sea going vessel—in which case, it may be deemed advisable at once to place her on the berth from Calcutta to Suez. Upon this subject, as regards our company, I shall again address you, by the next overland mail.

I have, &c.

East India Steam Navigation Company, Temporary Office,

8, Token House yard Bank, 10th July, 1840.

Gentlemen,—I have had the honour of receiving your letter dated 20th June last, which in the presence of Mr. Larpent, and John Small, I submitted to the consideration of the directors of this company; and it is with much regret I have to make this official reply to it, that the considerations on which you will consent to unite with the company, on the part of the united Committee of Calcutta, are incompatible with the Comprehensive Plan of Communication with India; and that therefore this company, feeling itself pledged to the British and Indian public, to carry through the Comprehensive plan in its entirety and without any premeditated necessity for its abandonment, is bound to adhere to that plan.

The insertion of the clauses you required, in the 3d paragraph of your letter, would be virtually holding out to the public that there was doubt of the practicability of the Comprehensive plan; but you will perceive to the prospectus, which I have the honour to enclose, that a clause will be inserted in the Deed of Settlement, to enable subscribers resident in India to vote by power of attorney, in all matters of general interest.

I allowed myself still to hope that you will not suffer a scheme like the East Indian Steam Navigation Company, which must conduce so greatly to the interests of all India, to lack that assistance at your hands, which will at once ensure its success; and that you will see it right to waive all minor considerations, or subjects of controversy, to attain the major object which we all have in view.

In respect to your concluding paragraph, the directors of this Company will be ready to co-operate with you in the contract for a ship, when you have consented to withdraw the conditions of your letter, which at present prevent the union.

I have, &c.,

8, Austin Friars, July 14, 1840.

SIR,—We have to acknowledge your letter of the 10th instant.

We think that your Directors have mis-conceived the tenor of the 31 paragraph, in your letter of the 20th June last. We did not mean that there should be any specific clause inserted in your deed of settlement relative to taking the opinion of the subscribers, as to the expediency of commencing the European Line after the Eastern Line was finished, but such general powers as would enable the majority to decide that question, as well as all others in which the interest of the company were concerned, and that the Indian Subscribers might vote by power of attorney. From what passed at your meeting, we were led to believe such powers would be vested in the majority of the subscribers, by the deed and that a general meeting legally convened would have the right to entertain the question of extending the line as well as any other matter.

* This is exclusive of 1156 shares taken in Bengal, and of the Madras shares.—C. B. G.

If this be the case we are ready when your Company is so constituted as to become an efficient instrument to the business it intends to undertake, to waive all minor considerations, and under our instructions from the Eastern Steam Navigation Company of Calcutta, to effect the proposed junction.

We trust that with this explanation you will assent to our proposal to contract for a Steamer in conjunction with your officers as pointed out in our letter of the 20th June. To this question we shall be glad of an early answer, as we are taking measures to obtain specifications, &c. for a Steamer; but the main question of the junction may remain over until the expiration of the time specified by the parties in India, viz. 6 months after you receipt of the letter of the Secretary to the Joint Committee.

We remain, &c ,

Hurkaru, Oct. 3, 1840.]

The Committee of the New BENGAL STEAM FUND have much pleasure in publishing the following correspondence with the Madras Steam Committee; and in so doing they earnestly entreat the friends of India to unite in supporting Mr. Curtis's Scheme of Steam Communication, as that most calculated by unity and continuity, essentially to benefit both in England and India.

By order of the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund,

C. B. GREENLAW,

W. LIMOND,

Joint Secretaries.

Calcutta, 20th October, 1840.

To C. B. GREENLAW, Esq., Secretary to the New Bengal Steam Fund Committee, Calcutta.

SIR,—I am directed by the Madras Steam Committee to acquaint you that at a Public Meeting held here on the 9th instant, it was resolved unanimously to act in conjunction with the New Bengal Steam Fund Committee. Herewith I have the honor to forward you a copy of the resolutions, which were then agreed to, and I refer you to the Madras Press* for further information on the great question.

You will observe, by Mr. Curtis's letter to the Secretary of the Madras Committee, published in the Spectator of this date, of which I now send you a copy, that the Committee may expect, at your earliest convenience, copies of correspondence between Messrs. Cockrell and Co, and "Mail and Co., and Mr. Curtis. The Committee are most anxious to be in possession of these documents; and they entertain such a full conviction of the unwearied zeal and endeavours of the East India Steam Navigation Company, to carry into full and efficient effect that grand Comprehensive Scheme of Steam Communication with the three Presidencies, Ceylon and Suez, that they feel assured no feelings of rivalry or party spirit will ever allow that company to impede or retard the important operations they have now pledged themselves to pursue with all possible celerity and despatch.

* The information in question has already appeared in the Calcutta papers.—C. B. G.

Recent discussions at Calcutta have had the effect of causing some diversity of opinion here; and, I regret to say, several of our principal subscribers have withdrawn their shares; but there is reason to hope and trust that these parties are only influenced by what they consider doubtful appearances, and as those unfortunate differences at Calcutta appear to be on the decline, while at the same time Mr. Curtis's Company is rapidly advancing, and gaining confidence in public estimation, the Committee are therefore induced to believe, that most of those seceders will eventually unite, whilst the cheering prospects held out by the latest intelligence from England, will gradually incline all parties to yield to the united wishes of the community at large.

I am further directed to solicit your attention to that Clause in the Prospectus of the East India Steam Navigation Company, which states that the qualification of Directors, or Local Committee Members, of Calcutta, Madras and Ceylon, must be subscribers to the extent of 50 shares. The Committee are of opinion that such parties within the Presidency, who may be willing to invest so large an amount of capital, are not likely to offer their services for such an office, consequently that this restrictive Clause should be amended and revised, and the qualification should be reduced to such a limit, as will hold out the surest pledge of that active and efficient service which the many important duties of the company will continually demand. I have the pleasure to assure you of our zealous and strenuous support; and with an earnest desire to promote the welfare and prosperity of a continuous Steam Communication in the prescribed route from Calcutta to Suez. I feel every confidence in pledging you the strenuous support of a numerous class throughout the Presidency of Madras.

I have, &c.

STEAM MEETING.

At a public meeting held at the College Hall on Wednesday, the 9th day of September, 1840.

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Comyn, Kt. in the chair.

It was proposed by the Chairman, seconded by Lieut. Col. Alexander, and carried unanimously.

Resolution 1. That having taken into consideration the modified Prospectus of the London East India Steam Navigation Company, lately promulgated by Mr. Curtis, this meeting most cordially concurs in the following declaration adopted by a meeting of the supporters of the company held in Calcutta, on the 8th ultimo, viz,

" We whose names are hereunto signed, believing that the proceedings in progress at home under the management of Mr. Curtis and his colleagues are those most likely to result in a regular, speedy and efficient Steam Communication with England, by way of the Red Sea, hereby pledge ourselves to support him, and to endeavour to obtain shareholders for his proposed company, and we earnestly entreat our respective friends to do the same, it being understood that it shall be optional with such shareholders to have their subscriptions returned to them in the event of Mr. Curtis not completing his company, or to have them transferred to the agent of the Eastern Steam Navigation Company established in Calcutta, on the terms contained in the following resolution, passed at a meeting of the United Steam Committee, under date 1st instant, viz.

" Having every reliance on Mr. Curtis's judgment and discretion, and every confidence in his ultimately succeeding, still to provide for the possibility of failure. Resolved, that in case Mr. Curtis should not succeed in his present arrangements, and should see no reasonable prospect of being enabled to get up his scheme, he be requested to transfer the funds remitted to him through this committee to the Agents, in London, of the Precursors, provided the original constitution of these is preserved, and they have joined no other company; but should such constitution have undergone any change on the Precursors, or have joined any other company. Mr. Curtis will hold the funds respectively at the disposal of the several subscribers in the event of his abandoning his measures."

Proposed by George Norton, Esq., Advocate General, seconded by Captain Biden, and carried unanimously.

Resolution 2. That the conditional subscribers who have already paid a deposit of 10 per cent. on their shares, be requested without delay to pay up an additional 10 per cent., and to complete the payment of their further instalments in the manner laid down in the Prospectus. And parties who have not yet subscribed be now earnestly invited to do so and pay up instalments to the same extent.

Proposed by the Venerable Archdeacon Harper, and seconded by Dr. Wylie, and carried unanimously.

Resolution 3. That subscribers be requested in transmitting their instalments to communicate to the Committee their wishes as to the ultimate disposal of their subscriptions, it being understood that where no such communication is made, the Committee will remit the amount to Mr. Curtis, to be held subject to the further instructions of subscribers in the event of his failing to establish the company now started under his auspices.

Proposed by James Thompson, Esq., seconded by George Wellington, Esq., and carried unanimously.

Resolution 4. That the Meeting considers it due to Mr. Curtis again to record their grateful acknowledgment for his long and unwearied exertions to establish a Comprehensive Steam Communication with India, and more especially for the concessions he has made, in his last prospectus, to the wishes of the Indian subscribers, which it is hoped may be the means of uniting all parties in one general and strenuous effort for the accomplishment of the great object they all have in view.

Proposed by Alexander Macleann, Esq., seconded by A. T. Arbuthnot, Esq., and carried unanimously.

Resolution 5. That the following gentlemen be added to the present Steam Committee, viz., G. Norton, Esq., Captain Biden, Colonel Tulloch, Colonel Daveton, J. Thompson, Esq., G. Wellington, Esq.

On the motion of Colonel Walpole, seconded by Colonel Sim, the thanks of the Meeting were unanimously voted to the Hon'ble Sir Robert Comyn, for his kindness in taking the chair.

To Captain BIDEN, Corresponding Member of the Steam Committee, Madras.

Sir,—We have the honor, by direction of the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated 26th ultimo, to express their great gratification at the proceedings of your Committee, and to respond most cordially to your resolution of acting in co-operation with this Committee in furtherance of the great object of Mr. Curtis's exertions. Copies of the correspondence* referred to in the 2d para. of your letter have already been forwarded to you according to Mr. Curtis's desire.

This Committee regret that the differences at Calcutta should have extended to Madras; but, as such a result was naturally to be expected, the Committee can only hope that the re-union of all in Calcutta disposed in favor Mr. Curtis, may have the effect of bringing back to the standard all who may have withdrawn at Madras.

The accompanying copy of our letter to Mr. Curtis, dated 10th ultimo, with its enclosure, will shew you that this Committee have felt with yourselves the inconvenience of 50 shares being required to be held by parties in the local directions, and have accordingly recommended that they shall be reduced, to 10 and that any one individual of any house of business holding 20 shares may also be eligible. It cannot be denied that the intervention of the Precursor, the establishment of the Communication between England and Alexandria, and the declared purpose of the Peninsular and Dublin Companies to unite to endeavour to open the Communication between Calcutta and Suez, have had and still have the effect of keeping away many subscriptions from Mr. Curtis's company, and it is a subject of anxious consideration with this Committee, as to the course most proper to be pursued to carry out the resolution of the last half yearly Meeting of the subscribers to the New Bengal Steam Fund, that we should use our best endeavours to obtain shareholders for his company.

At the Meeting of the Committee on Saturday last, a Sub Committee consisting of Mr. Parker, our Chairman, Major Forbes, and of Messrs Joint Secretaries, was appointed to consider the subject, and to report to the Committee thereon as early as possible. A copy of that report and of the determination of the Committee will be forwarded to you in due course. In the meantime the Committee have only to add that up to this date the number of shares taken there amounts to 815 † of which 586 have paid 50 per cent and the remainder various instalments. The whole amount received is Rs. 191,424-14-7, of which £17,000 have been remitted home and Rs. 20,000 5-1 in the Union Bank at interest of 4 per cent. per annum for all sums held during 3 months, and one per cent. for sums withdrawn that period,

Calcutta, the 12th Oct., 1840.

Enclosed is a letter to the Madras Steam Committee not published before.

To T. A. CURTIS, Esq. Chairman of the East Indian Steam Navigation Company.

SIR,— We are directed by the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund to forward to you the accompanying copy of the proceedings of the half yearly Meeting of the subscribers to the Fund, and to the petitions to the House of Commons, from which you will perceive that those gentlemen who lately seceded from the Committee have again joined it, together with other gentlemen equally with them disposed to exert themselves in further aid of your endeavours to secure to India perhaps the greatest blessing she can enjoy, endeavours which have not been entered upon by you on your own voluntary motion, but which bring urged on you by the Agent of the Committee representing the public of Bengal have been unceasing, arduous, and disinterested, entitling you, not merely to the support of India, for in that India is only acting for her own interest, but to her eternal gratitude. With these sentiments we are directed to assure you that as soon as they are relieved from the pressure of business always attendant on the despatch of the Mail, they will assiduously devote themselves to fulfil the directions contained in the 2d Resolution of the 9th inst.

The Committee purpose to confine themselves to this duty, suggesting that whatever may hereafter be required to be done here, in respect to the Steamer which it is understood you propose to send immediately, or in the construction of vessels here, may be done by a Board of shareholders whenever it shall be proper to constitute one.

We would also direct your attention to the fact that there is no person in Calcutta duly qualified to act as Director according to your present scale of 50 shares; and as the Board here will only be an auxiliary one, the Committee would suggest that the personal qualification of an individual for the Calcutta Direction may be 10 shares, any single individual of a firm or house holding 20 shares or more being also eligible.

Referring to the probability that one at least of the Vessels may be built here, it has not been thought expedient to make any more remittance, to you until further advice, in the mean time, the funds as realized here will be put to interest.

We have, &c.

SUPREME COURT.

FOURTH TERM OF 1840.—THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1840.

This being the first day of the Fourth Term, their Lordships came into Court at eleven o'clock. A few common motions were taken, and the Court rose.

A single Judge will sit to-morrow and Saturday. There is little prospect at present of a busy term.

The new Advocate-General, Mr. Peel, is not expected to arrive much before next term.—HURKARU, October 23, 1840.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1840.

D. TAGORE V. FRAWNKISEN HOLLAR.

This was an application on the part of defendant, that the taxing Officer should review his taxation of a bill of costs of the complainant, in continuation of a bill of costs taxed as between party and party, under an order of the 26th May.

Mr Prinsep, in support of the motion said, that the order of the 26th May was an order obtained by the defendant by consent for one month's further time to answer upon payment of the costs of the application. In taxing the bill, the Officer disallowed certain items (see former Report in the Hurkaru of June 30th) though the defendant had consented to pay the costs in question, and had made no objection upon the taxation,—objections were filed by the complainant's attorney, and upon re-taxation, the Officer disallowed additional items,—objections were tendered to the re-taxation, which the Officer refused to receive, and an order was then obtained in Court that the Officer should receive the objections. Upon the second re-taxation, the Officer adhered to his former taxation, and an order was then applied for and obtained by the complainant, that the Officer do review his re-taxation. All these orders, taxations and re-taxations had run up an additional bill which the taxing officer had now allowed as between party and party, and hence arose the present application. The learned Counsel contended, that it was a case of the utmost hardship upon his client. The defendant had been originally willing to pay the costs which the complainant claimed and which the Officer disallowed;—he had never once made any objection, and the question had been one entirely between the complainant and the taxing officer. It would be rather hard to saddle a party with costs, which he had not been in the very remotest degree instrumental in causing.

Mr. Clarke, contra, admitted that it was unquestionably a case of hardship, but then the hardship must fall upon one party or the other. The question was which of the two was to pay for the errors of judgment of the taxing officer. The usual rule was that the losing party must pay, though it might be no fault of his. Here the complainant had succeeded in every application he had made.

RYAN, C. J. (after consulting with the rest of their Lordships) said, that in such cases, each party ought to pay the costs incurred on his own side, and that the Taking officer must review his taxation accordingly. The whole subject of costs was now under anxious consideration by the Judges, and (among other matters) they should fully consider the existing rule of compulsory taxation. He (the learned Chief Justice) was not satisfied that it was not a beneficial rule; although the present case certainly was an instance of an evil resulting from it.

Order accordingly.—Hurkaru, October 27, 1840.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30.

MADONED TORAVE V. THEODORE DICKENS, ADMINISTRATOR OF NAWAB SUFFUR JUNG.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings.

Mr. Prinsep stated, that the action was brought to recover the sum of Co.'s Rs 7,653; due for principal and interest upon three promissory notes, besides certain arrears of salary at the rate of Rs. 150 per month. The defendant, an administrator, had assets, and did not dispute the debt; but as heavy claims had been registered against the estate, he could not pay it except under a judgment of the Court. Judgment had therefore been allowed to pass by default.

The three promissory notes were put in. Two witnesses were called to prove that the plaintiff had been in the Nawab's service as Wakeel for several years at Rs. 150 per month, and the second witness said that about one year's wages were in arrears.

The Court gave a verdict for the principal and interest due upon the notes and Rs. Rs. 1800 for a year's salary, amounting altogether to about Co.'s Rs. 9,600.

Verdict accordingly.—Hurkaru, October 31, 1840.

INSOLVENT COURT

SEPTEMBER 17, 1840.

(Before Sir H. W. Selon.)

IN THE MATTER OF RICHARD FRANCIS MACVITIE.

This Insolvent was brought up and, there being no opposition, was discharged.

IN THE MATTER OF JOHN HAMMERDINGER.

Not being opposed, this Insolvent received the benefit of the act.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES ANDERSON PUTIER.

This Insolvent received the benefit of the act, being unopposed.

IN THE MATTER OF PHAUNGLAL MITTRE.

In the case of this Insolvent likewise, the adjudication of insolvency was granted without opposition.

IN THE MATTER OF DRAHE CHRISTIAN.

This Insolvent, who has but one creditor, and has been in confinement for a period of three years, was brought up and subjected to a long and desultory examination by Mr. Prinsep, the Counsel for Walker, Roussac and Co., the detaining creditors.

The Advocate General appeared on behalf of the Insolvent, the substance of whose examination was to the following effect:

By Mr. Prinsep.—I am not an Englishman, but I have been to England. My only creditor is the firm of Messrs. Walker, Roussac and Co. I drew upon their house to the extent of forty-two thousand rupees in goods, which cost me sixty-two thousand rupees. I know Mr. Jones, agent at Dinapore, of the Union Insurance Company, but I never obtained great insurances from him for goods that were not despatched. These policies that I now see I got from Mr. Jones, —the goods I did not see on board. In October I left Dinapore. The letter now shown to me was despatched by me with the policies. No goods were shipped on the policies or against the bills. The bills amount to seven thousand five hundred rupees. I was at Chupra and from that place I proceeded to Calcutta. On my coming here I did not acquaint Walker Roussac and Co. of my arrival. Shortly after I embarked for England, of which also I did not inform Walker, Roussac and Co. I took my passage under the name of Clarke, beside some money of my own to defray my expenses, I took a bill with me on Coutts and Co., but never could recover the money. In England I was placed under arrest; but no sooner did this circumstance happen, then I assumed my real name and wrote to a relative in England for his interference. After this I never made any attempt to pass off under any other name but that of Christian. I do not owe Mr. Jones any money, and never borrowed anything from him, while, on the contrary, if any thing, Mr. Jones, I think, owes me money, I left Calcutta because a writ from authorities at Patna was out against me, on account of a debt to the extent of eight or ten thousand rupees, and I was not able at that time to recover money wherewith to pay it. But I have paid. Several of my creditors I was able to satisfy by drawing on Pearylal Mitre. I possess no vouchers in proof of these transactions, because none passed between us, Pearylal merely entering the payments he made in his books. I of course had my accounts also, but they were all with my writer Mr. Clarke. I am not aware what has become of Mr. Clarke, who was with me when I was at Dinapore. I did not go away in August. At the time I left Dinapore, Mr. Jones was at Chupra, where I had sent him to effect the purchase of certain goods, which I had previously bargained for. I never gave Mr. Jones any box said to contain money to defray the expense of the purchases, nor did any such box turn out to contain shots and pill boxes. If Mr. Jones has sworn to any such thing, he has sworn to an untruth. When I came to Calcutta foolishly, I did not explain the state of my affairs to my creditors. During the period I stayed in Calcutta I put up in the house of Mr. Bartlett, where I remained about a month. In the course of this time I visited the theatre, nor did I try to conceal myself. I was also here under my own name, and not under the assumed name of Clark, though latterwards took my passage by that name I did not obtain policies to deceive Walker, Rousseau and Co. I was present when Mr. Jones was examined in the Supreme Court of Calcutta, and heard what he said; but I did not hear every word nor any thing about the box of money to pay for the purchases at Chupra. I can take my oath that I saw some hides put on board the boat, as part of the goods mentioned in the policies. In order to enable me to draw up my Schedule, I wrote to my employees to forward the accounts to me, but I never received any reply from them. This letter is in my writing and the villages referred to in it are those in which I have interest under Government. The revenue they yield is a source of profit to me, but I have no power to dispose off the villages. When I came to Calcutta, I brought eight thousand rupees of my own money with me.

By the Advocate-General.—When Mr. Jones granted policies to me he was aware of my transaction with Walker Rousseau and Co. In these transactions I was in the habit of drawing money immediately. I lost no less than forty thousand rupees in my transactions with Walker, Rousseau and Co. They did not consult me in any case with regard to the disposal of goods. I gave no directions for the shipment of cotton to China. Walker, Rousseau and Co. ordered such shipments at their own discretion, yet holding me responsible for Jones.

C. F. Dumaine, examined by Mr. Prinsep.—I am connected with the firm of Walker and Co. I know the Insolvent, who was introduced to me as Mr. ——— [We could not catch the name] The terms on which the Insolvent received advances was, that he should get two-thirds of the profits accruing on the transactions. When he showed the policies they were taken as a guarantee that the goods had already been shipped on the boat. The description of money transactions, by giving advances in policies, are very common even to the present day. The only article we were in the habit of shipping was cotton. The Insolvent's departure we were not aware of. It came to our knowledge about a month after it took place. We heard it in September. Enquiries were made by the house to trace him in Calcutta. The bills were all paid.

By the Advocate-General.—The Insolvent has been imprisoned these three years, and was so confined at the instance of the house. The goods were shipped on seventeen policies. We were obliged to borrow money from other houses in order to make advances to the Insolvent. I am not aware that the goods were not shipped, but they were not received. It was customary to charge commission at five per cent on the proceeds. The proceeds on the goods amounted to forty thousand rupees. When policies came down to us and our funds were insufficient to make the loans, money was borrowed the policies being deposited for the money thus borrowed.

Mr. Prinsep here addressed the Court urging that a case of fraud had been clearly made out against the Insolvent. It appeared in the first place, that he had absconded. This could not be denied, the learned counsel thought, for the circumstances appeared plainly from the Insolvent's own evidence, that he remained one month concealed in Calcutta, while the Police were in search of him, and could not trace him until he had gone on board ship; that he having but one creditor there appeared no difficulty for him to represent the state of his affairs to that solitary party, instead of which, he absconded without any notice or communication whatever in regard to the insurance business. Mr. Prinsep urged against the Insolvent, that the policies were only intended to deceive the creditors. In the Mofussil, he went on to say, bills of lading do not obtain, but the specific entries in the policies serve as substitutes for them. These policies go to show that the goods are put on board. It was this that the policies were received as evidence that the goods had been put on the boats, while, in fact, the Insolvent swears, that he did not see the goods on board, with the exception of a small number of hides; yet, under all these circumstances, there is said to be no intention of fraud, no attempt to concealment. Mr. Prinsep also adverted to the misapplication of money, and referred to the Insolvent having taken eight thousand rupees with him to England. The next point, the learned counsel took up, was the Insolvent's disavowal of all knowledge relative to the box given to Mr. Jones, then alluded to a fault in the Schedule, namely, that though the insolvent by his own evidence had an interest in certain villages, yet the lease of those villages were not made over to the Assignee mentioned in the Schedule, observing at some length on each of these and some other points. Mr. Prinsep concluded by urging that fraud had clearly been proved against the Insolvent.

Some talk here arose about the Insolvent having been three years in confinement when the actual construction of the 58th clause of the Act was shortly discussed. The Court, however was of opinion, that the confinement of an Insolvent could be dated only from the time he applied for the act. The Insolvent in the present case had been for three years in custody, yet his petitions was but recently presented.

The Advocate General then addressed the Court on behalf of the Insolvent opposing the arguments urged by the counsel for the creditors. The Advocate General enquired in reference to the charge of absconding brought against his client, whether people were in the habit of advertising their departure to their creditors when about to leave the place? He thought that the man that would do so, was not in his senses and was more fit to be confined at Beardsmore's Asylum than the great jail. In regard to the plea of misapplication, he asked if there was ever an Insolvent brought into the Court who did not fairly incur the charge of misapplication. About the accusation against the Insolvent of having obtained the insurance policies, with a view to deceive Walker and Co. the Advocate General observed, that this could not be brought against his client, unless it were a conspiracy and Mr. Jones a party to that conspiracy. On the contrary, it was urged, that since Mr. Jones had the providing of boats and the names of his peoples were entered in the policies, and as he was well acquainted with the nature of the transactions between the Insolvent and Walker and Co, he had granted the policies by anticipation merely, no doubt, by way of affording facilities to the Insolvent. Having observed upon the other points urged by Mr. Prinsep at some length, the Advocate General concluded by making a pathetic appeal in regard to the protracted imprisonment of three years, which the Insolvent has undergone, the hardships he has altogether suffered not only in being a great loser with Walker and Co., but the distress, and destitution of being in a prison where he was unable to make an application for insolvency earlier. The Advocate General urged that it could never be the intention of the legislature, that feelings of vindictiveness should be gratified by the long confinement of a debtor, that debtor being unable to make application for insolvency. In this way then one may this moment be suffering and the insolvent had for so long a period already suffered, and therefore he, the speaker, could not conceive that the 58th clause really meant such to be understood.

The Court here said, that it would not dispose of the matter immediately. But gave it forth that its impression was, that the Insolvent had acted contrary to the course of ordinary business, and had violated the rules on which commerce was conducted in this community. In regard to the time of confinement, the Court thought itself not at liberty to take that circumstance into consideration, since it depended on the choice of the Insolvent himself to present the petition.

Some conversation followed in regard to the lease of the villages already alluded to, after which, it was arranged, that the villages should be mentioned, and that the Insolvent should be remanded to be brought up on Monday, (this day,) to receive the decision of the Court.

IN THE MATTER OF SYED MERRAM.

This Insolvent was brought up, and opposed for the fourth time, this day. Mr. Ryland appeared against him, and Mr. Marshall for him. Some desultory conversation arose about the objections made on the preceding occasion, after which a witness was called to be examined, but it was finally agreed upon, that the Insolvent should be remanded to be brought up on Monday, the witnesses also being ordered to attend.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM HENRY ABBOTT.

The Advocate-General applied for the final discharge of this Insolvent, who is at present away from the country. Order nisi made.

IN THE MATTER OF JOSEPH NELSON MORTON.

This day was fixed for the examination in this case of a witness, who being indisposed, and an affidavit being put to that effect by Mr. Sandes, the matter stands over. — Hurkaru, October 19, 1840.

IN THE MATTER OF SYED MERRAM.

In the matter of this Insolvent a witness was examined by Mr. Ryland. The substance of the examination was as follows :—

Ibrahim sworn.—I know the Insolvent and have had dealings with him, which commenced about four years ago. The nature of the dealings was that he lent me 2,500 rupees, wherewith to purchase goods, and the understanding was that two-thirds of the profits should go to him and a third should be mine. The goods I purchased were not sold in Calcutta, but sent to my agents in Moulmein. Ten months before the Insolvent's confinement took place, all transactions between us ceased, the whole that was due to me having been paid up. I paid the Insolvent Rs 2,024 and to his agent at Moulmein on his account Rs 800. The name of that agent was Hashum. I paid him in cash. Since that period I have done no business with the Insolvent. I went to Moulmein myself, and on my coming back to Calcutta and having paid the Insolvent, I requested the return of the bond which had been drawn up between us. The bond was not immediately returned, but on Hashum's coming to Calcutta, I asked him to intercede on my behalf with the Insolvent on account of the bond, which I then got back. Hashum is since dead. I paid the Rs 2,024 to the Insolvent by instalments, of small notes and golds. The numbers of the notes I repaid, I do not remember. The numbers were never asked from me by the Insolvent. I never gave Hashum Rs 1000. I can only sign my name but cannot read or write. The Insolvent is a literate man and can read and write. He keeps accounts.

Some conversation followed between the Court and Mr. Ryland.

The Court then observed, that it did not think there was sufficient ground for the detention of the Insolvent; an order was therefore given that he should be discharged, with the request that whenever the Assignee required him he should attend.

IN THE MATTER OF JOSEPH MOSES JACOB.

The Insolvent, who is a Jew, at first hesitated to attest to his affidavit on the ground, that it was the Feast of the Tabernacles. He, however, received the benefit of the act.

IN THE MATTER OF ISAAC JACOB AND OTHERS, AND THE MATTER OF EZEKIEL MOSES.

A Native witness was to have been examined in these cases, but the individual has intermediately died. Both cases stand over to the 2d of November.

DEARE CHRISTIAN.

This Insolvent, it was understood, should have been brought to the Court today to receive his decision; but owing to other arrangements, the case has been adjourned to the 2d of November. — Hurkaru, October 20, 1840.

OCTOBER 30, 1840.

(Before Sir H. W. Seton.)

IN THE MATTER OF DEARE CHRISTIAN.

This Insolvent was brought up and received the decision of the Court. He was ordered to be imprisoned for one year from the date of his petition.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM HENRY ABBOTT.

Last Court day an application for the final discharge of this insolvent was made. The consideration of the petition is adjourned for certain amendments to be made to it.

IN THE MATTER OF ISAAC JACOB AND OTHERS.

The matter of three insolvents was brought on, and after some further examination, has been postponed to this-day week, for their witnesses to be produced. — Hurkaru, October 31, 1840.

BOMBAY—COURT MARTIAL ON CAPTAIN DUFF.

SEVENTH DAY, TUESDAY, 18TH AUGUST, 1840.

The prisoner on the opening of the Court, request its permission, to have his written defence read by a friend, which being acceded to by the court, the following address is read by Mr. Crawford of the Bombay civil service.

DEFENCE.

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN,

I appear before you, as a prisoner, after having held a commission in the Hon'ble Company's Army, nearly one and twenty years, and maintained as I have shown you, by the Testimony of those of my friends, who happen to be in Bombay at this time, and will show you in the course of my defence, by the Testimonials of others, of the highest respectability in every branch of the public service, whose absence in different parts of this presidency, prevents their giving evidence to my character in person, an unblemished reputation throughout that long period, accused of one of the most disgraceful, and heinous offences, that can be laid to the charge of any man, and especially of one who has been educated with the feelings, and principles of a gentleman, for notwithstanding the declaration of the officiating Judge Advocate, on the opening of this trial, in answer to my objection to the indefinite nature of the charge preferred against me, that I am not accused of perjury, and that a Court Martial cannot try an officer or soldier for that crime, I know not to what class of crime, the offence of knowingly and wilfully giving false testimony on oath, can be said to belong, if it be denied the name of perjury.

2nd. Perjury, then gentlemen, is the crime, with which I am in reality charged,—and charged under circumstances of greater difficulty, in respect to direct refutation, than I believe, has almost ever fallen to the lot of an individual so accused, for the offence imputed to me, has its rise in a conversation which is said to have taken place at Vingorla, in the Southern Koonkan, in the early part of January 1839, and at which no other persons were present than myself, and the three witnesses, who have been brought before you, to sustain the prosecution, Lieutenant Munro, Ensign Raitt, and Mr. Gibbard.

3rd. Of the previous state of feelings of these gentlemen towards me, I shall have occasion to speak more fully by and by. It will be sufficient for me to say at present, that this is not the first time I have had to defend myself against their misrepresentations, having been called upon, as far back as the months of March and April last year; to exonerate myself from the imputation of want of energy in one case,—want of courage in another,—and something like want of honesty in a third,—all founded on reports, that had got into general circulation, but which, as I shall show you hereafter, originated with the individuals in question, whilst serving under my immediate command.

4th. It is alleged in the charge against me, as far as I am able to understand its bearing, that I did in the conversation above alluded to, and with reference to a person, who had been taken prisoner, and put to death by a party of irregular troops, under the orders of Mr. Gibbard at Kowtanner, in the Sawant Warree State, express my approbation of what Mr. Gibbard there related, and advised him to make an official report of the same, through me, his immediate commanding officer, that he Mr. Gibbard might obtain the further approbation of superior authority, and that I did at a latter period, viz. between the 30th December 1838, and the 14th January 1849, on a matter deemed material to the defence of Mr. Gibbard, in his Court Martial at Poona, depose on Oath, that I contemned the action of Mr. Gibbard, in not sparing the life of the said Prisoner, and that I did not believe the circumstance, having thereby knowingly and wilfully given false testimony on Oath and according to my interpretation of the charge, been guilty of the crime of wilful and deliberate perjury.

5th. I contended in the objection I made to the charge on which I am now tried, on the first day of the Court's meeting, and which is appended to its proceedings, that the precise words I used in the conversation at Vingorla, ought to have been set forth in the accusation preferred against me, and every succeeding day's experience has convinced me of the justice of that objection, and of the disadvantages I have had to contend with in consequence of its having been overruled by the court.

6th. But it is time, Gentlemen, that I endeavoured to ascertain for your information as well as my own, what Mr. Gibbard did relate, according to the witnesses for the prosecution, on the day of his return to Vingorla from Sawant Warree, when the conversation on which my subsequent offence is based, is said to have taken place, and which I will consider to have been the 3d or 4th January 1839—Lieut. Munro the first evidence adduced for the prosecution on the first day of your sitting, Tuesday, 4th August, states as follows:

"When Captain Duff came to my quarters, he said to Mr. Gibbard, I hear you have been giving it to the rebels. Come let us hear all about it. Mr. Gibbard then told Captain Duff, that he had been sent by Mr. Spooner, to a place called Kowtannee after some rebels, that Mr. Spooner told him to make no prisoners, and give no quarter, that he proceeded to Kowtannee with his men, and had a skirmish with the rebels; that several of them had been killed, and that some of the Sawant Warree sepoys, were bringing him a prisoner when he waved his hand, and told them to take him away and shoot him. Captain Duff then said well, I am glad you have given it to them. It serves them right. I wish you would make a written report of it, and I will forward it to the General; and you will get a compliment. He would like to hear the gup."

7th. "Ensign Raitt says on his evidence on the same day (4th August.)" "There was a conversation between Mr. Gibbard and Captain Duff, concerning what had taken place when at Kowtannee. Mr. Gibbard said, that he came up with the rebels at Kowtannee, on the banks of the river, and had fired upon them, while crossing. Some of the sepoys with him were bringing a man a prisoner, and he said, you have got your orders, and know what to do with him, and made a sign to them with his hand. He the prisoner was taken away and shot. Captain Duff appeared to be pleased with what he had related, and told him, if he made a report of it, he would send it to the General, as he likes to hear all the news."

8th. And Mr. Gibbard deposes as follows.

" After breakfast Capt. Duff came into Lieut. Munro's quarters, and asked me what I had been doing, saying he understood I had been successful with the Rebels. I told him that I had been sent to Kowtanee, by Mr. Spooner with orders to take no prisoners, and to give no quarter. That I surprised a party of Rebels at Kowtanee, and that several of them were shot, crossing the river, which divides the Goa from the Sawant Warrer territory; and sometime afterwards, four or five Rebels were taken prisoners by the irregulars under my command, and that according to orders I had received from Mr. Spooner, I ordered them to be shot, that one of them was a leading Rebel named Gwaise Purub and that he had offered a large sum of money for his life, but that still I had ordered him to be shot.—That on my return to Warree, I had reported to Mr. Spooner what I had done, who had highly approved of my conduct." Captain Duff was exceedingly pleased at my success with the Rebels and expressed his pleasure in several remarks he made, and said give me a written report of what took place, and I will send it to General Salter, who will be pleased. I answered I was under Mr. Spooner's orders at the time, and having reported to him, I did not consider another report necessary.

9th. Lieut. Munro says, that I appeared to believe what Mr. Gibbard said, and certainly did not disapprove of it. Ensign Raitt tells you, that I did not condemn what Mr. Gibbard related and should say, I believed it, and Mr. Gibbard states, that I appeared to hear and believe what he said, and made no remark either then or afterwards condemning his proceedings at Kowtanee, which you will bear in mind gentlemen, included according to Mr. Gibbard's previous testimony, and the wording of the question to which the answer last quoted was given, not the mere destruction of a prisoner, but the shooting of four or five prisoners.

10th. Having thus given, what appears to me, to be a fair statement of the evidence for the prosecution, as far as it applies the offence with which I am immediately charged, I must beg you to remember Gentlemen, that whilst Lieut. Munro and Ensign Raitt, speak of one Prisoner only having been mentioned by Mr. Gibbard, as having been shot by his orders, Mr. Gibbard himself tells you that in the conversation of the 3d or 4th January 1839, he mentioned four or five Rebel Prisoners having been so put to death, by his authority.

11th. In respect to the time, at which the conversation already alluded to took place, Lieut. Munro tells us on cross examination by me, on the second day of the court's meeting (6th August) "I cannot recollect the exact time of the day. It was sometime between eleven A. M. and six in the evening," and Ensign Raitt on the third day's proceedings (7th August) says "I should say it was evening, as far as I can remember" and to a question from the court at a later period of the day he answers, "To the best of my recollection, I should say it was about six o'clock in the evening," and Mr. Gibbard as recorded on the first day's proceedings speaks of the conversation as having occurred, during a visit made to him by me, after breakfast, which in the ordinary acceptation of such expression, would mean soon after breakfast, and place his relation of his proceedings at Kowtanee, at an hour no later than eleven A. M.

12th. Again although all these Witnesses in their evidence for the Prosecution, would evidently wish it to be inferred, that I approved of the whole of Mr. Gibbard's conduct, in the Kowtanee Affair, the destruction of the Prisoner or Prisoners in cold blood included, and intended him to submit all his proceedings at that place, to General Salter, through me, for the General's approbation, the admissions I afterwards extracted from them on cross examination, in respect to the merit that attached to such taking of life, after surrender, offer so strong a contradiction to the belief, that Mr. Gibbard could possibly get a compliment for the same, as completely to invalidate the conclusion they would have the Court to come to upon this alleged conversation at Viogoria, on the 3d or 4th January 1839; unless indeed it can be believed, that I could possibly be weak enough, to wish to place a report before the Officer Commanding the division for Mr. Gibbard's benefit, which included the narration of circumstances, which were so inevitably certain, to produce the very contrary result.

13th. The question put to Lieutenant Munro and Ensign Raitt, was as follows:

"Do you think, that a report to the General Officer under his command, containing an account of a Prisoner deliberately put to death after capture or surrender, was likely to meet his approbation, and obtain a compliment, for the officer, by whose orders the man was so deprived of life? To which Lieut. Munro replies, "I do not think it would." Ensign Raitt says, "I should think not; and why then, am I alone to be accused of the absurdity of believing, and intending to report to superior authority, for Mr. Gibbard's advantage, matters that were likely according to the opinions of his most intimate friends to bring down on him the General's displeasure, rather than his approbation?"

14th. I have been reasoning hitherto gentlemen of probabilities, in order that I might meet the evidence on the part of the prosecution, by showing in the first place, that the story of the witnesses carries its own refutation, from the manifest contradictions which it contains, and trusting that I have been able to bring this point with sufficient perspicuity before the court, to insure it's being allowed it's due weight in their judgment. I now proceed to assure this court, in the most solemn manner, that not only did I never approve of the putting a prisoner or prisoners to death, as imputed to me by the witnesses for the prosecution, but also, that the words they have alleged me to have made use of, to Lieutenant Gibbard, "I wish you would make a written report and I will forward it to the General, and you will get a compliment, he would like to hear the gun" or words to that effect, are, I regret to be obliged to say a gross fabrication from beginning to end, arising I must suppose, either from the previous ill will manifested towards me by these Gentlemen, or from a desire to palliate Mr. Gibbard's conduct at Kowtanee, on his trial at Poona, regardless of consequences to me, and their endeavours to screen Mr. Gibbard by the means they then adopted, were so far successful, as to induce the members of his court martial, to introduce, as one of the grounds of their recommendation of Mr. Gibbard to the commander in chief's favorable consideration. "The approbation which he sought, and received from the Political superintendent, (under whose orders he acted) from his own immediate commanding officer, (myself,) and those with whom he associated, forgetting as it seems to me that no subsequent approbation of mine could justify, or extenuate, the previous culpable act of which they had found Mr. Gibbard guilty; and that as no part of the responsibility of that act, rested with me, I could have no sufficient motive, to deny on oath before them, my belief and approval of the same. The utmost, gentlemen, that could have been said of such approval on my part, after the offence was committed, by those who might differ with me in opinion, on the point in question was, that I was a man of little feelings, and bad judgment, and there is surely nothing in such opinion of me by others supposing it to have been entertained, to induce me to be guilty of the heinous offence, with which I am now charged before this court.

16th. The impossibility which exists from the time and place, and circumstances, under which the conversation at Vingoria on the 3d or 4th January, 1839, is said to have taken place, of my offering any distinct contradiction to the evidence, given by the witnesses for prosecution, has forced upon me, the necessity of adopting the line of defence I have been compelled to resort to, in this instance, and of showing you from the previous departure of those witnesses from veracity, and from their deep seated ill will towards myself, how little reliance is to be placed in their testimony before you.

16th. Mr. Gibbard has sworn on the prosecution, that on his return to Sawant Warree, after the affair at Kowtanee he reported to Mr. Spooner, what he had done; who highly approved of his conduct and on his cross examination, in answer to the following question, "Do you mean to say that, you reported the whole of your proceedings to that gentlemen including the order you had given, for shooting the four or five Rebel prisoners, whom you state in your examination on the 4th instant, to have been put to death, by your orders at that place, on the 25th December 1838?" has also sworn as follows, "Yes I did, I reported to Mr. Spooner, that I had ordered the four or five prisoners taken at Kowtanee, on the 25th December to be shot, and that they were shot accordingly."

17th. Mr. Spooner, who certainly did not shrink from responsibility, in his evidence on Mr. Gibbard's trial, and whose testimony, has been much relied on, in regard to its generally favourable tendency to him, was asked the following question, as already recorded: in the proceedings at this court, on that occasion, "Did you afterwards hear, that after he had been informed of the putting to death of Gundee Purub, that other prisoners had been shot to death, and when did you do so?" and his answer runs thus, "I did hear so, but not at that time. It was about the month of April, when it reached me through a private conversation with an officer totally unconnected with the Warree state," that is gentlemen, about four months after the transaction had actually occurred.

18th. The question immediately preceding the one just quoted, was this, "Did Lieut. Gibbard report that Gundee Purub had been put to death by his orders?"

To which the following was Mr. Spooner's answer, according to the copy of Mr. Gibbard's trial furnished me by the Judge Advocate General, which seems to require some trifling correction. "Lieut. Gibbard reported that the Sawant Warree Irregulars had been seized, and that he told them, that as they had been ordered by him not to take Prisoners, they were to take Gundee Purub away as he did not wish to have any thing to do with him, and that afterwards, Gundee Purub, was shot by the Irregular Sepoys, that he did not see him himself."

19th. And Lieut. Gibbard in his letter to Mr. Secretary Willoughby, of the 4th June 1839, proved on his court martial at Poona on the seventh day of its sitting 9th January 1840, and recorded in the proceedings of this court, writes, with reference to the four or five Rebel Prisoners then alluded to for the first time by him, as follows. "I told the Jamadars to obey the orders they had received, and not to bring the men to me, I saw none of them except the man who was released. The rest were taken by the Irregulars and shot."

20th. And in answer to the following question, put to him on the present Trial. "Did ever you see any of the Prisoners before they were shot, I mean, were they all or any of them brought to you, either by the men of the 16th Regiment N. I. or of the Sawant Warree Irregulars, before you ordered them to be executed?"

Lieut. Gibbard says "Yes, they were brought up within ten or fifteen paces of the House in which I was, and were taken away immediately, I do not remember seeing any of the Prisoners, excepting the man who was released. There was a great assembly around them, consisting of a few regular, and a great many Irregular Sepoys."

21st. Havildar Pandoojee Chowan, 16th Regiment N. I. has told the court, that he took six prisoners to Lieut. Gibbard at Kowtanee, that Lieut. Gibbard was standing near a Banyan's shop, and that the prisoners were brought within two paces of him, and that he saw the whole, and you will no doubt gentlemen remember that when I was about to put a farther question to the Havildar, with the view of establishing that Gundee Purub was one of the six Prisoners, so brought into Lieut. Gibbard's presence, and one of the five afterwards shot to death by Lieut. Gibbard's orders, the court said they were satisfied of that fact, and that I need not press that point further. The Havildar had also stated, in answer to a question put to him by the court. That they (meaning all the six Prisoners) were brought near enough to Lieut. Gibbard for him to see them, that he cast his eyes towards them, and that there was no obstruction between them, and further in answer to another question from the court. That he brought the Prisoners up to him (Lieut. Gibbard) and said, Sir, I have brought these Prisoners, and pointed them out to him.

22nd. Ramjee Palanday, a Private in the same regt, who was one of the party, which accompanied the Havildar, and Prisoners to Lieut. Gibbard, has also stated to you, Gentlemen, that he took six Prisoners to Lieut. Gibbard, that Lieut. Gibbard was standing twenty paces below the House of Narroo Kumla, that he took them within two or three paces of him, and that he could see them.

23rd. Mahdoo Ghan, a Fiddler attending Nautches, says that he was taken Prisoner by the Detachment under Lieut. Gibbard's orders at Kowtanee, that they tied his hands, and took him into the presence of Lieut. Gibbard, that five Prisoners were taken before Lieut. Gibbard, that he (Lieut. Gibbard) was standing near to Narroo Kumla's House, and that himself (i. e. the Fiddler) and the other Prisoners, were brought as near to him as the door in this court, to him he then pointed and which on being measured, was found to be eight or nine paces or about six yards, off, and that he Lieut. Gibbard saw them all. Mahdoo Ghan further states, in answer to a question from the court, "were you all bound when brought into Lieut. Gibbard's presence?" "Yes we were all bound."

24th. I beg gentlemen, here to draw your attention to the fact, that the three native witnesses, to whose evidence before this court, I have referred above, viz. Havildar Pandoojee Chowan, Private Ramjee Palanday and Mahdoo Ghan, Fiddler, were all brought forward as evidences for the prosecution, in Mr. Gibbard's trial, by the Judge Advocate General, who thus speaks of them in his reply to Mr. Gibbard's defence on that occasion. "The only witness on the prosecution, whose statement of circumstances is attempted to be impugned by contrary evidence, on the defence, is Mahdoo Ghan, the native Fiddler who was taken along with the executed prisoners at Kowtanee, and afterwards released. But on a full and fair review of what is deposed to by that person, I will venture to maintain that his testimony on all material points, is deserving of credit, making those just allowances for discrepancies, to which not only native, but European witnesses, far more accustomed to judicial examination, than he can possibly be, are not liable, but have frequently fallen into, without any sinister or evil motive being attributed to them."

25th. Making then, also in the present case that fair allowance for discrepancies, which the Judge Advocate General admits to be just, on all occasions, and taking also into account, the state of alarm, in which Madoo Ghan naturally stood, before Lieut. Gibbard, when his life or death hung by a thread, you will have no difficulty in reconciling his statement in regard to the distance at which he was placed from Lieut. Gibbard, with that given by the more collected witness, Pandoojee Chowan, and Ramjee Palunday, nor in accounting for other trifling differences that are perceptible, in some parts of the evidence of the two last mentioned individuals. I did not read for any one of these witnesses their testimony became accidentally placed within my reach, and I have used it as a proof of the little dependence you can have, on the statements Mr. Gibbard has thought fit to make, on this portion of the Kowtanee affair, at different times, and in corroboration also, of the little claim he possesses to your belief generally.

26th. I have said, gentlemen, in an earlier stage of my defence, Para. 19, that the first time Mr. Gibbard ever alluded to the destruction of more than one prisoner, was on the 4th June 1839, and thus as it appears to me, is a very important point to be attended to, by this court at the present time. This one prisoner, was Gundee Purub and him, and him only, did Mr. Gibbard mention to Mr. Spooner, as having been put to death at Kowtanee, by his Mr. Gibbard's orders, on his return to that gentleman, at Sawunt Warree, two or three days after that event took place, and by Mr. Gibbard's silence on that occasion, in regard to the other four prisoners, as well as in all latter time, Mr. Spooner was allowed to continue in entire ignorance of the putting to death of any other prisoners at Kowtanee, until he heard of the circumstance, through a private conversation, with an Officer totally unconnected with the Warree state, about four months afterwards.

27th. To Lieutenant Munro and Esign Raitt also, one prisoner only was mentioned by Mr. Gibbard, as having been put to death at Kowtanee when he returned to Vingorla ten days after the affair at the former place had occurred; and this one prisoner Lieutenant Munro and Esign Raitt afterwards understood from Mr. Gibbard, to be Gundee Purub, and no one, as far as I have been able to discover, and have already stated above, ever heard from Mr. Gibbard of more persons than the individual, having been put to death by his orders there, until after the circumstance became matter of such general notoriety in Bombay, as to render concealment no longer possible, and then Mr. Gibbard admits in his letter to Government, dated 4th June 1839, in reply to an official call for explanation, in respect to his proceedings at Kowtanee, that four or five prisoners were shot there by his orders, on the 25th December or Christmas day 1838, but he adds at the same time, with a degree of confidence, to which this court must be able by this time to assign its just value, "I saw none of them except the man who was injured."

28th. What gentlemen, but an inward conviction of wrong doing, could lead Mr. Gibbard to maintain an unbroken silence, and especially towards Mr. Spooner, who had not been slow to approve his conduct generally in regard to the four other prisoners, besides Gundee Purub shot to death by his orders, for upwards of five months after their decease, and then, only discloses the fact, when longer concealment was beyond his power, and how then, gentlemen, can you, if you believe, as I honestly do, that this was the feeling that influenced Mr. Gibbard's conduct, during that period, for a moment suppose, on his authority, that I approved the wanton destruction of life, that he was at so much pains to conceal,

29th. Lieutenant Rigby, and Lieutenant Orrok have both told you, in their examination for the defence, on the 4th day's meeting of 8th August, that Lieutenant Munro mentioned Lieutenant Gibbard's affair at the mess of the 18th regiment N. I. to which they all belong, a very few days after his arrival in Bombay from Vingorla towards the end of February last year (1839) and Lieutenant Rigby has further added, on cross examination, in reply to a question from the officiating Judge Advocate. "He had been relating different things that had taken place at Warree, and in the course of this conversation, he also mentioned, what I have before stated. He appeared to have heard of it before he came to Bombay, and was giving it to us, as news."

30th. Both Lieutenant Rigby and Lieut. Orrok had as the Court will probably recollect, though the circumstance was not recorded, a strong impression on their minds, though they could not speak positively of the fact at the time of their examination here, that Lieutenant Munro mentioned the affair at Kowtanee, as they have respectively related it, on the first day of his return to Bombay, and connecting this circumstance with a conversation which Lieutenant Jopp, as I have since discovered, states in answer to question No. 306 in the Court of Inquiry on my conduct last year, to have taken place at the Mess on the day of Lieutenant Munro's arrival in Bombay from Vingorla, and which Lieutenant Rigby and Lieutenant Orrok both remember to have taken place at the same time, that Lieut. Munro mentioned the Kowtanee affair there, no doubt can exist, that his narrative of that affair, also occurred as they had previously supposed, on the very day of his return to Bombay. This is an important fact to bear in mind, in relation to matters of a somewhat later date, for notwithstanding the account Lieutenant Munro had given of the destruction of life after capture or surrender, by Lieutenant Gibbard, at Kowtanee, on the 25th December 1838, on his first appearance in Bombay as above, and which a certificate from the Town Major appended to this defence, fixes at the 23d February 1839, we find him forgetting, whether conveniently or otherwise, you, Gentlemen, are to determine, that he had any previous knowledge of the Kowtanee affair, as soon as an investigation appeared likely to be entered on respecting it.

31st. Lieutenant Rigby says, in answer to a question I put to him on the 4th day of the court's sitting. "On returning from Parrell, I mentioned to Lieutenant Orrok in Lieut. Munro's presence, having heard the subject of Mr. Gibbard having put men to death, talked of at Parrell; and that it was likely to be a serious thing." "Lieut. Munro said I am sure it cannot be true.—I hope for Gibbard's sake it is not true," and Lieutenant Orrok says, in answer to a question of corresponding import, with that put to Lieutenant Rigby. "I recollect Mr. Munro being present, when Lieut. Rigby mentioned that the affair had been talked of at Parrell, and he (Mr. Munro) said I shall be very sorry if it is the case on account of poor Gibbard, or some words to that effect. And yet Lieut. Munro, gentlemen, is the same individual, who now wishes you to believe, that he never saw any harm in the Kowtanee affair, and that I went the full length of approving it, and wished to obtain a compliment for Mr. Gibbard, from superior authority, for his conduct on that occasion.

32nd. Lieutenant Rigby gives an account of a later interview with Lieut. Munro, in the early part of the month of May 1839, in the following words "Lieut. Munro came into my tent, I think the evening before we assembled at Colonel Capon's quarters, to state what we knew about Mr. Gibbard's affair and said, "I understand you are going to say that I have been

"speaking at the mess, about Gibbard's putting men to death. You know I have never said a word about it, I made it a rule not to speak on the subject. You must have dreamt it, you know you must; haven't you? I replied Munro if I am questioned, I must state what I have heard; and to the next question, viz.—"What object did Lieut. Munro appear to you to have in addressing you as described in your answer, to my last question," Lieutenant Rigby replies, "It appeared to me, that he wished to disavow all knowledge of the subject, as it was likely to come under investigation and he tells you in his next answer, that the account Mr. Munro gave at the Mess, was the first he (Mr. Rigby) heard of Mr. Gibbard's putting men to death."

33rd. Lieutenant Munro's visit to Lieut. Rigby, not having been altogether so satisfactory, as he desired, he proceeded the next morning to Lieut. Orrok's Tent, and without telling him, that he had seen Mr. Rigby the preceding evening, said to the best of Lieut. Orrok's recollection, "Fancy, that fellow Rigby has been telling Capt. Duff that I have been relating the story at the Mess, about Gibbard's affair at Kowtanee. He went on then to say that he had not said anything of the kind at the Mess. I made no reply to this, and soon after he asked me if I heard him. I then said to him, as I understood there was to be an investigation about it, I did not wish to be hauled in as an evidence, but as he asked me, I would say that I heard him mention it at the Mess, I believe he then said, that he did not recollect it," this was all that occurred.

34th. Having proceeded thus far into an examination of Lieutenant Munro's aptness to remember, or forget as circumstances make it convenient to him at the moment, I must draw your particular attention, Gentlemen, to the answer he gave to my question on cross-examination, on the second day of the court's sitting, respecting his visit to Mr. Rigby, on the evening preceding the Assembly of the Officers of the 16th Regiment N. I at Colonel Capon's quarters. Lieutenant Munro's reply is in the following words. "No I do not recollect speaking to Mr. Rigby on the subject, but I asked Mr. Orrok if he ever heard me. He said, Yes.—I then told him that I understood Mr. Rigby had been saying, that I mentioned something at the Mess, one evening regarding the Kowtanee affair, I told him that I did not recollect a word about having said so at the Mess, I asked him if he heard me, and he said he had, and moreover he told me, he had before I mentioned it, heard of the affair from Capt. Duff, himself; that I might make use of his name, that he had so heard it. This occurred on the morning of the day, when the Officers met at Colonel Capon's quarters.

35th. The visit to Lieut. Rigby, having reference to the same subject, as the visit to Lieut. Orrok, and the latter having indeed as it appears to me, been a consequence of the former, it is difficult to understand, how one should be altogether forgotten, and the other distinctly remembered, particularly as they both occurred at a time, that must be strongly marked in Lieut. Munro's mind, viz., immediately preceding the assembling of the officers at Colonel Capon's quarters, and were connected with a subject of great interest to him at that moment, viz. the investigation into the Kowtanee affair; but this, Gentlemen, is not the important point on which I am anxious to fix your attention, though it is I conceive entitled to a considerable weight in the general estimate you are to form of Lieut. Munro's memory and veracity at this time. The evidence, which I desire to place prominently before you is the concluding part of Lieut. Munro's last answer, volunteered as it seems to me, for the purpose of fixing me, with a communication to Lieut. Orrok, which I shall show you by and by, it was impossible I could have made, even if the flat contradiction which Lieut.

Orrok gives to this part of Lieut. Munro's Testimony, had not been forthcoming, to set that point at rest, in every candid and unbiased mind. The words were these, and moreover he, (that is Lieut. Orrok) told me he had, before I mentioned it, heard of the affair from Captain Duff himself, that I might make use of his name that he had so heard it. This occurred in the morning of the day when the officers met at Colonel Capon's quarters.

36th. Let us now see, what Lieut. Orrok himself says on this subject. He was examined on the fourth day of the court's sitting, and two days after Lieut. Munro's deposition on oath, as above, on the following questions were put to him, and answers given by him, on that occasion.

Q. "Did you ever tell Lieut. Munro, that you had heard of the Kowtanee affair, before he mentioned it at the Mess?"

A. "No certainly not.—I mean about the prisoner being killed."

Q. "Did you ever tell Lieut. Munro that you had before he mentioned it, heard of the affair from me, and that he might make use of your name?"

A. "No certainly not!"

Q. "From whom did you first hear the account of the Prisoner alluded to being killed?"

A. "From Lieut. Munro."

37th. Thus, gentlemen, you have a distinct denial by Lieut. Orrok, of the statement made by Lieut. Munro, and as he declared, on Lieut. Orrok's authority:—Both Lieut. Orrok and Lieut. Rigby have told you, that the first account they heard of the destruction of life at Kowtanee, was from Lieut. Munro, very shortly after his arrival, and I have fixed this communication, to have been made on the very day of his arrival, the 23rd February 1839, just six days anterior to my departure from Vingoria, which I left with the remainder of the detachment, that had been for some time under my orders there, on the morning of the 1st March 1839, and sixteen days anterior to my arrival in Bombay, which took place on the 11th March 1839 as proved by the certificate from the officer (Captain Cotgrave), at present in charge of the Town Major's Office, appended to these sheets.

38th. I will now pass on to the evidence of Major Cathcart, 10th Regt. N. I. on the fifth day's sitting of the court, Tuesday 11th August, which runs as follows.

Q. Have you had any opportunity of forming an opinion, on the accuracy of Mr. Munro's recollection of past transactions?

A. Yea.

Q. Do you think he is accurate in his memory or otherwise?

A. During the time Lieut. Munro was an evidence at a Court of Enquiry of which I was President, he appeared to forget many things, until he was cross examined, and then appeared to recollect them—This can be seen, by referring to the court of Enquiry in question.

Q. Was his memory equally bad, when the circumstances were favorable to, as when they were unfavourable to the accused?

A. His memory was generally very bad, regarding any thing that was favourable to Captain Duff, otherwise he appeared to recollect things very well.

39th. And here, gentlemen, relying on my right to put any questions to this witness which were calculated to establish proof of previous ill will to me on the part of Lieut. Munro, I was proceeding to ask one, which would have drawn forth, a faithful detail of all the falsehoods told by Mr. Munro at the Court of Enquiry that sat on my conduct last year, but was overruled by the Court, on the ground of this being a collateral issue, into which I was not entitled to enter, and also I understood the matter because Mr. Munro's Testimony there, not having been given upon oath, he could not be made legally responsible, for what he had seen fit to state on that occasion. I have mislaid the question overruled, and am therefore unable to place it as I desired to do, on record here. Its rejection, however, appears to have arisen out of an objection taken to the last question, put to Major Cathcart by the Officiating Judge Advocate, after both questions and answer had been recorded, as I gather from the minute of the Proceedings in closed Court, read by that officer in open Court, when I tendered the further question, also mentioned "The Court is here closed and the Officiating Judge Advocate states to them, that not having perceived the drift of the last question put by the Prisoner to Major Cathcart, he did not object to it. It appears to be one, however, which he considers objectionable on the ground of its tendency to impeach the credit of the witnesses, Lieutenant Munro, on a particular collateral fact, instead of bearing against his general character for veracity. He therefore begs to suggest to the Court that the question and answer referred to, be struck out of its proceedings. The votes of the Court are here taken on the matter and they decide on the question and answer remaining as they have been put on record, but that no other question of a similar nature shall be allowed to be put to any other witness."

40th. Lieutenant Prendergast, 10th Regiment Native Infantry was the next witness examined by me. To my first question, "Have you had any opportunity of forming an opinion of the accuracy of Mr. Munro's recollection of past events?" He answered—"Yes, I have"—and to the second question, "Do you think he is accurate in his memory or not?" he replied I should say very inaccurate. The third question that I desired to put to Lieutenant Prendergast, viz. "Have you had any opportunity of forming an opinion of the accuracy of Lieutenant Munro's memory, in matters in which my interests have been concerned?"—Having also been overruled by the Court, I concluded it was unnecessary to proceed further with the examination of this witness, and his evidence here terminated on my behalf.

41st. Another avenue to the exposure of the unsparing ill will and want of veracity of Lieutenant Munro in respect to myself, was thus closed upon me; but I feel confident, not before the veil had been sufficiently withdrawn, and that by the Testimony of one, who held the situation of President of the Court of Inquiry, by which I was fully and honorably acquitted. To satisfy this Court, of the foul character of the evidence, I am called again this day to refute.

42d. To revert again, to Lieutenant Munro's Testimony on the last day of the Court's sitting; I was desirous of putting the following question to Lieutenant Munro after the officiating Judge Advocate, had sworn him as witness on my behalf. "Have you ever so spoken or acted in regard to my professional character, as a Brother Officer, as to draw down upon you the marked disapprobation of the General Officer in Command of the Army?" but was stopped by the Officiating Judge Advocate, on the ground that I was not allowed to discredit my own witnesses; Lieutenant Munro Gentlemen, had been a witness for the Prosecution, and though I might not be strictly entitled to re-examine; him, on his original Oath, as such Witness after my Cross Examination of him was over, I believe that the indulgence of re-examination is very seldom, if ever denied to a Prisoner, either by the Court or the official Prosecutor on the part of the State—and more especially when the nature of the charge is such, as to leave no means to the prisoner, of direct contradiction of the evidence for the Prosecution, from the parties who are to support it, having so laid their accusation that no direct Testimony, but their own, should be procurable.—The re-awearing therefore of Lieutenant Munro in this instance, appears to me to have been unnecessary, and only calculated, still further to counteract the means of defence, on my part.

43d. Bearing Gentlemen, in mind, what no one in this Court, will I am sure gainsay, that the word of an officer and a Gentleman, should be as sacred as his oath, I am reduced, by the denial to me, of the further Testimony of Major Cathcart, Lieutenant Prendergast and Lieutenant Munro to the necessity of placing before you, in the only mode now left me, what I would have proved from the mouths of all those witnesses, in regard to the previous ill feeling towards me of that latter Officer.

44th. I would have shown you in the first place Gentlemen, that the report of my alleged want of energy at the recapture of Warree, on the morning of the 6th November 1838, had its rise in a letter from Lieut. Munro, then Adjutant to the Detachment under my orders, to Captain Crispin written a few days after that date, stating that in my official Report, I had made myself a great Hero, whereas I might just as well have been at Dapoolie* and that notwithstanding his being the author of that letter, he (Lieutenant Munro) has stated, that he was not aware where the Report regarding the Sawunt Warree Affair, relative to my conduct originated, and further, that he had heard the reports injurious to my character, in regard to that transaction, at Vingoria and afterwards at the Mess of the 10th Regiment in Bombay.

45th. Again, I would have shown you, that after Lieutenant Munro, had on one occasion deliberately given an account of my having, in consequence of an express from Warree, ordered him to warn as many men as could be spared, to go to Warree immediately, and stated that though he reported the party was ready, between twelve and one o'clock, and that it did not move till two o'clock, and that he knew of no cause of delay.—He was forced some days afterwards to admit, that the cause of delay was the arrival of a Native Officer's party, after he had reported the other party and that the newly arrived party, were required to get ready with all speed, and eventually marched with them, adding however, with his accustomed convenience of memory, that he did not recollect the thing, when he made his first statement on this subject.

* Sawunt Warree, November 7th 1838.

Sir,—I have the honor for the information of the General Commanding the Division to report that with the detachment under my command I attacked the Fort of this place about four o'clock yesterday morning, captured it, released the Raja son and Prime Minister and took 87 insurgents, disarmed them and then delivered them over to Mr. Spooner the Political Superintendent.

I was in every way greatly assisted by Lieutenant Munro and Ensign Gibbard throughout the whole affair. To morrow after leaving fifty additional men of the detachment under Ensign Gibbard, according to a requisition made by the Political Superintendents march to Vingoria.

I have the honour, &c.

To Capt. DUNACK, Depy. Assist. Qr. Mr. Genl. S. Army, Belgium.

46th.—Again, I have shown you, that although Lieutenant Munro, could with equal deliberation state that this party proceeding to the relief of Warree, marched slowly and slower than usual; and that the only way he could account for it, was, that I was riding an old horse and the road was rather bad, after leaving the main road, he was at a latter date, compelled to admit, that the party with me, had forty rounds of ammunition in their pouches, and eleven spare-boxes of ammunition carried on Biggeries whom he was several times, obliged to tell; chull chull.

47th.—Again that having told Captain Cripps, that I remained on this occasion, a very long time at the bottom of the Malegam Ghaut, smoking cheroots, if not two hours, certainly more than one hour, Lieut. Munro was subsequently obliged to allow, that the reason of my waiting so long at the Malegam Pass, was, that I was waiting for torches, that there were reports of insurgents being near the ghaut, that I put a Subedar's party in front, and loaded them as an advanced guard,—that it was very dark at that time with drizzling rain, and that the report of the insurgents being about the ghaut, was brought by a native horseman, who brought a letter from Mr. Gibbard, to Lieutenant Munro himself during the time the detachment was so halted for torches, at the foot of the ghaut.

48th.—Again, I would have shown this court, that although when Warree was retaken from the insurgents, I might, on Lieutenant Munro's authority in writing, as well have been at Daponee, admissions were extracted from him in Bombay, that he believed, I went round the Fort before I went to sleep,—that if he recollected rightly; I told him that I did, and at last a direct acknowledgment, that I did tell him so in the evening of the detachment's arrival at Warree before I went to sleep, and further that he was obliged to admit, that he believed, I had a conversation with Mr. Spooner, about scaling ladders before I went to sleep, but does not recollect having heard me so speak, that it was to the heat of his Lieutenant Munro's recollection arranged that he should nail the bag of gunpowder to the gate of Warree, in the morning before I went to sleep; that I was with the political agent, and the detachment when it marched to the attack of Warree in the morning, that when Lieutenant Munro was nailing the bag of powder to the gate, the detachment was about thirty or forty paces from him, and that I was with it,—that when the gate was opened I came up with the detachment, and the political Superintendent, and further again, that previous to my going to sleep which Lieut. Munro thought was about half past 12 o'clock I partook of supper with him, Mr. Gibbard, Ensign Raitt, and Mr. Spooner, and that we were conversing about the intended attack in the morning, that Lieut. Munro, believed he, was with me, at the opposite side of the Brigade, when the peon lighted the match that a party was placed over the gate, when the detachment got possession, and that I being present, it must have been so placed by my orders.

49th.—The above gentlemen, are some of the statements and subsequent admissions, which Lieut. Munro would have been compelled to acknowledge, had I been permitted to examine him to those points before you; but Major Cathcart, and Lieut. Prondargast, besides confirming the foregoing, would have told you on the authority of the native Commissioner, and non Commissioned Officers and Privates, composing the detachment, of which according to Lieut. Munro's account, I was an useless and unworthy a head, that during the time Lieut. Munro was nailing the bag of gunpowder to the gate, I was constantly at his side, that when the peon lighted the match, Lieut. Munro and myself were standing together on the bridge, that the whole party was loaded in the bazar at Warree on our arrival there, about 10 o'clock in the evening immediately preceding our capture (or 5th November 1838) that Lieutenant Munro, Mr. Spooner, Mr. Gibbard and myself were standing together at the time and that the party was loaded by Lieut. Munro himself, by my order, that a Jemadar's party was placed there as evening by me. At the large gate of Warree, that a Subedar's party was placed at the Kates gate, I visited the different posts several times during the night, that when the wicket of the large gate was opened after the explosion of the powder, Lieut. Munro and myself, were the persons, who went up to push, and keep it open, and that we entered the Fort together through that gate. In short, that I performed every duty that belonged to my situation, as the Officer in command of the detachment, throughout the whole affair.

50th. Again, I would have shown you, in further proof of the little pretension Mr. Gibbard can advance to the virtue of veracity; and his proneness to romanticism even when the character of a Brother Officer is at stake, that although he could write a letter from Warree, to Lieutenant Munro at Vingorla, immediately after the attack of the insurgents, on my small party of twenty-one men at the foot of the Malegam pass on the 21st December 1838, but of which I was not informed, until my arrival in Bombay in March 1839, containing the following passage:—"Very bad Duff's running, he passed upwards of twenty strong houses where he might have defeated a thousand men, and one hour afterwards I had the road clear,—and could state in the presence of Lieutenant Munro and myself, at Vingorla, on his return there in January 1839, that he was in possession of both the pass and bottom of the Ghaut at 9 and of the 21st December, 1838,—that he Mr. Gibbard, was obliged to admit, after some hesitation on my then flatly contradicting him, and telling him it was impossible, that he was not there himself, but that Subedar Gunna-jee Pakur, was the Subedar and his party, even not having left Warree till half past ten o'clock that morning, an hour and half after Mr. Gibbard and he was in possession of both the pass and bottom of the Ghaut, and Mr. Gibbard not having quitted Warree at all.

51st. Again, I would have shown you, that Lieutenant Munro after having stated that in the affair at the Malegam Pass on the 21st December 1838, three men out of four Sepoys and two Biggeries were wounded in the back, with the evident intention of bringing discredit on the whole party, myself included, was obliged to admit, that he had frequently, previous to the assertion so made, visited the wounded in hospital, and that not one of the four wounded Sepoys, was wounded in the back, but all in places, which showed they were fronted to the enemy, when they received their wounds.

52d. Again, I would have shown that Lieutenant Munro, and Ensign Raitt had both given currency to reports, that the men belonging to the above party, had said they would not go on service with me again, which on investigation turned out to be totally void of foundation, the men distinctly denying they had ever said any thing of the kind, and stating without a moment's hesitation, that they were ready to go with me on service, any where.

53d. Again I would have shown you, that Ensign Raitt's memory is occasionally, from some cause or other, of a very defective character—its great accuracy on some points, and the total want of recollection of others, occurring at the same time, and connected with the same subject, where different interests prevail with many other matters, on which I need not occupy your attention at this late period, though I cannot avoid alluding in the last place, as connected with the previous ill feeling of Lieutenant Munro and Ensign Raitt towards me, that I would have shown you, how frequently the former was reminded by the Court of Inquiry of the necessity of giving a direct answer, to a plain and simple question,—how different it was to extract from him an answer, when his tendency was to do me service, and how fresh his memory was on every matter, that he thought could operate to my disadvantage; and further, the necessity the Court of Inquiry felt themselves under, of bringing the extraordinary discrepancies in the evidence of those witnesses, and their faulty memories in the particular, notice of the Commander of the Forces; * whose sentiments of the whole proceedings of that court in the months of March and April 1839, with reference to my conduct, in the Sawunt Warree country were published to the Army in a General Order dated 1st May 1839, of which the following is a copy.

GENERAL ORDER.

Head Quarters. Bombay, 1st May, 1839.

By MAJOR GENERAL SIR J. F. FITZGERALD, K. C. B.

The commander of the Forces, has had under consideration, the proceeding of a court of inquiry on certain points, connected with the conduct of captain Duff of the 16th regiment N. I., whilst in command of a detachment at Vingoria, and after an attentive perusal of every thing which is therein recorded, it affords him great satisfaction, to express publicly, his entire concurrence in the opinion of the court, which is in every respect, highly honourable to captain Duff.

But in doing justice to that officer, major general Sir John FitzGerald regrets that from the papers before him it becomes his duty, to notice with great disapprobation, the conduct of others of the same regiment junior to Capt. Duff, in respect to the manner in which they have conducted themselves, in the matter lately under investigation.

As one of the younger officers, † whose name appears on the proceedings as having permitted himself to make insinuations against captain Duff, was not examined and therefore had not an opportunity of explanation, the commander of the forces, will not further advert to him and from the short standing in the service of Ensign Raitt, the major general is willing to attribute the impropriety of conduct in that officer, to inexperience and want of consideration.

But the same grounds of excuse cannot be extended to captain Munro and Lieut. Munro, who appear for reasons best known to themselves, to have endeavoured to bring the professional character of their senior brother officer, into disrepute, thereby inducting such improper feelings, both as officers and Private individuals, as renders it unnecessary for the commander of the forces, to make any further remarks.

In concluding these observations major general Sir John FitzGerald, cannot strongly impress the indispensable necessity, of officers placed in command of maintaining the strictest controul and of checking at the instant, the slightest mark of disobedience in whatsoever rank, so on this principle hang the mainstaple of military operations, from the head, all orders should

* The assertions put forth by Captain Duff, in the several paragraphs, viz. No 44 to 53 inclusive, are not mere matter of declamation, introduced into his defence for the purpose of effect only; but refer to facts, which are on record in the proceedings of the Court of Inquiry, that sat on his conduct in March and April 1839, and to which, having been and pursued those proceedings, carefully and attentively, we can bear testimony, of our own immediate knowledge. The Court of Inquiry has been in print since the end of last year (1839).—Editor.

† That is Ensign Gibbard.

emanate, and the senior officer must naturally expect the zealous and active co-operation of all ranks.

By order of major general Sir J. F. FITZGERALD,

K. C. B. commander of the forces.

(Signed) STRATFORD POWELL, lieutenant-colonel;

Adjutant general of the army.

54th. And here let me remind you gentlemen, that all this mischief making of Lieutenant Munro, Ensign Raitt, and Mr. Gibbard, was going on whilst they were officers belonging to a detachment under my immediate command, lieutenant Munro being in direct correspondence with other officers of the regiment at the presidency, and Ensign Raitt and Mr. Gibbard, when absent from the Head-Quarters of the detachment, in like communication with him to the prejudice of my character as an officer and my bearing as a Gentleman. Let me remind you too, that Lieutenant Munro had been at that time upwards of thirteen years in the service and was bound as an officer of greater experience than themselves, and especially as my Adjutant at the time to check, instead of encourage the Junior Officers of the detachment in their endeavours to do me injury with the Regiment at large.

55th. My ignorance of what was then going on around me and my discovery of it after my return to Bombay, will sufficiently account to you, Gentlemen, for my being, as some of these witnesses have told you, on good terms with them, up to the time of our respective departures from Vingoria, and for my afterwards declining the honour of their further acquaintance, as the several parties they had taken in the proceedings to my disadvantage; whilst under my command at Vingoria, because successively developed here.

56th. I will venture confidently to state; in conclusion of my observations, on this prosecution, that there is not a member of this Court, or any individual now within its walls who hearing for the first time of the massacre of a prisoner after surrender by a British officer would give credit to the assertion, or who if the fact were attempted to be pressed upon his belief, would not condemn the act, as I unhesitatingly, and solemnly repeat I did, though the witnesses for the prosecution stoutly deny my having done so.

57th. I have thus gentlemen, commented as far as time has admitted, upon the evidence by which this prosecution has been supported—the evidence of lieutenant Munro, Ensign Raitt, and Mr. Gibbard's evidence, let me beg of you to bear in mind, of such a character as does not admit of direct disapproval, it being confined exclusively, to a conversation alleged to have taken place; when none other than the parties above adverted to, were present, but I confidently leave it to you, gentlemen to determine, whether I have not met that evidence by every species of refutation, to which it is open. Gentlemen, I have met it, by an unequivocal denial of the charge itself.—I have met it, by showing the contradiction, the words I am all-ged to have made use of, viz. "I wish you would make a written report of it, and I will forward it to the general, and you will get a compliment, he would like to hear the gup" involving in themselves, the witnesses for the prosecution admitting, that the act which was to be reported, viz. the destruction of prisoners after surrender, was not an act, that could possibly obtain a compliment from superior authority. I have met it by showing the discrepancies of the witnesses, in respect to the time this alleged conversation is said to have taken place, and the number of prisoners to which it referred, and the anxiety evinced by Mr. Gibbard to conceal the number actually destroyed, until disclosure was forced upon him, by the notoriety of the fact in all quarters, together with direct contradiction of his evidence before this court; and previous assertions elsewhere, on all points open to such contradiction. I have met it by showing the desire manifested by Lieutenant Munro, in his conversation with Lieut. Rigby and Lieut. Orrok to get rid of the recollection of all circumstances, connected with this alleged conversation, and by exposing the contradictions he was led into, in respect to his narration of this transaction at the mess. I have met it, painful as it has been to me to do so, with respect to a brother officer, by calling in the testimony of that officer (Major Cathcart) who as president of the court of inquiry on my conduct last year, and who has unequivocally shown the little dependence that is to be placed on Lieut. Munro's testimony, in any matter in which my interests are concerned, and to which strong confirmation has been given, by his (Lieut. Munro's) endeavour to fix upon me, on Lieutenant Orrok's authority the circulation of a report which, has been so satisfactorily proved, to have emanated from himself. I have met it by showing the previous ill will, of one and all the witnesses for the prosecution towards me, by laying before you, as the only means that remained in my power, when the viva voce examination of the witnesses to the facts was debarred me, a chain of matter which from the wilful suppression of some circumstances, and no less wilful misapplication of others was intended to operate to the calumniation of my character, both as an officer and a gentleman, but in which from circumstances beyond the control of the parties, they happily and signally failed, as the General Order by the Major General Commander of the Forces, of the 1st May 1839, which I have laid before you, abundantly established at this time. I have met it by placing in opposition to the evidence of those witnesses (Lieut. Munro, Ensign Raitt, and Mr. Gibbard) the viva voce testimony of gentlemen, now in Bombay, who have known me for ten, fifteen and twenty years of my life, and who do not hesitate to declare, that the crime with which I am now charged is one of which they think me to be utterly incapable, and I have yet to meet it by appending written testimonials, from numerous other friends in every branch of the public service, who in consequence of absence, I have not been able to bring personally before you, but whose testimony I feel assured, will not on that account be less appreciated by a court composed of members with whom the word of a gentleman is held in the same estimation as his oath, Gentlemen, I might here ask you, in what other way, is it possible for one in my circumstances to meet such a charge; I know of none, and therefore do feel, after the patient hearing this court has so considerately granted me, and for which I beg to offer my grateful acknowledgements that I may now commit without one ungiving apprehension, my case into your hands, in the full assurance, that as in the former instance, and under the same evidence, I met with a complete and honourable acquittal, so will this further investigation redound equally to my honour, and that I shall be again able by your decision, to meet my brother officers and friends, without one stain upon my character, either as an officer or a gentleman.

(Signed) D GEORGE DUFF,
Captain 16th Regiment N. I.

Bombay, 18th August 1840.

(The written testimonials of character reported to above, are printed as appendix of those proceedings, and numbered from Nos. 1 to 9 inclusive.—Editor.

MISCELLANEA.

DORJELLING.—The following favorable account of Dorjelling, will, we are sure, be read with pleasure by many.

I have at length arrived at this "bright spot," after a rather dilatory and fatiguing journey, at the worst season of the year. I do not, however, at all regret the labor or anxiety it has cost me. Dorjelling is a magnificent place—natural magnificence of course I mean, for the houses as yet built are but emulges the best of them, and mere hovels the rest. But the scenery—the beautiful blue mountains that surround us—the snowy range in the distance, visible in fine weather—are magnificent.

The climate too is beautiful. not cold as yet, but pleasantly cool, with the Thermometer at say a mean of 65°. Dorjelling itself, where I now am, is not however quite so beautiful though cooler and healthier than the lower stations in the hills. Punkabarry, the first hill station, is the most beautiful spot I have seen. The front of the Dawk Bungalow looks down from an altitude of 1,600 feet upon the plains of India, as far as the eye can reach. At this season of the year they are intersected with several large and many small mountain streams, tributaries of the Balasun river, which with in a few miles, loses itself in the bosom of the Mahanunda.

The back of the Bungalow looks up to an apparently interminable range of primeval hills covered with forest trees of great size and beauty. The S. E. end of the Bungalow has a beautiful declivity, of several hundred feet, with a rivulet at its base, which would make a beautiful garden. The N. E. end looks out upon the road and some table land upon which store houses, sheds, &c., are built—but the Dawk Bungalow is the only house. Punkabarry is a lovely place, but will not be fit for occupation for some years, until cleared and purified.

The next station is Kurniong, only six miles further up, but 2,400 feet higher than Punkabarry. This is also a magnificent place, but not so beautiful as Punkabarry. There is a very good hotel here kept by Mr. and Mrs. Bellow, whose table is good, and their wines most excellent. I never tasted better in Calcutta.

I stayed here a week, and was very well pleased with my sojourn—a family would be very comfortable here for a season, who might not wish to go further up.

There are some very fine sites hereabouts, and I prophesy that Kurniong, up to Mahulderam, will soon vie with Dorjelling, especially for those who are satisfied with 4,000 to 6,000 feet elevation, which is about the range from Kurniong to Mahulderam. At the latter place, there is a dawki bungalow, but out of repair. It will, however, be put in order next month. Another bungalow is to be built at Senatsh, and then there will be easy travelling to Dorjelling; especially when the new line of road is open, which will be in time for passengers of next season, say 1st March, sooner than which it is not expected that many will leave the plains, and seek the cool retreats of Dorjelling.

The rains being now nearly over, the work of improvement will advance rapidly. Clearances are already making in every direction. Those near my location, for Mr. Bayley and Mr. Cameron, are in a forward state —mine will require 40 feet to be shaved off the top of the hill before I can get a sufficient level to build a house upon.]

The following is a report of my progress up, being 74 hours' work and 16 days by water, not of course including unnecessary halts, occasioned by causes which may be avoided.

CALCUTTA NEW PAPER.—A new weekly is, on the tapis, to be entitled the Weekly Intelligencer. The Editor, it is reported, is a Barrister of the Supreme Court. The price is eight annas per mensem.

THE UNION BANK.—It is said, that it is in contemplation to despatch Mr. Peterson, the Assistant Secretary of the Union Bank, to Singapore, with the funds necessary to establish a branch Union Bank at that settlement, where, the want of some establishment of that kind is said to be much felt.

DR ORRISON.—The army have supported the General Management of the Orphan Institution and, by very large majority, removed Mr. Grierson from the Office of Home Secretary. We cannot but pity the individual, though his own manifest contumacy has brought matters to this pass. The army have, however, done wisely for the welfare of the Institution imperatively demanded that this step should be taken.

CHILD FOUND IN THE STREETS.—This morning while passing through Theatre Street, at the head of Jaun-Bazar Lane, we observed the dead body, of a new-born European male child lying on the side of the road. It appeared to have been thus cast away by its unnatural mother immediately after birth during the night, and we cannot but wonder exceedingly, that the vigilance of the ever watchful menials of the Police, did not detect and apprehend the individual who was concerned in the business. Happy are we to think, that circumstances similar to the above are of rare occurrence in this place.

STEAM NAVIGATION.—A desperate war has been waging during the month, between Messrs. Fulton and Greenlaw, respecting the proceedings and declarations of each other in re-steam affairs. As our readers, however, can not take any interest in such a discussion, and can carry very little how many times Mr. Fulton has contradicted himself, or Mr. Greenlaw has shown him up, we merely mention that such a contest has been carried on, and drop the subject.

THE KUTRA.—In consequence of a statement which appeared in the Hurkara, the missionaries have been directed to liberate several women from the small lock-up-house, who had been cruelly confined there for the greater part of their lives. Some of these wretches, it is said, have been so long confined there, as to be loath to leave it to brave the troubles of the world, of which they have hardly any knowledge.

THE NEPAULESE.—The following is an extract of a letter from Simla, dated 26th September, 1840:—

"You may not perhaps have heard that 200 of the Nusserees battalion, under their Adjutant, Lieutenant O'Brien, are to march from this on Monday, for Thokegurb, to watch the Nepalese, a small party of whom, are said to have entered Ghunawur. The marching of our troops I can answer for, for they are now encamped here, having left Subathoo yesterday. There is a report that the remainder of the regiment, has been ordered to hold itself in readiness, to march at a moment's notice, and further that two regiments from Kurnaul are to be stationed here, neither of which I believe, but may amuse the public."

PRICE OF GRAIN AT AKYAB.—The annexed price current of grain, as sold in the Akyab districts, has been obligingly forwarded to us by an intelligent gentleman, in Arracan; and we give it insertion in our columns, being anxious to encourage traders to visit a coast, the fertility of which has, of late years, under the able superintendence of the present commissioner, been very considerably increased, and by such visits not only to benefit the provinces, but very much to enrich themselves:—

ON DIP.—Report says, that the despatches brought out in H. M. Ship Childers, are of greater importance than the public are aware of. In consequence of the information contained in them, Government are going to charter a number of other vessels for the transport of troops.

A SHOOTING AFFAIR.—The following account of a boy shot with a pistol, has been given to us by a person, who was partially a witness to the affair. It appears that on Sunday evening last, several boys were amusing themselves with firing off squibs in the street just opposite the house of a Mr. B——, at Casapara, in Kuldjipore, when Mr. B came out with a cane, and thrashed the boys off the place. Amongst others he struck a boy who was the brother of a woman named Curreeemun. This woman was indignant at the outrageous conduct of Mr. B. and demanded why he had struck her brother, to which he replied by giving her a few cuts with the same stick, as also her husband, who came up to protect his wife. Mr. B. then retired to his house under a shower of abusive epithets discharged by the woman, who continued thus to exercise her lungs with less and less restraint. Mr. B. came out a second time from his house, armed with a pistol loaded with small shot. This, he fired in the direction of the woman. A few of the shots struck the woman, and a few also struck a coolie who was sitting in his shop opposite, but the grater number lodged in the face and head of a boy named Wazeer, between ten and twelve years old, who happened to be between Mr. B. and the woman, who, upon receiving the shot, fell down in a state of insensibility. A police officer of the district being informed of the circumstance, came to take Mr. B. into custody, but the latter threatened to shoot whoever attempted to enter his house or lay violent hands on him. The officer placed a few men to watch the house of Mr. B., to prevent any attempt on his part to escape, and went and communicated the affair to the magistrate. This gentleman soon proceeded to the spot with a party of sepoy and managed to secure Mr. B., who, it appeared, was somewhat intoxicated on the occasion. The boy, we hear, has been removed to a hospital, where he is likely to do well.

RAJAH OF VIZIANAGRAM.—We understand, that His Highness the Rajah of Vizianagram and suite, are on their way in the Steamer from Benares, to pay a visit to the City of Palaces—they are expected here daily.

THE ENGLISHMAN.—We are sorry to see that our cotemporary of the Englishman has failed, and been incarcerated in jail previous to taking the benefit of the insolvent act. Alas! that splendid opportunity Mr. Storqueler has had of making a fortune, should have been thrown away in the manner that it has been.

THE PUPILS OF THE MILITARY ORPHAN SCHOOL.—We have been credibly informed that the statement, which has gone the round of the press, respecting the removal of the boys of the Military Orphan School, to the Calcutta High School, is wholly unfounded in truth. Such a measure never was even contemplated, nor have the Managers of the Orphan Institution been convinced, that the Calcutta High School is the very best seminary in Calcutta.

STEAM NAVIGATION.—A meeting of the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund, took place on the 10th instant, when Mr. Greenlaw laid before the Members a letter from Capt. Bulen, the corresponding Member of the Madras Committee, intimating an unanimous resolution on their part "to act in conjunction with the New Bengal Steam Fund Committee." The Committee have, of course, responded most cordially to this.

A Sub-Committee was appointed to consider the best mode of proceeding towards carrying into effect the resolution of the last half-yearly meeting of the Subscribers to the Fund, requiring the Committee to use their best endeavours towards obtaining shareholders to Mr. Cuthbert's Company. The Comprehensives have, therefore now, through dint of perseverance, nearly accomplished the laudable undertaking in which they have embarked, and we most sincerely wish them success.

THE KUTTRA.—In consequence of the discussions which have lately appeared in the papers relative to the kuttra, the magistrates met yesterday afternoon when Mr. Blaquiere observed, that the newspaper statements were in the main correct.

The poor girl Hubbes, is aged about 15 or 16 years, she is dumb and helpless, and has no relations. She resides with Mrs. Raspberry, the keeper of the kuttra, for whom she has an affection as a child to its mother.

Nancy was brought to the kuttra at the age of 9 years. She is now about 14, healthy and stout. Her mistress refused to take her back. She is now at liberty, and has chosen to stay with Begum Ameen, who is deputy keeper of the Kuttra.

Luckhee was also about 9 years old when brought in. She was rescued from the hands of a prostitute and kept here, having no means of support or shelter. She is at liberty and resides with Begum Ameen.

Joolsona, was confined first for stealing spoons, and has since been kept there having no one to take care of her. She is now living with Begum Ameen.

Rozes, was about 8 years old when brought in. She was accused of stealing from her master, who refused to take her back into his service, or provide for her in any way. She chose to reside with Khassiah Ameen.

Gowree, was kidnapped at Buncourah, to be taken to the Mauritius. She was about 8 years old when brought in, and is now at Begum Ameen's at her own request.

Juliana, was 7 years old when brought in by a Portuguese gentleman. She is now at Mrs. Verdony's who says she is her godmother.

Mungles, was brought in by a man named Chuttee, who said she had been sold to a prostitute, and kept here for protection. She is now at Begum Ameen's.

Panos, was made over to her sister 2 months ago.

These poor children were taken charge of about the dates mentioned in the newspapers. No one has ever applied, for their release. If any respectable party had applied, the children would of course have been made over to them. Mr. Blaquiere found it impossible to get respectable persons who were willing to take them into service, or as apprentices.

In 1836, when Omdah Khenum was deprived of a great number of poor children (about 20 or 30) brought up from Lucknow, the greatest difficulty was felt in disposing of them. A separate house was hired for them adjoining the Kuttra, the expense of which was defrayed by Government. They would have staid in the Kuttra had there been room for them. They were here one year.

The children above described are certainly now in a more advanced state than when they were first brought in, and are better qualified to take care of themselves. It was only lately that Mr. Blaquiere had understood that they had personally applied to be released, having been before apparently well contented with their quarters. They were, in fact, not kept as prisoners; if they had been, his proceedings could not have been defended on legal grounds; but he was well assured that the poor children have hitherto been kept out of harm, and is quite certain that they have been uniformly in the very best of health and have been kindly treated.

It has been the practice of the Police at all times to give shelter and protection to orphan and destitute children. After the inundation, which took place in 1832, a great many destitute children (in 1833—34 and in 1834—37) were bought by the Police and were disposed of to respectable parties who applied for them, and who engaged to give them up in case they should be claimed by their relatives. These children were kept in the Kuttra until they could be so disposed of.

ASSAM TEA COMPANY.—Few of our readers perhaps know, that the Assam Tea Company are building a fine little vessel at Howrah, about ninety feet long, for the purpose of running up the Assam river to the tea plantations belonging to the Company, and bringing cargoes of Tea up to Calcutta for consumption here or exportation. The Company are also erecting at Howrah a saw mill which came out in the Malcolm some days ago, in which is intended for their settlement in Assam.

SURVEYING EXPEDITION.—The schooner Eagle, under Captain Fill, is going on or about the 20th instant, on a surveying expedition to the Eastward, on which she is expected to be engaged some months—Capt. Lloyd, in the surveying vessel, Lady William Bentinck, with the Hatras, Captain Weston, in company, is going to run down to the Westward, for a similar purpose—Captain Lloyd starts on or about the 1st proximo.

THE LATE "MOONSHEDABAD NEWS"—Our readers no doubt still recollect the proceedings entered into at the close of 1838, by the Magistrate of the station against the weekly paper called the Moonshedabad News, published at Berhampore by Mr. Ward.—In yesterday's Eng. Irishman we find a letter regarding the subsequent events which have transpired anent this fated publication, extracts from which we subjoin, knowing that the subject is possessed of much interest in the eyes of our readers.

"The printing office in the state in which it was seized has now been nearly a year in the possession of the Magistrate, and a negotiation has, I understand, just terminated between himself and a gentleman, a supporter of the late paper, in the delivery over by the former to the latter of all the press property. It is to this the extreme illegality which has marked the acts of the Magistrate from the moment of first laying his hands on the printing office to the present hour, that he has closed a treaty for the disposal of its contents that I would most earnestly draw your attention.

Act No. XI. of 1825, gives authority to the Magistrate to fine and imprison the guilty proprietor, but no where does it sanction his meddling for an instant with one particle of the obnoxious press or type metal. But further the house in which the printing establishment was set up had been formally taken by Ward from Capt. Goldie, executive officer at this station, at the monthly rent of 10 rupees. And at the time of this invasion he (Ward) was the legal and sole tenant of the premises and as such was, and, notwithstanding this gross violation of his rights, up to the present hour is, entitled equally with other similar occupants of the Government buildings at this station to entire exclusive possession.

That Ward hired the printing office on the terms here stated cannot be questioned. The writer of this letter saw the correspondence that passed between him and Captain Goldie on the occasion, and can bear witness to the fact, that Ward actually took the premises in question from that officer at the abovementioned rent; and never up to this moment have they, does he believe, since been given up; nay, the sealed and guarded magisterial detention of the press and types each in the very spot where they were placed by Ward, has secured to him perforce the honor of continuing a tenant of the Hon'ble Company's and of adding for the last year, and more, to their enormous outstandings his monthly mite of 10 Rs. Such is the history of the wrong done to a single individual by this violent exercise of power, that I would more especially desire to hold up to public view.

CAPT. A. H. R. BOILEAU.—We hear that Captain Boileau, Superintendent of Calcutta Canals, has been elected by the Nussarabad division of the Army, a member of the Orphan management.

RIOTS.—Several riots have been reported during the week, the two principal ones were caused, the one by a gang of sailors, who broke into a tavern, to avenge a comrade, who had been assaulted by the tavern people; and the other by two Europeans, said to be Police Constables by the party assaulted, but this assertion was not proved.

STEAM TUG ASSOCIATION.—At the meeting of the Steam Tug Association, held on the 20th instant, the state of the Association's finances were noticed in the report as follows:—That a balance of Rs. 7,511 has been paid off to the Union Bank, as also Rs. 2,210 on account of interest, and Rs. 3,641 on account of debt, making in all Rs. 13,361. There appeared to be from the whole an available profit of Rs. 25,233.

The resolutions passed on the occasion were the following:

Proposed by Mr. Paul, seconded by captain Cunningham and carried.

"That the accounts now on the table be approved and passed as satisfactory and published in the daily papers."

Proposed by captain Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Paul and carried.

"That the report of the Secretaries be approved and published likewise."

Proposed by Mr. J. Cullen, seconded by captain Richards and carried.

"That a dividend of fifty rupees per share, being the equivalent of ten per cent, per annum, upon the capital be paid out of the profits of the past half year."

Proposed by Mr. J. W. Cragg, seconded by Mr. John Carr, and carried.

"That the balance of the profits, Rs. 5,273, be carried to the credit of the reserved fund, which with the Rs. 13,294 reserved half year, will make Rs. 18,527."

Proposed by captain McKenzie, seconded by Mr. Paul, and carried.

"That the thanks of the meeting be given to the committee of the past year, and that the same gentlemen, namely, Messrs. J. W. Cragg (acting for Mr. Bruce) J. Colquhoun, J. Cullen, K. R. Mackenzie and Bahoo Dwarkanath Tagore be re-appointed and requested to act as committee for the present year."

Proposed by Mr. J. Colquhoun, seconded by captain Cunningham.

"That it is desirable to meet the increased demand for Steam Tugs, by the construction of another steam tug for this association; and that as the new engines coming out for the Seeta Kond are not yet paid for, the capital should be increased fifty per cent, for the purpose of carrying both objects into effect, and that a special meeting be called to take into consideration that part of the Secretaries' report relating to the above.

Before the above resolution was carried, some conversation took place as to the expediency of incurring heavier responsibility until the present debts of the association were liquidated. Mr. Cragg proposed an amendment also to the resolution, to the effect that the question relating to the construction of a new boat should be in the first instance referred to the committee for consideration; but on being put, the amendment was lost, and the original resolution carried.

STEAM NAVIGATION.—We have read, with great satisfaction, a correspondence published during the week relative to the comprehensive scheme of intercommunication between India and England, with the Madras steam committee; and we are most happy to find, that the co-operation of the Madras friend of steam is, of heart and hand, and force, with those of Bengal. In addition to this satisfactory development of public feeling at Madras, we are enabled to communicate a fact, which, as an example of bold and confident liberality in the conduct of Mr. Curtis, and the conductors of the comprehensive scheme, must, we think, command the respect and esteem of the society of India, and must, we hope, induce hundreds to follow so convincing an example. Mr. Dent, of Pains, referring to the injury occasioned by dissension says, "The friends of steam and of India, (and I consider them synonymous,) should, therefore, redouble their exertions in support of Mr. Curtis's company; in this spirit, therefore, I beg you will put down my name for fifty additional shares in Mr. Curtis's company, and I have this-day written to my London agents, Messrs. Palmer, McKillop, Dent and co., to advise them, and to instruct them, to pay the instalments to Mr. Curtis as called for."

This is a noble example, not by a friend of steam, and of India, whom we also recognize as identical; and we trust that it will be nobly followed. If so, the cause is gained at once—dissension is at an end—merged in the overwhelming success of the comprehensive scheme, for the benefit of all India.

PROPOSED MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT.—About the latter end of August last, it will be recollected, Calcutta was visited by a most heavy and inundating fall of rain. The chief magistrate, who has always at heart the health and comforts of the people, took an opportunity, in reference to that event, to address a respectable mercantile house, who are likewise extensive agents and managers of house property, pointing out the great necessity of adopting preventive measures against the serious consequences, which result from heavy rains for want of better constructed drains and tunnels. The rains of the 20th, 21st, and 22d of August inundated the third division or the south part of the town according to the following tables:—

Carnac Street,.....	2½ feet.
Hungerford Street,.....	2½ "
Circular Road,.....	2½ "
Russel Street,.....	2 "
Mora Street,.....	1½ foot.
Lawson Street,.....	1½ "
Rawdon Street,.....	1½ "
East and Theatre Street,.....	10 inches
Park Street,.....	4 to 6 "

The evils resulting from this state of things the worthy chief magistrate enumerates thus: "The inconvenience of wading through streets covered with two feet of water, the injury to pukka houses from having their foundations and floors soaked, the misery to the poor of being expelled from the places where they and their family sleep at the alternative of being drowned, and the injury to all their habits that must accrue from the malaria generated by drying of a soaked soil, make it desirable that such catastrophes should in future be prevented."

The means proposed to prevent the probability of such distressing consequences recurring, in the neighbourhoods in question, is the construction of "a large tunnel in Jaun Bazar-street, from west to east—to lead into that tunnel all the drainage from Park-street, to commence at the latter point with surface drains." The cost that would be incurred in such a derelictated construction, is reckoned at 60,000 Rs. for the tunnel, and 20,000 Rs. for altering the existing drains—the whole requiring about 80,000 Rs. Mr. McFarlan states in his letter, that estimates in reference to this subject have been drawn up, but have not been brought in for want of funds. He feels assured, however, that if the people made an effort to rescue the part of the town in question from the evil-mentioned, the Government would certainly assist the work, by contributing at least a quarter, if not half, of the sum of cost. And that if a considerable number of house-holders were to petition the Government for the purpose, he has not the least doubt, but that the latter would render an additional assessment.

The parties to whom Mr. McFarlan addressed the letter to the above purport, seem altogether favourable towards the suggestion, and state in their reply, "in the conviction that we are best consulting thereby the interests of owners of property under our charge, we shall cordially join in a petition to Government, desiring that they would render an additional assessment to be levied for the purpose of providing for the expense of this improvement."

Nor do the Government seem averse to the proposed improvement, as, in the above alluded to correspondence being sent to them, they have in return desired to know in the first instance—"What the town would give?"

UNPLEASANT RUMOURS.—Several unpleasant rumours reached us yesterday, but we have been assured, from the best of authorities, that there is no truth in any of them. Among other reports, it is said, that the Seika had crossed the Sutledge, and driven in our advanced troops from Ferozepore; that Kuruck Sing had died from the effects of poison administered to him, and that General Ventura had really been blown from a gun.

THE STRAND ROAD CASE.—We understand that Government have compromised the claim of Rajah Radhakant Deb (relating to the Strand Road) by agreeing to pay down two lakhs of rupees. For this sum, Rajah Radhakant gives up, not only the entire land upon which the road runs, but all the alluvion, already accrued and future accruing; so that although the sum sounds large, it is in reality but an inadequate compensation. It is a pity that Government did not earlier perform this tardy act of justice,—instead of driving the claimant into a protracted and expensive course of litigation, the result of which, as our readers may remember, was a recognition of his right, with the gratifying saving clause, that the mode adopted to establish it was altogether wrong!

MOFUSSELI.

CHUNAR.—Accounts from Chunar state the whole country round about that station to be one sheet of water, from the effects of the late immense inundations. In many places between that place and Calcutta, cholera has been of late making sad ravages among the native villagers on the banks of the river, &c, but the scourge is now apparently on the decrease.

AGRA.—"An awful scene of butchery occurred in our neighbourhood 2 or 3 nights ago, 30 convicts, sentenced to imprisonment for life, broke out of jail and escaped, but without ridding themselves of their wons. Thus it was that alarmed the native guards, who immediately made after them, 12 men escaped, 9 were killed and the rest wounded, and apprehended. Those who met their death were most dreadfully cut to pieces—of the wounded, one is mortally so. All the arms they had were small clubs, which is lucky, for had they been better armed, there would, no doubt, have been a severe struggle. It is supposed that the escape had been premeditated and arranged for some weeks before.

We regret to hear that some serious accidents have occurred to the Detachment of Artillery Drafts, proceeding up the river this season, and that some of the boats belonging to the fleet have been lost below Dinapore. Several casualties through cholera had occurred, but we have not yet fully learned the particulars.

Rumours, with some appearances of truth, but not sufficient to induce conviction in us, are current that two regiments from Karnaul will immediately march for Simla in consequence of the Political Agent having reported certain plottings between the Sikhs and Nepaules.

From Subathoo we learn that two companies of the Nussery battalion are under orders for Goughar in consequence of some movement on the part of the Nepaul here, if these reports should prove true, and they are no without speculation, they will completely change the face of affairs between the Court at Calcutta and the Government of Catinmndoo.

A domestic and gloomy tragedy was enacted in the bazar attached to the European lines. An old, fat Hindoo woman, still full of her failing strength and in ability to support herself, came like a Stoic, to the termination of putting herself and her child upon a death which she did by administering and taking arsenic. The request held on the bodika gave a verdict to this effect.

INDIANAIL.—We are to have eight Ghilje chiefs here on the 22nd, who are to be confined as state prisoners in the Fort, but whether they are to be kept here permanently is not known. They had taken refuge in the Punjab and were given up to Government by the Sikhs, but nothing was heard of them till on the morning of the 21st, when a captain and company were warned for duty on their account. It is to be hoped Mr. Cunningham will look most strictly after them.

AGRA.—The news of the day is altogether military, and little is heard of but the movement of troops and their destination. On Thursday, orders were quite unexpectedly received for Her Majesty's 9th, to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Meerut, and for the 26th native infantry to march to Kurnaul. At Muttra, orders have likewise been received, directing the 1st and the 9th regiments of cavalry, and captain Delafosse's troop of horse artillery, to proceed to Kurnaul. Her Majesty's 3rd dragoons proceed to the same station, as soon as carriage can be obtained. The Queen's 31st is also spoken of as destined for Kurnaul, and it is said, they will be brigaded with the 9th, and proceed to the North westward with them.

These movements, of which the last only is doubtful, indicate these assemblage of a large force on our N. W. Frontier, of which Ferozepoor, it is said, will in the first instance, be the Head Quarters. Odds are freely given that the object of all this is to watch or enter the Punjab.

Colonel Pereira left for Cawnpore on the 7th, to join his new battalion, with which he returns to Agra.

Lieutenant and Adjutant Nation, of the 23d native infantry, is appointed to the Thuggee Department, and is succeeded temporarily as Adjutant by Lieutenant Suook of the 23rd.

POONDE—BHOWALPOOR.—We have received a letter from Bhowalpoor, on the Sutledge, containing the following passage "Mr Ross Bell has just dropped down in the greatest haste, and two officials have reached this place, directing the 38th N. I. (Bengal) to proceed with all possible despatch. From all I can learn Sukkur has been attacked, and the Political, &c., &c., have been obliged to take refuge in the Fort of Sukkur. This commotion including the movements of the 38th N. I., is of course the result of the disaster, which had just befallen Major Chibborn's detachment; a letter in another column gives some farther account of the move of the 38th.

It And hope that the Beloochee disaster mentioned in the paragraph from the British Gazette, had been considerably heightened. We, however, find the statement is far from being over-charged, and all short of, rather than exaggerated, the actual loss sustained. It appears that Major Chibborn had marched from Sukkur to the relief of Kohan with a force of two hundred and fifty Poonah horse, six hundred sowars, and two guns. On approaching a pass of the line of march, so narrow that two men could not walk abreast in it, he threw out two companies, remaining himself behind with the main body. The companies had not proceeded far into the pass, when they were assailed in front and from above by parties of Beloochees, who threw stones and kept a heavy fire upon them, until the sowars fell back upon the main body in great confusion. The Beloochees followed, and such was the panic of the sowars, that both parties became mixed, and a hand-to-hand sanguinary fight took place, which ended in the retreat of our men, and the loss of their camels, baggage, guns and every thing they had. Captain Stanford of the Bombay Artillery, who commanded the two guns, succeeded in spiking them before they were abandoned. To the cool and gallant conduct of this officer, the whole party owe their safety, as Major Chibborn states in his report of the untoward affair. Captain S. succeeded in firing some rounds of grapes, which checked the approach of the Beloochees and for such was the case—allowed Major Chibborn's party to draw off. Their loss was two hundred men, and that of Beloochees an equal number. Four officers, as mentioned in the Gazette, were killed, and one wounded. Among the baggage which fell a prey to the Beloochees were 1,040 camels and 600 bullocks with, of course, their loads. The heat of the weather and scarcity of water, are said to have produced a degree of depression and irresolution among the men, which was the immediate cause of this melancholy affair.

QUETTA.—We have no late accounts from Quetta, but every one says, soon will give the Beloochees a heavy drubbing. People say we are to have a war with Hurat—and some speak of a rupture with the Sikhs. Stoddart too, cannot be left in its prison for ever.

KHILAT.—Our intelligence from Candahar mentions that Lieut. Loveday and Mr. Masson are still in the safe custody of the young Khan of Khetlat, though under closer surveillance than formerly, especially the latter, whom they report to have attempted escape; the prisoners are allowed writing materials, but only to write Persian.

AFGHANISTAN.—CABUL.—A squadron of the 2d cavalry returned a few days ago from collecting rent for the Shah. The Envoy proposed sending a wing of H. M. 13th, and a part of the 2d Cavalry, to winter in the Hindoo Koosh—but this was dropped—as it was thought that government would not like to have their old horses needlessly exposed to cold and exposure. The 13th expect to be joined by some 400 recruits. The 2d cavalry I hear, require about 100 recruits—they have lost a great many men from severe exposure. The 5th who were in orders to go to Hancan, have been countermanded, they were told to march light, recommended to leave their baggage behind—how very considerate of the authorities, who, the Thermometer in the morning is at freezing point. Four of the Shah's guns are now at Bameran—yet the unfortunate Troop of Horse Artillery is still kept there and jimmied between rocks, and where there is not wheeling room—but what can be expected when, &c. &c.

"Dost Mahomed has now assembled at Khoolam 5000 men, his object is to get up a religious war—all he powder, lead, and matchlocks in the city have been bought and sent to him. If Dost Mahomed does not accept the liberal terms offered to him—but attempts to make war, he will be declared a rebel, and hung if caught. The Ex-Sinder is now levying taxes on the Caste that pass by Khoolum.

We have been obligingly favored with a letter from Cabul dated 6th September, from which we extract the following.

"I was going to write you a day or two ago, but got suddenly sick, and am now laid up.

Some days ago the 35th Regt. N. I., were under orders to march to Bameean; this was in consequence of Aizul Khan, the son of Dost Mahomed, having collected a large force and attacked our advanced post at "Bajjah." The detachment of Bajjah turned out and repulsed the enemy with considerable loss. Of our troops, only one man was killed and 8 or 10 wounded, of the enemy, some 40 killed and a lot wounded. Lieut. Codrington arrived at the same time, that if the enemy collected and appeared to meditate a second attack, that he should be obliged to retire on Bameean.

Yesterday noon an express arrived, mentioning that in consequence of the enemy collecting in the vicinity of Bajjah our outposts at Bajjah and Syghan had retired on Bameean. This intelligence has thrown so small a degree of excitement into the minds of the people in Cabul, who are only waiting for the signal to rise with one accord.

This morning (6th) the 35th Regt. N. I., agreeable to yesterday's orders, marched out for Bameean, Brigadier Dennie, who has been directed to assume the command of the troops on the Frontier, accompanying them.

The same order directs the whole of the Bengal Troops now at Kudjus to move up to Cabul as soon as practicable.

Such is the fear entertained by the Shah and Mission, that the Shah's 3rd Regt. is ordered to sleep under arms till further orders.

An advance picket (of a squadron of the 2d Cavalry and 400 of the Shah's second horse), is ordered out on the "Kohistan" road, by which route Dost Mahomed is expected to enter. The whole country is up in arms, and it will be well for us if we keep our own. I can't tell you, the cruel state of fright they are in the Dellehliiser.

It is supposed that the Dost has sent his Son Afzul with a force round by Bamean, to draw off our attention from the route he intends taking himself."

GHUZNI.—A late letter from Ghuzni mentions that rumours of disaffection have caused very active measures to be taken for the defence of that city; the guns are all loaded and pointed, the Artillery men sleeping at their posts and pickets are thrown out in every direction, as the approach of Dost Mahomed has re-animated the hopes of his party.

BAJAH.—The following is extracted from a letter from the neighbourhood of the Hindoo Koosh, dated 21st August:—

"Nothing decisive has occurred since I last wrote, but matters are, I think, approaching to a crisis. Ghulam Beg and Moula Waller Shah have been dismissed by the Political Agent at Bamean; they being Ambassadors, of course their detention was out of the question. These worthies left the high road, and struck across the hills from Arobbat to Kumrud, thus avoiding the post of Syghan; they are now awaiting the Meer Waller's arrival at Bamuck, the fort of Baba Beg, Ajuree. It is now believed that Moxad Beg has refused his assistance; this is probable as the Meer of Koondoo is a cautious man, and not likely to join in any enterprise until it has been successful (partially.) The Dost, it is said, accompanies the Meer; this is the worst danger; our Afghan soldiers would not do what fight well, if opposed to Uzbeks alone, but if Dost Mahomed appears in the ranks of our enemies, the case will be widely different. I do not think the Afghans would fire a shot against their old Chieftain; indeed it is far more likely that they would desert our standard and flock to his. An armistice of 15 days has been agreed to, of which about five or six days have elapsed; at the expiration of the time I hope we shall be in sufficient strength to meet the Waller at Karmul; at present I do not think such a step would be advisable. A Dellehli Gazette, recently arrived here, speaks of a detachment, under Captain Garber, having taken quiet possession of a fort, which commanding, as it does, the only practicable route into Turkistan, is of the utmost importance." The fort, here mentioned, is that of Bajjah, but experience fully proves that it has not the importance formerly supposed; the road, leading from Bajjah, across the Kara Koh, upon Roos Sarbagh, Gheduh and Koondoo is impracticable for wheels, while the road from Kamul, through the Ajer country and the Durra Yuluf, detouring on Mazar Shureef, has been traversed by artillery. Mahomed Akram Khan took his guns that route a few years back. As the Uzbeks, who have lately joined Baba Beg, have come by this western route; these facts sufficiently prove that Bajjah does not command the only road into Turkistan. The fact is, that none of our posts are of the slightest use, in closing the various roads. An enemy from Koondoo, can come down on Syghan, or Bamean, without going near Bajjah; and from Kundooz or Goozee, the same can be effected on our right flank, and Bamuck itself can be turned.

Lord has written to Cabul to request, that a Regiment of (Hindustani) Infantry be sent to assist us. If this requisition is complied with, we shall be in sufficient force to assume the initiative; we can then cross the pass, and attack successively Kamul and Bamuck. That we are at present strong enough to deal with the petty chiefs and to take their forts, cannot be denied; but we should have to contend with not only Sula Beg and the Ajuree, but with the Waller and the Dost. The Uzbeks would not meet us in the valley, on level ground, but would crown the hills, from whence they could do us much injury, while we, owing to our numerical weakness, could scarcely drive them from their vantage ground, at the same time that we attacked the forts. There can be no doubt now that a great mistake was committed in occupying Bajjah; it remains to be seen whether the error will be perpetuated. At present it would have a disastrous effect, were the regiment to retire; but the first opportunity should be taken of withdrawing with honour.

Captain Hopkins with the remainder of his regiment and four guns, is close at hand, but I do not think we shall gain much by his arrival. The Afghans are good soldiers and under any other circumstances. I should feel the utmost confidence in them; but it is not wise to tempt them; they have been but a short time in our service, and it is hardly fair to expect them to oppose one, who was so lately their chief. Such is my present opinion. I need hardly say that I shall be sincerely rejoiced to find that I am mistaken.

It is not two months since I announced to you the arrival of Nuraud Jubbah Khan, and of the uniform success, which had, up to that time, attended our political negotiations in Southern Turkistan. I fear they the late unfortunate occurrences will have the effect of destroying all influence, we may have once possessed; and thus the work will require to be done over again. And this is the effect of a single false move of Greediness of empire is our bane."

A letter from Bajgah, dated 31 September, says.

The son of Dost Mahomed came down with a host of Uzbeks upon a small fort in the Hindoo Koh occupied by Captain C. Collington with half of the Gorkha Battalion in the Shah's service, and some Afghans Cavalry of the Shah's, under Lieutenant Rattray; the enemy were repulsed with heavy loss, and, it is said, in one account that Captain Collington had taken 800 horses, which I think must be a mistake.

Khiva.—The report of the Russian campaign is again revived and two advancing columns from the Caspian Sea are again set in motion. Lieut. Shakespear reports the Army of the Khan of Khiva as a most undisciplined force, and if the Russians once get before it, the country must fall into their power. Every means will be used to prevent such a disaster, and it is said that on their approach, our countrymen are to lead the body of slaves, some 300, and meet the invading force.

The Khan is apparently much pleased with the conduct of the English Government, and places every confidence in their intentions to cure the evils which threaten his Khanate, and has offered to send an expedition against Bokhara in the relief of Colonel Stoddart, if Lieut. Shakespear wishes it. The present rules of that city are stated to be very unpopular, and a very little good diplomacy might create a rebellion against him. Lieutenant Connolly left Samarkand on the 15th ultimo with the Khivan Ambassador.

It remains to be seen whether Dr. Ford will be successful in his efforts to induce Dost Mahomed to come in upon the terms offered him; but doubts are expressed as to his political abilities, or rather diplomacy, opposed to Dost Mahomed and his clique. To get him into our power, by fair means if possible, must become our paramount and first duty, for every day's delay will give a strong impulse to the excitement which his proximity has already raised and the approaching cold weather we suspect, will leave us quite sufficient to do in three or four quarters without being troubled with fresh disturbances in Turkistan.

The first news of the arrival of the ex-ruler produced some symptoms of disaffection in the city of Cabul and there appeared some chance of a popular emancipation, so much so, that Sir W. Cotton, being always on the alert, thought the removal of some howitzers to the Bala Hissar, from whence shells could be fired upon the refractory, might be desirable; but the Envoy deprecated any movement of the kind, and as the Afghans love silver better than lead the affair was stifled.

MAJORE.—Several hints have lately been made in the papers to Captain C. E., for not having succeeded in arranging the affairs of that country by negotiation. As I have a regard for the captain, I will tell you the true state of the case. Both the chiefs had agreed to submit to the arbitration of our Government, and as the rebellion in Majore, was exposed to be a popular insurrection and not a party business, it was thought that the two chiefs, might by making up their private quarrels, be able to overcome their refractory tribes. Our hero, therefore in full confidence in the honor of Ameer Khan who was among the Mamunda, preparatory as was supposed to coming in to the King, went to meet him, attended by only his private servants. He found him some 40 miles inland. But the treacherous rascal, instead of listening to proposals of accommodation, set the whole population against the Elchae by declaring he was come to examine their country, and with the expectation of a rich booty, they determined to attack him. C. managed to bribe over a few of the petty chiefs to his side, and when the attack was made, he took refuge on a height, where he was joined by these chiefs. The main road being blocked up by the enemy he escaped by a by-path; even a difficult pass, accomplished by those of the chiefs and their followers, whom he thought were his friends. After they had got into the open plain, one of these on pretence of looking at his sword, drew it out of the scabbard and made a cut at him, by this time, the party who had been stationed on the main road had run up and C. was surrounded by one or two thousand men—he had no arms, no soldiers, and he did not know to which of the party he would trust, he therefore made off, and what else could he do.

He brought off all the public property and money which he had taken with him to propitiate the chiefs, and thereby he lost his own life.

The Majore campaign is talked of for the cold weather, but this, it is supposed, must be undertaken by a strong brigade from the provinces moving from Attock; the nature of the country will render it a difficult enterprise.

Scinde.—KARON.—A letter from Upper Scinde mentions the following stratagem of the Beloochees against Captain Brown and his detachment at Kahun.

All communication betwixt the fort and the plains had been cut off for three weeks, during which time the Beloochees had been several times repulsed with loss; at last they drove a flock of barabees (sheep) near the fort in hopes of inducing the hungry garrison to quit their stronghold, and he cut up the tempting mutton carcasses to be roasted, so Brown and his men, made a rush and carried the entire flock into the town, where all hands obtained the first belly full they had enjoyed for many weeks.

We should have been happy that with the above cheering intelligence, we could have stopped, and dwell on the hopes which it enabled us to hold out of a speedy and entire retrieval of our affairs in Beloochistan—But this is not permitted us; a more severe disaster than any which has yet befallen our armies since the troubles in Afghanistan commenced, remains to be told.

A letter was received from Major Clibborn via Karachi, dated the 2nd inst., containing very disastrous intelligence. Having left Ziraf, his detachment it appears had, on the 31st ultimo reached a mountain pass some 10 or 12 miles distant from Kahun. The road over this pass has been destroyed by the Beloochees, and was besides so strongly defended by them as to make its ascent very difficult.

A storming party was detached to attack one of the heights and succeeded in gaining a footing on the ridge where however, they found one file of men only could stand, and that, besides, so far as they could judge, other heights towered above them in succession, from which rocks, every sort of missiles were poured down upon them by the Beloochees, who had possession of these heights. The storming party had nothing for it but to fall back on the main body, and Major Clibborn had just time to call in the flanking parties, when they were attacked in the most desperate manner by the Beloochees, who had followed the storming party in crowds down the height.

Here came the tug of war, the fight being point to point, the Beloochees charging sword in hand in the most determined manner. Our heroes behaved with the greatest bravery, and repulsed the Beloochees in gallant style, killing one-half their number, who then appear to have retreated, and for that day no more was heard of them.

At the foot of the pass both Captain Brown and the gunies had led Major Clibborn to expect a supply of water, but to their great dismay, not a drop was to be procured. Now came a scene well to contemplate; our troops frantic almost with thirst after the dreadful fatigues they had just encountered, and nothing to allay it.

Being informed that water was to be had at some short distance, the men, the horses and cattle, with the servants were immediately despatched, but after waiting sometime for their return, a few of the irregular horse, who had cut their way through, brought the intelligence of their having been surrounded and cut to pieces.

There being now no means of carrying off the guns, these were spiked and abandoned, and Major Clibborn marched back at 10 p. m. towards Poolajra. Shortly before the date of his despatch, his rear had been attacked, and the little baggage they had been able to bring away with them cut off;—every thing thus has been lost, camels, horses, stores, baggage, and treasure. The despatch is dated on the march enroute to Poolajra, from which the troops were then distant about 18 miles.

Our loss has been severe :—Captain Raitt, Lieut. Franklin and Moore, and ensign Williams killed, and Lieut. Loch severely wounded, and 200 sepoy, or nearly one-third of the force, said to be killed.

Had it not been for the admirable efficiency of the guns, and execution by the grape-shot, it is most likely that not one of the party would have escaped.

QUETTA.—Letters from Quetta of the 7th August represent Captain Bean and his force now augmented to 600 infantry, 4 Horse Artillery Guns and 100 of Shah Shoojah's Horse as in high spirits. Expecting to be attacked by the Belouches, but quite ready to give them a warm reception. Their success in the affair with Major Clibborn's party will probably accelerate an attack, and we trust they will receive a second edition of what they got at Quetta before, which may chance to take some of the conceit out of them.

AFGHANISTAN—CABUL.—We have obligingly been favored with a letter from Cabul, dated 6th September, from which we extract the following :—

“ I was going to write you a day or two ago, but got suddenly sick, am now laid up.

Some days ago the 35th Regt. N. The same order directs the whole of the Bengal Troops now at Kudjan, to move up to Cabul as soon as practicable.

KHIVA.—Very satisfactory intelligence from Khiva. The Khan Huzrat has agreed to the release of every Russian prisoner within his dominions, and has sent them to the Russian frontier under charge of Lieut. Khrepere. He has also, at that Officer's request, prohibited the purchase of slaves from Herat within his territories, and hopes are entertained of the order being extended to Persia, so as completely to abolish the trade.

This is indeed most gratifying and honourable to the British name, and to Shakespeare and Abbott for the manner in which it has been obtained.”

Of precisely the same tenor with the above, is a communication received from Candahar, dated 13th August, from which the following is an extract :—

“ Shakespeare has got the Khan Huzrat to release every Russian slave in his dominions, and by this time he is on his way to Orenberg with them. He has also procured an order from the Khan, prohibiting the purchase or seizure of slaves from the Herat state—and there is every prospect of the order being extended to Persia. In a few months we may hope to see chaparings by Turcomans for ever also held, and safety and security established on every road. The good which we may thus do for Persia, will induce Mahomed Shah to stand on good terms with us, and where this is the case, Herat will become of less importance, and Yar Mahomed will have none with whom to intrigue. This order of the Khan's will deprive him of a source of revenue on which, I doubt not, he had depended in the event of a rupture with us. May we not hope that this will go far to weaken Mahomedan prejudices against the name of Christians ?

AYOON, September 1st.—Bajjah was attacked by the Uzbeks at 8 o'clock on the morning of the 30th. The hills were crowded by some 300 footmen; and about 500 Uzbek horse came down the valley, among whom were Mahomed Alzul Khan, Gholaum Beg and Moolah Wallah Shah. The Gorkahs mounted the hills and drove back the footmen, without sustaining any loss, while Lieut. Rattray (the Political Agent) led out about 200 Affghan horse and charged the Uzbeks, who soon went to the right about. I cannot tell you what loss the enemy sustained, but 16 prisoners about 100 horses or yabooes were taken. The affair lasted but a short time, and our loss was most trifling; 3 Affghans being killed and 12 wounded. Thus far all went well. The Kamurthen, once repulsed, were not likely to attack a second time; but soon after the fight intelligence was received of the fall of Helbuck, and of the flight of Mir Baba Beg to Sarbagh. This chief has been our staunchest friend since our arrival in the country; he held out his post against Dost Mahomed Khan, and the Wallah, but the gate was opened by some of the Ookor, and the Mir escaped with three sowas, and has thrown himself into Sarbagh, which belongs to Mir Sophi Beg (his brother), who had been with us for sometime. This post cannot offer much impediment to the Doat's advance; it is exceedingly doubtful, whether the Garrison will hold out a single day: the post of Bujgah is positively untenable against numbers, as the Goorkahs would not be able to clear the hills if strongly occupied. Such being the case, it was considered advisable to fall back upon Syghan, while such a movement could be effected with safety, that is, before the arrival of the Doat, with the Mir Walles's forces. The regiment accordingly fell back yesterday, and the march was accomplished without any loss, except of private property and some tents, which were necessarily abandoned, from want of carriage. They left Bujgah about day break, and reached Sirhar Synd Mahound-poor in the Dush-i-Sufaid, having met with no molestation, but this gentleman, who had professed to be our friend, fired upon the regiment and passed, but the shots fell harmless. From the Dush-i-Sufaid, commenced the pass of Nali-Terih, 10 miles of ascent and descent, without a drop of water on the road. Throughout the whole ascent, scattered groups of the enemy, perched upon the heights around, continued to fire upon the Goorkahs, who, however, reached the foot of the pass unharrassed some 6 miles from Sari-Sung: not a single man was lost during the march, but their sufferings on the pass from want of water, were great. The conduct of the Goorkahs on the 3rd and following day has, in no small degree, added to their reputation. The Affghans too both horse and foot, behaved with gallantry, and seemed by no means loath to meet the enemy, although Atzul Khan, the Doat's son, was among their number.

On the 31st, Captain Hopkins arrived at Sari-Sung with his regiment; Captain Hart's corps of Jauzbaz (Affghan horse) and 26-pounders of the Shah's; and to day the Goorkah battalion arrived from their bivouac and Naib Zoolublah Khan (Governor of Bameesah) brought in 200 horse. With this force, and 26-pounders II. A., it is intended to cross the Dundan-i-Shikun and attack Kamurd, if possible, before the arrival of the two chieftains from the north.

BAMEESAH, SEPT. 5.—We have been obliged to fall back upon this place, so much for our advance into Tukistan. The troops marched to the foot of the Dundan-i-Shikun on the morning of the 2d, with the exception of the Goorkah corps, which it was intended should move in the evening, but news arrived in the course of the day, that Mourad Beg was going to join the Doat; this altered our plans, as it would have been a bad thing to allow ourselves to be caught in the Kamurd valley. We left Syghan with four days' food which would have given us time to take the fort, but had we found them empty we should have been forced; a retreat across the Dundan-i-Shikun would have been impracticable. On the 3d we returned to Syghan, but stopping there was out of the question, from want of grain; the valley yields nothing and we could not have kept open our communication with Bamian. The scene of confusion at Syghan was dreadful: the Affghan Infantry could not be kept under control; a panic seized them, they left their colours and rushed off to the Avin hat road; they did not go far however, but commenced firing upon the hills, for their amusement, I presume. Captain Hopkins went after them, and induced about 300 to return; and about 11½ a. m. we commenced our march, and reached Abrobat without suffering any loss, or molestation. The Jauzbaz behaved exceedingly well and kept the rear. The passage of the Abrobat pass occupied much time, and the last gun did not reach Abrobat till 2 A. M. On the 4th, about sunrise, we started again, and reached Bameesah, without loss of any thing of consequence, all our ammunition and treasure being saved; but of private property, the loss was considerable, from want of carriage. The Affghans too whenever they found any baggage unguarded, plundered it, even the property of their own Captain. We have distributed these unpleasant things (1) of our among different forts in the neighbourhood; and our lines are occupied by our own men; so we have little to fear. The worst is, that we have very little grain; however the crops are ripe, and if the enemy give us a little time, we shall have all right. The Jauzbaz seem well disposed and have behaved very well indeed up to this time; they kept the rear for two days, which is a duty by no means agreeable to Affghans. They are well under control, but the Infantry are quite disorganised at present, and quarrels between them and our men are constantly occurring. Lord wrote for a brigade, some time since, but was refused—the 35th were then ordered out, but unfortunately the march was countermanded. I hope, however, that reinforcements will be sent out, that we may drive the Doat away handsomely. The only thing, I fear, is an insurrection in Cabul.

Spai-Sung has been given to Dowlat Beg, son of Mir Mahomed Ali Beg, and I believe the alchik's like-wise in the fort. They promise to hold it out for us. They have no mercy to expect from that Mir Waller, so there is some chance of their doing so. Yesterday, Mahmud Beg, brother of the Waller, went to Syghan and summoned the pirs, but he got fired on for his pains, so he went back to the Dush-i-Safid. Khtilah Beg has, I fancy, turned against us. This was to be expected, and that the example will be followed by nearly all, I have little doubt; but the Fozail Hazarchs and Bamiachers are behaving well. Mir Mohet and Shah Nurood, Fozails, voluntarily escorted Lord's baggage from Syghan, and some Bamiachers have just brought in two of our people, who were bound at Akrobat, and whom they succeeded in liberating.

We are truly rejoiced to hear that letters have been received from Kahua, extending to the 17th ultimo, written by Captain Brown in a confident and cheerful strain, indicating that he has not abated "a jot of heart or hope," he had been made aware of the disaster, which had befallen the force proceeding to his relief. His provisions were calculated to last him some six weeks long—that is to the end of the present month—the gun balllocks being included in his list of available supplies—"I intend," he writes, "by the blessing of God, to hold my post for another month, or until such time are offered as to give me a chance of getting my detachment with safety to the plains. If it comes to the worst we can but fight our way down. It will not be the first time a few desperate men have made their way through better fellows than these. You will be glad to learn that the Beloochees suffered very severely in the fight. They have never held up their heads since, or even come within reach of gun or musket from the fort. Should an Ambassador come from Doda-Khan, I intend to show him at least six months' supplies—a whole number of bags filled with earth, will be all ready piled up in a room by 12 o'clock to-morrow." This is as it should be—courage, confidence, and ingenuity combined. The entire letter, from which this extract is taken, is written in the same cheerful and sanguine strain—worthy indeed of the character of a British Officer and of our most cordial admiration. We are now but little apprehensive of the safety of the detachment.

A report was prevalent here during the past week, and we believe emanating from Simla, that Capt. Brown had, with his little band of sufferers, somewhat retrieved the defeat of Major Clibborn; the Beloochees, it was stated in all the pride of recent victory, appeared before Kahua, when the garrison sallied out, utterly dispersed and defeated the assailants and recaptured a considerable portion of their newly acquired booty, we do not doubt the valour of Captain Brown and his force, but we fear the news is too good to be true, more especially as our letters from Sukkur to the 24th September make no mention of such an occurrence; they however state that Kahun was safe on the 17th September and that Brown, still in high spirits, expected to be able to stand out till the end of the month. We are glad to see that the 38th N. I. are soon to be put in a fair way of proving to the Beh'nchees what Bengalee sepoyas are made of. The Ameer of Khyrapore seized with a spirit of chivalry, sent a challenge to our Political Agent in Feinde, who replied to him by ordering out, on the 22d ultimo two companies of our old friends the Butumseera, to join a detachment of Europeans and Artillery, who are to move together under Major Clibborne—we sincerely hope with a more fortunate and honourable result than in the last affair—towards Khyrapore, marked on the map as about 16 or 20 miles from Sukkur, which is to be reduced. Eventually, it is supposed, that the 38th will be employed against Kalat and then move on to Canlahar, General Nott having applied for the corps while anticipations of a farther move to Herat, are indulged in. A general movement towards the first mentioned fortress will not, it is thought, take place until the middle of November, and is somewhat dependent upon an answer which is said to be awaited from the Supreme Government as to the young Khan's proposals. Loveday, from our last accounts, is more strictly watched than ever though still treated with respect and civility. Some reports have been bruited abroad, but we do not give entire credence to them, that an attack had been made upon Quetta and that the assailants had lost 800 men in the assault, and that Major General Nott is fighting his way through the Kojack pass. We merely give them as rumours.

THE PUNJAB.—We hear in relation to affairs in the Punjab that General Ventura, who, with his Sikh Troops, hitherto been very successful in taking many of the smaller Forts, in the Hill state of Mandee, has, at length, met his match in Kurmulphur, which is stated to be inaccessible to Artillery, and only to be reduced by famine. Winter will probably force the assailants to retreat. The state of Kooloom, is next threatened with a visit from these Military locusts. Both the above states, which are within view of Simlah, have been lashed into rebellion, our informant says, by the conduct of the Sikh Government.

SCINDS—SUKKER. Letters from Sukker have been received of the 24th ultimo. An expedition had been sent across the Indus to Roore on the 23d to disperse a large body of armed men on the opposite bank, who declined to remove further from Sukker. On the arrival of our troops the chief became alarmed and accepted the term proposed to him by our Political, and his follower immediately withdrew.

An expedition, consisting of some companies from H. M. 40th 2d Grenadiers, and Bengal 38th N. I., with two guns, were about to march to settle some disputes in Khyrpoor. About 4000 of Major Clibborne's camel men, who were supposed to have been slain or captured, but had needlessly fled after our encounter at Burtoff, have returned to camp.

The country around Sukker and Glucknepoor is at present completely inundated, and fever very prevalent. Camels are extremely scarce, the price being here at from 80 to 120 rupees.

SHIKARPOOR.—Intelligence from Shikarpore of the 6th October, states, that Captain Browne's detachment had escaped from Kahun and arrived safely at Phoolajee having been escorted to the plains by the Murees themselves.

SEERANISTAN—GUZNI.—Authentic information has been received of the escape of two sons of Dost Mahomed, from Guzni. When first taken to that fort, they were allowed a certain degree of personal liberty; but latterly, on their father's approach to Bameean being known, were placed, it is said, in close confinement. The direction of their flight was not ascertained, until too late to render pursuit of any service. Of course their freedom will be a fresh source of embarrassment. They will form a rallying point for the hopes of the Barukzies, should the Dost himself fall.

“Uqa, avalse, non deficit alter.”

CANUL.—Letters from Canbul, of the 24th of September mention that Brigadier Sale had that morning marched with a strong force to Charukar, where a large party of rebels had assembled, expecting to be joined by the Dhost. If these are the intentions of the Ex-Ameer the Bameean detachment will be disappointed in their hopes of again defeating the Dost on the Hindloo Koorh, and will have moved upon Syghan to little purpose. It is believed that the Dost as abandoned his intention of forcing his way into the Cabul country by the Bameean pass; but he will only avoid Dennie to fall into the hands of Sale who will give him a warm reception.

The following letter, from our intelligent Bameeran correspondent, containing the latest news from that quarter, will be perused with interest by our readers:—

SEPT. 30.—The convoy, with stores and ammunition from Hindlooban, came in this morning. They were attacked four marches from this, and were very nearly taken by the enemy. Indeed had it not been for a detachment of horse, which were sent out to their assistance, there is no doubt but that the whole of the convoy would have fallen into the hands of Azeiz Khan. The horsemen on reaching the convoy, found it surrounded by his fellows, and they had some hard fighting before they could drive them off. Several of the horses were shot dead.

The day before yesterday, an express came in from col. Orchard, who is on his way with the European Regiment from Kudjun, that he was surrounded by these people, and that owing to the number of sick he had not sufficient to guard the line on the march. Their rear guard had been attacked, their followers cut up, and baggage and camels plundered. This was in consequence of some of the Afghan troops (which the colonel had with him) running away and leaving every thing to the protection of Providence, immediately they were fired on. A squadron of the 2d cavalry, and a company of the 37th Regt N. I., moved out at midnight to re-inforce the colonel with his Regt. What a state our troops are in here—actually at the seat of war, a European Regiment being in such a condition as to require active troops to protect it!

On the arrival of the European Regiment, it is in contemplation to send out a force consisting of H. M. 13th Light Infantry, flank companies of the 37th Regt, and four guns, to be commanded by Sir R. Sale, into the Khorasan, for the purpose of settling the haub of some powerful Barukzie chief who consider themselves all powerful in some strong-holds they possess there. You will hear of some of us getting us some ugly knorks, no doubt, as the chiefs can collect some 10,000 matchlock-men at a very short notice.

Captain Hopkins, of the 27th N. I., arrived from Bameean yesterday. His corps of Affghans cut their lucky on the road—not a man to the force. You heard I suppose, of a whole company of this gallant corps having walked off arms and all (new muskets) to Dost Mahomed, Brigadier Dennie disarmed the remainder of them and sent them in. Oh! your nice, sweet policy, Mr. Macaughen—give your Affghans the best stores you have, and new pattern muskets, and then send them after the Dost. They will be sure to go, but will they return is the question.

I shall go out with our flank companies into the Kohistan.

Lieut. Shakespeare has started from Khyva for the Russian frontier, with all the stores he could collect. This is a fact.

BAMERAN—The following is our own correspondent's account of the battle near Bameran:—

"Sept. 18th.—I am happy to inform you, that Dost Mahomed Khan, has this morning been signally defeated, by a detachment of our troops under Brigadier Dennis O. A.

Yesterday we heard of the Ameer's advance to Hiatoo (6 miles from Sur-i-Anz) and of Afzul Khan with 1,000 horse having reached Akrobat; and in the evening it was reported by our pickets, that several bodies of horse had debouched into the valley from the defile of Sooruchdhurrah. This was hardly credited at first, but early in the morning, the intelligence was confirmed by captain Hart (of the Jaunhar) who remained on outlying pickets during the night. These bodies of horse were supposed to be the advanced guard under Mahomed Afzul. A detachment was immediately ordered out to drive the enemy from the valley, and, at about half past eight a. m., 2 guns horse artillery (under Lt. Mackenzie) and two companies 35th N. I., and two companies of the Goorkah corps, together with about 400 Afghan horse (under Hart and Rattray) and Lt. Gey's militia of locals, started from the lines and were followed at an interval of half an hour, by Brigadier Dennis, with a support of two companies Goorkah corps. When the detachment marched out, it was supposed that there was merely an advanced guard in the valley; but on coming within view, it was found that their numbers amounted to between 3 and 4,000. They had pitched their camp between this and Sooruchdhurrah; but when our troops came within sight, they had collected in bodies round the several forts, and upon the hills on either side of the valley. The action commenced with a fire of shrapnell from the Artillery (1-6 pounder and 1-12 pounder howitzer). The U-begs stood the fire a short time but retired and again took up a position; the guns then advanced and again opened at 800 and 600 yards distance—the shrapnell practice was exceedingly successful, and the U-begs again retired, but not before they had made one attempt to turn our flank. Shortly after the action commenced, the Goorkahs ascended the hills, and drove before them some 7 or 800 horse, who were there collected. The enemy retired in a tolerably quiet manner until they had nearly reached the entrance of the defile, when the retreat became a rout; some rushed into the narrow passage, while others fled over the hills—the chiefs fled up the defile, with some 200 horse the remainder scattered and ran in various directions. The pursuit was continued by the cavalry, through the defile and up the Sooruchdhurrah pass, for about three miles.

Among the chiefs in the field, were Dost Mahomed Khan, his son, Mahomed Afzul Khan, the Mir Wal'ee, Mahomed Ali Beg, of Syghan, and his sons. The loss of the enemy is considerable, and I am glad to say, that several of the Afghan deserters met the fate they so well merited. The ex Ameer was himself wounded in the side, by a shrapnell. They had with them one gun, a rifle barrel one pounder, which was captured and is now in our hands. Our loss is slight. 2d cavalry S. S. F. Lieutenant Le Geyt, and two sowars wounded. Jaunhar—one sowar killed and two wounded. 35th N. I. two sepoy wounded. 4th Regt. S. S. F., one sepoy killed; one subadar, two havildars, one naik and eleven sepoy wounded.

We are glad to perceive from the above statement, that the loss which our force, under Brigadier Dennis, sustained in the engagement, amounted to no more than 2 killed and 22 wounded. The cheapness of a victory, of course, subtracts nothing from the glory of it. Lieutenant Le Geyt was shot through, a little below one of his shoulders.

"BAMERAN, Sept. 21st.—I immediately after the affair of the 18th, the Political Agent sent to the Ameer offering terms, should he be inclined to surrender, but the Dost sent an answer expressing his determination to "conquer or die." The consequence of all that is, is, that we advance to Syghan to-morrow, as we cannot allow him to remain so near a neighbour; accordingly 4 guns H. M., 6 companies 35th N. I., and 6 companies of the Goorkahs, are held in readiness.

I told you in my last, that the ex-chief had been wounded. The report is very prevalent, but I fear there is no good foundation for it. The U-begs stood much better than we expected; they rallied three several times, after having been driven back by the fire of the guns. Among the host were some 200 of Moorad Beg's people about the same number of Afghans; there were also a few Hungars, from Deh Zuegee. Their total number is now reported by the Political Agent at 4,200.

When Mahomed Ali Beg, went over to the Ameer at Kamurd, the latter granted him the whole valley of Syghan; this so disgusted his rival Khilich Beg, (who had previously joined the U-beg forces,) that he left the camp; but was soon after captured, and both he and his brother of Hiatoo (or Sokhtu Chunar) have been sent prisoners to Holbuck.

Ghulam Beg, son of the Wallee, was sent back to Tash Koorghon, previous to their advance from Syghan.

We were, yesterday, favored with intelligence from Khiva to the 2d August, stating that Lieutenant Shakespeare was to start the next day to the Russian frontier, accompanied by all the Russian slaves who had been detained in the Khiva territory, and that public orders had been issued by the Khan Husrut of Khyva, prohibiting any future capture or purchase of Russian slaves within his dominions.

Madras.

MADRAS.—Our Kampies correspondent has sent us, under date the 19th ultimo, the following distressing intelligence from that station.

"A most melancholy occurrence took place here last night. Assistant Apothecary O'Brien, lately removed from H. M. 39th Regt. stationed here to H. M. 41st Regt. at Belgium in consequence of a dispute with Asst. Apothecary Burgess of the former corps, purpose leaving this on the 21st. An improper intimacy with the wife of Burgess was the occasion of O'Brien's removal. Between eight or nine o'clock last night (the night was very dark) O'Brien was seated at a table in his house reading—when he was fired at from the direction of the door, and received a musket ball in his right side. O'Brien's servant immediately ran into the house and enquired of his master, "who fired the gun?" O'Brien replied, "Burgess has shot me—go and call the doctor." When the doctor came, O'Brien spoke to him and to his medical subordinates, but expired within an hour after receiving the wound. Burgess has been taken up on suspicion of having committed the deed, and placed in confinement in the main guard. His trial is expected to commence in a few days. The prisoner has two children. The deceased was a very fine young man and of a most excellent disposition; he has left two children both of whom are motherless, under the care of his father-in-law at Secunderabad.

"I attended poor O'Brien's funeral this evening. Burgess denies having committed the deed. It is said, that besides the deceased, no one saw the prisoner do the deed but the deceased's horse-keeper. Previous to his decease, O'Brien told Second Apothecary Sheohald and Doctor Macgregor that Burgess was the man who fired the gun. It appears that Burgess knelt down and died. The horse-keeper was paralyzed at beholding him do it, and could neither speak or give any alarm."

NATIVE LIBERALITY.—We have much pleasure in directing attention to a letter from a valued correspondent, pointing out another remarkable instance of public spirit on the part of a Native Gentleman, the Zemindar of Yettapouram, who has offered to advance the necessary funds for erecting a bridge across the Chintan River, on the high road from Palamcutah to Alghia. The river is of considerable breadth and depth, and the estimated cost about 15,000 rupees.

CAPT J. T. SMITH.—Captain J. T. Smith of the Engineers, Master of the Mint, was entering his compound when the horse on which he rode became restive and threw him with such violence as to dislocate his collar bone.

SONAPORE PRIZE MONEY.—We are glad to be able to inform our readers that orders have been issued directing that the property amounting to Rupees 10,000, which was captured at Zurapute by the detachment under command of Lieut Colonel Dyer, be surrendered to Prize Agents for eventual distribution among the gallant captors.

THE GOVERNOR AND COUNCIL OF MADRAS.—A report very generally prevails that by the last Overland Mail, accounts have been received, to the effect that the expensive and apparently useless machinery of a Governor and Council at Madras is to be abolished. Mr. Bird it is understood will be the last of councillors, and Madras, like Agia, his said, is to have a Lieutenant Governor to direct her affairs in future.

MR. DALRYMPLE.—The Fort St. George Gazette, announces the appointment of H. D. E. Dalrymple, Esq., to be a Police magistrate, consequent to the promotion of Major Whittier, who joins his corps. We are given to understand that meritorious Officer, as Capt Mackenzie, succeeds Mr. Dalrymple, in the Beach Department—and Mr. Johnson, the present Sheriff, as Coroner.

Mr. C. Johnston is appointed Actuary and Accountant of the Government Bank and Actuary of the Savings Bank in the room of the late Lieutenant Brad dock.

LIEUTENANT DENTON.—We are glad to find that the Court of Directors have rewarded that old soldier Lieutenant Denton of the Viceroy's Battalion, by appointing his son to a Cadetship on this establishment.

CIVIL SERVANTS.—It is said, that the pruning knife is forthwith to be applied to the allowances of the civil servants on the Madras establishment. Under orders from the supreme government of India, subject to the approval of the court of directors collectors are not hereafter to receive more than rupees 2333 5-4 per annum, this being the amount of salary of a zillah judge. Present incumbents are not affected by the arrangement, though with reference to two collectorships Bellary and Tinnevely, the retrenchment has been carried into operation when the measure comes into full effect, it will prove saving to the hon. company of a lakh and seventy rupees per annum.

KUENNOOL.—TRANSLATION OF A DOCUMENT FOUND AMONG THE PAPERS SEIZED IN THE HOUSE OF MEER ABAS ALLY.—This paper of instructions relative to the advantages of engaging in war against infidels furnished upon the authority of the commands of God, and the traditions of the prophets [upon whom and upon whose families and prosperity be God's blessing] exists in the Arabic language, but in order that it may be rendered intelligible to all, both high and low, it is here translated into Hindoostanee and it is thus:—

Whoever suffers death in a cause supporting the truth, God remits his sins, and he is admitted into Paradise, without any question being asked him. He undergoes no examination, no purgatory punishment. He is purified from all his sins, both small and great, whence it is that a man has obtained martyrdom. He is buried all beamed with blood as he felt will out being previously washed, for he dies pure, and is admitted into the number of martyrs, and after the prophet, not saints even obtain such glory in death, but how can the excellence be described which attends the act of warning against infidels; even were the sea to be used for ink and every tree of the jungle be used for pens, that excellence could not be described.—But the promise is this

In the day of battle, if a single Musselman stands forward in opposition to ten infidels and does not shrink back and in the conflict slay his opposers he becomes a Ghazee, that is, his sins are forgiven, should he be slain he is a martyr. When a man forms a resolution to engage in war with infidels his upholders are the prophets upon whom be God's blessing] as also God the author of all difficulties with his angel; this is dignity obtained by firmness.—But the man who from cowardice turns his back to the infidels is lost, and no honor attends him,—surely it is well known to all, both high and low, at this time, now the Musselman in all sides, fearing that they have put the infidels to death; as at Machalabumlah, where they slew 700, at Madrasah a whole battalion, and in like manner at other places.

So far the truths of religion and a salvation have been completed. Turn now to the interest of the things of this world.

Every one who shall unite and associate with Musselman who have this day come an army of the faithful for the purpose of waging war upon the infidels, he and all such persons shall be rewarded with double the pay they now receive, that is, those who now receive 2 pagodas shall have 4, and those whose present pay amounts to 4 pagodas shall receive 8, and in like manner shall they be rewarded with high situations and be entitled to the privilege of using a palanquin; and whenever possessing the religion of Mahomet, shall, in firmly advancing against the infidels, fall a martyr, his family and children to all successive generations shall be well provided for on the non-purviewed establishment. And, if any one being destitute of religion and faith, shall refuse to join the army of the faithful which has assembled for the purpose of waging war against the infidels, his wife and children shall be thrown into the mill and ground to death, and he shall never be admitted into the service in the court of the Musselman monarch, and without doubt he will go to hell, for by not joining with us, he has become a traitor to his country and fortune, —a slave to the infidels, and an eater of the fragments of their table.—All the infamy we suffer has arisen from this, our want of union and courage.—And now this letter of instructions which is founded upon the commands of God's book, has been explained.—If any one is devout, one word is sufficient. If any one is without faith, a hundred would have no effect upon him.—What injury and infamy has arisen from the dissatisfaction of Meer Suleick, for which to the day of judgment, curses await him, and in consequence of the death of one man, Tippee

Sultan, a martyr, the Musselmans are—to this day degraded and distressed, and the infidels have obtained the superiority. There is undoubted intelligence of the intentions of these infidels, a resolution of whose council is this, you may rely upon the truth of this information. The whole of the army of this country is to be sent to Bengal, the people of which country have become in all respects the same with themselves: they sit with them at meals they wear topies and put feathers in them and follow all the customs of the infidels. The army of that country they purpose bringing here, and in the mean time, all Revenue Officers of this country, the Police, the Mobyard, the Magistrate and others they intend to make christians.—At the same time a body of five thousand men being christians, paid at the rate of ten ropers each are to be raised on the Netherland, and they have already got 2000, who are disciplined and prepared; as soon as the Bengal Army has entered this place, those 5000 men are to come and exterminate the Musselmans.—Wherefore all of you remaining faithful to the Musselman Religion, slay these infidels, and inhabit your country in safety and honor, in like manner as you have eaten the bread of devotion to your Religion—so have the people done this day in the undermentioned place in the cause of their religion; Bellary; Nagpoor, Jaulnah, Ranpet, Navenugge, Palah coitah, Madras, Vellore, Mysore, Seringapatam, Bellachery, Mangalore, Dharwar, and Kulludgee. You must look upon this as an ordinary riot, in fact an army of 5000 strong is ready for battle, to exterminate the infidels, and it is incumbent upon you and the Moosla people ~~unite together~~ to destroy these infidels.—By morning you will see an army a lac strong.

It is the assistance of God and the command of the Prophet [on whom be God's blessing] and of God who is your upholder, that has performed this great work, otherwise, what is the power of man—you must not suppose that this is a mistake, the god troops also, and the tope kanah are prepared and in like manner the people of the regiments are prepared for the battle and to stand forward. You will hear the cry of "Deen" "Deen" and this is the army of Musselmans, who have for the battle, you the repeaters of the Kulna, the servants of God followers of the Religion of Mahomed, the sons of Adam [on whom be God's blessing] the beloved of the 4 companies of the Prophets, and the supporters of your Religion, are these, the one lac and some thousand of Prophets, the three hundred and thirteen Apostles, and that six superior Saints. Although you are heirs to these you have deserted your Religion, and pay obedience to infidel Nazaries.—Examine and see what deeds your forefathers performed for the sake of religion, you will no doubt think of this well of yourselves—suppose you should die to-morrow you would be ashamed to face the Prophet, and you would then repent. The Prophet would not remit your sins to-morrow at the judgment, then shake off the negligence and have no fear in your hearts, and see what a false religion it is that these Nazaries profess, be ashamed of them, and be firm, so that your last end may be well.—Three thousand Sorwans have come from Closepat to assist you, also 200 peons from Nugra, 100 men from Chitragong, 70 men from towards Colar, 300 men from Seringapatam, and 70 Anusudoblad [converted Hindoos entertained in the army of Tippoo so named]. It is these that have first raised their hands, do you follow them, and let Hindoos and Musselmans unite and accomplish this work.—Do not look on Hindoos as separate from yourselves.—Whatever part is assigned to you retreat not from it, for if any one is guilty of doing so, he shall be punished and banished the city, and his family and children shall never be employed, in the Mahomedan Government, and that person will fall far from God. Whatever part shall be assigned you, there take the artillery guns and powder from the magazine, and at the same time when you are to be counted be in your place.—Those who do this, shall receive jaghires and high situations.—Moreover both in the case of Hindoos and Musselmans, the pension and invalid establishment and non-per-wurries shall be kept up as it is now, and according to the present arrangements payments shall be made every month and nothing fall into arrears, and if at any time any Subdar and Semidar shall excuse himself from coming forward, whoever kills him on the spot, shall be placed in his situation.

DREADFUL OCCURRENCE.—On the night of the 6th instant, a dreadful occurrence took place on board the ship William, bound to Aden with troops. It appears that a child belonging to one of the camp followers went and drank out of a lotah, belonging to a lazar of the Pioneers; the owner of the lotah saw the child drink, and he immediately went to its father and told him what the child had done, and after a great deal of quarrelling it was forgotten on the part of the father. When the troops and followers were asleep, the human wretch drew his sword, and intended to kill the child, which was at that time asleep on its father's arm. The child being partly hidden by the parent. The man, in making a desperate attempt cut the father across the head, and nearly severed it in two, ere was immediately made when most of the natives took to the rigging. One of the European sailors knocked him down whilst he was in the act of making a cut at one of the European soldiers, he was then secured and delivered over to two European constables that were sent for. The wounded man was taken to the Native General Hospital where he now lies with little hopes of his recovery. The case is under the investigation of the Police authorities.

THE BARQUE CRESCENT.—The barque Crescent, which left Singapore for London of the 4th instant, was lost near the Caranara passage. It seems she struck on Greg's Shoal, near Caranara Island, lat 10 8 N Long 108 31 E, on the afternoon of Friday last. After striking hard forward, and in the mainchains, she cleared the reef, and finding the vessel to be leaking rapidly, they endeavoured to fetch Singapore working incessantly at the pumps for 36 hours after the vessel struck. Then, finding every exertion fruitless, and the water gaining fast upon them, they took to their boats when she was nearly square with the gun-wales. They had not quitted the vessel more than two hours, before she was seen to heel over, and shortly afterwards to disappear altogether. Captain and Mrs. Gould, the crew and two passengers on board, found their way to Rhin in the ship's boats, where the Capt. of the Dutch frigate at that station received them with the utmost politeness, shewed them every kindness and attention, and forwarded them over to this port in two government gun-boats commanded by officers appointed from his own vessel.

Penang

A VESSEL WATER LOGGED.—The schooner Susannah arrived from Maulmain, which place she left on the 16th July, but in consequence of very severe weather and heavy and incessant rains which threw almost the whole of her crew in the sick bed, was forced for necessary refreshments to put into Mergui, which she quitted on the 2d instant. A day or two after leaving Maulmain the Susannah saw a vessel, apparently a schooner, waterlogged in lat. 13. 43 and long. 97. 4; but could not distinguish that there was any person on board.

China

We have received, during the week China news to the 2d of August, which we have re-corded into our journal, in another column. The island, it will be seen, has been taken possession of by our troops, after a slight resistance, and the British cannonading, which had killed about forty men, had so terrified the Chinese, that they had become most abject in their deportment towards foreigners. The natives had abandoned their dwellings, and although Colonel Burnett, of the 11th Royal Irish, who had been appointed Governor of the island, had endeavoured to induce them to return, his efforts had been unavailing.

Siam

By the arrival of the W. S. Hamilton during the week, we have received letters from Bangkok to the 30th ultimo. The accounts we continue to receive from this quarter present the most deplorable picture of the state of mercantile affairs. The market had been utterly drained of its specie circulation—produce was procurable only at ruinously high prices, and such limited sales of piece goods as had been effected were at the most disadvantageous rates, while there was nothing that indicated the prospect of a return to a more desirable state of affairs; and the Chinese merchants continued to be harassed by prosecutions under the recent anti Opium laws, which had alternated into a mere instrument of extortion in the hands of the inferior officers of government to gratify their own cupidity.

The King and his high officers were enjoying themselves over a ridiculous report that had reached Bangkok of the failure of the English Expedition against China—but his majesty apparently acting upon a belief that our force would not like to return from the China coast without doing something, had taken it into his head that the armament might probably pay a visit to the land which is blessed by his own sway, and had put two of the largest of his ships on their war establishment, to keep their station outside the bar and act as guardships, while he also fitted out a number of war-junks. Another surmise is, that these preparations are indicative of approaching hostilities with Cochin China, a number of prisoners—that is several, hundreds of old men, old women, and children—having been sent from Metabang in Cambodia, where the commander in chief of the Siamese forces has been for the last six months, with a force under him of about 5000 men. The general it is reported, had solicited a reinforcement of 50,000 men which the king demurred at sending, but had given orders to muster all the available forces of the kingdom at Chantaboon and Banplasson. There is no doubt the king of Siam looks to our proceedings against the Chinese with an anxious eye, but at the same time, there seems no great improbability of the preparations referred to being caused by the state of his relations with Cochin China, with which country the Siamese have so often been at war—and it is possible that the king of Cochin China, having recently added a steamer to his navy, may be meditating something very terrible against his brother of Bangkok.

One of the Chinese captured in the Campan Pukat of which the seizure by the Siamese has been so frequently referred to in this paper, arrived here in the W. S. Hamilton. He had succeeded in making his escape from the place of confinement of himself and such of his companions as still survived the cruelty, with which they were treated—eight of the unfortunate men having perished during their imprisonment from ill-treatment and hunger. According to this man's statement, not the least resistance was offered by the crew of the Pukat to their Siamese captors—a statement which is corroborated by that formerly made to our informant, by one of those on board of the Siamese boat, and to which we have before called the notice of our readers. On being brought before the Phia-Klang, the prisoners represented the property on board their boat (consisting of 24 chests of Opium, a considerable sum in specie, and other merchandise) to belong to European merchants in Singapore, and a portion of it which was already in the course of distribution a prize money, was immediately resumed possession of, an accurate inventory taken of the articles and the whole deposited in one of the royal warehouses, where it still remains ready to be delivered up, we are told, upon any application being made by our Government. It is further stated that any demand made by our government for the liberation of the remainder of the unfortunate Chinese, would meet with instant compliance. With the statement or deposition of this man before them, we hope the government will either take steps, or recommend them to be taken, for the restoration of so much valuable property and the liberation of the unfortunate crew of the Pukat,—who, although caught smuggling Opium are treated with a degree of rigour, not to say cruelty, which that offence does not render them liable to—the sole punishment provided by the Treaty with Siam, for the importation of Opium, being the destruction of the article itself.

Aden

Advices from Aden have been received to the 30th of August: every thing had been quiet and peaceful without, since the attempt on the 6th of July. The Europeans were complaining much of the heat, but expected that by the middle or end of September, the cold weather would have set in. Their health was on the whole tolerably good. The natives again were suffering terribly from scurvy, occasioned by want of fruit and vegetable diet. Nearly three fourths of the whole sepoy force are afflicted with it. "Captain Haines," says our correspondent, "has shut up the roads, and will allow nothing to be brought into the town, except what a friendly power supplies by boat". The information, we formerly laid before our readers regarding the communication that we had received, from a private but trustworthy source, that £50,000 had been voted to improve the fortifications of Aden, has now received official confirmation.

Mocha

A Nacodah from Mocha, asserts that there was a great quarrel between the British authorities at Aden and the Sherreef at Mocha. The British authorities demanded that the British Consular Agent should be permitted to hoist his flag in Mocha. The Sherreef refused to allow it, unless he received 800 dollars per month. He was then asked under whose authority he made such a demand, the Sultan's or Mahomed Ali's. He replied that he did not care for either, that he was his own master and acting in his own name. The British vessel, with the Consular Agent on board, set sail for Aden, from whence a communicating letter was sent to Mahomed Ali by the Victoria Steamer.

In announcing Mr. Sawers' retirement from his seat in the management of the Fund, the Committee have the pleasure to bring to the notice of their constituents the following Resolution recorded on their proceedings

Resolved.—That this being probably the last occasion of Dr. Sawers appearing in his place as a Member of this Committee, his colleagues avail themselves of the opportunity to express their regret at being deprived of his valuable services. That this regret however is qualified by their sincere hope that he may pass many happy years in his native land, and that while his colleagues bid him respectfully farewell, they deem themselves bound at the same time to thank him for his constant and punctual attendance at their Meetings, and to express their sense of the able, efficient, zealous and conscientious regard for the best interests of the Bengal Medical Retiring Fund, with which he has always discharged his duty as a manager, and that a copy of this resolution signed by the Committee of Management be forwarded to Dr. Sawers.

By order of the Committee of Management,

Geo. Hill, Secretary.

Applications for annuities from John Sawers, Esquire, Drs. Charters and Simson were read, as also an application from Major James Bedford, on behalf of Surgeon George Baile, on furlough, and they were severally admitted annuitants from date of their respective retirements from the Service, and in case of the applicant on furlough, from date of the Bengal General Order announcing his retirement.

Proposed by G. Angus, Esquire, seconded by H. Hill, Esquire.

1st, Resolved.—That the Report of the Committee of Management read at the last Quarterly General Meeting held on the 13th July last, with appended accounts, which has been since printed and circulated to every subscriber, but was not confirmed at that meeting owing to none others than Managers of the Fund being present, received and adopted, and the accounts be passed, Carried unanimously.

Proposed by G. Angus, Esquire, seconded by Dr. J. G. Vos.

Resolved.—That the Report of the Committee of Management for the last Quarter just read be received and adopted.

Proposed by Dr. A. Garden, seconded by John Jackson, Esquire, B. M.

Resolved.—That George Angus, Esquire, Officiating Secretary to the Medical Board and Presidency Surgeon, be elected to fill up the vacancy under provision of Rule X V. in the Committee of Management caused by the retirement of John Sawers, Esquire. Carried unanimously.

Resolved.—That the thanks of this Meeting be offered to the Chairman for his conduct in the chair.

MEETING OF THE SALT COMPANY.

The meeting of the shareholders of the Salt Company though not crowdedly was well attended on Thursday evening last, at the Town Hall. Mr. Cragg, was elected to the chair, who called on the Provisional Secretary, Mr. Wm. Pittsop, to read the report which was to the following:—

FIRST ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BENGAL SALT COMPANY, 5th NOVEMBER, 1840.

The Provisional Secretary begs leave to state that he has so little to add to his late report to the Committee that he begs leave to read it as follows.

Tuesday, 29th September, 1840.—At a Special Meeting of the Committee, called to consider of the necessary proceedings in consequence of the Superintendent's, Mr. W. Stuart's sudden departure for Singapore, under a serious attack of inflammation of the lungs, and also the expected departure, of the Deputy Secretary, Mr. W. J. Chinnell—likewise to consider of the necessary means to be taken for commencing the season at Gorda, and completing the unfinished works.

The Provisional Secretary states that in the hurry of Mr. W. Stuart's departure and his great debility at the time of making over his accounts, some little confusion has occurred, and an error in addition of 100 Rupees, which will have to stand at Mr. Stuart's debits, unaccounted for.

That Mr. Barrington has received charge of the works and their accounts, assisted by Mr. Bucher and Mr. Mullins who take their turns of residence at the works to avoid a repetition of the sickness which has occurred during the past season.

That Mr. Kelly from Chittagong has strongly recommended himself as a very fit person to look after the business generally, particularly in visiting the Works or reconnoitering in the Sunderbunds and the Provisional Secretary proposes to place him under his own eye as Deputy Secretary with a view to try him in active duty as well as conduct of the Office upon the salary of 300 Rupees per month, which is 50 Rs. above what Mr. Campbell has drawn—by this measure it is hoped to secure the services of an operative Secretary hereafter who will visit the Works once a week and conduct the Office likewise.

The Provisional Secretary presents a statement of expenditure up to 31st Augt, 1840, in abstract from the Books of the Company showing the total outlay to be of Co.'s Rs 117,598-5 Ann.

In the foregoing statement is included the cost of the experimental boiler erected by Mr. Cahler amounting at present to Co.'s Rs 6849-9-2 as per separate statement.

The Provisional Secretary is sorry to be obliged to report the experiment a complete failure whether from the want of an exhausting machine to produce a vacuum in the boiler or not he is unable to say, but the total quantity of salt produced after 23 days boiling, and an expenditure of 5615 mds. of wood, was only 158½ mds. Mr. Cahler requests that before pulling down the present erection, he may be permitted to make another experiment. The iron boiler for bars, doors, &c. will come again into use at the works.

The Provisional Secretary produces the Map of the works, showing what portion has been completed, and an estimate left with him by Mr. Stuart, showing what work is still required amounting in total to Rs 33,266.

There is iron plate in hand sufficient to make the boiler required.

Ordered that the Provincial Secretary's proposed trial of Mr. Kelly's services be confirmed, if he produce proper testimonials of trustworthy conduct in his past employment.

That under the circumstances of Mr. Stuart's zealous services and active usefulness, his salary be allowed to him during his temporary absence at Singapore to cover the expenses of his voyage.

That immediate measures be taken for finishing the works with all possible economy so as to collect time for the season's manufacture, and that Mr. Barrington's weekly reports from the works be circulated for information of the Committee.

That the experiment at Balaghat proceed no further, but that Mr. Cahler be permitted to repeat the experiment at his own cost, if he deems it previous to removing the boiler, &c.

That Mr. Davidson who was employed upon it be desired to look to the completion of the flat boilers upon the old system.

That all proprietors in arrears of their contributions be called upon to pay up at once or their shares to be forfeited.

That the Secretary to the Government be addressed to know if there be any objection to receiving a copy of the late despatch regarding the Salt Company, for submission to the proprietors at the approaching half yearly meeting.

That these proceedings and documents be circulated to absent Committee men.

(Sd.) N. ALEXANDER, Chairman.

The Cash Balance in the Union Bank upon that date was Rs.,	19680	0	0
The amount of arrears upon shares filled up was Rs.,	19560	0	0

The number of Shares remaining unsubscribed for are 111, most of which have been either thrown up by parties changing their minds or forfeited after paying the first contribution. The amount thus gained to the Company amounts upon 75 Shares to Co.'s Rs. 750.

The preparation of the Works is in full operation as may be seen by the daily Log Book kept by the assistants at Goolah, and there is no doubt that with the activity and zeal now shown by all who are employed that they will be completed in good time for the making season of the following year. The fields and bunds are in excellent order although from the extraordinary quantity of rain which fell last year, the water left upon them was reduced to the same strength as the nullahs around and will therefore have to be run out and replenished from those nullahs as soon as they have lost their sweetness, from the draining of the country around. In fact the next springs may be considered as the opening of the season by letting in water from the sea at the strength of S G 1012.

The brick-work of the large Reservoir and Chimney, completed just as the rains began, have stood perfectly well, and as soon as a sufficient quantity of bricks are burnt the Boiling Houses and the working Reservoir will also be completed. The tiles burnt last season are sufficient for all the terraces which are now being dug and levelled.

For the purposes of pumping, cutting wood, and conveying it to the boiling house, the Provisional Secretary begs leave to point out that a small steam engine would be of infinite advantage and in the end he has no doubt would show its economy; but the time saved in the celerity of its operation for such work as emptying the reservoirs now of necessity done by the hand, would be of the greatest importance.

The great difficulty felt at first in collecting wood for these works is gradually disappearing and the monthly receipts are now reported to be about 30,000 manads. The boiling process will be carried on upon the principle originally projected in flat open pans but with improvement in the fires and furnances. The alteration proposed by Mr. Calder not having succeeded to establish any of the expected advantages.

Genl Dept 23d Oct. 1840. The Provisional Secretary begs leave to lay before the Meeting the reply of Mr. Secretary Bushby, regarding the orders of the Honorable Court of Directors upon perusal of the despatch from hence which included our Petition for carrying on the manufacture upon a system of excise. It will be seen that this Government are at present in a state of no change in the existing plan of their close monopoly, and that the Bengal Salt Company are only to be permitted to carry on or to extend their works as salt engines delivering their produce into the Government Golahs at the price fixed by the Government which is at present 12 annas per maund. It will now remain for the proprietors to determine.

1st. Whether they will rest contented with the decision.

2d. Whether they will extend their operations.

3d. Whether they will apply for an act of incorporation upon the deed of Co-partnership as settled by Mr. Clarke and which is now upon the table.

The Provisional Secretary begs leave to record his great satisfaction with the unabated zeal and activity even to the surface of health of his superintendent Mr. W. Stuart, and trusts that the Meeting will confirm the arrangement of the Committee for continuing to him his full salary during his absence on a trip to Penang.

Should he return to Calcutta he fears that his strength will not be equal to the out door work at Goolah, but he is so well acquainted with all the details that his services will be most valuable as a Secretary, and in the hope therefore of keeping open this appointment for him he is most willing to continue his assistance to the Company as Provisional Secretary, having with the concurrence of the Committee secured the services of a hardy, active and very intelligent Gentleman to afford him all the aid required in visiting the works and superintending all matters of detail, namely, Mr. Kelly who is well acquainted with the Salt manufacture at Chittagong, and who has already rendered some service to the Company gratuitously in reporting upon a new and valuable site of another set of works.

W. PRINSEP, Prov. Secy.

During the reading of the report some conversation took place as to the expediency of adjourning the meeting, in consequence of the want of data, to make arrangements for the future operations of the Company.

On the report having been read the chairman observed, that there were three points in the Provisional Secretary's report, which could not be entered into till more official information was received.

Further conversation entered was as to the actual construction of the private communication from Mr. Hushby, and the real position of the company in being placed on a par with the Molungees.

Mr. Clarke then rose to state the particular position of the Salt Company in relation to Government. He said, that the proposal sent to Government included three separate terms, namely: first—that the excise system should be sanctioned; secondly—to be placed on a par with the Molungees; and thirdly, in the failure of obtaining the two preceding terms, to take the works at their real cost. In reference to the first term Mr. Clarke was confident it would never be granted by the Court of Directors, to whom it has been referred. With regard to being placed on a par with the Molungees it is to be at the entire disposal of the Government, for if they wish to give only two annas to the Molungees, and consequently the same rate to the company, still there would be no breach of faith or contract. On this and other considerations, which Mr. Clarke adduced, he thought the present meeting should be postponed.

Mr. T. Dickens rose and expressed his acquiescence to the general tenor of the remarks which had been made by Mr. Clarke, and thought that until the maximum and minimum rates by Government were fixed, the works should not be set afloat.

The following resolution then was proposed by T. Dickens, Esq., seconded by Baboo Prasanno Coomar Tagore, and carried—

Moved by Mr. Dickens, seconded by Baboo Prasanno Coomar Tagore, and Resolved,—that the Report of Mr. Honorary Secretary Priocsep be received and recorded, and this meeting having taken into consideration the matters of the Report and finding that no official communication from Government has yet been received respecting the terms, in which the Government will take and pay for the Salt, to be manufactured by the company, do deem it expedient to adjourn until the answer of Government be received, when the Directors shall forthwith, call another general meeting giving due notice in the public papers.

Upon which with thanks to the chairman the meeting broke up.—Hurkaru, November 7, 1840.

PRESENTATIONS TO THE SOCIETY.

LIBRARY.

1.—Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, (No. 10)—Presented by the Society.

2.—Transactions of the Society of Arts, (vol. 52, part 2), and several copies of Pamphlets on Jungle Silk, Bengal Silk and Tea from Assam.—Presented by the Society.

3.—The Green House, by Charles Macintosh. } Presented by the Society.
4.—The Orchard, by Charles Macintosh.

GARDEN.

1.—Two boxes containing Sugar Cane packed in sand and two packages in straw.

2.—These canes were brought by the Charles Jones from Sydney, having been taken to that port by H. M. ship

Favorite, on which vessel they were received from the island of Otaheite on the 22d May last.

In the letter of advice, captain Dunlop, the acting commander of the Favorite, intimates, that Mr. George Pritchard the British consul at Tahiti had stated that the society may at any time command his services in obtaining further supplies of cane from the island.

The secretary informed the members that these canes had been transferred to the nursery without delay, and read a note from Dr. Wallich, stating that most of the pieces packed in sand had arrived in good order, but that all the canes bound with straw had perished.

2.—Two baskets containing Potatoes reared at the public garden at Darjeeling from Madras seed—Presented by Mr. Wm. Bruce on behalf of the Darjeeling Experimental Garden Society.

The seed from whence these potatoes were reared, was put in the ground in May, and the produce taken up at the beginning of September. They were much admired by the meeting for their size and general appearance.

MUSEUM.

1.—Sample of yam—Presented by Mr. D. W. H. Speed.

Mr. Speed mentions that this yam was produced in his garden from a sample of Brazilian yam presented to the society by Mr. Bellairs in April last. The bulb whence the sample submitted to the society was taken weighed 6lbs, and consisted of 27 off-sets. Mr. Speed states that the yam is beautifully white, exceedingly mealy, and far superior to any potato, or any thing of the same species he has met with in this country.

2 —Seed of the Shah Toot, or Royal Mulberry of Candahar—Presented by Lieutenant Colonel Stacy.

Colonel Stacy describes the fruit of this species of Mulberry to be as fine and as well flavored as any he has ever tasted in England.

3.—A plant (an Erythrina) reared from Nepal seed Presented by Mr. R. W. Chew.

4.—A Hill Foura or spade and two bits of Fir from Cherpa Poonjee. Presented by Major Carter.

Major Carter submits the Foura which cost 3 annas to the Society with a view of shewing the Members how good the iron is—10 to 1500 tons of iron could be procured during the year at several of the localities, the price of crude iron is about a rupee per maund.

The Fir contains a great quantity of resin, and Major Carter thinks that it might be extracted with profit.

5.—Specimen of Gum procured from a shrub called "Hurra." Presented by Lieut. Kittoe.

Lieut. Kittoe states that this gum can be obtained in tolerable quantities, it oozes out of the extremities of the branches in May, about the time the new buds begin to appear; the natives use this highly aromatic gum as a medicine.

6.—A sample of sugar manufactured from the Molasses of Sugar which had formerly been sent for competition. Presented by Mr. Edward Riley of Amherst.

7.—Specimen of Pine Apple Fibre. Presented by Mr. Riley.

8.—Sample of Jute. Presented by Messrs Cockerell and Co., on behalf of Mr. P. Carter of Bhojapore, 9.—Samples of Bengal Hemp called Dhuncha (Echynomene Cannabina.) Presented by Mr. Deneef.

Mr. Deneef states that these samples have been dressed after the Belgian mode. A bough will yield 175 lbs. of cleanest fibre and 92 lbs. of seed. A woman can dress about 4lbs a day.

10 —Mulberry plants and a Cassia plant from the Cherpa Poonjee Hills. Presented by Major Carter.

Major Carter was anxious to ascertain whether the specimens now presented were identical with the "Morus Multicaulis" referred so prominently to by col. Sykes, as being a variety of the Mulberry attracting the greatest attention in America at the present time, but on an examination being made, these plants appeared no other than the common white Mulberry.

11.—A Coconut plant. Presented by Raja Kali Kishan.

12.—A Pine-apple and a bunch of Dahlias. Presented by Mr. D. W. Speed.

The Pine-apple, which was a very large one, had been grown from the common Bengal stock, and improved by cultivation. The Dahlias were the produce of seed presented to the Society by Captain Kirke, — they were of many colours, plain and variegated, and were much admired.

13.—Specimens of the plant of St. Domingo, called by the Spaniards "Libitibi," (Cassipouia Caribea of Willdenow) and a few pods of the plant.—Presented by Dr. Wallich.

Dr. Wallich stated to the Meeting that there are now a number of individuals of this very desirable plant in the Botanic Garden, where it was first introduced in 1835, by Mr. Hamilton, of Plymouth. The plant blossomed for the first time last year and is again in full flower, and ripe pods may be expected about a month hence. The pod is exceedingly aromatic and used in the process of tanning. The plant, therefore, is likely to be of considerable utility.

14 —A small assortment of English vegetable, and Flower Seeds, and a few varieties of Cotton Seed.—Presented by Professor Royle, on behalf of the Court of Directors of the India Company.

This packet had been transmitted by the last over-land mail, and has arrived in excellent order. The supply being very limited, it was decided that a small assortment of each kind should be distributed to two or three Members, who kindly offered to test them and to submit a report, as to their goodness at the next Meeting.

DISPOSAL OF THE CANES AT THE NURSERY.

The Nursery Committee Report that the number of applicants for Cane has so far exceeded the supply that it has been found necessary to reduce the quantity designed for each Member from 250 to 200, and to close the list from the day of recording its sentiments. (30th Sept.) With regard to the necessity which exists, owing to the rapidly increasing demand for the Sugar of India, for the extension of the Mauritius, Singapore, and Otaheite canes in order to meet the growing demands of the members of the Society, the committee report having taken immediate steps to prepare a further piece of ground which Dr. Wallich, the Superintendent of the Botanic Garden, has been so good as to assign for the purpose, and to prevent delay, the committee took on itself the responsibility of sanctioning an additional expenditure in order to go to work at once. The same being submitted to the meeting was duly approved of and confirmed.

Reply from the Government of India relative to the representation which the Society made on the subject of the Discriminating Duties on East India Rum and Tobacco.

To H. H. SPRY, Esq., M. D.,

Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India.

Encl. } Sir.—I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 9th instant, with the copy of the Resolution therein referred to, representing the great and increasing importance of promoting the cultivation of free labour Sugar in the Territories of British Asia, and repeating the urgent appeal of the Society for the removal of the discriminating duties on East India Rum and Tobacco imported into Great Britain.

2nd. I am directed to acquaint the Society, that their representation will be forwarded to the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, with the earnest expression of the concurrence of His Lordship in Council, in the justice of the petition of the Agricultural and Commercial interests of this country, for the removal of the remaining inequalities in the Customs of Great Britain affecting Sugar and Tobacco cultivation of India.

THE GREAT VALUE OF ASSAM TEA.

The next communication which was submitted, was the highly satisfactory and important despatch which the Supreme Government has been pleased to forward on the subject of the London Sale of last Assam Tea sent home in the "Margaret," which reached England on the 4th January last, a request for which had been made by the Society at a former Meeting.

To H. H. SPRY, M. D., Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

Revenue } Sir.—In reply to your letter of the 17th instant, I am directed by the Right Hon'ble the Governor of Bengal to forward for the information of the Society Extracts from the Hon'ble Court of Directors's Dispatch No 4 of the 29th April last, which copies of the papers mentioned in para. 7 on the subject of the Assam Tea shipped to England on board the "Margaret."

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant.

J. H. YOUNG,

Dy. Secy. to the Government of Bengal.

Fort William, the 25th August, 1840.

(Contd.)

Extract of a Letter from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors to the Government of India in the Revenue Department, dated 29th April, 1840, No. 4.

Para. 4. Of the Tea shipped by you on board the "Margaret," the whole of which arrived in good condition, we selected ten tea boxes for distribution, which afforded great and general satisfaction as evincing a very considerable improvement on the consignment received per "Calcutta" in 1839.

5.—The remaining eighty-five packages were sold by public auction on the 17th March, and we transmit to you a catalogue shewing the result of the sale, and containing a running commentary by Mr. J. W. Thompson on the character of each chest.

6.—Although the prices which the result of the sale exhibits do not approach to those obtained for the eight packages sold in January 1839, they are nevertheless still excessive with regard to the relative value of this Tea as compared with Tea of a similar character and quality imported from China.

7.—The opinions of Brokers and other practical persons, to whom we submitted specimens of the Tea, and which are also transmitted with the Despatch, will enable you to form a more correct judgment on this subject, supposing Assam Tea to be shipped in such quantities as would place it in fair competition with China Tea.

8.—It is very satisfactory to find that the opinions of the Brokers, and the result of the sale, shew that the Tea manufactured by the Fakels, without the aid of Chinamen, are confirmatory of the fact that the whole process of manufacturing the article is readily imparted to the Natives, and that no obstacle of this nature will oppose itself to an extensive cultivation.

9.—We have not as yet received any specimen of Green Tea, but we perceive some samples have been sent from Assam which were forwarded by you to the Governor-General. It appears however from the Report of Mr. Bruce, dated the 10th June 1839, that Green Tea was at that period under process of manufacture from the same shrub as that from which the Black Tea is manufactured, the result of which will tend to elucidate a point of considerable interest and importance connected with this part of the subject, and we shall expect shortly to receive some specimens.

10.—With regard to the second process which it appears it is necessary that Green Tea should undergo, in order to complete its manufacture, and which it is suggested might remain to be effected in London, this is a point which will of course be left for the future consideration of those parties who may hereafter make the article one of merchandise — It will be desirable however, that whatever specimens you may forward to us, should be perfected in regard to manufacture, previously to their shipment from India. At the same time we think it necessary in the infancy of this manufacture strictly to prohibit the use of any deleterious materials as colouring materials of Green Tea, and if Green Tea cannot be produced without the use of such materials, we desire that the attempt to produce it may be entirely abandoned.

11.—You will continue to consign to us making such reserve as you may consider necessary, the produce of your experimental establishment, and in other respects you will be guided by our instructions under date the 19th February, 1840.

12.—So far as regards your advices, and those received from the Government of Fort St. George as noted in the margin,* (excepting to express one general approbation of the Proceedings to which they respectively refer,) we have only to lament the defective condition in which Dr. Wright found the supply of Tea seeds received from Assam, and have to call your attention to the instructions conveyed to you in the 18th para. of our letter dated the 23d August, (No. 11) 1837.

16.—We approve of your having declined to extend the operations of the experimental establishment under Mr. Bruce further than by sanctioning the employment of two or three Native overseers, with such an additional number of coolies, as could be efficiently and usefully employed by the Tea makers, already authorized, with a view to the objects contemplated in your letter to the Tea Committee dated the 21st October, 1839.

OPINIONS OF BROKERS AND OTHERS ON ASSAM TEA RECEIVED PER MARGARET 4TH JANUARY, 1840.

WM. JAS. THOMPSON, 38, Mincing Lane, 22nd January 1840.

The "Assam Souchong" is of a coarse and not properly twisted leaf, it has a very good flavor, but more of Coagou than Souchong.

The "Assam Paho" is of a rather large but perfectly twisted leaf, with very little of the Pekoe flavor, the sample is an great an improvement on those of last year as could well be effected, it is too much fired, yet the flavor is very good, equalling that of Coagou of the Pekoe kind.

The sample from the Chinese plant is tolerably well made, though not sufficiently twisted, in flavor it is superior to the other samples.

The present relative value of the (Assam) s. d.
 Souchong is 2 11 per lb.
 Assam Paho, 3 3 ..
 Tea from the China plant, 3 0 ..

but our market is in a state of too great excitement for these prices to be taken as a guide when looking prospectively; in ordinary times the Assam Paho would from its superior make, rank with the first class of Pekoe teas, which the East India Company used to give 30 and sometimes 32 taels per picul, for the Tea from the China plant would rank with Souchong Coagou at 26 or 28 taels, while the Assam Souchong from the imperfect state of the leaf would not be rated above common Coagou, say relatively 23 to 24 taels per picul.

JOSEPH TRAVERS AND SONS, Swinfin's Lane, 24th January, 1840.

No. 1. The Chinese Plant grown in Assam.—Of the finest character as Padrae Souchong—of full strength as well as fragrant and delicate in flavor—worth in this market a year ago from 2s. to 3s 6d. in bond now probably from 4s. 6d. to 5s. This specimen seems to prove satisfactorily, that the soil of Assam is well adapted to the cultivation of Tea.

No. 2. The Assam Plant marked "Paho".—Of the Pekoe kind, strong and well flavored, excepting that it tastes a little coarse or burnt with a strong infusion—worth in this market a year ago from 2s. 3d to 2s. 6d.—now probably from 3s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per lb.

No. 3. The Assam Plant marked "Souchong".—Good Tea of the Souchong flavor, strong and true—rather more coarse or burnt than sample No. 2—worth in this market a year ago from 2s. to 2s. 3d., now probably from 3s. 3d. to 3s. 6d.

General Remarks.—The above valuations are made upon the supposition of a general and steady supply of Assam Tea to this market in quantity, with reference to which we desire particularly to draw your attention to our opinion, as stated of the probable value of these samples under such circumstances a year ago, as one which we think present a better standard for calculation than the value at this time under the present circumstances of the China trade.

The two Assam samples which we number 2 and 3 are undoubtedly the true plant, and of excellent strength and flavor, wanting only continued care in the cultivation to make them equal in quality to the best Teas of the sort from China. The manufacture so far deserves the highest praise, though it may be improved still further, and in this as well as the flavor there is a marked advance upon former specimens. The selection of the leaf we think wants more care.

Judging by the specimens, we suspect, that the leaves have been plucked at different periods, and then thrown together and manufactured indiscriminately, whereas they should have been taken through the season at the different stages of growth, and manufactured apart from each other, the younger leaf as being more tender with the greatest care for the finer qualities, and the older and tougher leaf requiring perhaps less attention, for the inferior qualities.

Many of the leaves also of these two samples specially of No. 3 are very large and fibrous, probably many years old (taken from shrubs of many years growth) and we think have injured the flavor. This may be avoided by confining the selection in future to plants that are according to Chinese practice cut down once a year, and upon which therefore, there are only the leaf of the season.

WM. JAS. BLAND, 28, Fenchurch Street,
 27th January, 1840.

The three samples which I received on the 17th, I would thus describe—

The "Souchong," has not what we know as Souchong flavor but has mellow true "blackish leaf?" flavor in a high degree, modified however by pungent Aukni, which may in part be produced by the method of firing.

The "Paho," which word I take to signify (is a Chinese "Pekoe" or "Pecco") feathery or downy Tea, is very strong and full flavoured, but would not be recognized as that so well known here as "Pekoe flavour," it having a harder, or kind of Caper flavor blended.

The third sample "China Tea manufactured in Assam," is a very peculiar specimen, viz. that of which the old-fashioned Caper Tea used to be made, its strength and high aromatic flavor is unequalled by any other kind—"Caper," such as I describe, has not been seen in England for the last 10 or 15 years, but we have latterly got a few chests of Hoolon, Auloug or Fulong bearing hard upon it. &c.

Now these are mere critical opinions, and may be disputed or overthrown, but the great point at issue may be thus practically elucidated; several parties to whom I have shewn these specimens, have asked "where is the common Assam Tea?"—are there no Buteas among them? perhaps the most powerful gratuitous testimony which could be borne to the fact, that no one would think of comparing these with any but the finer grades of China Tea, and this having from the first been my practice, I am prepared to say, that they stand such comparison most satisfactorily. I have now to allude to a circumstance necessary to be especially guarded against. I mean any discrepancy in the bed or parcel of Tea bearing the same chop. I do not mean to say that it does exist, but two samples handed to me as sent from you on the 24th instant establish quite a different position. The "Paho" in this instance, is the ripe, rich, blackish leaf flavoured Tea, and the Souchong the quieter kind, though the leaf of the latter is the most natural by far of all the specimens I have yet seen, having scarcely more of the white tip than is often found in our direct "Pekoe kind Congou." I mention this as a safeguard against what would be more detrimental to the character of this article with the Trade than any thing else, viz. an irregularity of quality, where uniformity ought to be looked for.

The value of the Tea at the present moment, would be in my judgment about 3s 6d. (or rather more) per lb. the differences just mentioned, preclude a graduated or comparative estimate, but I give this average valuation, reckoning 2 lb as the current quotation for common Congou, and 3-2 to 3-4, for fine, the high quality, and Souchong rating also at 3-6 to 3-9 per lb. it may be as well however to add that its beauty as well as its novelty will cause it to sell at about 1 per lb. more say at 4-6 and upwards.

Note. The best criterion that whatever modification these Teas have undergone by firing, no injury has been done to the substance, is the pellucid liquor given out on infusion, and the complete absence of the charcoal scum ordinarily left on the leaves of common black Tea.

Query. Will not suitable choice of soil, aspect, and age, afford the varieties of green Tea? The botanical characters do not differ at all in what are termed the black and the green plants, as cultivated in the black, and the green Tea Countries in China two circumstances favor this idea—1st, these specimens impart only a green,* color to spirit, 2nd and whatever kinds of Tea are grown in Honan or near Canton, degenerate into faint wossing kinds.

Query. Did the large Paho chest already emptied contain 70 pounds or 80 pounds of Tea? If the former only, the looseness of the packing would occasion deterioration of quality by long keeping or on a bad voyage, in every other respect the packages are most judiciously provided.

RICHARD GIBBS, White Horse Court, January 28, 1840.

I have very carefully tasted the Assam samples of "Paho" and "Souchong," with those of last year's import, and find them to possess nearly the same appearance and general qualities, with a little more fragrance, and a slight improvement in the manipulation, or twisting of the leaves; with these exceptions I can trace no material variation in their quality.

I have also with equal care, compared the samples of the Native plant with that of the China plant grown in Assam. I find the latter to possess all the richness, strength and flavor of the very finest kinds imported from China. Combining in flavor the finest Oolong and Paoche, with a fragrance the native plant does not possess, the leaves, after infusion, present also a very different appearance, those of the China plant are of a lively ripe yellow color, small, perfectly serrated, and nearly all whole, those of the Assam are of a dark brown, large, serrated, but comparatively imperfect or broken.

* This can only be ascertained after repeated washings.

I was last year led to the conclusion, that the difference existing between the samples then before me and the Tea as imported from China, was mainly the consequence of inexperience in the manufacture; that opinion I feel it now necessary to qualify, although I still think some of the properties of the plant are partially destroyed by over-heat. The sample of the China plant grown on the same soil, and manufactured by the same process in Assam, proves beyond question, that this is not the essential point of difference, it may, more reasonably be found in the relative age of the two plants (a probability borne out by the appearance of the leaves when infused)—the China plant expressly procured for the purpose of comparison, being properly cultivated and the leaves necessarily gathered while young; while the samples of the native plant bear evidence of indiscriminate gathering, the plant from age and want of proper culture, having naturally become coarse, and devoid of fragrance,—in this view, to my idea, the difference may reasonably be accounted for. These considerations may be more or less worthy of the attention of the Superintendents, of the manufacture to Assam—they at least have it to their power, by the even culture of the two plants, to satisfy themselves of their plenty—should a fair trial evidence the contrary, there can be no doubt of the propriety of propagating by every means in their power, the China, in preference to the native plant.

In either case, I would unhesitatingly assert that any quantity of an article of equal value with the sample of the China plant of Assam manufacture, now submitted for opinion would find as ready consumption and give as general satisfaction as the direct importations from China.

Sample No. 2 of Assam Souchong

Large black uncurled leaf, with some Pekoe ends dull and heavy in the eye, too highly fired, rather coarse, burnt fresh, with some fragrance, but of a different character to Chinese Souchong

More like Pekoe than Souchong.

Rather inferior to the Pekoe Sample No 1.

Rather fresh Larger than Chinese

Souchong mid-rib very tough.

Samples No. 3, of Tea from Chinese Plants.

Very, long leaf with the Pekoe characteristics, not nearly dissimilar to Chinese tea, fragrant but rather herby like Chinese paper or orange Pekoe tea from the Oolong district.

Like Pekoe tea.

Agrees with the smell.

As Chinese tea.

Usual characteristics of Chinese tea.

The question, "Is the indigenous Assam plant a variation or precisely the same genus as the Chinese tea Shrub?" is one which will naturally occur upon a perusal of the foregoing examination that the leaf varies in its properties from that of the Chinese, is apparent from the scent and flavour of the samples Nos. 1 and 2, differing so considerably from the Chinese, as well as from Sample No. 3, manufactured from plants procured from China, and which coincides with all the properties of the Chinese tea. This important question may be satisfactorily answered, and the variation attributable solely to the care and attention which the shrubs of No. 3 sample must have received in their cultures while those from which No. 1 and 2, are specimens, may have been in a wild uncultivated state, and which may only require the same degree of care to develop exactly the same qualities as the Chinese plant, upon the solution however of this question, rests one of the most important advantages which is to be derived from the manufacture of the leaves of the native plant, that the soil and climate of Assam are favorable to the growth of the tea shrub, the specimen No 3, will, I think satisfy all judges of the article, and should the Assam plant only require cultivation to raise it to the same perfection, I confidently anticipate that in time it will compete with, if not supersede, the Chinese growth and manufacture for the consumption of this country; on the other hand, should the indigenous plant prove to be a variation of the Chinese, which I am strongly disposed to imagine it will, and incapable of a much higher state of perfection than exhibited by the two Samples, still to the extent of many thousand chests annually, it will, I have no doubt, find ready purchasers, the quality, such as it now is being manifestly superior to that of the inferior Chinese tea, and also from its peculiarities, being valuable for mixing with many kinds of that article.

Without more exact data for having formed my opinions, some of these remarks may appear supererogatory, but they are not strictly so, as they tend to explain the conclusions which I have drawn upon the general questions.

Upon minor points for consideration, I beg to draw attention to the picking and process of manufacture, neither of these being quite in conformity with the Chinese method in the picking, I judge from the absence of the tender shoots with their cluster of leaves partially developed observable in the Chinese Pekos, and from the fully expanded and occasional coarse leaf to be seen in the Assam Souehong, that this process has been conducted at a later period in the spring than it is in China, and in the manufacture the touching or firing has evidently been more frequent or more intense than in the Chinese process, whereby the tea has acquired an objectionable flavor, and the leaf made liable to injury from its highly dried state.

The nature and thickness of the wood employed for the packages, is another point which it occurs to me should be remarked upon, as also the equalization of the size and weight of the packages, the wood should not be too brittle or too hard, nor the packages of greater substance than is necessary for the weight they contain, and for the transit which they must undergo, and uniformity in the weight of the packages of distinct parcels is of the utmost importance in arriving at the net quantity, the tare for the whole parcel being calculated upon an average formed from a very few packages; this subject was regarded by the East India Company of such moment, that any great variation in the tare of a parcel was sufficient ground for rejecting its purchase. These suggestions, with the affixing of distinct marks, such as with the Chinese, the chop character, upon the packages which contain tea of the same packing, or of the same process of manufacture, I recommend for consideration in future investments.

Before closing these remarks, I cannot but refer to a previous report of mine, of 29th August, 1838, upon a sample of Assam tea with which I was favored, and which I must candidly admit, does not convey the same favourable opinions of the quality, or of the importance of the manufacture as I now entertain, but it must be observed that, not only upon the previous, as well as upon the present occasion, the observations which I have made, must be taken as referring solely to the condition at that time of the manufacture, as exemplified in the samples, and must not preclude different conclusions upon this very interesting subject, should different facts be exposed in the subsequent culture and manufacture of the article.

Ms. Stevenson, 37, Upper Grosvenor Street, January 29th 1840.

Considers both specimens good, both the Souehong superior to the Paho, and from his knowledge of the preparation and drying of Medicinal herbs, he is of opinion that both Teas now submitted to him are capable of great improvement by a more careful and scientific manufacture. He thinks that too great a degree of heat, air and light, is used in the drying of the leaves whereby some portion of the fine aroma of the plant is decomposed and lost. The specimens before him in point of strength are superior to what he is now paying 7s. per pound for in his household consumption.

GREEN, WILSON AND HURON, Queen Street Place
6th February 1840.

We beg to state that on trial we find a very considerable improvement on the quality of those which were imported last season, as to its curling, its flavor, and the character of the leaf from improved culture.

The Souehong we consider very full and rich, of Pekos Souehong flavor, and strong, but slightly coarse as fine Tea.

The Paho we call strong and full, very little burnt or Pekos flavor, with slight coarseness; the slight coarseness we think arises from their great strength; we have rarely ever met with so much strength, combined with flavor in fine tea. Such Tea would command a ready sale on any quantity.

In steady markets when good sound Congou or Pekos flavor would sell at 2s 6d to 2s 9d, we think each sample would bear the relative proportion of 3s. 3d. to 3s. 6d. at present we can scarcely value them, but suppose the value at market prices as China Tea, is this day 4s. to 4s. 6d.

With the quality we are well pleased, and we are confident we could introduce it into our trade with much satisfaction to our friends and the consumers.

TWININGS AND CO., Strand, 12th February 1840.

We think that the samples of the last importation manifest an improvement in the manufacture, as compared with those of the preceding.

Both in the 'Souehong' and 'Paho' there is still prevalent a burnt and rather coarse flavor, which unpleasant, and which it is very important to correct, as it interferes with the natural and agreeable flavor of Tea, and if continued, would substitute, with the consumers, a bad instead of a good taste for the article itself.

The Souehong contains many large and open leaves, and several which upon examination after infusion, appear as if sufficient care had not been observed in the selection. The prevailing character of this Tea is, in our opinion, strength; but it has much to acquire before it attains that peculiarly fine flavor which true Souehong possesses.

The 'Paho' has notwithstanding the burnt flavor, a degree of softness which is characteristic of 'Pekos,' and shows perhaps, more care in the preparation.

The sample 'from Chinese Plants' bears resemblance both in leaf and flavor to the Aukos, which was formerly imported in private trade, and which, however it may have been approved occasionally, never was considered as of the most serviceable description.

Upon the whole we think, that the recent specimens are very favourable to the hope and expectation, that Assam is capable of producing an article well suited to this market; and although at present the indications are chiefly in reference to Teas adapted by their strong and useful flavor, to general purposes, there seems no reason to doubt, but that increased experience in the culture and manufacture of Tea in Assam, may eventually proximate a portion of its produce to the finer descriptions which China has hitherto furnished.

In connection with the before going valuable report, extracts from two letters written by Sir John Robinson were presented by Mr. C. K. Robinson.

"I am now in possession of (6 sorts) of Assam Tea and also of some samples of green and yellow Tea imported from Mai-Matchin through Russia—these last must contain some powerful odiferous plants or substances along with the Tea, for their flavour is quite over-powering.

"Dr. Christison is very desirous of making a careful analysis of the Tea plants, but he considers that any examination of the leaves in the manufactured state, would lead to results of but little value, and is anxious to get specimens of the leaves simply dried in the sun, and classed as in the states in which they are taken from the plant for green Tea, Souchong, Pouchong, &c. If you could contrive to achieve the despatches of such a sample for him you would enable him to fill what is still a desideratum in the materia medica, viz. an account of the distinguishing principle in Tea plant."

Mr. Robinson mentioned to the Meeting that he had placed himself in communication with Captain Jenkins on the subject of the foregoing extracts, and that that valuable officer had at once met his wishes, and promised a variety of each kind of Tea, in the condition required by Sir John Robinson and professor Christison.

CUTTACK BRANCH HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY—THE PROPAGATION OF FOREIGN SEEDS—ARRANGEMENTS FOR NEXT YEAR'S SUPPLY OF SEEDS.

The Secretary next submitted a note from Captain Reid, the Secretary of the Cuttack Branch Society acknowledging the receipt of the supplies of seed which had been forwarded to him, and noticing that he had derived vast benefit from forcing the English seeds which appeared to him fresher than usual. Capt. Reid states that he has tried the seeds of the Cabbage species, some in good mould, similar to what is used at Cuttack for the Cauliflowers, of which there is always a good supply of acclimated seed at the Station, some in the same kind of mould but scalded to boiling water and dried previous to sowing and some in hot beds likewise scalded. By the last named method—the hot bed with previous scalding—not a seed failed. There was, however, a great difference in the germination, and some appeared in three days, while others were longer on to ten days. The plea Captain Reid is assured, is good, as from it he has abundance of plants of every sort, while the same quantity of seed in simple mould has not averaged more than one in twenty certainly.

Adverting to the interesting particulars relative to the best mode of propagating seeds which Captain Reid had to kindly favored the Society with, the Hon'ble the President took occasion to call the attention of the Meeting to the general disappointment which had been experienced by the Members, with regard to their present year's supply of English seeds, and on the subject undergoing discussion it was, after various suggestions, agreed to appoint three members—Dr. Wallich, Messrs. C. K. Robinson and Piddington, with the Secretary, a Committee to determine on the general instructions which should be issued to the Seedsmen in the dispatch of seed from London, and to solicit the aid of Dr. Royle, whose note containing the offer of general assistance was before the society, in the arrangements before shipping the packages.

NECESSITY FOR PLANTING TREES AND ATTENDING TO THE CULTIVATION OF FODDER GRASSES IN THE SUGAR DISTRICTS.

Mr. Tucker, Collector at Azimghur, is a highly interesting communication asks—

Would it not be an object worthy of your Society to take up the subject of planting trees, and cultivating artificial grasses? The Friend of India is doing what he can—but by pressing the subject on the attention of all your numerous members throughout the country, you might effect a vast quantity of good. There is not a shadow of a doubt that in all this part of the country, jungles have almost totally disappeared—and the mangoe trees are fast following the example. I have done all I could to encourage planting, and through Mr. Mathew's, of Mirzapore, valuable Hindostanee paper, the Khair bhak i hind, have shewn the necessity to other Zillahs. I have also had Hindostanee exhortations on the subject, extensively distributed throughout this and the neighbouring districts, and have had the pleasure to hear from different quarters of the good done in exciting individuals to plant—but I could wish that all the different members of your society in their several spheres, took the same pains to maintain a good supply of wood in the country, with reference to its bearing, both on the climate and soil, and upon the price of the manufacture of sugar. If you would only give some general and powerful stimulus to all your members on this head, you would do a world of good. Could you not write a powerful and convincing article somewhere and print it in the next monthly pamphlet? Now is the time for preparing both the land and the seedlings. I have had several thousands seedlings brought from the Goruckpoor forest, as an experiment to see if they will thrive here. There is no hope of a sufficient supply of coal in this neighbourhood for many a long year to come—and in the mean time the price of firewood will enhance greatly that of sugar, and tell powerfully on the profits of the sugar speculator, who are bound by every tie of interest to use every effort for the preservation and increase of the supply of wood.

It is also a matter of mathematical demonstration, that with the destruction of the jungles, there is nothing left for the village cattle to eat. The whole quantity of boosa (chopt fodder) is insufficient—and much too expensive. What then are the owners of cattle to do? What do they do? They do nothing, but allow the cattle to die off from starvation—and those that remain are poor, miserable half-starved things, good for nothing. This want of food, greatly increases trespass. Hunger has no law—and the starving cattle, either with or without the connivance of their masters, will trespass on, and as far as they can, devour the crops of the cultivated fields. This is a great injury to the cultivator, which requires two remedies.

1st. A good and distinct law of Trespass.

2nd. That the natives should be induced to plant a sufficient quantity of Guinea grass, turnips, &c, for the due nourishment and support of their own cattle. I do all I can in my own Zillah—but the natives have the greatest repugnance to waste good cultivated land on mere food for cattle. Their ancestors never did so why should they? They will notice the different state of the country, which is now one sheet of cultivation, instead of being at last one half covered with jungle. It would be well worth your while to pay some attention to this subject. It is only by the united vigorous efforts of European gentlemen in different parts of the country that any extensive good will be effected. The Law of Trespass is being fully discussed in the different journals—and must lead to the adoption of some general fixed rules of procedure, by Government.

It would do good also, if you made the Baulo custom generally known. Here the natives have adopted it can amoro—and invariably now plant two trees at the birth of every boy, and six at every marriage. On the Queen's marriage I had six trees planted in a circle close to every police office in the district, under a display of fireworks from the centre of the plot, and a discharge of the burcundanis matchlocks. This made a noise at the time—and as every one who sees the six trees planted in a circle asks what it means, he gets the answer that, "They are the Badshah Begum's marriage trees according to Baulo Custom—and that if else, this Sircar conform to the custom, how much more should they. The six trees at the Culcherry are just in front of my window, and I often see natives standing beside the circular plot, and holding a deliberation regarding it, and perhaps applying to a chirprassy to solve their doubts as to the mystery—the more so, as there is a wooden stand in the centre, from which the fireworks were discharged. All this helps to make the custom known and popular. I wish much that as Secretary, you would stimulate your members and other European gentlemen to aid in establishing this, or a similar custom throughout the country. The Zamendars will seldom object to their tenantry planting these trees by the roads, or in odd corners, if it is clearly explained to them, that they will have the half (or whatever may be the custom of the particular part of the country) of the wood, when the trees dry up, and are cut down. At least I have had no difficulty or complaints here.

REPORT ON MONGHYR GROWN FLAX.

The Secretary desired to remark that it would be in the recollection of the members that at the last Meeting a specimen of flax prepared at Monghyr was submitted by the Hon'ble the President on which occasion the opinion of the Flax Committee, was particularly sought, as the sample was a specimen only of a quantity that was coming down the river from the Monghyr District where the experiment of growing flax on a large scale had been undertaken by a practical European flax grower. The sentiment of the several members of the Flax Committee were now submitted in the form of minutes which he begged to read to the Meeting.

Mr. Fergusson.—I myself do not think the Monghyr Flax good. Mr. Deneef is perhaps the only person capable of giving an opinion on the subject. But I should doubt even him. The sale in England of a good lot, is the only test to be relied on.

Mr. Holgkinson.—The samples of Flax are of middling quality, the fibres fine and strong, but deficient in cleanness and color; the first defect arises from carelessness in scutching—with more care in the manipulation, the article would find a ready sale throughout Europe. Mr. Deneef's opinion would be valuable.

Mr. Robison.—I feel myself incompetent to give an opinion on the comparative values of the specimens of flax, further than that I do not consider the Monghyr flax, equal to the Archangel or Baltic, in evenness of fibre or color.

Mr. R. Watson.—Of the two specimens of Rough flax, the Baltic appears to me the strongest in fibre, and the dressed Monghyr very little inferior if any to the other sorts.

The samples were sent to Mr. Deneef, but that gentleman preferred not giving a written opinion. He expressed his willingness, however, to communicate verbally what he thought of the specimen which was, that he differed in opinion both with Mr. Fergusson—H. H. S;

Mr. G. T. F. Speed—I am of the same opinion.

Baboo Ramcomul Sen.—Ditto ditto.

Mr. D. W. H. Speed.—I have much to learn on the subject ere I could venture an opinion on the quality of the musters accompanying this, but I concur in the desirableness of ascertaining the comparative fitness of the different sorts in respect to durability for general purposes, and think that the only test to be relied on is the sale of a good lot in England.

Mr. Wallis.—I do not pretend to have or to give either a scientific or a practical opinion on the specimens of Monghyr Flax when compared with the European ones.

It is manifest however to a common observer, that the three specimens of dressed Flax, the Archangel, Baltic and Irish are each superior to the Monghyr undressed one, in colour, lustre, mellowness and cleanliness.

That the Baltic Rough Flax which of all the specimens, it is the most legitimate for us to compare with the Monghyr undressed one, is also in each of the above named characteristics superior to it.

That the Monghyr undressed Flax, not having undergone the degree of cleansing, and preparative manipulation which has been given to the Baltic rough Flax, being more ligneous, &c. is not exhibited with all the comparative advantage it otherwise would have shown;—but even allowing for this, I do not think it so meritorious in its general nature and qualifications as the Rough Baltic one.

The Monghyr undressed specimen seems to possess more tw in proportion than the Rough Baltic one, but which probably would have been less apparent with an equal degree of scutching and other manipulation. Its length of fibre seems somewhat inferior to that of the Baltic one. Its strength of fibre seems good; but its comparative degree of goodness in this respect with the Rough Baltic or the three of the dressed specimens I will not now attempt to determine. But after all it seems so promising a production that I think the parties engaged in the experiment would do well, and would do best to send home a good supply of it to the various markets of London, Liverpool and Scotland, that they may derive the opinion of Merchants, Brokers, and Manufacturers as their most true and unerring guide.—Hurkaru, November 17, 1840.

ENCOURAGING PROSPECTS FOR ATTENDING TO THE HEMP CULTIVATION OF BENGAL.

The opinion of the Flax and Hemp Committee on the specimen of Hemp prepared by M. Deneef the Belgian Farmer at his grounds in the vicinity of Calcutta, presented at the last Meeting of the Society, was next brought forward. The economy of the cultivation is contained in the following interesting communication from M. De Deneef himself.

Calcutta, Os 8, 7630, 1840.

Monsieur Spry, Secrétaire de la Société d'Agriculture et d'Horticulture du Bengale.

J'ai l'honneur de vous envoyer par l'entremise de Monsieur Woollasson, membre de Votre Société un échantillon de chanvre, que me semble mériter beaucoup d'attention il me paraît aussi avantageux que le chanvre de Russie et de Manille qui se vendent à Londres 22 27 £ le tonneau. La manufacture en est très simple et n'exige aucun instrument; elle est faite en Belgique par des Villards et des enfants. Aucun ouvrage ne paraît être plus convenable pour les besoins matériels des familles pauvres de cette contrée, il n'est nullement fatigant et se fait par assis; de plus, cela que livre de chanvre procure au tisseur 3lb, de manière à brûler.

La préparation du sol ne demande pas de grands soins ni par conséquent de grandes dépenses; sa végétation est superbe, la plante n'occupe le sol que pendant 80 jours (du commencement de Juin à la fin d'Août) J, en ait deux pres 4 beegas, qui me donneront environ 1000lb de fibres, que je prépare en ce moment; et que a me propose d'envoyer le plutôt possible, pour échantillon à la Société expérimentale du lin à Londres, et après en avoir reçu une réponse, concernant sa valeur réelle: j m'empresse de vous envoyer un rapport exact sur le mode de sa culture.

Il serait étonnant que l'Inde, qui a tant de moyens en terrain et en hommes, ne pourrait pas concourir avec la Russie, qui est obligée de payer £2-0-0 par Tonneau pour l'ait d'exportation, au gouvernement russe même et 6s par tonneau au passage du Soud, et ne pourrait réclamer sa part, des millions d'espèces, que la mère patrie est obligée de payer annuellement à la Russie - puissante rivale.

J'ai l'honneur de vous saluer avec la plus parfaite considération.

Votre très dévoué Serviteur.

G. DENEEF, Belgian Farmer.

Mr Fergusson—The Hemp appears to me uncommonly strong, and it can be produced cheaply and abundantly, it is likely to be a most important article.

Mr. Hodgkinson—I am sorry to differ in opinion with Mr. Fergusson in regard to the sample of what is stated to be Hemp—are pronouncing it to be Hemp at all, I should solicit the opinion of Messrs. Spry and Wallich, as I am not quite certain on the point; however, the article is superior, be it what it may, and deserving of the first attention.

Mr. Robinson.—The specimen offered as Hemp appears to me a raw unhackled Hemp.

Mr. R. Watson.—The Hemp in point of strength seems to stand fair in comparison with those of Baltic growth, but it would be desirable to ascertain its comparative durability in exposure to wet and dry, as it would be subject in use for marine and most other purposes.

Mr. G. T. F. Speed.—I am of the same opinion.

Baboo Ramcomul Sen.—Ditto ditto.

Mr. Willis.—The specimen of Hemp furnished by Mr. Deneef, together with the report made in his letter of the 8th September 1840, seems highly flattering and encouraging.

The fibre appears to be of great strength and is superabundant in its length and it is moreover rendered very clean.

Its acceptableness in colour, fineness, mellowness of condition, and in its other general properties, would be best tested by competent parties in Europe. It seems highly desirable that Mr. Deneef should soon send to the different European markets for trial, liberal supplies.

EXPERIMENTS MADE IN ENGLAND UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE HON'BLE THE COURT OF DIRECTORS ON A NEW METHOD OF GINNING E. I. COTTON.—DECLARATION OF APPROVAL BY THE HIGH AUTHORITIES IN ENGLAND OF THE OPERATIONS OF THE SOCIETY.

The subject which next engaged the attention of the Meeting was a communication from the Supreme Government transmitting papers on the subject of Cotton ginning experiments, made at Liverpool and Manchester under the supervision of the Hon'ble Court of Directors and the announcement on the part of the Right Hon'ble the Governor of Bengal that the labours of the Society had met with approval from the High Authorities in England.

To Dr. H. H. SEAY, Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

Revenue. } Sir,—By direction of the Right Hon'ble the Governor of Bengal I forward, for the information of the Society, some interesting papers on the subject of Cotton ginning experiments at Liverpool and Manchester, carried on under the inspection of the Chairman and Deputy Chairman and certain of the Directors of the Hon'ble Court. These it is thought by His Lordship will interest the members of the Society and the publication of the results of the experiments, which are regarded with so much interest in England, cannot fail to produce advantage here, and to assist to the attainment of the important object in view.

I am directed to take this opportunity of mentioning that, in consequence of the approval which the operation of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society have received from High Authorities in England, and the increasing attention now directed in that country to the development of the resources of India, and the acquisition particularly of such knowledge as it is the purpose of the Society to collect and diffuse. His Lordship proposes to transmit regularly to the Hon'ble Court of Directors forty copies of the Monthly Transactions of the Society.

3. You are requested therefore to cause forty copies to be sent monthly to this Office for the purpose indicated.

I have the honor to be Sir,

Your obedient and humble Servant,

FRED JAS. HALLIDAY.

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Fort William, the 20th September 1840.

It having been arranged that an experiment should take place at Liverpool, on Friday, the 17th July, at which the chairs had resolved to be present, in order to test the capabilities of the machines procured by Captain Bayles from the United States, and to ascertain through the medium of persons selected from among the most intelligent Merchants, Mechanics, Cotton Manufacturers and Brokers, whether the Machinery is with or without further modification, well adapted to the efficient cleaning of India cotton without material injury to the staple. The chairs, accompanied by Sir James Lushington, the chairman at the time, when the mission of Captain Bayles was resolved, Sir Richard Jenkins, the late chairman, and Sir Robert Campbell, proceeded to Liverpool, where as well as in Manchester, it was found the subject had excited considerable interest and attention.

The following memorandum will show the details of the experiment which afforded much gratification to the Directors, and to all assembled on this interesting occasion.

Permission having been given at the request of several leading persons in Manchester to remove the machinery from Liverpool to that town in order that it might undergo more minute inspection by experienced Mechanics, &c., a further trial took place there on Friday the 31st July, attended with results, if any thing, more favorable than those here detailed.

Memorandum showing the details of an experiment made at Fawcett's Manufactory, Liverpool, with the Saw Gin, procured by Captain Bayles from the United States, also with one of Whitney's Saw Gins, and a Hand Gin constructed by Dr. Jones.

First Experiment.

21 lbs. of Surat Kupa or unclean cotton were put into each of the Gins, numbered respectively.

Carver's (60 Saws.) Jones's (40 Saws.) Brook's (60 Saws.) Whitney's (60 Saws.)
1 2 3 4

The following is the result.

	Weight of Cotton when cleaned.	Weight of Seed.	Waste.	Time consumed in cleaning.	Value when cleaned.
No. 1	15 lbs 5 oz	15 lbs 1 oz	5 oz.	28 min	4½
" 2	5 lbs	14 lbs 10 oz	4 oz.	16½ min.	4
" 3	5 lbs 3 oz.	12 lbs 8 oz	2 lbs 1 oz	8 min	4½
" 4	4 lbs. 16 oz.	15 lbs.	20 oz.	14½ min.	4

Second Experiment.

A small quantity of the same cotton was put into Jones's Hand Gin, worked by two men; It performed the work of cleaning to the satisfaction of the empiric, who pronounced the cotton worth 4½ per lb. but the process is too slow to be of any practical use in cleaning the short staple of India.

Third Experiment.

7 lbs. of Bourbon cotton were put into Gins numbered respectively 2 and 3.—The following is the result.

	Weight when cleaned.	Time consumed in cleaning.	Value of Cotton.
No. 2	1 lb 10 oz.	3 minutes.	2½
No. 3	2 lbs 10 oz.	8 minutes.	3½

Experiments were next made with a Roller Gin constructed by Mr. Fawcett, which was found to clean the long staple cotton satisfactorily; but was not found adapted to the short staple of India.

The last experiment was made with a Machine purchased by a Guzerat chirk, with improvements by a person named Elliot of Manchester, and worked by two men; but this was not found to answer in any particular.

N. B. It should be remarked that all the cotton used on this occasion had been at least seven years in England.

It was intended that further experiments should be made with American Cotton, &c. but those above described occupied the entire day.

Liverpool, 22d July, 1840.

Captain Bayles, H. E. I. C. S. Adolph Hotel,

Dear Sir,—Herewith we send you three bales Twist, spun from your own cotton, viz.

One Bale No. 12 Throat Twist.
One Bale " 32 Mule Twist.
One Bale " 32 Mule Twist.

Our object is to show you what quality of Twist your cotton produces on coarse as well as fine numbers. No. 12 Throat Twist and No. 16 Mule Twist, we consider to be very good, and the No. 16 Mule Twist we consider to be very good, and the No. 32 Mule Twist very fair yarn, considering the quality of cotton.

The cotton (yours ginned) when compared with Surats of an ordinary quality is about 4 to 1 per lb. better, owing to its being much cleaner and free from seeds, it cards free and in general works well, the cotton is obviously cut and kept in the spinning to a small extent, which would have a great improvement if obliterated. We rate it equal to fair Orleans or prime Surats. If such cottons could be produced on a cleaned a very great preference would be given to ordinary East India and Surats, which is commonly full of seed, and shake it, would also be preferred to low American for its very bright color.

We value this ginned cotton with 5d Bowds or Orleans, and 1d. per lb better than 4d. Surats.

We are, Sir,

Your very obdt. Servants,

THE NORTH SHORE MILLS COMPANY.

Liverpool, 22d July, 1840.

We consider this cotton to lose less weight in spinning than common East India Surats.

HOP CULTIVATION IN INDIA WITH A VIEW TO BE ABLE TO SUBSTITUTE BEER FOR TROOPS IN LIEU OF SPIRITS.

An important communication from the Military Board soliciting information relative to the growth of hops in India as furnishing means for manufacturing cheap and wholesome malt liquor for the European troops in lieu of spirits, was next read.

To H. H. Spax, Esq.,

Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society

Commissioner & Sir,—The attention of the Military Department. Board having been called by Government to the gradual substitution of Beer for spirits as an article of consumption by the European Troops, and as it appears almost hopeless to procure good Beer from Europe at a price sufficiently cheap to allow of its being purchased at Mofasil stations by the men for the amount allowed as compensation for the usual drams, the Board have been induced to look to the growth of hops in this country as furnishing the means of manufacturing cheap and wholesome malt liquor on the spot.

2 Under these circumstances, it is hoped that the Horticultural Society may be able to assist the Board with information and advice, and I have accordingly been instructed to request that you will oblige the Board by mentioning, whether any attempts have to your knowledge been made to cultivate hops in India; and if so whether the attempts were successful, and at what cost and in what quantity the hop was produced.

* This was common Surat Cotton with the seeds in it as originally gathered and quite uncleaned. It had been lying in our Ware house for some years.—W. B. B.

3. The Board would also be glad to receive your advice or that of the Society, as to the best manner and time of procuring seed from England, and generally as to the measures which you would recommend for obtaining a cheap and regular supply of this essential ingredient in the manufacture of Beer.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

H. DE BRUI.

Officiating Secy, Military Board

Fort William, Miln. Bd. Office. }
3d November 1843.

The Secretary mentioned that the only information which the Society possessed on the subject was to be found in the extract of a letter from a practical farmer in England to Sir Henry Fane, in the 5th vol. of the Transactions of the Society p. 46, wherein mention is made of a supply of hop plants having been despatched to Calcutta for his Excellency, and in a letter conveyed in full into the last number of the Proceedings of the Society contained in the 7th volume, where a letter from Capt. Kirk at Dacca will be found, in which it is stated that the hops are growing famously and their success is certain.

The Hon'ble the President thought the subject one of such interest that before an answer was returned to the Military Board, the most recent information should be obtained and therefore he would propose that Dr. Falconer and Capt. Kirk should both be addressed on the subject and solicited to give the Society the benefit of their experience, while other gentlemen who had some concern in brewing beer at Fort Gloriar near Calcutta and other places should be consulted. This was agreed to.

TRANSMISSION OF TEST SAMPLES OF AMERICAN AND OTHER COTTONS TO THE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF MADRAS.

A letter from Dr. Wight the Secretary of the Madras Agricultural and Horticultural Society was next read. Dr. Wight states that the Madras Society was about to adjudicate prizes for different descriptions of American cottons introduced into the Madras Presidency, but that the committee appointed for the examination of the samples had at the outset been met by an unexpected difficulty which unless the Society of India could aid it in obviating, might lead to erroneous awards. It was the want of good test samples with which to compare the prize specimens. Dr. Wight intimates that there are a number of competitors, and the Madras Society is given to understand some very excellent samples of cotton will be produced, but unfortunately the cotton trade at Madras for foreign cottons being as yet very limited, the committee find on enquiry among the merchants that they could not supply the Members of it with any really good and genuine specimens of either sea island, Upland Georgian, Egyptian, or Peruvian cottons, and therefore Dr. Wight by desire of the committee, addressed the Society of India requesting the favor of its endeavouring if possible, to put the Madras Society in possession of genuine specimens.

The Secretary informed the Meeting that some very excellent average specimens of all the cottons asked for by Dr. Wight were in the Museum through the kindness of Messrs. Wilks and Parke, who had presented them to the Society (vol. vol. II.)—he had put up a portion therefore of each kind and dispatched it without loss of time to Madras.

ON THE POTATOE AND ITS CULTURE IN INDIA.

A valuable practical paper on the Potatoe and its culture in India was next presented. It was from the pen of Mr. G T F Speed, and contains much useful information on the importance of attending both to the character of the Potatoe used, as well as the sort to be cultivated in India. Mr. Speed alludes to the great deficiency which exists of dependable information on the value of the returns which this crop gives in the different Provinces of India, and enters into a comparative enquiry with similar return crops in England. The paper in full will appear in the monthly Pamphlet of Proceedings.

ON THE CULTURE OF COTTON HEMP AND FLAX IN THE DISTRICT OF JUBBALPORE.

The next communication which was brought forward was an interesting extract of a letter from Mr. McLeod, who has charge of the Jubbalpore District. This officer writes that he is anxiously waiting for American cotton seed, as he is inclined to think that some kinds may be most advantageously sown with the rubber (spring harvest) crops, especially the Perambuco. Mr. McLeod has had a Bergha of flax cultivated at Jubbalpore on approved principles, and he obtained from it a fine dense crop, but having been sown late and the soil not being of the best it so, where exceeded in length 18 inches. Mr. McLeod has made up a drawing machine for it and with the aid of Mr. Williams of Major Sleeman's school of Industry, which Mr. McLeod describes to be a very great acquisition to the place, an endeavour is being made to manufacture the fibre. What was produced at the time of writing would scarcely suffice for anything finer than canvass, but hopes were entertained that better success would be obtained and further information is promised.

FLOURING STATE OF THE BRANCH GARDEN AT DACCA.

The last communication which was brought forward was an interesting letter from Mr. Dearman, Secretary to the Dacca Branch Society, stating that there is a new crop of 12 beegahs of 80 cubit square in sugar cane, and rather more than three beegahs remaining ratoons, only part in Otaheite which Mr. Dearman regrets as he has found that all the canes from the former years stores, have degenerated with the exception of the Otaheite, which has so far from falling off produced finer canes than those of the present season's plantings. Under these circumstances, Mr. Dearman considers, that the Otaheite cane, on the Dacca high lands, if properly attended to, would yield crops for several successive years. The other kinds, such as the Munypono, the Singapore, the Batavian and two indigenous kinds, appear to be mere annuals. Mr. Dearman feels sure that the many thousand beegahs of high waste land lying near Dacca, and beyond the reach of inundation, offers a mine of wealth to any one having the means and disposition to engage in the cultivation of the Otaheite cane. The number of Members belonging to the Branch Society now amounts to 43.

For all the foregoing valuable presents and communications, the thanks of the Society were recorded.

MEDICAL AND PHYSICAL SOCIETY.

Proceedings of a Meeting of the Medical and Physical Society of Calcutta, held at the Asiatic Society's apartments, the 7th November, 1840.

N. WALLICH, Esq., M. D., in the chair.

PRESENT.

G. Angus, Esq., C. Egerton, Esq., Drs. Stewart, Spry, Goodeve, O'Shaughnessy, Voss, R. O'Shaughnessy, Esq., J. McPherson, Esq.

Before the business of the evening had been entered on, the Secretary stated his intention of bringing before the Meeting, a proposition for supplying the Medical members with copies of the 6 principal periodicals, namely, Johnson's Medical Chirurgical, the Edinburgh Journal; Foreign Medical Review, Lancet, and Medical Gazette, in the place of the present selections now forwarded together with the monthly account of the Proceedings.

The expense for the supply of these periodicals he stated to be, about the same, as that now required for the publication of the monthly selections; and as it was thought that the members generally, would prefer having the perusal of the original works, to that of the Selections, now provided, and that many not now members would join the Society, when they could have the benefit of perusing the five best periodicals every quarter—at an expense of only 12 Rs per year, he had reason to hope that the meeting would join him in the proposed plan, and desire, that it should be carried into execution as soon as practicable. To supply each division under the several superintending Surgeons, including the Presidency and Arracan, 11 copies of each periodical would be required. It was proposed that immediately on the quarterly arrival of the periodicals, one copy of each should be forthwith despatched to each superintending Surgeon, with a request that they might be distributed to the several members in his division, and as the number of periodicals would be five, it was scarcely possible but that every Medical officer in the division would have the advantage of seeing one, within the first two months of their reaching the division after perusal. The books might be forwarded to the superintending Surgeon's office, and form the nucleus for a Medical library in each division. The Secretary then laid before the Meeting the accompanying proposition

Resolved, that it is desirable, in lieu of the present monthly Selections distributed to each of the members of the Medical and Physical Society, that copies of the five Principal Periodicals should be quarterly despatched to each of the superintending Surgeons, with a request that they be distributed to the Medical Officers in his division.

This was seconded by Mr. Egerton, who spoke strongly in favour of the proposition.

Drs. Goodeve and O'Shaughnessy were equally favourable to the plan. The Chairman, Dr. Wallich, stated his fears that by an adoption of this plan, we should be foregoing the privilege now enjoyed by the Society, and that the expense of the postage would be more than the funds of the Society would allow,

Mr. R. O'Shaughnessy considered the subject in the same light as Dr. Wallich, and at the same time stated that the distribution of all periodicals as in the case of Book Clubs in Calcutta, ran the risk of being forwarded so irregularly, but it would be most probable that many of the Members of the Society might never have the sight of one of the periodicals; whereas on the present plan adopted by the Society, each Member of the Society was certain of being provided every month with a copy of the Selections.

Dr. Wallich considered, that it would be necessary to make several inquiries as to the distribution of the periodicals, and the probable cost of bringing literature, before the plan was carried into execution.

Dr. Stewart thought it would be proper also, that the Medical Board should be respectfully addressed on the subject of forwarding the periodicals to the several superintending Surgeons, and that they should be requested to assist in carrying the plan into execution. Certain inquiries being considered necessary to be made, before the proposed plan could be entered on, the subject was postponed for final discussion to a future evening.

It was then proposed by the Secretary, and seconded by Dr. Goodeve.

That the papers which have already appeared with the monthly selections, should be collected, and such others as may be received, should be published from time to time as a volume of transactions for distribution to the several members.

The following gentlemen were then proposed as members of the Society.

Mr. Crozier, Assistant Surgeon, proposed by the Secretary and seconded by Dr. Wallich.

Mr. Wells, Assistant Surgeon proposed by the Secretary, and seconded by Dr. Spry.

A cæcæmatous tumor, removed by Dr. Smith of Hidgelee, from the face of a native, was placed upon the table for presentation to the Society.

The following papers were then read and discussed.

1. On the benefits derivable from the use of Laudanum in a case of painful tumors of the scalp after the other liquid preparations of opium, and several other remedies had failed.

Presented by K. Mackinnon, M. D.

2. A long and valuable practical paper on the treatment of Dysentery with Opium, the benefit derivable in that disease from the use of the pyro-mucic acid bath, and the administration of strong solution of nitrate of silver for Enemata, by H. H. Goodeve, M. D.

On the whole, we have to report, that the business is increasing; and from this experience, we feel justified in looking for a considerable accession to it from the Export Trade, to encourage which we continue to observe a low scale of rent charge. The present monthly rent is about 3,000 Rs. and we anticipate, that the close of the year will enable you to declare an improved dividend.

Our Attention has been directed to the subject of erecting a suitable wharf, there being a very general opinion, that the means of facilitating and expediting the operation of loading and landing, which such a construction would afford, could not fail to command a profitable employment, and would, besides, considerably enlarge the transit of goods through the Warehouse. A plan estimate and specification of this work are in preparation, to be laid before you when ready. With such further information and advice as a minister enquiry may enable us to supply,

We are happy, to have ascertained, that these premises have begun to be the result of country produce, in a way which leads us to think that, ere long, an extensive demand will be the consequence, especially for prompt and commodious accommodation; and, if so, it may be worth your while to erect the two stories of the second range of buildings, for which the iron castings were designed. And should be done in a manner which should be the result of a prudent decision, in case circumstances ultimately called upon you to complete the plan. Before any step should be taken, even to build as mentioned a portion of another range, we must have the strongest reasons, in the nature of a recommendation, to induce us to recommend it; and the proposition would have to be submitted, after ample notice, to your fullest deliberation and decision. Meanwhile we consider the position of affairs to be such, as to recommend, for a season, postponement of any resolution to part with those iron castings at a heavy sacrifice. You have on the table an estimate by Burn and Co. of the cost for constructing 2 stories. Exclusive of teak flooring and roofing, the amount is Rs. 67,000, from which however several thousand rupees could be deducted, if you would dispense with a pavement of Chittur stones between the two ranges, and with an expensive pulka floor, such a one as that of the present warehouse composed of ballast and coash, appearing to answer sufficiently well.

Those iron castings it may be proper here to specify, with their cost, if being borne in mind, that the work was contracted for at a time when iron happened to be remarkably cheap, and that it was subject to no charge of commission, the Gentlemen whose services you solicited to transact the business having acted gratuitously.

The columns are tubed and tapered.

The heights of the 1st, 2d and 3d stories in the clear from upper surface of floor to bottom of roof beam, are 11 feet 6 1/2 of the 4th story 15 feet.

The greatest external diameter of the column in 1st story is 10 inches; in 2d 8 1/2 inches; in 3d 7, and in 4th 6 1/2 inches.

The floor beams consist of equal strength, and 20 inches deep. Those for the centre are 24 feet long, and those for sides are 24 feet long, and perhaps 4 inches more.

You are aware that the price of the ground was 1,80,000 Rs. which with the cost of the iron castings, say about 1,25,000 Rs. forms a considerable portion of the total instalments called for 2,50,000 Rs.

On the application of a number of firms and the recommendation of the Board of Customs and Opium, Government was pleased to permit the building of an imported salt, experimentally for one year. Having arranged the terms with the Board, we were proceeding to prepare the old north godown for the reception of the salt, when we were informed that storing salt there would not only very soon seriously injure the contiguous premises of Messrs. Gilmore and Co. and others, but would here long extend its influence so as to damage and endanger the brick work of the New Warehouse. On consulting those competent to advise, we found the apprehensions which had been excited fully confirmed. An effectual remedy was indeed quickly suggested by Dr. O'Shaughnessy, to prevent infiltration through the soil of the melted salt, but this, on enquiry we learned, would involve an expense of not less than 10,000 Rs. Under such circumstances, altho' we had reason to believe that the bonding salt would prove a very remunerating undertaking, we apprehend that, with our present information the experiment must be foregone, at least on these premises, a result which is the more to be regretted, as the privilege of bonding would have afforded to the importers of salt, a protection, of which the trade stands in exceeding need.

NEW ORIENTAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

The half-yearly meeting of the Shareholders of the New Oriental Life Insurance Company was held at the office of the Secretaries, Messrs. Ferguson, Brothers and Co., on Saturday last, R. Davidson, Esq., in the chair.

From the Report of the Secretaries read upon the occasion, the office of the Company appeared to be in the most flourishing condition. The balance in favor of the office on the 31st of October was Rs 68,248, while during the past year on the accession of business amounted to Rs 6,83,869.

After the reading of the report, the following resolutions were put and carried:—

Proposed by J. W. Cragg, Esq., seconded by W. P. Watson, Esq., and carried, That the accounts and statements submitted be passed as correct and satisfactory.

Proposed by D. M. Gordon, Esq., seconded by J. Colquhoun, Esq., and carried, That a dividend be made of Rs. 15,000 which will yield Rs. 20 per share; and Rs. 3,688 in rateable division among shareholders who have contributed premium from 1st May to 31st October 1840.

Proposed by G. W. Vint, Esq., seconded by J. W. Cragg, Esq., and carried, That the members of the existing Committee of Management be requested to continue their services.

Proposed by R. Davidson, Esq., seconded by R. B. McKenzie, Esq., and carried, That Mr. J. R. Muller be invited to become a Director of the New Oriental Life Insurance Company, in the room of Mr. Muller, deceased.

At this stage of the proceedings, a question was introduced to the meeting relating to an offer made by the Agra Bank for the purchase of fifty shares of the Company on par. Some slight discussion followed, after which the following resolution was put to the vote and carried.

Proposed by C. Dearie, Esq., and seconded by J. Colquhoun, Esq., That the Secretaries in connection with the Committee, do report to a Special General Meeting of the Proprietors, to be convened on as early a day as possible, on the expediency of an additional per centage on the profits arising from the business, influenced by the Agra Bank being returned to that institution, in addition to the interest they at present pay.

Thanks were then given to the Chairman and the meeting separated.—Hurkaru, November 23, 1840.

MEETING OF THE DISTRICT CHARITABLE SOCIETY.

The meeting of the District Charitable Society, advertised for yesterday morning, was held at the Town Hall, Sir Edward Ryan presiding on the occasion.

An application had some time ago been made to Government by the Society, for the grant of a parcel of land for the construction of an Alms House, which the Society had in contemplation to erect. This subject was brought before the meeting.

Sir Edward Ryan informed those present, that the special meeting for the final consideration of an Alms-House establishment, could not be convened in consequence of Mr. D. McFarlan not having as yet completed a plan, and estimates for the proposed buildings. The calling of this meeting, therefore, would necessarily stand over. The President intimated, however, that in reference to the application of the Committee to Government for the grant of a spot of ground, the request had been complied with, and that a piece of land, twenty beegahs and ten cottahs in extent, had been given. This parcel is situated in Amherst Street, which place, therefore, will form the site of the Alms House. Opposite to this parcel, the President further informed the meeting, the Government have generously granted another piece of land, which is intended to be appropriated to the erection of buildings for the Leper Asylum. This arrangement possesses the advantage of bringing the Alms-House and Leper Asylum together, in order to be equally superintended.

During the proceedings of the meeting, the following relative to the Alms House were unanimously adopted:—

1. "That the Alms-House Committee propose that a copy of the letters of the Government, to the Society, making over the ground in Amherst Street, be sent to the Collector, with an expression of the Society's wish, that he would issue a public notice to the present tenants to quit, and that the costs they will be put to for suits, will be discharged by the Committee."

2. "That for the attainment of the latter object, a credit of five hundred rupees be assigned from the Society's funds to the Alms House-Committee."

3. "That at the next and special meeting the Alms House Committee present the plans of building, which they would recommend to be adopted."

On the same subject then a Committee was elected, Mr. McFarlan to be president, for considering and reporting on the site and capable accommodations of the Alms-House, that would be required for the reception of paupers; the probable number of paupers in Calcutta; and other details connected with the subject.

On the disposal of this subject, the meeting proceeded to the consideration of the eligibility of candidates for relief.—Hurkaru, November 25, 1840.

STEAM FERRY BRIDGE COMPANY.

At a Meeting of the Shareholders of the Steam Ferry Bridge Company, held at the Town Hall, on Wednesday, 26th November, 1840.

Mr. J. H. Youns, in the Chair.

Read the report of the Provisional Secretary, on the proceedings of the Directors, and the Estimate referred to therein as follows:

REPORT OF THE PROVISIONAL SECRETARY.

Pursuant to the Resolutions of the last General Meeting of Proprietors at the Town Hall, on the 7th July 1840, instructions were forwarded to Captain A. Henderson, through the hands of Messrs. Richards, Little and Co. by the Overland Mail of 7th July, to act for the Company in procuring plans from Mr. Rendle the Projector, of three Bridges, and in contracting for two boats of Iron with Engines and chains complete, in every way fitted to run across the hooghly at all times of tide and seasons of the year at the proposed site which has been liberally granted to us by Government for the purpose, namely, from a short distance below the Mint to the Salt Gohat Ghat. Plans and sections of the River and of the approaches to it on each bank had previously been forwarded for Mr. Rendle's guidance, and report upon the rise and fall of tide and of its greatest strength during the most violent freshes.

It was proposed that the boats should be of the same size as those in use at Tor Point, namely, 55 by 45, with Engines of 25 Horse Power. By the replies to my previous letters just received from Captain Henderson, with copy of a report from Mr. Rendle, it appears that he has suggested several improvements lately adopted in these boats, and among others, increased size and power of Engine, which he considers will most effectually overcome all obstacles offered by the strength of tide or current, and Captain Henderson has stated that he shall be ready to act upon these suggestions the moment he receives positive instructions, which it is calculated would have reached him early in September, shortly after the last mail came away. Mr. Rendle's report, plan and letter are laid upon the table, by which it will be seen that he proposes making the boats 90 feet long by 62 feet wide, with two Engines of 40 Horse Power each, affording accommodation sufficient for 1500 passengers or an equal weight of loaded Bullocks, Hackeries, &c. and that he is not only ready to superintend their execution for the remuneration of £1200, but that he is so confident of their success that he hopes for the privilege of taking this remuneration in shares of the Company's stock, which will perhaps be agreed to him by the Proprietors with the more satisfaction, that it carries with it such good hopes for complete success.

Upon the 7th July, at the same time the instructions above referred to, a remittance of £5,000 was forwarded to Messrs. Richards, Little and Co. to be held at the order of Captain A. Henderson; and doubtless upon the receipt of that despatch, he will have completed his arrangements with Mr. Rendle and secured a contract for the execution of the work under that able Engineer's inspection. But, by the last mail, I regret to say, that Captain Henderson has advised his intended departure on the 1st October, in command of the India Steamship, and as the services of a most active and zealous agent—measures were, however, taken by the Directors and instructions forwarded by the last mail on the 16th inst. to Messrs. Richards, Little and Co. along with a further remittance of £2,500—which it is trusted will prevent any delay ensuing from Captain Henderson's departure, and Mr. Rendle has been solicited to devote as much of his valuable time as he can spare in seeing to the faithful execution of his own plans, and to the hastening of the work as much as possible by the contractors; the remuneration required being confirmed to him:

It is necessary that I should remark that subsequent to the above instructions, and in consequence of a discussion in Committee upon a proposition submitted by Mr. Engineer Stephen Mornay for the preference due to free steam ferry boat or boats with engines unattached to chains—particular instructions were sent to Captain Henderson to make every enquiry upon the subject, that if Mr. Mornay's remarks were fully borne out by experience in England, a trial should at once be given of a boat of this description to work at such a site as would not permit of chains being used, without materially interrupting the navigation of the river;—these instructions will not reach Captain Henderson before his departure; but will, it is believed, be acted upon by others in his place, and Mr. Rendle has been particularly requested to give the subject his early attention; and if no serious objections appear to him, to procure a boat of this kind, if to be had within the limit of £3000.

As the cost of the boats now in progress will be somewhat greater than was originally estimated, it has become necessary to frame another estimate from the report before the Directors; this is now upon the table and shows a total expected cost of Co's Rs. 1,672 98 to which must be added about Co's Rs. 10,00,000 for preparing the approaches and toll houses.

Add to this the cost of a small free steamer to work as ferry boat, or for the purpose originally intended of towing vessels over the chains, and the present capital of the Company would be scarcely sufficient to meet the outlay.

The Provisional Secretary begs leave to state that the receipts of the Union Bank of the first instalment of 50 rupees per shares amount Co's Rs. 96 050 0 0
Add 2d instalment on 6 shares received 300 0 0

96,350 0 0

For which has been disbursed for remittance of £7500.... 74,212 12 3
For officers and petty charges 1,100 9 8

25,133 5 11

Leaving in hand..... 21,036 10 1
Add to be collected of 1st instalment on shares as per separate list..... 3,950 0 0

The promissory notes of proprietors for the second instalment will fall due on the 8th January, 1841, and will be placed accordingly in the hands of the Union Bank for realization.

The deed of Co-partnership has been settled and is now re-engrossing to be forwarded to Government with the prayer of this Company for an act of incorporation similar to that granted to the Bonded Warehouse Association.

Wm. PRINCE, Prov. Secretary.

Prepared from the estimates procured by Capt. Henderson from Acrainan and Morgan, of Bristol.

Read Captain Henderson's letter, of 4th September, 1840, and the Report of Mr. J. M. Rendle, enclosed in Captain Henderson's letter, of that date as follows :

REPORT ON A PROPOSED FLOATING BRIDGE FOR CROSSING THE RIVER HOOGLY AT CALCUTTA.

The Reporter has given the subject of the proposed communication across the River Hoogly at Calcutta, by a Floating Bridge, the fullest consideration.

The suggestion of such communication was first submitted to him by Mr. Carmichael Smith in August last, (1839) and at his instance the Reporter furnished a written statement of such particulars respecting the site as he thought necessary to enable him to prepare the requisite design for such a Bridge. In June of this year 1840, the subject was again brought to the notice of the Reporter by Captain Andrew Henderson, and at his desire, designs and other particulars were prepared and tenders from Manufacturers were invited. It was not however till the early part of the present month (August) that the information required by the Reporter in the particulars furnished by Mr. Carmichael Smith was supplied. These plans and sections of the proposed site, and other desiderata, were delivered by Capt. Henderson, and enabled the Reporter to give the subject that careful and detailed investigation, which its importance demands. All the previous calculations and designs have been revised and the result is shown in drawings and specifications again furnished to Captain Henderson, and the Reporter has only therefore to submit in the following pages his professional opinion on the general utility of the proposed work, and the eligibility of the design he has supplied. These Floating Bridges in all cases where they have been established, have been found to afford all the accommodation usually furnished by fixed Bridges, whilst at the same time they leave the Navigation perfectly uninterrupted, and do not affect the tides or currents in the River, and are therefore harmless in their result, as far as the general economy of the River or Harbour is concerned. In every respect they are superior to a fixed Bridge, as for instance in the transit of cattle, &c. there is a perfect separation from the passengers and carriages, the cattle being in one roadway, and the general traffic in the other. As to the time occupied in crossing with carriages, it would be about the same as over an ordinary Bridge. In the case the time of crossing would be 7 to 8 minutes, or at the rate of 7 to 8 miles an hour: consequently four communications per hour could be made, giving 7 minutes, on each shore, for exit and entrance. Owing to the great rapidity of the stream, and the liability of the River to the sudden rise of tide technically called "the Bore," it is deemed essential to the safety and success of the Bridge that its draught of water when loaded with a thousand people, or say Soldiers in full military equipment, should not exceed three feet. Even with this depth of immersion, the strength of the stream and other local difficulties, will render it necessary to employ two chains, each formed of 1 inch and 9/16 of an inch diameter bars for working and holding the Bridge in the course.

To move the Bridge at the necessary velocity on these chains, will require two Steam Engines each capable of being made to exert a power equal to forty horse, though the ordinary working power would not perhaps exceed 25 horse power, and that only at starting, or at most for half the width of the River, so that the consumption of Coals would only be that which is due to a good pair of Engines of 18 to 20 horse power each, as employed in Steam Boats.

These are facts established by experience in these Bridges.

Now to carry such Chains and Engines with the necessary machinery, fittings and tools, with an immersion of only three feet, it appears by calculation, requisite to build the shell of Iron, ninety feet long, and sixty-two feet wide, and it has been so designed.

In establishing these Bridges, the Reporter has in all cases found that to keep one Bridge constantly in a fit state for use during say 14 hours in every 24 hours, two Bridges are absolutely necessary.

He has also found by long experience that it is economical to the proprietors even in this Country, to have two Bridges worked alternate months, as the interest on the cost of one Bridge is more, than covered by the sums saved by timely repairs, and the opportunities afforded for periodical examinations of the Engines and Machinery; whilst from the leisure with which such repairs as are required can be performed, the regular servants of the Establishment are able to execute them—and in addition to all these advantages, there is the further one of public confidence, and consequent regular traffic which is ensured by two Bridges, for if any accident happens to the Machinery of one, the other is immediately available.

The Reporter, therefore, most strongly recommends two Bridges being bridged at one and the same time, so that all the parts may be in duplicate, which for such a locality, would be a most important advantage to the success of the measure.

The Reporter has not had sufficient time to design the landing places, but will supply the requisite plans and specifications in the course of a month.

As tenders will be given for the execution of the works by competent Manufacturers, the expense of making out Estimates may, it is thought be saved to the parties.

STEAM COMMUNICATION.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE NEW BENGAL STEAM FUND have much satisfaction in publishing the following letter from Mr. Dent and their reply, and they solicit the attention of the Indian Public generally, and of persons interested in the establishment of a perfect Steam Communication, with England in particular, to sentiments so ably expressed by Mr. Dent, and to the subscription so nobly made by him.

To C. B. GREENLAW, Esq.

Joint Secretary to the Bengal Steam

Fund and Mr. Curtis' Indian Committee.

MY DEAR SIR,—I regret extremely to find that dissension and dissension on the subject of Steam, still continues in Calcutta, and that latterly personal animosity has entered into the discussions, which can only have the effect of weakening the liberality and lessening the chance of a hearty union of all parties, but regrets are unavailing, and the friends of Steam and of India (I consider them synonymous), should therefore redouble their exertions and subscriptions in support of Mr. Curtis' Company. In this spirit therefore I beg you will put down my name for fifty (50) additional shares in Mr. Curtis' Company, and I have this day written to my London Agents Messrs. Palmer, McKillop, Dent and Co., to advise them of the same, and to instruct them to pay the instalments to Mr. Curtis, as called for.

I would still vain hope that by a friendly and conciliatory course Mr. Burton and his friends may be induced to join to Mr. Curtis' Company; the accession of so large an amount of capital as the Oriental Company possess would of itself go far to promote the success of Mr. Curtis' Company, but the moral effect produced by the union would, without fail, insure its success; for I look upon it, that fuller confidence in Steam matters, would thereby be restored, and the doubt and distrust now generally felt on this subject in the Mofussil would disappear, and we should have a large accession to our subscription lists.

I have recently seen it remarked in the Public Prints that Mr. Curtis' prospectus is erroneous, and that his friends are afraid to make it public, no doubt this must be the case to a considerable extent, from the present imperfect means available for forming an accurate estimate of the receipts, but I for one feel convinced that with the support of Government (and they must give it) the scheme will pay, and it has therefore occurred to me whether with a view to inspire general confidence in the Scheme, and encourage persons to come forward and subscribe, it might not be desirable for the friends of the Scheme, to form themselves into an Association pledged to guarantee from India all persons in India, hereafter taking shares in Curtis' Company to the extent of 2000 shares (or more according to the number of individuals who may join the Association) provided within three years, or any specified time the shares of the Company do not bear a premium, of course if the shares are ever at a premium within the period specified, parties could have no claim for any subscription lost (and likely to occur) If 19 other persons can be found to join such an Association, I will make the twentieth, the effort would I think be great in inspiring general confidence, and the individual responsibility incurred would be comparatively trifling—for say that on the faith of this guarantee 2,000 shares or 10,00,000 rupees, would be subscribed, and that at the end of 3 years or other fixed period, they should be at a discount of 20 per cent. (never in the interim having been at a premium) the sum to be made good, would only amount 200,000 Rs. which divided among 20 persons, would be only Rs. 10,000 each; no very exorbitant sum to pay for the use and accommodation of 10 Lacs of Rs. of capital for 3 years. But I feel confident the Association would never be called upon to pay a penny.

Pray oblige me by having this letter before Mr. Curtis' Calcutta Committee and with hearty wishes for the success of Steam as of the most vital importance to India.

I remain, my dear Sir yours very truly,

W. DENT.

W. DENT Esq.,

DEAR SIR,—Your letter, without date, received by Mr. Greenlaw on the 17th ultimo having been submitted to the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund, we are directed to reply as follows:—

2.—Anxious as the Committee have always been for Union, for reasons too obvious to require enumeration, the fate of Mr. Parker's rivaling proposition, and the present feeling of the opponents of Mr. Curtis' scheme in Calcutta, preclude them making further attempts which can only end in disappointment, they are persuaded that the best line of proceeding, now to be adopted, is for the friends of the Comprehensive Scheme to proceed earnestly and steadily in their own course, leaving others to follow that which they think right.

3.—In this spirit we are directed to forward to you a copy of an appeal to the people of India, which the Committee have put forth, and which you will perceive bears as little as possible of a controversial character; when prepared, further copies in English, Bengallee and Hindoostanee, will be sent to you for such distribution as you may consider advisable.

4.—With reference to the remark in the public print that Mr. Curtis' Prospectus is erroneous, it may be observed, that the single mistake we know of, is only, 1-3d, having been printed instead of 2-3d in reference to the number of passengers considered likely to pass at first, as compared with the number, which had passed to and from 1833; the last named number however, viz 2-3d is necessary to yield the annual returns calculated, viz £281,000, and therefore, we presume, has been adopted in the calculation; more especially as in the second prospectus where the same assumption of 1-3d appears, it is immediately followed by 1,800 as the number, which instead of being 1-3d is a little more than 2-3d of 3169.

5.—The document to which we understand you refer to as being declared erroneous, and which the friends of Mr. Curtis are charged with being afraid to publish, was not sent officially, but privately and without instructions for its publication or not here; we believe, it will be sent with directions to make it public. In addition to what you have so aptly remarked as to the imperfect means available for forming an accurate estimate of the receipts, Mr. Curtis has expressly alluded to the necessarily speculative character of all estimates of profits. Further, it is worthy of remark that when his plan has been brought into entire operation, it will necessarily (from its comparatively great convenience and completeness) attract a total amount of receipts, which at present there exist no adequate data for approximately estimating. It is therefore to be known that the great majority of his supporters in India, have afforded their aid, not so much from the expectation of its proving an immediately lucrative investment of money, as from a public spirited desire to see the two countries brought into closer communication for their mutual public and private benefit.

6.—Referring to your proposal for an association pledged to guarantee from loss all persons in India, who may hereafter take shares in the Company, we have to state that if enquiry amongst those concerned, should disclose that they intend to become parties to it, still more at a late prospect of its being successfully formed, the Committee will have much satisfaction in bringing forward you along and most gratefully acknowledge suggestions however expected to be the first to come forward in the midst of this interesting matter, they necessarily feel reluctant to bind themselves by such an engagement, we believe that if you, who have a right, and with whom the suggestion has been expressed your readiness to take part, are to propose it to others, or were to look forward as ordinary subscribers, it would have a most beneficial effect.

7.—In conclusion the committee desire to express their warmest gratitude for your very liberal subscription as well as for the assurance of your approval of the measures adopted by Mr. Curtis and his associates, for placing within the reach of India this boon she has so long and so earnestly solicited, they indeed confidently hope, that under the influence and example of that spirit of patriotism, they have here had the gratification of advertising to the list of subscribers to Mr. Curtis' Company will partly be found augmented by the names of numerous individuals known throughout the land, not to be in the habit of giving merely verbal support to undertakings allied by public utility to public virtue.

The COMMITTEE OF THE NEW BENGAL STEAM FUND have the pleasure to publish the following correspondence for general information:

Raneesgunge, November 7, 1840

C. B. GREENLAW, Esq.,

Secretary to the Committee of the Comprehensive Scheme of Steam Communication; &c. &c. &c. Company.

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in enclosing an order upon Messrs. Carr, Tagore and Co. in your favor for 10 per cent on 5 shares in Mr. Curtis' Company these shares please to assign as follows:—

2.—Shares for C. B. Taylor, Raneesgunge.

1.—Ditto „ Mr. H. Cornelisz, ditto.

1.—Ditto „ Mr. John Cearn, jun. ditto.

1.—Ditto „ Mr. Owen Greene, Munglepora.

It has always been my intention to take a share of two in the Comprehensive Scheme for carrying the communication from Calcutta through the whole line to Rangoon, and but have been held back by sheer negligence; and it is to be hoped that many more will be found to have been equally remiss, and notwithstanding this delay, occasioned by the Precursors, we may yet see a boat on the side of the Lathmus before another year passes away, so that after all the noise made by the Precursors that their boat if it ever makes its appearance at all will prove a mere shadow, a humble follower in the wake of the Comprehensive; it is, however, beyond a doubt that the Precursors have done all India a most serious injury. I have lived in the Vofusil for the last 15 years without any intimation, and have steadily witnessed the measures and struggles carried forward to obtain the grand object so ardently desired by the whole community, and I think it may safely be asserted, without the fear of contradiction, that there is no parallel in India of a contest being maintained in opposition to the known wishes of the Home Authorities, for so long a course of years, and preserved in with such inflexible resolution and spirit, with one grand exception however, "The Liberty of the Press," and it had not been for the unfortunate advent of the Precursor, India would by this time have supplied the full sum she ever promised towards bringing to perfection the Grand Scheme of Steam Navigation between Calcutta and England; and it is probable that we might have obtained our object with the same ease as crowned our attention in the "Circles of the Press," but yet there is no greater cause for despondency; although the Precursors may have hitched a few spokes out of our wheel, they have still left us enough to sweep our vessels across the Atlantic.

Please to say when you require the remaining 40 per cent. on the 5 shares, I shall be down in December with it do you?

I remain, &c.

10. C. B. TAYLOR, Esq., Raneesgunge.

DEAR SIR,—We are affected by the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated 7th instant, communicating your desire that five shares might be taken in Mr. Curtis' company as under.

2.—Shares for C. B. Taylor, Raneesgunge

1.—Ditto „ Mr. H. M. Cornelisz, ditto.

1.—Ditto „ Mr. John Cearn, jun. ditto.

1.—Ditto „ Mr. Owen Greene, Munglepora.

The Committee desire us to return their thanks to you and the other gentlemen who have thus come forward in support of Mr. Curtis at a time thus described by himself ;

"After the various struggles we have made to accomplish a system of regular Steam Communication between England and India, the question seems arrived at that point which must determine whether that object shall be obtained or not : and if it now falls through the Anglo-Indians will have to thank themselves for it."

Fully concurring in the above the Committee trust that the people of India will now come forward and secure the attainment of that great object which they have so long sought. Subscriptions such as Mr. Dent's from those who can afford them, and such as yours from all others who like you appreciate the object, would at once command success.

We noticed on Monday the letter of Mr. Dent, communicating to the Committee of the New Bengal Steam Fund his desire to add fifty shares to ten formerly subscribed by him to Mr. Curtis' company, and we expressed a hope that many, who like him owe a debt of gratitude to India, and could so pay it, would do it. We repeat that hope ; and now solicit attention to a letter communicating more humble subscriptions. We observed on the 11th instant, when remarking on the appeal put forth by the Committee, that we were happy to see a boldly subscription from a Factory. The letter in question, from Mr. Cooper of Raneeunge Factory, communicates the subscription of five shares by four individuals. Assuming, what we presume the most resolute Precursor will not deny, that the establishment of Steam Communication with England on the perfect plan proposed by Mr. Curtis' company would be a great blessing to India, and to all concerned in her prosperity, we would earnestly press on the attention of gentlemen congregated at the various factories throughout India the example of the Raneeunge Factory. We feel satisfied there is in reality, no want of favorable disposition towards Mr. Curtis' company, but the contrary. We are, however, also aware that the unity of purpose which obtained throughout Bengal, in favor of the deplorable interference of the Precursor, which as Mr. Curtis justly says "split the India community into minute parties," having been broken, a too general apathy prevails, from which each individual anxiously for the completion of the measure should rouse himself, and we again refer to the examples of Mr. Dent, and Mr. Cooper, with the other gentlemen of the Raneeunge Factory, as deserving to be universally followed.

We would remind the people of India that it was at their entreaty, that is at the entreaty of their constituted agents, that Mr. Curtis and his Colleagues engaged in the attempt to establish this long sought Communication : and they were urged on the one originally by the knowledge of the unity of spirit and feeling which once obtained, and of the subscription and payment of one instalment on above 2,000 shares ; that they were subsequently cheered on by every successive public meeting ; that Mr. Turton himself, at the very meeting when he first announced his projected Precursor, in passing a resolution of thanks to Mr. Curtis, declared that he had done more for us than any other man in England, and added :

"Mr. Curtis, gentlemen will be glad to hear that when met together to complain of the injuries we have received, and to utter our wailings to the Government that had power in some degree to remedy the evil, our hearts turned to those who were boldly fighting in our cause in England, and that we did not forget him who has done his best to forward that cause."

Let all this be remembered, and let the subsequent conduct adopted towards Mr. Curtis by the leading Precursors and the weather cock Press of Calcutta, not be forgotten ; and then let it be said whether Mr. Curtis is not justified in the following conclusion of his letter which appeared in the papers of the 31st ultimo.

"If the people of India second the Oriental Company and discard us I think they never deserve to have friends in their service again. For myself I say nothing. I have no ambition ; my wish was to serve the interests of England in its most valuable possessions ; if I fail, which I trust to the good sense of the people of India to prevent, the fault is theirs not mine ; and I am repaid by the conscientious discharge of an unbought and voluntarily undertaken duty."

The question now is, 'CAN HE BE ALLOWED TO FAIL WITH THE PEOPLE OF INDIA CAN PREVENT IT ?'

The answer must be given forthwith, and we entreat the people of India, by every consideration of public policy and private convenience - of gratitude to those who have disinterestedly come forward to aid them in obtaining their own object - at once to answer by support -

Mr. Curtis' company to the utmost of their power. —

THE COMMITTEE OF THE NEW BENGALE STEAM FUND have much pleasure in directing further attention to the following copy of a letter from the Madras Committee and of its enclosure.

TO CHAS. B. GREENLAW, AND W. LIMOND, ESQUIRES

Joint Secretaries of the New Bengal Steam Fund.

DEAR SIRS, — I am directed by the Committee to acknowledge the receipt of your several communications, under the 27th and 29th ultimo, copies of which have been published for general information.

The Committee entertain the most confident hope that a determined style of Mr. Curtis' last letter to you and your well timed address to the people of India, cannot fail to excite a powerful interest throughout India, in favor of the Comprehensive plan, the Committee have exerted their utmost endeavors to give full effect, throughout this presidency, to those urgent and important appeals, and the abstract which I have now the honor to forward you, will show the result of their endeavors up to this date.

The union of commanding influence and example has realized such a capital for the accomplishment of a permanent and continuous Steam Communication between Great Britain and India, that it seems beyond all doubt that this grand object must and will succeed, and although the Committee cannot boast of the success they anticipated, when the last public meeting was held here, yet they indulge in sanguine hopes that most of the shareholders who have not responded to their circular notices, will eventually declare their adherence to Mr. Curtis Company, and that many others will be induced to rally under the same standard.

I have great pleasure in assuring you of the continuance of that cordial and steady support which the Committee have pledged themselves to afford you, in this great and arduous undertaking, and I trust the October Mail will convey such gratifying accounts from our friends in England, as will firmly establish the Comprehensive plan upon a sure and lasting foundation.

I have, &c.

Madras, Nov. 14, 1840.

The Steam Committee have great pleasure and satisfaction in publishing the annexed copies of a letter from Mr. Curtis, and the energetic appeal to the people of India by the New Bengal Steam Fund Committee, which that manly and straightforward letter has elicited.

The Comprehensive plan of a Steam Communication has now reached that crisis, that it must stand or fall, but if this great object which has been so long and eagerly desired fails, the cause of its failure will, without doubt, be owing to the want of that zeal and energy which the public throughout India have loudly professed, but have tardily performed.

The first appeal for this great boon emanated from India,—England responded to this call, and it is certain that complete success is now attainable if the people of this country and especially throughout this presidency, will be true to their own interests, and redeem that pledge which induced Mr. Curtis and his able colleagues to urge forward the Comprehensive plan to its present state of influence and prosperity.

The following abstract will show the actual state of the Madras Steam affairs, and points out the necessity of a prompt attention to those claims to which the Committee have repeatedly solicited public attention.

THE MARINE LODGE.

The members of the Marine Lodge met on last Wednesday night, when the Provincial Grand Master of Bengal, Dr. Grant, the Provincial Grand Master of Bombay, Dr. Burnes, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Bengal, W. D. Blaquiere, Esq., and the Right Worshipful Brothers Birch and Grant, were all sumptuously entertained. The supper was delectable, the wines delicious, and nothing could have excelled the good cheer and feeling of fraternal unanimity that characterised the meeting. After the usual toasts of obligation, the healths of the Provincial Grand Masters were drunk with all the regular honours. Right Worshipful Brother Burns returned thanks in a speech teeming with good feeling and kindly sentiment. Towards the conclusion of his address, he took an opportunity to make some happy allusions to the Marine Lodge, which as it was originally intended for the exclusive fraternal unity of Mariners in general, was eminently calculated to cultivate among them a spirit of genuine fellowship. In illustration of this he related a very interesting incident, which formed an extract from Masonic occurrences of 1812, a period when Right Worshipful Brother Blaquiere, so highly distinguished himself as a president of Masonry in Bengal.

The speech of Dr. Burnes was as follows:—

[We have extracted it from his Addresses, since published at the Hukaru Office.]

I had an ample apology in the calamity alluded to by the worshipful Master, that has recently befallen my family, and which has prevented my mingling in the social assemblies of the Craft during the last few weeks for declining the invitation, flattering and courteous tho' it was which I received in this Lodge, but being desirous of showing my consideration for its members, I consulted my excellent colleagues, and at his recommendation I am again within this hall. I assure you that I feel deeply the honor which has been conferred upon me, especially as it completes the round of festivity by which every lodge has been pleased to testify its welcome to me, and its appreciation of my conduct; and therefore places as it were the crowning stone on the Pillar which has been raised in my honor by the Calcutta Brethren.

When I first presented myself amongst you as a guest at the Lodge Industry and Perseverance, personally unknown to all except to my ever beloved friend the Provincial Grand Master for Bengal, who, first and foremost in the Craft, has also, if possible, surpassed others in overflowing kindness and genuine friendship to myself, I stated that my ambition had ever been to obtain and the approbation of upright and enlightened men; and having, as the events of the last few months have proved, fully attained my object here, it would, at this concluding festival, be an affectation unbecoming on profession, were I to disguise from you that, while the masonic honors which have been rendered to me, enhanced as they were by admired eulogies in prose and verse from individual and accomplished brethren, have exalted me in the scale of public esteem, they have also almost persuaded me to believe that I possess within me an ability hitherto unknown to myself, of serving with substantial effect the interests of our Order. If this be the case, it is to your brotherly love that I owe the new gift, and my gratitude and duty to you can best be evinced by devoting it with zeal to the cause to which we are all engaged, the spread of good will amongst men.—But I need not detain you with professions, since those who have already so honored me, will take on trust my future conduct.

I am unacquainted with the history of the Marine Lodge, but from its designation, as well as from the representation of a ship and other insignia on its banner, it is probable that it consists now, or was originally formed of that class of men, the chief glory of our country, from which sprang Nelson and St. Vincent. No class more engages our sympathy, or excites our admiration, and none has greater claims on the gratitude of mankind; yet none, whether from the accidents of war, tempests, or other mishaps, is so often thrown on the mercy of the charitable and humane, or, in other words, more dependent on those virtues which form the basis of our craft. Those who in ease may conceive masonic institutions to be useless; but no prudent man who, either as a servant of his envergein, or as a speculator for private advantage has to tempt the mighty waters, and to dar the battle-fire, and wreck, will neglect to obtain the talisman,—if indeed he is worthy of it,—which may open many a heart and door to him on a distant shore, where destiny at any moment may cast him, a penniless mendicant. Hence Freemasonry has a peculiar charm, founded on experience of its benefits, to many sea-faring men, and they occasionally evince their respect for it with a fervency that must be sincere. I was requested last year by a dying brother, the Captain of a ship at Bombay, to visit him, simply because he had once met me in a Lodge, and at that dread hour when the war closes, and a new and mysterious abyss opens to the view, he requested that the brethren should follow his remains to the grave, though without the pomp and circumstance of masonic ceremony. Another master of a vessel at Bombay, about thirty years ago, bequeathed his fortune, amounting nearly to £3000* for masonic purposes. These are two out of many instances of love to waris the craft amongst sailor brethren, and it is natural enough that, feeling the mighty benefits it confers upon them, they should in return be more than most men attached to its discipline, precepts, and practice.

Many of the most beautiful details, recorded in our annals, are connected with the generosity of nautical brethren to each other in the hour of need. We even know that some of them, when unable to rescue the living from a watery grave, have devoted special attention to the sepulture of those amongst the dead whom they believed to have been craftsmen, from emblems depicted on their persons, on whom they even conjectured to have been sunk from the circumstance of their bodies being found in an attitude peculiar as to induce a fancy—that, ere the spirit of the sufferers winged its flight, they had put themselves in order as masons. Such a supposition however, interesting as it is, and highly honorable in the sense of obligation of those who maintained it, rests, I presume, on no real foundation, since it is too probable that drowning men ‘die, and make no sign;’ and at all events, as our duty is to the living not with the dead,—whose signs and tokens have been tested elsewhere,—I shall pass to a more tangible subject, and communicate for your instruction an authentic ‘tale of the Sea,’ which was lately obtained for me from the records of the Lodge, Star in the East, by my valued friend the R. W. Brother Blacquiere, whose presence we rejoice in to-night, and whom I do not yet despair of inducing to add to the obligation he has already imposed on the craft, by opening his stores of masonic lore and interesting anecdote for the information and improvement of the brethren generally. It is simply this:—

On the 6th November, 1812, the Sloop “Three Friends” of Youghall, J. Campbell, Master, from Southampton, was captured off the Start Point by the French Privateer L’Eclat, Louis Marencourt of St. Malo Captain, who on finding that the sloop’s cargo consisted of bricks and hoops, directed her to be scuttled and sunk. Having accidentally however discovered Mr. Campbell’s masonic diploma amongst his papers, he instantly countermanded his orders, entertained him with great hospitality, and presented to him a document by which the sloop and cargo were again his own, merely requiring from him, in return, a pledge that he would endeavour to procure the release of a certain French Captain then in Dartmouth jail—So much for the exemplary conduct of a worthy foreign mason.

It happened however, that our own compatriots soon had an opportunity which they gladly seized, of marking their sense of the Frenchman’s generosity, for, ere a few months had elapsed, brother Marencourt himself, by the fortune of war, had become a prisoner, and was carried into an Irish port. On hearing of his arrival, abundant tokens of friendship were tendered to him by the hospitable brethren of the Green Isle, and it is to the honor especially of the members of the Union Lodge No. 13, of Limerick, that they transmitted to him a piece of plate of the value of one hundred pounds, together with a most appropriate address, expressive of their admiration of his noble conduct, and of their determination to make every effort to obtain his release. I only wish I could add that their laudable endeavours were instantly crowned with success, but although brother Blacquiere, Mr William Grant Ken and others instituted enquiry, with the view not only of affording their aid, but also of conveying to M. Marencourt some token of esteem from the Lodge Star in the East, no satisfactory information ever reached India on the subject. It is consolatory however to know that peace was proclaimed throughout Europe soon after the events I have described, and that the generous Frenchman must then have been restored to his friends and country, where I hope he still lives, enjoying the comfort and serenity of mind, which the recollection of good deeds invariably inspire.

I shall not lessen the effect of this interesting narration, the facts of which are attested in the paper I now submit for your inspection, by offering any commentary, and having already trespassed too long on your attention, I shall merely remark that every thing which has occurred to night within this lodge has my hearty approval, and also that of the Provincial Grand Master of Bengal who has been obliged to depart; and I feel much pleasure, therefore in requesting you all to join me in drinking the health of the Worshipful Master.—

The document which Brother Burnes placed on the table, was an extract from the records of the Lodge

* It is to be regretted that this amount, together with the accumulated interest, still remains unclaimed in the Government Treasury, the testator having unfortunately confined it to masonic objects connected with the old Lodge of Bombay now extinct and of which no legal representatives are known to exist. Efforts however are being made to recover it for charitable purposes.

Star in the East, containing the following minute of proceedings of the union lodge of Limerick, no. 13.

At a meeting of the brethren of this Lodge, held at their Lodge Rooms Commercial Buildings, on the 11th March 1813, the following resolutions were unanimously agreed to:

That the thanks of this Lodge are eminently due, and are hereby given to Captain Marencourt of the Le First French Privateer, for his liberal and brotherly conduct in restoring Captain Campbell to his liberty, his property, and to the arms of his family, who, but for the noble act of fraternal generosity, must have been deprived, as well of their natural protector, as of the means of independence which are now so disinterestedly bestowed on them; and that the following address be transmitted to Captain Marencourt by our Worshipful Master accompanied by a piece of plate, value One Hundred pounds.

Limerick, 11th March, 1813.

'Sis and Brother,

'Impressed with feelings of the sincerest gratitude for your noble and disinterested conduct to Captain Campbell, and sympathising with you in your present captivity, we beg leave to convey to you our most unfeigned regard and highest admiration; and to assure you that no exertion on our part shall be wanting to procure you that invaluable gift Linnets, which you bestowed on a brother Mason, when your prisoner. The consciousness of a noble action, Sir, is its own reward; that reward you possess in the fullest manner, and we shall receive the highest gratification if we can, in any manner, add to that feeling, by requesting you to accept the assurance of our warmest esteem, and we beg your acceptance of the accompanying piece of plate as a tribute of our fraternal affection.'

RIVER THEFTS.

A few days back the Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, addressed a letter to the Chief Magistrate, on the subject of the River Police. This letter seemed to have been called forth, owing to the increased extent of river thefts that have recently occurred. The Chief Magistrate has drawn up a long reply to Mr. Linnard's letter, in which he takes an opportunity of pointing out the negligence of the mercantile community in regard to the mode in which goods are despatched for shipment on vessels. We have been able to obtain Mr. McFarlan's letter which is as follows:—

To WILLIAM LINNARD, Esq.

Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce.

SIR,—In reply to your letter of the 19th current, I have to say, that since the date of your letter noted in the margin, nothing has been done of an organic nature for the improvement of the River Police.

2d. The sort of improvement which is desired ought to be clearly understood. If the repression of dacoity or Robbery by open violence is desired, and kind of remedy would be proper. If of stealing by strangers, another sort of remedy would be proper. If of stealing by the servants employed in convey or guard property on the river, than an entirely different course would require to be pursued, beyond the power of the Police altogether.

3d. That the latter is the evil really affecting the trade of the port, may perhaps be at once ascertained. Police reports and common experience all concur in this, and your letter states nothing that would derogate from the same conclusion.

4th. I subjoin extracts from the Police reports for the last 5 years. It will be seen that they indicate no flagrant state of crime requiring the correction of Government. In this place at the present day, there is no great chance of serious popular evil existing without their being brought to notice. The petty thefts, each trifling in amount, but forming (including those discovered in England) a large aggregate, are the real evils to be grappled with.

5th. The truth must be broadly stated. The merchants of Calcutta are robbed by the pilfering of churrundars (guards) and boatmen, because it is not worth their while to meet the expense of efficient means to protect their property. If a merchant will send to a ship in the river a cargo of 80 bags of sugar, and saltpetre, rice or any other produce, in an open boat protected by a churrundar, paid by them at the rate of four annas, but who receives not twelve pice per day, and who is allowed to go quick or slow as he pleases, and where the said carriers are liable to no question for petty losses, he must expect to be robbed. The merchants' bantam, makes good all discovered losses.

6. The Police are in the habit of searching bhurs after they are discharged from the ship. The following is an abstract of the cases they have brought forward.

7. These cases are the few in which the European Officers of the establishment found produce in the boats or in which the native police were not sufficiently bribed or quarrelled with the bur people, and so reported them. This Act of extra vigilance on the part of the Police, is itself an evil. The illegal doucens which the native police doubtless levy, must be made good from future plunder.

8. You are aware that in the ordinary course of merchant's business, goods put on boardship are not reweighed. The merchant therefore delivers his eighty bags that ought to be of 160 maunds weight in reality, but which are of only 158. The two maunds are found in the bur by the Police. The merchants, before the Magistrate, declares himself utterly unable to say that the produce thus found in the boat is his; for the ship has given receipts for 80 bags. Thus flagrant thieves escape, for no man can be convicted as a thief where nothing is known to be stolen.

9. I know that the course of business will not admit of weighing the goods when received on boardship. The remedy, therefore, lies in this provision of good boats having cabins properly secured by lock and key, that shall place this small thieving altogether beyond the power of the wretched crews now employed; such boats have been made by a native merchant, and I understand there is a joint stock Company for building more.

10. The subject of registration of bhurs or lighters is of considerable importance. It would doubtless be a great check against this petty thieving, if the owner of a bur knew that a case of theft established against him, or the temporary holders of his boat, would disable the boat and its crew from future employment in the same line, and I am very glad to find that the Chamber is not opposed to this remedy. If proper boats are built, and if they are registered, and the consequence of theft discovered is future non-employment, I think the safe transit of goods passing from the shore to ships in the river, would be secured. The other possible improvements, such as the construction of wet docks and the loading and unloading of ships in them, would of course be a still more effectual remedy, but other cause with which the police can have no concern, will bring such improvements about.

11th. I subjoin an extract from the Law Commissioner's proceedings, which is not favorable to the plan of registry, and the government of the day concurred with them. I know that considerable obstacles will now be found in the way of obtaining the enactment of a system of registry, and that it will not depend upon anything that I can say, whether it is given or not—clear and strong statements from the position of the community who suffer from the want of a law of registry, not what might be called the fancies of any public officer, will be attended to.

12th. Above all, if there is any reasonable ground* to believe that what the trade of the port actually requires can be attained without registry, it will undoubtedly not be given.

13th. In the letter from which the above extracts were taken, strong remarks are made on the impropriety of attempting any registry without the sanction of the law.

I am, &c.

(Signed) D. McFARLAN,
Chief Magistrate.

Calcutta, Police Office, 26th Nov. 1840.

(Copy)

Extract from a letter of the Officiating Secretary of India, Law Commissioners, to the Officiating Secretary to Government of India Legislative Department, dated 19th January, 1840.

3. The first Law which Mr. McFarlan suggests, is one for enforcing the registration of all coolies (porters) caris, and keeranchies (hackery coaches) under a system similar to that established for palanken bearers, by the Calcutta bye-law, passed on the 27th of April 1827. This system besides enforcing registration and the wearing of a badge, regulates the charge demandable, and the places where to ply. The Law Commissioners assume that no special laws interfering with the affairs of any class of the community ought to be made, unless it be clearly shown that there is some peculiarity in the case of that class, which renders the general law, which is sufficient to repress the offences of other classes, insufficient for that class, or unless some preponderating good can be reasonably anticipated from restricting that particular class by special regulations, which could not be anticipated in an equal degree from putting all persons under similar restrictions. So much seems to be not only due in fairness to the individuals most interested, but also as a matter of public expediency, for no unnecessary difficulty can be thrown in the way of persons of any one calling without some inconvenience to people at large. If this be true, as applied to countries, in which reliance can be placed in the persons who are entrusted with power, the argument is much stronger, as applied to this country, in which even those powers which are unavoidably entrusted to the lower officers of the police, for the most necessary purposes, are liable to be so much abused, as to frequent instances to cause more annoyances than benefit to the public.

4. Mr. McFarlan seems to admit the soundness of this principle, but he says that he thinks "a strong case could be made" out in respect to the coolies of Calcutta. The only argument which he has mentioned is, that thefts have been of late frequently committed by persons plying as coolies, but what the number of such thefts may have been within any period is not stated, nor has the nature of these thefts been stated. The Indian Law Commissioners, therefore, have not been furnished with reasons sufficient to make them believe, that the evil is of importance enough to warrant legal interference, or that the mode of interference proposed would obviate the evil; for no laws will keep people from losing their property who do not take proper precautions to prevent thieves from stealing it. On the other hand, they understand that an endeavour which has lately been made by the Police to induce coolies to wear badges, was so disagreeable to that class, as to drive a great number from Calcutta for several days. The interference of the police in this matter was felt as vexatious, not to a few coolies, who were in the habit of committing theft, or to a few thieves, who were in the habit of pretending to be coolies.

5. With respect to hackeries, all that is said is, "that cases of hackery drivers absconding with their load are not unfrequent." With respect to keeranchies, no reasons whatever have been advanced, to authorize the proposed interference. The Law Commissioners, therefore, as at present informed, see still less grounds for enforcing the registration and interfering with the freedom of these conveyances than for doing the same to coolies.

6. On the subject of all local regulation of this nature, the Law Commissioners observe generally, that they are inclined to receive with jealousy proposals for multiplying them. If thefts or other offences are common in any place, they think that it is seldom for want of special and local laws and that the enactment of such laws would seldom make them less common. Still less do they think these offences likely to be diminished by the enactment of laws which must, to a certain degree, be vexatious to a poor and industrious people, which may, by abuse, be rendered intolerable to health.

7. Thus the Law Commissioners have thus expressed their selves generally on the subject of interfering by special regulations, in such matters as these in question, I am directed to state, that they wish to be by no means understood as expressing an opinion that such laws can never be required. So much inconvenience may be felt from the want of such laws, which it might be shown would be removed by them without any corresponding inconvenience, as fully to justify their enactment, though this has not in the present case, been made apparent to the Law Commissioners. Whether this be so or not, is strictly a matter for local enquiry, and as such, the Law Commissioners conceive, that it was not the intention of the Government to require their attention to be devoted to this matter. If any regulations of this sort be thought necessary, the Law Commissioners trust, that it will be practicable to provide some that will not prevent the free employment of labor and capital in these trades, and that will be little liable to be abused by the lower officers of Police.

8. The Chief Magistrate of Calcutta likewise proposes a law of the same nature, for the ferry boats of this place, whereby none but safe boats would be allowed to ply. The Indian Law Commissioners have recommended, in the Penal Code, a law which would make

* When a registry of coolies was proposed and the evidence of the coin robberies brought to light last session and the Supremo Court appealed to, the answer was, let the merchants take better care of their property.

It penal, universally to convey passengers for hire in an unsafe boat, whether the boat be penal by being overloaded or otherwise. The passing of this general law would make the expediency of a local law regulating the ferry boats of this place determinable by considerations similar to those by which the expediency of such a law for keel-boats must be determined.

Great betting and excitement on this race, St Francis far choice, Frolic in the opinion of some, not being up to his mark

Frolic took the lead and was never headed. St. Francis, and Sweetlips made a tremendous rush at the last 2 mile in, but it was no go, the little horse coming clear away winning cleverly by a length in 3m. 58s. Joe rode well and steadily in this race 5th Race—Purse of 10 G M from the fund for all ponies. Weight for miles—13 hands to carry 8st. Entrance 3 G M Heats half a mile. Winners once previous to the meeting to carry 3lbs, twice 5lbs, thrice and oftener 7lbs extra. To close and name the day before the race.

3rd Day

My Dear Mr. Editor, — I again sit down to give you a short account of the Third Day's Races at Leicester. The morning this-day was very good, and the two first Races very well contested, the timing taking into consideration that the horses are short of work, first rate

Yours faithfully,

A PLANTER.

1st Race—Indigo Planter's Purse, value 1000 Rupees, for all horses (English excepted) Arabs 8st. 5lbs Country-bred br, 9lbs, Cape and New South Wales 9st Entrance 10 G M. Winners once previous to the meeting to carry 7lbs, twice 1st, thrice and oftener 2½lbs extra, and 4 Maiden winners once during the Meeting to carry 3lbs, twice 5 lbs, thrice and oftener 7lbs extra, 1½ of a mile.

Baronet the favourite—Evergreen had also his friends, but greatly disappointed his backers, Baronet jumped off with the lead at a great pace, and was never headed, winning by a couple of lengths, in the slap up time of 3ms, 3½s, Sweetlips with the 2½lbs, extra, ran a very game animal, and Old Bobb was a good third—the two chestnuts were badly tailed off 2d Race—A. P. P. Sweepstakes of 50 G M. each for all Maiden Arabs, 8st 7lbs each, ¾ of a mile.

Mr. Allright's b a h Chusan, (Ross) 1

Two and three to one on Chusan against the Field. He jumped off with the lead at a tearing pace—at the distance past the whole of the horses might have been covered with a sheet—Chusan winning barely by half a length, in 1m. 25s. So near a thing was it, that there were not three lengths between Chusan and the last horse of the race, (Commissioner Lin) who by the by, was backed at the odds by his worthy owners, to recapture Chusan.

The great interest of the morning centered in this race, each horse being freely backed against the other. At the commencement of the Ordinary, Frolic was backed even against the field, but afterwards reeded in the betting, and finally settled down at 2 to 1. The Field v Frolic Blackball's backers were very confident and freely took the same odds, Sweetlips's friends were also not shy, 2½ and 3 to 1, being taken repeatedly, Blackball sold highest on the lottery, and in the morning of the race rose into great favor 200 G. M. to 300 G. M being freely offered, Blackball v. the Field, but no takers, the evident confidence of the game little blacks backers, having somewhat damped the general amour.

The result, however, showed that Frolic was not to be beaten, heled from the post, increased his distance to five or six lengths in advance at the half inch out, and ended by winning easy in the excellent time of 3m, 13s. The distance being run in 16s, and the R. C. in 2m 57s Sweetlips ran a tolerable second.

4th Race.—A purse of 100 rupees for all Ponies for which certificate can be produced of their having done 4 month's work as Gomastah's Ponies during the season 1840 Cich weights entrance 20 rupees heats half a mile. Post entrance.

Mr. Sneyd's c h p Botherem ,.....	2 2

1st Heat.—A capital race both Ponies neck and neck within a couple of strides of the winning Post, when Janwar was thrown in a winner by a head time 1m.

2d Heat—Janwar led from the Post winning easy in 1m 1s. This race excited some interest amongst the Jessore Planters—as there was no little difference of opinion as to the respective merits of the two rivals. The Chota-Narandy Poney however set the matter at rest, as Botherem should, he had no chance with him either with heavy or light weights.

A match of 50 P. P ½ of a mile, 8st, 11lb. each.

Mr. Curtis's oh a h Commissioner Lin ,.....	2

Both horses rated it from the post within a couple of strides of the post Xebek was leading, but Joe managed with a judicious stroke of the whip to throw in the chestnut and make a dead heat. Time 1m 26 seconds.

For the second heat, Joe had orders to make a waiting race, but it was no go. Xebek though reckoned a brute, and cow heated, ran right well, winning easy in the first rate time of 1m. 21½ seconds. The result of the second heat would in the opinion of most have been, had the race been run from end to end, and Mr. Curtis not given orders to Joe to whip.—Hurkaru, November 11, 1840.

SIXTH AND LAST DAY.

Mr Dean Mn. Editor,—I send you an account of the sixth and last day's racing at Jessore. In consequence of the departure of the greater number of the visitors, the day went off rather slow.

1st half mile 57s.
2d half mile 59s.
3d half mile 59 $\frac{1}{2}$ s.

BANGALORE RACES.

SECOND DAY.

Dear Sir,—According to promise I send you an account of our second day's meeting.

As bad luck would have it there was a constant pour of rain from nine o'clock last night till two A. M. this morning, which of course was much against me.

For the Welter, the Untrained St. Patrick and Wee Willy came to the post. The Untrained is a most powerful and well-bred animal, but looked as if he was a little too fat to run. St. Patrick looked none the worse for his hard day's work on Thursday, and was much fancied, Wee Willey in high spirits, but looked rather fine drawn: at the word off the Untrained from being a most powerful horse in the lot went off at a score. Knocking off the first mile in two minutes, from the heaviness of the ground he had it all his own way, coming in an easy winner in three minutes and ten seconds. St Patrick contrived to give Wee Willey the go by within three yards from the post, and apparently could have beat him much sooner.

SECOND MAIDEN—Small Ropes, New Light and Poor old screw, well termed the Ghost of a Hope came to the post. At the word off the poor European boy who rode the Ghost went off agreeable to order at his best pace. New Light holding back before he had gone twenty yards. Small Ropes left the Ghost full ten yards behind him. Mahomed on Small Ropes still continued increasing his distance, and at the back of the course took a "strong run" upon his horse allowing that famous rider Tiger on New Light to come along side of him and then went away from him. Small Ropes pulling double as might be expected, time very slow, in fact it was no race, the unfortunate Ghost disappearing, and by the time the weighing was half done he was seen limping up to the scales.

SECOND HEAT—Ghost being distanced did not appear to gain any odds on Small Ropes no taking. At the word off Small Ropes went away at a good pace and the little blood horse New Light but off the first half mile after this Small Ropes cantered in.

On Tuesday afternoon the Husar Cup will be run for, for which seven horses have entered any odds on Captain Hall's Stables who has as yet won every race, and it might be depended on, has his best horses still to come out if necessary.

I am, my dear Sir, your's most obediently,

A WELL WISHER TO THE CURR.
